16. P.W.-11/Const. Satti Deen, formally proved the registration of connected criminal cases being, Case Crime No.355/2009 under Section 307 I.P.C. and Case Crime No.356/2009 under Section 3/25 Arms Act on the basis of recovery memos and reports submitted by the arresting officers. No material discrepancy emerged during his cross-examination.

17. P.W.-12/Piyush Ranjan Srivastava, C.O., being one of the Investigating Officers, proved substantial investigative steps culminating in filing of charge-sheet. P.W.'12 deposed about the steps undertaken during investigation, including recording of witness statements, collection of post-mortem reports, preparation of Site plans and examination of police witnesses. P.W.'12 also proved the Site plan and Charge-sheet submitted against the accused under Sections 302 and 404 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(5) of the SC/ST Act.

During his cross-examination, no material irregularity in investigation could be demonstrated by the opposite party. P.W.'12 strenuously denied suggestions of biased investigation.

18. P.W.-13/S.I. Satya Narayan Verma, investigated the offences under Section 307 I.P.C. and Section 3/25 Arms Act. P.W.'13 also deposed about recording statements of witnesses, preparing Site plans relating to the encounter and recovery proceedings and obtaining sanction for prosecution under the Arms Act. P.W.'13 proved the Site plans, Sanction order and Charge-sheets filed in the connected cases.

During his cross-examination, P.W.'13 denied suggestions that the encounter story was fabricated or that the accused had been falsely implicated.

19. P.W.-14/B.B. Chaurasia, C.O., was the principal Investigating Officer in the present case, whose testimony connects various pieces of evidence collected during investigation and explains the sequence of investigative steps resulting in submission of the charge-sheet. P.W.'14 during his examination-in-chief has deposed that after registration of the F.I.R., he inspected the scene of occurrence, prepared the Site plan, recorded statements of witnesses including, Nathulal and Surendra Pal, and collected evidence during investigation. P.W.'14 proved the Site map and various investigative documents. Upon completion of investigation and finding sufficient evidence against the accused, he submitted the Charge-sheet.

During his cross-examination, the defence attempted to suggest that investigation was biased and conducted with a predetermined intention to implicate the accused. P.W.'14 denied such allegations and asserted that investigation was carried out fairly and on the basis of material collected during investigation.

20. After conclusion of the evidence of the prosecution, the statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., wherein the accused, Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu, entered himself in the witness-box as a Defence witness/D.W.-1, wherein he deposed that he had been falsely implicated in the present case. He stated that he never resided permanently in the house of deceased Babita and was merely acquainted with her. He denied having committed the murders of Nandrani, Babita, Gunjan and Anshu and further denied the allegations regarding recovery of jewellery articles and other belongings of the deceased from his possession. D.W.-1 deposed that he had assisted Babita in securing employment as an Anganwadi worker and, consequently, cordial relations had developed between them. According to him, due to such acquaintance, he occasionally visited Babita's residence. D.W.-1 further asserted that the police had apprehended him from his native village Naumalikpur and thereafter, fabricated a false story of arrest, recovery and encounter in order to implicate him in the present case.

During his cross-examination, several significant admissions were elicited from the accused. D.W.-1 admitted that he had developed affection towards Babita and had become emotionally attached to her. D.W.-1 further admitted that he had stayed at Babita's residence on several occasions. Although in his examination-in-chief, D.W.-1 attempted to portray his visits as casual and seldom, but during his cross-examination, he acknowledged that whenever he visited Sandi and it became late in the evening, he used to stay at Deceased-1/Babita's house. D.W.-1 admitted that such stays had occurred on more than one occasion. D.W.-1 also admitted that apart from providing help in facilitating Babita's appointment as an Anganwadi worker, he shared physical relations with the deceased Babita. This admission substantially corroborated the prosecution version that the relationship between the accused and Babita was not merely casual but intimate in nature.

21. The Trial Court after considering and appreciating the evidence available on record, convicted and sentenced the accused/appellant Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu vide judgment and order dated 02.09.2014, on all counts as mentioned herein below: -

PROCEEDINGS BEFORE THIS COURT

22. Aggrieved by the aforesaid conviction and awarding of sentence, the accused/appellant - Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu, has preferred the instant Criminal Appeal under Section 374(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 against the impugned common judgment and order dated 02.09.2014, passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Hardoi as detailed herein above.

23. It is evident to note at this point that the First bail application filed by the appellant was rejected by a Coordinate Bench of this Court, vide a reasoned order dated 27.03.2015, passed in Criminal Misc. Application No. 96058 of 2014. Subsequently, the Second bail application came to be filed by the appellant vide dated 02.12.2024 in Criminal Misc. Application No. 03 of 2024.

24. However, while arguing the bail application, Shri Shashank Shekhar Singh, learned Counsel appearing for and on behalf of the accused/appellant, has pressed that since the paper book is ready in the present criminal appeal and he is willing to argue the appeal on merits, as the accused/appellant is in jail since 24.06.2009, it was directed for final hearing of the present criminal Appeal.

25. Accordingly, the Second bail application was dismissed as being not pressed and the instant criminal appeal has been heard on its merits.

SUBMISSION ON BEHALF OF THE PARTIES

26. That the hinge of the argument of the learned Counsel for the accused/appellant is that the judgment of conviction and sentence passed by the learned Trial Court is that the entire prosecution case rests solely on circumstantial evidence and there is no direct ocular evidence connecting the accused/appellant with the alleged murder of four deceased persons. It has been submitted that the conviction recorded by the Trial Court is based upon conjectures and surmises rather than legally admissible evidence and, therefore, cannot be sustained in law.

27. Learned Counsel for the accused/appellant has further contended that the First Information Report itself, originates from pure suspicion and lacks the requisite factual foundation to constitute a prima facie case. P.W.-1 (Nathulal) admittedly did not witness the occurrence and merely stated that after reaching the house he found the dead bodies of the deceased persons. The allegation against the accused/appellant was made only because the accused/appellant was known to be residing with deceased-1/Babita and allegedlly certain neighbours informed the Complainant that a quarrel had taken place between deceased Babita and the accused/appellant on the preceding night of the incident. Thus, according to learned Counsel, the F.I.R. discloses only suspicion and not any direct incriminating circumstance against the accused/appellant.

28. Learned Counsel for the accused/appellant has also submitted that the prosecution has failed to establish a complete chain of circumstances as required by settled principles governing cases based upon circumstantial evidence. Reliance has been placed upon some landmark judgments rendered in the cases of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, reported in (1984) 4 SCC 116; Hanumant v. State of M.P., reported in (1952) 2 SCC 71; Ravishankar Tandon v. State of Chhattisgarh, reported in 2024 SCC OnLine SC 526; and a judgment of this Court rendered in the case of Vinod Chaudhari v. State of U.P., reported in 2023 SCC OnLine All 1420; to contend that every circumstance relied upon by the prosecution must be fully established and all such circumstances must unerringly point towards the guilt of the accused, while excluding every possible hypothesis consistent with innocence. It was argued that the present case falls far short of the aforesaid standard.

29. Learned Counsel for the accused/appellant has further contended that no motive has been established by the prosecution in the present case. It has been vehemently argued that the prosecution story regarding alleged pressure by the accused/appellant upon deceased Babita for marriage and the consequent quarrel is based solely upon the testimony of interested witnesses, particularly P.W.-2 Malti. There is no independent evidence to establish any such motive. It was submitted that where a case rests entirely on circumstantial evidence, proof of motive assumes great significance and the prosecution having failed to establish the same, the chain of circumstances remains incomplete. It has also been submitted that the so-called 'last seen' circumstance is inherently weak and unreliable, in the present case. P.W.-3 Surendra Pal, merely stated that he had heard a quarrel between the accused/appellant and the deceased Babita at about 9:00 p.m. and thereafter, went inside his own house. P.W.-3 did not witness any occurrence during the night. P.W.-3 also did not depose that the accused/appellant remained inside the house throughout the night. Thus, according to learned Counsel, the testimony of P.W.-3 is insufficient to establish exclusive presence of the accused/appellant with the deceased immediately before the occurrence.

30. Learned Counsel for the accused/appellant has strenuously submitted that four persons, including an elderly lady and two children, were allegedly murdered by strangulation. The post-mortem reports disclose ligature strangulation as the cause of death. It has been argued that the nature and manner of occurrence of the incident itself suggest participation of more than one assailant and render the prosecution story that a single individual committed all four murders highly improbable. No explanation has been offered by the prosecution, as to how a single person could simultaneously overpower and murder four occupants of the house without any sign of resistance or alarm by any of them.

31. Furthermore, the recovery of jewellery, mobile phones and other articles allegedly belonging to the deceased has also been challenged. Learned Counsel has submitted that the recovery proceedings are doubtful and suffer from serious procedural irregularities. No independent public witness was associated with the alleged recoveries. Mandatory safeguards contemplated under Cr.P.C. were not complied with. It has been further submitted that the alleged recoveries stand contradicted by the inquest proceedings and therefore, cannot be treated as reliable incriminating circumstances. It has also been contended that the prosecution fabricated a false story of encounter in order to strengthen an otherwise weak case. According to learned Counsel, the accused/appellant was illegally apprehended and a fictitious version was subsequently created regarding firing upon the police party. The entire prosecution case under Section 307 I.P.C. and Section 3/25 Arms Act has argued to be artificial and unsupported by any independent witness.

32. It has been further argued that all material witnesses of fact are either related to the deceased or interested witnesses. P.W.-1 Nathulal, is a close relative of the deceased family, whereas P.W.-2 Malti, is the sister of deceased Babita and daughter of deceased Nandrani. Their testimonies, according to the accused/appellant, required cautious scrutiny. It has been also submitted that material contradictions and inconsistencies exist in their evidence and the learned Trial Court failed to appreciate such discrepancies.

33. Learned Counsel for the accused/appellant has also contended that the defence version has not been properly considered. The accused/appellant consistently maintained that he was falsely implicated due to a dispute relating to the property of the deceased family. It has been strenuously argued that after the incident, P.W.-2 Malti, and her family occupied the property and therefore, possessed a strong motive to implicate the accused/appellant. The possibility of involvement of other interested persons was also not investigated by the police. Learned Counsel for the accused/appellant has further submitted that the investigation suffered from serious infirmities and was conducted with a predetermined intention to implicate the accused/appellant. Material lapses and procedural irregularities were ignored by the Trial Court. It has been also argued that the statement of the accused/appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has not been properly recorded and all incriminating circumstances were not fairly put to him.

34. Lastly, it has been argued that the prosecution has failed to establish guilt beyond reasonable doubt. At the highest, the circumstances create suspicion against the accused/appellant; however, suspicion, howsoever strong, cannot take the place of legal proof. It has been therefore prayed that the conviction and sentence recorded by the learned Trial Court be set aside and the accused/appellant be acquitted of all charges.

35. Per contra, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State has supported the judgment of conviction and submitted that the learned Trial Court has correctly appreciated the evidence on record and has recorded findings fully supported by law and evidence. Learned A.G.A. has contended that the prosecution has succeeded in proving a complete and unbroken chain of circumstantial evidence pointing solely towards the guilt of the accused/appellant-Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu. The evidence establishes that the accused/appellant was residing with deceased Babita in a live-in relationship for about one and a half years immediately preceding the occurrence of the incident. This fact stands proved not only through P.W.-1 Nathulal, P.W.-2 Malti and P.W.-3 Surendra Pal, but also through admissions made by the appellant himself, while deposing as D.W.-1.

36. Learned A.G.A. has further submitted that the motive behind the crime has been satisfactorily established. P.W.-2 Malti, specifically deposed that the accused/appellant was pressurizing Babita to enter into a Court marriage and that Babita was unwilling to do so. P.W.-2 has also stated that Babita often complained about the accused/appellant's unemployment and dependence upon her earnings. The resulting discord created bitterness in the relationship and supplied a clear motive for the crime. The accused/appellant himself admitted during his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and as D.W.-1 that he intended to marry Babita, thereby lending corroboration to the prosecution case regarding motive.

37. Learned A.G.A. has also submitted that the evidence of P.W.-3 Surendra Pal, an independent neighbour, having no animus against the accused/appellant, assumes considerable significance. P.W.-3 categorically stated that on the night of 23.06.2009 at about 9:00 p.m. he witnessed a serious quarrel between the accused/appellant and Babita. He further stated that he did not see the accused/appellant leaving the house thereafter. Thus, the accused/appellant was last seen in the company of the deceased persons immediately prior to the occurrence. It has been argued that the appellant's conduct after the incident constitutes a strong incriminating circumstance. Although accused/appellant was admittedly residing in the house of the deceased, however he went missing when the dead bodies were discovered. No explanation whatsoever has been furnished by him regarding the circumstances under which four occupants of the house were murdered during the night. The failure of the accused/appellant to offer any plausible explanation attracts the principle embodied in Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act.

38. Learned A.G.A. has further submitted that the medical evidence completely supports the prosecution case. P.W.-5 Dr. Anil Kumar Srivastava, conclusively proved that all four deaths were homicidal and caused by ante-mortem ligature strangulation. The time of death corresponds with the prosecution version that the murders occurred during the intervening night of 23/24 June 2009. The medical evidence is fully consistent with the circumstantial evidence led by the prosecution. It was next submitted that a highly incriminating circumstance is the recovery of jewellery, mobile phones, purse and other articles belonging to the deceased persons at the instance of the accused/appellant soon after the occurrence. P.W.-2 Malti, identified all recovered articles as belonging to the deceased. The recovery was duly proved by P.W.-7 and P.W.-8 and remained unshaken during cross-examination. Such recovery immediately after the occurrence provides strong corroboration to the prosecution case and establishes the appellant's connection with the crime.

39. It has also been submitted by learned A.G.A. that during Trial, the prosecution also relied upon the conduct of the accused/appellant at the time of arrest. P.W.-7 and P.W.-8 consistently deposed that when the police party attempted to apprehend him, the accused/appellant opened fire with a country-made pistol and thereafter was arrested with an unlicensed firearm and cartridges. The evidence of these witnesses remained consistent and no material contradiction could be elicited despite extensive cross-examination. Learned A.G.A. argued that the defence plea of false implication due to a property dispute is wholly unsubstantiated. No documentary evidence was produced by the accused/appellant to establish any property dispute. No independent witness was examined in support of the defence theory. Mere suggestions put during cross-examination cannot be treated as evidence.

40. It has been further submitted that the testimony of related witnesses cannot be discarded solely on the ground of relationship if otherwise reliable and trustworthy. The evidence of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 finds substantial corroboration from independent witness P.W.-3, medical evidence, recoveries, documentary evidence and admissions made by the appellant himself. Consequently, their testimony cannot be rejected merely because of their relationship with the deceased. Learned A.G.A. has also submitted that the defence evidence, rather than demolishing the prosecution case, substantially strengthens the prosecution case. As D.W.-1, the accused/appellant admitted his intimate relationship with the deceased Babita, admitted staying at her residence, admitted his desire to marry her and also admitted his close association with the family. These admissions corroborate the prosecution version regarding motive, opportunity and proximity.

41. It has been lastly argued that, in the present case every circumstance relied upon by the prosecution has been proved beyond reasonable doubt and all such circumstances collectively form a complete chain leading only to the conclusion that the accused/appellant-Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu, committed the murder of Babita, Nandrani, Gunjan and Anshu. There is no reasonable hypothesis consistent with innocence. The conviction recorded by the Trial Court is therefore fully justified and calls for no interference in the present criminal appeal.

DISCUSSION AND FINDINGS

42. This Court has given its anxious thoughts to the facts and the submissions advanced by both the parties at length and perused the records.

43. The present case is relating to the gruesome murder of four people in the dark of night. Allegation of committing the said murder is on the person, who was last seen quarrelling with one of the deceased on the preceding night and apparently had illicit relation with the said deceased. Admittedly, since the murder was committed at night and the bodies of the four deceased were found within the precincts of the house, wherein these four people ordinarily resided, there is no ocular witness to the said murder. Therefore, the entire prosecution case is based on circumstantial evidence. Before embarking on the arduous task of deciphering the evidence brought on record, this Court find apposite to remind itself the settled law propounded by the Hon'ble Supreme Court for any conviction based on circumstantial evidence.

44. The Apex Court in the well celebrated judgment of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra, reported in (1984) 4 SCC 116; held, relevant to the context :-

"152. Before discussing the cases relied upon by the High Court we would like to cite a few decisions on the nature, character and essential proof required in a criminal case which rests on circumstantial evidence alone. The most fundamental and basic decision of this Court is'Hanumant v. State of Madhya Pradesh'[(1952) 2 SCC 71: AIR 1952 SC 343: 1952 SCR 1091: 1953 Cri LJ 129].'This case has been uniformly followed and applied by this Court in a large number of later decisions up-to-date, for instance, the cases of Tufail (Alias) Simmi v. State of Uttar Pradesh [(1969) 3 SCC 198: 1970 SCC (Cri) 55] and Ramgopal v. State of Maharashtra [(1972) 4 SCC 625 : AIR 1972 SC 656].'It may be useful to extract what Mahajan, J. has laid down in'Hanumant'case [(1952) 2 SCC 71 : AIR 1952 SC 343: 1952 SCR 1091: 1953 Cri LJ 129] :

"It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the'guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between 'may be proved' and 'must be or should be proved' as was held by this Court in'Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra'[(1973) 2 SCC 793 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033 : 1973 Crl LJ 1783] where the observations were made: [SCC para 19, p. 807: SCC (Cri) p. 1047]

"Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,'

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency,

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence."

45. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the said judgment authoritatively held that it was incumbent on the prosecution to fully establish the circumstances from which the conclusion of the guilt is to be drawn. The transition of the Court before convicting an accused ought to be based on the primary principle that the accused 'must be' and not merely 'may be' guilty. Apparently, there should be no room for any suspicion and the evidence brought on record should be consistent only with the guilt of the accused and there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probabilities the act must have been done by the accused.

46. In the light of these guiding principles, this Court proposes to examine the present case.

47. As far as the homicidal death of the four deceased is concerned, we find from the Inquest report of the deceased Nandrani, exhibited as Exhibit-Ka-11, that her body was lying on a cot in the courtyard with the neck tightly tied with a saree. The panchas after inspecting the physical status of the dead body have unanimously opined that the deceased Nandrani has been strangulated to death. Similar is the view of the panchas for deceased Anshu, which is Exhibit-Ka-12 and whose body was lying on the same cot in the courtyard along with the dead body of his grandmother- Nandrani with his neck tied with a black dupatta and the saree of deceased-Nandrani. Further, the panchas have also opined that as far as deceased Babita is concerned, she has also been strangulated to death and her dead body was found in the courtyard beneath the chappar (thatched roof) with her neck tied to a saree and the other end of the saree tied to the neck of her daughter, Kumari Gunjan, whose body was lying beside her. The Inquest report of deceased Babita is exhibited as Exhibit-Ka-13 and that of Kumari Gunjan as Exhibit-Ka-14.

48. Further, we find that subsequent to the Inquest report, the four bodies were sent for Post Mortem to the District Hospital. The Post mortem reports of all the deceased has been prepared and proved by P.W.-5/Dr. Anil Kumar Srivastava, the Medical Officer, who conducted the post-mortem examinations of all four deceased persons. The post mortem report of deceased Nandrani has been exhibited as Exhibit-Ka-5, that of Babita as Exhibit-Ka-7, Gunjan- Exhibit-Ka-4 and Anshu as Exhibit-Ka-6. The said medical officer has deposed that the cause of death of all the four deceased is asphyxia as a result of Ante-mortem strangulation. P.W.'5 found ligature marks around whole of neck circumference below thyroid with underlying ecchymosis of all four deceased. Generally, a ligature mark is a pressure abrasion or indentation on the neck skin caused by the tight constriction of an object like a rope, cord, wire, or clothing. The presence of a ligature mark below the thyroid cartilage with underlying ecchymosis (deep tissue bruising) as recorded in the post-mortem report is a classic forensic triad and furthers the physical condition of the dead bodies as recorded in the Inquest report. Moreover, in forensic pathology, these specific findings strongly point toward a cause of death by ligature strangulation (homicide) rather than hanging, which is also commensurate to the physical status of the dead bodies, wherein they were found lying on the cot and on the ground.

49. Moreover, in the cases of deceased Babita, Nandrani and Anshu, fracture of hyoid bone and tracheal rings was noticed. This Court finds that medical jurisprudence clearly mentions that fractures of the hyoid bone and tracheal rings are indicators of significant force applied to the neck region. In clinical and forensic contexts, these injuries are associated with serious respiratory and circulatory complication. Thus, suicide of any kind is ruled out altogether. The said witness has also found Congestion of internal organs, which is a common finding during post-mortem autopsies and indicates that blood pooled in organs like the lungs, liver, spleen, or kidneys because it could not flow back to the heart properly before death. This all indicates that an external force was exerted for causing death. In the case of deceased - Gunjan, injury to the right eye was additionally noted. According to P.W.-5 the deaths could have occurred during the intervening night of 23/24.06.2009. During his cross-examination, the defence was unable to challenge his medical findings. No suggestion was put indicating any possibility of accidental or suicidal death. P.W.'5 remained firm that the deaths were caused by ante-mortem strangulation. In the considered view of this Court, P.W.'5 provides crucial medical corroboration to the prosecution case and conclusively establishes homicidal death by strangulation of the four deceased.

50. This Court does not find any serious challenge laid by the learned Counsel for the Appellant to the cause of death being homicidal, except that he has stressed on the proposition that the manner these deaths have been caused of the four deceased, it cannot be a handiwork of a single assailant. Although, we propose to deal with the said proposition later, but the fact remains that there is not an iota of doubt that the death has been caused by strangulation and it is homicidal.

51. That brings us immediately to the next pertinent question as to whether the prosecution has been able to fully establish the circumstances from which the conclusion of the guilt of the Appellant is to be drawn and as to whether the chain of evidence brought on record is consistent only with the guilt of the Appellant and show that in all human probabilities the act must have been done by the accused.

52. Mr. Shashank Shekhar Singh, learned Counsel for the Appellant has laid various grounds to challenge the conviction order against the appellant. We propose to deal with each of them in seriatim. The learned Counsel has challenged the F.I.R. by submitting that there is no ocular evidence connecting the Appellant with the alleged murder of four deceased person. According to him, the complainant who lodged the F.I.R. did not witness the occurrence and the entire fact stated by him is on hearsay and thus, the learned Counsel has sought to conclude that the F.I.R. is based on suspicion and there is no incriminating material stated in the said F.I.R. against the Appellant. Before this Court deals with the said contention of the Appellant, it should be well understood that an F.I.R. is not a substantive piece of evidence. If it cannot be the sole reason to convict an accused, in the same logic it cannot be the sole reason for acquittal of any accused. The law stands settled that F.I.R. is primarily used to corroborate or contradict the person who filed the said F.I.R. The acronym F.I.R. is First Information Report and the law does not mandate that it should contain exhaustive information. F.I.R. merely sets the criminal law into motion and does not anticipate minute details, which are actually meant to be uncovered during investigation, which is to take place subsequently after the F.I.R. comes into existence. F.I.R. is merely a starting point and it does not matter whether a particular accused is named or whether particular evidence is mentioned or not. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. v. Naresh, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 324; went on to hold that :-

"31.'The High Court has also fallen into error in giving significance to a trivial issue, namely, that in respect of the morning incident all the accused had not been named in the complaint/NCR.

32. It is a settled legal proposition that an FIR is not an encyclopaedia of the entire case. It may not and need not contain all the details. Naming of the accused therein may be important but not naming of the accused in FIR may not be a ground to doubt the contents thereof in case the statement of the witness is found to be trustworthy. The court has to determine after examining the entire factual scenario whether a person has participated in the crime or has falsely been implicated. The informant fully acquainted with the facts may lack necessary skill or ability to reproduce details of the entire incident without anything missing from this. Some people may miss even the most important details in narration. Therefore, in case the informant fails to name a particular accused in the FIR, this ground alone cannot tilt the balance of the case in favour of the accused. (Vide'Rotash'v.'State of Rajasthan'[(2006) 12 SCC 64 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 382] and'Ranjit Singh'v.'State of M.P.'[(2011) 4 SCC 336 : JT (2010) 12 SC 167])"

53. Further, it ought to be also well engraved in mind that the law does not in any manner provide that an F.I.R. is required to be filed only by an ocular witness or for that matter an F.I.R. can be filed only in those cases which have direct witness. The proposition sought to be espoused by the learned Counsel seems to be absolutely absurd and as such the same has been noted merely to be rejected. Time and again the Courts have held that F.I.R. cannot be expected to be an encyclopaedia and requires every single detail to be mentioned. The concept of hearsay is for evidence and not for an F.I.R. to be lodged for propelling a criminal machinery for investigation. An F.I.R. can be lodged by any person, even on the basis of hearsay evidence. There is no ground on which this Court could subscribe to the opinion of the F.I.R. being suspicious as is being contended by the learned Counsel for the Appellant.

54. The next contention of the learned Counsel for the Appellant is that the manner of assault and deaths of the four deceased persons is seriously doubted. According to him, the said incident cannot be committed by a single person. He has highlighted the post mortem report of the deceased, which shows that all the four deceased had been strangulated to death as ligature mark has been found round the neck of these deceased. This Court at the very outset, clarifies that it is one thing to say that the Appellant could not have committed the crime in question for various reasons and another thing to say that the crime itself could not be committed by a single person i.e. impossibility of commission of crime. As far as the Appellant could not have committed the crime in question, this Court finds that there were other grounds agitated by the learned Counsel, which shall be dealt with in the subsequent paragraphs. However, presently the issue is the factum of crime could not have been committed by a single person. Although, this Court does not wish to enter into a debate as to whether the crime could be committed by a single person or not, as essentially the Appeal and the trial has been conducted on the premises as to whether the Appellant has committed the crime or not rather than who has committed the crime?.

55. The evidence led in the present case is restricted to the culpability of the Appellant and not to the culpability of anyone else. As regards this particular contention raised by the Appellant is concerned, this Court cannot reject the case of the prosecution simply because one person is accused of multiple murders, keeping in view that the F.I.R. came to be lodged against the Appellant and other unknown. Therefore, the first view of this Court is that the inability of the investigating agency to find and charge sheet other accused persons allegedly involved in the present crime does not automatically gives any right or confirms acquittal of the Appellant on this sole ground. Further, it is available from the facts of the present case that the crime was committed at the dark of night, when the deceased were all deep asleep. The vulnerability of the deceased is of special significance because of their age and resultant infirmity. It has come on record that the deceased Nandrani (aged 65 years), Babita (32 years), Kumari Gunjan (aged about 7 years) and Anshu (aged about 5 years) were found with clothes tied around their whole neck. It cannot be ruled out these deceased persons because of their age and the rural background could had been easily over powered as it has also come on record that there was no resistance from any of these deceased. It is common knowledge that elderly and young children lack the physical strength to fight back effectively and it is natural for a determined adult like the Appellant to strangulate one by one. The absence of struggle by each of these deceased attributes to their physical vulnerability and fear as the elderly and children is likely to freeze or become incapacitated by shock during a violet assault, allowing a single assailant to execute the crime without them fleeing. It has come in evidence that the Appellant was very much present in the house and the only possible resistance would be that of deceased- Babita, who was also an adult of 32 years, but this Court cannot be oblivious of the fact that if the presence of the Appellant is proved in the same house as that of the elderly and the children and the deaths happened at night, Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act immediately is invoked, wherein the Appellant will bear the heavy burden of explaining how four vulnerable people were strangulated under the same roof. This Court does not find any evidence which has been led by the Appellant to come out from the shackles of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, because of other compelling circumstances of 'motive', 'last seen theory' proved against him which is being dealt with hereinafter. This Court is clear in its mind that in case the accused cannot give a plausible explanation, the appellate Court will have to uphold the conviction as apparently the chain of circumstances appears to be complete and pointing towards the only hypothesis of culpability of the Appellant.

56. The next contention advanced by the learned Counsel on behalf of the appellant is a kind of dual attack on the prosecution story, in as much as according to the learned Counsel the prosecution failed to establish any motive for the crime, on the part of the appellant. It has also been argued that the so called 'last-seen' circumstances is inherently weak and unreliable in the present case.

57. As far as the contention of the Appellant that since there was an absence of motive, the chain of events could not be completed and as such the appellant ought to have been given the benefit of doubt, the argument appears to be attractive in the first blush, however on a deeper scrutiny of evidence, this Court finds that the said argument to be devoid of any merit. It is well settled that while motive may assume significance in cases based on circumstantial evidence, its absence is not fatal where the prosecution has led reliable and trustworthy testimony. Motive does assume great importance, but to say that the absence of motive would dislodge the entire prosecution story is giving this one factor an importance which is not due. Motive operates in the realm of the accused's mind and is often difficult to establish and can seldom be fathomed with any degree of accuracy. However, in the present case, we find on reading of the evidence brought on record that a reasonable motive has been appended by the prosecution for commission of the crime of murder by the appellant, which cannot be ignored.

58. In the present case, we find that as far as motive is concerned, the testimony of the fact witnesses P.W.-1, P.W.-2, P.W.-3 and P.W.-4 have consistently stated that there was an ensuing physical relationship between the appellant and the deceased- Babita. In fact, this Court finds that the Appellant also entered the witness box as a defense witness to depose and admit the fact of being in a physical relation with the deceased-Babita and also visiting her house very often. The Appellant has been ordinarily residing in the said house along with Babita can also be well understood from the evidence that a tin name plate (Exhibit-Ka-2) bearing the name of the Appellant as 'General Secretary, Human Right Social Animator Task Force' was displayed in the front of the house of Nandrani, wherein Babita was also residing along with her two children. Further, we do not find any categorical statement that the Appellant was not present in the fateful night of the incident in the said house nor there is any statement to the effect that there was no quarrel/fight on the preceding night of the incident. However, it has been argued by the learned Counsel for the appellant that motive could not be proved, as all the witnesses have merely given a hearsay account of the said love affair and in the absence of any motive, the appellant cannot be assigned the culpability of the offence charged against him. This Court is conscious of the fact that there cannot be direct evidence of any motive and the same has to be gathered from the circumstances. It has clearly come in evidence of P.W.-2 that the appellant had physical relations with the deceased- Babita and was all set to have a Court-marriage with her, but the deceased-Babita had been ignoring the said offer for allegedly the Appellant had not been working and had been living on the earnings of deceased- Babita. It has also come in the evidence that the Appellant had been also physically beating and abusing the deceased- Babita and for various reasons deceased- Babita was in two minds to marry the Appellant or not. Apparently, these facts were reasons for continuous fight between the Appellant and the deceased- Babita. According to the deposition of P.W.-2, she was told by her deceased sister- Babita that since the Appellant was being rebuked by deceased- Babita for not working, physical abuse etc., the Appellant started suspecting Babita of not continuing living along with the appellant or planning to leave him altogether and marry someone else. Thus, the prosecution was able to prove on record that the murder was committed for a vengeance and out of fear that the deceased Babita may leave the company of Appellant and marry someone else. Therefore, the appellant had a motive to commit the said crime. Apparently it has been also deposed by the Appellant that he wanted to marry the deceased- Babita but it has not come in his evidence or explanation as to why the said deceased - Babita ignored her said offer, although it seemed to be attractive from her point of view as she being a widow and having two children at of age 32 would require a company of man for spending her rest of life in peace. However, we do not find any explanation from the end of the Appellant. Therefore, a motive exists, which cannot be altogether negated in the present facts and circumstances, however, we are also clear in mind that this motive solely cannot be the edifice of conviction. Be that as it may, we are also clear in our mind that inability to prove motive would also not be always fatal to the prosecution case. In this regard, this Court may refer to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of G. Parshwanath vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 2010 (8) SCC 593; in which, it has been held as follows:

"45. The argument that in absence of motive on the part of the appellant to kill the deceased benefit of reasonable doubt should be given, cannot be accepted. First of all every suspicion is not a doubt. Only reasonable doubt gives benefit to the accused and not the doubt of a vacillating judge. Very often a motive is alleged to indicate the high degree of probability that the offence was committed by the person who was prompted by the motive. In a case when the motive alleged against accused is fully established, it provides foundational material to connect the chain of circumstances. It affords a key on a pointer to scan the evidence in the case in that perspective and as a satisfactory circumstance of corroboration. However, in a case based on circumstantial evidence where proved circumstances complete the chain of evidence, it cannot be said that in absence of motive, the other proved circumstances are of no consequence. The absence of motive, however, puts the court on its guard to scrutinize the circumstances more carefully to ensure that suspicion and conjecture do not take place of legal proof. There is no absolute legal proposition of law that in the absence of any motive an accused cannot be convicted under Section 302 I.P.C. Effect of absence of motive would depend on the facts of each case. Therefore, this Court proposes to examine the question of motive which prompted the appellant to commit the crime in question."

(Emphasis Supplied)

59. Apparently, in the present case, a 'motive' has been sought to be accorded to the said incident by unfolding the story by narrating that the appellant had an illicit relations with the deceased-Babita and was all set to have a Court-marriage with her, but the deceased-Babita had been ignoring the said offer for allegedly the Appellant had not been working and had been living on the earnings of deceased- Babita. Further, these had been a reason for continuous fight between the Appellant and the deceased-Babita. Evidence has come on record that even on the preceding night of murder a fight had been ensued between the Appellant and the deceased- Babita at about 9 PM in the last night, which was witnessed by the neighbors namely, Surendra Pal (P.W.-3), Pappu and Mohd. Salim.

60. There is another aspect of the matter, in as much as it is also undisputed that the four bodies along with the body of deceased- Babita was found in her house, where the Appellant was last seen along with her at about 9 PM on the preceding night. The dead bodies were discovered at 8 AM in the following morning. Apparently, it has come in evidence that the Appellant was present in the said house, on the fateful night of the incident as nothing contrary to that effect has come on record. Therefore, the conduct of the appellant, both prior to and after the incident, assumes significance in view of Section 8 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, which inter-alia states as herein under:

"Section 8. Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct.

Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue or relevant fact. The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding, or in reference to any fact in issue or relevant thereto, and the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous or subsequent thereto.

Explanation 1. - The word "conduct" in this section does not include statements; unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements; but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act.

Explanation 2. - When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant."

61. Admittedly, the Appellant was not found in the said house in the morning and the house was open from outside. The Appellant was immediately arrested on the same day from a different place, while he was in a hideout and was trying to flee away. The Appellant has been arrested after a gun fight and an unlicensed gun along with two bullets, one stuck in the barrel was recovered from him after apprehending by a team of police. The Appellant pursuant to his disclosure statement led to recovery of a black bag, containing silver ornaments of the deceased and two mobile phones. It is rather strange that when four dead bodies were found and admittedly, the Appellant was into a physical relationship with the deceased-Babita and as per his own version wanted to marry her also, then as to why he did not approach the Police immediately and rather would have been the complainant, in case he was not involved in the present crime. This Court further notes that the non-participation of the appellant in the 'panchayatnama' also, shows the conduct of the appellant post-crime is under suspicion and a relevant fact under Section 8 of The Indian Evidence Act.

62. The next ground being agitated by the learned Counsel is that the 'last seen theory' being a very weak piece of evidence and as such cannot be the sole ground of conviction. No doubt, there are consistent line of judgment, starting from Arjun Marik Vs State of Bihar, reported in 1994 Supp(2) SCC 372; Krishnan alias Ramaswamy and Ors. Vs State of Tamil Nadu, reported in (2014) 4 SCC 715; and Kanahiya Lal Vs State of Rajasthan, reported in (2014) 4 SCC 715; which have consistently held that evidence of 'last seen together' is a weak evidence and conviction only on the basis of 'last seen together' without there being any other corroborative evidence against the accused will not be sufficient to convict the accused for an offence under Sections 302 I.P.C.

63. However, in the present case, we find other corroborative evidence and the conviction is not merely on 'last seen' or 'motive' independently, but on an appreciation and consideration of each of the piece of evidence brought on record. As far as the concept of 'last seen theory' is concerned, this Court tries to decode the proposition of the learned Counsel for the Appellant, wherein he submits that 'last seen theory' is weak evidence for conviction. In other words, the learned Counsel is of the view that a conviction cannot be based on the only circumstance of last seen together. There is absolutely no quarrel on the said proposition of law. However, it is also equally settled that last seen theory comes into play where the time gap, between the point of time when the accused and the deceased were seen last alive and when the deceased is found dead, is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the perpetrator of the crime becomes impossible. (please see Rambraksh Vs State of Chhattisgarh, reported in (2016) 12 SCC 2510). Thus, the theory of last seen would gain prominence in a given fact and circumstances and would largely depend on the time-gap between the event of deceased being alive in the company of the accused and the event of death of the deceased, which would obviously form an additional link in the chain of circumstantial evidence.

64. So far as the facts in the present case is concerned, it was duly proved that the death of the deceased was homicidal. The prosecution story starts with the discovery of four dead bodies of namely, Nandrani (aged 65 years), Babita (32 years), Kumari Gunjan (aged about 7 years) and Anshu (aged about 5 years) by P.W.-1, when he visited the house of the deceased person on 24.06.2009, at about 8:00 AM located in Mohalla Nawabganj, Police Station Sandi, District Hardoi. It has been proved by evidence that the Appellant was having a physical relationship with one of the deceased namely, Babita since for about 1.5 years prior to the date of incident. It has also come in evidence of P.W.-3, a neighbour of the deceased and an independent witness that there was a quarrel between the Appellant and the deceased- Babita on the preceding night of murder. He has also deposed that he heard the said quarrel for some time, which was happening on the chabutra of the house of the deceased person. There is specific time provided of 9 PM in the preceding night, when a quarrel was heard by the neighbours namely Surendra, Pappu and Mohammad Salim, who also rushed to the crime-site on the discovery of four dead bodies, including that of deceased- Babita, with whom they had witnessed fight with the Appellant last night. It has also come in evidence of P.W.-3 that after the said quarrel at 9 PM in the preceding night of murder, he did not see the Appellant going away from the house of the deceased- Babita, after the said fight. It has also come in evidence of P.W.-1 that the dead body of the deceased- Babita was found at 8 AM in the morning on the very next day of quarrel in the night. Apparently, the time of murder is between 9 PM in the night and 8 AM in the morning, which appears to be very proximate, keeping in view the rural background of the present case, wherein ordinarily there is no night life and generally villagers go early to sleep in the night. It is also true that people come to visit any person in village mostly during the day time only or may be in the night, but certainly not after 9 PM. Therefore, there is remote or rather no chance of any third-party intervention during the contiguous time of 9 PM in the night to 8 AM in the next morning, which would interrupt the continuous togetherness between the Appellant and the deceased- Babita. Further, we find that there is no denial on the part of the Appellant that he was not in the house of the deceased between 9 PM to 8 AM in the next morning, nor there is any evidence on record, which would show that some other person could had come in the rural village for committing murder of the four deceased without any motive of looting etc. This Court finds that a direct question was put to the Appellant under Section 313 of the Criminal Procedure Code, which is being quoted herein below, which goes to the root of the controversy:

"Question 14 (Reference No. (Aakhya Sankhya-3): In the testimony of Surendra Pal, it is stated that on the night prior to the alleged incident, at approximately 9:00 PM, he was sitting at his doorway and observed an altercation taking place outside the house between you and Babita; subsequently, the witness went inside his house and did not see you leaving the house during the night. In the morning, he learned that Nandrani, Babita, and Babita's two children had been murdered. What do you have to say regarding this?

Answer: The statement about the altercation is incorrect. The rest is correct."

(Translated by this Court)

65. The answer to the specific question signifies the presence of the Appellant in the house of the deceased person on the said fateful night. Further, it is clear from the evidence brought on record that the appellant was seen and heard fighting with the deceased on the preceding night at 9 PM and the very next day early morning at 8 AM, the dead body of the deceased was found lying in her own house, where she was last seen together quarrelling along with the appellant. The threshold of explanation and responsibility of a person, who is having physical relationship with the deceased and is also proved to living along with her in the same house is on a higher pedestal than a normal person. Further, the time gap between the period when the deceased was 'last seen together' with the appellant and the recovery of the corpse of the deceased being quite proximate, the non-explanation of the appellant with regard to the circumstance under which and when the appellant had departed from the company of the deceased is a very crucial circumstance proved against him.

66. It may be noted that once the theory of 'last seen together' was established by the prosecution, the appellant was expected to offer some explanation as to when and under what circumstances he had parted the company of the deceased. It is true that the burden to prove the guilt of the accused is always on the prosecution, however in view of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, when any fact is within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Of course, Section 106 is certainly not intended to relieve the prosecution of its duty to prove the guilt of the accused, nonetheless it is also equally settled legal position, that if the accused does not throw any light upon the facts which are proved to be within his special knowledge, in view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, such failure on the part of the accused may be used against the accused, as it may provide an additional link in the chain of circumstances required to be proved against him. In the present case, which is based on circumstantial evidence, furnishing or non-furnishing of the explanation by the accused would be a very crucial fact, when the theory of 'last seen together' as propounded by the prosecution was proved against him.

67. Ergo, this Court finds that, in view of above, apparently, a foundational fact was built successfully by the prosecution and thus, a duty was cast upon the appellant to show and explain the evidence which has been brought against him. As aforesaid, the entire evidence was put-across the statements of the appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and when it was specifically asked as to why this case has been filed against him, he simply replied that it was a false case due to vengeance. This Court finds that although a defence story had been narrated by the appellant pointing towards usurping property by P.W.-2 (Malti), the elder daughter of deceased-Nandrani and real sister of deceased- Babita, with the help of her community, but no evidence has been led by him to either name or bring any iota of evidence in that regard, although opportunity of defence was granted to him by the learned Trial Court. The appellant has merely denied or feigned ignorance to which necessary inference can be drawn against him. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Ram Gopal v. State of M.P., reported in (2023) 5 SCC 534; after considering the judgment of the Apex Court in Rajendra Vs State of NCT of Delhi, reported in (2019) 10 SCC 623; and Satpal vs State of Haryana, reported in (2018) 6 SCC 610; has held as follows:

"9. In view of the afore-stated legal position, it is discernible that though the last seen theory as propounded by the prosecution in a case based on circumstantial evidence may be a weak kind of evidence by itself to base conviction solely on such theory, when the said theory is proved coupled with other circumstances such as the time when the deceased was last seen with the accused, and the recovery of the corpse being in very close proximity of time, the accused does owe an explanation under Section 106 of the Evidence Act with regard to the circumstances under which death might have taken place. If the accused offers no explanation or furnishes a wrong explanation, absconds, motive is established and some other corroborative evidence in the form of recovery of weapon etc. forming a chain of circumstances is established, the conviction could be based on such evidence."

68. The next limb of argument of the learned Counsel for the Appellant is that recovery of jewellery, mobile phones and other articles allegedly belonging to the deceased from the Appellant. Learned Counsel has submitted that the recovery proceedings are doubtful and suffer from serious procedural irregularities. No independent public witness was associated with the alleged recoveries. Mandatory safeguards contemplated under Cr.P.C. were not complied with. It has been further submitted that the alleged recoveries stand contradicted by the inquest proceedings and therefore, cannot be treated as reliable incriminating circumstances.

69. As far as the recovery of Jewellery, mobile phones and other articles from the Appellant is concerned, this Court finds that P.W.-2 (Malti), the real sister of the deceased-Babita has identified the jewellery, Mobile phones and other Articles in her deposition. This Court had carefully examined the Inquest report of the four deceased as well as the evidence of P.W.-9 and P.W.-10 and does not find any marked inconsistencies between the recovery made and the Inquest report as has been sought to be agitated by the Appellant. As far as non-associating of independent public witnesses for recoveries is concerned this Court is of the view that this is not such an impelling ground to throw the case of the prosecution. It is clear that besides the complainant, P.W.-1 and other fact witness, P.W.-2, the prosecution has also examined one independent witnesses of last seen theory i.e. P.W.-3, the prosecution has also presented P.W.-7 and P.W.-8, who were witness to the said recoveries. No doubt P.W.-7 and P.W.-8 are police officers, however, the fact remains that they have entered the witness box and testified of the recoveries made from Appellant and were available for cross-examination. We do not find any noticeable contradiction in their deposition nor the Appellant was able to elicit anything from them during their cross-examination. Not only this it is a matter of common experience that the public persons are not interested in deposing in Courts in cases in which they do not have any personal interest. There are cases where even the victim of the offence and the persons who are related to that case also shy away from coming to the Courts.'As far as the defence that no public person was made a witness is concerned, the answer lies in the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in 'Appabhai v. State of Gujarat, reported in 1988 Supp SCC 241: AIR 1988 SC 696; where the Hon'ble Supreme Court has been pleased to observe:"

"It is no doubt true that the prosecution has not been able to produce any independent witness to the incident that took place at the bus 'stand. There must have been several of such witnesses. But the prosecution case cannot be thrown out or doubted on that ground alone. 'Experience reminds us that civilized people are generally insensible when a crime is committed even in their presence. They withdraw both from the victim and the vigilant. They keep themselves away from the court unless it is inevitable. They think that crime like civil dispute is between two individuals or parties and they should not involve themselves. This kind of apathy of the general public is indeed unfortunate but it is there, everywhere whether in village life, towns or cities. One cannot ignore this handicap with which the investigation agency has to discharge its duties. The court, therefore, instead of doubting the prosecution case for want of independent witnesses must consider the broad spectrum or the prosecution version and search for the nugget of truth with due regard to probability if any, suggested by the accused."

70. It has been next submitted that P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 were related to the deceased in as much as P.W.-2 (Malti) is the real sister of the deceased- Babita and daughter of deceased-Nandrani. Further P.W.-1, the informant is also related to the deceased-Nandarani as he is not only a neighbour but also her relative. Thus, according to the learned Counsel, both P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 are interested witnesses and as such their testimony must be examined with certain circumspection. No doubt, the informant/P.W.-1 is a relative of the deceased person, however, it must also be understood that he is also a neighbour and a co-villager of the deceased person. Further, it has also come on record that as being a co-villager and also a relative, the informant used to often visit the deceased - Nandrani. The presence or the visit of the said witness on the fateful morning of on 24.06.2009, at about 8:00 AM at the house of deceased person cannot be doubted and appears to be normal and usual. The contention that P.W.-1 is an 'interested witness' is misconceived. Further, there is a marked difference between 'interested witness' and 'related witness', as a related witness is not necessarily an interested witness. The law on this aspect is settled by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in 'Md. Rojali Ali v. The State of Assam' reported in (2019) 19 SCC 567 : AIR 2019 SC 1128; wherein it was held that :-

"13. As regards the contention that all the eyewitnesses are close relatives of the deceased, it is by now well-settled that a related witness cannot be said to be an 'interested' witness merely by virtue of being a relative of the victim. This Court has elucidated the difference between 'interested' and 'related' witnesses in a plethora of cases, stating that a witness may be called interested only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of a litigation, which in the context of a criminal case would mean that the witness has a direct or indirect interest in seeing the accused punished due to prior enmity or other reasons, and thus has a motive to falsely implicate the accused (for instance, see'State of Rajasthan'v.'Kalki'[State of Rajasthan'v.'Kalki, (1981) 2 SCC 752 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 593] ;'Amit'v.'State of U.P.'[Amit'v.'State of U.P., (2012) 4 SCC 107 : (2012) 2 SCC (Cri) 590] ; and'Gangabhavani'v.'Rayapati Venkat Reddy'[Gangabhavani'v.'Rayapati Venkat Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 298 : (2014) 6 SCC (Cri) 182]). Recently, this difference was reiterated in'Ganapathiv.'State of T.N.'[Ganapathi'v.'State of T.N., (2018) 5 SCC 549 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 793] , in the following terms, by referring to the three-Judge Bench decision in'State of Rajasthan'v.'Kalki'[State of Rajasthan'v.'Kalki, (1981) 2 SCC 752 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 593] : (Ganapathi case'[Ganapathi'v.'State of T.N., (2018) 5 SCC 549 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 793] , SCC p. 555, para 14)

"14. 'Related' is not equivalent to 'interested'. A witness may be called 'interested' only when he or she derives some benefit from the result of a litigation; in the decree in a civil case, or in seeing an accused person punished. A witness who is a natural one and is the only possible eyewitness in the circumstances of a case cannot be said to be 'interested'."

71. Further, it is true that while considering the evidence of a close relative, the Court has to be cautious with such evidence but the entire evidence cannot be rejected only on the ground that he is close relative. The Supreme Court in the case of Masalti v. State of U.P., reported in 1964 SCC OnLine SC 30 : AIR 1965 SC 202; has held as under :-

"14. "But it would, we think, be unreasonable to contend that evidence given by witnesses should be discarded only on the ground that it is evidence of partisan or interested witnesses ... The mechanical rejection of such evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan would invariably lead to failure of justice. No hard - and - fast rule can be laid down as to how much evidence should be appreciated. Judicial approach has to be cautious in dealing with such evidence; but the plea that such evidence should be rejected because it is partisan cannot be accepted as correct."

72. The learned Counsel for the defense has also argued that P.W.-3 cannot be construed to be an independent witness as he is a neighbour of the deceased person. Admittedly, the incident in the present case, occurred in the dark of night on the intervening night of 23rd and 24th of June, 2009. The place of the incident is a rural village. His house is adjoining the house of the deceased person and therefore his hearing of the quarrel between the deceased- Babita and the Appellant on the preceding night appears to be natural and reliable. He has also specifically deposed that he heard the Appellant quarrelling on the preceding night of the incident and also did not see the Appellant going away from the house of the deceased. The presence of the neighbour P.W.-3 at the scene of the incident is natural and reliable. No animosity has been brought on record, so as to discredit the said witness. There is no evidence of prior enmity or motive for false implication. Indeed, one of the earliest statements with respect to 'interested witnesses' in criminal cases was made by the Supreme Court in the case of 'Dalip Singh v. State of Punjab, reported in (1953) 2 SCC 36 : 1954 SCR 145; wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed :-

"24. A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely. Ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth. However, we are not attempting any sweeping generalisation. Each case must be judged on its own facts. Our observations are only made to combat what is so often put forward in cases before us as a general rule of prudence. There is no such general rule. Each case must be limited to and be governed by its own facts."

Thus, this Court does not find any force in the submission of the learned Counsel for the defense and as such the same is rejected.

73. It has been highlighted by the learned Counsel for the Appellant that there are inconsistencies in the deposition of the witness and the entire case has been built on suspicion. As far as the inconsistency is concerned, the Appellant failed to point out any real consistencies in the statement of any of the witnesses. The suspicion being raised are merely surmises and a last ditch effort on the part of the learned Counsel to defend the Appellant, which appears to be merely illusory. In any case, even giving the concession that there are some remote inconsistencies, we need to understand that these inconsistency does not go to the root of the merits of the case and are normal errors of memory due to lapse of time or mental disposition of a witness. Such minor variations are natural and have been held to be insignificant by this Court in Jitendra Pal Vs State of Uttar Pradesh, Neutral Citation No. :2025:AHC-LKO:79401-DB; reported in 2025 SCC OnLine All 8144; wherein this Court had an occasion to deal with minor discrepancy in the statement of witnesses recorded in the Court after a periodic lapse of time of occurrence of incident. This Court has held in paragraph no.17 as follows :-

"17. No doubt, discrepancies or inconsistencies in prosecution evidence is a short fall from which no criminal case is free. However, this court cannot be oblivious to the fact that while considering the deposition of a witness, this Court has to take into consideration the process in which the facts are perceived and testified by a witness. Time and again, it has been held in a catena of judgments that when an incident occurs, a witness perceives facts according to his intelligence and experience in life and subsequently when he or she is called upon to recollect those facts, after a long gap of time, his or her memory may help or deter him/her in recollection of those facts and he/she may flounder on the precise time, place and sequence of events. This human process brings discrepancy in the deposition of a witness, which may be termed as normal. The testimony of PW-4 as far as the timing relating to having seen the deceased and the appellant together on the fateful day at 6 PM in the evening is an outcome of such a discrepancy. However, when this discrepancy is weighed and marshalled along with other evidence, which has come on record, it can be safely deduced that both the deceased and the appellant were last seen together on the said fateful day. Further, it cannot be discounted that this kind of discrepancies in time, especially in a village, may occur on account of errors of observation of facts, normal errors of memory due to lapse of time or mental disposition of a witness. These discrepancies are those which are normal and expected of a normal person and cannot be termed as any material discrepancies, which may affect the substratum of the story itself. When the discrepancies, highlighted by the learned Counsel for the appellant are being considered, whether it is relating to the time when PW-4 last saw both the deceased and the appellant together on a motor-cycle or the time-line given by these witness, this court is of the opinion that these are normal and not material discrepancies. Thus, it is concluded that the inconsistencies in the prosecution case, as far as the presence of the appellant during the course of day on the date of incident on 09.03.2015 is immaterial and do not have any impact on the facts, deposed by the witnesses. Thus, the presence of the appellant at Sheetal Kheda on 09.03.2015 stands proved by a co-joint reading of the evidence of PW-2, PW-3 and PW-4 and even the last seen together evidence of PW-4 could not be impeached by the defense, although the said witness was subjected to intense cross-examination.'

74. An important circumstance which emerged from the record was that in answer to Question No. 30 recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the accused Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu, admitted that he intended to marry Babita. This statement assumes significance when viewed in conjunction with the prosecution evidence suggesting that disputes had arisen between the accused and Babita regarding marriage and their future relationship. The assertion was made by the accused/D.W.-1 that he was falsely implicated due to enmity and that all recoveries shown by the prosecution were fabricated. However, he failed to disclose any specific 'motive' on the part of the informant, the relatives of the deceased or the police authorities for falsely implicating him in a case involving the brutal murder of four persons. No independent defence evidence was adduced to substantiate the plea of false implication.

D.W.-1 also failed to furnish any explanation regarding the circumstances in which the deceased persons, with whom he admittedly maintained close relations, were found murdered during the night immediately following the quarrel, as deposed to by P.W.-3 Surendra Pal. Nor could he explain his absence from the house thereafter or presence anywhere else or provide any plausible account inconsistent with the prosecution case.

75. Keeping in view the totality of the evidence brought on records, this Court is of the opinion that it was duly proved that the death of the four deceased was homicidal. It has also been proved that the deceased- Babita was last seen together with the appellant, quarreling at 9 PM on the preceding night of her death. The dead body of deceased- Babita, her mother and two minor children were found in the very next morning at 8 AM. There is corroborative evidence to show the presence of the Appellant in the house of the deceased, wherein the dead bodies were found. Further, the time gap between the period when the deceased was last seen together with the appellant and the recovery of the corpse of the deceased being quite proximate, the non-explanation of the appellant with regard to the circumstance under which and when the appellant had departed from the company of the deceased is a very crucial circumstance proved against him. Having regard to the oral evidence of the witnesses P.W.-2, the motive for such a crime had also surfaced, which also finds corroboration from the own admission of the Appellant who produced himself as D.W.-1 during the Trial. The corroborative evidence with regard to the conduct of the Appellant before and after the incident, his arrest along with arms and his disclosure statement leading to recovery of articles of ornaments, mobiles etc. in the black bag and the Inquest report showing the status of the body, also substantiated the case of prosecution. Hence, it is proved in the present case that the link and the circumstances are so interconnected that they lead to the only hypothesis of culpability of the Appellant.

76. We hold that the circumstantial evidence brought on record, adheres to the five golden principles, as enunciated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sharad Birdhi Chand Sarda (Supra) and there exists no material illegality, which has been committed by the learned Trial Court in appreciating the evidence against the appellant. The grounds raised by the Appellant are without any basis and does not have any factual or legal flavour to be considered in any manner.

77. Thus, this Court is of considered view that the prosecution has been successful in establishing the guilt of the accused/appellant beyond the pale of doubt and that there exists a ring of truth in the prosecution story, therefore, we uphold the conviction of the appellant for the offence punishable under Sections 302, 307, 404, of I.P.C and Section 3(2)(5) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989. Keeping in view the gravity of the offences committed, wherein four innocent and gullible persons have been murdered, we do not find this to be a fit case to reduce the sentence of the Appellant.

78. For all the reasons as stated herein above, we find no merits in the present Appeal and as such the same is accordingly dismissed.

79. There shall be no order as to cost(s).

80. The Registry is directed to send the Lower Court record along with the certified copy of this judgment to the learned Trial Court, without any delay, preferably within two weeks from today.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 08.05.1987 passed by the 2nd Additional District & Sessions Judge, Azamgarh in Sessions Trial No. 185 of 1984 (State v. Chhote Lal and others).

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Bipin Kumar Tripathi
Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri A.N. Mulla, learned A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jai Krishna Upadhyay, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been preferred by accused appellants against the judgment and order dated 8.5.1987 passed by 2nd Additional District & Sessions Judge, Azamgarh in Session Trial No. 185 of 1984 (State vs. Chhote Lal and others) convicting and sentencing the appellants for the offences punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC for life imprisonment, for the offence under Section 201 IPC for three years rigorous imprisonment and for the offence under Section 120-B IPC for seven years rigorous imprisonment with default clause.

2. Facts of the case, in nutshell, as unfolded by informant Bhagwandin in the First Information Report (in short 'F.I.R.'), are that the marriage of his daughter was solemnized with Triveni son of Chhote Lal in the year 1978. The husband and her in-laws were not happy with the dowry given in the marriage and were demanding a motorcycle and due to non-fulfillment of the said demand, she was subjected to cruelty and harassment by them and on 1.7.1979 the informant received an information that his daughter had been electrocuted on 30.6.1979 and has expired.

3. On the basis of written report, chik F.I.R. was lodged on 18.11.1983 and G.D. report was prepared. Investigation in the matter started. The Investigating Officer visited the place of occurrence, prepared site plan and other papers and after completing necessary formalities submitted charge sheet in the matter.

4. Dr. H.K. Verma conducted the postmortem of the deceased on 1.7.1979 at 10.00 a.m. He found seven ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased. The cause of the death was extensive electric burn due to ante-mortem shock of burns.

5. The accused appeared and charges under Sections 302/34, 201 and 120-B I.P.C. were framed against them on 6.7.1985. They denied the charges and pleading not guilty claimed their trial.

6. Trial proceeded and in order to prove its case on behalf of the prosecution eleven witnesses, namely, Informant - Bhagwandin (P.W.-1), Krishna Kumar Singh (P.W.-2), Dr. H.K. Verma (P.W.-3), Raghuwar Dayal (P.W-4), Shiv Prasad Dubey (P.W.-5) Khadag Bahadur Singh, (P.W.-6), Ram Bali Rai (PW-7) Ashok Tiwari (P.W.-8), Dev Nath Ram (PW-9), Damdi Prasad (PW-10) and Nihal Singh (PW-11) were examined.

7. In documentary evidence, documents / papers exhibited as Ext.Ka.-1 to Ext. ka-20 respectively have been proved.

8. P.W.-1 - Bhagwandin proved the contents of the FIR. He has stated that his daughter died due to burns caused by accused persons, namely, Triveni, Chhote Lal, Shanti Devi and Chinta Mani on account of non-fulfillment of the demand of motor cycle as additional dowry, and not due to electric shock.

9. P.W.-2 - Krishna Kumar Singh is the State Medico Legal Expert. He has opined that the burning was more likely after pouring in something inflammable. He did not agree with the idea of getting burnt by electric current in the absence of description of characteristics of wounds caused by electrocution.

10. P.W. - 3 Dr. H.K. Verma, has performed the post mortem on the body of the deceased and has opined that the body was in a pugilistic attitude. There was no smell of kerosene. Death was likely caused one day before. In his opinion cause of death was extensive electric burn due to shock of ante mortem burns.

11. PW-4 Raghuwar Dayal is the brother of the deceased. He has also supported the FIR version and the statement of PW-1-informant.

12. PW-5 Shiv Prasad Dubey has also stated in same tone as PW-1 and PW-4.

13. PW-6 Kharag Bahadur Singh is the Investigating Officer of the case. He has proved the investigation proceedings and the relevant papers in this regard.

14. PW-7 Ram Bali Rai, PW-8 Ashok Tiwari, PW-9 Dev Nath Ram, PW-10 Damdi Prasad and PW-11 S.I. Nihal Singh are the formal witnesses. PW-10 - Junior Engineer of the concerned Sub-Station has stated that on 30.6.1979 there was no electricity at the concerned Sub-Station from 1.45 a.m. to 12.00 noon.

15. After closure of prosecution evidence, statements of accused appellants under Section 313 CrPC were recorded in which they denied the prosecution case and stated that they have been falsely implicated. They further stated that they did not make any demand of motorcycle.

16. The Trial court found that prosecution has fully succeeded in bringing home the charges against the accused appellants beyond reasonable doubt and convicted and sentenced the accused appellants - Chhote Lal, Triveni and Shanti, as mentioned above whereas accused Chintamani was acquitted. Hence this appeal.

17. We have heard Shri B.K. Tripathi, learned counsel for appellants and Shri A.N. Mulla, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State at length.

18. Castigating impugned judgment and order, learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the FIR was lodged after about four years and six months of the alleged incident without any plausible explanation regarding delay. He further submits that it is a case based on circumstantial evidence and is not supported with any other substantial evidence against the appellants and the appellants have been falsely roped in this case by the informant. Nobody has seen the appellants causing death of the deceased. It is further submitted that in the present case the missing of links to make a complete chain of circumstances is a relevant lacuna on the part of the prosecution. The evidence fails to establish that in all human probability the crime has been committed by the appellants. He further submits that Triveni, husband of the deceased, was not present at the home at the time of incident and he had gone for nature's call. It is a case of accidental death. Medical evidence does not support the prosecution case. Nothing has been recovered from the appellants. It is next contended that investigation in this matter is perfunctory. Findings recorded by trial court in the impugned judgment and order are not based on correct appreciation of evidence and impugned judgment and order suffers from infirmity and illegality warranting interference by this Court.

19. In reply, learned AGA submitted that prosecution was able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. Medical evidence fully supports the oral version. F.I.R. is a genuine document. The offence has been committed by the appellants due to non-fulfillment of additional dowry in the form of one motorcycle. He further submits that on 30.6.1979 there was no electricity at the concerned Sub-Station from 1.45 a.m. to 12.00 noon. Laches on the part of Investigating Officer are also not fatal to the prosecution case. Findings recorded by the learned trial court in the impugned judgment and order are based on correct appreciation of facts, evidence and law and do not suffer from any infirmity or illegality warranting interference by this Court.

20. We have considered rival submissions made by learned counsel for parties and have gone through the entire record carefully.

21. At the outset, it may be mentioned here that appellant no. 2 ? Chhote Lal (father-in-law of the deceased) and appellant no.3 Smt. Shanti Devi (mother-in-law of the deceased) have died and vide order dated 22.5.2018 appeal against them has been abated and only appellant no.1- Triveni (husband of the deceased) is surviving.

22. Now the Court proceeds to deal with submissions raised by learned counsel for the parties.

23. Firstly, this Court must address the glaring delay in the registration of the FIR. An FIR serves as cornerstone for beginning with investigation by making record of initial details of the crime, suspects and witnesses. The record of the present case reveals that the alleged incident, wherein the deceased lost her life, occurred on 30.6.1979. However, the chik FIR was only lodged after a long belated period on 18.11.1983. There is a staggering delay of more than four years. Delay in lodging the FIR is not automatically fatal to the case if the same is satisfactorily explained. Courts do consider certain factors like emotional state of informants, awareness, threat or intimidation, etc. for delay in lodging the FIR but an abnormal and unexplained delay casts a grave shadow of doubt on the prosecution's case.

F.I.R. in a criminal case, though not substantial, is an extremely vital and valuable piece of evidence. Delay in lodging the F.I.R. quite often results in embellishment and also arises danger of the introduction of coloured version, exaggerated account or concocted story. In cases of inordinate and unexplained delay, the entire evidence has to be evaluated with greater caution. In the present case, delay of about four years and six months severely shakes the credibility of the prosecution's case right from its beginning. No satisfactory explanation for such a long delay has been given by the prosecution.

24. It is pertinent to note here that there is no independent eye witness to the alleged incident and the case is based on circumstantial evidence. The prosecution strongly asserts that the death of the deceased was caused by pouring an inflammable liquid, relying on the opinion of the State Medico Legal Expert, P.W.-2. On the contrary, the defence vehemently argues that it was a tragic accident caused by electrocution, and the same has been supported by Dr. H.K. Verma, P.W.-3, who conducted the post-mortem and recorded extensive electric burns over the body of the deceased.

25. Moving to the core of the prosecution's case, the foundational fact that must be established beyond a reasonable doubt is the homicidal nature of the death. Distinguishing deaths as homicidal, suicidal, accidental, natural, or undetermined is critical for conducting proper investigation. Though the State Medico Legal Expert, P.W.-2, has stated that he does not agree with the assertion of burning by the electric current in absence of certain characteristics which are usually seen in cases of electrocution, yet he has not disputed the fact that there was no smell of kerosene or any other inflammable substance from the body of the deceased. He has also stated that injury numbers 4,5 and 6 could be caused by electric burn. On the other hand, Dr. H.K. Verma, P.W.-3, who conducted the post mortem of the dead body, found that the body was in pugilistic attitude. No smell of kerosene oil was emanating from the body. Also, there was entrance point of electric burn present in the thumb and index finger of the left hand and exit point of electric burn in the thumb and index finger of the right hand which according to Parikh's Textbook of Medical Jurisprudence, Forensic Medicine and Toxicology, is a sign of Electrocution only and not burn by any inflammable substance. From both of the opinions mentioned herein above, no ultimate conclusion can be drawn. None of the situation is proved beyond doubt and there exist the scope of suspicion as to the nature of the death. It is a settled legal proposition that where the core question whether the death was homicidal, accidental or suicidal remains shrouded in doubt, the prosecution's case necessarily fails. The conviction of the accused cannot be based on mere presumption of homicide. If the evidence leaves room for the possibility of a suicidal or accidental death, the benefit of the doubt inevitably goes to the accused.

26. As regards the contention of the learned counsel for the State that there was no supply of electricity at the concerned substation on 30.06.1979 from 1:45 a.m. to 12:00 noon, we find no force in the said argument, as the incident occurred in the intervening night of 29/30.06.1979 at unknown time and it is very much possible that the incident might have occurred before 1:45 a.m. of that night.

27. Now the Court proceeds to examine the presence and alleged role of the surviving appellant, Triveni in the present case. The defence has taken a specific plea that he was not present at the house at the time of the incident. While the prosecution heavily relies on the circumstance of him being in the house to infer his involvement in the crime. As there is no eye witness to the alleged incident, it remains doubtful as to whether the appellant was actually present at his house at the time of the occurrence or not. For the sake of argument, even if we assume that he was present at the house at the time of occurrence, no specific role in committing the alleged crime has been assigned to him by the prosecution witnesses in their evidence. In cases of circumstantial evidence, mere presence or absence based on suspicion cannot form the sole basis of conviction. In fact, basic presumption in our justice system is the innocence of the accused, and until charges are proved beyond a reasonable doubt, conviction of an accused cannot be recorded. Hence, in the present case conviction cannot sustain as the presence of the appellant at the time of occurrence at the scene of crime has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt and no active role has been assigned to him and the chain of the evidence is not consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused.

28. Under the circumstances, considering all the evidences available on record including the delay in lodging the FIR, contradictory medical opinion, suspicion regarding the presence of appellant at the place of occurrence at the time of the incident and failure of prosecution to prove the death of deceased as homicidal death, it is held that prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. There exist doubt and suspicion that the accused-appellant has caused the death of the deceased. Hence, we are of the opinion that the conclusion taken by the learned trial court in the impugned judgment and order is not in accordance with law and the evidence available on record. This Court is of the view that the prosecution has not been able to establish the guilt of the accused appellant Triveni beyond reasonable doubt. Therefore, the Court is inclined to grant benefit of doubt to the accused appellant on the ground of rule of caution.

29. The criminal appeal is allowed and the conviction and sentence imposed upon the accused appellant Triveni is set-aside as the accused appellant is found not guilty for the charges framed against him. He is acquitted of all the charges. He is on bail. His bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged.

30. Records of the learned trial court be sent back.

Whether the prosecution proved beyond reasonable doubt the guilt of the surviving appellants.
Whether the female appellants participated in the assault or shared common object.
Whether the conviction and the benefit of probation granted by the trial court require interference.

2. By the impugned judgment and order, dated 14.06.1988, the learned trial court has convicted the appellants for offence punishable under Section 147 Indian Penal Code,1860 (in short IPC) and sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of three months; sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of three months for offence punishable under Section 323/149 IPC; sentenced them to undergo rigorous imprisonment of six months offence punishable under Section 324/149 IPC and, instead of sentencing them at once, they were released on probation for good conduct for a period of one year by giving them the benefit of Section 4 of Probation of Offenders Act, 1968.

3. During the pendency of this appeal, the appellant Nos.1- Babu, appellant no.2- Puttu, appellant no.3- Halkey, appellant no.5- Baijnath, appellant no.8- Smt. Ram Dulari and appellant no.9- Smt. Sanjhli Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, appellant no.11- Smt. Manjhli Bahu wife of Baijnath and appellant no.12- Smt. Manjhli Bahu wife of Zalim.

4. Brief facts of the prosecution case are that Mannu Lal son of Kunji Lal Yadav, resident of Village- Basatguwa, Police Station- Bar, District- Lalitpur, lodged an FIR on 20.09.1984 at 17:35, at Police Station- Bar, by submitting a written application (Ext.-Ka.1), stating that on 28.12.1981, a registered sale deed was executed in favour of himself and his four brothers by Kalle son of Dallu grand-son of Makkhan Kaacchi, regarding 6.45 acre land of Nazarbagh Kunwa. After few months Kalle died, then Babu, Zalim etc. Alongwith their brothers filed an objection against the aforesaid registered sale deed. The above case was decided in Tehsil- Taalbehat and then it was heard by the Commissioner, Jhansi from there the case was remanded, and by order in the case from Tehsil- Taalbehat, the above land was recorded in the name of Nanki (bahu) wife of Kalle. The first informant lodged its appeal before S.D.M. Taalbehat which is pending. After the execution of sale deed the first informant and his four brothers came into possession of the aforesaid land and are cultivating the same. They had sown crop of maze, groundnut and ginger. Today, i.e. 20.09.1984, his maze crop was standing over the land then accused Zalim, Bhagirath, Puttu, Babu, Halke, Bhajan Lal, Baijnath, Ramanand, Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Baijnath, Smt. Badu Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt. Ram Dulari, Smt. Manjhali wife of Jalim, Smt. Sanjhli wife of Puttu and Smt. Sanjhli wife of Bhajan Lal, started forcefully harvesting the crop, thereupon the first informant, his elder brother Jagat Singh; Sukhdayal, Rati Ram, Lakkhi @ Lakhan Singh reached there at about 11:00 a.m. and objected. Zalim and others claimed the land their own, and said that you can do whatever you can, but we will cultivate it. Baijnath, Kacchi hit a lathi blow over his head and when his brothers Sukh Dayal and others tried to rescue him then Baijnath and others, in furtherance of their common intention, started committing maarpeet with lathi and sickle. They raised alarm, thereupon the co-villagers Harlal Yadav, Ram Chandey Yadav, Sujan Yadav reached and saved them. Due to the above maarpeet he and Jagat Singh, Sukh Dayal, Rati Ram and Lakkhi @ Lakhan Singh sustained injuries. They ran towards village but saw some police constables, so due to their fear, they ran away leaving there seriously injured Lakkhi. The constables took Lakkhi, Zalim and others on a truck to the police station-Bar. When his younger brother Meghraj came home from Jhansi, then he narrated the entire story.

5. Upon this information FIR under Sections 147, 323 and 324 IPC was lodged and the investigation was entrusted to SHO Narendra Pal Singh. He recorded the statements of first informant and other witnesses, visited the place of occurrence and prepared its site-plan. The injured were medically examined and after investigation he has filed charge-sheet under Sections 147, 323 and 324 IPC before the concerned Magistrate.

6. The court concerned took cognizance of the offence and summoned the accused, they appeared and copies of relevant prosecution papers were furnished to them under Section 207 Cr.P.C. and thereafter the case being cross-case of Case Crime No.189 of 1984, was committed to Sessions court by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Lalitpur, vide order dated 30.07.1986. The accused appeared before the learned Sessions Court where, charges under Sections- 147, 323 read with 149 and 324 read with 149 IPC were framed against them. The accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

7. The prosecution examined eight witnesses, to wit, P.W.1 Mannu Lal; P.W. 2 Lakkhi; P.W.3 Meghraj; P.W.4 Dr. K.C. Gupta; P.W. 5 Dr. N.L. Mahajan; P.W. 6 Babulal; P.W.7 Sujan; P.W.8 Narendra Pal Singh, to prove its case.

8. P.W. 1 Mannu Lal, is the eye-witness of the alleged incident and he has supported the prosecution case. He has stated that at the time of incident he was present there and was harvesting this maze crop. There he saw the accused, harvesting his maze crop. He objected to it and said that the crop was sown by him then why you are harvesting it, thereupon they resorted and started committing maarpeet with lathi and sickle. Then they snatched lathi and sickle from the accused persons and saved themselves and in the process the accused also sustained injuries. The witnesses reached at the spot and saved them. In this incident, he himself, Jagat Singh, Sukh Dayal, Rati Ram and Lakkhi @ Lakhan Singh sustained injuries. After committing maarpeet the accused fled from the spot. On their way back, they saw some policemen, then they fled from there leaving injured Lakkhi there. This witness is also the first informant and has proved the tehrir, (Ext.Ka.1), and has said that all the injured were taken to the doctor for treatment. He has admitted that a cross-case is pending against them upon report lodged by accused Babu with regard to the offence of murder.

9. P.W.2 Lakkhi, is the injured witness and he has also supported the prosecution case and has stated the same version as was stated by P.W.1 and has said that all the accused assaulted them with lathi and sickle and in their right of self-defence, the accused also sustained injuries. The police took him and the injured persons of the other party to the Police Station. From the Police Station he was taken to Lalitpur Hospital. He sustained injury over his left palm from sickle. He stated that the accused tried to hit sickle over his head but he tried to defend and thus, sustained injuries over his hand.

10. P.W.3 Meghraj, is not the eye-witness of the alleged incident. He has scribed the tehrir (Ext.Ka.1), which he has written down on the dictation of first informant. He has said that he was at the shop, where he heard about the incident. He reached the village at about 03:00 p.m. After 3-4 days, he went to the police station, on his own, and met the Investigating Officer. He is also an accused in the cross-case.

11. P.W. 4 Dr. K.C. Gupta, is the expert witness, who has prepared injury report of Lakkhi on 20.09.1984 and found following injuries over his body:-

(i) Incised wound 5 cm x 1.5 cm x bone deep over back side of left forearm. The margins were clear cut and everted. Fresh bleeding was present.

(ii) Incised wound 4 cm x 1 cm x bone deep, 1.5 cm below the injury no.1. The margins were clear cut, everted and fresh bleeding was present.

In the opinion of the doctor both the injures were kept under observation and X-Ray was advised. The injuries could have been caused by sharp edged weapon such as sickle. He has said that if some person tries to hit sickle over the head of the injured then while saving oneself with hand, this injury is possible. The doctor has proved the injury report as Ext.Ka.2 and has said that these injuries could be caused on 20.09.1984 at 11:00 a.m.

12. In cross-examination he has said that the injury to Lakkhi could have been caused in other manner also rather than in defending himself. The doctor has said that on the same day he has examined Bhagirath at 04:40 p.m. and found following injuries:-

(i) Contusion 12 cm x 10 cm over the left of skull. 1.5 cm x 1/4 cm x muscle deep x 1 cm ahead of left ear. Fresh bleeding was present.

(vi) Complaint of pain from ear.

In the opinion of doctor injury nos. 1 and 5 was kept under observation and was advised X-Ray. The injured was admitted in hospital and was unconscious. Rest of the injuries were simple in nature and could have been caused by hard and blunt object. The injuries were fresh.

13. Further, the doctor has said that at about 05:15 p.m. he examined Puttu and found following injuries over his body:-

(i) Lacerated wound 7 cm x 0.5 cm to the left side of head 8 cm above ear. Fresh bleeding was present.

(vi) Contusion 3 cm x 1 cm with abrasion over left side of back over scapula region.

In the opinion of the doctor injury no.1, 2, 3 and 4 were kept under observation and X-Ray of head was advised. Rest of the injuries were simple in nature and were caused by hard and blunt object and were fresh in nature. The injured was admitted in hospital. The witness has proved both the injury reports as Ext. Kha.1 and Ext. Kha.2. He has said that these injuries could have been caused on 20.09.1984 at 11:00 a.m. with lathis and injuries to injured Bhagirath were sufficient to cause his death. The injured Bhagirath died due to the aforesaid injuries on 20.09.1984 at 06:45 p.m., regarding which he had informed the Police Station- Kotwali. He has also said that the injured Bhagirath was unconscious and in that condition he was medically examined.

14. P.W. 5 Dr. N.L. Mahajan, is also an expert witness. He has said that on 20.09.1984 he was posted as Incharge Medical Officer at PHC Baar and on that day he has examined Ratiram and found no injury over his body.

15. The same day at about 06:45 p.m. he examined Sukh Dayal and found following injuries:-

(i) Lacerated wound 2 cm x 1/4 cm x 1/4 cm over temporal area away from temple bone. The margins were irregular and clotted blood was found present.

In his opinion the doctor, the injury was simple in nature and was caused by hard and blunt object and was about 12 hours old.

16. On the same evening, at about 07:05 p.m. he examined Jagat Singh and found following injuries over his body:-

(i) Lacerated wound 4 cm x 1/4 cm x 1/4 cm. 7 cm above right eye brow and 2 cm away from the middle line of head.

(iv) Abraded contusion over the back right of scapula region 7 xm x 1 cm x 0.5 cm reddish in colour.

Injuries were simple in nature and were caused by hard and blunt object. The injury was 12 hours old.

In the opinion of the doctor all the injuries to the above injured could have been caused by lathi on 20.09.1984 at about 11:00 a.m. Injury nos. 2 and 3, caused to injured Munna Lal were on vital part, therefore, were dangerous in nature. Injury over head of Sukh Dayal was too deep which is dangerous to life. Injury no.1 to Jagat Singh was over head and if excessive force was used it could have been dangerous to life.

18. P.W. 6, Constable Babu Lal, is a formal witness and he was posted as Head Moharrir at Police Station- Baar on 20.09.1984, who scribed the chik FIR and entered its gist in G.D. No.22 at time 17:25, which the witness has proved as Ext.Ka.7 and Ext.Ka.8, respectively.

19. In cross-examination he has said that the same day Babu and others had lodged an FIR under Section 147, 148, 149 and 302 IPC against 15 accused and he had scribed the chik FIR of the aforesaid case. The witness has proved chik FIR as Ext. Kha-14 and its G.D. No.14, time 14:40 as Ext. Kha.15.

20. P.W.7, Sujan is the eye-witness of the alleged incident. He has supported the prosecution case and has said that he was going towards his well from his house alongwith

Har Lal, Ram Chandra Yadav, then upon hearing hue and cry over a quarrel, he reached at the spot. He saw accused committing maarpeet with lathi and sickle with Mannu Lal, Sukh Dayal, Jagat Singh, Lakkhi and Ratiram. Mannu Lal also wielded lathi and in self defence all the persons sustained injuries. Babu Lal, Ram Chandra Yadav, Jagat Singh's wife and Brij Lal's wife did not sustain any injury. The dispute had occurred due to harvesting maze crop. The above witness is the accused in the cross-case and has denied that Zalim and Bhagirath were lying in injured condition. He has said that he did not see any blood oozing out from their wounds. Both the parties were beating each other.

21. P.W.8 S.I. Narendra Pal Singh, is the Investigating Officer of the case. He has stated about the investigation carried out by him and has said that he inspected the place of occurrence and prepared its site-plan which he has proved as Ext. Ka.9. He has also said that after investigation he filed charge-sheet which was proved as Ext.Ka.10.

22. In cross-examination he has said that on the same day, accused Babu had also lodged an FIR upon a written application and he has investigated that case also. He had filed charge-sheet against 15 persons in that case. Bhagirath and Zalim were murdered in that case. He had found in the investigation of the cross-case that Bhagirath and others had reached at the Nazarbagh carrying lathi, axe, ballam and other weapons. He had recorded statement of Sujan after about three months because earlier he was not available. He did not found any lathi etc., from the place of occurrence.

23. After the closure of prosecution evidence, the statements of accused were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in which they denied the prosecution case. It is admitted that in the village there is one Kalle son of Dallu and another person also by the name of Kalle son of Dallu but one Kalle's grand father is Maakhan and another Kalle's grandfather is Bhagante and they are Mahanate's relatives. They have admitted that proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. was initiated but the possession over the disputed land belongs to them. They were harvesting the crop when they were beaten. They did not beat the first informant's party. The witnesses have deposed against them due to enmity. It is also submitted that there two persons were killed from their side and due to enmity and to save themselves the witnesses are deposing against them.

24. The defence has examined D.W. 1 Hannu who has said that he is the eye-witness of the alleged incident. He has said that upon hearing hue and cry he reached at the spot and saw accused harvesting the maze crop and were being beaten by Mannu, Sukh Dayal, Meghraj, Jagat Singh, Kalyan, Nanhu, Bhaiya Lal, Harlal, Sujan, Sitaram, Rajaram, Rati Ram, Lakkhi, Gebu, Halke. Lakkhi were carrying axe. Jagat Singh was carrying ballam and the rest were having lathis. Mehraj and Lakkhi assaulted axe upon Zalim. Jagat Singh struck ballam from the side of lathi and rest used lathis. The women Smt. Majhali Bahu wife of Baijnath, Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt.. Ram Dulari, Smt. Majhali Bahu wife of Jalim, Smt. Sajhali Bahu wife of Puttu and Smt. Sajhali Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, were beaten with lathis. Zalim's wife came for her husband's rescue then she saved him with sickle which struck Lakkhi. Babu and others snatched lathis from informant's party and wielded them in self defence. The accused did not commit any maarpeet with Meghraj and others. The disputed field belongs to the accused Babu.

25. After considering the evidence and arguments on behalf of both the parties, the learned trial court came to the conclusion that the prosecution case is proved beyond reasonable doubt. The plea of exercise of right of private defence of appellants was not accepted and accordingly, the appellants were convicted and sentenced to the term as indicated above.

26. Heard Shri Sanjeev Kumar Khare, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Ms. Archana Chauhan, learned Counsel for the appellants and Shri Rajesh Kumar Rao, learned A.G.A on behalf of the State and perused the material on record.

27. Learned Counsel for the appellants has submitted that there are major contradictions in statement of prosecution witnesses which raises serious doubt over the prosecution case. It is also submitted that the disputed field belongs to appellants and it is the first informant's party which was aggressor and started committing maarpeet with them and in that process they killed Zalim and Bhagirath and also caused injuries to others. Then the appellants party wielded lathi in their self defence. Thus the learned trial court failed to appreciate the evidence on record correctly and reached at the wrong conclusion of guilt of the appellants.

28. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has submitted that the prosecution case is proved beyond reasonable doubt. Ocular evidence is supported by medical evidence. There are no major contradictions to disbelieve the prosecution witnesses. Admittedly, the injuries were sustained by the first informant's party from the assault committed by the appellants. It is the appellants who were aggressor as they started harvesting crop which belongs to the first informant and upon protest they started beating the first informant's party. Therefore, the right of exercise of private defence was not available to the appellants. Thus, the learned trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced the appellants.

29. The first submission on behalf of the appellants is that the matter relates to cross-case and two persons from the side of the accused have been murdered in the said incident. Beside, some others from appellant's side also sustained injuries and it is the first informant's side, which was aggressor and the accused exercised their right of private defence of person in which the first informant's party sustained injuries. With regard to the cross-case P.W.1 Mannu Lal has admitted that he is accused in the cross-case which is pending against him. P.W.2 Lakkhi the injured witness. P.W.3 Meghraj and P.W.7 Sujan have also stated the same that they are accused in the cross-case. P.W.6 Constable Babu Lal has scribed chik FIR of the present case and he has stated that on the same day, he has also scribed FIR of the cross-case. P.W.8 S.I. Narendra Pal Singh, is the Investigating Officer of this case and he has stated that upon FIR lodged by Babu in Case crime No. 89 of 1981, under Sections- 147, 148, 149 and 302 IPC, he investigated the cross-case and filed charge-sheet against 15 persons, to wit, Babu s/o Kalley, Puttu s/o Kalley, Halkey s/o Moti Kachi, Bhajan Lal s/o Moti Kachi, Baijnath s/o Moti Kachi, Ramanand s/o Punnu, Smt. Ram Dulari w/o Jugraj, Smt. Manjhali Bahu w/o Jalim, Smt. Manjhali Bahu w/o Baijnath, Smt. Sanjhali

Bahu w/o Puttu, Smt. Sanjhali Bahu w/o Bhajan Lal, Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi w/o Jassu. Even D.W.1 Hannu, the witness produced by the defence has also stated that both the parties assaulted each other. In view of the above, it is established that the matter relates to cross-case and as it is defence case that the first informant's party also sustained injuries while the accused exercised their right of private defence of person. Therefore, the date, time and place of the alleged incident is not in dispute.

30. It is also not in dispute that at the time of incident the appellant's party was harvesting the Maze crop over the disputed land. Now the first question which arises for consideration is which party was aggressor and which party had sown the Maze crop over the disputed land. In this regard, the public witness examined on behalf of prosecution have stated that it is the Mannu Lal who had sown the crop and the accused illegally started harvesting the crop. The prosecution has produced some documentary evidence which goes to show that there was litigation pending between both the parties with regard to disputed land. The defence case is that Maze crop was sown by the accused side. There is no clear evidence to prove which party had sown the crop over the disputed land, so which party was the owner or which party has sown the crop is not clear, but it is not in dispute that the accused were harvesting the crop when the incident started. Now when it is not established by the prosecution that the disputed land or the crop belongs to the informant's side, then their right of private defence of property, does not arise in this case.

31. Now the question arises which party started the assault upon the other, in other words which party was the aggressor. In this regard, also the evidence on record is not very clear. On the one hand, the prosecution witnesses say, that when they objected the appellants of harvesting the crop then the appellants resorted and started beating the first informant's side then in their right of private defence they snatched lathi and sickle from the appellant's side and wielded lathi in their self defence. On the other hand, the defence evidence shows that it is the first informant's side which started beating the appellant's side then in exercise of right of their private defence of person they wielded lathi and sickle which caused injuries to the first informant's side. So, when it is not clear from evidence which party was the aggressor, then it would be deemed that it was a free fight. In case of free fight each person/ party is responsible for its act.

32. The appellants admit the injuries sustained by the first informant's side which is corroborated by medical evidence, in the form of injury reports and the statement of the treating doctor. Therefore, it is not in dispute that first informant's side sustained injuries in the said incident which were caused by the appellant's side.

33. A perusal of statement of P.W.1 Munna Lal, P.W.2 Lakkhi, P.W.3 Meghraj and P.W.7 Sujan, goes to show that there is major discrepancy in their statements, so far as the role of surviving appellants namely, Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt. Sanjhali Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, Smt. Manjhli Bahu wife of Baijnath and Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Zalim are concerned, so their participation in the said incident is not established. Though, these witnesses have said that they saw them present at the spot, but P.W.1 Mannu Lal has not said, in clear words, that they had participated in the assault. P.W.2 Lakkhi, the injured witness, has also said that the women present there did not pick up the lathi and he did not see that they committed any maarpeet. P.W.7 Sujan, has also said that the women were present there, but he did not see them causing any assault. None of the women assaulted to anyone, and it was both the parties who were assaulting each other. Thus, there is no clear evidence that appellants Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt. Sanjhali Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, Smt. Manjhli Bahu wife of Baijnath and Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Zalim, participated in the crime. There is also no evidence that they shared any common object with other co-accused. Therefore, they deserve to get the benefit of doubt.

34. So far as the surviving appellants Bhajan Lal and Ramanand are concerned, there is specific evidence against them that they have participated in the said crime and committed assault upon the first informant's side. Therefore, prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against them. Thus, the learned trial court has not appreciated the evidence on record correctly and reached at the wrong conclusion of the guilt of Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt. Sanjhali Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, Smt. Manjhli Bahu wife of Baijnath and Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Zalim and so far as the appellants Bhajan Lal and Ramanand are concerned, they have been rightly convicted by the learned trial court.

35. In view of the above discussion, this appeal is partly allowed with regard to appellants Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt. Sanjhali Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, Smt. Manjhli Bahu wife of Baijnath and Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Zalim and the impugned judgment and order dated 14.06.1988 passed in Sessions Trial No.55 of 1986 with respect to them, is set aside and they are acquitted of the offence under Section 147 and 323, 324 read with 34 IPC.

36. The appellants, to wit, Smt. Badi Bahu @ Kanchan Devi, Smt. Sanjhali Bahu wife of Bhajan Lal, Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Baijnath and Smt. Manjhali Bahu wife of Zalim are on bail. They need not surrender. Their personal bonds and surety bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged of their liabilities.

37. And, with regard to appellant nos. 4 Bhajan Lal and 6 Ramanand, this appeal is dismissed and the impugned judgment and order against them is upheld and the conviction and sentence of the appellant nos. 4 Bhajan Lal and appellant no.6 Ramanand, is affirmed. Appellants Bhajan Lal and Ramanand are on bail. They are directed to appear before the learned Trial Court within one month from today and instead of serving the sentence, they shall execute the bonds as directed by the learned Trial Court for maintaining good behavior, upon their being released on probation to maintain good conduct for a period of one year, by giving them the benefit of Section 4 of Probation of Offenders Act, 1968.

38. Let a copy of this order be sent to the Trial Court concerned alongwith the Trial Court record for information and necessary compliance.

1. This judgment will decide Criminal Appeal No. 1777 of 2020 and connected Criminal Appeal No. 1743 of 2020, both arising out of Case Crime No. 2486 of 2007, under Section 302/34 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (for short, 'IPC'), Police Station Kotwali, District Mainpuri. Both the appellants were convicted of the offence punishable under Section 302/34 IPC by the learned Additional Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (E.C. Act), Mainpuri in Sessions Trial No. 700151 of 2008 vide judgment and order dated 28.01.2020 and, later on, sentenced by an order dated 30.01.2020 to suffer imprisonment for life, besides being imposed with a fine of Rs.10,000/- each. In the event of default, the convict defaulting was ordered to suffer additional simple imprisonment for a month.

2. A written report was lodged by Mohd. Abid son of Jabbar Husain, a brother of the deceased on 03.10.2007 at 10.30 p.m. with a case that on 03.10.2007, his elder brother Mohd. Javed had closed his shop and rode his motorcycle back home. Mohd. Javed, as soon he reached the gate to his house at 8.30 p.m., was shot twice. The informant and his brother, hearing the shots ring out, reached the gate and saw that their brother had been shot and was lying on the ground. The assailants were three in number. They were riding a motorcycle. They rode away towards Mehmood Nagar, going inside the locality. The informant brought his injured brother to the hospital, where he breathed his last. His dead body was lying in the hospital and the informant said that he had come to the station to lodge a report for the purpose of necessary legal action. The written report handed over to the Police is on record as Ex. Ka-1. On the basis of the written report, a check First Information Report ('FIR' for short) was registered on 03.10.2007 at 10.30 p.m., giving rising to Crime No. 2486 of 2007, under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC, P.S. Kotwali, District Mainpuri. This FIR was registered against unknown offenders.

3. About two months later on 10.12.2007, Sub-Inspector Nanhe Lal Yadav, Station Officer, P.S. Kotwali, Mainpuri, was on the look out of a wanted offender. When this police party reached Karhal Road near the FCI Godown, they got information through a secret informer that in the Javed murder case, the accused were about to proceed riding their motorcycle on the Karhal-Mainpuri Road in order to commit some crime. It was reported that they would proceed to Karhal. If prompt steps were taken, they could be apprehended. The police party reached the spot, trusting the information and solicited passersby to stand witness to the arrest. All those asked to witness without disclosing their name and address, citing reasons of buying hostility, declined to witness the arrest. In the meantime, S.I. Anoop Kumar Yadav arrived and took the station officer along with the informer to the broken culvert located beyond the FCI Godown. At that time, four men, riding two motorcycles, were seen moving on the Karhal Road. The informer said that they were the offenders involved in the Javed murder case and went away. The riders were signalled to stop.

4. Upon seeing the Police, both the motorcycles changed course and went along the road going to Nagla Harsurat, speeding away in order to escape the Police. The Police gave them a chase, in consequence of which the pillion riders opened fire at the Police with an intent to kill. The Police escaped unhurt and overpowered two of the offenders at about 4.00 p.m. The other two made good their escape. Those apprehended were asked to disclose their names and subjected to a search their person. The first of them disclosed his name as Dileep @ Dalda son of Shiv Ram Shukla and a resident of Mohalla Kheda, Qasba & P.S. Karhal. The search of his person led to the recovery of a country-made pistol held in his right hand. Upon opening the barrel of the pistol, a recently fired empty of 0.315 caliber was recovered. The gun was in working condition. And from the right hand side of his pants, two live cartridges of 0.315 caliber were also recovered. The second man disclosed his name as Sunil son of Sonelal, a resident of Mohalla Bhatela, Qasba & P.S. Karhal, District Mainpuri. The search of his person led to the recovery of a country-made pistol held in his right hand. The barrel had a freshly fired empty of 0.315 caliber. The gun was in working condition. From the left hand side pocket of this man, two live cartridges of 0.315 caliber were recovered.

5. The police party say in the recovery memo that both the apprehended men were asked about the Javed murder case, in consequence of which Dileep @ Dalda revealed that he had been given information that around Diwali, Javed has a handsome amount of cash on him, which he utilizes to buy wares in Delhi, presumably for his shop. Dileep @ Dalda revealed that with an intent to commit robbery on 03.10.2007, he and Sunil, along with Guddu, planned to kill Javed in the evening, when he closed shop and rob him of his money. According to plan, all three of them proceeded on a motorcycle at about 8 p.m. to Javed's shop, and after he closed shop, they followed him. As soon as he arrived close to his house and knocked at his gate, the offenders, with an intent to rob him, shot him to death, with Sunil and Guddu firing a round each. Javed collapsed on the spot. Thinking that he was dead, the offenders escaped. Since then, they were roaming about hiding themselves. On that day, they disclosed that they were proceeding from Karhal to Mainpuri after committing a robbery, when they were apprehended. The other man apprehended, that is to say, Sunil said that on 03.10.2007, according to Dileep @ Dalda's plan, Dileep and Guddu attempted to rob Javed at 8.30 p.m. in front of his house, but the attempt remain abortive. In consequence, Sunil and Guddu shot Javed, firing a round each. Sunil said that the weapon, that he possessed on that day when he was arrested by the Police, was the same that he had used to shoot Javed. The arrested man also said that all three of them escaped riding the solitary motorcycle and were moving as fugitives. It was said by Sunil that on that day, they were proceeding from Karhal to Mainpuri with an intention to commit robbery, when the police party apprehended them. Thereupon, both the men were asked to show their licenses for the country-made pistols, which they obviously could not. Both the appellants were then arrested by this police party in connection with Case Crimes Nos. 3306 of 2007 and 3307 of 2007, under Section 25 of the Arms Act, P.S. Kotwali, District Mainpuri.

6. Reverting back to the facts of the murder case, which had happened two months antedating the appellants' arrest, an inquest was held on 03.10.2007, marked Ex. Ka-2. The deceased's body was subjected to autopsy and the autopsy report is on record as Ex. Ka-9. Blood stained and plain concrete were recovered from the scene of crime, regarding which a memo was drawn up, marked as Ex. Ka-12. The Investigating Officer, after concluding the investigation, filed a charge-sheet in the murder case on 23.12.2007, which is on record as Ex. Ka-11.

7. The learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri took cognizance and furnished copies of the relevant prosecution papers to the appellants as provided under Section 207 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (for short, 'Cr.P.C.'). Thereafter, the learned Magistrate vide order dated 01.04.2008 committed the case to the Court of Sessions for trial.

8. The case came up before Mr. Tanwir Ahmad Siddiqi, the then Sessions Judge, Mainpuri for framing of charges. The learned Sessions Judge, vide order dated 28.04.2008, framed a charge against both the appellants, jointly under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC, regarding intentionally committing the murder of Javed employing a firearm on 03.10.2007 at 8.30 p.m. in Mohalla Mehmood Nagar, Mainpuri City, within the circle of P.S. Kotwali, District Mainpuri in furtherance of a common intention.

9. In support of their case, the prosecution examined the following witnesses:

1. PW-1 - Mohd. Abid Ansari, the first informant and brother of the deceased,
2. PW-2 - Mohd. Aqil, another brother of the deceased,
3. PW-3 - Jabbar Hussain, father of the deceased,

11. After the prosecution evidence was over, the statement of the appellant Dileep @ Dalda was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. on 23.09.2016 and that of the appellant Sunil also on the said date.

12. The appellant Dileep @ Dalda produced DW-1 Lal Singh son of Ramphal in his defence as well as DW-2 Satendra Kumar. The other appellant Sunil examined Lal Singh son of Prabhu Dayal as DW-3 in support of his defence.

13. After hearing the learned Counsel for both parties, the Additional Sessions Judge/ Special Judge (E.C. Act), Mainpuri by the judgment and order impugned dated 28.01.2020 convicted the appellants as aforesaid and by the latter order dated 30.01.2020 sentenced them in the manner already indicated.

14. Aggrieved, these two criminal appeals have been preferred.

15. Heard Mr. Arun Kumar Bhatt, learned Counsel for the appellant in support of Criminal Appeal No. 1777 of 2020 and Ms. Abhilasha Singh, learned Counsel for the appellant in support of Criminal Appeal No.1743 of 2020. Mr. Ghanshyam Kumar, learned Additional Government Advocate-I has been heard on behalf of the State whereas Mr. Brij Raj Singh, learned Counsel has been heard on behalf of the informant in both the appeals.

16. So far as the date, time and place of occurrence is concerned, according to the FIR, the deceased was shot on 03.10.2007 when he was riding back home from his shop and had just reached the main gate to his house. He was shot there at 8.30 p.m. by motorcycle borne offenders, numbering three, who proceeded towards Mehmood Nagar, entering that locality and going trace-less. PW-1 and PW-2, who claim to be eye-witnesses of the occurrence, in their testimony in Court, have stood by this version in the FIR. PW-1 is the first informant and a brother of the deceased. He has said in his examination-in-chief that on 03.10.2007, Mohd. Javed closed shop and rode his motorcycle back home. He reached the gate to his house at 8.30 p.m., when the three motorcycle borne offenders approached from the side of the Salim Children Public School and shot Mohd. Javed in the back. The witness says that he heard two shots ring out. As soon as this witness, along with his other brother Mohd. Aqil, reached the gate and opened it, they found their deceased brother Javed lying on the entrance to the gate. There was a lot of blood effusing, apparently from the wound and his motorcycle was lying there. He saw the assailants escape on the motorcycle they were riding towards Mehmood Nagar. There is not much elicited during cross-examination to discredit the date, time and place of occurrence.

17. Likewise, is the testimony of PW-2. He has said that this witness were in all five brothers. The eldest of them was Mohd. Javed. He would run an electrical and electronics repair shop in the market. On the 3rd of October, 2007, the witness's elder brother Javed was proceeding home after closing shop. As soon as he reached the gate to his house at 8.30 p.m., three motorcycle borne men shot him. Upon hearing the shot rings out, he and his brother Abid opened the gate and saw that their brother was lying on the entrance of the gate soaked in blood. His motorcycle was lying nearby. The three motorcycle borne offenders made good their escape. This witness says that he and his brother Abid had seen the offenders escape on the motorcycle. There is nothing elicited in the cross-examination of this witness too, which may detract from the date, time or place of occurrence.

18. We are, therefore, of opinion that testimony of PW-1 and PW-2, who reached the spot soon after the occurrence, and the FIR version put together, establishes the date, time and place of occurrence as that what has been propounded by the prosecution. We are also minded to think on the testimony of these witnesses that the manner of occurrence is also well proven. The first information version and the dock evidence of PW-1 and PW-2 establish the date, time, place and manner of occurrence beyond reasonable doubt. The place of occurrence is additionally proved by the fact that blood-stained and plain concrete was picked up from the spot by the Investigating Officer on the same day, as would be evident from the recovery memo dated 03.10.2007, Ex. Ka-12.

19. This brings us to the cardinal question, if indeed it was the appellants along with an elusive companion, the third rider on the motorcycle, who had shot Javed to death on 03.10.2007 outside his house at the gate at 8.30 p.m. It is ultimately the prosecution's burden to prove their case beyond reasonable doubt. Any reasonable and substantial doubt about the prosecution would enure to the benefit of the accused, entitling them to acquittal. Of course, the doubt should not be fanciful, remote or one inferable from a minor and inconsequential contradiction between the accounts of witnesses.

20. The prosecution have examined seven witnesses of fact, to wit, PWs-1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and PW-10. Of these witnesses, PW-1 and PW-2, who are the brothers of the deceased, one of them being the first informant, have been projected as eye-witnesses. Though considering the place of occurrence, both PW-1 and PW-2 are natural witnesses as they are the deceased's brothers, living under a common roof and the place of occurrence being the gate or the entrance to their house, but we cannot agree with the prosecution that either of these witnesses are eye-witnesses. They are witnesses of res gestae, who reached the place of occurrence moments after the evil deed had been done and the unknown offenders were making good their escape on their motorcycle towards Mehmood Nagar. As we would presently elucidate with reference to specific portions of their testimony, these witnesses never saw the deceased being shot by the assailants. When the shots rang out, they were inside the house and promptly emerged upon hearing the shots. It is then that they saw the deceased lying in a pool of blood by the entrance of the gate and the offenders escaping on their motorcycle towards Mehmood Nagar. Thus, what the witnesses heard and saw, were the relevant facts of two shots ringing out that made them rush out of their house to the main gate, the fact that the deceased was lying there in a pool of blood and the fact that three assailants were making good their escape on a motorcycle towards Mehmood Nagar. These are all relevant facts, on the basis of which the prosecution wants us to draw the conclusion that it was the appellants before us, who shot the deceased, on the credit of the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2, amongst others.

21. In the nature of things that we have noticed, we have to evaluate the testimony of these witnesses of res gestae, if either of them could indeed identity the appellants as the assailants. It is common ground between parties that the appellants were not known to the witnesses beforehand. Therefore, what the witnesses saw of the assailants was a fleeting glimpse as they sped away towards Mehmood Nagar after doing the evil deed. A perusal of the site-plan, Ex. Ka-13, shows that the witnesses saw the assailants escape from point 'D', which at best can be regarded as their gate, though it is shown somewhat inside the house. The assailants had sped away towards the west coming as they did from the east. The witnesses, therefore, would at best have seen the assailants from their backside on a speeding motorcycle. This can be no more than a fleeting glimpse, as remarked earlier.

22. The most elaborate testimony, amongst these two witnesses, who were closest to the event, is that of PW-1, the first informant. This witness has said in his examination-in-chief, in the substance of it, 'The incident is dated 03.10.2007. My brother Mohd. Javed was returning home after closing shop riding his motorcycle. At about 8.30 in the evening, as soon as he reached the gate of his house, a motorcycle approached from the side of Salim Children Public School, which had three men riding it. These motorcycle borne assailants shot his brother from the backside. I heard two shots ring out and upon hearing these shots, I and my brother Mohd. Aqil went to the door and opening it saw our brother Javed lying on the entrance. There was a lot of blood profusing. I saw the assailants escape on the same motorcycle that they had come by towards Mehmood Nagar.' At this stage, upon seeing the appellants in the dock, this witness said, 'These are the two men, with whom there was another one, who had ridden the motorcycle and shot his brother.'

23. In his cross-examination, this witness said, 'When I heard the shots ring out, I was in the lawn. There is a boundary wall after the lawn, five feet high. I was sitting inside the boundary wall. The main gate, securing the boundary wall, was closed. Two shots were fired. After the shots had rang out, it would have taken me a minute to come out. When I came out, I had with me, my younger brother Mohd. Aqil as well. There was none other. At that time, my brother was lying in an injured state. I have passed my intermediate examination. I scribed the FIR myself. I have written there that the assailants riding the motorcycle escaped towards Mehmood Nagar. I had not got it recorded that I identified the assailants.' In his cross-examination later on, he has said, 'I was sitting in the lawn outside my house. The place I was sitting in and the alley, are located at a distance of 6-7 feet. The gate, that opens into the alley, is secured by an iron gate. The alley is clearly visible from this gate.'

24. This witness has said further on in his cross-examination, 'After I reached home that day, 10-12 minutes later the deceased Javed arrived at the gate. When I reached home, electricity supply was there, though it was night time. The gate is illuminated by two bulbs. It would have taken me less than a minute to come out of the house as soon as the deceased was shot. That time, the deceased was lying at the door. When I came out of the house, the offenders had moved ahead of the place of occurrence by 10-12 paces. The motorcycle was being driven by the appellant Sunil. The man sitting on the pillion after Sunil was a thin and wiry boy and, the last on the pillion, was the appellant Dileep @ Dalda. I came to know that the boy, who was sitting in between these two appellants, is called Guddu Musalman. I had told the Daroga that Sunil and Dileep @ Dalda were involved in this case. I had said that they had committed the murder. The Daroga has not mentioned this fact in my statement. When the accused were caught, the Daroga had not called me over for identification. I had not seen the accused before seeing them in Court.' He then said, 'I had seen them at the time of occurrence.' Still later in his cross-examination, he says, 'My statement was recorded on the 4th at 7 o'clock in the morning. That day, my statement alone was recorded. I had spoken in my statement about the accused to the Daroga, but not disclosed their names. It is incorrect to say that after the accused were arrested by the Police in the case under Section 307 IPC and Section 25 of the Arms Act, I came to know about them.' It is in the last said that the names of the accused were disclosed to this witness by the Police.

25. The other witness, who is said to be an eye-witness, is PW-2. We have already remarked that like his brother, he is a witness of res gestae. This witness has recounted the events of the fateful day more or less in his examination-in-chief consistently with his brother. He has, however, said a few things additionally. He says, 'I got information of the arrest on 11.12.2007 in the evening. I went to the Kotwali and saw these accused present in Court, identified them and told about them to the Daroga.' This witness then says, 'The accused present in Court had murdered my brother on the bidding of Habib and Rafiq for money's sake. Habib and Rafiq live in Mohalla Purohitana and they are my uncles. Dileep @ Dalda's mother's home is located five houses away from that of Habib and Rafiq. Habib and Rafiq had got my father forcibly sign a sale deed. When we grew up, we brought pressure on them to return the land, which led to exchange of sharp words with those two men. Habib and Rafiq harbours animosity against us. Habib and Rafiq had got my brother killed by Dileep @ Dalda, Sunil and Guddu Musalman after paying them money. This fact was made known to me by Sharafat Ali and Shahid Ali, when they had come over to my house on the 20th day ceremony. I had informed the Police and the higher officers about it.'

26. In his cross-examination, this witness said, 'I had given my statement to the Daroga that when my brother was shot and I heard it, I was sitting in my lawn. If the Daroga had not recorded the fact, I cannot say the reason why. I had told the Daroga that when we opened the door, our brother was lying at the entrance drenched in blood. It is correct to say that when we opened the door, the assailants were not on the spot. They had moved away by 10-12 paces. They were proceeding towards the west. I had seen the assailants from the backside moving away. I had seen them at the time of occurrence and not earlier. I had given my statement to the Police after a month and a quarter, but not disclosed the name of the assailants, though I disclosed their getup. If the Daroga had not taken down the getup of the assailants, I cannot say the reason why.'

27. The totality of the testimony of these two witnesses places them the way, we have earlier judged them. They reached the place of occurrence soon after the event and saw a fleeting glimpse of the assailants, on the basis of which they could not have identified them in the dock for the first time, as they say they did. Though a Test Identification Parade rightfully belongs to the arena of investigation, but in a case like the present one, if a TI Parade were held shortly after the occurrence, or very soon thereafter with a good identification of the two appellants, the identification in the dock would have stood on surer ground. There cannot be any insistence on a TI Parade, but the lack of it in a case of doubtful identification of entirely unknown offenders, like the present one, may not help the prosecution establish identify of the offenders. The law in this regard has been summarized by the Supreme Court in Mulla v. State of U.P., (2010) 3 SCC 508, where it has been held:

"41. Now, let us consider the arguments of the learned amicus curiae on the delay in conducting the test identification parade. The evidence of test identification is admissible under Section 9 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The identification parade belongs to the stage of investigation by the police. The question whether a witness has or has not identified the accused during the investigation is not one which is in itself relevant at the trial. The actual evidence regarding identification is that which is given by witnesses in court. There is no provision in CrPC entitling the accused to demand that an identification parade should be held at or before the inquiry of the trial. The fact that a particular witness has been able to identify the accused at an identification parade is only a circumstance corroborative of the identification in court.

42. Failure to hold test identification parade does not make the evidence of identification in court inadmissible, rather the same is very much admissible in law. Where identification of an accused by a witness is made for the first time in court, it should not form the basis of conviction.

43. As was observed by this Court in Matru v. State of U.P. [(1971) 2 SCC 75: 1971 SCC (Cri) 391] identification tests do not constitute substantive evidence. They are primarily meant for the purpose of helping the investigating agency with an assurance that their progress with the investigation into the offence is proceeding on the right lines. The identification can only be used as corroboration of the statement in court. (Vide Santokh Singh v. Izhar Hussain [(1973) 2 SCC 406: 1973 SCC (Cri) 828].)

44. The necessity for holding an identification parade can arise only when the accused persons are not previously known to the witnesses. The whole idea of a test identification parade is that witnesses who claim to have seen the culprits at the time of occurrence are to identify them from the midst of other persons without any aid or any other source. The test is done to check upon their veracity. In other words, the main object of holding an identification parade, during the investigation stage, is to test the memory of the witnesses based upon first impression and also to enable the prosecution to decide whether all or any of them could be cited as eyewitnesses of the crime.

45. The identification proceedings are in the nature of tests and significantly, therefore, there is no provision for it in the Code and the Evidence Act, 1872. It is desirable that a test identification parade should be conducted as soon as possible after the arrest of the accused. This becomes necessary to eliminate the possibility of the accused being shown to the witnesses prior to the test identification parade. This is a very common plea of the accused and, therefore, the prosecution has to be cautious to ensure that there is no scope for making such allegation. If, however, circumstances are beyond control and there is some delay, it cannot be said to be fatal to the prosecution.

46. In Subash v. State of U.P. [(1987) 3 SCC 331: 1987 SCC (Cri) 573] the parade was held about three weeks after the arrest of the accused. Therefore, there was some room for doubt if the delay was in order to enable the identifying witnesses to see him in jail premises or police lock-up and thus make a note of his features. Moreover, four months had elapsed between the date of occurrence and the date of holding of the test identification parade. The descriptive particulars of the appellant were not given when the report was lodged, but while deposing before the Sessions Judge, the witnesses said that the accused was a tall person with shallow (sic sallow) complexion. The Court noted that if on account of these features the witnesses were able to identify the appellant Shiv Shankar at the identification parade, they would have certainly mentioned about them at the earliest point of time when his face was fresh in their memory.

47. It is important to note that since the conviction of the accused was based only on the identification at the test identification parade, the Court in Subash case [(1987) 3 SCC 331: 1987 SCC (Cri) 573] gave him the benefit of doubt while upholding the conviction of the co-accused. This is also a case where the conviction of the appellant was based solely on the evidence of identification. There being a delay in holding the test identification parade and in the absence of corroborative evidence, this Court found it unsafe to uphold his conviction."

28. In the context of the idea behind holding a TI Parade, it was held by the Supreme Court in Prakash v. State of Karnataka, (2014) 12 SCC 133:

"15. An identification parade is not mandatory [Ravi Kapur v. State of Rajasthan, (2012) 9 SCC 284: (2012) 4 SCC (Civ) 660: (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 1107] nor can it be claimed by the suspect as a matter of right. [R. Shaji v. State of Kerala, (2013) 14 SCC 266: (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 185] The purpose of pre-trial identification evidence is to assure the investigating agency that the investigation is going on in the right direction and to provide corroboration of the evidence to be given by the witness or victim later in court at the trial. [Rameshwar Singh v. State of J&K, (1971) 2 SCC 715: 1971 SCC (Cri) 638] If the suspect is a complete stranger to the witness or victim, then an identification parade is desirable [Mulla v. State of U.P., (2010) 3 SCC 508: (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 1150; Kishore Chand v. State of H.P., (1991) 1 SCC 286: 1991 SCC (Cri) 172] unless the suspect has been seen by the witness or victim for some length of time. [State of U.P. v. Boota Singh, (1979) 1 SCC 31: 1979 SCC (Cri) 115] In Malkhansingh v. State of M.P. [(2003) 5 SCC 746: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1247] it was held: (SCC pp. 751-52, para 7)

"7. - The identification parades belong to the stage of investigation, and there is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure which obliges the investigating agency to hold, or confers a right upon the accused to claim a test identification parade. They do not constitute substantive evidence and these parades are essentially governed by Section 162 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Failure to hold a test identification parade would not make inadmissible the evidence of identification in court. The weight to be attached to such identification should be a matter for the courts of fact.'

16. However, if the suspect is known to the witness or victim [Jadunath Singh v. State of U.P., (1970) 3 SCC 518: 1971 SCC (Cri) 124] or they have been shown a photograph of the suspect or the suspect has been exposed to the public by the media [R. Shaji v. State of Kerala, (2013) 14 SCC 266: (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 185] no identification evidence is necessary. Even so, the failure of a victim or a witness to identify a suspect is not always fatal to the case of the prosecution. In Visveswaran v. State [(2003) 6 SCC 73: 2003 SCC (Cri) 1270] it was held: (SCC p. 78, para 11)

"11. The identification of the accused either in a test identification parade or in court is not a sine qua non in every case if from the circumstances the guilt is otherwise established. Many a time, crimes are committed under the cover of darkness when none is able to identify the accused. The commission of a crime can be proved also by circumstantial evidence."

29. There is absolutely no quarrel on facts that neither PW-1 nor PW-2 knew the appellants beforehand. To believe, therefore, that at a time when darkness had overtaken and the two witnesses arrived soon after the event, and the offenders, making good their escape, had moved away few paces from the place of occurrence, the witnesses could have identified them from a backside vantage, is too strained logic to accept. There is no basis in the entire testimony of these witnesses to accept the fact that they could indeed identify the appellants as the assassins. So far as PW-1 is concerned, a TI Parade if held with identification that was considered good, some assurances might have been lent to the dock identification. So far as PW-2 is concerned, even that would not have helped the prosecution, since it has come in his cross-examination that he identified the appellants at the police station on 11.12.2007, after they were arrested. Whichever way the evidence as a whole is looked at, it is difficult to accept that these two witnesses, based on their re-collection of the moments of crime when they virtually saw nothing, could have identified these strangers in the dock. We, thus, hold that the appellants were not identified by any of the witnesses, who are said by the prosecution to have most closely seen them committing the evil deed.

30. We would now advert to the fact how the appellants came to be connected to the present crime. As it appears from the record, the name of the appellants did not come to light until statement of Neeraj Gupta @ Lalaiya was recorded by the Police, who is said to have disclosed the appellants' name, besides that of the absconding accused Guddu Musalman. This witness, Neeraj Gupta @ Lalaiya, worked as a salesman on a bhang shop, located near the Mainpuri Roadways Bus Stand owned by a certain Anil Gupta, popularly called Netaji. The Police have recorded statements of Neeraj Gupta @ Lalaiya, where he is said to have told the Police that on 03.10.2007 at about 9.45 p.m., Dileep @ Dalda, Sunil and Guddu Musalman, came over to this witness and said that they had murdered Javed son of Jabbar Husain for the lucre of money that they would get because they had heard that the victim went about carrying a lot of money on him, but on one hand, they did not get the money, and on the other, committed murder. There are other statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. attributed to Neeraj Gupta @ Lalaiya, all of which point to the appellants, besides the absconding accused, as the perpetrators of the crime.

31. Interestingly, this witness was examined by the prosecution as PW-10 and he turned utterly hostile, disowning all the statements made to the Police. The disowned statements, though put to the witness in the witness-box, were not distinctively marked by any symbols or letters, and upon their denial by the witness, never required to be proved by the Investigating Officer, who had recorded these statements. It was through this kind of an apparently made up introduction of the appellants' name that they were put in the dock as the accused. The statement of this witness under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Investigating Officer, PW-9, Daya Shankar Singh, on 07.11.2007, as would appear from his examination-in-chief. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer went about raiding places, seeking to arrest the appellants and the absconding accused. He also obtained processes under Section 82 Cr.P.C. The processes under Section 82 Cr.P.C. were served on the appellants and the absconding accused by pasting it on their premises on 03.12.2007. In a surprising turn of events on 11.12.2007, the appellants Dileep @ Dalda and Sunil were engaged in an encounter by the Special Operations Group, headed by its In-charge Nanhe Lal Yada and his companion policemen, who arrested them along with weapons. The appellants, after they were arrested by the S.O.G., confessed to the present crime.

32. We have already held that the two witnesses of res gestae, to wit, PW-1 and PW-2, never saw the assailants and the identification of the appellants by these two witnesses in the dock is far from acceptable. Taking the totality of circumstances into consideration and the evidence, on the basis of which the appellants have been connected to the crime, it leaves us in no manner of doubt that they have been falsely implicated by the Police in order to show a working out of the case, perhaps for public consumption or other motivation, best known to the police officers involved. The witness, on whose statements the appellants were implicated, went so utterly hostile in the witness-box with no proof of his earlier statement being even attempted by the Police that all statements, on the foot of which the names of the appellants were introduced, readily as the accused in this case, have to be regarded as concoctions by the Police and a frame up for the appellants. We would come back to the testimony of PW-10, the hostile witness, and the Investigating Officer, PW-9, later in the course of this judgment. We hold, therefore, that the very connection of the appellants with the crime in this case by the Police and on the evidence offered stands to be rejected outright.

33. The prosecution have put forward two different stories to propound the complicity of the appellants in the crime along with Guddu Musalman. We are aware of the fact that this case is sought to be established as one of direct evidence, and in a case of direct evidence, motive has a scanty role; hardly of any significance for the defence. But, what we cannot disregard is the fact that though this case has been endeavoured to be established as one of direct evidence, in fact, it is not at all the case. There is absolutely no eye-witness to the occurrence and the closest men, who have seen it, are no more that witnesses of res gestae, who arrived at the scene of crime soon after its accomplishment; may be moments later. The case would, therefore, remain in its essence a case that is one essentially of circumstantial evidence and has to be proved by the prosecution and judged by the Court as one. Therefore, motive, as a circumstance in the chain, cannot be discounted.

34. Now, the Police, very feebly and by inadmissible evidence, have endeavoured to prove that the appellants, along with the absconding accused, attempted to rob the deceased of his money and ended up murdering him. They have also put forward a completely different motive for the accused to commit the crime. This motive came from the prosecution propounding contract killing, where the appellants were the contract killers. About this motive, the prosecution have led evidence as well. They have examined PW-4 and PW-5, to wit, Sharafat Ali and Shahid Ali, respectively. We must note here that the testimony of PW-4 and PW-5 was not produced by the prosecution to explain the motive of the crime alone, but also prove the complicity of the appellants and the conspiracy of their masters, who hired them to kill Javed, that is to say, Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad. By this theory, that the prosecution propounded to explain the appellants' complicity, the two men who hired them to kill, Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad, would also be guilty by conspiracy.

35. We would soon advert to the testimony of PW-4 and PW-5, but before we do that we must notice how Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad escaped being arraigned and tried. The Police, who came up with this story of the appellants acting at the behest of Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad as hired killers to commit the crime, somehow did not charge-sheet these masterminds. Apparently, after the testimony of PW-1, PW-2, PW-3, and particularly PW-4 and PW-5 as also PW-6, was heard, an application made on behalf of the informant Mohd. Abid under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to summon Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad as accused to face trial. This application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was rejected by the learned Additional Sessions Judge vide order dated 23.05.2016. The order of the Trial Judge was questioned before this Court in Criminal Revision No. 2599 of 2016, again by Mohd. Abid, but this revision too failed and was dismissed vide order dated 01.08.2018. This order has apparently attained finality and was not further questioned before the Supreme Court, as far as we are informed and the records show.

36. Now, to turn to the testimony of PW-4, Sharafat Ali, through whose mouth, the appellants' involvement was sought to be proven by the prosecution as contract killers. PW-4 has testified in his examination-in-chief:

"मोहम्मद जावेद @ गुड्डू मेरे दामाद लियाकत अली के भान्जे थे जिनकी हत्या हो गई थी। मेरे दामाद लियाकत अली तीन भाई है। जिनमे मकसूद अहमद उनसे बड़े नफीसुल हसन है। मेरे दामाद लियाकत अली जमालपुर अलीगढ़ में रहते है। और उनके बड़े भाई नफीशुल हसन मेहमूद नगर मैनपुरी में रहते है। मेरा रिश्तेदारी होने के कारण जव्वार हुसैन के घर आना जाना है। दिनांक 30-9-2007 को मै जब्बार हुसैन के घर मोहल्ला मेहमूद नगर मे अपने लड़के दिलशाद के साले साहिद की बहन के लिए लड़का देखने आये थे और रात मे मै जब्बार हुसैन के घर रूके थे। और दूसरे दिन 01-10-2007 को मैं अपने दामाद के बड़े भाई नफीशुल हसन के घर सुबह गया था। इसके बाद उसी दिन लगभग 9.00 बजे दिन मै और शाहिद हवीव अहमद व रफीक अहमद के मकान पर पहुँचे। ये दोनो जब्बार हुसैन के बड़े भाई है। इसलिए रिश्तेदारी होने के कारण मैं वहां गया था मैं जाकर उनकी बैठक में शाहिद के साथ बैठा था। मेरे पहुँचने से पहले उनकी बैठक में हवीव अहमद, रफीक अहमद व अन्य तीन लोग और बैठे थे। मेरे पहुँचने पर रफीक अहमद व हबीब अहमद से दुआ सलाम हुई। उन्होने मुझसे मेरी खैरियत मालूम की। इसके बाद रफीक अहमद चाय की कह कर अन्दर जाने लगे तो मैने कहा मेरा रोजा है मैं चाय नही पीऊँगा। इस पर रफीक अहमद अन्दर चले गये। अन्दर से जब वह बाहर निकल कर आये (रफीक अहमद) तो वह पाँच पाँच सौ रूपये के नोटो की गड्डी लेकर इन आये। गुड्डी हबीब अहमद के हाथ में देते हुए कहा कि इन लोगो को जाने दो रिश्तेदारो से बैठकर बात करेगे। हबीब अहमद ने वह गड्डी डालडा नाम के व्यक्ति को देते हुए कहा कि ये पैसे को तुम्हे जावेद का काम करना है। बकाया पैसा काम करने के बाद मिल जायेगा। इसके बाद तीनो लोग रूपया लेकर चले गये। जावेद को मैं गुड्डू के नाम से जानता था। इसलिए मैंने कोई शक नहीं किया। गुड्डू की हत्या के बाद उसके बीसवे फाथा की सूचना मुझे खत द्वारा मालूम हुई। तो मैं 21-10-2007 को गुड्डू के खर्वे? फाथा में शिरकत करने के लिए मैनपुरी आया। तब वहाँ मुझे यह जानकारी हुई कि गुड्डू का असली नाम जावेद है। तव मुझे रफीक के घर हुई रूपये के लेनदेन की जानकारी हुई कि गुड्डू @ जावेद की हत्या रूपया देकर कराई है। अब मुझे अभि० डालडा के अलावा अभियुक्त सुनील, एक गुड्डू मुसलमान है जिनसे हत्या कराई गई है। तब गुड्डू के फाथा के दिन सारी उपरोक्त बात जब्बार हुसैन व उनके लड़को को बताई थी।"

37. In his cross-examination, this witness has said:

"मैं 30-9-2007 को जब्बार हुसैन के घर रूका था। सुबह मैं अपने दामाद के भाई के घर गया था। उनके घर मैं लगभग आधे घण्टे तक रूका था। वहाँ से मैं रफीक अहमद व हवीव अहमद के घर सुबह 9.00 बजे गया था। करीब आधा घण्टा बैठा था। रूपयो की एक गड्डी थी मैने रूपये नही गिने थे कि कितने रूपये थे। उनकी कोठी में 3 अज्ञात व्यक्ति बैठे थे उनको पहले से नही जानता उसी दिन देखा था। नोटो की गड्डी देने के बाद में आधे घण्टा और रूका था। नोटो की

38. To the same effect is the testimony of PW-5 Shahid Ali. Both these witnesses are not directly related to the parties, that is to say, Jabbar Husain or his brothers, but have propounded a case for the prosecution that Jabbar Husain, on one hand, and his brothers Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad, on the other, were estranged on account of property disputes, regarding which litigations were pending between them. This fact too has figured in the cross-examination of this witness, where he says:

"मुझे मनमुटाव आपस में भाईयो मे होने वाली बात मुझे जब्बार हुसैन ने कभी नहीं बताई।"

39. The testimony of PW-4 and PW-5 is so incredible that we are minded to reject it with all the contempt it deserves. Incredible, we say, because it is unheard of in human affairs that a man, or may be two or more of them, who hire killers, would not pay them in the presence of others, and that too accompanied by words divulging their plans. No man, in possession of his good sense, would do that and to believe PW-4 and PW-5 that Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad did it, is to accept the absurdity of the highest order. Such conspiracies and evil contracts are hatched in darkness and accomplished in secrecy. They are not announced even to the walls, let alone human ears. This story, therefore, propounded by the prosecution, different from the motive that the Police cited for the appellants, along with the absconding co-accused Guddu Musalman, to commit the crime, that is to say, going after the deceased's money and intending to rob him, but ending up killing him, is more absurd than the police version figuring in the investigation papers. The police version is also absurd because the corpus delicti shows that there was no attempt to rob the deceased, but a case of murder, plain and simple. The deceased was targeted and killed at his gate, according to the witnesses of res gestae, to wit, PW-1 and PW-2.

40. But, this does not end the chapter about the motive for the appellants to kill the deceased. PW-3 Jabbar Husain, who is the father of the deceased and a brother of Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad, has given minute details of their business even before their father's death in the year 1978. He has given graphic details of strife in the family over division of property between the brothers, and particularly threats that came to pass on 21.08.1992 and 12.11.1992, when Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad, along with goons, had entered his premises and threatened to wipe out the entire family and ultimately made him sign documents, parting with his interest in favour of Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad unfairly. It is also figured in the examination-in-chief of this witness that these facts were reported to the Superintendent of Police and the Collector as also the Home Minister, but to no avail. After his children were born and the eldest son, the deceased Mohd. Javed grew up, he would ask Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad, his father's brothers, to return what was forcibly taken away from his father. It is said in the examination-in-chief that fearing that they might have to part with money to settle matters of property, Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad hired the appellants and the absconding co-accused Guddu Musalman to eliminate Javed. It is said in the testimony further that the conspiracy fructified on 03.10.2007, when Javed after closing shop arrived at his gate and sounded the horn, his younger brother Mohd. Abid and Mohd. Aqil went to open the gate and when they arrived there, the appellants along with Guddu Musalman, riding a motorcycle, shot him to death from the rear side and escaped on the motorcycle they were riding. He then narrates how on the occasion of the 20th day ceremony, Sharafat Ali and Shahid Ali, his relatives, told him how Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad paid money to the appellants in the presence of these men, telling the appellant Dileep @ Dalda that he had to finish off Mohd. Javed. These matters were then brought to the notice of the Superintendent of Police and the Circle Officer, City as also the Chief Minister and the Home Minister, but all to no avail. In his cross-examination, this witness after sticking to his stand about the history of the dispute and the earlier threat to his life and security from Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad has stated in his cross-examination:

"यह मोटर साइकिल मेरे मृतक पुत्र जावेद के नाम थी। बजाज कम्पनी की थी प्लेटिना तथा काली महरुम कलर की थी। घटना से करीब छः माह पहले खरीदी थी अपने दोस्त से। गुड्डू मुसलमान इस केस में अभी तक हाजिर नहीं हुआ है। मैं मौके पर नहीं था इसलिए मैं "उसी समय दिलीप उर्फ डाल्डा, गुड्डू मुसलमान व सुनील जो कि मोटर साइकिल सवार थे ने पीछे से दो फायर किये जिससे मोहम्मद जावेद की मृत्यु हो गई।" यह सुनी सुनाई बात बता रहा हूँ। मैने घटना होते व मुल्जिमानो को नहीं देखा। रफीक अहमद व हबीब अहमद के घर से दिलीप उर्फ डालडा की ननिहला लगभग 50 कदम की दूरी पर उसी गली में पश्चिम दिशा में है। दिलीप के नाना का नाम राधे पांडे था।

41. In his cross-examination, this witness makes it vivid that he is not an eye-witness of any kind; not even a witness of res gestae. All that he has said about the occurrence or the fact of the money being paid to eliminate the deceased by Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad, is all based on hearsay. His testimony is relevant only about the fact that there were property disputes in the past between the brothers and there was a case of threat and violence to eliminate the family long back in the year 1992. There is also mention of the motive in presenti in terms that since the deceased was demanding back properties that were snatched away from the hands of PW-3, their father, this witness felt that this served as the motivation for his brothers Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad to get the deceased eliminated, hiring the services of the appellants and the absconding co-accused. But, a wholesome reading of this part of the assertion about the motive except for the fact that long back in the past, there were property disputes, and may be threatened violence, is all based on hearsay and conjecture. There is no evidence aliunde in the sense of a relevant circumstance to connect Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad to the crime, and a fortiori the appellants. It is for this obvious reason that Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad were never charge-sheeted, and the effort of the first informant to get them summoned during trial, after substantial evidence was heard, failed.

42. We are minded to think that the story about hiring of professional shooters by Habib Ahmad and Rafiq Ahmad could have emerged from the depths of familial animosity between the brothers referable to their property disputes of the past, but connecting the appellants to the crime during investigation, when no such story had surfaced before the Police, was a fabrication and concoction of the Police themselves. At that time, therefore, they assigned for the motive of crime the appellants' intention to rob the deceased of his money, which he was reputed to be carrying around. This story, connecting the appellants to the crime, was fabricated by the Police by putting words into the mouth of PW-10, Neeraj Gupta @ Lalaiya, who during his cross-examination went utterly hostile. We again notice that when his previous statement to the Police were put to this witness and denied, the Police never mustered courage of asking the Investigating Officer, who had recorded these statements, to enter the witness-box and prove the statements, which PW-10 denied as never having been made by him.

43. We must briefly take note of the testimony of PW-6 Mohd. Imran, another brother of the deceased. He is a witness of the inquest and has fairly stated in his cross-examination that he never saw the occurrence. His testimony, therefore, does not carry much value or worth.

44. PW-7 Ram Sharan Singh is a Sub-Inspector of Police, who was posted at the relevant at P.S. Kotwali, Mainpuri. He held the inquest and drew up the inquest report. He is a formal witness, who has proved the inquest report. He has also proved some other formal documents.

45. PW-8 is Dr. K.C. Bhardwaj, who is the autopsy doctor. He has testified to a single entry wound in the back with blackening around it and margins inverted, and another wound semi-torn towards the chest, below the fourth rib. The fourth rib was found fractured. The bullet was lodged there. Apparently, the bullet did not exit the body. The doctor opined that death was caused as a result of the gunshot wound, leading to excessive bleeding. He has proved the autopsy report, already noticed to be marked Ex. Ka-9. There is nothing remarkable in his testimony either.

46. PW-11 Ramesh Singh Rathore is the Inspector of Police, who was posted as the Station Officer Kotwali, Mainpuri at the relevant time. He was the first Investigating Officer of the case. A perusal of his testimony shows that he took initial steps of investigation as his examination-in-chief would show. In his cross-examination, at the instance of the appellants, he has stated:

"जिला मैनपुरी में करीब एक साल तैनात रहा है सही अदांज नही है। घटना की रिपोर्ट अज्ञात में दर्ज हुयी थी। मुझे नही पता कि मुलजिमान दिलीप, प्यारेलाल व सुनील का नाम कब घटना मे कितने दिन बाद आया। मेरे सामने तक नाम पता नही चले थे। मैंने किसी मुलजिमान की गिरफ्तारी नही की थी।"

47. This testimony of the first Investigating Officer also points to the conjuring up of the appellants' name and connecting it to the crime, putting words in the mouth of Neeraj Gupta @ Lalaiya, who disowned making any statement to the Police ever. The manipulation apparently happened after the next Investigating Officer, that is to say, PW-9 Daya Shankar Singh took over investigation. There is something noteworthy which we cannot spare unnoticed. Admittedly, Guddu Musalman, the third co-accused was never apprehended or tried. To all appearances, he became an absconder and a fugitive.

48. So far as the statements of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. are concerned, we notice that apart from offering a denial to the incriminating circumstances and saying that the appellants have been falsely implicated, there is no definitive explanation offered. The three defence witnesses have more or less testified to the good character of the appellants and their testimony is not of much assistance to the appellants on its own force.

49. There is one fact, which deserves particular mention. What we notice is that there is no evidence aliunde appearing against the appellants, connecting them to the crime, like recovery of any incriminating evidence at their pointing, say the weapon of crime, that would be admissible under Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act. The entire edifice of the prosecution case is demonstrably built on conjecture and cannot substantiate the charge brought against the appellants in the least measure.

50. In the totality of circumstances, we are of opinion that the prosecution have miserably failed to prove the charges against both the appellants and the learned Trial Judge went wrong in convicting them of the offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC.

51. In the result, these appeals succeed and are allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction dated 28.01.2020 and the order of sentence dated 30.01.2020 passed by the Special Judge (E.C. Act), Mainpuri in Sessions Trial No. 700151 of 2008 is hereby set aside and the appellants acquitted. The appellants are on bail. They need not surrender. Their bail bonds are cancelled and the sureties discharged.

52. The appellants shall execute a personal bond in the sum of Rs.25,000/- each under Section 481 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (corresponding to Section 437-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973) for their appearance, in the event of an appeal being preferred against their acquittal.

53. Let the lower court records be returned.

Judgment and order dated 04.10.1989 passed by the 1st Additional Sessions Judge, Etawah, in Sessions Trial No. 190 of 1988 (State Vs Chandra Bhan) connected with Session Trial No. 256 of 1988 (State vs. Jairam) arising out of Case Crime No. 101 of 1988, Police Station Kotwali, District Etawah.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Harish Chandra Shukla, assisted by Shri Adesh Pal,
Counsel for Respondent(s): Ms. Archana Singh, A.G.A.-I

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Ajay Kumar-II, J.)

1. Heard Sri Harish Chandra Shukla, advocate assisted by Sri Adesh Pal, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Vikas Goswami, learned AGA for the State.

2. Challenge in this criminal appeal is to the judgment dated 04.10.1989 passed by Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Etawah in Sessions Trial No. 190 of 1988 (State Vs. Chandra Bhan) connected with Session Trial No. 256 of 1988 (State vs. Jairam) arising out of Case Crime No. 101 of 1988, under Sections 302 IPC and Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station-Kotwali, District Etawah, whereby learned trial Court has convicted the accused- appellants Jairam and Chandra Bhan for the offence under Sections 304-B, 498-A IPC and sentenced each to undergo rigorous imprisonment for life under Section 304-B IPC and three years rigorous imprisonment under Section 498-A IPC. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

3. The present appeal has been filed by accused- convicts Chandra Bhan and Jairam. Accused Chandra Bhan and Jairam were separately tried in Sessions Trial No. 190 of 1988 and Sessions Trial No. 256 of 1988, and both were convicted by a common judgment dated 04.10.1989. During pendency of this criminal appeal, appellant no. 2 Jairam died and this appeal already stands abated against the appellant no. 2 Jairam vide this Court's order dated 16.10.2025. Now this appeal is being heard and disposed of for surviving appellant no. 1 namely Chandra Bhan.

4. Brief facts of the case are that first informant Sri Mahesh Chandra, (father of the deceased Munni Devi) had got lodged FIR on 01.03.1988 at 5:45 am against the appellant- accused Chandra Bhan and three others on the ground that the marriage of his daughter Munni Devi was performed with the accused Chandra Bhan son of Badri Prasad resident of village Sakuva, Etawah about 8-9 months ago. He could not give Scooter in the dowry at the time of marriage of his daughter, hence the accused Chandra Bhan and his family members used to harass his daughter. Chandra Bhan visited their residence in October, 1987 with his daughter, then his daughter told him that her in-laws used to physically torture her for not giving Scooter and also used to state that either a Scooter be given or Rs. 10,000/- cash be given else she will face dire consequences. On 29.02.1988, he has received information that his daughter Munni Devi was burnt, thus, he came to Etawah at Mohalla Madhaiyan Khayaliram, Etawah city and it came to his knowledge that his daughter was burnt to death. Sri Shiv Singh, Din Dayal and other persons of the said locality informed him that his daughter has died in Sadar Hospital due to said reason. His daughter was burnt to death by the accused- appellants including the wife of Sri Prabhu Dayal and Badri Prasad, who were residing at the time of the incident in a rented house in Mohalla Khayaliram due to non fulfillment of demand of dowry.

5. In view of above, Sri Mahesh Chandra, first informant has submitted a written report (Ext.Ka-2) at P.S. Kotwali, District Etawah alleging therein that the accused- appellants and two others have committed dowry death of his daughter. On the aforementioned written information of the first informant, an FIR was registered on 29.02.1988 as Case Crime No. 101 of 1988, under Section 302 IPC, Police Station- Kotwali, District Etawah.

6. After completion of investigation, charge-sheet was submitted against appellants. Thereafter, cognizance was taken upon same and the case was committed to the Court of Sessions. After hearing both the parties, charges were framed under Sections 498A, 304-B IPC against appellants on 01.02.1989.

7. In order to prove it's case, the prosecution adduced PW-1 Mahesh Chandra (informant and father of deceased), PW-2 Smt. Vimla Devi (mother of deceased), PW-3 Head constable Sri Bhola Prasad Pal (chik writer), PW-4 Dr. S.C. 8. After completion of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused persons were recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. They denied the prosecution version and commission of alleged offence. The accused also claimed their innocence. They stated that prosecution witnesses have given false evidence against them.

9. By the impugned judgment dated 04.10.1989, trial Court convicted and sentenced the accused- appellants Chandra Bhan and Jairam of the charges under Sections 498-A and 304-B IPC.

Feeling aggrieved by the said judgment, present appeal has been preferred by the appellants-convicts.

10. Learned counsel for appellant submits that the impugned judgment is illegal, erroneous and, therefore, liable to be set-aside by this Court. He further submits that Court below without appreciating the prosecution evidence has illegally and erroneously, convicted him of the charges. As such, the impugned judgment is illegal and perverse and therefore liable to be set-aside by this Court.

11. It has been argued by the learned counsel for appellant that the prosecution has failed to prove the very story, which, it set out to prove. The prosecution story is based solely on the allegation that the deceased was harassed on account of non fulfillment of additional demand of dowry, but after appreciation of evidence of PW-1 and PW-2, there is no evidence that the alleged Scooter/ amount was ever demanded and no specific instance regarding cruelty coupled with persistent harassment was brought on record, there was no harassment of the deceased on account of non fulfillment of additional demand of dowry soon before death and prosecution has failed to prove the essential ingredients of Section 304-B IPC, therefore, the trial court has wrongly convicted the appellant and as such, the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside by this Court.

12. Learned A.G.A. for State has vehemently opposed the present appeal. He submits that the impugned judgment passed by Court below does not suffer from any illegality of law or fact much less an illegal error so as to warrant interference by this Court. Court below has examined the prosecution case in the light of the evidence on record threadbare without leaving any aspect of the matter untouched. Court below has thus, rightly convicted the accused persons. Lastly, it has been argued that no ground to interfere in the impugned judgment is made out. Learned A.G.A. thus urged for dismissal of the present appeal.

13. In the light of above arguments, following questions arise for consideration in present appeal:-

(I) Whether the prosecution has been able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that cruelty or harassment to the deceased was committed in connection with any demand for dowry as contemplated under Sections 498-A and 304-B IPC?.

(II) Whether the prosecution could be able to prove it's case against the appellant-convict beyond reasonable doubt?.

ORAL EVIDENCE ON RECORD

14. PW-1, who is father of the deceased Munni Devi, has stated in his examination-in-chief that Munni Devi was his daughter. About more than a year ago, he was informed by someone that his daughter Munni Devi has been burnt at her in-laws' house in Madhaiyan Khayaliram. He had married Munni Devi to Chandra Bhan. The accused Jairam is brother-in-law (Jeth) of Munni Devi. At the time of the incident, Munni's brother-in-law Jairam, sister-in-law Sunita and father-in-law

Badri Prasad resided at her in-laws' house. Munni Devi was married 8-9 months before the incident. After the marriage, Chandra Bhan, Sunita and Jairam had demanded a Scooter. When he was unable to fulfill their demand, they started beating his daughter and accusing her. These persons also said that if you cannot give a Scooter, then give Rs. 10,000/-. All these things were told by his daughter Munni Devi. A letter written by his daughter was received by him through post office, which was produced and proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-1. His daughter had studied till 4th grade. Upon receiving information about this incident, he went to Madhaiyan Khayaliram. where, Shiv Singh and Deen Dayal told that your daughter has been burnt to death.

15. PW-1 in his cross-examination has stated that Badri Prasad is his Samadhi (father-in-law of his daughter). He is 70-80 years old. He is a resident of village Sabuan, police station Jaswant Nagar. He had five sons, out of which one has died and four are alive. The son who died was named Prabhudayal. He was Supply Inspector. Now his wife and three children are alive. His wife's name is Prago alias Sunita. After her husband's death, she got Chandra Bhan appointed in the supply office in place of his brother (i.e. husband of Sunita). Prabhudayal was elder brother of Chandra Bhan, whose residence is situated in Shanti Colony at Mainpuri Road. His son-in-law, Chandra Bhan was living with his daughter in a rented house situated at Mohalla Madhaiyan Khayaliram in Etawah City. Prabhudayal's house and Chandra Bhan's rented house are about a mile apart. His daughter's marriage with Chandra Bhan was arranged by Maniram, who is brother-in-law of Prabhudayal's wife. It was Chandra Bhan's first marriage. No dowry was fixed at the time of marriage. His daughter visited his house two or three times after the marriage and Chandra Bhan also used to visit. His daughter also sent letters to him. His daughter never wrote to him in any letter that her husband was demanding a Scooter. This witness himself stated that his daughter had told him about this verbally. She also didn't mention the demand for ten thousand rupees and a watch in any letter.

16. PW-1 further stated in his cross-examination that Chandra Bhan sent a letter to his daughter when she was at her parents' home. In the said letter also there was no demands for a Scooter or money or a watch. When this incident occurred, a boy from Madhaiyan Khayaliram came to inform him. He didn't ask him who had sent him. He doesn't know the boy's name. He told him that Munni Devi's in-laws had set her on fire and burnt her. They had poured kerosene on her. At that time, the boy didn't reveal any names. He told him that he had left Munni at home. The boy arrived at his place around 10-11 pm. It takes him 2- 2.5 hours to reach Etawah from his place. Upon receiving the information, Harischandra, Suresh Chandra and he left for Etawah. They came by jeep; the fourth man was the driver. After reaching Etawah, he first reached Madhaiyan Khayaliram. It was 5:20 in the morning. He met Shiv Singh and Deen Dayal at Madhaiyan Khayaliram. He spoke to these two. There were other people as well. They told him that Chandra Bhan, Jairam, Sunita alias Prago, and Badri Prasad had killed his daughter by pouring kerosene on her. This conversation took 2-3 minutes. He was told that the girl was at Madhaiyan Khayaliram. Shiv Singh and Deen Dayal told him at the same time that the girl was in the hospital. He did not go to the hospital at that time. He reached the hospital at 6.30 in the morning. He reached the hospital after filing the report. His wife had come to Etawah at 6.30-7 in the morning and 2-4 women were with her. His daughter already died at that time.

17. In the written report, Ext. Ka-2, there is no mention of burning by pouring kerosene oil, however, he (PW-1) cannot give any reason for this. In the written report/ Ext. Ka-2, the names of Prago alias Sunita and Badri Prasad are not mentioned among those who set the fire, he cannot give any reason for this. When he went to the police station with his written report, witness Shiv Singh was not with him. While filling the Panchayatnama, Harischandra, Vidyaram, he and there may be others too whose names he does not know, were present. He does not remember whether his signature was obtained on the Panchayatnama or not. Only two witnesses Harischandra and Vidyaram from the place where he lived, were present at the time of Panchayatnama. No one else was from his place, they must be from Etawah. Chandra Bhan met him in the hospital. His hands were burnt, and his face was also burnt. It is wrong to say that he fabricated this case for blackmailing.

18. At this juncture, Ext. Ka-1 is perused. Ext. Ka-1 is letter dated 29.11.1987, which was written by the deceased to his father i.e. informant Mahesh Chandra PW-1. In this letter the deceased had stated that on 2nd day after the return of her father from her matrimonial home, her husband stayed in Shanti Colony and even slept there. The deceased waited whole night and when her husband did not return in the morning of next day, then she sent son of his landlord in the office of her husband, where her husband was present and he returned home in the evening. She asked her husband that if he has to go anywhere then she be informed, then he (her husband) stated that who is she to stop him, he will be visiting daily and will also be sleeping there. Her husband is daily visiting Shanti colony. She is writing letter at 10 PM and her husband had yet not returned from Shanti Colony. She even requested her husband that she be allowed to visit her parental home for a night but he has bluntly refused.

19. Perusal of this letter clearly reveals that the deceased was much depressed for the reason that her husband used to visit Shanti Colony nearly daily and also used to stay there in night. There is not an iota of inference in this letter that the deceased was being ever harassed on account of any dowry demand. In this letter the deceased has clearly written that except above mentioned fact rest everything is alright. It is thus crystal clear that the deceased had not written any fact regarding demand of Scooter or cash in lieu thereof. Therefore, as per this letter dated 29.11.1987, the deceased was not being harassed on account of any demand of dowry.

20. Smt. Vimla Devi PW-2 is mother of the deceased who in her examination in chief has stated that she had performed marriage of her daughter Munni Devi with accused Chandra Bhan. Sunita is sister-in-law (Jethani) of her daughter. Accused Jairam is brother-in-law (Jeth) of her daughter. Her daughter was burnt to death in her in-laws house. She (deceased) was married 8-9 months before this incident. When her daughter Munni Devi came to their house then she told her that her in-laws used to beat her and were demanding a Scooter. She (deceased) further told that if they cannot give a Scooter then accused were demanding Rs. 10,000/- in cash. We could not fulfill their demand. At the time of incident, accused Chandra Bhan, Jairam and Sunita were residing with her daughter in one common house.

21. In her cross examination PW-2 stated that one man from Etawah came at her house at 11pm, who told that her daughter had been burnt to death. Said person also told that Jairam, Chandra Bhan, Badri Prasad and Sunita had burnt her daughter. It was also told that her daughter was burnt at 5:00 pm by pouring kerosene oil on her. It was also informed that her daughter was admitted in the hospital. She does not know who went to Etawah on this information because she was ill. She was suffering from fever and was feeling extreme weakness for the last 5-6 days. She was very weak and her fever returned for 4-6 days. Her husband told everything after returning. She stayed at her house and continued her treatment. Her husband returned after 2 days from Etawah. Whenever her daughter came to their house, she used to tell her that accused Chandra Bhan mostly stayed with his sister-in-law (Bhabhi) and sleeps there and rarely sleeps with her (deceased). Her daughter was absolutely convinced that her husband was having illicit relation with her sister-in-law Sunita. Her daughter used to tell this fact whenever she came to their house and also used to write the same to her. Sister-in-law (Bhabhi of accused Chandra Bhan) was living in Shanti Colony with her children and also sleeps at the same place, where Chandra Bhan also used to sleep there.

22. PW-1 stated that his wife come to Etawah at 6:30 ' 7:00 am alongwith 2-4 women. Mother of deceased Smt. Vimla Devi PW-2 in her deposition has stated that she does not know who went to Etawah on receiving information that her daughter was burnt at 5am by pouring kerosene oil on her. She further stated that she was suffering from fever and remained at her house and continued her treatment, her husband returned after 2 days from Etawah. Thus it is clear that PW-2 had not gone to Etawah.

23. From the deposition of this witness it is clear that the deceased was convinced that her husband (appellant Chandra Bhan) was having illicit relation with his sister-in-law/ Bhabhi Sunita and the deceased used to tell this fact whenever she visited her parental home. The letter dated 29.11.1987 further corroborates this part of deposition of this witness, however except a general and vague allegation regarding demand of Scooter or Rs. 10,000/- in cash and beating the deceased for this demand, no specific instance of cruelty has been narrated by this witness in her whole deposition.

24. Head constable Bhola Prasad PW-3 is a formal witness, who was scribe of the FIR of Case Crime No. 101 of 1988, who on oath has stated that he recorded FIR (Ext. Ka-3). He also made an entry of FIR in GD No. 12 at 5:45 am on 1.3.1988, which GD entry has been proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-4.

25. Dr. S.C. Gupta, Medical Officer, District Hospital Etawah has been examined as PW-4. This witness in his deposition has stated that he examined Smt. Munni Devi wife of Chandra Bhan in Sadar hospital, Etawah and found that she was fit to give her dying declaration. He gave a certificate to this effect before recording her dying declaration, which certificate has been proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-5. The victim remained fully consciousness during her statement and he gave a certificate to this effect at the end of dying declaration which certificate has been proved by this witness as Ext. Ka-6. This witness also confirmed that aforesaid declaration bears thumb impression of the victim Munni Devi. In his cross examination this witness has stated that during victim's statement, her words were coming clearly. Victim's condition was serious at the time of recording of her statement. He cannot tell whether she was dying or not because a person who has been burnt 99% can die any time. He denied the suggestions that the victim was not fit for giving dying declaration.

26. Udaiveer Singh PW-5 in his deposition has stated that on 01.03.1988 he was posted as Tehsildar, Etawah. On the said day he received information in night from police petrol jeep that dying declaration of Munni Devi wife of Chandra Bhan is to be recorded in Sadar hospital, Etawah. He arrived there and contacted duty doctor who declared Smt. Munni Devi as mentally fit to give dying declaration. Thereafter, he recorded the dying declaration of the victim by asking her a question regarding her burning. Whatever was stated by Munni Devi he recorded the same as dying declaration of the victim. After recording her statement in his own handwriting and signature he took thumb impression of the victim. The victim told her that her sister-in-law (Jethani) and brother-in-law (Jeth) and Chandra Bhan have burnt her yesterday evening after pouring kerosene oil over her. At that time it was about 6:00 pm. Chandra Bhan used to stay 3 days with his sister-in-law (Bhabhi) and one day at their house. Her sister-in-law (Jethani) is a widow. After recording the aforesaid statement he narrated the same to the victim and got her thumb impression. He proved the dying declaration as Ext. Ka-7. In his cross examination he has stated that the victim was extensively burnt. Victim was in dying state but was speaking and her words were clear and audible. She was not speaking like a healthy person. Whatever she uttered, he wrote the same. He denied the defense suggestion that the dying declaration of the victim was recorded after her death on the direction of one leader Ram Nath.

27. Dying declaration (Ext. Ka-7) of the deceased is reproduced verbatim herein-below:-

"मुन्नी देवी पत्नी चन्द्रभान उम्र 22 वर्ष निवासी मेडैया खयालीराम ने आज जिला चिकित्सालय मे मरनासन्न अवस्था मे बयान दिया कि मुझे मेरी जेठानी सुनीता व जेठ जैराम व चन्द्रभान ने कल शाम को पांच लीटर मट्टी का तेल मेरे श्पर छिडक कर जला दिया है उस समय करीब 6 बजे शाम थी। चन्द्रभान तीन भौजाई के साथ व एक दिन घर पर रहता था। मेरी जेठानी विधवा है।"

English translation of aforesaid dying declaration is as under:-

"Munni Devi, wife of Chandrabhan, 22 years old, resident of Madiya Khayali Ram, stated today in dying state at the District Hospital that her sister-in-law (Jethani), Sunita and brother-in-law (Jeth) Jairam and Chandrabhan, poured five liters of kerosene oil on her and burnt her yesterday evening. It was around 6 p.m. Chandra Bhan with his sister-in-law (Bhabhi) 3 and 1 day resided at his house. Her sister-in-law (Jethani), Sunita, is a widow."

28. Dr. S.K. Srivastava PW-6 is autopsy surgeon who has conducted the post mortem examination of the deceased Munni Devi on 1.3.1988. Kotwali Etawah and entry of same was made in GD No. 54 at 7pm on 29.2.1988. The aforesaid GD has been proved by constable clerk Raj Kumar PW-10 as Ext. Ka-23 and on the same day, one memo regarding burnt condition of accused Chandra Bhan was also received at Police Station at 7:25 pm and entry of same was also made in GD which has been proved as Ext. 30. In his cross examination, PW-7 has stated that he also examined injuries of accused Chandra Bhan on that day at 7:00 pm and noted 'deep to superficial thermal burns on part of face, part of right knee joint, part of dorsum of left foot and part of left hand, total area of burn injuries was about 15%'. He also stated that Chandra Bhan could have sustained these injuries while saving or while pushing, his part of left and right hand was burnt.

31. Deputy Commandant Prem Prakash PW-8 was 2nd IO who in his deposition has stated that he took over the investigation himself on 10.3.1988 as he was posted at that time as CO City for the reason that it was dowry death. After recording post mortem report in the case diary he searched for other accused, however, they could not be traced, he also recorded discharge slip of accused Chandra Bhan in case diary. He recorded statement of constable who brought the dead body as well as statement of witnesses of inquest. He also recorded dying declaration of the deceased Munni Devi in case diary. Remaining accused could not be traced, therefore, he concluded the investigation and filed charge-sheet against the accused Chandra Bhan and Jairam. He proved charge-sheet filed against these accused as Ext. Ka-10 and 11. In his cross examination this witness has stated that accused Chandra Bhan was discharged from hospital on 15.3.1988 as per his discharge slip.

He deposited all recovered items in police Station Kotwali vide GD No. 37 at 3:40 pm on 2.3.1988. He received post mortem report of the deceased Munni Devi and arrested the accused Badri Prasad. He also recorded statement of some other persons on 3.3.1988. Thereafter, investigation was taken over by the Circle Officer. SI Ram Singh also went on the spot with this witness who conducted the inquest proceedings of the deceased Munni Devi. He proved the inquest report in secondary evidence as Ext. Ka-17, Chalan Nash as Ext. Ka-18, Sample Seal as Ext. Ka-19, Photo Nash as Ext. Ka-20, Letter to CMO as Ext. Ka-21, by identifying signature of Sub Inspector Ram Singh. He also proved the report signed by P.S. Srivastava, the then CO City which was sent to Superintendent, Copying Centre for recording of dying declaration in secondary evidence as Ext. Ka-22. For the delay in depositing the recovered articles this witness stated that as he recorded statement of other witnesses, inspected the spot, prepared recovery memos and thereafter copied the recovery memos in the case diary and that's why he could not deposit those articles on 1.3.1988.

33. Constable Raj Kumar Singh PW-10 in his deposition has stated that a memo from District Hospital, Etawah was received regarding recording of dying declaration of Munni Devi. NO DELAYED F.I.R.

34. A perusal of written report (Ext. Ka-2) reveals that the informant Mehesh Chandra PW-1 received information that his daughter Munni Devi was burnt on 29.2.1988 and on receiving this information, he came to the house of in-laws of his daughter, which was situated at Mohalla Madhaiya Khayaliram, Etawah. The informant Mahesh Chandra PW-1 has affirmed this fact as narrated in his written report, in his oral deposition. PW-1 in his cross examination has specifically stated that he came to Etawah by Jeep and he reached the house of in-laws of his daughter at 5:20 am, however, it has come in his deposition that he was informed by a number of persons that his daughter had been killed by pouring kerosene oil on her, however, he did not go to the hospital immediately at that time, but reached the hospital at 6:30 am after filing his report. The informant received information on 29.2.1988 at his residence and as per his deposition, he arrived at Etawah at 5:20 am on 30.2.1988, however, FIR has been promptly lodged on 1.3.1988 at 5:45 am, meaning thereby that there is no delay in registration of FIR.

Question No. 1.

Whether the prosecution has been able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that cruelty or harassment to the deceased was committed in connection with any demand for dowry as contemplated under Sections 498-A and 304-B IPC?.

35. While dealing with an appeal against conviction for dowry death, the Supreme Court in Karan Singh vs. State of Haryana, 2025 SCC OnLine 214, has observed as under:-

"5. Sections 498-A and 304-B IPC read thus:

"498-A IPC- Husband or relative of husband of a woman subjecting her to cruelty- however, being the husband or the relative of the husband of a woman, subjects such woman to cruelty shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, "cruelty" means

(a) any willful conduct which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to life, limb or health (whether mental or physical) of the woman; or

(b) harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand.

"304-B IPC- Dowry death- (1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.

Explanation- For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry" shall have the same meaning as in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

6. The following are the essential ingredients of Section 304-B IPC:

a) The death of a woman must have been caused by any burns or bodily injury, or must have occurred otherwise than under normal circumstances;

b) The death must have been caused within seven years of her marriage;

c) Soon before her death, she must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by the husband or any relative of her husband; and

d) Cruelty or harassment must be for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry.

7. If the aforesaid four ingredients are established, the death can be called a dowry death, and the husband and/or husband's relative, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have caused the dowry death. Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 provides that dowry means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given either directly or indirectly by one party to a marriage to the other party to the marriage or by the parents of either party to a marriage or by any other person, to the other party to the marriage or to any other person. The dowry must be given or agreed to be given at or before or any time after the marriage in connection with the marriage of the said parties. The term valuable security used in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 has the same meaning as in Section 304-B of IPC."

In this case Hon'ble Supreme Court also found that PW-6 has not deposed to any particular act of cruelty or harassment by the appellant, which was an essential ingredients of Section 304-B thus, offence was not made out from the evidence of PW-6.

36. While setting aside the judgment of conviction, it has also been observed in the above mentioned judgment that the presumption under Section 113-B of Indian Evidence Act, will apply when it is established that soon before her death, the woman was subjected to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry by the accused. Therefore, even for attracting Section 113-B, the prosecution must establish that the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment for or in connection with any demand of dowry soon before her death by the accused. Unless the said burden is discharged by the prosecution, the presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act cannot be invoked.

BASIC PROSECUTION STORY

37. The basic prosecution story as it emerges from the written report (Ext.Ka-2) is that the deceased Munni Devi was being harassed by her in-laws for additional demand of dowry. In-laws of the deceased were demanding either Scooter or Rs. 10,000/- and she was being harassed for non fulfilling this additional demand of dowry. When aforesaid demand of appellant was not fulfilled then she was burnt to death by pouring kerosene oil over her.

APPRECIATION OF EVIDENCE

38. To prove demand of additional dowry and harassment of deceased on account of non fulfillment of demand of additional dowry, prosecution has examined informant as PW-1 and his mother as PW-2. We have carefully perused the statements of informant PW-1 and PW-2, as referred to in the impugned judgment to find out that whether as per the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2, the necessary ingredients of the charging Sections are borne out/satisfied or not.

39. The brief prosecution story, as unfolded in the first information report, is that within 8'9 months of the marriage of deceased with appellant Chandra Bhan, she was burnt to death on account of non-fulfillment of demand of scooter or Rs.10,000/- in cash. It has been specifically stated in the first information report that the informant could not give scooter in the dowry at the time of marriage, therefore, the accused-appellant Chandra Bhan and his family members started harassing the deceased. It has specifically come on record that the deceased on her visit to her parental home in the month of October, 1987 told the informant regarding this as well as her beating by her in-laws for not giving the scooter in the marriage. Thereafter, the informant, on 29.02.1988, received an information regarding her daughter being burnt by the appellants. However, the informant Mahesh Chand P.W.1 has clearly stated in his deposition that his Samdhi i.e. father-in-law of his daughter had five sons and out of them his son Prabhu Dayal died, who was working as Supply Inspector. Prabhu Dayal was married to co-accused Sunita @ Prago and was having three children out of this wedlock. Co-accused Sunita @ Prago got appointed the accused-appellant Chandra Bhan in the Supply Office in place of her deceased husband Prabhu Dayal. The co-accused Sunita @ Prago was residing in the house of Prabhu Dayal, which was situated in Subhash Colony on Mainpuri Road. However, son-in-law of the informant namely, Chandra Bhan was living with his wife (daughter of the informant) in a rented house in Etawah City and both these house were about a mile apart. Therefore, it is clear that co-accused Sunita @ Prago was living separately with her three children and accused-appellant Chandra Bhan was living separately with his wife i.e. the deceased. P.W.1 has also clearly stated that demand of scooter or Rs.10,000/- cash and harassment of her daughter in the shape of beating was told by her daughter to the informant. Meaning thereby, that none of the accused ever personally demanded any additional dowry from the informant or his wife and the informant or his wife had also not seen any incident of harassment or beating of their daughter at the hands of accused persons. Informant and his wife in their depositions have also not stated that they ever saw any mark of injury on the body of their daughter, whenever she visited her parental home. Therefore, the knowledge of demand of additional dowry and harassment as per deposition of informant and his wife is based on the statement of the deceased made to these witnesses in her parental home.

40. In written report Ext. Ka.-2, the informant (PW-1) has clearly stated that his daughter lastly visited him in the month of October, 1987 when she narrated about her torture and harassment on account of non-fulfillment of demand of scooter or Rs.10,000/-, else she will face dire consequences. However, no report whatsoever was lodged by either the informant or her daughter regarding this. Even no complaint whatsoever was made by them in this regard. There is no evidence given by this witness (PW-1) that after the month of October, 1987 to the date of death of her daughter i.e. 01.03.1988 the deceased ever informed him again regarding her continuous harassment on account of aforesaid demand of scooter or cash. Surprisingly, the informant P.W.1 has proved a letter dated 29.11.1987 as Ext. Ka.-1, which was written by the deceased to the informant and the aforesaid letter was written after the month of October, 1987 and in Ext. Ka.-1, there is no mention whatsoever regarding any demand of dowry or demand of scooter or cash in lieu thereof. The aforesaid letter Ext. Ka.-1 actually belies the very basic prosecution story put forth by the informant by way of his written report / tehrir Ext. Ka.-2. In Ext. Ka.-1 it is specifically stated by the deceased that her husband accused-appellant Chandra Bhan used to regularly visit the house of co-accused Sunita @ Prago and he also used to stay at nights at her residence and this was the reason that the deceased was much depressed. It has come in the evidence of P.W.1 that it was the co-accused Sunita, who got appointed accused-appellant Chandra Bhan in place of her deceased husband Prabhu Dayal. Therefore, it was not only the moral duty of the accused-appellant Chandra Bhan but was also his social and statutory obligation to maintain the family members of his brother late Prabhu Dayal including Prabhu Dayal's wife Sunita and their three minor children, because he got appointment in place of his deceased brother Prabhu Dayal in dying in harness. The deceased was annoyed because of her husband's maintaining / taking care of the wife and children of his late brother Prabhu Dayal.

41. Informant (PW-1), in his cross-examination, has clearly stated that there was no demand of dowry at the time of marriage. It is also clear that there was no demand of dowry even prior to marriage. The informant has clearly admitted when his daughter sent him letter, but in none of her letters there was ever mention of demand of Scooter. The informant also fairly conceded that accused-appellant Chandra Bhan also sent a letter to his daughter that his daughter was residing at his residence, but there was no demand for a scooter or money or a watch in the said letter by Chandra Bhan. Thus, there is no mention of demand of Scooter or anything else in the letters written by the daughter of informant.

42. The mother of deceased Smt. Vimla Devi P.W.2 in her deposition has although stated that in-laws of her daughter used to beat her and were demanding a scooter or cash of Rs.10,000/- in lieu thereof. However, in her cross-examination, she has clearly stated that whenever her daughter came to their house, she (the deceased) used to tell her that accused Chandra Bhan mostly stayed with his sister-in-law (bhabhi) and sleeps there and rarely sleeps with her. She further stated that her daughter was absolutely convinced that her husband was having illicit relations with her sister-in-law (bhabhi) Sunita. She further stated that her daughter used to tell this fact whenever she came to her house and also used to write the same to her. The aforesaid part of deposition of this witness is strengthened by the letter dated 29.11.1987 (Ext.Ka.-1) written by the deceased to her father.

43. Informant Mahesh Chandra PW-1 and Vimla Devi PW-2 both in their oral deposition have supported the prosecution version as put-forth in the written report (Ext. Ka-2) and have deposed that the accused were demanding Scooter or Rs. 10,000/- in cash and the deceased was being harassed and torture for this additional demand of dowry. None of these witnesses in their deposition have stated that when the deceased told this specific fact of additional demand of dowry and her (deceased) harassment on account of this, both these witnesses have not specified any date, time and place of last alleged harassment and even no specific instance of harassment or cruelty to their daughter Munni Devi has been narrated by these witnesses in their oral deposition. Notwithstanding of the fact that the death occurred within a year of the marriage of the appellant alongwith the deceased, there is no evidence to indicate that the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment at the hands of the appellant. For the reason that except for a general and vague allegation that there was a demand for scooter or Rs. 10,000/- as additional dowry by the appellant and his relatives and harassment of the deceased on account of this demand, there is not a single instance specifically attributed to the appellant regarding mental and / or physical harassment of the deceased on a particular date, time and place. Therefore, the prosecution has failed to bring on record atleast some specific instance of cruelty or harassment being caused to the deceased in connection with any demand for dowry. Moreover, none of the appellants has ever demanded anything directly from these witnesses. Admittedly, there was no demand of dowry prior to marriage or even at the time of marriage. The letter written by the deceased to her father Ext. Ka-1 also does not support this part of the prosecution story regarding demand of dowry. There is no evidence on record regarding any physical harassment to the deceased on account of alleged demand of dowry. As the prosecution has failed to prove any specific instance of cruelty or harassment, therefore, in our considered opinion, the prosecution has miserably failed to prove that there was any demand of dowry from the side of appellants, as alleged by the prosecution, after the marriage of the deceased and before her death. Thus, the prosecution has not been able to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the cruelty or harassment to the deceased was committed in connection with any demand for dowry and Question No. 1 is, therefore, accordingly decided in negative.

Whether the prosecution could be able to prove it's case against the appellant- convict beyond reasonable doubt?.

44. As the prosecution has failed to prove any demand of dowry or harassment of the deceased on account of non fulfillment of demand of dowry, therefore, the prosecution has failed to prove the very basic ingredients of dowry death, even otherwise the informant and his wife allegedly got information of harassment of their daughter in the month of October, 1987. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Satbir Singh and another vs. State of Haryana, (2021) 6 SCC 1, has explained the phrase 'soon before'. In para 15, 16 and 38.3 which are reproduced herein-below:-

15. Considering the significance of such a legislation, a strict interpretation would defeat the very object for which it was enacted. Therefore, it is safe to deduce that when the legislature used the words, 'soon before' they did not mean 'immediately before'. Rather, they left its determination in the hands of the courts. The factum of cruelty or harassment differs from case to case. Even the spectrum of cruelty is quite varied, as it can range from physical, verbal or even emotional. This list is certainly not exhaustive. No straitjacket formulae can therefore be laid down by this Court to define what exactly the phrase 'soon before' entails.

16. The aforesaid position was emphasised by this Court in Kans Raj v. State of Punjab [Kans Raj v. State of Punjab, (2000) 5 SCC 207 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 935] , wherein the three-Judge Bench held that : (SCC pp. 222-23, para 15)

"15…..'Soon before' is a relative term which is required to be considered under specific circumstances of each case and no straitjacket formula can be laid down by fixing any time-limit. ' In relation to dowry deaths, the circumstances showing the existence of cruelty or harassment to the deceased are not restricted to a particular instance but normally refer to a course of conduct. Such conduct may be spread over a period of time. ' Proximate and live link between the effect of cruelty based on dowry demand and the consequential death is required to be proved by the prosecution. The demand of dowry, cruelty or harassment based upon such demand and the date of death should not be too remote in time which, under the circumstances, be treated as having become stale enough."

A similar view was taken by this Court in R*ajinder Singh v. State of Punjab [Rajinder Singh v. State of Punjab,* (2015) 6 SCC 477 : (2015) 3 SCC (Cri) 225]

38.3. The phrase 'soon before' as appearing in Section 304-B IPC cannot be construed to mean 'immediately before'. The prosecution must establish existence of 'proximate and live link' between the dowry death and cruelty or harassment for dowry demand by the husband or his relatives.

45. Even for the sake of argument if it is presumed that there was any demand of dowry, then the prosecution has also miserably failed to prove that the aforesaid demand of dowry was ever made soon before the death of the deceased, because as per prosecution evidence, the last knowledge of aforesaid demand of dowry was in the month of October, 1987 whereas the alleged incident had happened on 29.02.1988 and there is no proximate and live link between death of the deceased and cruelty or harassment made for demand of dowry by the appellants. Thus, it is clear that the alleged harassment, if any, was informed by the deceased to her parents in the month of October, 1987 and thereafter no such complaint was made by the deceased to her parents. There is no evidence on record that the deceased either visited her parents after October, 1987 or informed her parents after October, 1987 regarding her continuous harassment on account of additional demand of dowry. We are therefore, of the opinion that the alleged harassment, if any, was not having any proximate and live link between death of the deceased and her harassment for alleged dowry demand as she died on 1.3.1988.

CONDUCT OF APPELLANT

46. It is specific case of surviving appellant Chandra Bhan that on the fateful day when he returned to his home from the office at 6pm, he saw his wife burning, he tried to put off the fire by placing the quilts but he himself got burnt. Thereafter, he has taken his wife to the hospital. A perusal of the injury report Ext. Ka-9 of the deceased reveals that the deceased Munni Devi was brought by her husband to the hospital on 29.2.1988 at 6:45 pm, where she was medico legally examined. Dr. P.K. Srivastava PW-7 has also stated on oath that Munni Devi (deceased) was brought by her husband Chandra Bhan. A perusal of injury report Ext. Kh-1 of surviving appellant Chandra Bhan reveals that he was also medico legally examined at 7pm on 29.2.1988 and he was also found burnt 15% thus, it was the appellant who brought the deceased to the hospital and even the appellant himself was in burnt condition at that time, which is indicative of his conduct whereby he tried to save the life of his wife Munni Devi.

DYING DECLARATION

47. A perusal of dying declaration of the deceased reveals that she has not alleged any harassment or her torture on account of demand of additional dowry at the hands of appellant. She has not even uttered a single word regarding any demand of dowry or her harassment on account of non fulfillment of such demand if any. Her dying declaration is although brief and precise to the fact that her sister-in-law Sunita, brother-in-law Jairam and Chandra Bhan have burnt her after pouring kerosene oil from a 5 liter cane at about 6pm. In her dying declaration the deceased has stated that Chandra Bhan 3 with his sister-in-law and 1 day resided at his house. She however, stated that her sister-in-law (Jethani) is a widow. However, the aforesaid portion of her dying declaration is little bit vague, but it means that the accused Chandra Bhan used to reside with his sister-in-law (Bhabhi) for 3 days and used to stay at his house for 1 day.

48. In this background the deposition of PW-1 become material. PW-1 in his examination in chief has not stated anything regarding aforesaid contents of the dying declaration of his daughter. However, PW-1 in his deposition has proved a letter (Ext. Ka-1) of his daughter Munni Devi, which has been carefully perused by us. The aforesaid letter is dated 29.11.1986 which is written by Munni Devi to his father Mahesh Chandra, there is no allegation regarding either demand of additional dowry or harassment of Munni Devi on account of non fulfillment of demand of dowry. However, it is specifically mentioned in this letter that her husband stayed in Shanti Colony and had not returned to her house. She waited whole night but her husband had not turned up even in morning then he sent son of their house owner in the office of her husband where her husband was found and he returned in the evening. She stated to her husband that whenever you are going somewhere then please inform her. On this her husband got excited and said who are you to stop him, I shall go daily there and will also sleep there. Now he is daily going in Shanti Colony. This letter reveals that the deceased was annoyed as her husband (present surviving appellant) used to continuously stay in Shanti Colony and was not returning to his own rented house and this fact was the principle bone of contention between the deceased and her husband. Through this letter (Ext. Ka-1) the deceased has informed this fact to her father.

49. Vimla Devi PW-2 in her cross examination has stated that accused Chandra Bhan mostly stayed with his Bhabhi (sister-in-law) and also used to sleep there and rarely slept with the deceased and therefore, her daughter was absolutely convinced that her husband was having illicit relation with her Bhabhi (sister-in-law Sunita). She however conceded that her daughter used to tell this fact that whenever she came to their house and also used to write the same.

50. It is thus clear that there was no demand of dowry as alleged in the prosecution story. However, the deceased was apprehending illicit relationship between her husband Chandra Bhan and her husband's Bhabhi Sunita. In this background, the dying declaration of the deceased gains importance. However, the prosecution instead of prosecuting the accused on account of murder of deceased because of the alleged illicit relationship put forward a specific story that the deceased was being harassed and tortured on account of demand of dowry.

51. The appellant- accused Chandra Bhan had taken specific stand in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that neither he nor his family members have burnt the deceased. He was in his office and returned at about 6:00 PM and saw that his wife Munni Devi was burning. He tried to douse the fire by placing quilt over her (his wife). He himself got burnt. Thereafter, he took his wife to the hospital. He has further stated that his Bhabhi (sister-in-law/ co-accused Sunita) gave her job. Therefore, he used to help her. He denied that he ever slept there. Accused- appellant Chandra Bhan was injured in the incident and his injury report has been proved as Ext. Kh-1. Sustaining burn injuries in the incident, clearly signifies his presence on the spot, which is further strengthened by his burn injuries. Sustaining burn injuries and taking the deceased to the hospital cannot itself be a factor for giving any benefit to the appellant- accused Chandra Bhan. However, it remains relevant fact to be considered. PW-1 in his cross examination has fairly conceded that he found Chandra Bhan in the hospital when he arrived, therefore, accused- appellant Chandra Bhan had not only got admitted his wife to the hospital but also remained there and had not fled away. Admittedly, co-accused Sunita was residing separately, therefore, in the totality of circumstances, there is great probability that the accused- appellant actually tried to save his wife and sustained burn injuries and got her admitted for treatment, where he also met the informant.

52. Both PW-1 and PW-2 while deposing about demand of dowry have not deposed to any particular act of cruelty or harassment by the appellant. This is an essential ingredients of Section 304-B and 498-A IPC which is not made out from their evidence. From the deposition of PW-1 and PW-2 it can be seen that except for general and vague statement about demand of Scooter or Rs. 10,000/- cash and physical harassment in the nature of beating, being inflicted on the deceased by the appellant, there is not a single instance specifically attributed to the appellant. Both these witnesses have not deposed about any specific instance narrated to them by the deceased that could indicate that the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment specifically by the appellant. Their depositions are in general terms without giving any specific details of any instance of cruelty or harassment meted out to the deceased. It is one thing to make a demand for dowry and another thing to inflicted cruelty for dowry. For sustaining the conviction under Section 304-B IPC, it would be necessary for the prosecution to bring on record atleast some specific instance of cruelty or harassment being caused to the women in connection with any demand for dowry that results in her death occurring otherwise then under normal circumstances within 7 years of the marriage. Such evidence however is missing in the present case, even otherwise the alleged narration of demand of dowry and harassment pertains to October, 1987, however, the present incident had happened on 29.2.1988. Therefore, the incident, if any, of alleged demand of dowry and harassment in lieu thereof did not happen soon before the death. It is not the case of prosecution that the deceased allegedly visited her parental house a week or 15 days or even a month before the incident and she complained about any cruelty or any harassment on account of non fulfillment of demand of dowry. Thus in the totality of the circumstances, none of the statement of these two witnesses i.e. PW-1 and PW-2 contained any specific instance of cruelty or harassment. Resultantly the prosecution failed to prove the material ingredients of the offence punishable under Section 304-B IPC. Not a single instance of cruelty covered by Section 498-A IPC was proved by the prosecution. Therefore, Section 113-B of Evidence Act would not be applicable. There does not appear to be any nexus between the alleged demand (although the prosecution has failed to prove the same) and any specific case of cruelty or harassment of the deceased, which resulted in her death, therefore, we find that the reasons recorded in the impugned judgment being against material on record, are perverse and we find that the ingredients of Section 304-B and 498-A IPC are not made out. Therefore, Question No. (II) is also answered in the negative.

53. After completion of investigation, charge-sheet was submitted only under Sections 304B, 498A IPC and ' of D.P. Act, however, charge against the appellant was framed only under Sections 498A, 304-B IPC, even no alternative charge under section 302 IPC was framed. As the prosecution has miserably failed to prove any demand of dowry or harassment in lieu thereof. When the prosecution has failed to prove the charge under Section 498-A IPC, presumption under section 113-B of Evidence Act also does not attract and, therefore, the prosecution has also miserably failed to prove the ingredients of Section 304-B IPC..

54. Resultantly, the prosecution has failed to prove that the appellant- accused caused dowry death of the deceased. However, at this juncture, dying declaration of the deceased is again carefully perused with the objective that whether the appellant- accused can be convicted under Section 302 IPC or not. The dying declaration of the deceased is categorically clear that the appellant- accused poured 05 liters kerosene oil on the deceased and burnt her. However, Section 302 IPC is graver section than 304-B IPC. The appellant- accused were not tried under Section 302 IPC. Even no question has been put to the appellant-accused regarding commission of murder of the deceased by pouring kerosene oil on her and thereafter burning her in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

55. The expression 'minor offence' found in Section 222 is not defined under the Code, it can be discerned from the context which is not merely that the prescribed punishment is less than the major offence. In other words, if the two offences are cognate offences and the main ingredients are common, the offence punishable with lesser sentence can be considered as a minor offence with reference to the other offence. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Shamnsaheb M. Multtani vs. State of Karnataka, (2001) 2 SCC 577 has held as under:-

"16. What is meant by 'a minor offence' for the purpose of Section 222 of the Code? Although the said expression is not defined in the Code it can be discerned from the context that the test of minor offence is not merely that the prescribed punishment is less than the major offence. The two illustrations provided in the section would bring the above point home well. Only if the two offences are cognate offences, wherein the main ingredients are common, the one punishable among them with a lesser sentence can be regarded as minor offence vis-'-vis the other offence.

17. The composition of the offence under Section 304-B IPC is vastly different from the formation of the offence of murder under Section 302 IPC and hence the former cannot be regarded as minor offence vis-'-vis the latter. However, the position would be different when the charge also contains the offence under Section 498-A IPC (husband or relative of husband of a women subjecting her to cruelty). As the word 'cruelty' is explained as including, inter alia, 'harassment of the woman where such harassment is with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security or is on account of failure by her or any person related to her to meet such demand".

56. Section 222(1) of the Code deals with a case where a person is charged with an offence consisting of several particulars. The Section permits the Court to convict the accused of the minor offence though he was not charged with it. Sub section (2) deals with a similar, but slightly different situation. When a person is charged with an offence and facts are proved which reduces it to a minor offence he may be convicted of the minor offence although he is not charged with it. As noticed hereinabove, the expression 'minor offence' is not defined under the Code. Punishment prescribed under Section 302 IPC is death or life imprisonment, whereas punishment thereafter under Section 304-B IPC is not less than seven years, but may extend to life imprisonment, therefore, when Section 304-B is compared with Section 302 it would clearly indicate that they are separate and distinct offences and by no stretch of imagination can be construed as cognate offences and moreover punishment prescribed under Section 302 IPC is more stringent than 304-B IPC.

57. In the present case admittedly the appellant- accused Chandra Bhan and co-accused Sunita were living separately. It has been specifically averred by the deceased that the appellant and other two co-accused poured kerosene oil on her and thereafter she was burnt, but it has clearly come in the prosecution evidence that the deceased was perturbed on account of appellant- accused Chandra Bhan maintaining the family of co-accused Sunita for the reasons that he (Chandra Bhan) got government job in place of deceased husband of co-accused Sunita, who was his elder brother. The deceased in her letter dated 29.11.1987 i.e. Ext. Ka-1 and PW-2 in her oral deposition have clearly stated that the appellant-accused Chandra Bhan used to reside at the residence of co-accused Sunita and even used to stay in nights. In this background, we have carefully perused the oral as well as documentary medical evidence which clearly indicates that it was the appellant ' accused Chandra Bhan who brought her wife (deceased) to the hospital and he had actually sustained burn injuries in this incident. We have already come to its conclusion that there is greater possibility of appellant-accused Chandra Bhan trying to save his wife on seeing her burning, when he returned at his home after office hours at about 6:00 pm. It has come on record that the accused sustained burn injuries and had brought the deceased to the hospital in an injured (burnt) condition. It has also come on record that the informant PW-1 met the appellant- accused Chandra Bhan in the hospital, who had not fled away from the hospital even after admitting his wife. There is no other ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased except burn injuries which could have been indicative of the fact of physical harassment of the deceased at the hands of the appellant prior to her death. The prosecution has also failed to prove that all the accused named in the FIR were residing together under one roof. There is no explanation from the side of prosecution regarding burn injuries so sustained by the appellant- accused Chandra Bhan in the incident.

58. Therefore, we are of the opinion that even the dying declaration is not free from doubts. Thus in the present case even the surviving appellant could not be convicted only on the strength of the dying declaration. Moreover, no charge has been framed under Section 302 IPC and incident pertains to the year 1988, therefore, it is also not appropriate to remand the matter back to the learned trial Court for re-trial of the appellant after framing appropriate charges. Resultantly, this criminal appeal is liable to be allowed.

59. The impugned judgment and order dated 04.10.1989 passed by Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Etawah in Sessions Trial No. 190 of 1988 (State Vs. Chandra Bhan) connected with Session Trial No. 256 of 1988 (State vs. Jai Ram) arising out of Case Crime No. 101 of 1988, under Sections 302 IPC and Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station- Kotwali, District Etawah is liable to be set aside.

60. Before parting with the judgment we would like to say few words regarding proper investigation of dowry death cases as well as framing of appropriate charges in such cases. The dying declaration of the victim was clear to the extent that it was a case of homicide, however to the utter surprise, the then Investigating Officer submitted the charge-sheet only under Section 304-B IPC even without perusal of the contents of the dying declaration of the deceased. It clearly reflects not only lack of knowledge on the part of Investigating Officer but also is indicative of his failure to perform statutory duties regarding fair investigation. Moreover, the then Presiding Officer of the learned trial Court was also required to be more careful while framing charges. If he (the then Presiding Officer of the learned trial Court) would have been a little vigilant and had gone through the dying declaration of the victim, he must have framed the main charge under Section 302 IPC and thereafter would have framed alternative charge under Section 304-B IPC. On account of failure of both i.e. the then Investigating Officer and the then Presiding Officer of the learned trial Court, no charge could have been framed under Section 302 IPC and we have not referred back the matter to the learned trial Court for re-trial of the appellant after framing appropriate charges for the reasons that incident pertains to the year 1988. Therefore, we are of the opinion that it is the duty of the trial Courts to frame appropriate charges in cases of dowry death. In such cases, the evidence collected by the Investigating Officers during course of investigation should be carefully gone through at the time of framing of charge and if there is evidence either direct or circumstantial to prima facie support a charge under Section 302 IPC, the trial Courts are duty bound to frame charge under Section 302 IPC and also frame an alternative charge under Section 304-B IPC. Addition of Section 302 IPC should not be mechanical and it should be framed if the evidence collected during course of investigation support framing of charge under Section 302 IPC. It is also important to observe here that the charge under Section 302 IPC should be the main charge rather than an alternative charge. The cases like the present one, clearly signifies the commission of homicide and, therefore, in such cases, framing of main charge under Section 302 IPC is inevitable. We hope and trust that the trial Courts shall frame appropriate charges in cases relating to dowry death. A copy of this judgment be circulated amongst all Judicial Officers of the State of Uttar Pradesh through Registrar (compliance).

61. Consequently, this appeal for surviving appellant, Chandra Bhan, is allowed. The judgment and order dated 04.10.1989 passed by Ist Additional Sessions Judge, Etawah in Sessions Trial No. 190 of 1988 (State Vs. Chandra Bhan) arising out of Case Crime No. 101 of 1988, under Section 302 IPC and Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station- Kotwali, District Etawah for the surviving appellant, Chandra Bhan, is hereby set aside. The surviving appellant, Chandra Bhan, is acquitted of all the charges for which he has been tried. The surviving appellant is reported to be on bail, therefore, he need not surrender subject to compliance of provision of Section 437-A of Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the trial Court concerned at the earliest. His bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged.

62. Original record has not been sent by the trial Court. Therefore, photostat copy of the record of the 'Trial Court' be retained and a copy of this judgment be immediately sent back to learned trial Court for necessary information and compliance.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the prosecution proved beyond reasonable doubt the guilt of the surviving appellant for offences under Sections 323/34 and 324/34 IPC and whether the sentence of rigorous imprisonment awarded by the trial court requires modification in view of the appellant's advanced age, infirmity, long pendency of the appeal and the period already undergone.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 09.08.1984 passed by Additional Sessions Judge-IV, Pilibhit in Sessions Trial No. 47 of 1983 (State vs. Roshan Lal and Others) arising out of Case Crime No. 218 of 1982, Police Station Bilsanda, District Pilibhit.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri R.N. Srivastava Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, learned A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjiv Kumar, J.)

1. This criminal appeal has been filed, under Section 374 (2) Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (in short Cr.P.C.), by appellants Roshan Lal and Chote Lal, against the judgment and order, dated 09.08.1984, passed by Shri Shiv Shankar, Additional Sessions Judge-IV, Pilibhit, in Sessions Trial No.47 of 1983 (State Vs. Roshan Lal and Others), arising out of Case Crime No. 218 of 1982, under Section 308, 324 and 323 Indian Penal Code (in short I.P.C.), Police Station- Bilsanda, District- Pilibhit.

2. By the impugned judgment and order, dated 09.08.1984, the learned trial court has acquitted co-accused Lala Ram, giving them the benefit of doubt and has convicted the appellants for offence punishable under Section 324/34 of IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of three years, they were further convicted under Section 323/34 IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of six months and a fine of Rs. 500 /- each. In default of payment of fine, they were further directed to undergo 15 days rigorous imprisonment. It was further directed that all the sentences shall run concurrently.

3. During the pendency of this appeal, the appellant No.1 Roshal Lal has died and the appeal on his behalf stands abated vide order dated 15.11.2017. Now this appeal survives only on behalf of appellant no.2 Chhotey Lal only.

4. Brief facts of the prosecution case are that informant Bikarudeen Khan son of Gayasuddin Khan, resident of Village- Paharganj, Police Station- Bilsanda, District- Pilibhit, submitted a written application dated 30.10.1982, before the incharge Police Station- Bilsanda, stating that he has a 30 bigha chak (agricultural land) to the south of his village. Adjacent to this field, there is Roshan Lal's land. Today at about 09:00 a.m. the first informant and his father reached at the field and saw that Roshan Lal's cattle were grazing his laahi (mustard crop). The first informant and his father asked Roshan Lal why he is causing damage to their crop thereupon, Roshan Lal, Lala Ram and Chhotey Lal carrying lathi, ballam and spade (fawda), started hurling abuses and said that they would do so. Upon resistance, Chhotely Lal with spear, Roshal Lal with lathi and Lala Ram with spade attacked them. His father fell on the ground and upon alarm the persons working in the field namely, Ayub Khan, Shahzade and others came and save them. Upon this information FIR under Case Crime No. 218 of 1982, under Sections- 308, 324 and 323 I.P.C., was lodged at the Police Station on 30.10.1982 at 13:45. The investigation was entrusted to S.I. Bhisham Lal, who recorded the statements of injured and other witnesses, reached at the place of occurrence and prepared its site-plan (Ext.Ka.7). The injured were medically examined and the injury reports were collected. The I.O. collected spade, banyan (vest) and blood-stained agoncha (piece of cloth) and prepared its fard baramadagi(recovery memo), Ext.Ka.6, Ext.Ka.3 and Ext.Ka.2, respectively. The charge-sheet (Ext. Ka-8) was filed under Sections 308 and 324 IPC before the concerned court.

5. The court concerned took cognizance of the offence and summoned the accused, they appeared and copies of relevant prosecution papers were furnished to them under Section 207 Cr.P.C. and thereafter the case was committed to the Court of Sessions for trial.

6. The accused appeared before the learned trial court, where charge under section 307 read with 34 IPC was framed against them to which they pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

7. The prosecution has examined five witnesses, to wit, P.W.1 Gayasuddin Khan; P.W. 2 Viqaruddin @ Acchu; P.W.3 Ayub Khan; P.W.4 S.I. Bhisham Lal (I.O.) and P.W. 5 Dr. G.M. Mohnor, to prove its case.

8. P.W. 1 Gayasuddin, is the father of the first informant and also one of the injured who sustained injuries during the incident. P.W. 2 Viqaruddin @ Acchoo, is the first informant and is also one of the injured of the case. P.W.3 Ayub Khan, is one of the eye-witness of the incident. P.W.4 S.I. Bhisham Lal, is the investigating officer and he has stated about the investigation carried out by him and has proved as secondary witness, the chick FIR (Ext. Ka.-4) and copy of G.D. (Ext.Ka.-5). He has also proved the site-plan as (Ext.Ka.-7) and the charge-sheet as (Ext.Ka.-8).

9. P.W. 2 Viqaruddin @ Acchoo, is the first informant and is also one of the injured of the case.

10. P.W.3 Ayyub Khan, is one of the eye witness of the incident.

11. P.W.4 S.I. Bhisham Lal, is the investigating officer and has stated about the investigation carried out by him and has proved as secondary witness, the chick FIR Ext.Ka. 4 and copy of G.D. Ext.Ka. 5. He has also proved the site plan as Ext.Ka.7 and the charge-sheet as Ext.Ka.8.

12. P.W. 5 Dr. G.M. Mohnor, is the formal witness who prepared the injury reports of injured Gayasuddin and Viqaruddin @ Acchu, on 30.10.1982 while being posted as Medical Officer, Incharge Bilsanda P.H.C., District- Pilibhit. He has said that he examined injured Gayasuddin and found following injuries:-

(i) Incised wound of the size of 7.5 cm x 2 cm x bone deep, at the front of scalp, 12 cm above left ear.

(ii) Abrasion over the part of right forearm of the size of 1 cm x 0.5 cm x 3 cm above the right wrist joint.

In the opinion of the doctor the injury no.1 was caused by any sharp edged weapon and was kept under observation and advised for X- ray. Injury no.2 was caused by any hard and blunt object. Injuries were simple in nature. He has also said that the same day, he examined Viqaruddin and found following injuries:

(i) Incised wound 5 cm x 1.5 cm x 1 cm to the back of skull, 5 cm away from the back.

(ii) Incised wound 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm x skin deep to the left of forehead, 2.5 cm above the left eyebrow.

(iii) Abraded contusion 3 cm x 2 cm to the front of right forearm, 7 cm above the wrist joint.

(iv) Incised wound 1/5 cm x 0.5 cm x muscle deep near left hip.

In the opinion of the doctor, the injuries were simple in nature, except injury no.1, which was kept under observation and advised X-ray. Injury no. 1 and 4 was caused by sharp edged weapon and injury no.3 was caused by blunt object. The witness has proved both the injury reports as Ext.-Ka.9 and 10, respectively. He has also said that both the injured could have sustained these injuries on 30.10.1982 at about 09:00 a.m. and injury no.1 of Gayasuddin could have been caused by a spade. Injury no.1, 2 and 4 of Viqaruddin could have been caused by sharp edged weapon such as spear.

13. After closure of prosecution evidence, the statement of accused were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in which they have denied the prosecution case. Further, it is stated that the appellant Chhotey Lal had made a complaint against Gayasuddin regarding which the case was lodged and Gayasuddin and his father were directed to pay fine. As a result, the appellants have been falsely implicated in this case, due to enmity.

14. The accused have not filed any evidence in defence.

15. The learned trial court after perusing the evidence on record, found that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt, so far as the appellants Roshan Lal and Chhotely Lal are concerned and they were, accordingly, convicted for offence punishable under Sections 323/34 and 324/ 34 IPC and sentenced to the term as indicated as above. The learned Trial Court did not found any sufficient evidence against co-accused Lala Ram and he was given benefit of doubt and acquitted of the offences charged with.

16. Heard Shri R.N. Srivastava, learned Counsel for the surviving appellant Chote Lal and Shri Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, learned A.G.A on behalf of the State and perused the material on record.

17. It is submitted by learned Counsel for the appellant that there are material contradictions in the statement of prosecution witnesses which raises serious doubt over the prosecution case. It is further submitted that co-accused Lala Ram who has been assigned of causing assault by farsa has been acquitted. The doctor has given contradictory opinion. The vest and another articles were not sent for chemical examination. It is also submitted that the appellant is currently 92 years old person.

18. Learned A.G.A. has submitted that prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt. The injured and public witnesses have supported the prosecution case. The ocular evidence is supported by medical evidence. If there is any defect on the part of the I.O., by not sending articles for chemical examination then it would have no bearing over the prosecution case because from other evidence, the case is proved beyond reasonable doubt. In view of the above, the appellant has been rightly convicted and this appeal has no force and is liable to the dismissed.

19. In view of submissions of both the parties and the vidence on record let us see whether the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. As we know, in a criminal case the burden of proof lies upon the prosecution to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. In the present case, the prosecution case is that the appellant alongwith other co-appelant and co-accused, in furtherance of their common intention, committed maarpeet by deadly weapons, causing injuries to the first informant and his father. To prove it, the prosecution has examined P.W. 1 Gayasuddin, the injured and father of the first informant. He has supported the prosecution case and has said that at the time of incident, he alongwith his son Viqaruddin Khan had gone to his field to irrigate. He had taken a pump set and engine with him on a buffalo cart,. In the meantime, Roshan Lal and Chhotely Lal□s buffaloes entered his field and started grazing the laahi (mustard) crop, when his son pushed them outside the field, then all the three accused reached. Chhotey Lal was having spear in his hand, Roshan Lal was having lathi and Lala Ram was carrying a spade and when his son asked them why they are causing damage to their crop then, they got agitated and attacked them. He has said that Chhotey Lal had beaten him and he fell on the ground and become unconscious. He sustained an injury from spear. The witness has been declared hostile and has been cross-examined by the prosecution. He has supported the prosecution case to the extent that all the three accused committed maarpeet with him and his son, causing them injuries. No material contradiction has come in his testimony to raise any suspicion over his evidence.

20. P.W. 2 Viqaruddin @ Acchoo, is the first informant and also one of the injured of this case. He has also supported the prosecution case and has said that the accused attacked him and his father carrying weapons in their hands, causing injuries to both of them. He has said that he and his father were medically examined at Bilsanda Hospital and after about 7 days from the date of incident, he handed over blood-stained vest and angocha to the I.O. regarding which fard baramadagi was prepared which he proved as Ext.Ka.2 and 3. This witness has been cross-examined at length and nothing material has come in his testimony to raise any suspicion over his evidence.

21. P.W.3 Ayub Khan, is the eye-witness. He has also supported the prosecution case and has said that the accused assaulted the first informant and his father as a result, they sustained injuries. This witness has also been cross-examined at length, but no material contradiction has come in his testimony to raise any suspicion.

22. Therefore, from the evidence of P.W.1, P.W.2 and P.W.3, the prosecution has proved its case that surviving appellant, along with other accused, assaulted the first informant and his father.

23. So far as the ocular and medical evidence is concerned, medical evidence corroborates with the oral evidence. The doctor has said that the injuries could be caused by hard and blunt object, like lathi and sharp cutting weapon, like spear. The witnesses have stated about the use of these weapons by the appellant and co-accused, in the incident.

24. As it was a sudden fight, without any previous enmity or pre-meditation and there was no intention on the part of the appellant to cause death of the injured. The injuries were caused by hard and blunt object as well as sharp edged weapon, therefore, the act of the appellant falls under Sections 323/34 and 324/34 IPC, because all the accused jointly attacked the first informant and his father which goes to show that they shared pre-arranged plan and acted in furtherance of their common intention.

25. Therefore, from the evidence on record, it is proved that on 30.10.1982 at about 09:00 a.m., the appellant, in furtherance of their common intention with co-appellant and co-accused, caused simple hurt to the first informant and his father, thus the appellant is guilty of the offence punishable under Sections 323 read with 34 IPC and 324 read with 34 IPC. Thus, the learned trial court has rightly convicted the appellant for offence punishable under Sections 323 read with 34 IPC and 324 read with 34 IPC.

26. So far as the sentence awarded to the appellant is concerned, it is submitted by learned Counsel for the appellant that the appellant is currently 92 years old, ill and infirm person and also the appeal is pending since more than 42 years. Therefore, no purpose would be served to send the appellant in jail. In view of the above submission of learned Counsel for the appellant and from perusal of record, it is clear that the incident is of the year 1982 and the appellant was convicted in the year 1984. Since then 42 years have passed. The appellant is currently 92 years old, infirm person and the offence is minor in nature. The appellant has already served about one month in jail, therefore, it would meet the ends of justice if he is sentenced to the term already undergone and served by him in prison.

27. Therefore, this appeal is allowed in part, and the conviction of the appellant under Sections 323 read with 34 IPC and 324 read with 34 IPC is confirmed, but the sentenced awarded to him is modified and he is sentenced for the period he had already undergone in jail. He need not surrender. His bail bonds and personal bond are cancelled the sureties are discharged of their obligations.

28. Office is directed to transmit the trial court record alongwith a copy of this judgment to the learned trial court for information and necessary compliance.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 25.11.1989 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in Sessions Trial No. 194 of 1984, arising out of FIR lodged at Police Station Barkhera, District Pilibhit, Case Crime registered under Sections 302 and 201 IPC.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Apul Mishra, Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Devrat Mishra
Counsel for Respondent(s): Ms. Archana Singh, A.G.A.-I

(Delivered by Hon'ble Salil Kumar Rai, J.
Hon'ble Padam Narain Mishra, J.)

1. Heard Shri Apul Mishra, Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Devrat Mishra, counsel for the appellants and Ms. Archana Singh, A.G.A.-I for the State.

2. This appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 25.11.1989 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Pilibhit in Sessions Trial No. 194 of 1984, whereby appellant No. 2, Kanauji Lal, along with appellant No. 1, Jai Narain, was convicted under Section 302 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced to imprisonment for life. The other accused, Rajendra, was acquitted of the charge under Section 302/34 IPC but was convicted under Section 201 IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year with a fine of Rs. 500/-. During the pendency of the appeal, appellant No. 1, Jai Narain, died and the appeal has been declared as abated so far as he was concerned. Consequently, the present appeal survives only at the instance of appellant No. 2, Kanauji Lal.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the deceased, Gaindan Lal, and the appellant, Kanauji Lal, had remained close friends for a considerable period. Both had jointly purchased a tractor by raising a loan after mortgaging their respective agricultural holdings. Their relationship was further strengthened by matrimonial alliances, inasmuch as the sons of both families had been married into the same family. Jai Narain was the samdhi of Kanauji Lal and his daughter had been married to Jai Narain's son only about a week prior to the occurrence.

4. According to the prosecution, Jai Narain had borrowed four sacks of wheat from the deceased. On the morning of 15.05.1984, the deceased demanded that Jai Narain return the wheat or render an account thereof. Jai Narain declined to do so and asserted that he would settle the matter only after the deceased accounted for the financial liabilities arising out of the jointly purchased tractor. Kanauji Lal, who was present there, supported Jai Narain and insisted that the tractor accounts should be settled first. The deceased, however, persisted in demanding the return of the wheat. A heated exchange followed between the parties, which was eventually pacified by the intervention of the villagers. The parties thereafter dispersed.

5. The prosecution further alleges that at about 8.00 a.m., when the deceased was going to his agricultural field accompanied by his son, Shanti Swaroop (PW-1), Rajendra called him near the flour mill with the assurance that the dispute could be amicably settled. The deceased accordingly sat on a takhat placed outside the premises. Shortly thereafter, Kanauji Lal and Jai Narain also reached the spot. Kanauji Lal was carrying his licensed SBBL gun. The discussion soon degenerated into another quarrel regarding the same dispute. According to the prosecution, Jai Narain exhorted Kanauji Lal to kill the deceased, whereupon Kanauji Lal fired a single shot which hit the chest of the deceased. The deceased collapsed on the spot and succumbed to the injury almost instantaneously. The prosecution further alleges that after the deceased fell down, Kanauji Lal attempted to drag the body towards his cattle shed. Anarkali, the widow of the deceased, rushed to the spot and threw herself over the body, thereby preventing its removal. It is also alleged that Rajendra washed the blood stains from the takhat on which the deceased had been seated.

6. On the written report submitted by Shanti Swaroop at Police Station Barkhera at about 10.30 a.m. on the same day, a case was registered under Sections 302 and 201 IPC against Kanauji Lal, Jai Narain and Rajendra. The distance between the place of occurrence and the police station was about six miles. The prompt lodging of the First Information Report has not been questioned before us and lends assurance to the prosecution version regarding the genesis and time of the occurrence.

7. The investigation commenced immediately. The Investigating Officer reached the place of occurrence, prepared the inquest report and other necessary papers, and forwarded the dead body for post-mortem examination. The post-mortem was conducted on 16.05.1984 at 2.30 p.m. The autopsy disclosed a firearm entry wound measuring 3 cm □ 3 cm on the front of the chest with an abrasion collar. There was no blackening, tattooing or scorching. On internal examination, the sternum, ribs, heart, left lung and major blood vessels were found extensively lacerated. One tikli was recovered from the body. Four corresponding exit wounds were present on the lower left side of the chest. The doctor opined that death had occurred due to haemorrhage and shock resulting from the ante-mortem firearm injury.

8. During the course of investigation, blood-stained earth and plain earth were collected from the place of occurrence. Subsequently, the SBBL gun allegedly used in the commission of the offence, along with cartridges and the blood-stained clothes of the deceased, were recovered. The serological examination confirmed the presence of human blood on the articles sent for forensic examination. On completion of the investigation, a charge-sheet was submitted against all the accused under Sections 302 and 201 IPC, whereupon the case was committed to the Court of Session.

9. To prove its case, the prosecution examined Shanti Swaroop (PW-1), the son of the deceased and the informant, and Gokaran Prasad (PW-2) as eyewitnesses to the occurrence. The doctor who conducted the post-mortem examination was examined as PW-4 and proved the post-mortem report. The Investigating Officer entered the witness box as PW-5, while PW-3 was examined as a formal witness. The accused denied the prosecution allegations in their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and pleaded false implication on account of previous enmity.

Rajendra specifically asserted that he had been implicated merely because he happened to be the nephew of Kanauji Lal.

10. The trial court, upon appreciation of the evidence on record, accepted the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 insofar as Kanauji Lal and Jai Narain were concerned and held that the prosecution had proved beyond reasonable doubt that Kanauji Lal fired the fatal shot at the exhortation of Jai Narain. However, the trial court found no material to conclude that Rajendra had shared the common intention to commit the murder and, accordingly, acquitted him of the charge under Section 302/34 IPC while convicting him under Section 201 IPC. Kanauji Lal and Jai Narain were consequently convicted under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

11. Learned counsel appearing for the appellant has, however, fairly stated that the finding recorded by the trial court that the fatal shot was fired by Kanauji Lal is not under challenge. The appellant does not dispute either his presence at the place of occurrence or the fact that the firearm injury sustained by the deceased proved fatal. The submission advanced before us is confined to the nature of the offence. According to the learned counsel, even if the prosecution case is accepted in its entirety, the facts proved on record do not attract the offence of murder punishable under Section 302 IPC. It is urged that the occurrence was the outcome of a sudden quarrel arising out of an existing dispute between the parties and that the surrounding circumstances unmistakably indicate that the appellant possessed only the knowledge that his act was likely to cause death, but lacked the intention necessary to constitute murder under Section 300 IPC. It is, therefore, submitted that the conviction deserves to be altered to one under Section 304 Part II IPC.

12. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate has supported the judgment of the trial court. It is submitted that the appellant had reached the place of occurrence armed with an SBBL gun and deliberately fired at the chest of the deceased, a vital part of the body. According to the learned A.G.A., the use of a deadly weapon coupled with the situs of the injury clearly establishes the intention to cause death or, at any rate, the intention to inflict such bodily injury as was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. It is, therefore, contended that the conviction recorded under Section 302 IPC warrants no interference.

13 Having bestowed our anxious consideration to the rival submissions and having carefully examined the entire evidence on record, we find that the principal controversy before us is not whether the appellant caused the death of the deceased. That fact stands established beyond reasonable doubt by the consistent testimony of the eyewitnesses, which receives complete corroboration from the medical evidence. The real question is whether, on the facts proved by the prosecution, the mental element accompanying the act of the appellant answers the description of intention contemplated under Section 300 IPC or whether the case discloses only the knowledge envisaged under Section 299 IPC.

14. Sections 299, 300 and 304 of the Indian Penal Code embody the legislative distinction between culpable homicide and murder. Section 299 defines culpable homicide, while Section 300 specifies the circumstances in which culpable homicide amounts to murder. Section 304 prescribes the punishment where the act does not amount to murder, either because it does not satisfy any of the clauses of Section 300 or because it falls within one of the statutory exceptions. The distinction between these provisions has engaged the attention of the Courts on numerous occasions and has often been described as one of the most difficult branches of criminal jurisprudence. The difficulty lies not in the language of the statute but in its application to the infinitely varying factual situations that arise before the courts.

15. The Supreme Court, in Anbazhagan v. State, (2024) 20 SCC 500, after referring to the earlier decision in Jawahar Lal v. State of Punjab, (1983) 4 SCC 159, reiterated that the determination of the accused's mental element cannot rest upon any isolated circumstance, such as the fact that only one injury was inflicted or that the injury proved fatal. The Court emphasised that the enquiry has to be directed towards the entire factual matrix. The nature of the weapon used, the part of the body targeted, the force employed, the extent of the injury and the manner of assault are undoubtedly relevant considerations. Equally relevant, however, are the circumstances preceding the occurrence, the events immediately attendant upon the assault, the relationship between the parties, the genesis of the dispute and the conduct of the accused before and after the occurrence. These surrounding circumstances frequently provide the clearest indication of the accused's state of mind.

16. The Supreme Court further observed that intention, being a state of mind, is seldom capable of direct proof and has necessarily to be inferred from the proved facts. There is no inflexible rule that the infliction of a single injury necessarily negatives the intention required under Section 300 IPC, nor can the use of a deadly weapon or the fatal nature of the injury, by themselves, be regarded as conclusive of the existence of such intention. Whether the accused acted with guilty intention or merely with guilty knowledge is essentially a question of fact to be determined upon a cumulative assessment of all the surrounding circumstances. Where the evidence establishes an intention to inflict the particular bodily injury which is sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death, the case would ordinarily fall within Clause Thirdly of Section 300 IPC. Conversely, where the surrounding circumstances disclose absence of premeditation, a sudden quarrel, a sudden fight, an accidental or unintended injury, or an intention merely to cause a simple injury coupled only with the knowledge that death was a likely consequence, the offence would appropriately fall within Section 304 Part II IPC.

17. It is in the light of these settled principles that the evidence in the present case is required to be examined. The determination cannot rest solely on the circumstance that the appellant used an SBBL gun or that the firearm injury was inflicted on the chest of the deceased. Those facts undoubtedly constitute important circumstances, but they cannot be viewed in isolation. The Court is required to examine the entire chain of circumstances preceding and accompanying the occurrence in order to ascertain the true mental element with which the appellant acted.

18. The evidence on record unmistakably establishes that the appellant and the deceased had enjoyed cordial relations for several years preceding the occurrence. They had jointly purchased a tractor by raising a loan after mortgaging their respective agricultural lands, thereby entering into a financial arrangement founded on mutual confidence. Their relationship was further reinforced by close matrimonial ties between the two families. The prosecution has not brought on record any evidence to indicate that the appellant bore any longstanding grudge or hostility against the deceased. On the contrary, the evidence suggests that their relationship had remained cordial and that no dispute had arisen between them until the events immediately preceding the occurrence.

19. The genesis of the occurrence also assumes considerable significance. The prosecution itself attributes the immediate cause of the dispute not to any disagreement between the appellant and the deceased but to Jai Narain's refusal to return or account for the four sacks of wheat borrowed from the deceased. It was only when the deceased insisted upon repayment that Jai Narain sought to link the issue with the unsettled accounts relating to the jointly purchased tractor. The appellant appears to have intervened in support of Jai Narain, who had become closely related to him by reason of the marriage performed scarcely a week earlier. Significantly, there is no evidence to suggest that, at any point of time prior to the occurrence, the appellant himself had demanded settlement of the tractor accounts or had raised any grievance against the deceased on that score. Had there existed any deep-seated animosity arising out of the tractor transaction, one would reasonably expect some evidence of previous discord between them. The prosecution has led none.

20. The sequence of events preceding the occurrence also does not disclose any pre-conceived plan to eliminate the deceased. The first altercation ended with the intervention of the villagers, whereafter the parties dispersed. It is the prosecution case itself that the deceased was thereafter called by Rajendra on the pretext that the dispute could be amicably resolved. The deceased, believing that an effort was being made to bring about a settlement, voluntarily went to the place where the parties again assembled. These circumstances are inconsistent with a carefully designed plan to commit murder. Had there been any settled intention to take the life of the deceased, the prosecution would have been expected to produce some evidence suggesting prior deliberation or preparation. The record is conspicuously silent in this regard.

21. Equally significant is the manner in which the occurrence unfolded. The prosecution does not allege that immediately upon reaching the spot the appellant opened fire. On the contrary, another exchange of words took place regarding the same dispute. It was during the course of this altercation that Jai Narain is stated to have exhorted the appellant to kill the deceased. According to the eyewitnesses themselves, the firearm was discharged immediately thereafter. This sequence of events indicates that the fatal act was committed during the heat of the altercation and not pursuant to any prior determination to cause death. The exhortation attributed to Jai Narain, whether accepted in its entirety or not, is itself indicative of the fact that the decision to use the firearm was taken in the course of the quarrel and not before it.

22. Much emphasis has been laid by the learned A.G.A. on the circumstance that the appellant had come to the place of occurrence carrying an SBBL gun. It is undoubtedly true that the appellant was armed with a firearm and that the shot struck the chest of the deceased. These are relevant circumstances and cannot be ignored. At the same time, they do not conclude the enquiry. As noticed earlier, the Supreme Court has repeatedly held that neither the nature of the weapon nor the situs of the injury is by itself decisive of the question whether the accused acted with the intention required under Section 300 IPC. The Court must evaluate these circumstances in conjunction with the entire factual background. In the present case, the long-standing cordial relationship between the parties, the absence of previous hostility, the sudden revival of the quarrel regarding the wheat transaction, the intervention of the appellant on behalf of his samdhi, and the firing of a single shot in the midst of the altercation are all circumstances which cannot be ignored while assessing the appellant's state of mind.

23. The trial court appears to have proceeded substantially on the premise that since the appellant had fired at the chest of the deceased with a firearm, the offence must necessarily amount to murder. Such an approach overlooks the distinction which the law has consistently maintained between the act and the mental element accompanying the act. The physical act of causing death may remain the same; what determines the nature of the offence is the state of mind with which that act is committed. It is for this reason that the Supreme Court in Anbazhagan cautioned that the enquiry cannot be confined to the injury alone but must extend to the entire factual matrix, including the circumstances preceding and attendant upon the occurrence.

24. Viewed cumulatively, the circumstances proved by the prosecution do not persuade us to hold that the appellant had formed the intention either to cause the death of the deceased or to inflict that particular bodily injury which he knew to be sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death. At the same time, it would be wholly unrealistic to suggest that the appellant was unaware of the likely consequences of his act. A person who discharges a firearm at another, even in the course of a sudden quarrel, must ordinarily be attributed with the knowledge that such an act is likely to cause death. The knowledge contemplated by Part III of Section 299 IPC is, therefore, clearly established. What is not established beyond reasonable doubt is the higher degree of mens rea necessary to attract Clause Thirdly of Section 300 IPC.

25. The cumulative effect of the circumstances, therefore, persuades us to hold that the present case falls outside the ambit of Section 300 IPC and is more appropriately covered by Section 304 Part II IPC. The conviction of the appellant under Section 302 IPC recorded by the trial court cannot, therefore, be sustained and deserves to be altered accordingly.

26. The conviction of the appellant is accordingly altered from Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC to Section 304 Part II IPC.

27. The only question that now survives for consideration is the appropriate sentence to be imposed upon the appellant.

28. Ordinarily, an offence punishable under Section 304 Part II IPC would merit a substantial term of imprisonment, having regard to the gravity of the consequence resulting from the act. At the same time, sentencing is not an inflexible exercise. It must be informed not merely by the nature of the offence but also by the circumstances attending its commission, the passage of time since the occurrence, the conduct of the accused and other mitigating circumstances which have emerged on the record.

29. The occurrence in the present case took place on 15.05.1984, more than four decades ago. During this prolonged period, the appellant has remained under the shadow of criminal proceedings. It has been brought to our notice that he is now about ninety years of age. There is nothing on record to indicate that after the present occurrence he was involved in any other criminal activity. The incident itself arose out of a sudden quarrel relating to a dispute with Jai Narain, the deceased appellant and a co-accused, and was not the result of any premeditated design to eliminate the deceased. While none of these circumstances diminish the seriousness of the act, they nevertheless constitute relevant considerations while determining the appropriate sentence.

30. The object of sentencing is not merely to punish the offender but also to ensure that the punishment is proportionate to the degree of criminality established by the evidence. Once it is held that the prosecution has failed to prove the intention necessary to constitute murder and that the case falls under Section 304 Part II IPC, the sentence must reflect that altered degree of culpability. In the peculiar facts of the present case, particularly the advanced age of the appellant, the extraordinary lapse of time since the occurrence and the circumstances in which the offence was committed, we are of the considered opinion that the ends of justice would be adequately served by sentencing the appellant to the period already undergone coupled with payment of heavy fine.

31. Accordingly, while altering the conviction of the appellant from Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC to Section 304 Part II IPC, we sentence him to the period of imprisonment already undergone and a fine of Rs. 1,00,000/- (Rupees One Lakh) which shall be deposited by the appellant before the trial court within a period of three months from today. In the event of failure to deposit the aforesaid amount within the stipulated period, the appellant shall undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year.

32. The conviction of Rajendra under Section 201 IPC is not the subject matter of the present appeal. No further orders are, therefore, required in that regard.

33. The appeal is, accordingly, partly allowed. The conviction and sentence of the appellant under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC are set aside. Instead, the appellant is convicted under Section 304 Part II IPC and sentenced in the manner indicated above.

34. Since the appellant is on bail, he shall not be required to surrender, subject to his depositing the amount of fine within the period stipulated herein. His bail bonds and sureties shall stand discharged upon such deposit. In case of default, the trial court shall take appropriate steps in accordance with law to enforce the sentence and recover the fine as directed above.

35. Let the trial court record be transmitted forthwith to the trial court and the judgement be also certified to the trial court for information and compliance.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the sole testimony of the injured victim (P.W.1) is reliable and sufficient to sustain conviction despite the two independent witnesses being declared hostile.

Whether the ingredients of Section 307 IPC and Section 452 IPC stand established on the evidence.

Whether the sentence awarded by the trial court calls for any interference, including on the question of fine not having been imposed and the request for benefit of probation.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 27.11.1982 passed by the IV Additional Sessions Judge, Bijnor in Sessions Trial No. 203 of 1982 (State of U.P. Vs. Gajendra), arising out of Case Crime No. 231 of 1982, Police Station Kotwali City, District Bijnor.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Bhupendra Kumar Tripathi, D.N. Wali, Gaurav Kakkar, Ramesh Chandra Yadav
Counsel for Respondent(s): A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Santosh Rai, J.)

1. Heard Sri Gaurav Kakkar, learned counsel for the appellant; Sri Shyam Narain Rai, learned AGA for State and perused the material on record.

2. This criminal appeal is preferred under Section 374(2) of Cr.P.C., by the accused appellant Gajendra to set aside the judgment and order dated 27.11.1982, passed by the IV Additional Sessions Judge, Bijnor in Sessions Trial No.203 of 1982 (State of U.P. Vs. Gajendra), arising out of Case Crime No.231 of 1982, under Sections 452, 324, 325, 307 IPC, Police Station'Kotwali City, District'Bijnor, whereby the appellant has been sentenced to five years rigorous imprisonment under Section 307 IPC, sentenced to two years rigorous imprisonment under Section 452 IPC. All the sentences are directed to run concurrently.'

3. Briefly stated, the prosecution case is that on 19.5.1982 at about 9.30 a.m., the victim, Km. Rekha, was'alone in her house in village Bharera, within the circle of P.S. Kotwali City, District Bijnor, cleaning and'washing pulses (dal) at the handpump in the courtyard, the main door of the house being open at the time.'It is alleged that the appellant, armed with a knife, entered the house, caught hold of the victim from behind'and inflicted as many as ten incised wounds on different parts of her body with the intention of causing her'death. On her raising an alarm, Mahender Singh and Moola Singh, residents of the locality, arrived at the'spot and reprimanded the appellant, whereupon he fled. The victim's parents, who had gone to the fields,'returned on being informed and took her to the District Hospital, Bijnor, where Dr. V.K. Goel (P.W.4)'examined her injuries at 11.20 a.m. the same day and found ten incised wounds on her lip, chest, both'forearms, left hand, left palm, left index finger, right thigh, left thigh and left leg, all noted as clean-cut,'bleeding and clotted, and opined that the injuries were caused by a sharp-edged weapon such as a knife,'that they were consistent with having been inflicted at about 9.30 a.m. on 19.5.1982, and that the cumulative'effect of the said injuries was sufficient, in the ordinary course, to cause death.'After medical examination, the victim lodged a written report at the police station on the basis of which'a case was registered as Crime No.231 under Sections 452/324 IPC.

4. On completion of investigation, the'Investigating Officer, having recorded the statements of witnesses, prepared the site-plan and collected'blood-stained and plain earth from the spot, formed the opinion that the case fell under Section 307 IPC,'and the offence was accordingly amended. A charge-sheet was submitted on 6.7.1982, and the case was'committed to the Court of Sessions. The trial court framed charges against the appellant under Sections'452, 307, 324 IPC. The appellant pleaded not guilty and claimed trial, denying the occurrence in its'entirety.'

5. In support of its case, the prosecution examined five witnesses: P.W.1 Km. Rekha, the injured'complainant; P.W.2 Mahender Singh and P.W.3 Moola Singh, witnesses of the occurrence, both of whom'were declared hostile; P.W.4 Dr. V.K. Goel, who medically examined the injured; and P.W.5 Banwari Lal,'the Investigating Officer. P.W.2 and P.W.3, though declared hostile, admitted in cross-examination by the'learned defence counsel that the victim had, in fact, sustained knife injuries on the date and at the time'alleged, and P.W.3 further admitted to having seen the appellant standing outside the complainant's house.'

6. The prosecution has produced Ex.Ka.1 Tehrir, Ex.Ka.2 recovery memo of blood stained Parchajat, Ex.Ka.3 injury report, Ex.Ka.4 Site Plan, Ex.Ka.5 recovery memo of blood stained & plain soil, Ex.Ka.6 Chik report, Ex.Ka.7 Duplicate Report No.30, Ex.Ka.8 True statement of Mahendra, Ex.Ka.9 True statement of Mool Singh, Ex.Ka.10 Charge-sheet, Ex.Ka.11 True copy of GD, as documentary evidence in support of its case.

7. In brief the grounds of appeal are that the conviction of the appellant is against the weight of evidence on record and the conviction of the appellant is bad in law. The sentence is too severe.

8. The trial court, on a consideration of the evidence on record, found that although the motive set up by'the prosecution namely, a long-standing dispute over a right of way between the families was not'established to be of a serious or continuing character, non-proof of motive did not, by itself, demolish the'prosecution case where the occurrence stood otherwise proved by credible evidence. The trial court further'held that the sole testimony of the injured witness, P.W.1, was wholly reliable and trustworthy, being that'of a natural witness who was present in her own house, was consistent with the medical evidence in every'material particular, and stood corroborated, to the extent of the appellant's presence at the spot, by the'admission of the hostile witness P.W.3. On this basis, the trial court convicted the appellant under Sections'452 and 307 IPC and sentenced him as stated above. Aggrieved thereby, the appellant has preferred the'present appeal.'

9. Learned counsel for the appellant has assailed the impugned judgment on the following grounds: (i) that'the conviction rests on the solitary, uncorroborated testimony of P.W.1, the two independent witnesses of'the occurrence having been declared hostile; (ii) that the motive set up by the prosecution stood disproved'on the prosecution's own showing, the alleged dispute being two years old, minor and never the subject of'any complaint or report; (iii) that P.W.1 admitted in cross-examination that although the Investigating'Officer visited the house on the very day of occurrence and enquired into the matter, she did not reduce her'version to writing at that stage, which renders her subsequent version unsafe to act upon; and (iv) that the'nature and spread of the injuries on the hands, fingers, legs and chest are consistent with a struggle of a'different origin altogether, and it has not been ruled out that some person other than the appellant was the'real assailant. And the conviction resting on the testimony of a solitary witness must satisfy a standard of'unimpeachable reliability, and that a witness whose evidence appears to have been moulded to suit a chosen'prosecution theory ought not to be treated as a reliable witness.'

10. Learned AGA, per contra, has supported the impugned judgment and'submitted that P.W.1 is not merely a witness but the injured victim herself, whose presence at the place of'occurrence is beyond question and whose testimony carries an inherent guarantee of truthfulness, her'version is fully corroborated by the medical evidence of P.W.4 as to the number, nature, location and timing'of the injuries, and by the admission of the hostile witness P.W.3 that he had seen the appellant standing'outside the complainant's house. The alleged omission to reduce her statement to writing before the'Investigating Officer on the day of occurrence is a wholly peripheral matter that does not touch the core of'her testimony; and the nature of the injuries ten incised wounds inflicted with a knife on a lone, defenceless'girl, including wounds on the face, chest and both thighs, coupled with defensive wounds on the fingers'and palms unerringly point to an intention on the part of the appellant to cause her death, thereby satisfying'the ingredients of Section 307 IPC.'

11. On the rival submissions, the following points arise for determination, whether the trial court correctly'appreciated the evidence of P.W.1 and rightly held it to be reliable and trustworthy despite the absence of'independent corroboration in the strict sense, whether the ingredients of Section 307 IPC, namely the'requisite intention or knowledge, stand established on the evidence on record, whether the conviction under'Section 452 IPC is sustainable; and whether the sentence awarded by the trial court calls for any'interference, including on the question of the fine not having been imposed.'

12. Reliability of the testimony of P.W.1. It is well settled that the law does not insist on plurality of'witnesses, and a conviction can be founded on the testimony of a single witness if it is found to be wholly'reliable. The witnesses have been classified into three categories wholly reliable, wholly unreliable, and'neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable and that in the case of a wholly reliable witness, a court can'and should, act on the testimony of a single witness. Where, in addition, the witness is the injured victim'herself, her testimony carries a built-in guarantee of truthfulness and, ordinarily, requires no further'corroboration, unless there exist strong and cogent grounds to doubt it. On a careful perusal of the'deposition of P.W.1, this Court finds nothing in her testimony, or in the cross-examination directed at her,'which detracts from its inherent probability. She has given a consistent account of the manner in which the'appellant entered the house when she was alone, caught her from behind, and inflicted injuries upon her;'her account is corroborated in material particulars by the medical evidence of P.W.4 as to the number,'location, nature and approximate time of infliction of the injuries. It is further corroborated, to the extent of'the appellant's presence at the spot at the relevant time, by the admission extracted from the hostile witness'P.W.3 in cross-examination. The evidence of a witness declared hostile is not to be rejected in its entirety;'that part of it which finds support from other reliable material may be relied upon. The omission of P.W.1'to reduce her account to writing when first questioned by the Investigating Officer on the date of occurrence'is, at best, a discrepancy touching a wholly collateral matter and does not go to the root of the prosecution'case. Trivial variations of this kind, particularly in the testimony of rustic or unlettered witnesses recalling'a traumatic event, do not warrant rejection of otherwise trustworthy evidence.'

13. As regards motive, the trial court concluded that the dispute over the right of way, though spoken to by'P.W.1, was not shown to have been serious or of recent origin, no report having been lodged in that regard'for nearly two years preceding the occurrence. This Court is in agreement with the trial court that the motive,'as pleaded, does not appear to have been made out with the degree of gravity attributed to it by the'prosecution. However, it is settled law that failure to prove motive is not, by itself, fatal to the prosecution'case where the occurrence is otherwise established by cogent direct evidence; motive assumes significance'principally in cases resting on circumstantial evidence, and its absence or non-proof cannot outweigh clear,'direct and corroborated testimony of the kind available in the present case.'

14. Section 307 IPC does not require that the injury actually inflicted be'sufficient, in the ordinary course of nature, to cause death; what is essential is that the act be done with such'intention or knowledge, and under such circumstances, that if death had resulted, the offence would have'amounted to murder. The intention or knowledge of the accused is to be gathered from the nature of the'weapon used, the manner and severity of the assault, the part of the body targeted, and the surrounding'circumstances, including the number of blows inflicted. In the present case, the appellant, armed with a'knife, entered the house of the victim after satisfying himself that she was alone, and inflicted as many as'ten incised wounds on her body, including wounds on the face, close to the mouth, and on the chest region,'in addition to wounds on both thighs and the leg. The wounds on the palms and fingers of the victim are'consistent with defensive injuries sustained while warding off the blows, indicative of a sustained and'determined assault rather than a solitary or impulsive act. The medical evidence establishes that the'cumulative effect of the injuries was sufficient to cause death. The premeditated manner of entry timed to'when the victim was alone the choice of weapon, the number and location of the wounds, and the fact that'a life-threatening injury on the chest was inflicted, taken cumulatively, admit of no inference other than that'the appellant acted with the intention of causing the death of the victim. The trial court's finding that the'ingredients of Section 307 IPC stand fully established is, therefore, affirmed.'

15. The evidence establishes that the appellant entered the dwelling house of the victim without lawful'authority, at a time when she was alone, for the purpose of committing an offence upon her person, and in the course of such trespass he inflicted the injuries referred to above. The ingredients of house-trespass'having been committed after preparation for causing hurt, within the meaning of Section 452 IPC, are,'accordingly, made out, and the conviction of the appellant thereunder is upheld.'

16. Learned counsel for the appellant has made a faint submission that, having regard to the appellant's age'and the absence of any prior conviction, the sentence be reduced, or that the benefit of probation under the'Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 be extended to him. This Court is unable to accede to the submission.'The offence involved the brutal and repeated stabbing of a lone, defenceless young girl in her own home,'resulting in as many as ten incised wounds spread across virtually every part of her body, inflicted with a'degree of determination and violence sufficient, on the medical evidence, to have caused her death. The'nature and multiplicity of the injuries, the vulnerability of the victim, and the calculated manner in which'the appellant awaited an opportunity to find her alone before entering the house, are all circumstances of'aggravation. Having regard to the gravity, brutality and premeditated character of the offence, this is'manifestly not a case in which it would be appropriate, or in the interest of society, to extend to the appellant'the benefit of release on probation in lieu of sentence. The sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment'under Section 307 IPC and two years' rigorous imprisonment under Section 452 IPC, directed to run'concurrently, cannot be said to be excessive or disproportionate to the gravity of the offence, and calls for'no interference.'

17. One aspect requires notice. It has been pointed out that the trial court, while sentencing the appellant,'did not impose any sentence of fine. Section 307 IPC renders an offender "liable to fine" in addition to'imprisonment; the imposition of fine under this provision is a mandatory concomitant of the sentence of'imprisonment. Where the IPC provision prescribes punishment in the form:"shall be'punished with imprisonment ' and shall also be liable to fine', or"with'imprisonment and fine', the trial court is expected to impose fine also. Failure to'impose fine amounts to an error in sentencing.'The absence of fine, under section 307 IPC therefore, by itself constitute an infirmity in the sentence as'recorded. It may further be noted that neither the State nor the complainant has preferred any appeal or'revision under Section 377 Cr.P.C. seeking enhancement of the sentence by imposition of a fine. In an'appeal preferred solely by the convict under Section 374 Cr.P.C., this Court, exercising jurisdiction under'Section 386 Cr.P.C., cannot enhance the sentence to the appellant's prejudice in the absence of a cross-'appeal or notice for enhancement. No order is, therefore, called for on this count, and the sentence as'awarded by the trial court is maintained in its entirety.'

18. For the reasons stated above, this Court finds no infirmity, legal or factual, in the judgment and order'dated 27.11.1982 passed by the IV Additional Sessions Judge, Bijnor in Sessions Trial No.203 of 1982 (State of U.P. Vs. Gajendra), arising out of Case Crime No.231 of 1982, under Sections 452, 324, 325, 307 IPC, Police Station'Kotwali City, District'Bijnor. The findings of the trial court on the'reliability of the testimony of the injured witness, the corroborative value of the medical evidence, the'establishment of the ingredients of Section 307 IPC, are affirmed.'

19. The appeal is, accordingly, dismissed. The conviction and sentence recorded by the trial court are upheld'in their entirety.

20. The bail bonds of the accused-appellant stand canceled with intimidate effect. If the appellant is currently on bail, he is directed to surrender before the trial court concerned within a period of two weeks from today to serve out the remainder of substantive sentence.

21. If the appellant fails to surrender within stipulated period as above, learned trial court is directed to take immediate legal steps adopting coercive measures including issuance of non bailable warrant to take the appellant into custody for execution of sentence in accordance with law.

22. The appellant shall be entitled to benefit set up under Section 428 Cr.P.C.

23. Let trial court record along with copy of this judgment be transmitted 'forthwith' to the court concerned for information and necessary compliance.

24. The trial court is directed to submit its compliance report within two months from the date of receipt of this order. Further more, the registry is also directed to place the compliance report on record.

25. The Registrar (Compliance) is also directed to serve a copy of this order within one week by FAX/e-mail to the concerned court through District & Sessions Judge, Bijnor for compliance.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether PW-1 and PW-2 were present on the spot at the time of incident and their depositions are reliable or not?

Whether there is any inconsistency in the prosecution version of the incident and the medical evidence of the deceased available on record.

Whether in the present case, the FIR can be said to be ante timed FIR or not?

Whether the Ballistic Report denying use of recovered firearm weapons, makes the prosecution story suspicious or not?

Whether the prosecution could be said to have proved it's case against the appellants-convicts beyond reasonable doubt?

Criminal Law – Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Section 157, 174, 313, 374(2), – Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Sections 34, 302 : - Criminal Appeal - against conviction under Section 302 IPC and sentence of life imprisonment with fine – FIR - alleging that appellants armed with guns and rifle fired upon the deceased (who had recently purchased a disputed house) and others during talks of compromise, resulting in fatal firearm injuries – investigation – inquest - post-mortem - recoveries of empty cartridges, blood-stained soil and two DBBL guns - site plan prepared - charge-sheets filed – charges framed under Section 302/34 IPC – prosecution examined informant (son of deceased), eye-witness (brother of deceased), scribe, doctor and Investigating Officer – appellants pleaded false implication, absence of eye-witnesses, ante-timed FIR, inconsistency with medical evidence, non-matching ballistic report and absence of specific role/common intention – Court finds that, depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 are consistent regarding date, time, place and manner of incident and fully corroborated by site plan and medical evidence of ante-mortem firearm injuries - minor contradictions are natural and do not affect credibility - FIR was promptly lodged and cannot be treated as ante-timed merely because of delayed receipt by Magistrate when other documents bear the correct date - non-matching of recovered firearms with empty cartridges is not fatal as recovery of weapon is not sine qua non and actual weapons used may not have been recovered - all appellants arrived together armed, exhorted, surrounded the deceased and fired indiscriminately, establishing common intention – held, prosecution proved its case beyond reasonable doubt - conviction under Section 302 IPC is altered to Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and sentence is affirmed – hence appeal dismissed – directions issued accordingly.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 03.07.2013 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 3, Fatehpur in Session Trial No. 38 of 2009 under Sections 302/34 IPC, Police Station Kishunpur, District Fatehpur.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Mangla Prasad Rai, Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Pawan Kumar Pandey Counsel for Respondent(s): Sri Vikas Goswami, learned A.G.A. for State and Sri Kamal Krishna, Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Vivek Kumar Singh for informant.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Ajay Kumar-II, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mangla Prasad Rai, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Pawan Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Vikas Goswami, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State-respondent, Sri Kamal Krishna, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Vivek Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the informant and perused the record.

2. The instant Criminal Appeal under Section 374(2) of Cr.P.C. has been filed against the judgment and order dated 03.07.2013 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Fatehpur in Session Trial No. 38 of 2009, under Sections 302/34 IPC, Police Station Kishunpur, District Fatehpur, whereby the appellants were convicted and sentenced for life imprisonment and fine of Rs.10,000/- each for the offence under Section 302 IPC, in default of payment of fine, they have to undergo one year additional rigorous imprisonment.

3. Prosecution story, in nutshell, as unfolded in Written Report/Tehrir (Ex.Ka-1), is as follows:

The informant Rajendra Singh got a registered sale deed of fallen down kutcha house in the name of his father Bhura Singh @ Shivsharan Singh from Awadhram. On 11.10.2008, the first informant and his father were going to Ram Swaroop for a compromise. Jhaller Singh was also following behind. When the talks of compromise were going on, just then, the appellant Dinesh Chandra Shukla armed with single barrel gun, the appellant Akhilesh Chandra Shukla and Anil Kumar Shukla armed with double barrel guns and Sunil Kumar Shukla armed with rifle (which was Ram Swaroop's licensed rifle), came there and after exhortation, they started firing, consequently, father of the first informant Bhura Singh became injured. Hearing the sound of firing, many peoples of the village came at the place of the incident and an atmosphere of terror was created in the village. The informant and Jhaller Singh took Bhura Singh in an injured condition to Vijaipur Hospital, where the deceased succumbed to his injuries.

4. On the basis of aforementioned Written Report/Tehrir (Ex.Ka-1), a First Information Report (Ex.Ka-2) as Case Crime No. 273/08, under Section 302/34 IPC, was registered on 11.10.2008 at 5:30 PM at Police Station Kishunpur, District Fatehpur against the accused.

5. On 12.10.2008, the autopsy of the deceased Bhura Singh was performed by PW-4 Dr. P.K. Pandey at the Vijaipur Hospital, who found two multiple firearm wounds on his person and as per opinion of the Doctor, the cause of death of the deceased was shock and hemorrhage due to ante-mortem firearm injuries.

6. The Investigating Officer (the then S.O. Kishunpur) Ram Swaroop Verma PW-5 started the investigation and after inspection of the spot, prepared the site plan (Ex.Ka-11). He recorded the statements of the informant as well as Jhaller Singh on 11.11.2008. He conducted the inquest proceedings and prepared the inquest report (Ex.Ka-5). He also prepared documents related to the post mortem of the deceased Bhura Singh and sent the body for the post mortem after sealing. He proved Letter to C.M.O. (Ex.Ka-6), Sample Seal (Ex.Ka-7), Challan Nash (Ex.Ka-8), Photo Nash (Ex.Ka-9) and Letter to C.M.O. sent by R.I. (Ex.Ka-10). He inspected the crime scene and prepared its site plan (Ex.Ka-11). He recovered blood stained and plain soil and four 12-bore red coloured (K F Special make with brass base) empty cartridges and one plastic wad from the crime scene and prepared its recovery memo (Ex.Ka-12). Accused Dinesh Chandra Shukla and Sunil Kumar Shukla were arrested on 12.10.2008. He arrested Anil Kumar Shukla on 17.08.2008 and recovered DBBL gun used in the crime with its license. He prepared its recovery memo (Ex.Ka-13) and also prepared site plan of place of recovery of weapon of offence (Ex.ka-14). He obtained post mortem report and he also received photocopy of the sale deed and judgment of convictions regarding accused Akhilesh Chandra Shukla and Dinesh Chandra Shukla. He concluded the investigation against accused Dinesh Chandra Shukla, Anil Kumar Shukla and Sunil Kumar Shukla on 22.11.2008 and filed a charge sheet (Ex.Ka-15) under Section 302/34 IPC. Later on accused Akhilesh Chandra Shukla surrendered in Court and after recording his statement, he submitted a separate charge sheet (Ex.Ka-16) against him under Section 302/34 IPC on 20.12.2008.

7. Thereafter, cognizance was taken upon the said charge sheet and the case was committed to the Court of Sessions.

8. Accused appeared before the Court and after hearing both the parties, charges were framed under Section 302/34 IPC against the accused. The accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

9. Trial started, in order to prove it's case, the prosecution adduced PW-1 informant Rajendra Singh (son of the deceased) PW-2 Jhaller Singh (eye witness of the incident and brother of the deceased), PW-3 Constable Santosh Kumar, (Scribe of Chik FIR), PW-4 Dr. P.K. Pandey (Autopsy Surgeon) and PW-5 Ram Swaroop Verma (Investigating Officer).

10. In support of oral version, following documents were filed and proved on behalf of the prosecution.

Written Report/Tehrir (Ex.Ka-1), First Information Report (Ex.Ka-2), G.D. of the registered case (Ex.Ka-3), Post Mortem Report (Ex.Ka-4), Inquest Report (Ex.Ka-5), Letter to C.M.O. (Ex.Ka-6), Sample Seal (Ex.Ka-7), Challan Nash (Ex.Ka-8), Photo Nash (Ex.Ka-9), Letter to C.M.O. sent by R.I. (Ex.Ka-10), Site Plan (Ex.Ka-11) Memo of taking blood stained and plain soil and four empty cartridges into possession (Ex.Ka-12), Memo of personal search and recovery of one DBBL Gun No. 11908 along with License No. 2528 and arrest of the accused (Ex.Ka-13), Site Plan of place of recovery of weapon of offence (Ex.Ka-14), Charge Sheets (Ex.Ka-15 and Ex. Ka-16) and Forensic Science Laboratory Report (Ex.Ka-17).

11. After the prosecution evidence was over, all adverse/ incriminating circumstances relied upon by the prosecution were disclosed to accused in question answer form for their version of occurrence as per mandate of Section 313 Cr.P.C. Accused denied all those adverse/incriminating facts put to them and said that the prosecution case is false, they are innocent and falsely implicated. Investigation was not done in fair and impartial manner.

12. The trial Court after having heard learned counsel for the parties and after going through the entire record, vide impugned judgment and order, convicted and sentenced the appellants-convicts under Section 302 IPC. Hence, feeling aggrieved with the said judgment and order, the appellants-convicts have filed the present criminal appeal.

13. Assailing the findings, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellants-convicts vehemently argued that the deceased Bhura Singh was having criminal history and was thus a man of bad character, therefore, he was murdered by someone else and the appellants-convicts have been falsely implicated in the present case. PW-1 and PW-2 both were not present on the spot and had not seen the incident. PW-2 has himself admitted in his cross-examination that he was not present on the spot and that is why he has not seen the injuries of the deceased. It has come in evidence that the concerned police station was situated prior to Vijaipur Hospital but the FIR was not registered promptly while bringing the deceased from the place of incident to Hospital, in the police station, which was on the way. The FIR has reached the concerned Magistrate on 15.10.2008 and thus, the FIR is anti timed and anti dated. There is inconsistency between the prosecution story and the firearm injuries sustained by the deceased. The prosecution has not able to establish the place of incident. As per the prosecution story, four empty cartridges were recovered from the spot but the FSL report is clear that those empty cartridges did not match with the recovered DBBL guns, which were allegedly used by the appellants in the incident and were recovered as murder weapons, even one SBBL gun allegedly used in the alleged incident, was also not recovered, therefore, the prosecution has miserably failed to prove that the alleged murder weapons were used in the incident by the appellants. The learned trial Court has failed to appreciate that rifle was not used in the incident, therefore, the appellant Sunil Chandra Shukla did not share common intention to murder.

14. Lastly, it was argued that no specific role of any of the appellants has been assigned. All the appellants have been convicted under section 302 IPC, without aid of Section 34 IPC. For recording of conviction under Section 302 IPC, learned trial Court was bound to record a finding that which shot hit the deceased and at which part of his body. As the prosecution has failed to prove the same, therefore, the aforesaid judgment of conviction is bad in law. The learned trial Court has misinterpreted the evidence available on record. The prosecution has miserably failed to prove the charges against the appellants-convicts, however by misreading the evidence, the learned trial Court has wrongly convicted and sentenced the appellants-convicts.

15. Learned A.G.A. for the State and learned Senior Counsel for the informant vehemently opposed the submissions made on behalf of the appellants-convicts and submitted that the deceased purchased a fallen down house from one Awadhram and the appellants wanted to grab the same and got the land of this recently purchased house measured from one Advocate. When the deceased was talking to Ram Swaroop for the purpose of compromise regarding this recently purchased fallen house, the appellants came on spot and surrounded the deceased, who was at that time accompanied with his son (informant) and his elder brother Jhaller Singh. The deceased and both his companions tried to save their lives, then the appellants-convicts started indiscriminate firing from the roof of Ram Swaroop Singh. The prosecution has proved the motive behind this murder. Both the eye witnesses, i.e. the informant and Jhaller Singh were present on the spot and had seen the incident. Both the eye witnesses have been cross-examined at length, but their depositions as far as manner of incident are concerned, is consistent. The documentary as well as medical evidence clearly establishes that the deceased suffered ante-mortem firearm injuries and he finally succumbed to his ante-mortem firearm injuries.

16. It was argued that the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 are fully reliable, which find corroboration from the medical evidence available on record. It has come on record that all the appellants came on the spot together and started indiscriminate firing, therefore, all the appellants shared a common intention to murder. There is no reason for false implication of the appellants in the present case. There is no inconsistency in the persecution version and the medical evidence, rather the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 find full corroboration from the medical evidence available on record. The appellants have not denied the property dispute as well as the fact that the widowed daughter-in-law of Awadhram was working in the house of the appellants and even not a single suggestion has been given to the prosecution witnesses denying these facts.

17. It was lastly argued that FSL report is not helpful to the appellant as there is a possibility that actual murder weapons had not been recovered and that is why, the recovered weapons did not match with the recovered empty cartridges from the spot. The appellants-convicts have committed murder of the deceased with common intention and the learned trial Court while convicting the appellants has clearly stated so, in its conclusion recorded at page-24 of the impugned judgment. However inadvertently, section 34 IPC is missing. Section 34 IPC is not a substantive offence, thus, there is no merit in the appeal and learned A.G.A. as well as learned Senior Counsel for the informant, thus urged for dismissal of appeal.

18. In the light of above arguments, following questions arise for consideration of the present appeal.

1. Whether PW-1 and PW-2 were present on the spot at the time of incident and their depositions are reliable or not?

2. Whether there is any inconsistency in the prosecution version of the incident and the medical evidence of the deceased available on record.

3. Whether in the present case, the FIR can be said to be ante timed FIR or not?

4. Whether the Ballistic Report denying use of recovered firearm weapons, makes the prosecution story suspicious or not?

5. Whether the prosecution could be said to have proved it's case against the appellants-convicts beyond reasonable doubt?

ANALYSIS

ORAL EVIDENCE ON RECORD

19. In the present case, the prosecution has examined informant Rajendra Kumar PW-1 and Jhaller Singh PW-2 as eye witnesses of the incident. It is on the strength of depositions of these two eye witnesses clubbed with other evidence available on record, the learned trial Court has decided the case against the appellants-convicts. The evaluation of depositions of these two witnesses is very important to find out the involvement of appellants-convicts in the present incident. Therefore, the evaluation of their depositions will be dealt with later on in this judgment.

20. PW-3 Constable Santosh Kumar is a formal witness, who is scribe of the FIR. This witness has proved the FIR as Ex.Ka-2 and relevant G.D. as Ex.Ka-3. In his cross-examination, this witness has stated that the FIR was received in the Court concerned on 15.10.2008. No other FIR was registered on 11.10.2008.

21. PW-4 Dr. P.K. Pandey, Autopsy Surgeon has conducted the autopsy of the deceased Bhura Singh on 12.10.2008 and has proved post mortem report as Ex.Ka-4. The Autopsy Surgeon found following two multiple firearm injuries on his person:

(i) Multiple firearm entry wounds in an area of 40 x 30 cm, which were from below the neck to the chest and abdomen.

(ii) Multiple firearm wounds in an area of 6 x 18 cm on the left arm. Six small metal pellets were recovered from the body, which were sent to S.S.P., through the C.M.S.

22. This witness (PW-4) stated in his examination-in-chief that the age of the deceased was about 48 years. The deceased was of average height and build. Post-mortem rigor mortis had passed from the upper part and was passing from the lower part; the mouth was closed and the eyes were opened. In internal examination, one and half liters of blood and clots were found between the lung membranes. Heart was found empty. There was a hole in the heart membrane. Both lungs were pale. There was a hole in the left ventricle of the heart and one pellet was recovered from inside it. The brain and brain membranes were pale (congested). In the opinion of this Autopsy Surgeon, the cause of death was shock and hemorrhage due to ante-mortem firearm injuries and the time of death was one day before the incident. He further deposed that it is possible that the deceased could have died on 11.10.2008. at 4:00 pm from fire arm injuries.

23. In his cross-examination, this witness (PW-4) has stated that there could be difference of 4-6 hours in the time of death. The deceased could have died around 8:00 pm on 11.10.2008. All injuries of the deceased were on the front part of his body and therefore, injuries have been inflicted from the front side. These ante-mortem injuries must have been inflicted at-least from the distance of more than one meter. He cannot tell whether all injuries of the deceased could have been caused even by a single fire. The direction regarding firearm injuries has not been stated; an expert can tell this. The deceased must have eaten food within 6 hours of his death.

24. From the deposition of this witness (PW-4), it is clear that the deceased sustained two ante-mortem firearm injuries on his two different parts of the body, one firearm injury was on his chest and abdomen portion and other injury was on his left arm. One pellet was also recovered by the Autopsy Surgeon from the left ventricle of the heart. A total of six small pellets were finally recovered from the body of the deceased, which were sent to S.S.P. and those pellets were also sent to Forensic Science Laboratory for examination. Therefore, from the deposition of this Autopsy Surgeon, it is clear that the deceased (Bhura Singh) sustained two firearm injuries on left side of his body. The deceased could have sustained these injuries at the time of incident and he finally succumbed to his firearm injuries.

25. The then S.O. Swaroop Verma was the Investigating Officer, who has been examined as PW-5 and he in his examination-in-chief has deposed regarding investigation done by him. This witness has proved the inquest report and other police papers as Ex.Ka-5 to Ka-10. This witness has also proved various other prosecution papers like site plan, various recovery memos, charge sheets etc. as Exs. Ka-11 to Ka-16. The evidence related to this case was also sent by him to Forensic Science Laboratory, Lucknow for examination. He proved FSL report as Ex.Ka-17. He also proved one DBBL gun bearing No. 11908, which was recovered from the possession of accused Anil Kumar Shukla as Material Ex-1 and other gun of accused Akhilesh Chandra Shukla bearing No. 18755 as Material Ex-2. He also proved one plastic wad as Material Ex.3, four empty 12 bore cartridges (red-coloured, 'K F Special make with brass base) as Material Exs. 4, 5, 6 and 7. He also proved one sealed tin box containing plain soil as Material Ex.-8 and other containing blood stained soil as Material Ex.9. This witness has also been cross-examined at length. He stated that as per the FIR, the informant Rajendra Kumar and Jhaller Singh both were the eye witnesses of the incident and both these witnesses were also present at the time of inquest, however, he has not made them witness of inquest. He conducted the inquest proceedings in Vijaipur Hospital. It is wrong to state that Written Report/Tehrir was prepared later on as anti timed and anti dated with his consultation. The place of incident is near Dharamshala. He has shown the spot from where he took plain soil and blood stained soil from bricks (this spot has been shown as pile of bricks near point 'B' in the site plan). It was mentioned in the FIR that licensee rifle of Ram Swaroop was used in the incident, however, the same was found to be false. In the FIR, use of SBBL gun of accused Dinesh Chandra Shukla was mentioned, however, during the course of investigation, he came to know that the aforesaid licensee SBBL gun of accused Dinesh Chandra Shukla was already deposited. The deceased was having criminal history, which has been recorded by him in the Case Diary. It is wrong to state that he has not conducted fair investigation in the matter. It is also wrong to state that he has filed false charge sheet against the accused.

Question No.1. Whether PW-1 and PW-2 were present on the spot at the time of incident and their depositions are reliable or not?

26. On the point of appreciation of oral evidence of a witness the Apex Court in Balu Sudam Khalde v. State of Maharashtra, (2023) 13 SCC 365, held the law in following words:

"Appreciation of oral evidence

25. The appreciation of ocular evidence is a hard task. There is no fixed or strait jacket formula for appreciation of the ocular evidence. The judicially evolved principles for appreciation of ocular evidence in a criminal case can be enumerated as under:

"I. While appreciating the evidence of a witness, the approach must be whether the evidence of the witness read as a whole appears to have a ring of truth. Once that impression is formed, it is undoubtedly necessary for the Court to scrutinise the evidence more particularly keeping in view the deficiencies, drawbacks and infirmities pointed out in the evidence as a whole and evaluate them to find out whether it is against the general tenor of the evidence given by the witness and whether the earlier evaluation of the evidence is shaken as to render it unworthy of belief.

II. If the court before whom the witness gives evidence had the opportunity to form the opinion about the general tenor of evidence given by the witness, the appellate court which had not this benefit will have to attach due weight to the appreciation of evidence by the trial court and unless there are reasons weighty and formidable it would not be proper to reject the evidence on the ground of minor variations or infirmities in the matter of trivial details.

III. When eyewitness is examined at length it is quite possible for him to make some discrepancies. But courts should bear in mind that it is only when discrepancies in the evidence of a witness are so incompatible with the credibility of his version that the court is justified in jettisoning his evidence.

IV. Minor discrepancies on trivial matters not touching the core of the case, hypertechnical approach by taking sentences torn out of context here or there from the evidence, attaching importance to some technical error committed by the investigating officer not going to the root of the matter would not ordinarily permit rejection of the evidence as a whole.

V. Too serious a view to be adopted on mere variations falling in the narration of an incident (either as between the evidence of two witnesses or as between two statements of the same witness) is an unrealistic approach for judicial scrutiny.

VI. By and large a witness cannot be expected to possess a photographic memory and to recall the details of an incident. It is not as if a video tape is replayed on the mental screen.

VII. Ordinarily it so happens that a witness is overtaken by events. The witness could not have anticipated the occurrence which so often has an element of surprise. The mental faculties therefore cannot be expected to be attuned to absorb the details.

VIII. The powers of observation differ from person to person. What one may notice, another may not. An object or movement might emboss its image on one person's mind whereas it might go unnoticed on the part of another.

IX. By and large people cannot accurately recall a conversation and reproduce the very words used by them or heard by them. They can only recall the main purport of the conversation. It is unrealistic to expect a witness to be a human tape recorder.

X. In regard to exact time of an incident, or the time duration of an occurrence, usually, people make their estimates by guesswork on the spur of the moment at the time of interrogation. And one cannot expect people to make very precise or reliable estimates in such matters. Again, it depends on the time-sense of individuals which varies from person to person.

XI. Ordinarily a witness cannot be expected to recall accurately the sequence of events which take place in rapid succession or in a short time span. A witness is liable to get confused, or mixed up when interrogated later on.

XII. A witness, though wholly truthful, is liable to be overawed by the court atmosphere and the piercing cross-examination by counsel and out of nervousness mix up facts, get confused regarding sequence of events, or fill up details from imagination on the spur of the moment. The subconscious mind of the witness sometimes so operates on account of the fear of looking foolish or being disbelieved though the witness is giving a truthful and honest account of the occurrence witnessed by him.

XIII. A former statement though seemingly inconsistent with the evidence need not necessarily be sufficient to amount to contradiction. Unless the former statement has the potency to discredit the later statement, even if the later statement is at variance with the former to some extent it would not be helpful to contradict that witness."

[See Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v. State of Gujarat [Bharwada Bhoginbhai Hirjibhai v. State of Gujarat, (1983) 3 SCC 217 : 1983 SCC (Cri) 728 : AIR 1983 SC 753] , Leela Ram v. State of Haryana [Leela Ram v. State of Haryana, (1999) 9 SCC 525 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 222 : AIR 1999 SC 3717] and Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P. [Tahsildar Singh v. State of U.P., 1959 SCC OnLine SC 17 : AIR 1959 SC 1012]

27. In assessing the value of the evidence of the eyewitnesses, two principal considerations are whether, in the circumstances of the case, it is possible to believe their presence at the scene of occurrence or in such situations as would make it possible for them to witness the facts deposed to by them and secondly, whether there is anything inherently improbable or unreliable in their evidence. In respect of both these considerations, circumstances either elicited from those witnesses themselves or established by other evidence tending to improbabilise their presence or to discredit the veracity of their statements, will have a bearing upon the value which a court would attach to their evidence. Although in cases where the plea of the accused is a mere denial, the evidence of the prosecution witnesses has to be examined on its own merits, where the accused raise a definite plea or put forward a positive case which is inconsistent with that of the prosecution, the nature of such plea or case and the probabilities in respect of it will also have to be taken into account while assessing the value of the prosecution evidence."

27. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bhagwan Jagannath Markad v. State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537, explained that:

"19. While appreciating the evidence of a witness, the court has to assess whether read as a whole, it is truthful. In doing so, the court has to keep in mind the deficiencies, drawbacks and infirmities to find out whether such discrepancies shake the truthfulness. Some discrepancies not touching the core of the case are not enough to reject the evidence as a whole. No true witness can escape from giving some discrepant details. Only when discrepancies are so incompatible as to affect the credibility of the version of a witness, the court may reject the evidence. Section 155 of the Evidence Act enables the doubt to impeach the credibility of the witness by proof of former inconsistent statement. Section 145 of the Evidence Act lays down the procedure for contradicting a witness by drawing his attention to the part of the previous statement which is to be used for contradiction. The former statement should have the effect of discrediting the present statement but merely because the latter statement is at variance to the former to some extent, it is not enough to be treated as a contradiction. It is not every discrepancy which affects the creditworthiness and the trustworthiness of a witness. There may at times be exaggeration or embellishment not affecting the credibility. The court has to sift the chaff from the grain and find out the truth. A statement may be partly rejected or partly accepted [Leela Ram v. State of Haryana, (1999) 9 SCC 525, pp. 532-35, paras 9-13 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 222] . Want of independent witnesses or unusual behaviour of witnesses of a crime is not enough to reject evidence. A witness being a close relative is not enough to reject his testimony if it is otherwise credible. A relation may not conceal the actual culprit. The evidence may be closely scrutinised to assess whether an innocent person is falsely implicated. Mechanical rejection of evidence even of a 'partisan' or 'interested' witness may lead to failure of justice. It is well known that principle 'falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus' has no general acceptability [Gangadhar Behera v. State of Orissa, (2002) 8 SCC 381, pp. 392-93, para 15 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 32] . On the same evidence, some accused persons may be acquitted while others may be convicted, depending upon the nature of the offence. The court can differentiate the accused who is acquitted from those who are convicted. A witness may be untruthful in some aspects but the other part of the evidence may be worthy of acceptance. Discrepancies may arise due to error of observations, loss of memory due to lapse of time, mental disposition such as shock at the time of occurrence and as such the normal discrepancy does not affect the credibility of a witness.

20. Exaggerated to the rule of benefit of doubt can result in miscarriage of justice. Letting the guilty escape is not doing justice. A Judge presides over the trial not only to ensure that no innocent is punished but also to see that guilty does not escape. [Gangadhar Behera case, (2002) 8 SCC 381, p. 394, para 17]

31. As already observed, the discrepancies of trivial nature could not be the basis of rejecting the evidence of injured eyewitnesses nor non-examination of some of the witnesses be a ground to reject the prosecution case when injured eyewitnesses were examined.

32. We may also refer to the judgment of this Court in Masalti v. State of U.P. [Masalti v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 202 : (1965) 1 Cri LJ 226 : (1964) 8 SCR 133] to the effect that the evidence of interested partisan witnesses though required to be carefully weighed, the same could not be discredited mechanically. When a crowd of unlawful assembly commits an offence, it is often not possible to accurately describe the part played by each of the assailants. Though the appreciation of evidence in such cases may be a difficult task, the court has to perform its duty of sifting the evidence carefully.

28. In the light of above well settled legal position regarding appreciation of oral evidence of eye-witnesses, we shall now be evaluating the depositions of PW-1 Rajendra Kumar and PW-2 Jhaller Singh.

29. PW-1 the informant Rajendra Singh in his examination-in-chief has stated that his father has got a sale deed of the house and plot executed from Awadhram on 07.10.2008. The aforesaid house and plot is situated in front the house of Ram Swaroop Singh and Awadhram used to live therein alongwith his family. During rain, the said house fell down because of which, Awadhram started to live in another house. Awardhram's widowed daughter-in-law Rupa Devi used to live in the aforesaid house regarding which, sale deed was executed by Awadhram, all the accused used to provide shelter to Rupa Devi and she also used to work in the houses of accused Dinesh Chandra etc. Awadhram was also having 6-7 bighas of agricultural land and accused wanted that after his death, agricultural land and house would come in the name of Rupa Devi and they will take these from Rupa Devi. For this reason, all the accused alongwith Rupa Devi got a measurement of the aforesaid house and plot from Advocate Akhilesh Chandra Shukla and talked about filing of a civil suit. On this, they suspected that they would not get the possession of the house mentioned in the sale deed and their money would be lost, therefore, informant, his father and his uncle (called as 'Dada') Jhaller Singh went to Ram Swaroop Singh for a compromise. Ram Swaroop Singh was having acquaintance and good relations/rapport with Dinesh Chandra and that is why they had gone to Ram Swaroop.

30. PW-1 further stated that they were talking with Ram Swaroop Singh in front of door of his house, then accused Dinesh Chandra Shukla, carrying single barrel gun, Akhilesh Chandra Shukla, carrying double barrel gun, Anil Kumar Shukla, carrying a double barrel gun and Sunil Kumar Shukla, carrying a rifle in their hands, came there and exhorted to kill them and also said that they (informant's side) should not be allowed to escape. Seeing themselves surrounded, they all ran towards Dharamshala and then aforesaid four accused climbed onto the roof of Ram Swaroop Singh's house and reached near the corner of the roof and started indiscriminate firing. When these peoples were firing, then he and his grandfather hid behind the wall of Bhagat Singh's house. His father was on the road at southern-western corner of Bhagat Singh's house, where he was shot. After his father was shot, they took his father to Vijaipur Hospital in an injured condition on a motor-cycle and he died upon reaching the Hospital.

31. PW-1 further stated that he got scribed the Written Report/Tehrir from Neeraj Singh and presented the same in the police station on the same day. He proved the Written Report/Tehrir as Ex.Ka-1. The said incident had happened at 4:00 pm on 11.10.2008. After this incident, case for the house and plot related to the sale deed, was filed in the Munsif Court, Khaga, which is still pending. Accused Akhilesh Chandra Shukla was convicted under Section 302 IPC in a case of Khaga. Accused Dinesh Chandra Shukla was also sentenced to five years imprisonment in a case under Section 307 IPC, Police Station Kishunpur. He and his uncle (PW-2) have witnessed the said incident. The Investigating Officer recovered blood stained, plain soil and four empty cartridges 12-bore from the spot and recovery memo was prepared and his signature was obtained on the same. The aforesaid recovery memo is available on record.

32. The examination-in-chief of this witness was recorded on 17.05.2010, however on an adjournment application of the defence, cross-examination of this witness was deferred for the next day. This witness was cross-examined on 19.05.2010 and 20.05.2010. In his cross-examination, this witness denied having knowledge that how many criminal cases were pending against his father. This witness denied the defence suggestion that the alleged incident had happened at a different time, in different situation and at a different place. He stated that they went to Ram Swaroop Singh for a compromise. He cannot tell that why the aforesaid fact is not written by the Investigating Officer in his statement. Rupa Devi is the wife of Madhurendra and is having one son and one daughter at the time of incident. She was residing in the house in question alongwith her children much before the execution of the sale deed. They went to Ram Swaroop for a compromise. The fact of compromise was not decided before hand and it is not that the accused fired during compromise. The place where the compromise was being talked, was shown to the Investigating Officer at the time of spot inspection. The Investigating Officer had done the spot inspection and had prepared the map at the same time. There is an old Neem tree at the door of Ram Swaroop and charpai, takhat, etc. are not kept under it. The door of Ram Swaroop's house faces the east. It was the month of October and was not dark at all. The discussion regarding compromise was not going on inside the house of Ram Swaroop, however, it was going on outside of his house.

33. PW-1 further stated in his cross-examination that the place where the compromise was being discussed was situated at the distance of 10-12 feet south from the main door of Ram Swaroop. The aforesaid fact narrated by this witness in his cross-examination corroborates site plan (Ex.Ka-11) of the place of incident. It has been shown in site plan (Ex.Ka-11) that the main door of the house of Ram Swaroop is situated on eastern direction and discussions were going on at some distance in southern direction from his main door. He further deposed that he got written in his report that at the time of incident, Sunil Kumar was carrying licensee rifle of Ram Swaroop Singh and had fired. He got written this in Written Report/Tehrir on the basis of suspicion. His father was not injured by the rifle as it hit the ground. He had got written the fact of rifle in the Written Report/Tehrir on the basis of suspicion that is why it was put in bracket. Except for the above matters, he did not write anything in his report on the basis of suspicion. Where they were standing the house of Bhagat Singh was approximately 25-30 steps to the south and Bhagat Singh's door opens in front of Ram Swaroop's house (this fact also corroborate the site plan). He further confirmed door of Bhagat Singh will be 20-25 steps to the south from the place, where they were standing and talking about the compromise. Bhagat Singh has a quite long and wide house. Adjacent to western wall of Bhagat Singh's house is the residential house of Sushil Kumar Singh. The path adjacent to the south of Sushil Kumar's house, is to the east-west. To the south of Sushil Kumar's house is Chavi Nath Maurya's house, to the east-south of Chavi Nath Maurya's house is the Dharamshala. This Dharamshala is longer in the east-west direction and it's door open in the north direction, i.e., towards the back of Bhagat Singh's house. A path goes east-west between Bhagat Singh's southern wall and the Dharamshala, it was behind this southern wall that he and his uncle hid at the time of incident. They were hiding at the southern corner of Bhagat Singh's house and he had shown this place to the Investigating Officer. These facts also corroborates the site plan (Ex.Ka-11).

34. PW-1 further stated in his cross-examination that when they were running, he was leading, his uncle was behind him and his father was behind his uncle. His father was shot, while standing. He and his uncle were sitting at that time. They were sitting two steps behind the corner of the southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house. In total, 5-6 shots were fired from the roof of the spot, i.e. the place of incident. There was parapet on the south side of the roof of Ram Swaroop Singh's house and accused fired from two steps away from this parapet, however, neither he nor his uncle has received any injury because there was a wall between them, which belongs to Bhagat Singh. After getting injured, his father fell on his right side. He did not take his father to his home from the spot, but he took him to Vijaipur Hospital. He and his uncle took his father to the Hospital on motorcycle from the murder spot. Four empty cartridges of 12-bore were recovered from the spot. He signed the recovery memo.

35. We have carefully perused the whole deposition of this witness. He (PW-1) has been extensively cross-examined on two different dates. The deposition of this witness as far as date, time, place and manner of incident is concerned, is consistent in both his cross-examination as well as examination-in-chief. This witness was cross-examined at length as far as place of incident is concerned, he has answered all the questions relating to the place of incident including various houses, directions of various pathways on the spot and he has answered every question in his cross-examination very precisely and his answer qua place of incident, fully corroborates the contents of site plan. The manner of incident is also fully corroborated by the particulars mentioned in the site plan. It has been clearly shown in the site plan (Ex.Ka-11) that when they were talking to Ram Swaroop, they were standing at point 'A' from where they ran towards southern direction and took shelter of southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house. In front of southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house, a Dharamshala is situated. He has clearly depicted the position of houses of Bhagat Singh, Sushil Kumar Singh and Chavi Nath Maurya. He has also clearly depicted the position of point 'A' from the main door of Ram Swaroop. It is clearly shown in the site plan that this witness and his uncle were sitting at point 'C' and 'D' at the time of indiscriminate firing and his father was at point 'B' at the time, when he was shot. There is no contradiction in his whole deposition regarding the date, time, place and manner of incident. The documentary as well as ocular medical evidence also corroborates the deposition of this witness that the deceased sustained ante-mortem firearm injuries at the time of incident. As his deposition is consistent, therefore, we are of the considered opinion that this witness was present on the spot at the time of incident and had seen the incident. This witness has narrated the whole incident and we find his deposition a reliable one.

36. PW-2 Jhaller Singh in his examination-in-chief has stated that his brother Bhura Singh got a sale deed of a fallen down ruined house of Awadhram on 7.10.2008. This ruined house was situated in front of Ram Swaroop Singh's house. Before this incident, Awadhram had moved to another house. Rupa Devi is the daughter-in-law of Awadhram, who is a widow. Dinesh Chandra and Akhilesh Chandra used to give her (Rupa Devi) protection. They earlier wanted to take Awadhram's house by coaxing and misleading Rupa Devi. Rupa Devi used to do household work at the accused's house. The incident is dated 11.10.2008 and time of incident was about 4:00-4:15 pm.

The said accused got measurement of the ruined house from a lawyer and when his brother came to know about this fact, then he and his brother Bhura Singh and son of Bhura Singh, (Rajendra Singh) went together to the accused's benefactor Ram Swaroop Singh for the reason that accused were measuring the aforesaid recently purchased ruined house. As soon as they reached to Ram Swaroop and started talking, then at that very moment, Dinesh Chandra armed with a single barrel gun, Akhilesh Chandra armed with a double barrel bun, Anil Kumar armed with a double barrel gun and Sunil Kumar armed with a rifle arrived there and challenged them that they shall not be allowed to escape and exhorted to kill them. After this, when they saw themselves surrounded, then they ran towards the southern direction towards the Dharamshala from the south-west side of Shyam Sundar's house, then the accused entered Ram Swaroop's house, climbed onto the roof and all four accused started firing simultaneously. The pellets from the fire hit Bhura Singh due to which, Bhura Singh fell at that very spot. They (PW-2 and PW-1) were hiding behind Bhagat Singh's wall. Seeing Bhura Singh fall, they ran towards their home and took Rajendra Singh's motorcycle. Thereafter, he (PW-2) and Rajendra (PW-1) took Bhura to Vijaipur Hospital. The accused had already fled away from the spot, after shooting. As soon as they took Bhura Singh on the motorcycle in front of the hospital, he breathed his last. Thereafter, they (PW-1, PW-2 and Neeraj) went straightway to the police station and Written Report/Tehrir was prepared. Inquest report of his brother Bhura was prepared in his presence. Dinesh Chandra is a convict under Section 307 IPC and Akhilesh Chandra is a convict under Section 302 IPC.

37. The examination-in-chief of PW-2 was recorded on 16.12.2010 and his cross-examination was deferred on the request of defence and he was cross-examined at length on 18.12.2010. In his cross-examination, this witness stated that he is also known by another name Abhilash Singh and they are four brothers, he is eldest and thereafter Bhura Singh (who is the deceased) and whose other name is Shiv Saran Singh. Shiv Baran Singh alias @ Bhullu Singh is his third brother and the name of his fourth brother is Shiv Shankar Singh. The aforesaid statement makes it clear that this witness is elder brother of the deceased and that is why son of the deceased PW-1 calls this witness as Dada meaning thereby as Tau (i.e. uncle). He also denied having any knowledge that his brother Bhura Singh had gone to jail several times in several criminal cases. His brother Bhura Singh got a sale deed of Awadhram's house in his name, just four days before the incident. He had seen the aforesaid house, at that time, one room was built in the said house and rest of the house had fallen down. At the time of incident, no one was living therein and Awadhram was alive. Awadhram has three sons, the eldest son's name is Ayodhya, the second's name is Madhurendra and the third's name is Surendra. Rupa Devi's husband was Madhuredra. People told me that accused got measured the land relating to aforesaid sale deed from an Advocate, that is why he stated so in his examination-in-chief.

38. He (PW-2) stated in his cross-examination that this incident happened in the south direction from Shyam Sunder's house from the place of incident. There was a temple 15-20 feet ahead. From the temple, this incident happened on the way to the north. This path goes from north to south and the temple is situated in the southern side of this path. The incident happened on this path. The aforesaid particulars qua the place of incident, narrated by this witness in his cross-examination finds corroboration from site plan (Ex.Ka-11)

39. This witness further stated in his cross-examination that he had seen and heard the sound of the fire. At that time, his face was towards the south and Rajendra was also standing at that time. The deceased Bhura Singh was ten paces south to him. Rajendra was five paces south of Bhura Singh. At the time of fire, Rajendra Singh's face was towards the south and Bhura Singh's face was towards the west. These fires came from the west direction. The place from where the fire came and where the fire hit, there was a house in between. The fire of rifle did not hit Bhura Singh. Pellets came out from his body and one of the accused had a rifle, but he cannot say that whose rifle it was. At the time of incident, whether Ram Swaroop had a rifle or not, he do not know. He cannot say that whether rifle used in this incident was licensed or not. There is only one house of Ram Swaroop in the village, which has two main doors, both open towards the east direction. The distance between these two doors was about 25-30 feet. There is also a Neem tree at Ram Swaroop's door. It was not written in the report that the accused climbed onto the roof of Ram Swaroop's house and fired, which fire hit Bhura Singh. He had not seen injuries of Bhura Singh. He cannot say whether blood was found on the ground or not, when the Investigating Officer visited, because he was not present on the spot at that time. The police came to the village after the incident. The distance between Vijaipur outpost and the Hospital was about 40 feet. The Police Station Kishunpur is situated at the distance of 8 km from Vijaipur. It is wrong to state that he had not seen any incident. It is also wrong to state that his brother sustained injuries at some other places, at some other time and in different circumstances. It is also wrong to state that no one had seen the incident.

40. Thus, both PW-1 and PW-2 have been cross-examined regarding the place of incident and they have answered all the questions and description of place of incident finds full corroboration from the site plan prepared by the Investigating Officer. The incident started at place 'A', where the deceased and his family members were surrounded by the appellants, thereafter they ran towards southern direction and PW-1 and PW-2 took shelter of wall of Bhagat Singh' house. The deceased was behind PW-1 and PW-2 and was at point 'B' when he was shot. However, PW-1 and PW-2 were at point 'C' and 'D' shown in the site plan. All the particulars of the houses and the pathways shown in the site plan have been fully corroborated by these two witnesses in their depositions. Therefore, the prosecution has successfully established the place of incident, which started from point 'A' and culminated at point 'B' (as shown in site plan (Ex.Ka-11), where the deceased was shot.

41. It was argued that PW-2 in his cross-examination has stated that he had not seen the injuries of the deceased as he was not present at the spot. We have carefully perused this part of deposition of PW-2. The above paragraph as recorded in page-10 of the deposition of PW-2 cannot be read together to reach on aforesaid proposed conclusion. This paragraph consists of several lines. Learned Defence Counsel has first asked the question whether this witness had seen the injuries of the deceased or not. To this question, this witness has clearly stated that he had not seen the injuries of the deceased. Thereafter, learned Defence Counsel asked altogether different question regarding another aspect that whether he can tell that the Investigating Officer found any blood from the ground or not. On this specific question, this witness has clearly answered that as he was not present at that time (.i.e. time of spot inspection) on spot, therefore, he cannot tell that Investigating Officer found any blood from the spot or not. Lastly, this witness has answered that he had not seen that any gun shot struck on any wall, roof etc or not. The answer that he was not present on the spot specifically relates to visit of the Investigating Officer on the spot after the incident, therefore, the answer to this question cannot be related to the answer where witness specifically stated that he had not seen the injuries of the deceased. The learned trial Court in its judgment has also dealt with this specific aspect and the trial Court also came to the conclusion that second statement relates to the visit of Investigating Officer after the incident. The above conclusion of trial Court is well reasoned and supported by the evidence available on record. Therefore, it cannot be said that he was not the eye witness of the incident. In our considered opinion, PW-2 is an eye witness of the incident, who has consistently deposed regarding the date, time, place and manner of incident.

42. The deposition of this witness (PW-2) as far as date, time place and manner of incident is concerned, remained consistent throughout. Inspite of extensive cross-examination, the defence failed to bring out any fact in his cross-examination, which makes the presence of this witness on spot suspicious one. This witness was present at the time of incident and had narrated the same. The particulars stated by this witness regarding the place of incident find corroboration from the site plan (Ex.Ka-11) also. We have carefully gone through the deposition of this witness and found that he was present on spot at the time of incident and his deposition is a reliable one.

43. It was strenuously argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that P.W.1 and P.W.2 inspite of being eye witnesses and also inspite of being present on spot at the time of inquest proceedings, had not signed police papers including the inquest report, therefore, they are not the eye witnesses and were not present on the spot. There is no requirement of law that an eyewitness, who if present on the spot at the time of inquest proceedings, is required to sign the inquest report and other recovery memos so as to prove his presence on the spot as well as to prove that he is an eye witness of the incident.

44. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Brahm Swaroop and Another Vs. State of U.P., A.I.R. 2011 Supreme Court 280 in para 7 of this judgment has categorically held that evidence of eye witnesses cannot be discarded, if their names do not figure in the inquest report prepared at the earliest point of time. The inquest report cannot be treated as substantive evidence but may be utilized for contradicting the witnesses of inquest. The whole purpose of preparing an inquest report is to investigate into and draw up a report of the apparent cause of death, describing such wounds as may be found on the body of the deceased and stating as in what manner, or by what weapon or instrument such wounds appear to have been inflicted. The object of the proceedings under Section 174 Cr.P.C. is merely to ascertain whether a person died under suspicious circumstances or met with an unnatural death and if so, what was its apparent cause.

45. Similarly, Hon'ble Supreme Court in Radha Mohan Singh Vs. State of U.P., (2006) 2 SCC 450 in para 15 has clearly held that an investigation under Section 174 Cr.P.C. is limited in scope. The object of the proceedings is merely to ascertain whether a person has died under suspicious circumstances or an unnatural death and if so, what is the apparent cause of the death. The question regarding the details as to how the deceased was assaulted or who assaulted him or under what circumstances he was assaulted is foreign to the ambit and scope of the proceedings under Section 174. In Shakila Khader v. Nausher Gama AIR 1975 SC 1324 the contention raised that non-mention of a person's name in the inquest report would show that he was not an eye witness of the incident was repelled on the ground that an inquest under Section 174 Cr.P.C. is concerned with establishing the cause of death and only evidence necessary to establish it need be brought out. The same view was taken in Eqbal Baig v. State of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1987 SC 923, that the non-mention of name of an eye-witness in the inquest report could not be a ground to reject his testimony. The view taken in Podda Narayan v. State of A.P. (supra) was approved by a three-Judge Bench in Khujji @ Surendra Tiwari v. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1991 SC 1853 and it was held that the testimony of an eye-witness could not be discarded on the ground that their names did not figure in the inquest report prepared at the earliest point of time. There is absolutely no requirement in law of mentioning the details of the FIR, names of the accused or the names of the eye-witnesses or the gist of their statement nor it is required to be signed by any eye-witness. Therefore, the contention of learned counsel for the appellants that P.W.1 and P.W.2 are not the eyewitnesses as they have not signed the inquest report or other police papers, is wholly devoid of merit.

46. PW-1 in his deposition has clearly stated that when the Investigating Officer arrived at Vijaipur Hospital, at that time, he alongwith PW-2 and other family members were present. Even PW-2 has clearly stated in his examination-in-chief that the inquest was conducted in his presence. Therefore, we find no force in the arguments so raised by the learned counsel for the appellants and in our considered opinion, both PW-1 and PW-2 are the eye witnesses of the incident and their depositions cannot be thrown on the ground that inspite of both these witnesses being eye witnesses, they were not the witnesses to the inquest report. Therefore, we find that both PW-1 and PW-2 were present on the spot at the time of incident and are reliable eye witnesses. Thus, Question No. 1 is answered in 'Affirmative'.

Question No. 2. Whether there is any inconsistency in the prosecution version of the incident and the medical evidence of the deceased available on record.

47. It was argued that there is inconsistency in the prosecution version of the incident and the medical evidence, while relying upon the fact that alleged gun shot injuries were sustained by the deceased from front side, while running away from the assailants. The learned trial Court has dealt with this aspect at page-20 of the judgment. PW-1 and PW-2 both have consistently deposed that when they all (i.e. PW-1, PW-2 and the deceased) ran to save their lives, the deceased was in the last. PW-1 and PW-2 were running fast and took protection of the southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house. The deceased was running behind and had arrived near the southern corner of Bhagat Singh's house. PW-2 in his cross-examination has clearly stated that when shot hit his brother Bhura, his (the deceased's) face was towards west and fires were coming from western direction. At this particular point of time, it is clear that PW-1 and PW-2 had already taken shelter of southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house, however the deceased was little behind and had merely reached near the western-southern corner of Bhagat Singh's house. It is quite possible that at this point of time, he might have looked backward to find out that whether he is out of firing range of the assailants or not. This possibility is strengthen by the statement of PW-1 that at that time, the deceased's face was in the western direction and shots were coming from western direction and at that time, shots fired by the assailants hit the deceased. We have carefully perused the site plan (Ex.Ka-11) and found that the deceased was at point 'B' and was not yet fully protected from southern wall of Bhagat Singh. He was just looking back when his face was in the western direction, a shot hit him while turning back, his left front side became open and that is why, shots struck on his left side of chest and left front hand. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that there is no inconsistency in the prosecution version of the incident as well as medical evidence available on record. We find strength from the judgment of Apex Court in State of Bihar v. Ram Padarath Singh (1998) 6 SCC 240, where Apex Court has observed at page 246 in para 9 as under:

"9. The High Court also observed that it was not believable that Mangal had the courage to turn back and see what the assailants were doing after they had killed Boudhu. What the High Court failed to appreciate was that it was not a matter of courage but it was the instinct of self-preservation which could have prompted Mangal to look back, as he was also being chased. His brother was chased and beaten by the accused who were sworn enemies. It was for that reason that he had started running away from that place. It was therefore not only probable but quite natural for him after covering some distance to look back to find out whether he was being chased or not. Therefore, the evidence of the eyewitnesses that while running away Mangal was shouting 'bachao bachao' and the shot fired by Dilip had hit him on his thigh, when he had turned back for a moment while running, was really not inconsistent with the medical evidence and deserved to be accepted."

Thus Question No. 2 is answered in 'Negative'.

Question No. 3. Whether in the present case, the FIR can be said to be ante timed FIR or not?

48. It was vehemently argued that the FIR is anti timed and anti dated. To press this argument, learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the FIR has been seen by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate on 15.10.2008, meaning thereby that the FIR has been registered at a later date and later time.

49. The Apex Court in Jafel Biswas v. State of W.B. (2019) 12 SCC 560 at page 565 in para 18 has reiterated the purpose and scope of Section 157 Cr.P.C. as under:

"18. In State of Rajasthan [State of Rajasthan v. Daud Khan, (2016) 2 SCC 607 : (2016) 1 SCC (Cri) 793] in paras 27 and 28, this Court has laid down as follows: (SCC pp. 620-21)

"27. The delay in sending the special report was also the subject of discussion in a recent decision being Sheo Shankar Singh v. State of U.P. [Sheo Shankar Singh v. State of U.P., (2013) 12 SCC 539 : (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 390] wherein it was held that before such a contention is countenanced, the accused must show prejudice having been caused by the delayed dispatch of the FIR to the Magistrate. It was held, relying upon several earlier decisions as follows: (SCC pp. 549-50, para 31)

31. In this context, we would like to refer to a recent decision of this Court in Sandeep v. State of U.P. [Sandeep v. State of U.P., (2012) 6 SCC 107 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 18] wherein the said position has been explained as under in paras 62: (SCC p. 132)

"62. As far as the said contention is concerned, we only wish to refer to the reported decision of this Court in Pala Singh v. State of Punjab [Pala Singh v. State of Punjab, (1972) 2 SCC 640 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 55] wherein this Court has clearly held that (SCC p. 645, para 8) where the FIR was actually recorded without delay and the investigation started on the basis of that FIR and there is no other infirmity brought to the notice of the court then, however improper or objectionable the delay in receipt of the report by the Magistrate concerned be, in the absence of any prejudice to the accused it cannot by itself justify the conclusion that the investigation was tainted and the prosecution insupportable.

28. It is no doubt true that one of the external checks against antedating or ante-timing an FIR is the time of its dispatch to the Magistrate or its receipt by the Magistrate. The dispatch of a copy of the FIR 'forthwith' ensures that there is no manipulation or interpolation in the FIR. [Sudarshan v. State of Maharashtra, (2014) 12 SCC 312 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 94] If the prosecution is asked to give an explanation for the delay in the dispatch of a copy of the FIR, it ought to do so. [Meharaj Singh v. State of U.P., (1994) 5 SCC 188 : 1994 SCC (Cri) 1391] However, if the court is convinced of the prosecution version's truthfulness and trustworthiness of the witnesses, the absence of an explanation may not be regarded as detrimental to the prosecution case. It would depend on the facts and circumstances of the case. Rattiram v. State of M.P., (2013) 12 SCC 316 : (2014) 1 SCC (Cri) 635"

50. Therefore, in cases where the date and time of the lodging of the FIR is questioned, the report becomes more relevant. But mere delay in sending the report itself cannot lead to a conclusion that the trial is vitiated or the accused is entitled to be acquitted on this ground. In every case, from the mere delay in sending the FIR to the Magistrate, the Court would not conclude that the FIR has been registered much later in time than shown. On delayed dispatch of FIR, some prejudice has to be proved by accused.

51. The Apex Court in Mehraj Singh V. State of UP (1994) 5 SCC 188, at page 195 in para 12 has observed as under:

"12. With a view to determine whether the FIR was lodged at the time it is alleged to have been recorded, the courts generally look for certain external checks. One of the checks is the receipt of the copy of the FIR, called a special report in a murder case, by the local Magistrate. If this report is received by the Magistrate late it can give rise to an inference that the FIR was not lodged at the time it is alleged to have been recorded, unless, of course the prosecution can offer a satisfactory explanation for the delay in despatching or receipt of the copy of the FIR by the local Magistrate. Prosecution has led no evidence at all in this behalf. The second external check equally important is the sending of the copy of the FIR along with the dead body and its reference in the inquest report. Even though the inquest report, prepared under Section 174 CrPC, is aimed at serving a statutory function, to lend credence to the prosecution case, the details of the FIR and the gist of statements recorded during inquest proceedings get reflected in the report."

52. The Allahabad High Court in Rampal Singh and Others V. State of UP 2021 SCC OnLine All 195 has observed that two external tests had been relied in Mehraj Singh v. State of U.P.; (1994) 5 SCC 188. First external test is the report sent to the magistrate under Section 157 Cr.P.C. and the second external test is the copy of the FIR sent with the dead body, for postmortem examination and its reference on the inquest report.

53. The Apex Court in Rama Devi v. State of Bihar (2024) 10 SCC 462 addressing the same principle has clearly observed that it is trite law that a delay in forwarding the FIR to the jurisdictional Magistrate is not fatal to the prosecution case. When there is a delay in forwarding the FIR to the jurisdictional Magistrate and the accused raises a specific contention regarding the same, they must demonstrate how this delay has prejudiced their case. Mere delay by itself is not sufficient to discard and disbelieve the case of the prosecution. If the investigation starts in right earnest and there is sufficient material on record to show that the accused were named and pinpointed, the prosecution case can be accepted when evidence implicates the accused. The requirement to dispatch and serve a copy of the FIR to the jurisdictional Magistrate is an external check against ante dating or ante timing of the FIR to ensure that there is no manipulation or interpolation in the FIR. If the court finds the witnesses to be truthful and credible, the lack of a cogent explanation for the delay may not be regarded as detrimental.

54. In the light of above well settled proposition of law, we have carefully perused the oral and documentary evidence with regard to the date and time of registration of the FIR (Ex.Ka-2). A perusal of the FIR, (Ex.Ka-2) reveals that same was registered at 17:30 pm on 11.10.2008. It is also clear that the aforesaid FIR was sent through post from the police station and the concerned Circle Officer had ordered to send the aforesaid FIR to the Court concerned on 12.10.2008. Although, the Circle Officer has made his signature in blue ink and had not recorded the date in blue ink, but order, designation and date have been written in red ink. The date is clearly legible to be 12.10.2008. The informant Rajendra Kumar PW-1 in his deposition has clearly stated that from the spot, he and his uncle took the victim to Vijaipur Hospital, where his father died upon reaching the Hospital. Thereafter, he got scribed Written Report/Tehrir (Ex.Ka-1) and got registered the FIR (Ex.Ka-2). He has clearly stated that the aforesaid incident had happened on 4:00 pm on 11.10.2008. This witness has been extensively cross-examined, however, his deposition as far as, these two above facts are concerned, remains uncontroverted. The brother of the deceased and uncle of the informant Jhaller Singh @ Abhilash Singh PW-2 has also deposed on the similar lines. The depositions of both these witnesses, are consistent and corroborative to each other depositions. A perusal of the Written Report/Tehrir (Ex.Ka-1) also reveals that both these witnesses took the deceased to Vijaipur Hospital from the spot and when they arrived at Hospital, victim died just after reaching the Hospital. Thereafter, they went to the concerned police station and aforesaid Written Report/Tehrir was scribed and FIR was registered. The concerned police station is situated at a distance of 14 km from the place of incident. The informant PW-1 and PW-2 firstly travelled to Vijaipur Hospital and thereafter they went to the concerned police station for registration of the FIR.

55. It was argued that instead of promptly lodging the FIR first in the concerned police station, which was situated prior to Vijaipur Hospital, the deceased was taken to the Hospital, therefore, on this ground, the FIR was also said to be ante timed. There is no force in the argument so raised by the learned counsel for the appellants, because after some incident, when victim sustains some grievous injuries, in that eventuality, saving of life of the victim is far more important than lodging the FIR, specially when family members of the victim are there. It is their (family members) foremost duty to make all efforts to save the life of victim. Therefore, there is nothing suspicious in bringing the victim first to Vijaipur Hospital, before lodging of the FIR. As the time of incident is about 4:00 pm and FIR has been registered at 5:30 pm, therefore, there seems to be no delay in lodging the FIR. From the chronology of the above events, it is clear that victim was firstly taken to Vijaipur Hospital and only thereafter the informant reached the concerned police station for lodging the FIR. In our considered opinion, the FIR has been promptly lodged.

56. It was vehemently argued that FIR was received in the office of learned Chief Judicial Magistrate on 15.10.2008, therefore, FIR is anti timed and anti dated. However, we have perused the inquest report (Ex.Ka-5). A perusal of the inquest report (Ex.Ka-5) reveals that the concerned S.H.O. started the inquest on 11.10.2008 at 18:45 pm and concluded at 19:45 pm on same day. The inquest proceedings were conducted on the same day in Vijaipur Hospital, which was situated at the distance of 6 km from the concerned police station. The case crime number and sections, under which the FIR has been registered, are clearly written on the top of Ex.Ka-5. After inquest, Letter to CMO (Ex.Ka-6), Sample Seal (Ex.Ka-7), Challan Nash (Ex.Ka-8) and Photo Nash (Ex.Ka-9) were prepared by the Investigating Officer, the then S.O. on 11.10.2008 with case crime number, sections of IPC. The G.D. (Ex.Ka-3), wherein details of case crime number and sections under which crime has been registered with brief description of contents of Written Report/Tehrir, was also recorded. All these documents were produced before the Autopsy Surgeon, at the time of conducting the post mortem examination of the deceased and have been signed by him with his stamp and date. The post mortem examination of the deceased was conducted on 12.10.2008, meaning thereby that all those documents were clearly available at the time of post mortem examination of the deceased. Therefore, only on the ground that FIR was allegedly received in the office of learned CJM on 15.10.2008, does not make the FIR as anti timed and anti dated. In out considered opinion, the FIR has been promptly lodged, there is no delay in lodging the same and the same cannot be treated as anti timed and anti dated. Moreover, the prompt and early reporting of the incident by PW-1 to the police with all vivid details gives an assurance regarding truth of his version of incident. Question No.3 is answered in 'Negative'.

Question No. 4. Whether the Ballistic Report denying use of recovered firearm weapons, makes the prosecution story suspicious or not?

57. Lastly, it was argued that FSL report has denied the use of recovered firearms in the incident. As per the prosecution story, the licensed guns, (which were used in the incident) were recovered and four empty cartridges 12-bore were recovered from the spot, but FSL report is categorically clear that three 12-bore empty cartridges recovered from the spot, were not fired from two DBBL guns (which were recovered from two of the appellants) and as far as fourth 12-bore empty cartridge is concerned, there was no sufficient individual characteristics to make a comparison with recovered DBBL guns. We have carefully perused the FSL report available on record. It is true that FSL report does not support the use of recovered guns as far as three 12- bore empty cartridges recovered from the spot is concerned, however, fourth empty cartridge could not be compared for lack of sufficient characteristics, therefore, there is no definite opinion regarding this regarding this fourth empty cartridge. However, the aforesaid FSL report is clear that all the four empty cartridges were cartridges of some firearm. Moreover, six pellets recovered from the body of the deceased, were also sent for FSL examination and finding number three of FSL report clearly states that those pellets are small deformed lead pellets, which appear to be fired pellets, meaning thereby that the aforesaid pellets recovered from the body of the deceased, were actually fired from some firearm and this part of FSL report supports the prosecution story to this extent.

58. At this juncture, we would like to cite some case laws of Hon'ble Apex Court . In Vineet Kumar Chauhan v. State of U.P. (2007) 14 SCC 660, at page 664 in para 11 while affirming the ratio laid down in Gurcharan Singh v. State of Punjab AIR 1963 SC 340, it has been observed that:

"11. It cannot be laid down as a general proposition that in every case where a firearm is allegedly used by an accused person, the prosecution must lead the evidence of a ballistic expert to prove the charge, irrespective of the quality of the direct evidence available on record. It needs little emphasis that where direct evidence is of such an unimpeachable character, and the nature of injuries, disclosed by the post-mortem notes is consistent with the direct evidence, the examination of ballistic expert may not be regarded as essential. However, where direct evidence is not available or that there is some doubt as to whether the injuries could or could not have been caused by a particular weapon, examination of an expert would be desirable to cure an apparent inconsistency or for the purpose of corroboration of oral evidence."

Furthermore the Apex Court in para 13 of this judgment has also observed that:

"13. In the instant case, having regard to the ocular evidence adduced by the prosecution, there is no reason to discard the prosecution theory that the injury as a result whereof Smt Premwati suffered complete paralysis of both the lower limbs, etc. was caused by a bullet fired from a revolver. The nature of the injury as proved by Dr. P.S. Ahlawat (PW 5), under whose treatment the deceased remained at Moradabad and Dr. S.P. Singh (PW 7), who had conducted the post-mortem examination is wholly consistent with the prosecution version. It is clear that the bullet recovered by PW 7 at the time of post-mortem of the victim had traversed to thoracic spine through the neck from the face near the angle of the jaw, hitting the fifth thoracic vertebra, badly damaging the underlying spinal cord. We are therefore, of the view that on the facts of the present case the absence of ballistic expert's evidence is not fatal to the case of the prosecution, notwithstanding the fact that the forensic science laboratory in its report dated 18-2-1991 had not expressed a definite opinion about the bullet recovered from the place of occurrence."

59. The Apex Court in Rakesh and Another V. State of UP (2021) 7 SCC 188, has observed that so far as the submission on behalf of the accused that as per the ballistic report, the bullet found, does not match with fire-arm/gun recovered and therefore, use of gun as alleged is doubtful and therefore, benefit of doubt must be given to the accused is concerned, the aforesaid cannot be accepted. At the most, it can be said that the gun recovered by the police from the accused may not have been used for killing and therefore, the recovery of the actual weapon used for killing can be ignored and it is to be treated as if there is no recovery at all. For convicting an accused recovery of the weapon used in commission of offence is not a sine qua non. Therefore, merely because the ballistic report shows that the bullet recovered does not match with the gun recovered, it is not possible to reject the credible and reliable deposition of PW-1 and PW- 2.

60. In the light of above proposition of law, we have carefully perused the depositions of eye witnesses, and in the present case, the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 are consistent that two DBBL guns, one SBBL gun and one rifle were used in the incident, however as the appellants had licensee guns, therefore, it was easy for PW-1 and PW-2 to presume that assailants licensee guns have been used in the incident. It has also come on record that in the FIR it was mentioned that appellant Sunil Kumar Shukla was carrying Ram Swaroop's licensee rifle, however, PW-1 and PW-2 have clearly stated in their depositions that aforesaid fact was got written in the Written Report/Tehrir on the basis of suspicion. During the course of the investigation, it was found by the Investigating Officer that the aforesaid licensee rifle of Ram Swaroop was not involved in the crime. The Investigating Officer also found that DBBL gun of appellant Dinesh Chandra Shukla was already deposited before the crime. Therefore, only two DBBL guns were recovered, which were licensee guns of Akhilesh Shukla and Anil Kumar Shukla.

61. The depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 that aforesaid licensee rifle of Ram Swaroop, was assigned to Sunil Kumar on the basis of their suspicion seems to be bona-fide as no role whatsoever has been assigned to Ram Swaroop in the incident, which could have been easily assigned by them. It is the case of the prosecution that PW-1 and PW-2 and the deceased went to Ram Swaroop for a compromise and were talking with him, when they were surrounded by the appellants, no further role of Ram Swaroop has been assigned, either in the FIR or in their depositions. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that aforesaid fact (i.e. Sunil Kumar Shukla was carrying Ram Swaroop's rifle) seems to be got written in the FIR on the basis of bona-fide suspicion. The depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 are consistent that Akhilesh Shukla and Anil Shukla were armed with DBBL guns, Dinesh Chandra Shukla was armed with SBBL gun and Sunil Kumar Shukla was armed with rifle. Recovery of 12-bore empty cartridges from spot proves that DBBL and SBBL guns have been used in the incident. A total four 12-bore empty cartridges have been recovered from the spot and the deceased has also suffered firearm injuries and during his post mortem examination, Autopsy Surgeon has recovered six pellets from his body. Recovery of four cartridges has been duly proved by the prosecution. The aforesaid four 12-bore empty cartridges and six pellets were sent to FSL for examination and these recovered cartridges and pellets are found to be fired ones. The depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 fully corroborates each other depositions as far as date, time, place and manner of incident is concerned, their depositions are further corroborated by the particulars specifically shown in the site plan. Their depositions are also corroborated by the ante-mortem injuries found on the body of the deceased, therefore, in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, at the maximum it can be presumed that the licensee guns of the appellants were actually not used in the crime and actual weapons (i.e. 2 DBBL guns, one SBBL gun and one rifle) which were used in the crime, were not got recovered from the appellants, therefore, FSL report does not caste any shadow on the truthfulness of the prosecution story. Question No. 4 is also answered in 'Negative'.

Question No. 5 Whether the prosecution could be said to have proved it's case against the appellants-convicts beyond reasonable doubt?

62. As per the FIR, purchase of fallen down mud house of Awadhram by Bhura Singh on 07.10.2008 was the motive behind the crime. Law is well established that first information report is not an encyclopedia. It is not the requirement of law that every minute details with description of every event leading to the commission of crime with detail sequencing of crime is required to be mentioned in the first information report. A very brief description of motive has been assigned in the Written Report/Tehrir (Ex.Ka.-1). The present case is based on direct evidence. Therefore, the lack or absence of motive is inconsequential when direct evidence establishes the crime. However, in the present case, the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 are consistent that the deceased Bhura Singh purchased a fallen down ruined house of Awadhram on 07.10.2008 through a registered sale deed. Appellants earlier wanted to take this house by misleading the widowed daughter-in-law of Awadhram namely, Rupa Devi. Rupa Devi used to do house-hold work at the accused house. A perusal of site plan (ExKa-11), reveals that this disputed fallen down house is situated near the house of appellant Dinesh Chandra Shukla. The deceased Bhura Singh as well as PW-1 and PW-2 got information that the appellants got measurement of their recently purchased house because of which, they apprehended that they will not obtain the possession of aforesaid house. Therefore, they approached Ram Swaroop Singh in this matter for compromise and when they were talking with Ram Swaroop Singh, they were surrounded by the appellants and finally this incident had happened. PW-1 and PW-2 have deposed that the appellants have committed the murder of the deceased in furtherance of their common intention. Therefore, in view of their depositions as eye witnesses of the crime, motive in the present case, pales into significance. However, the prosecution has been able to prove the aforesaid motive against the appellants.

63. It was vehemently argued that PW-1 and PW-2 have denied the criminal history of the deceased, therefore, the prosecution story cannot be believed. Admittedly, the deceased Bhura Singh was having criminal history and the Investigating Officer collected the same during the course of investigation and has also given details of seven criminal cases, which were pending against the deceased, in his deposition. However, admittedly, the appellant Akhilesh Chandra Shukla was convicted in a case of murder and appellant Dinesh Chandra Shukla was convicted under Section 307 IPC (as in their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C., both these appellants have stated that their appeal against conviction were pending at that time) meaning thereby that both, the deceased and the assailants i.e. appellants, were having criminal history to their credit at that stage and appellants Akhilesh Chandra Shukla and Dinesh Chandra Shukla were having criminal history of conviction. Feigned ignorance of criminal history of the deceased Bhura Singh by PW-1 and PW-2 does not automatically make the prosecution story suspicious one. In the present case, the prosecution has proved the motive behind the commission of murder of the deceased Bhura Singh. Two of the appellants were convicted in two different cases of murder and attempt to murder, therefore, we find no force in the argument of learned counsel for the appellants that the denial of having any knowledge of criminal history on the part of PW-1 and PW-2 makes the prosecution story doubtful. Therefore, it cannot be presumed that on account of criminal history, the deceased was murdered by someone else at some other place, in other circumstances.

64. From the perusal of the records, it is reflected that blood stained soil collected by the Investigating Officer from the place of incident, was not forwarded to find out the origin of blood. However, it is an omission on the part of the Investigating Officer indicative of defective investigation and in the light of trustworthy depositions of PW-1 and PW-2. This part of omission on the part of the Investigating Officer does not affect the prosecution version and in our considered opinion, the appellants are not entitled to get any benefit out this defective part of investigation by the Investigating Officer.

65. Lastly, it was argued that without assigning any specific role of the appellants, they have been wrongly convicted under Section 302 IPC without aid of section 34 IPC and therefore, their conviction is bad in law.

66. The FIR was lodged under Section 302/34 IPC, the charge sheet was also filed under Section 302/34 IPC. The learned trial Court also framed charges against the appellants under Section 302 read with 34 IPC, even in the statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., it was specifically asked in question no. 1 that the firing was resorted to with common intention to murder Bhura Singh. Learned trial Court in its conclusion at page-24 of the judgment has clearly held that the accused in a pre-planned manner with common intention used firearms to kill Bhura Singh. However, while passing the order of conviction and sentence, the learned trial Judge has convicted the appellants under Section 302 IPC alone. It is seems to be mere an irregularity. Learned trial Court has concluded that accused were sharing common intention. Law is well settled that section 34 IPC is not a substantive offence in the present case, not only FIR was registered under Section 302/34 IPC but after investigation, the charge sheet was also submitted under the same section. The charges were also framed under Section 302 read with section 34 IPC and even under Section 313 Cr.P.C., they were specifically asked regarding their common intention to murder.

67. A three Judges Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court has dealt with scope of interpretation of Section 34 IPC in Suresh and another vs. State of U.P. (2001) 3 SCC 673. In this judgment Hon'ble Supreme Court has expressed its view in the light of several judicial pronouncement by starting privy council to Supreme Court. The most relevant paragraphs 19, 22, 23, 24, 37, 38, 39, 41 and 50 are reproduced herein-below:-

"19. Hence, under Section 34 one criminal act, composed of more than one act, can be committed by more than one persons and if such commission is in furtherance of the common intention of all of them, each would be liable for the criminal act so committed."

"22. Even the concept of presence of the co-accused at the scene is not a necessary requirement to attract Section 34, e.g. the co-accused can remain a little away and supply weapons to the participating accused either by throwing or by catapulting them so that the participating accused can inflict injuries on the targeted person. Another illustration, with advancement of electronic equipment can be etched like this: One of such persons, in furtherance of the common intention, overseeing the actions from a distance through binoculars can give instructions to the other accused through mobile phones as to how effectively the common intention can be implemented. We do not find any reason why Section 34 cannot apply in the case of those two persons indicated in the illustrations.

23. Thus to attract Section 34 IPC two postulates are indispensable: (1) The criminal act (consisting of a series of acts) should have been done, not by one person, but more than one person. (2) Doing of every such individual act cumulatively resulting in the commission of criminal offence should have been in furtherance of the common intention of all such persons.

24. Looking at the first postulate pointed out above, the accused who is to be fastened with liability on the strength of Section 34 IPC should have done some act which has nexus with the offence. Such an act need not be very substantial, it is enough that the act is only for guarding the scene for facilitating the crime. The act need not necessarily be overt, even if it is only a covert act it is enough, provided such a covert act is proved to have been done by the co-accused in furtherance of the common intention. Even an omission can, in certain circumstances, amount to an act. This is the purport of Section 32 IPC. So the act mentioned in Section 34 IPC need not be an overt act, even an illegal omission to do a certain act in a certain situation can amount to an act, e.g. a co-accused, standing near the victim face to face saw an armed assailant nearing the victim from behind with a weapon to inflict a blow. The co-accused, who could have alerted the victim to move away to escape from the onslaught deliberately refrained from doing so with the idea that the blow should fall on the victim. Such omission can also be termed as an act in a given situation. Hence an act, whether overt or covert, is indispensable to be done by a co-accused to be fastened with the liability under the section. But if no such act is done by a person, even if he has common intention with the others for the accomplishment of the crime, Section 34 IPC cannot be invoked for convicting that person. In other words, the accused who only keeps the common intention in his mind, but does not do any act at the scene, cannot be convicted with the aid of Section 34 IPC."

"37. For the applicability of Section 34 to a co-accused, who is proved to have common intention, it is not the requirement of law that he should have actually done something to incur the criminal liability with the aid of this section. It is now well settled that no overt act is necessary to attract the applicability of Section 34 for a co-accused who is otherwise proved to be sharing common intention with the ultimate act done by any one of the accused sharing such intention.

38. Section 34 of the Penal Code, 1860 recognizes the principle of vicarious liability in criminal jurisprudence. It makes a person liable for action of an offence not committed by him but by another person with whom he shared the common intention. It is a rule of evidence and does not create a substantive offence. The section gives statutory recognition to the commonsense principle that if more than two persons intentionally do a thing jointly, it is just the same as if each of them had done it individually. There is no gainsaying that a common intention presupposes prior concert, which requires a prearranged plan of the accused participating in an offence. Such preconcert or preplanning may develop on the spot or during the course of commission of the offence but the crucial test is that such plan must precede the act constituting an offence. Common intention can be formed previously or in the course of occurrence and on the spur of the moment. The existence of a common intention is a question of fact in each case to be proved mainly as a matter of inference from the circumstances of the case.

39. The dominant feature for attracting Section 34 of the Penal Code, 1860 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Code') is the element of participation in absence resulting in the ultimate 'criminal act'. The 'act' referred to in the later part of Section 34 means the ultimate criminal act with which the accused is charged of sharing the common intention. The accused is, therefore, made responsible for the ultimate criminal act done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all. The section does not envisage the separate act by all the accused persons for becoming responsible for the ultimate criminal act. If such an interpretation is accepted, the purpose of Section 34 shall be rendered infructuous.

40. Participation in the crime in furtherance of the common intention cannot conceive of some independent criminal act by all accused persons, besides the ultimate criminal act because for that individual act law takes care of making such accused responsible under the other provisions of the Code. The word 'act' used in Section 34 denotes a series of acts as a single act. What is required under law is that the accused persons sharing the common intention must be physically present at the scene of occurrence and be shown not to have dissuaded themselves from the intended criminal act for which they shared the common intention. Culpability under Section 34 cannot be excluded by mere distance from the scene of occurrence. The presumption of constructive intention, however, has to be arrived at only when the court can, with judicial servitude, hold that the accused must have preconceived the result that ensued in furtherance of the common intention. A Division Bench of the Patna High Court in'Satrughan Patar'v.'Emperor'[AIR 1919 Pat 111 : 20 Cri LJ 289] held that it is only when a court with some certainty holds that a particular accused must have preconceived or premeditated the result which ensued or acted in concert with others in order to bring about that result, that Section 34 may be applied."

"50. Again a three-Judge Bench of this Court in'State of U.P.'v.'Iftikhar Khan'[(1973) 1 SCC 512 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 384] after relying upon a host of judgments of the Privy Council and this Court, held that for attracting Section 34 it is not necessary that any overt act must be done by a particular accused. The section will be attracted if it is established that the criminal act has been done by one of the accused persons in furtherance of the common intention. If this is shown, the liability for the crime may be imposed on any one of the person in the same manner as if the act was done by him alone. In that case on proof of the facts that all the four accused persons were residents of the same village and Accused 1 and 3 were brothers who were bitterly inimical to the deceased and Accused 2 and 4 were their close friends, Accused 3 and 4 had accompanied the other two accused who were armed with pistols; all the four came together in a body and ran away in a body after the crime, coupled with no explanation being given for their presence at the scene, the Court held that the circumstances led to the necessary inference of a prior concert and prearrangement which proved that the 'criminal act' was done by all the accused persons in furtherance of their common intention."

68. In Ram Naresh Vs. State of U.P. (2024) 1 SCC 443, the appellant challenged the judgment of trial Court and High Court whereby he was convicted under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC on the ground that there was no common intention on his part and therefore, Section 34 IPC cannot be applied so as to convict him (appellant). The Hon'ble Supreme Court while rejecting his argument observed as under:-

"11. Assistance has been taken of para 26 of the decision of this Court in'Krishnamurthy'v.'State of Karnataka (2022) 7 SCC 521, which is reproduced herein below: (SCC p. 537)

"26. Section 34IPC makes a co-perpetrator, who had participated in the offence, equally liable on the principle of joint liability. For Section 34 to apply there should be common intention between the co-perpetrators, which means that there should be community of purpose and common design or prearranged plan. However, this does not mean that co-perpetrators should have engaged in any discussion, agreement or valuation. For Section 34 to apply, it is not necessary that the plan should be prearranged or hatched for a considerable time before the criminal act is performed. Common intention can be formed just a minute before the actual act happens. Common intention is necessarily a psychological fact as it requires prior meeting of minds. In such cases, direct evidence normally will not be available and in most cases, whether or not there exists a common intention has to be determined by drawing inference from the facts proved. This requires an inquiry into the antecedents, conduct of the co-participants or perpetrators at the time and after the occurrence. The manner in which the accused arrived, mounted the attack, nature and type of injuries inflicted, the weapon used, conduct or acts of the co-assailants/perpetrators, object and purpose behind the occurrence or the attack, etc. are all relevant facts from which inference has to be drawn to arrive at a conclusion whether or not the ingredients of Section 34I PC are satisfied. We must remember that Section 34 IPC comes into operation against the co-perpetrators because they have not committed the principal or main act, which is undertaken/performed or is attributed to the main culprit or perpetrator. Where an accused is the main or final perpetrator, resort to Section 34IPC is not necessary as the said perpetrator is himself individually liable for having caused the injury/offence. A person is liable for his own acts. Section 34 or the principle of common intention is invoked to implicate and fasten joint liability on other co-participants."

12. A plain reading of the above paragraph of'Krishnamurthy case' reveals that for applying Section 34IPC there should be a common intention of all the co-accused persons which means community of purpose and common design. Common intention does not mean that the co-accused persons should have engaged in any discussion or agreement so as to prepare a plan or hatch a conspiracy for committing the offence. Common intention is a psychological fact and it can be formed a minute before the actual happening of the incidence or as stated earlier even during the occurrence of the incidence."

69. Therefore, law of common intention can be crystallized that it is not a substantive offence and does not create an offence by itself. It is a rule of evidence that recognizes principle of constructive liability. To attract Section 34 IPC two conditions are indispensable. First condition is that the criminal act consisting of a series of acts must have been done not by one person alone, but by more than one person. The second condition is that doing of every such individual act cumulatively resulting in commission of criminal offence, must have been in furtherance of the common intention of all such persons. When both conditions are proved, then each of the accused is liable for the criminal act as if it was done by him alone. The accused who is to be fastened with liability on the strength of Section 34 IPC, should have done some act, which has nexus with the offence and such act need not be very substantial, it is enough that the act is only for guarding the scene for facilitating the crime. There is no gainsaying that a common intention presupposes prior concert, which requires a prearranged plan of the accused participating in an offence. Such preconcert or preplanning may develop on the spot or during the course of commission of offence, but the crucial test is that such plan must precede the act constituting an offence. Common intention can be formed previously or in the course of occurrence and on the spur of the moment. The existence of a common intention is a question of fact in each case to be proved mainly as a matter of inference from the circumstances of the case. Even where there is no evidence of prior meeting of minds, but when sequence of events which unfolded during course of occurrence clearly indicates the pre determination of mind of the accused persons not to cause injury alone but to kill the deceased, their common intention can be inferred from such circumstance. Direct proof of common intention is generally difficult to obtain and therefore, it is not necessary to adduce direct evidence of common intention, which may be inferred from surrounding circumstances and the conduct of the parties. Common intention is a state of mind of an accused which may be inferred objectively from his conduct displayed in the course of commission of crime as also prior and subsequent attendant circumstances.

70. In Gurpreet Singh vs. State of Punjap, (2005) 12 SCC 615, the appellant was convicted under Section 302 IPC, however, Hon'ble Apex Court found that fatal injuries could not be attributed the appellant but finding common intention in the incident, without their being any charge framed under Section 34 IPC, the conviction of the appellant was altered from section 302 IPC to one under Section 302 read with section 34 IPC, while rejecting the appeal of the appellants.

71. Therefore, even when the charge under Section 34 IPC is not framed, but the prosecution has led the evidence regarding common intentnion of the assailants and the witnesses have also been cross-examined with respect to such evidence being led by the prosecution, then the assailants can be convicted with the aid of section 34 IPC.

72. The Hon'ble Apex Court in State of M.P. v. Balveer Singh, (2025) 8 SCC 545, has held that when eyewitness are examined at length, it is quite possible for them to make some discrepancies. But courts should bear in mind that it is only when discrepancies in the evidence of a witness are so incompatible with the credibility of his version that the court is justified in jettisoning his evidence. The role of courts in such circumstances assumes greater importance and it is expected of the courts to deal with cases like one in hand, in a more realistic manner and not allow the criminals to go scot-free on account of procedural technicalities, perfunctory investigation or insignificant lacunas in the evidence as otherwise serious crimes would go unpunished.

73. From the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2, it is crystal clear that all the appellants arrived on the spot, armed with deadly weapons and surrounded the deceased, the informant and Jhaller Singh. Soon after surrounding the deceased and his family members, they exhorted to kill them. The deceased, the informant and Jhaller Singh ran to save their lives and the appellants, thereafter climbed onto the roof of Ram Swaroop's house and started indiscriminate firing on the deceased and his family members, who were running to save their lives. However, PW-1 and PW-2 saved their lives by taking shelter of southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house, but the deceased could not take shelter of this wall and was running behind PW-1 and PW-2 and had arrived near the corner of this wall and when he saw back, he was hit with gun shots, which were being fired by the appellants. The deceased sustained firearm injuries and fell down on the spot, thereafter all the appellants ran away from the spot with their deadly weapons. Therefore, the above chain of events and surrounding circumstances, clearly establishes that the appellants arrived on spot with their common intention to murder the deceased and his family members and in furtherance of this common intention, they firstly surrounded the deceased and his family members and when they ran, the appellants fired indiscriminately on them after climbing onto the roof of Ram Swaroop's house. The appellants' conduct starting from their arrival on the spot and lastly their leaving from the place of incident after commission of crime, clearly establishes their pre-arranged plan and common intention to murder. Therefore, the prosecution has successfully proved common intention to murder the deceased on the part of the appellants and the learned trial Court has also clearly held so in its conclusion recorded at page-24 of the impugned judgment. However, in operative portion of the order of judgment and order of sentence, section 34 IPC is missing, which is a minor irregularity.

74. As per the FIR, both the informant and Jhaller Singh are the eye witnesses of the incident. Both these witnesses have consistently stated that when the deceased, informant and Jhaller Singh were talking to Ram Swaroop Singh regarding compromise, then the appellants came on spot, who were armed with deadly weapons and exhorted to kill them. When both these witnesses and deceased found themselves surrounded by them, they all ran towards Dharamshala, upon which, the assailants climbed onto the roof of Ram Swaroop's house and after reaching the corner, they started indiscriminate firing, the deceased sustained gun shot injuries. He was at the southern-western corner of Bhagat Singh's house. Both these witnesses have consistently stated that they took the deceased on a motorcycle from the spot to Vijaipur Hospital, where on arrival, victim died. Thereafter, they went to the concerned police station for registration of the FIR. Both PW-1 and PW-2 have been cross-examined at length regarding manner of incident, place of incident and areas surrounding the place of incident as well as directions of the spot. PW-1 and PW-2 have clearly answered all the questions so put to these witnesses and their respective answers find corroboration from the site plan (Ex.Ka-11). There is no contradiction whatsoever regarding date, time, place and manner of incident. There is only one minor contradiction in the depositions of PW-1 and PW-2 that as per PW-1, they (i.e. PW-1 and PW-2)were sitting when gun shots hit his father and as per PW-2, they were standing when gun shots hit this brother. However, their depositions are consistent that when gun shots hit the deceased, he (the deceased) was standing and they (i.e. PW-1 and PW-2), were behind the southern wall of Bhagat Singh's house, which minor contradiction is a natural one and does not affect the prosecution story at all. The oral as well as documentary evidence establishes that the deceased had died on account of sustaining gun shot injuries and those injuries could have been caused at 4:00 pm on 11.10.2008. The prosecution has successfully proved the common intention of the appellants behind commission of crime.

75. The ocular as well as documentary medical evidence supports the prosecution version, even the FIR has been promptly lodged giving brief description of the incident as well as motive behind the incident. The prosecution has successfully proved the motive behind the incident. Thus from the totality of the circumstances, the prosecution has successfully proved its' case against the appellants-convicts beyond reasonable doubt. Question No. 5 is thus, answered in 'Affirmative'.

76. In the light of foregoing discussions and considering the entire aspects of the matter and looking to the circumstances, under which the present offence has been committed, we are of the view that the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial Court is well thought and well discussed and the trial Court has rightly held that the prosecution has succeeded to prove the guilt of the appellants-accused beyond reasonable doubt. The conviction in the case in hand is a right ending and sentence as imposed is proper. As such, the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial Court is liable to be upheld and the Appeal having no force is liable to be dismissed.

77. No good ground to interfere in the well reasoned judgment of the trial court is made out. Thus, there is no merit in the present criminal appeal. Consequently, the judgment and sentence dated 03.07.2013 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No. 3, Fatehpur in Sessions Trial No. 38 of 2009, under Sections 302/34 IPC, Police Station Kishunpur, District Fatehpur, qua appellants-convicts Dinesh Chandra Shukla, Anil Kumar Shukla, Sunil Kumar Shukla and Akhilesh Chandra Shukla, under Section 302 IPC, is hereby 'Affirmed', while altering the same from Section 302 IPC to Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC.

78. The appellants are on bail. Their bail bonds and sureties shall stand cancelled and they are directed to be taken back to the custody forthwith to serve the remaining part of the sentence imposed upon them by the trial Court.

79. The record of the 'Trial Court' be sent back immediately with a copy of this judgment for necessary information and compliance.

80. The present appeal fails and is hereby Dismissed.

81. Pending applications, if any, stand disposed of accordingly.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the prosecution established the foundational facts necessary to sustain the charge of penetrative sexual assault/rape and to invoke the statutory presumption under Section 29 of the POCSO Act.

Whether the ocular evidence of the child victim and her mother, particularly the allegation of bleeding, stands contradicted by contemporaneous medical evidence and surrounding circumstances.

Whether the evidence nevertheless established the lesser offence of aggravated sexual assault under Sections 7/9(m)/9(n) punishable under Section 10 of the POCSO Act.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 17.06.2022 passed by the Special Judge (POCSO Act)/Additional District and Sessions Judge, Varanasi in Special Sessions Trial No. 214 of 2017 arising from Case Crime No. 800 of 2017, Police Station Rohaniya, District Varanasi.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): P.K. Singh
Counsel for Respondent(s): Ajeet Kumar Madhesia, G.A., Shabana Nizam

(Delivered by Hon'ble Salil Kumar Rai, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 374(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 ("Cr.P.C.") is directed against the judgment and order dated 17.06.2022 passed by the Special Judge (POCSO Act)/Additional District and Sessions Judge, Varanasi in Special Sessions Trial No. 214 of 2017. By the impugned judgment, the appellant was convicted under Section 376(2)(i) of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 ("IPC") and Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 ("POCSO Act"). He was sentenced to imprisonment for life, being imprisonment for the remainder of his natural life, and to pay a fine of Rs. 50,000/-, of which 80% was to be paid to the victim. The trial arose from Case Crime No. 800 of 2017, initially registered under Section 376 IPC and Sections 3 and 4 of the POCSO Act at Police Station Rohaniya, District Varanasi.

2. The First Information Report in Case Crime No. 800 of 2017, under Section 376 IPC and Sections 3 and 4 of the POCSO Act, was lodged at 10:45 p.m. on 07.09.2017 by the father of the victim. According to the FIR, at about 12:30 p.m. on the same day, the victim came down crying from the terrace of the appellant's house. Blood was allegedly noticed on her undergarments and legs. The victim is stated to have told her mother that the appellant had taken her upstairs and done objectionable things ('gandaa kaam') with her and had fled when she began to cry. The victim was stated to be five years old on the date of the incident. The written report was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-2 before the Trial Court.

3. The record further indicates that, on the same night, the Investigating Officer caused the victim's statement to be recorded by Woman Sub-Inspector Pushpa Singh. The statement, recorded on a separate sheet, bears the right-thumb impression of the victim and the signatures of her mother and of Pushpa Singh. It was marked as Paper No. 7-Ka before the Trial Court. In that statement, the victim stated that the appellant had taken her to the terrace, made her lie down, positioned himself over her, and done objectionable things (gandaa-kaam) with her. The Sub-Inspector recorded that the victim was unable to say anything further.

4. The victim was examined by the Emergency Medical Officer at 11:55 p.m. on 07.09.2017. The medical report records no external or internal injury on her body. Two vaginal slides, an oral smear, and nail clippings were sent for pathological examination. The clothes handed over to the doctor were also collected by the Investigating Officer. The pathological report, received on 11.09.2017, disclosed no sperm. In the supplementary medico-legal report, the doctor noted that no definite opinion regarding recent sexual act could be given. The medical report and supplementary medical reports were exhibited as Exhibits Ka-3 and Ka-4 before the Trial Court.

5. The appellant was arrested at 5:15 a.m. on 08.09.2017. He was medically examined at 12:13 p.m. on the same day by the Medical Officer, Community Health Centre, Misirpur, Varanasi. His medical report records no injury or other complication. The report is available on the Trial Court record as Paper No. 8-Ka/5. Although the prosecution did not formally prove it in trial and it was, therefore, not marked as an exhibit, the defence did not dispute its genuineness.

6. The victim's statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded by the Judicial Magistrate on 10.11.2017, approximately two months after the incident. In that statement, while pointing towards her pelvic area, the victim stated that the appellant had hit her with his fist on the lower part of her body. She further stated that the appellant had opened his zipper and removed her undergarments. She also stated that she had bled, experienced pain, and that her undergarments were stained with blood. The statement was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-1 before the Trial Court.

7. Upon completion of the investigation, a charge-sheet was submitted under Section 376(2)(i) IPC and Sections 5(i) and 6 of the POCSO Act. Special Sessions Trial No. 214 of 2017 was registered before the Special Judge (POCSO Act)/Additional District and Sessions Judge, Varanasi.

The appellant was charged under Section 376(2)(i) IPC and Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act. He denied the charges and claimed trial.

8. To establish its case, the prosecution examined the victim as PW-1; her father and the first informant as PW-2; her mother as PW-3; the doctor who examined the victim as PW-4; the clerk of Nagar Nigam, Varanasi as PW-5; the Investigating Officer who took over the investigation from 09.09.2017 as PW-6; and the Investigating Officer who conducted the investigation on 07.09.2017 and 08.09.2017 as PW-7.

9. In her examination-in-chief, PW-1 reiterated that the appellant had done objectionable or "dirty" things (gandaa kaam) with her. She stated that the appellant made her lie down on a bed, withdrew her undergarments, and positioned himself above her. According to her, the appellant fled when she cried in pain. She stated that she informed her mother and that she later went to the police station with her father and told everything to the "police aunty". PW-1 proved her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., although she could not identify the photographs affixed to the memorandum containing that statement. She did not depose before the trial court that she had bled. During cross-examination, when asked what she meant by "gandaa kaam", PW-1 remained silent.

10. PW-2 proved the written report and deposed that he learnt of the incident from his wife and father upon returning home. He initially stated that the victim was sad and crying and had narrated the incident to him. In cross-examination, however, he stated that the victim was asleep when he reached home and did not tell him anything. He further stated that he, his father, and his wife approached the Gram Pradhan, but the Pradhan's husband declined to intervene. PW-2 stated that a hospital and three to four medical practitioners were available in the village. He had worked in the healthcare sector for ten years and ordinarily consulted Dr. Manoj Kumar Singh when members of his family fell ill. He stated that the family first went to the Pradhan and thereafter purchased antibiotics and painkillers for the victim from a nearby medical store in the evening. He denied any dispute between the two families regarding the flow of water over his plot. His evidence also shows that he was employed with Punjab National Bank.

11. PW-3, the mother of the victim, stated that the victim was aged four years and ten months on the date of the incident. She deposed that, upon hearing the victim cry, she noticed blood on the undergarments of the victim and was told by the victim that the appellant had hit her genital area. In cross-examination, PW-3 stated that she did not consult a doctor for the victim. She denied that PW-2 was present at the police station on 07.09.2017 and stated that, at the request of persons present at the police station, she signed the documents prepared there.

12. PW-4, the Emergency Medical Officer who examined the victim, proved the medical and supplementary medical reports. She stated that there were no external or internal injury on the victim's body, that the hymen was intact, and that the examination was otherwise normal. There was no bleeding or other discharge from any part of the victim's body, and no injury was found in or around the genital region. PW-4 further stated that the victim's undergarments were collected and handed over to the police for DNA examination.

13. PW-5, a clerk of the Municipal Corporation, Varanasi, proved the relevant entries in the Register of Births and Deaths and the birth certificate issued by the Corporation. The certificate records the victim's date of birth as 13.10.2013 and was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-5.

14. PW-7, who investigated the case on 07.09.2017 and 08.09.2017, stated in his cross-examination that the victim had told him that the appellant had taken her to the terrace and done dirty things with her. The witness also stated that senior police officers, including the Circle Officer and the SPRA, visited the place of occurrence on the following day.

15. PW-6, who investigated the case from 09.09.2017 onwards, was a formal witness. He stated that no laboratory report was filed and that he did not seek the assistance of any expert while inspecting the place of occurrence. He found nothing significant at the site; no blood, clothes, or instrument was recovered therefrom.

16. In his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the appellant denied the charges and his presence at the spot. He asserted that he was innocent, that the investigation was not fair, and that the prosecution witnesses had deposed falsely. In defence, he examined three witnesses in support of his plea.

17. The defence examined as D.W.-1 the husband of the Gram Pradhan, referred to in the evidence of PW-2 and PW-3, and also examined two village residents as DW-2 and DW-3. According to these witnesses, there existed a dispute between the two families regarding the flow of water over the first informant's plot, which had caused bitterness between the families. They stated that a panchayat had been convened in connection with the dispute. DW-1 stated that, at the panchayat held on 20.08.2017, the first informant threatened to have the appellant's father sent to jail. DW-2 stated that the first informant threatened to have every member of the appellant's family, including the appellant, sent to jail.

18. The Trial Court held that the testimony of PW-1 was trustworthy and substantially consistent with her statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. It further held that the allegation of sexual assault remained unchallenged as the defence had not cross-examined PW-1 on that aspect. The Trial Court was of the view that the prosecution case stood proved notwithstanding the medical evidence, observing that ocular evidence ordinarily prevails over medical opinion. It also invoked the statutory presumption under Section 29 of the POCSO Act and held that the appellant had failed to rebut the same. The defence evidence was discarded on the ground that the defence witnesses were not consistent regarding the date and nature of the alleged prior dispute. On those grounds, it recorded the conviction and imposed the sentence.

19. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the prosecution has failed to establish the foundational facts necessary to sustain the charge of penetrative sexual assault or to invoke the presumption under Section 29 of the POCSO Act. It is argued that the medical evidence, comprising the medical reports and the testimony of PW-4, fundamentally contradicts the ocular version of PW-1 and PW-3. According to the prosecution, the victim had suffered bleeding following the assault; however, the medical examination, conducted on the very day of the incident, disclosed no external or internal injury, no injury to the genital region, and no bleeding, rendering the prosecution version inherently improbable. It is further submitted that the victim's silence in cross-examination when asked to explain what she meant by "objectionable things" (gandaa kaam) creates serious ambiguity regarding the allegation of penetration. Counsel further contends that the statement of the victim under Section 164 Cr.P.C., recorded after an unexplained delay of about two months, cannot be treated as substantive evidence or relied upon to supply material facts not deposed to by the victim before the Trial Court. It is also argued that the prosecution failed to produce the victim's clothes or the forensic laboratory reports, despite their collection during investigation, thereby withholding material evidence. Attention is also drawn to the conduct of PW-2 and PW-3 in not obtaining immediate medical treatment for the child despite alleging bleeding, which, according to the appellant, is inconsistent with ordinary human conduct. Lastly, it is submitted that the Trial Court erroneously rejected the defence evidence on the basis of insignificant discrepancies while overlooking the substance of the defence case. The appellant, therefore, prays that the judgment and order dated 17.06.2022 be set aside and that he be acquitted of the charges.

20. Learned AGA, replying for the State, submits that the testimony of PW-1 is consistent and inspires confidence. It is argued that medical evidence is not indispensable in a prosecution for sexual assault and cannot override otherwise reliable ocular evidence. The prosecution further submits that a child victim cannot be expected to give a graphic or technically precise account of the incident and that her evidence must be assessed with sensitivity. According to the prosecution, the foundational facts were proved, the presumption under Section 29 was correctly invoked, and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

21. We have given our anxious consideration to the rival submissions and carefully perused the original record.

22. While recording conviction, the Trial Court invoked Section 29 of the POCSO Act and held that the appellant had failed to rebut the statutory presumption. It is, therefore, appropriate to reproduce Sections 29 and 30 of the POCSO Act:

"29. Presumption as to certain offences*-Where a person is prosecuted for committing or abetting or attempting to commit any offence under sections 3, 5, 7 and section 9 of this Act, the Special Court shall presume, that such person has committed or abetted or attempted to commit the offence, as the case may be, unless the contrary is proved.*

30. Presumption of culpable mental state.'(1) In any prosecution for any offence under this Act which requires a culpable mental state on the part of the accused, the Special Court shall presume the existence of such mental state but it shall be a defence for the accused to prove the fact that he had no such mental state with respect to the act charged as an offence in that prosecution.

(2) For the purposes of this section, a fact is said to be proved only when the Special Court believes it to exist beyond reasonable doubt and not merely when its existence is established by a preponderance of probability.

Explanation - In this section, 'culpable mental state' includes intention, motive, knowledge of a fact and the belief in, or reason to believe, a fact."

23. Sections 29 and 30 of the POCSO Act embody statutory reverse-onus provisions, constituting an exception to the ordinary rule of criminal jurisprudence that every accused is presumed innocent until proved guilty beyond reasonable doubt. The validity and operation of such provisions are, however, conditioned upon fairness and reasonableness under Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution. Consequently, the statutory presumptions do not arise automatically upon the institution of a prosecution but become operative only after the prosecution has first established, by legally admissible evidence, the foundational facts necessary to attract them.

24. The principles governing reverse-onus provisions have been authoritatively explained by the Supreme Court in Noor Aga v. State of Punjab (2008) 16 SCC 417, while interpreting Sections 35 and 54 of the NDPS Act. The Court held that although reverse burdens are constitutionally permissible, such provisions must be strictly construed and can operate only after the prosecution has proved the foundational facts beyond reasonable doubt. Having regard to the stringent consequences flowing from such provisions, the Court emphasised that the prosecution's evidence must be subjected to heightened judicial scrutiny and reiterated the settled principle that suspicion, however grave, can never substitute legal proof. Once the foundational facts are established, the evidentiary burden shifts to the accused, who is required to rebut the statutory presumption only on the standard of a preponderance of probabilities.

25. The same principle was reiterated in Gorakh Nath Prasad v. State of Bihar (2018) 2 SCC 305, wherein the Supreme Court held that the mere registration of a case under a statute incorporating a reverse burden does not, by itself, shift the burden of proof to the accused. The prosecution must first establish a prima facie case by strict compliance with the statutory requirements, and any reasonable doubt at that stage must necessarily enure to the benefit of the accused.

26. The same principles were applied by the Calcutta High Court in Subrata Biswas v. State (2019) SCC OnLine Cal 1815 and Sahid Hossain Biswas v. State of West Bengal (2017) SCC OnLine Cal 5023 while considering Section 29 of the POCSO Act. The Court held that the prosecution must first lay the foundation of its case through cogent, reliable and legally admissible evidence, free from patent absurdity or inherent improbability, before the statutory presumption can be invoked. The presumption does not require the Court to mechanically accept the prosecution version as gospel truth, nor does it relieve the Court of its obligation to evaluate the credibility, probability and inherent consistency of the prosecution evidence.

27. The Kerala High Court in Justin v. Union of India (2020) SCC OnLine Ker 4956, identified the foundational facts which ordinarily require proof in a prosecution under the POCSO Act, namely, that the victim was a child within the meaning of the Act, that the alleged incident occurred, and that the accused committed the offence. Where the prosecution relies upon physical injury as a material circumstance in support of the charge, the allegation must ordinarily be supported by the medical evidence or the inconsistency satisfactorily explained.

28. The same approach has been adopted by a Division Bench of this Court in Monu Thakur v. State of U.P. (2022) SCC OnLine All 1098 wherein it has been held that the statutory presumption does not dispense with the prosecution's obligation to prove, by legally admissible evidence, the foundational facts relating to the commission of the offence by the accused. Mere registration of a case or submission of a police report does not shift the burden to the accused. Such an interpretation alone preserves the constitutional validity of Section 29 by ensuring that the reverse burden operates consistently with the guarantees of fairness embodied in Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution.

29. As regards the manner in which the statutory burden may be discharged, the Supreme Court in Abdul Rashid Ibrahim Mansuri v. State of Gujarat (2000) 2 SCC 513, held that an accused is not required to prove his innocence beyond reasonable doubt. The burden may be discharged by relying upon the prosecution evidence itself, by eliciting favourable admissions during cross-examination, by exposing contradictions, omissions, inherent improbabilities or patent infirmities in the prosecution case, or, where necessary, by leading defence evidence. The standard of proof required of the accused remains only that of a preponderance of probabilities.

30. The cumulative effect of the aforesaid authorities is that the statutory presumptions contained in Sections 29 and 30 of the POCSO Act do not displace the Court's fundamental duty to scrutinise the prosecution evidence with care. Before the presumption can be invoked, the prosecution must establish the foundational facts by legally admissible and reliable evidence. Only thereafter does the evidentiary burden shift to the accused, who may rebut the presumption on a preponderance of probabilities by leading defence evidence or by demonstrating, from the prosecution evidence itself, material inconsistencies, omissions, inherent improbabilities or other infirmities which render the prosecution case doubtful. The statutory presumption is thus a rule of evidence and not a substitute for proof of the foundational facts upon which its operation depends.

31. The appellant was charged under Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act and under Section 376(2)(i) IPC. The alleged incident occurred on 07.09.2017. It is, therefore, appropriate to reproduce the relevant provisions of the POCSO Act as they stood on that date:

"3. Penetrative sexual assault - A person is said to commit 'penetrative sexual assault' if-

(a) he penetrates his penis, to any extent, into the vagina, mouth, urethra or anus of a child or makes the child to do so with him or any other person; or

10. Punishment for aggravated sexual assault - Whoever, commits aggravated sexual assault shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than five years but which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

32. The POCSO Act was subsequently amended by Act No. 25 of 2019, notified in the Gazette of India on 06.08.2019 and brought into force on 16.08.2019. Among other provisions, the amendment altered Sections 4 and 6 of the Act. The amended provisions read as follows:

"4. Punishment for penetrative sexual assault-[(1)] Whoever commits penetrative sexual assault shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than [ten years] but which may extend to imprisonment for life, and shall also be liable to fine.

[(2) Whoever commits penetrative sexual assault on a child below sixteen years of age shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than twenty years, but which may extend to imprisonment for life, which shall mean imprisonment for the remainder of natural life of that person, and shall also be liable to fine.

6. Punishment for aggravated penetrative sexual assault.-(1) Whoever commits aggravated penetrative sexual assault shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than twenty years, but which may extend to imprisonment for life, which shall mean imprisonment for the remainder of natural life of that person and shall also be liable to fine, or with death.

(2) The fine imposed under sub-section (1) shall be just and reasonable and paid to the victim to meet the medical expenses and rehabilitation of such victim.]"

33. The appellant could have been convicted and sentenced under Sections 4 and 6 of the POCSO Act, as they stood on the date of the incident, only if the prosecution proved the ingredients of Section 3 read with Sections 5(m) and 5(n) of the Act. The alleged offence was committed on 07.09.2017, before Act No. 25 of 2019 came into force. In view of Article 20(1) of the Constitution, the appellant could not be sentenced under the enhanced provisions introduced by that amendment. The appellant was also charged under Section 376(2)(i) IPC, which, in 2017, prescribed rigorous imprisonment of not less than ten years and which could extend to imprisonment for life, meaning imprisonment for the remainder of the offender's natural life, for rape of a woman under sixteen years of age. That provision was subsequently omitted by Act No. 22 of 2018, with effect from 21.04.2018. Section 376(3) was thereafter inserted and provided as follows:

"(3) Whoever, commits rape on a woman under sixteen years of age shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than twenty years, but which may extend to imprisonment for life, which shall mean imprisonment for the remainder of that person's natural life, and shall also be liable to fine:

Provided that such fine shall be just and reasonable to meet the medical expenses and rehabilitation of the victim:

Provided further that any fine imposed under this sub-section shall be paid to the victim.]"

34. The appellant could have been convicted and sentenced under Section 376(2)(i) IPC, as it stood in 2017, only if the prosecution proved the ingredients of rape under Section 375 IPC. The Trial Court convicted the appellant under Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act and under Section 376(2)(i) IPC, after invoking the presumption under Section 29 of the POCSO Act. It nevertheless imposed sentence under Section 376(2)(i) IPC, apparently to award the maximum available sentence rather than under Sections 4 or 6 of the POCSO Act as they stood before the 2019 amendment.

35. The presumptions under Sections 29 and 30 of the POCSO Act are confined to the offences specified in that Act. They do not apply to an offence punishable under the IPC, nor can they be used to impose a sentence under the IPC that was unavailable under the POCSO Act as it stood on the date of the alleged offence. The appellant could not have been sentenced to imprisonment for the remainder of his natural life under the POCSO Act as it stood in 2017; that sentence was available only under Section 376(2)(i) IPC. It would be impermissible to hold an accused guilty with the aid of a reverse-onus provision in one statute and then impose, under another statute that contains no such presumption, a punishment that the first statute did not then authorise. Such an approach would be arbitrary and inconsistent with the guarantees under Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution.

36. The view that Sections 29 and 30 of the POCSO Act apply only to offences specified in that Act, and not to offences under another statute including the IPC, finds support in paragraph 36 of the judgment of a Division Bench of this Court in Monu Thakur (supra):

"36. At this stage, we may clarify that though the presumptive provisions contained in sections 29 and 30 are there in the Act but their operation is limited to the offences specified therein. No doubt, by virtue of sub-section (2) of section 28 of the Act, while trying an offence under the Act, a Special Court has also to try an offence other than the offence referred to in sub-section (1) of section 28 of the Act (i.e. the offences punishable under the Act), with which the accused may, under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, be charged at the same trial but, as the presumptive provisions of section 29 are applicable only to the offences specified therein, they would not apply to prove an offence of murder punishable under section 302 IPC. In our view therefore, the trial court completely misunderstood the true import of the presumptive provisions contained in section 29 of the POCSO Act."

37. The Trial Court appears to have been influenced by the gravity of the allegations while recording conviction and imposing sentence. A court, however, must assess the prosecution case dispassionately and with complete objectivity. The seriousness of an accusation cannot be allowed to cloud judicial clarity either in determining guilt or in imposing sentence.

38. The allegations in the present case are undoubtedly grave: the appellant was charged with rape and aggravated penetrative sexual assault upon a five-year-old child. The age of the victim was not seriously disputed by the defence. In any event, her date of birth was proved through the relevant certificate and the evidence of the concerned officer of the local body. No challenge to the Trial Court's finding on age has been raised in this appeal. Nevertheless, as observed in Noor Aga (supra), the more serious the charge, the greater the care required in assessing whether the prosecution had discharged its burden.

39. The prosecution case rests principally on the evidence of PW-1, the victim, and PW-3, her mother. The defence submits that the prosecution failed to establish the foundational facts for an offence under Sections 3 and 5 of the POCSO Act and also failed to prove the charge under Section 376(2)(i) IPC beyond reasonable doubt. It is unnecessary to restate the evidence, which has already been set out. The Trial Court treated the testimony of PW-1 as corroborated by her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. For reasons stated below, however, it would not be safe to sustain the conviction under Sections 3 and 5 of the POCSO Act or under Section 376(2)(i) IPC on the evidence of PW-1 and PW-3. It is true that conviction for rape may rest upon the sole testimony of the prosecutrix if it inspires confidence; but there is no rule or presumption that such testimony is invariably free from embellishment or exaggeration.

40. Penetration is the sine qua non of rape under Section 375 IPC and of penetrative sexual assault under Section 3 of the POCSO Act, except in cases falling under Section 3(d), which is not the prosecution case here. In her statement on Paper No. 7-Ka, the victim stated that the appellant made her lie down, positioned himself over her, and did dirty things to her. In her deposition before the Court also, the victim did not state anything about bleeding. In her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., she stated that the appellant struck her genital area with his fist and did dirty things to her and she bled. It was only in the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. that she said she bled and that her undergarments were stained with blood. There is no specific allegation of penetration by the victim. A reading of the Trial Court's judgment indicates that penetration was inferred from the allegation of bleeding.

41. A significant feature of the case is that the victim was medically examined at 10:45 p.m. on the date of the alleged occurrence, that is, within about twelve hours. The medical report records no external or internal injury and states that the examination was normal. PW-4 also testified that no abnormality was detected; there was no vaginal bleeding; and no injury was found on or around the private parts. The appellant contends that the medical evidence belies the prosecution case, whereas the State submits and the trial court has held that credible ocular evidence prevails over medical evidence.

42. It is settled that a credible ocular account cannot ordinarily be displaced merely because medical opinion suggests an alternative possibility. Medical evidence is essentially corroborative and opinionative in character, whereas ocular testimony constitutes substantive evidence. This principle, however, does not diminish the evidentiary value of objective medical findings. The presence or absence of visible injuries recorded during a medical examination is a matter of direct observation and not merely expert opinion. Consequently, where contemporaneous medical findings are wholly inconsistent with the prosecution's ocular version or render it inherently improbable, the inconsistency becomes a relevant circumstance in the appreciation of evidence and may disclose a fundamental defect in the prosecution case.

43. At this stage, we refer to decisions of the Supreme Court concerning the significance of medical evidence when it is inconsistent with ocular evidence.

44. The Supreme Court has consistently held that, as a general rule, credible ocular evidence prevails over medical evidence. In Ramanand Yadav v. Prabhu Nath Jha (2003) 12 SCC 606 (para 17), it was held that medical evidence is ordinarily opinionative and that an adverse inference may be drawn only where the medical evidence specifically rules out the injuries alleged by the eyewitnesses. The same principle was reiterated in State of U.P. v. Hari Chand (2009) 13 SCC 542 (para 13), wherein it was observed that oral evidence has primacy unless it is wholly irreconcilable with the medical evidence. In Bhajan Singh v. State of Haryana (2011) 7 SCC 421 (para 38), the Court crystallised the law by holding that although ocular testimony ordinarily carries greater evidentiary value, medical evidence assumes significance where it renders the ocular version improbable, and where it completely excludes the possibility of the ocular account being true, the Court may legitimately disbelieve such testimony.

45. The same principle was reiterated in Kapildeo Mandal v. State of Bihar (2008) 16 SCC 99 (paras 23 & 27), wherein the eyewitnesses attributed firearm injuries to the accused whereas the medical evidence conclusively established the absence of any firearm injury. Referring to Mani Ram v. State of Uttar Pradesh 1994 Supp (2) SCC 289 (para 9), the Supreme Court held that where direct evidence was wholly inconsistent with medical evidence on a material aspect of the prosecution case, and the inconsistency remains unexplained, such inconsistency constitutes a fundamental defect which may not merely discredit the ocular testimony but may undermine the prosecution case itself.

46. The aforesaid principles apply equally to prosecutions for rape and offences under the POCSO Act, subject to an important qualification. The mere absence of injuries on the person of the prosecutrix does not, by itself, falsify the allegation of sexual assault, nor is medical corroboration an indispensable requirement in every case. Whether the absence of injuries is of any significance depends upon the facts and circumstances of the particular case. In Sadashiv Ramrao Hadbe v. State of Maharashtra (2006) 10 SCC 92 (para 9), reiterated in Manak Chand v. State of Haryana (2024) 20 SCC 561, the Supreme Court held that although an accused may be convicted on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix if it inspires confidence, the Court would be justified in declining to act upon such solitary testimony where it is unsupported by medical evidence and the surrounding circumstances render the prosecution version highly improbable.

47. Similarly in Rai Sandeep v. State (NCT of Delhi) (2012) 8 SCC 21 (para 22), the Supreme Court explained that a conviction may safely rest on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix only where she is a "sterling witness", namely, a witness of such impeccable quality whose testimony inspires implicit confidence. The Court held that the hallmark of a sterling witness is the consistency of her version "right from the starting point till the end, namely, at the time when the witness makes the initial statement and ultimately before the Court". Equally important, the Court observed that such testimony should correlate with the other supporting material, including the recoveries made, the manner in which the offence was committed, the scientific evidence and the expert opinion. The Court likened this test to that applicable in cases based on circumstantial evidence, observing that there should be no missing link in the chain of circumstances before the testimony can be accepted as sufficient, by itself, to sustain a conviction. Thus the consistency of the prosecutrix's testimony, both internally and with the surrounding objective evidence, remains an important test in evaluating whether her evidence is of sterling quality and capable of sustaining a conviction without further corroboration. The tests formulated in Rai Sandeep are cumulative and not independent. The testimony must be consistent from its inception, withstand cross-examination, and harmonise with the objective evidence, including the medical and scientific evidence. A material break in this chain may deprive the witness of the character of a "sterling witness" and require the Court to seek assurance from other reliable evidence before recording a conviction.

48. The aforesaid decisions do not lay down conflicting principles. They merely recognize that while the testimony of the prosecutrix may, in an appropriate case, by itself sustain a conviction, the Court cannot ignore contemporaneous medical, scientific or other objective evidence which fundamentally contradicts a material assertion forming the substratum of the prosecution case.

49. The cumulative effect of the above authorities is that while trustworthy ocular testimony ordinarily prevails over medical opinion, the Court cannot ignore contemporaneous medical findings which conclusively negate a material factual assertion made by the prosecution. In prosecutions for rape or penetrative sexual assault, the absence of injuries is not, by itself, decisive; however, where the prosecution itself relies upon a specific allegation of bodily injury or bleeding and the contemporaneous medical examination completely negatives such assertion without any satisfactory explanation, the inconsistency assumes considerable significance in evaluating whether the prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt.

50. We may now advert to the facts of the present case. In light of the aforesaid principles, the pivotal question is whether the prosecution has succeeded in establishing the foundational facts necessary to sustain the charge of penetrative sexual assault against the appellant and thereby attract the statutory presumption under Section 29 of the POCSO Act. In answering that question, the ocular testimony cannot be evaluated in isolation but must be examined in conjunction with the contemporaneous medical evidence and the other attending circumstances appearing on the record.

1. In her initial statement to the Woman Sub-Inspector, recorded as Paper No. 7-Ka, the victim did not state that the appellant's act caused bleeding, that her undergarments were stained with blood, or that blood was present on her legs. This was her earliest statement to the investigating agency. She stated only that the appellant had taken her to the terrace, made her lie down, positioned himself over her, and done dirty things to her. The record notes that she said nothing further. The absence of any reference to bleeding in this first statement, as well as in her deposition before the Court, raises a serious doubt about the subsequent allegation of bleeding made in the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., which was recorded two months later. PW-1 stated that she had told everything to the police aunty at the police station. Given the age of the child, the possibility that she was subsequently influenced by PW-2 and PW-3 before her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. cannot be excluded. The later statement may, therefore, contain an improvement. Though Paper No. 7-Ka may attract Section 162 Cr.P.C., it has been considered to assess the veracity of the witness, particularly as it bears the signature of the victim's mother and the right-thumb impression of the victim. This circumstance requires careful scrutiny of the prosecution evidence.

2. A statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. is not substantive evidence and may be used only to corroborate or contradict the testimony of its maker. The victim did not state in her deposition before the Court that she bled. The statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. could not, therefore, corroborate a fact not deposed to before the Court. To read the allegation of bleeding from the Section 164 statement as substantive evidence would be impermissible. The Trial Court consequently erred in relying upon that statement while recording conviction under Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act and under Section 376(2)(i) IPC.

3. The incident is alleged to have occurred on 07.09.2017, whereas the victim's statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 10.11.2017, almost two months later. The prosecution has not explained this delay. PW-7 stated that senior police officers, including the Circle Officer and the SPRA, visited the place of occurrence on the following day. Despite such attention to the case, no prompt effort was made to have the victim's statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C.

4. The doctor handed over the victim's clothes to the police for forensic examination. The prosecution, however, did not file any laboratory report that could establish whether the clothes bore blood stains.

5. The record shows that the appellant was arrested at about 5:15 a.m. on 08.09.2017 and was thereafter medically examined. The report, available as Paper No. 8-Ka/5, notes no injury on his person. Although the report was filed by the prosecution and forms part of the Trial Court record, it was not formally proved or marked as an exhibit. The defence did not dispute its genuineness and it may, therefore, be read in evidence under Section 294(3) Cr.P.C. Section 294 Cr.P.C. is reproduced below:

"294. No formal proof of certain documents.

(1) Where any document is filed before any Court by the prosecution or the accused, the particulars of every such document shall be included in a list and the prosecution or the accused, as the case may be, or the pleader for the prosecution or the accused, if any, shall be called upon to admit or deny the genuineness of each such document.

(2) The list of documents shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the State Government.

(3) Where the genuineness of any document is not disputed, such document may be read in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code without proof of the signature of the person by whom it purports to be signed;

Provided that the Court may, in its discretion, require such signature to be proved."

It would also be apt to refer to the judgment of the Supreme Court in Akhtar v. State of Uttaranchal, (2009) 13 SCC 722 wherein the Court observed in paragraph 21 as follows:

"21. It has been argued that non-examination of the medical officers concerned is fatal for the prosecution. However, there is no denial of the fact that the defence admitted the genuineness of the injury reports and the post mortem examination reports before the trial court. So the genuineness and authenticity of the documents stands proved and shall be treated as valid evidence under Section 294 of the CrPC. It is settled position of law that if the genuineness of any document filed by a party is not disputed by the opposite party it can be read as substantive evidence under sub-Section (3) of Section 294 CrPC. Accordingly, the post-mortem report, if its genuineness is not disputed by the opposite party, the said post-mortem report can be read as substantive evidence to prove the correctness of its contents without the doctor concerned being examined.'

(emphasis supplied)

The absence of any injury on the appellant further supports the possibility that neither penetration nor the alleged bleeding occurred in the manner claimed by the prosecution.

6. PW-1, PW-2, and PW-3 stated that medical practitioners were available in the village and that the family ordinarily consulted them when required. Yet PW-2 and PW-3 did not promptly consult a medical practitioner for the victim. Instead, after returning from the residence of the Gram Pradhan in the late evening, they purchased antibiotics and other medicines from a medical store. In the circumstances alleged by the prosecution, this conduct is difficult to reconcile with the claim of bleeding, in which case, the child required prompt medical attention. PW-2 and PW-3 do not appear, from their evidence, to be illiterate or wholly unaware of the need to seek medical assistance. For the same reason, the testimony of PW-3 that she noticed blood on the clothes of the victim does not inspire confidence.

51. The foregoing deficiencies require a closer examination of the medical evidence to assess the reliability of the ocular account. The medical examination recorded no external or internal injury on the victim's body. The prosecution case is one of penetrative sexual assault accompanied by bleeding in a child of about five years of age. As the victim was examined at about 10:45 p.m., within approximately ten hours of the alleged occurrence at 12:30 p.m., the Court would ordinarily expect some corresponding sign of bodily injury or trauma if the allegation of bleeding were correct, unless the absence of such finding were medically explained. No such explanation has been offered. It is difficult to reconcile the categorical assertion of PW-3 that blood was present on the victim's undergarments and legs with the complete absence of external or internal injury in the contemporaneous medical examination. The victim's earliest statement to the Sub-Inspector did not mention bleeding; it stated only that the appellant made her lie down, lay over her, and did dirty things to her. The conduct of the parents, who did not promptly seek medical attention and instead first approached the Gram Pradhan, is also a circumstance to be assessed in the overall factual context. The Trial Court did not evaluate these aspects in their proper perspective. It mechanically applied the general proposition that credible ocular evidence ordinarily prevails over medical evidence without examining whether that principle was attracted on the particular facts. The question is not whether medical evidence invariably prevails over ocular testimony, but whether the prompt medical findings are so fundamentally inconsistent with the prosecution version that they undermine the reliability of the ocular account. In the present case, the allegation of penetrative sexual assault accompanied by substantial bleeding receives no support from the contemporaneous medical evidence. This unexplained inconsistency goes to the root of the case and creates a serious doubt regarding the allegation of penetrative sexual assault.

52. In view of these shortcomings and the principles stated in Rai Sandeep (supra), PW-1 cannot be regarded as a sterling witness in relation to the allegation of penetrative sexual assault. The delayed statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. raises a serious possibility of improvement in the allegation of bleeding. It would, therefore, be unsafe to rely upon the evidence of PW-1 and PW-3 concerning bleeding, particularly when it receives no support from the medical evidence. We also note the defence case that the appellant was falsely implicated because of enmity between the two families. The Trial Court rejected that defence on the superficial ground that the defence witnesses differed regarding the date of the panchayat. That ground was insufficient to discard the defence evidence in its entirety.

53. The Trial Court held that the appellant had failed to rebut the presumption under Section 29 because the defence did not cross-examine the victim on the allegation of rape. We are unable to accept that reasoning. The prosecution's case of rape and penetrative sexual assault rests upon the allegation of bleeding, coupled with the victim's statement that the appellant did dirty things to her. In cross-examination, the defence questioned the victim about her understanding of "dirty work"; she remained silent. That silence creates ambiguity as to whether the act, if any, fell within Section 3 or Section 7 of the POCSO Act, that is, whether it was penetrative sexual assault or sexual assault without penetration. We have already found that the claim of bleeding is not proved by the record and is contradicted by the medical evidence. In those circumstances, the defence's failure to put a specific question about penetration cannot, by itself, operate against it in relation to the charge under Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act or Section 376(2)(i) IPC. The lack of articulation on the part of the victim may itself have limited the scope of a more specific cross-examination. In any event, cross-examination is a means of testing a witness; it does not prevent the defence from demonstrating that the prosecution evidence is inherently improbable or does not establish the charge.

54. Penetration is an essential ingredient for conviction under Section 376(2)(i) IPC and under Section 3 of the POCSO Act, except under Section 3(d), which is not invoked here. There is no specific evidence of penetration. The Trial Court appears to have inferred penetration from the allegation of bleeding. We have held that the allegation of bleeding cannot be accepted in view of the medical evidence and the other deficiencies already noted. Accordingly, after looking into prosecution evidence in its entirety this Court is not satisfied that penetration, which constitutes the essential ingredient of Section 3 of the POCSO Act and Section 375 IPC, has been proved beyond reasonable doubt. The prosecution, therefore, failed to establish the essential ingredients necessary for conviction under Sections 4 or 6 of the POCSO Act. The foundational facts for invoking Section 29 were not proved, and the Trial Court erred in law and on facts in invoking that presumption. Even assuming that the presumption arose, the appellant rebutted it, on a preponderance of probabilities, in relation to the offences under Sections 3 and 5(m) and 5(n) of the POCSO Act. The conviction under Section 376(2)(i) IPC and Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act cannot be sustained. As already held, the presumptions under the POCSO Act could not have been invoked to convict and sentence the appellant under Section 376(2)(i) IPC.

55. Accordingly, the judgment of the Trial Court, insofar as it convicts the appellant under Section 376(2)(i) IPC and Sections 5(m) and 5(n), read with Section 6, of the POCSO Act, and sentences him under Section 376(2)(i) IPC, is liable to be set aside and is set-aside.

56. However, the conclusion that the prosecution has failed to prove the allegation of penetrative sexual assault does not require the Court to reject the testimony of PW-1 in its entirety. It is a settled principle of criminal jurisprudence that the evidence of a witness is not to be discarded as a whole merely because one part of the testimony is found to be unreliable. The Court is under a duty to separate the grain from the chaff and to rely upon those portions of the evidence which are found to be truthful, consistent and supported by the surrounding circumstances. The rule falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus has never been accepted as a sound rule of evidence in India. Applying that principle, while this Court is not prepared to accept the prosecution version insofar as it alleges penetration and bleeding, the remaining part of the victim's testimony may still be relied upon if it independently establishes the ingredients of a lesser offence.

57. The present case falls within that principle. While the allegation of penetration and bleeding cannot safely be accepted, the consistent allegation that the appellant took the child to the terrace, made her lie down, lay over her and assaulted her genital region remains substantially unimpeached. The evidence of the victim is, however, consistent from her initial statement to the Woman Sub-Inspector in respect of the allegation that the appellant took her to the terrace, made her lie down, positioned himself over her, and struck her genital area with his fist. The proved acts of taking a five-year-old child to the terrace, making her lie down, positioning himself over her and striking or touching her genital area admit of no reasonable inference other than that they were committed with sexual intent. The appellant has not been able to create any material doubt regarding this part of the evidence. The prosecution has proved the ingredients of Section 7 of the POCSO Act. As the victim was below twelve years of age and the appellant was a relative or person covered by Sections 9(m) and 9(n), the appellant is liable to be convicted for aggravated sexual assault punishable under Section 10 of the POCSO Act. The prescribed punishment is imprisonment for a term of not less than five years, which may extend to seven years, and fine.

58. The record shows that the appellant has already undergone imprisonment for five years and eight months. The Trial Court imposed a fine of Rs. 50,000/-, of which 80% was directed to be paid to the victim. We hold the appellant guilty under Section 7, read with Sections 9(m) and 9(n), and punishable under Section 10 of the POCSO Act. He is sentenced to imprisonment for the period already undergone and to pay a fine of Rs. 50,000/-. If the fine has not already been paid, it shall be deposited within three months from today. In default, the Trial Court shall take coercive steps in accordance with law for its recovery.

59. For the reasons stated above, the appeal is partly allowed.

60. The appellant is on bail. He is not required to surrender. His bond is cancelled and sureties stand discharged.

61. The Trial Court record shall be remitted forthwith. The judgment of this Court shall be certified to the Trial Court for information and compliance.

Machhalishahar, District-Jaunpur whereby cognizance has been taken against the appellants and appellants have been summoned.

3. Tersely, opposite party no. 2 registered an' F.I.R. against five accused persons at P.S. Machhalishahar. Following the initial F.I.R. against the appellants, the investigating officer recorded witness statements under Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. and initially compiled a final report on June 9, 2016, concluding that no offences were made out against the appellants; this report was submitted before the superior officer. In the light of direction of superior police officer, the investigating officer forwarded Charge Sheet No. 27/2017 on May 3, 2017 against four persons under Sections 323, 504, 506 of the IPC and Section 3(1)(x) of the SC/ST Act, noting that the first accused, Devraj, had passed away.

4. Briefly, the grounds of the appeal are that the impugned order dated 16.01.2019 passed' Special Judge (SC/ST) (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Jaunpur' is totally unjust improper' and is based upon surmises and conjunctures which is not supported by any documentary evidence."

5.'Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the trial court has wrongly taken cognizance in this case whereas during course of investigation, the investigating officer has sent charge-sheet before the Superior Police Authority. The Superior Police Authority has not empowered to issue direction for further investigation as provided under section 173(8) CRPC. On the basis of direction given by the Superior Police Authority, charge-sheet was filed whereas, initial FR was submitted, and he draw attention of the Court towards the SCD parcha III, which is annexed as Annexure 2.

6. Learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 vehemently opposed the submission of learned counsel for the appellants, and submitted that the trial court has not committed any legal error by taking cognizance. The final report was not submitted before the court. Admittedly, after registering of FIR, the investigation has been handed over to I.O. He conducted investigation and recorded statement of some of the witnesses. As per CD III, which is annexed as Annexure 2, it appears that final report no.24 of 2016 was prepared on 09.06.2016, and the investigation was closed, by I.O. Thereafter the Superior Authority/Additional S.P. Gramin, Jaunpur, returned along with instructions. In the light of instructions received through Superior Police Authority, the I.O. again conduct the further investigation and submitted the charge-sheet. Thereafter, cognizance was taken in this case.

7. In the light of submission of learned counsel for both the parties, in this regard, it would be just, and proper to refer the provision of Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS "Police officers superior in rank to an officer in charge of a police station may exercise the same powers throughout the local area to which they are appointed." Consequently, the Superintendent of Police, Additional Superintendent of Police, Deputy Superintendent of Police, Circle Officer and other superior police officers possess co-extensive powers of investigation and are competent to supervise, direct or themselves undertake investigation in accordance with law.

8. The legal position has been explained by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pramod Kumar v. State of U.P., (2026) 5 SCC 308, particularly in paragraphs 28 to 32 as under :-

28. The issue regarding the procedure to be followed for directing further investigation in a case has been dealt with by this Court in Vinay Tyagi'v.'Irshad Ali, (2013) 5 SCC 762, wherein this Court while dealing with the contours of Section 173(8)CrPC relating to further investigation, propounded that the police ought to follow the procedure of seeking permission from the Court to conduct 'further investigation' and file a supplementary charge-sheet. The relevant paragraphs from the judgment are reproduced as under : (SCC p. 790, para 40)

'40. Having analysed the provisions of the Code and the various judgments as aforeindicated, we would state the following conclusions in regard to the powers of a Magistrate in terms of Section 173(2) read with Section 173(8) and Section 156(3) of the Code:

40.1. The Magistrate has no power to direct 'reinvestigation' or 'fresh investigation' (de novo) in the case initiated on the basis of a police report.

40.2. A Magistrate has the power to direct 'further investigation' after filing of a police report in terms of Section 173(6) of the Code.

40.3. The view expressed in sub-para 40.2 above is in conformity with the principle of law stated in'Bhagwant Singh case'[Bhagwant Singh'v.'Commr. of Police, (1985) 2 SCC 537 : 1985 SCC (Cri) 267] by a three-Judge Bench and thus in conformity with the doctrine of precedent.

40.4. Neither the scheme of the Code nor any specific provision therein bars exercise of such jurisdiction by the Magistrate. The language of Section 173(2) cannot be construed so restrictively as to deprive the Magistrate of such powers particularly in face of the provisions of Section 156(3) and the language of Section 173(8) itself. In fact, such power would have to be read into the language of Section 173(8).

40.5. The Code is a procedural document, thus, it must receive a construction which would advance the cause of justice and legislative object sought to be achieved. It does not stand to reason that the legislature provided power of further investigation to the police even after filing a report, but intended to curtail the power of the court to the extent that even where the facts of the case and the ends of justice demand, the court can still not direct the investigating agency to conduct further investigation which it could do on its own.

40.6.'It has been a procedure of propriety that the police has to seek permission of the court to continue 'further investigation' and file supplementary charge-sheet. This approach has been approved by this Court in a number of judgments. This as such would support the view that we are taking in the present case.'

29.'In this very judgment, this Court while noting that although there is no explicit mandate under Section 173(8) CrPC to seek leave of the Court before conducting further investigation, nevertheless, over the time, a practice has been developed to seek permission of the Court. Therefore, the practice of seeking the leave of the Court will have to be read into the provisions of Section 173(8) CrPC, and it is essentially a prerequisite for directing further investigation. This Court therein held as follows : (Vinay Tyagi case'[Vinay Tyagi'v.'Irshad Ali, (2013) 5 SCC 762 : (2013) 4 SCC (Cri) 557] , SCC p. 793, paras 49-50)

'49. Now, we may examine another significant aspect which is how the provisions of Section 173(8) have been understood and applied by the courts and investigating agencies.'It is true that though there is no specific requirement in the provisions of Section 173(8) of the Code to conduct 'further investigation' or file supplementary report with the leave of the court, the investigating agencies have not only understood but also adopted it as a legal practice to seek permission of the courts to conduct 'further investigation' and file 'supplementary report' with the leave of the court. The courts, in some of the decisions, have also taken a similar view. The requirement of seeking prior leave of the court to conduct 'further investigation' and/or to file a 'supplementary report' will have to be read into, and is a necessary implication of the provisions of Section 173(8) of the Code. The doctrine of contemporanea expositio will fully come to the aid of such interpretation as the matters which are understood and implemented for a long time, and such practice that is supported by law should be accepted as part of the interpretative process.

50. Such a view can be supported from two different points of view: firstly, through the doctrine of precedent, as aforenoticed, since quite often the courts have taken such a view, and, secondly, the investigating agencies which have also so understood and applied the principle. The matters which are understood and implemented as a legal practice and are not opposed to the basic rule of law would be good practice and such interpretation would be permissible with the aid of doctrine of contemporanea expositio. Even otherwise, to seek such leave of the court would meet the ends of justice and also provide adequate safeguard against a suspect/accused.'

30.'The proposition of the law laid down in'Vinay Tyagi'[Vinay Tyagi'v.'Irshad Ali, (2013) 5 SCC 762 : (2013) 4 SCC (Cri) 557] has been further affirmed by the three-Judge Bench of this Court in'Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya'v.'State of Gujarat'[Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya'v.'State of Gujarat, (2019) 17 SCC 1 : (2020) 3 SCC (Cri) 228] .

31.'This Court has dealt with a similar situation in 'Peethambaran'v.'State of Kerala'[Peethambaran'v.'State of Kerala, (2024) 16 SCC 65] , wherein the District Police Chief i.e. Superintendent of Police, ordered further investigation. This Court therein, while quashing the order passed by the District Police Chief, held that the power to order further investigation rests either with the Magistrate concerned or a higher court, but not with the investigating agency. The relevant paragraphs from the judgment are reproduced as follows : (SCC pp. 74 & 77, paras 19-20 & 28)

'19.'The Chief Police Officer of a district is the Superintendent of Police who is an officer of the Indian Police Service. Needless to state, an order from the District Police Chief is not the same as an order issued by the Magistrate concerned. Referring to'Vinay Tyagi'[Vinay Tyagi'v.'Irshad Ali, (2013) 5 SCC 762 : (2013) 4 SCC (Cri) 557] , this Court in'Devendra Nath Singh'v.'State of Bihar'[Devendra Nath Singh'v.'State of Bihar, (2023) 1 SCC 48 : (2023) 1 SCC (Cri) 270] noted that there is no specific requirement to seek leave of the court for further investigation or to file a supplementary report but the investigating agencies, have not only understood it to be so but have also adopted the same as a legal requirement. The doctrine of contemporanea expositio aids such an interpretation of matters which have been long understood and implemented in a particular manner to be accepted into the interpretive process.'In other words, the requirement of permission for further investigation or to file a supplementary report is accepted within law and is therefore required to be complied with.

20. In the facts at hand, it is clear that such a permission was never taken, granted or ordered. Consequently, FR-II is without basis. In FR-I it has been stated that in the absence of any documents in respect of the financial transactions, the instant case may be treated as a false case. This, then would necessarily imply that after due investigation conducted by a duly authorised person, the conclusion is that the ingredients of the section mentioned in the FIR have not been met and no case is made out.

28. In terms of second question, the above discussion makes clear that the District Police Chief, Kottayam could not have ordered further investigation, as that power rests either with the Magistrate concerned or with a higher court and not with an investigating agency.'

32.'In light of the legal position as settled by this Court through the above judgments, it is safe to say that the power to direct further investigation in a case rests solely at the discretion of the Magistrate/Court concerned. In the event, the police/investigating agency is of the opinion that further investigation is necessary in any particular case to cull out complete facts and truth in the case, it is binding upon them to file an appropriate application before the Magistrate/Court, without directing an order for further investigation by themselves. Once such an application is filed by the investigating agency, the Magistrate/Court would apply its judicial mind, in light of the facts and circumstances of the particular case and the reasons demonstrated by the investigating agency, in order to exercise its discretion for exercise of its power to decide whether or not further investigation is to be ordered under the purview of Section 173(8)CrPC.

9. A superior police officer may himself investigate or supervise investigation under Section 36 CrPC /Section 30 BNSS."Only the officer who conducts the investigation (or a superior officer who has himself taken over the investigation) is competent to submit the police report before the Magistrate. The report represents the opinion of the Investigating Officer. A superior administrative authority cannot compel the I.O to file a charge-sheet if the investigation discloses no offence. Although, CrPC/BNSS does not expressly use the words "return the case diary", supervisory power necessarily includes the authority to examine investigation and require further investigation before approval of the final report. Thus, the following principles emerge; examine case diary, point out defects, direct examination of omitted witnesses, direct collection of scientific evidence, direct recovery of documents, require compliance with legal provisions, send the file back to I.O for completion of investigation. This is part of 'supervisory jurisdiction' flowing from Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 B.N.S.S. and UP Police Regulations. There is provisions in Para 109 and 122 of UP Police Regulation' regarding completion of investigation and submission of charge-sheet or final report. However, the superior officer cannot substitute his own opinion merely to compel filing of charge-sheet without either, taking over investigation himself; or directing lawful instructions to the IO.

10. There is difference between 'Supervisory Power and Investigating Power'. Superior Officer may inspect investigation, issue instructions, return diary, monitor investigation. But ordinarily cannot dictate findings, fabricate evidence, compel filing of charge-sheet contrary to investigation. If he wishes to alter conclusions substantially, he should himself exercise powers under Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS and conduct investigation. Thus, Legal Position is that the scheme of the Code of Criminal Procedure recognizes that, before the police report under Section 173(2) CrPC/Section 193(3) BNSS is submitted before the Magistrate, the investigation remains under the administrative and statutory supervision of superior police officers. These provisions regulate the manner in which the police report is finalized and ensure that the investigation is complete, fair and legally sustainable before it reaches the Court. Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS empowers police officers superior in rank to the Officer-in-Charge of a police station to exercise the same investigative powers within their territorial jurisdiction. Consequently, officers such as the Superintendent of Police, Additional Superintendent of Police, Deputy Superintendent of Police and Circle Officer are competent to supervise the investigation, examine the case diary, and ensure that all relevant facts have been properly investigated.

11. The supervisory authority of superior police officers is also reflected in the U.P. Police Regulations, particularly Chapter XI relating to the duties of superior officers. Before a final report or charge-sheet is forwarded to the Court, the superior officer is entitled to scrutinize the case diary, identify deficiencies in the investigation, and return the record to the Investigating Officer with appropriate directions for conducting further investigation. Such directions may include examination of omitted witnesses, collection of additional documentary or scientific evidence, recovery of relevant material, removal of procedural defects, and compliance with statutory requirements. These 'supervisory directions' are intended to ensure that the investigation is complete, impartial and legally sound before the police report is submitted before the Magistrate. However, the supervisory jurisdiction of a superior police officer is distinct from the statutory function of the Investigating Officer. A superior officer cannot merely substitute his own opinion or compel the Investigating Officer to submit a charge-sheet contrary to the latter's independent assessment of the evidence. If the superior officer proposes to alter the conclusions of the investigation substantially, he must himself assume the investigation by exercising powers under Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS. Thus, while supervision over the investigation is permissible, interference with the independent formation of opinion by the Investigating Officer is not.

12. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has consistently recognized this distinction. In State of Bihar v. J.A.C. Saldanha, (1980) 1 SCC 554, it was held that the powers conferred under Section 36 CrPC are not confined merely to administrative supervision. A superior police officer possesses the same powers of investigation as the Officer-in-Charge of a police station and may himself investigate or supervise the investigation to ensure that the truth is discovered and justice is served. The object of such further investigation is not to nullify the earlier investigation but to supplement it by bringing all relevant facts before the Court. Similarly, in Vinay Tyagi v. Irshad Ali, (2013) 5 SCC 762, the Supreme Court explained the distinction between a 'fresh or de novo' investigation, which ordinarily requires judicial sanction, and further investigation, which is a continuation of the earlier investigation for discovering the truth. The Court emphasized that the police possess the inherent authority to undertake further investigation before the report attains finality, subject to the statutory safeguards contained in Section 173(8) CrPC. The object of such further investigation is not to nullify the earlier investigation but to supplement it by bringing all relevant facts before the Court.

13. At the stage prior to the submission of the police report under Section 173(2) CrPC/Section 193(3) BNSS, the investigation remains under the 'statutory and administrative supervision' of the superior police authorities. During this stage, a superior police officer is fully empowered under Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS and relevant rules to examine the case diary, scrutinize the investigation, withhold the proposed police report, and direct the Investigating Officer to conduct further investigation wherever the investigation is found to be incomplete, defective, or lacking in material evidence. The object of such supervision is to ensure that the investigation is complete, fair, impartial, and based upon all relevant evidence before the police report reaches the Magistrate.

14. The legal position changes once the police report has been submitted before the Magistrate under Section 173(2) CrPC/Section 193(3) BNSS. After submission of the police report, the superior police authority cannot unilaterally recall, withdraw, or cancel the charge-sheet already filed before the Court. At that stage, the investigation comes under the supervision of the Court, and any further investigation can only be undertaken in accordance with Section 173(8) CrPC/Section 193(9) BNSS by submitting a supplementary police report before the Magistrate. Thus, unlike the pre-submission stage, the superior police authority cannot exercise administrative powers to undo a police report that has already been filed before the Court. Any further investigation must follow the statutory procedure and remain subject to judicial supervision.

15. Thus, a clear distinction must be maintained between 'supervisory power' and 'investigative power'. A superior police officer is empowered to supervise the investigation by inspecting the case diary, pointing out defects, issuing lawful directions, and ensuring that the investigation is conducted properly. For example, the superior officer may direct the Investigating Officer to verify 'an alibi', collect CCTV footage, examine additional witnesses, recover relevant documents, or obtain scientific evidence, etc. However, the superior officer cannot compel the Investigating Officer to sign or submit an opinion which the Investigating Officer does not honestly hold. If the superior officer is of the view that the investigation requires substantial alteration, he must either exercise his own powers of investigation under Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS or entrust the investigation to another competent Investigating Officer authorized to conduct the investigation and submit the report. Thus, supervisory control ensures the legality and completeness of the investigation, whereas the formation of the final opinion under Section 173 CrPC/Section 193 BNSS must remain the result of a lawful investigation conducted by the Investigating Officer.

16. In Bohatie Devi (Dead) through LRs v. State of Uttar Pradesh & Others, (2023) 16 SCC 349, Hon'ble Supreme Court has explained the limits of administrative interference after submission of the police report. The Court held that the Secretary (Home) or any other executive authority of the State Government cannot bypass the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure and direct a fresh investigation, reinvestigation, or further investigation by another investigating agency after a charge-sheet has already been submitted before the Magistrate and cognizance has been taken. Once the matter enters the judicial domain, executive authorities cannot interfere with the statutory procedure prescribed under the Code.

17. The Supreme Court further observed that if an accused person is aggrieved by the filing of a charge-sheet or supplementary charge-sheet, the proper remedy is to invoke the jurisdiction of the competent Court by filing proceedings such as a petition under Section 482 CrPC, a discharge application, or any other remedy available under law. The accused cannot seek administrative intervention from the Government or executive authorities to nullify or circumvent the judicial process. The Court also clarified that Section 173(3) CrPC, read with Section 158 CrPC, merely prescribes the channel through which the police report is to be forwarded to the Magistrate through the superior police officer. These provisions do not confer any independent authority upon the Home Secretary or any executive officer to transfer the investigation to another agency after the charge-sheet has been submitted or after the Court has taken cognizance. In Paragraph 20 of the said judgment, the Supreme Court specifically interpreted Sections 173(3) and 158 CrPC and held that these provisions regulate only the manner in which the police report is to be submitted before the Magistrate. The Court observed that where a superior police officer has been appointed under Section 158 CrPC, the police report shall be forwarded through such superior officer, and pending the orders of the Magistrate, the superior officer may direct the Officer-in-Charge of the police station to conduct further investigation. Therefore, the statutory power to direct further investigation before submission of the report remains with the superior police officer under the scheme of the Code.

18. Under the statutory scheme of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the U.P. Police Regulations, the investigation of a criminal case remains under the 'general control and supervision' of superior police officers until the police report under Section 173(2) CrPC/Section 193(3) BNSS is submitted before the Magistrate. The purpose of such supervision is to ensure that the investigation is complete, fair, lawful, and based upon all relevant evidence before the matter reaches the Court. In the ordinary course, after completing the investigation, the Investigating Officer prepares the case diary together with a draft final report or charge-sheet. Before the report is forwarded to the Magistrate, it is examined through the departmental hierarchy, such as the Station House Officer, Circle Officer, Deputy Superintendent of Police, Additional Superintendent of Police or Superintendent of Police, as the case may be. These superior officers exercise supervisory jurisdiction to ensure that the investigation has been properly conducted and that the proposed police report is legally sustainable. During such scrutiny, the superior police officer is entitled to verify whether all material evidence has been collected, whether the statements of witnesses have been properly recorded, whether the relevant provisions of law have been correctly applied, and whether any important witness, document or circumstance has been overlooked.

19. If the investigation is found to be incomplete or defective, the superior officer 'may return' the case diary and the draft police report to the Investigating Officer with written directions requiring further investigation. The purpose of directions is not to interfere with the independence of the investigation but to remove deficiencies and ensure that the final police report is based upon a complete and lawful investigation. Once the Investigating Officer complies with those lawful directions and completes the investigation, the police report under Section 173(2) CrPC/Section 193(3) BNSS is submitted before the Magistrate through the prescribed channel. At that stage, the statutory obligation of the police to submit the report stands fulfilled. The internal administrative supervision exercised by superior police officers remains purely 'departmental in nature' and does not affect the jurisdiction of the Magistrate after the report has been filed.

20. Thus, the statutory scheme strikes a balance between effective departmental supervision and the independence of the investigating process. While superior police officers are duty-bound to ensure that investigations are thorough, impartial and legally sound before submission of the police report, they cannot substitute the opinion of the Investigating Officer or interfere with the 'judicial process' after the police report has been submitted before the competent Court.

21. Thus, the legal position may, therefore, be summarised as follows:

(i) A superior police officer possesses the same statutory powers of investigation as the Officer-in-Charge of a police station under Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS.

(ii) Before submission of the police report, the superior officer may examine the case diary and return it to the Investigating Officer with lawful directions for conducting further investigation to remove defects or collect relevant additional evidence. Such supervisory powers are recognized under the CrPC/BNSS as well as the U.P. Police Regulations.

(iii) A superior officer cannot compel submission of a charge-sheet merely by substituting his own opinion unless he himself assumes the investigation under Section 36 CrPC/Section 30 BNSS.

(iv) Once the police report has been submitted before the Magistrate/Court, any further investigation can only be undertaken in accordance with Section 173(8) CrPC/Section 193(9) BNSS by filing a supplementary police report in the light of principle as laid down by Apex Court as discussed herein above.

(v) The 'Statutory Power' to direct further investigation before submission of police report to the Magistrate/Court, remains only with 'Superior Police Officer' under the scheme of CrPC/BNSS, not other authority.

22. In the above-mentioned case, an objection has been raised by the Supervising Officer/ Additional Superintendent of Police (Rural), Jaunpur, in SCD lll ,stating that 'the medical examination of the complainant, Mr. Ram Pyare, and the injured person, Mr. Anuj Kumar Singh, has been conducted. On the basis of the medical report, for the legal disposal of the investigation of the said case, all original case records along with Final Report No. 24/16 (dated 09.06.2016) have been returned."admittedly, in this case, the final report had not been submitted before the court or magistrate, therefore, no cognizance has been taken up on the final report. The superior police officer/additional superintendent of police has not passed an order under section 173(8) CrPC, thus the argument of learn Counsel for the appellant that the superior police Authority has passed an order under section 173(8) CrPC, is not legally correct.

23. In the light of substratum of this case, the legal principals as discussed here in above detail, I am of considered view that the superior police officer in this case, has exercised 'administrative power' regarding return the case diary and final report draft to the investigating officer to conduct the investigation properly and legally in the light of instructions.

24. The Investigating Officer has adduced prima facie material establishing sufficient grounds to proceed against the appellants. Having carefully examined the record, the police report submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. and the impugned order passed by the learned Trial Court, this Court finds no legal infirmity, procedural irregularity, or jurisdictional error in the order taking cognizance and summoning the accused. Consequently, the present Criminal Appeal lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

25. The order dated 16.01.2019, passed by the learned Trial Court is affirmed.

26. Before parting with the judgment, this Court records its appreciation for the sincere assistance extended by Research Associates, Mr. Shivansh Pandey and Mr. Sandeep Kumar Singh, in researching the legal issues involved and assisting in the preparation of this judgment. Their efforts are gratefully acknowledged.

a) Whether the revenue can invoke Section 159 of the Income Tax Act, 1961 to validate reassessment proceedings initiated against a person who was already dead on the date of initiation of the notice under Section 148?

b) Whether issuance of a notice under Section 148 to a deceased assessee is a mere "mistake, defect or omission" curable under Section 292B, or a substantive jurisdictional defect that cannot be cured?

c) Whether the legal heir can be said to have waived the jurisdictional objection or submitted to the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer by filing returns/replies, in light of Section 292BB?

d) Whether reassessment proceedings under Section 148 can be justified on equitable grounds to protect the interests of the revenue, or must strictly satisfy the statutory requirements?

e) Whether a decision of the High Court quashing the Section 148 notice would amount to a "finding" or "direction" under Section 150(1) permitting issuance of a fresh notice against the legal representative beyond the limitation period under Section 149?

This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India seeking issuance of a writ of certiorari quashing the notice dated March 28, 2025 issued under Section 148 of the Income Tax Act, 1961 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act') for the Assessment Year 2021-22, the subsequent notice dated January 7, 2026 issued under Section 142(1) of the Act, the order dated February 20, 2026 rejecting the preliminary objections and consequential assessment as well as demand order dated March 24, 2026 respectively under Section 156 of the Act, inter alia, on the ground that the entire proceedings have been initiated and continued in the name of the deceased husband of the petitioner, as without jurisdiction rendering the same as null, void ab initio, and accordingly, all consequential orders being unsustainable in law.

FACTS

2. The factual matrix of the present lis has been delineated below:-

a. The husband of the petitioner, Shri Sanjay Dubey, was employed as Chief Management Officer in the U.P. Secretariat and was a taxpayer.

b. On October 15, 2020, the husband of the petitioner, along with his son Shri Prakhar Narayan, purchased a residential flat for a total sale consideration of Rs.82,83,353/- in Grand Omaxe, Lucknow. Out of the total consideration, a sum of Rs. 55,52,954/- was paid by the husband of the petitioner to M/s Omaxe Limited entirely through accounted banking channels, pursuant thereto an allotment letter dated October 15, 2020 was issued in his favour.

c. The Income Tax department conducted a search in accordance with Section 132 of the Act on April 1, 2021 on the Omaxe group wherein it was alleged that a cash transaction of Rs.25,97,000/- was made by the husband of the petitioner.

d. On January 7, 2024, the husband of the petitioner, passed away and after completing the last rites and necessary formalities, the petitioner left India on May 31, 2024 to stay with her daughter in the United States of America and returned to India on September 6, 2024.

e. Upon returning to India, petitioner instructed her Chartered Accountant to file the Income Tax Return for Assessment Year 2024-2025 on behalf of her husband, which was electronically transmitted on July 30, 2024 and ultimately filed on November 5, 2024 wherein the disclosed total income was Rs. 39,79,990/- and paid total tax of Rs. 9,29,754/-, comprising: (a) Rs. 4,45,540/- voluntarily paid as self-assessment tax; and (b) Rs. 4,84,214/- being TDS already adjusted. The said return was filed in the name of deceased assessee and verified through Aadhaar OTP.

f. After obtaining approval from the Principal Commissioner of Income Tax on March 20, 2025, for initiation of proceedings under Section 148 of the Act against the husband of the petitioner, the respondent authority proposed to reassess the income and issued the impugned notice dated March 28, 2025 under Section 148 of the Act in the name of the husband of the petitioner and directed for filing of Income Tax Return within 90 days. Such approval emanates from discrepancy amounting to Rs. 27,44,000/- found in the documents seized during a search conducted in the case of the Omaxe Group on April 1, 2021.

g. Thereafter, on January 7, 2026, another impugned notice under Section 142(1) of the Act was issued in the name of the husband of the petitioner, calling upon him to produce certain documents in respect of the Assessment Year 2021-22.

h. Upon receipt of the aforesaid notices, the petitioner submitted a reply dated February 2, 2026 informing the department of the death of her husband and, inter alia, raised preliminary objection with regard to proceedings being initiated against a deceased person as void ab initio.

i. Thereafter, another notice dated February 18, 2026 was issued under Section 142(1) of the Act in the name of the husband of petitioner for furnishing requisite documents.

j. Upon receipt of the said notice, the petitioner, vide representation dated February 19, 2026, again reiterated the preliminary objection, and further requested that the preliminary objection be decided prior to proceeding further in the matter. Respondent department passed the impugned order dated February 20, 2026 rejecting all the objections of the petitioner mainly on two grounds, firstly, the department was not intimated regarding death of assessee and secondly, active misrepresentation regarding factum of death by way of filing ITR. In the said order, the name of the petitioner was substituted in place of the deceased assessee being the legal representative and directed compliance with the earlier notices, for furnishing requisite documents by February 25, 2026.

k. The petitioner submitted another reply dated February 20, 2026 reiterating the preliminary objection as was raised by the petitioner on earlier occasions.

l. Another show cause notice dated March 6, 2026 was issued by the respondent in furtherance of the earlier notice under Section 142(1) dated January 7, 2026, extending the date of reply.

m. The petitioner submitted another reply dated March 11, 2026 reiterating her preliminary jurisdictional objection and also disputed the allegations on merits, by denying the alleged cash transaction of Rs. 27,44,000/-.

n. The respondent department thereafter passed the impugned assessment order under Section 147 of the Act in the name of petitioner being the legal heir and the consequential demand order dated March 24, 2026 under Section 156 of the Act, by assessing the additional income at Rs. 69,06,520/- and determining the tax liability at Rs. 39,67,330/- on account of the unaccounted cash transaction.

CONTENTIONS ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER

3. Mr. Kartikey Dubey and Mr. Ramesh Chandra Mishra, appearing on behalf of petitioner have made the following submissions:-

a. A notice issued under Section 148 of the Act in the name of the assessee subsequent to his death is null and void from its inception and cannot confer any jurisdiction upon the Assessing Officer to proceed further in the matter.

b. The respondent department cannot derive jurisdiction to proceed on the basis of a notice which is otherwise void ab initio merely because the respondent department was not informed regarding the death of the assessee as there exists no provision under the Act mandating intimation of death by legal heirs.

c. Section 159(2)(a) comes into operation only in a situation where proceedings had already been validly initiated against the assessee during his lifetime and thereafter, during the pendency of such proceedings, the assessee dies. Section 159(2)(b) requires that the proceedings are to be initiated directly against the legal representative and not against the deceased person. Therefore, Section 159 of the Act has no application in the facts of the present case as it applies only in situations where proceedings were validly initiated against an assessee during his lifetime and during the pendency of such proceedings the assessee expires. It is only in such circumstances that proceedings may continue against the legal representatives.

d. Neither clause 2(a) nor 2(b) of Section 159 contemplates or validates a situation akin to the present case where notice itself is issued in the name of a dead person.

e. The mere filing of an Income Tax Return by the petitioner after the death of assessee cannot cure the inherent jurisdictional defect in the notice issued under Section 148 of the Act.

f. The issuance of a valid notice under Section 148 is not a mere procedural formality but is a foundational and jurisdictional requirement for initiation of reassessment proceedings under the Act which needs to be fulfilled as the entire edifice of reassessment proceedings rests upon the existence of a valid notice under Section 148. In absence whereby, the Assessing Officer lacks inherent jurisdiction to proceed with the reassessment as in the present case.

g. The notice under Section 148 constitutes the very first step for assumption of jurisdiction and initiation of reassessment proceedings. In absence of a valid notice, no reassessment proceedings can lawfully continue or culminate into an assessment order. Since, the notice itself is legally non-existent in the present case, it must be deemed that no notice under Section 148 was ever issued in the eyes of law. Consequently, the entire proceedings initiated pursuant thereto are wholly without jurisdiction and unsustainable.

h. Once the statute itself mandates that proceedings, if initiated after the death of the assessee, are required to be initiated directly against the legal representatives, then mere participation by the legal representative in the proceedings cannot confer jurisdiction upon the respondent authorities and validate the proceedings which are otherwise void ab initio and without jurisdiction.

i. The fact that petitioner had filed the Income Tax Return in name of the deceased cannot confer any jurisdiction upon the authorities by acquiescence, waiver, participation or conduct of parties to issue notice to a dead person.

j. Furthermore, the principles of estoppel, waiver, acquiescence, approbate and reprobate are all equitable doctrines that have no place in taxation statutes. Hence, jurisdiction which is otherwise absent under the statute cannot be conferred by consent, waiver, participation or estoppel.

k. Once the statute does not contemplate issuance of notice under Section 148 in the name of a dead person, the same cannot be validated on the basis of participation by the legal representatives or on equitable doctrines such as acquiescence, waiver, estoppel, or approbate and reprobate. Jurisdiction under a taxing statute must exist strictly in terms of the statute itself and cannot be conferred by conduct of parties.

l. The defect in the notice cannot be cured by resort to Section 292B of the Act as it merely protects notices, proceedings or returns from invalidation on account of technical mistakes, defects or omissions, provided that such notice or proceeding is otherwise in substance and in effect is in conformity with or according to the intent and purpose of the Act. The said provision does not cure a foundational or jurisdictional defect which goes to the very root of the matter. In the present case, issuance of notice against a dead person is itself contrary to the scheme, object and intent of the Act, particularly Sections 159 and 148 thereof. Therefore, the preconditions for applicability of Section 292B are themselves absent in the present case.

m. The applicability of Section 150(1) of the Act for extending the period of limitation for issuance of notice under Section 148 is expressly barred by Section 150(2) in the facts of the present case as Section 150(2) of the Act specifically carves out an exception to Section 150(1) and categorically provides that the benefit of Section 150(1) shall not be available in a case where reassessment for the relevant assessment year had already become barred by limitation at the time when the 'order' which was the subject matter of appeal, reference or revision was made.

n. The legislature has consciously and deliberately employed the expression 'order' in Section 150(2) of the Act and not the expression 'notice'. Therefore, the statutory requirement is that the 'order' (not notice) forming the subject matter of appeal, revision or reference must itself be within the prescribed period of limitation. The provision cannot be interpreted to mean that mere issuance of a notice within limitation would suffice.

o. If the benefit of Section 150(1) is extended in the present case, the same would amount to enlarging and rewriting the scope consciously provided by the legislature under the Act and would effectively amount to conferring jurisdiction upon the Assessing Officer which otherwise does not exist in view of the bar created under Section 149 of the Act. Moreover, the conferment of jurisdiction is purely a legislative function and jurisdiction cannot be created either by consent of parties, acquiescence, waiver or even by orders of a superior court contrary to the statutory provisions.

p. In the present case, the assessment order dated March 24, 2026 itself is ex facie beyond limitation as the limitation for completing reassessment proceedings in the present case expired on March 31, 2025. Prior to expiry of limitation, only a notice under Section 148 dated March 28, 2025 had been issued. However, no assessment order came to be passed within the prescribed limitation period. Section 150(1) cannot be invoked to revive or validate proceedings which had already become time barred.

q. The present reassessment proceedings emanate from the search and seizure proceedings. However, despite possession of the alleged incriminating material, the respondent department admittedly took no action whatsoever for a period of more than three years and it was only on March 28, 2025, that is, merely three days prior to expiry of limitation, the notice under Section 148 of the Act was issued. Therefore, merely because the respondent department remained inactive and slept over the alleged documents for more than three years, the same cannot furnish any ground for extending limitation contrary to the statutory mandate.

r. To buttress his aforesaid arguments, counsel has placed reliance on the following precedents of the Supreme Court and various High Courts for respective propositions:-

I. Notice issued to a dead person is null and void as the sine qua non for issuing notice under Section 148 of the Act is that it is issued in the name of correct person and such defect cannot be cured under Section 292B of the Act. Moreover, the legal heirs are under no statutory obligation to inform the department regarding death of the assessee.

CONTENTIONS ON BEHALF OF RESPONDENTS

4. Mr. Paavan Awasthi and Mr. Neerav Chitravanshi, appearing on behalf of respondents have meticulously made the following submissions:-

a. The present writ petition deserves to be dismissed on the ground of suppression, misrepresentation and blameworthy conduct attributable to the petitioner herself as the Income Tax Return for the Financial Year 2023'24 relevant to Assessment Year 2024'25 came to be electronically verified in the name of the deceased assessee through Aadhaar OTP authentication. The return acknowledgment itself records that the return was verified by deceased assessee through electronic verification mode. Thus, the petitioner fully admits the knowledge of death of the assessee at the relevant time and simultaneously admits her active role in causing filing/verification of the return even after the death of the assessee.

b. The aforesaid conduct strikes at the very root of the equitable jurisdiction as Section 140 of the Act, provides that the return of income shall be verified by the individual himself or where it is not possible for the individual to verify the return, it shall be done by any other person duly authorised by him in that behalf. Thus, under the scheme of Section 140 of the Act, 1961, once an assessee has expired, the return can only be verified by the legal representative and not in the name of the deceased person.

c. The verification of a return is not a mere procedural formality but a solemn statutory declaration affirming the correctness and authenticity of the contents of the return. Despite the death of assessee, the return was caused to be verified electronically in his own name several months after his death, which is ex facie contrary to the statutory scheme of Section 140 of the Act and the framework governing electronic verification and digital authentication. The petitioner, having admittedly instructed and facilitated such filing, cannot now seek to invoke discretionary and equitable writ jurisdiction by simultaneously disowning the legal consequences flowing from the same return and the participation thereby before the Income Tax department.

d. The conduct of the petitioner prima facie attracts the penal consequences contemplated under Section 277 of the Act, which penalizes for making of a false statement in verification or delivering an account or statement which is false and which the maker either knows or believes to be false, or does not believe to be true and also disentitled her from any equitable or discretionary relief on account of her own conduct in causing a false verification to be made before a statutory authority.

e. The petitioner, while asserting herself to be the legal heir/legal representative of deceased assessee, cannot be permitted to approbate and reprobate simultaneously by first causing the return to be filed and verified in the name of the deceased assessee and thereafter contending that the proceedings initiated on the basis of the records and representations available with the department are void.

f. The department was never informed through lawful statutory procedure about the death of the assessee prior to initiation of proceedings under Section 148 of the Act. On the contrary, the records available with the department continued to reflect active electronic compliance in the name of the assessee even after his death, including filing and verification of returns. The petitioner, having herself contributed to creation and continuation of such statutory record in the name of the deceased assessee, cannot now be permitted to take advantage of her own wrong and seek invalidation of proceedings by alleging that the notice was issued in the name of a dead person.

g. Section 159 expressly embodies the legislative intent that the death of an assessee does not result either in extinction of tax liability or in abatement of assessment proceedings. On the contrary, the statute specifically provides that where an assessee dies, his legal representative shall be liable to pay any sum which the deceased would have been liable to pay if he had not died, and further deems the legal representative to be an assessee for the purposes of the Act.

h. Section 159 contemplates the principle that tax liabilities survive the death of the assessee and continue against the estate in the hands of the legal representative. Thus, the legislative policy underlying Section 159 is to ensure continuity of assessment, reassessment and recovery proceedings notwithstanding the death of the original assessee, so that public revenue is not defeated merely on account of death.

i. Section 159(2) further specifically contemplates continuation and initiation of proceedings even after death of the assessee. The provision expressly states that any proceeding taken against the deceased before his death may be continued against the legal representative and further authorizes that any proceeding which could have been taken against the deceased if he had survived may also be taken against the legal representative. The statutory scheme therefore makes it abundantly clear that the substance of liability and assessment survives and attaches to the legal representative notwithstanding death of the assessee.

j. In the present case, the petitioner steps into the shoes of the deceased assessee as the legal representative and heir by having participated in the reassessment proceedings via filing objections and replies before the assessing authority which itself invokes Section 159 of the Act.

k. That the object and purpose of Section 159 would stand completely frustrated if the interpretation sought to be canvassed by the petitioner is accepted. Such an interpretation would permit legal representatives, despite full knowledge of death and despite participating in tax compliances and proceedings, to withhold disclosure of death from the department, continue filings in the name of the deceased assessee, and thereafter seek annulment of proceedings on purely technical grounds after the limitation period expires. Such a construction would not only defeat the statutory scheme but would also cause manifest prejudice to public revenue and encourage abuse of process. The provisions of Section 159 are therefore required to be construed in a manner that advances the legislative object of preservation and continuity of tax liability rather than permitting its artificial extinguishment on account of procedural or technical objections.

l. The alleged defect, in issuance of notice under Section 148 in the name of deceased assessee is curable and protected under Section 292B of the Act which expressly provides that no return of income, assessment, notice, summons or other proceeding shall be invalid merely by reason of any mistake, defect or omission in such notice or proceeding if the same is in substance and effect in conformity with or according to the intent and purpose of the Act

m. The reassessment proceedings in the present case were initiated for lawful assessment of escaped income of deceased assessee and were at all times intended to operate against the estate represented by the legal representative. The substance, object and intent of the proceedings therefore remained fully consistent with the statutory scheme under Sections 147, 148 and 159 of the Act. Any defect in description of the notice or failure to substitute the name of the legal representative at the threshold is therefore curable under Section 292B.

n. The Department was under bona fide mistake regarding the death of the assesssee on the basis of official records available with it, which reflect active statutory compliance in the name of the assessee even after his death. The issuance of notice in the name of the deceased assessee therefore occurred solely on account of absence of disclosure by the petitioner and on the basis of records actively maintained and continued under her own instructions. In such circumstances, the defect, if any, is purely technical and procedural in nature and does not strike at the substantive jurisdiction of the department to assess escaped income which otherwise survives against the legal representative under Section 159 of the Act.

o. No prejudice has been caused to the petitioner on account of the notice being initially addressed in the name of the deceased assessee. The proceedings throughout remained referable to the escaped income and tax liability of late Shri Sanjay Dubey, which by operation of Section 159 statutorily survives against the legal representative. Merely because the notice initially bore the name of the deceased assessee would not invalidate the entire proceedings when the legal representative had complete knowledge of the proceedings, participated therein and contested the matter on merits.

p. Equitable jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, ought to construe Section 292B in a manner that advances the legislative object of preserving lawful assessment proceedings rather than frustrating them on account of technical defects which have caused no prejudice whatsoever to the petitioner.

q. This Hon'ble Court, while exercising jurisdiction under Article 226, may mould the relief, if at all required, by granting liberty/direction to the Department to issue fresh notice under Section 148 to the legal representative in terms of Section 150(1) and proceed in accordance with law as Section 150(1) of the Act was specifically enacted to meet such situations and expressly overrides the limitation contained in Section 149 by providing that a notice under Section 148 may be issued 'at any time' for the purpose of making an assessment, reassessment or recomputation in consequence of, or to give effect to, any finding or direction contained in an order passed by any authority in any proceeding under the Act by way of appeal, reference or revision, or by a Court in any proceeding under any other law. The very object of Section 150 is to ensure that lawful assessment or reassessment is not frustrated where action becomes necessary in consequence of a finding or direction of a Court or appellate/revisional authority.

r. The interpretation canvassed by the petitioner would render Section 150 otiose and defeat the legislative scheme. The petitioner cannot be permitted to argue, on the one hand, that the existing notice must be quashed as having been issued in the name of the deceased assessee and, on the other hand, that no fresh notice can be issued because limitation under Section 149 has expired. Such a contention would convert a procedural objection into complete immunity from assessment, despite the express mandate of Section 159 that tax liability survives against the legal representative and despite the overriding machinery contained in Section 150.

s. The provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961, particularly the machinery provisions governing reassessment and continuation of proceedings against legal representatives, are required to be interpreted in a manner that advances the object of the statute and protects the legitimate interests of public revenue rather than in a manner which permits evasion or artificial extinguishment of tax liability on technical pleas. It is a settled principle that the Income-tax Act is not merely a taxing statute but also a complete machinery for assessment, recovery and protection of revenue.

t. Sections 159, 150 and 292B of the Act are manifestly machinery provisions as Section 159 enables continuation and enforcement of tax liability against legal representatives of a deceased assessee; Section 150 provides the machinery by which reassessment proceedings may be initiated notwithstanding ordinary limitation where findings or directions exist and Section 292B validates proceedings despite technical mistakes, defects or omissions. An interpretation that advances the statutory purpose should be construed liberally and purposively so as to make the statute workable and effective and not to defeat the object of taxation.

u. Writ jurisdiction under Article 226 is extraordinary, equitable and discretionary. It is intended to advance the cause of justice rather than defeat it on technical considerations.

v. To buttress his aforesaid arguments, counsel has placed reliance on the following precedents of the Supreme Court and various High Courts for respective propositions:-

ISSUES

5. Upon perusal of the contentions and submissions made on behalf of the counsel appearing on behalf of the parties, the following issues emerge for consideration:-

I. Whether the revenue can invoke Section 159 to validate proceedings that were initiated against a person who was already dead on the date of initiation?

II. Whether the issuance of a notice under Section 148 of the Act to a deceased assessee constitutes a mere "mistake, defect or omission" curable under Section 292B of the Act, or whether it amounts to a substantive jurisdictional defect going to the root of the matter that cannot be cured by any subsequent action of the revenue?

III. Whether the petitioner, legal heir of the deceased assessee, can be said to have waived her jurisdictional objection or submitted to the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer by virtue of having filed returns and replies on behalf of deceased assessee in view of Section 292BB of the Act?

IV. Whether reassessment proceedings initiated under Section 148 of the Income-tax Act, 1961, can be justified on equitable grounds to protect the interests of the revenue, or whether such proceedings must satisfy the strict requirements of the statute?

V. If the High Court decides against the department with regard to the validity of the reassessment notice under Section 148 in the present writ petition, would the said decision amount to a 'direction' or 'finding' for issuance of a fresh show cause notice for reassessment against the legal representative of the deceased assessee?

7. We have heard the submissions canvassed on behalf of both the parties and perused the documents as well as compilation of judgments placed on record.

8. We attach a caveat herein at the onset. Through the course of the hearing, both sides have relied on a smorgasbord of judgments of the Supreme Court as well as High Courts to buttress their respective arguments. However, we would like to refer to L.C. Quinn 'v- Leathem, wherein the House of Lords had chosen to observe the following:-

"….that every judgment must be read as applicable to the particular facts proved, or assumed to be proved, since the generality of the expressions which may be found there are not intended to be expositions of the whole law, but governed and qualified by the particular facts of the case in which such expressions are to be found. The other is that a case is only an authority for what it actually decides'.'

9. Adhering to the principles delineated in L.C. Quinn (supra), we are of the view that while certain judgments are merely replication of the principles of the judgments that have been considered in greater detail through the course of this judgment, some judgments are either not relevant or are distinguishable on facts. Ergo, only the judgments which were absolutely necessary for deciding this case have been considered and dealt with in detail so that brevity is not jeopardized.

10. The counsel on behalf of the petitioner mainly contends that the entire reassessment proceedings emanating from the issuance of notice under Section 148 of the Act against a deceased person is non est in the eyes of law and incapable of conferring any jurisdiction and the revenue cannot sustain the impugned reassessment proceedings by invoking the saving provisions of Sections 150, 159, 292B or 292BB of the Act. Furthermore, it was contended that the department cannot proceed further with liberty from the High Court by relying on Section 150 to issue a fresh notice for reassessment against the legal heir.

11. Per Contra, the learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondents vehemently rebutted the arguments of petitioner and submitted that issuance of notice in the name of deceased person does not constitute a jurisdictional defect but a procedural error. Additionally, it was submitted that notice was issued against the deceased assessee on the bona fide mistake that arose due to the fact that return of his income was filed on the portal in his name and also there was no intimation of death of assessee by the legal heirs. It was contended that such a defect was curable in view of Section 292B and revenue can proceed against the legal heir. Furthermore, Section 159 of the Act provides the revenue to proceed against the legal heir for reassessment of deceased assessee and the factum of filing a reply to the notice by the legal heir shall be deemed as valid notice, hence the legal heir cannot take advantage in terms of Section 292BB of the Act. Moreover, the issuance of fresh notice under Section 148 is not barred by limitation in terms of Section 150 of the Act.

12. It is an undisputed fact that the assessee died on January 7, 2024; Income Tax Return for Assessment Year 2023-24 of the deceased assessee was filed on July 30, 2024 by the petitioner in the name of deceased; notice under Section 148 was issued on March 28, 2025 in the name of deceased assessee; preliminary objection regarding issuance of notice against a dead person for the first time was filed by the petitioner on February 2, 2026 in response to notices issued under Section 142(1); and the Assessment Order was passed on March 24, 2026 in the name of petitioner.

13. One may firstly examine the scheme of the Act in relation to reassessment proceedings. Sections 147 to 151 deal with the procedure of reassessment. Section 148 mandates the assessing officer to serve a notice on the assessee to reopen past year's assessment upon credible evidence that taxable income has escaped assessment. Section 142(1) is a notice for inquiry before assessment to gather information and/or to examine if there is some discrepancy in filing of return. Section 149 restricts the department to issue a reassessment notice under Section 148 for income that has escaped assessment generally capping the window at three years with extensions upto ten or sixteen years in a galore evasion. On the contrary, Section 150 allows the department to issue a fresh show cause notice beyond the statutory period prescribed under Section 149 so as to give effect to a 'finding' or 'direction' made in the appellate order, revision, reference or court proceedings. Section 147 empowers the assessing officer to reopen assessment proceedings by passing a reassessment order, if he had 'reason to believe' that any income chargeable to tax has escaped assessment for the relevant assessment year. Section 159 allows the department to continue proceedings against the legal representative of the deceased upon the death of the assessee.

14. Issue I pertains to validating reassessment proceedings initiated against a dead person in terms of Section 159 and issue II deals with curing the defect in the said notice soliciting Section 292B. Both the issues are intrinsically linked and are therefore being dealt with together.

15. The petitioner contends that the notice issued against a dead person is non est in law and hence void ab initio. The department cannot take recourse to Section 159 of the Act for continuing against the legal heir by fitting the petitioner in the shoes of deceased assessee as that would amount to acting beyond the statute. Furthermore, it has been contended that the department cannot validate the proceedings by curing the defect under Section 292B as the defect is not merely clerical or technical but is a jurisdictional error which cannot be cured. For the aforesaid proposition counsel has placed reliance on, Alamelu Veerappan (Supra), Savita Kapila (Supra), Satendra Kumar (Supra), Shri Devendra (Supra), Sumit Balkrishna Gupta (Supra), Bhupendra Bhikhalal Desai (Supra), ITO v. Bhupendra Bhikhalal Desai (Supra), Mrs. Vanitha Gopal Shetty (Supra) and Rajendra Kumar Sehgal (Supra).

16. Per contra, respondent submits that the notice was issued to deceased assessee on the bona fide mistake of department that arose due to filing of Income Tax Return by the wife of deceased in the name of deceased via verifying through Aadhaar OTP authentication. Such a bona fide mistake comes under the ambit of curable defect in terms of Section 292B and hence liability for such escaped income can be imposed upon the legal heirs in accordance with Section 159 of the Act. Inter alia, the counsel for the respondents contends that not intimating the department with regard to the death of the assessee and filing false verification in the name of a dead person attracts a penal liability under Section 277 of the Act. For his aforesaid proposition counsel has placed reliance on Estate of Late Rangalal Jajodia (Supra), Sky Light Hospitality LLP (Supra), Sunil Kumar Sahoo (Supra), Maharaja of Patiala (Supra), Jai Prakash Singh (Supra), Sunil Kumar Sahoo (Supra), Eastern Coal Co. Ltd. (Supra), Vikram Sujitkumar Bhatia (Supra), Maj. Gen. Madan Lal Yadav (Supra), Municipal Committee Katra (Supra), Chandra Singh (Supra) and Digambar (Supra).

17. We may first examine the judgments cited by the petitioner in support of his arguments in relation to the aforesaid two issues.

18. The Madras High Court speaking through T.S. Sivagnam, J. in Alamelu Veerappan (Supra) vide order dated June 7, 2018 while concluding that the notice issued against a dead person is wholly without jurisdiction that cannot be enforced in law, has observed that proceedings can be continued against the legal heir if the proceedings were initiated during the lifetime of the deceased assessee and permitted for proceeding against the legal heir. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"16. The settled legal principle being that a notice issued in the name of the dead person is unenforceable in law. If such is the legal position, would the Revenue be justified in contending that they, having no knowledge about the death of the assessee, are entitled to plead that the notice is not defective. In my considered view, the answer to the question should be definitely against the Revenue.

17. This court supports such a conclusion with the following reasons:

Admittedly, the limitation period for issuance of notice for reopening expired on March 31, 2017. The impugned notice was issued on March 30, 2017 in the name of the dead person. On being intimated about the death, the Department sent the notice to the petitioner - his spouse to participate in the proceedings. This notice was well beyond the period of limitation, as it has been issued after March 31, 2017. If we approach the problem sans complicated facts, a notice issued beyond the period of limitation, i.e., March 31, 2017 is a nullity, unenforceable in law and without jurisdiction. Thus, merely because the Department was not intimated about the death of the assessee, that cannot, by itself, extend the period of limitation prescribed under the statute. Nothing has been placed before this court by the Revenue to show that there is a statutory obligation on the part of the legal representatives of the deceased assessee to immediately intimate the death of the assessee or take steps to cancel the PAN registration."

18. In such circumstances, the question would be as to whether section 159 of the Act would get attracted. The answer to this question would be in the negative, as the proceedings under section 159 of the Act can be invoked only if the proceedings have already been initiated when the assessee was alive and was permitted for the proceedings to be continued as against the legal heirs. The factual position in the instant case being otherwise, the provisions of section 159 of the Act have no application."

19. Hon'ble Justice T.S. Sivagnam, scrutinized four aspects in Alamelu Veerappan (Supra), firstly, with regard to the issuance of show cause notice under Section 148 in the name of dead person or against a non-existent entity, secondly, continuation of existing liability upon the legal heirs in view of Section 159 after the death of the deceased assessee, thirdly, with regard to curing the defect under Section 292B of the Act, and fourthly, extending period of limitation for issuance of notice beyond the period prescribed under Section 149 of the Act.

20. The Madras High Court in the Alamelu Veerappan (Supra), inter alia has observed the following in the aforesaid aspects:-

I. The show cause notice under Section 148 of the Act cannot be issued to a dead person or against a non-existent entity as such issuing goes to the root of the matter, which is not a procedural irregularity but a jurisdictional defect.

II. For imposing liability upon the legal heir of the deceased in terms of Section 159, notice is required to be issued against and in the name of the legal representative/heir.

III. The issue of limitation is not a curable defect for the revenue to invoke Section 292B of the Act.

IV. There is no statutory obligation on the part of the legal representative to intimate about the death of the assessee and such non-intimation cannot extend the period of limitation prescribed under Section 149 of the Act.

21. The Division Bench of the Delhi High Court constituting Manmohan and Sanjeev Narula, JJ. in Savita Kapila (Supra) following the decision of Madras High Court in Alamelu Veerappan (Supra) vide its judgment dated July 16, 2020 has quashed the notice issued under Section 148 as well as all consequential orders/proceedings in pursuant thereto. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"26. In the opinion of this court the issuance of a notice under section 148 of the Act is the foundation for reopening of an assessment. Consequently, the sine qua non for acquiring jurisdiction to reopen an assessment is that such notice should be issued in the name of the correct person. This requirement of issuing notice to a correct person and not to a dead person is not merely a procedural requirement but is a condition precedent to the impugned notice being valid in law. (See Sumit Balkrishna Gupta v. Asst. CIT (2019) 414 ITR 292(Bom); (2019) 2 TMI 1209-the Bombay High Court).

27. In Chandreshbhai Jayantibhai Patel v. ITO (2019) 413 ITR 276(Guj); [2019] (1) TMI 353-the Gujarat High Court has also held (page 290 of 413 ITR) : "the question that therefore arises for consideration is whether the notice under section 148 of the Act issued against the deceased-assessee can be said to be in conformity with or according to the intent and purposes of the Act. In this regard, it may be noted that a notice under section 148 of the Act is a jurisdictional notice, and existence of a valid notice under section 148 is a condition precedent for exercise of jurisdiction by the Assessing Officer to assess or reassess under section 147 of the Act. The want of valid notice affects the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer to proceed with the assessment and thus, affects the validity of the proceedings for assessment or reassessment. A notice issued under section 148 of the Act against a dead person is invalid, unless the legal representative submits to the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer without raising any objection." Consequently, in view of the above, a reopening notice under section 148 of the Act, 1961 issued in the name of a deceased-assessee is null and void.

30. Section 159 of the Act, 1961 applies to a situation where proceedings are initiated/pending against the assessee when he is alive and after his death the legal representative steps into the shoes of the deceased-assessee. Since that is not the present factual scenario, section 159 of the Act, 1961 does not apply to the present case.

32. This court is of the view that in the absence of a statutory provision it is difficult to cast a duty upon the legal representatives to intimate the factum of death of an assessee to the Income-tax Department. After all, there may be cases where the legal representatives are estranged from the deceased-assessee or the deceased-assessee may have bequeathed his entire wealth to a charity. Consequently, whether PAN record was updated or not or whether the Department was made aware by the legal representatives or not is irrelevant. In Alamelu Veerappan (supra) it has been held "nothing has been placed before this court by the Revenue to show that there is a statutory obligation on the part of the legal representatives of the deceased-assessee to immediately intimate the death of the assessee or take steps to cancel the PAN registration".

35. This court is of the opinion that issuance of notice upon a dead person and non-service of notice does not come under the ambit of mistake, defect or omission. Consequently, section 292B of the Act, 1961 does not apply to the present case.

38. This court is also of the view that section 292BB of the Act, 1961 is applicable to an assessee and not to a legal representative. Further, in the present case one of the legal heirs of the deceased-assessee, i.e., the petitioner, had neither co-operated in the assessment proceedings nor filed return or waived the requirement of section 148 of the Act, 1961 or submitted to jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer. She had merely uploaded the death certificate of the deceased-assessee. In CIT v. M. Hemanathan [2016] 384ITR 177(Mad); [2016] (4) TMI 258-the Madras High Court it has been held (page 182 of 384 ITR) : "In the case on hand, the assessee was dead. It was the assessee's son, who appeared and perhaps co-operated. Therefore, the primary condition for the invocation of section 292BB is absent in the case on hand. Section 292BB is in place to take care of contingencies where an assessee is put on notice of the initiation of proceedings, but who takes advantage of defective notices or defective service of notice on him. It is trite to point out that the purpose of issue of notice is to make the noticee aware of the nature of the proceedings. Once the nature of the proceedings is made known and understood by the assessee, he should not be allowed to take advantage of certain procedural defects. That was the purpose behind the enactment of section 292BB. It cannot be invoked in cases where the very initiation of proceedings is against a dead person. Hence, the second contention cannot also be upheld".

22. The Delhi High Court dissected the issue and has observed the following:-

I. Absence of valid notice under Section 148 strikes at the very root of the Assessing Officer's jurisdiction to proceed with the reassessment and consequently, vitiates the entire proceedings rendering them as null and void unless the legal representative submits to the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer without raising any objection.

II. Issuance of notice against dead person and non service of notice do not come under the ambit of mistake, defect or omission invoking Section 292B of the Act.

III. Section 159 is attracted when the assessee is alive and after his death the legal representative steps into the shoes of the deceased-assessee.

IV. Assumption of jurisdiction qua the petitioner for the relevant assessment years beyond the period prescribed, renders the proceedings barred by the limitation in view of Section 149 of the Act.

V. A duty of intimation of death cannot be cast upon the legal representative/heir in absence of statutory provision.

VI. Section 292BB is applicable to the assessee not to a legal representative.

The observation related to Section 292B and Section 292BB will be dealt with a little later while analysing Issue II and III respectively.

23. One may further look into another Division Bench judgment of the Bombay High Court constituting Akil Kureshi and M.S. Sanklecha, JJ. in Sumit Balkrishna Gupta (Supra) wherein the court had quashed the show cause notice issued under Section 148 of the Act against a dead person as well as further proceedings pursuant thereto being as invalid and not tenable in law. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"7. The issue of a notice under section 148 of the Act is a foundation for reopening of assessment. The sine qua non for acquiring jurisdiction to reopen an assessment is that such notice should be issued in the name of the correct person. This requirement of issuing notice to a correct person and not to a dead person is not merely a procedural requirement but is a condition precedent to the impugned notice being valid in law. Thus, a notice which has been issued in the name of the dead person is also not protected either by the provisions of section 292B or 292BB of the Act. This is so as the requirement of issuing a notice in the name of correct person is the foundational requirement to acquire jurisdiction to reopen the assessment. This is evident from section 148 of the Act, which requires that before a proceeding can be taken up for reassessment, a notice must be served upon the assessee. The assessee on whom the notice must be sent must be a living person, i.e., legal heir of the deceased assessee, for the same to be responded. This in fact is the intent and purpose of the Act. Therefore, section 292B of the Act cannot be invoked to correct a foundational/substantial error as it is meant so as to meet the jurisdictional requirement. Therefore, both the impugned notice dated March 29, 2018 and the impugned order dated November 13, 2018 are quashed and set aside. It is made clear that this order will not prohibit the Revenue from issuing a fresh notice for reassessment, if requirement of section 147/148 of the Act are satisfied, including the limitation period therein.'

24. The Bombay High Court in Sumit Balkrishna (Supra) has dealt with a situation wherein the petitioner after the death of deceased has registered himself as the legal heir and filed return in the name of deceased assessee. The court reiterated the jurisdictional requirement of notice under Section 148 of the Act and has observed that such jurisdictional requirement is a foundational prerequisite which cannot be cured by invoking Section 292B of the Act.

25. The Division Bench of the Gujarat High Court constituting J.B. Pardiwala and Ilesh J. Vohra, JJ. in Bhupendra Bhikhalal Desai (Supra) speaking through Justice Pardiwala has held that want of a valid notice affects the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer to proceed with the reassessment that cannot be cured under Section 292B. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"23. The following principles are discernible from the above referred judgment of this court :

"(i) The issuance of the notice to a dead assessee is not a mere technical defect which can be corrected under section 292B of the Act. The issuance of the notice to a dead assessee and the consequent proceedings pursuant thereto would be without jurisdiction and, therefore, null and void.

(ii) The want of a valid notice affects the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer to proceed with the assessment and thus, affects the validity of the proceedings for assessment or reassessment. A notice issued under section 148 of the Act against a dead person is invalid, unless the legal representative submits to the jurisdiction of the Assessing Officer without raising any objection."

24. We are of the view that the same principle as referred to above would apply even to a notice issued to a dead assessee under section 153C of the Act. It is not in dispute that the legal heir of late Bhupendrabhai Desai had not participated in the proceedings. All that the legal heir of late Bhupendrabhai Desai did was to inform the Assessing Officer about the death of his father and requested to drop the proceedings. It is true that although the father passed away in the year 2017, yet the legal heir did not inform the Department up to October, 2019. However, at the same time, we should not overlook the fact that even after coming to know about the demise of late Bhupendrabhai, the Department could have issued a valid notice to the legal heir as the period of limitation of 21 months had not expired. We fail to understand what prevented the Department from issuing a valid notice to the legal heir within the prescribed time period."

26. The aforesaid judgment of Bhupendra Bhikhalal Desai (Supra) went in appeal before the Supreme Court54 and the same got dismissed.

27. The judgment of the Karnataka High Court in Mrs. Vanitha Gopal Shetty (Supra) penned by S. Sunil Dutt Yadav, J. wherein the court while dealing with the issue of invoking Section 159 of the Act has held that the proceedings ought to have been taken against the legal representatives of deceased at the first instance for invoking Section 159 of the Act for proceeding against the legal heir. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"13. It becomes clear that insofar as the proceedings against an assessee who is alive at the time of initiation of proceedings, the same proceedings could be continued as against his legal representatives from the stage at which it stood on the date of death of the deceased. Insofar as the right of the revenue to initiate proceedings as regards to the deceased assessee, Section 159(2)(b) permits proceedings to be initiated against the legal representatives as regards all proceedings which could have been taken against the deceased if he had survived.

14. In the present facts, admittedly, the proceedings are initiated under Section 148 for reassessment relating to escapement of income of late Kurkal Gopal Shetty and such proceedings as has been initiated in the year 2018 by when Kurkal Gopal Shetty had already died (on 11.11.2014). The proceedings in terms of Section 159(2)(b) ought to have been taken against the legal representatives of late Kurkal Gopal Shetty at the first instance. It ought to be noted that the period allowable for initiating the proceedings under Section 148 is the period prescribed under Section 149(1) (b) which position is not in dispute and accordingly, proceedings ought to have been initiated as on 31.03.2018.

15. The question as to whether proceedings initiated against the deceased Kurkal Gopal Shetty was sufficient to continue proceedings of reassessment as regards the legal representatives is a matter that requires to be answered. The learned counsel for the revenue would contend that the concept of abatement cannot be extended to assessment proceedings and where the original assessee has died, the proceedings against his legal representatives would be good in law as made out under Section 159(2) of the Act as well as in light of the definition of assessee under Section 2(7)(b) read with Section 159 is a matter that also requires consideration.

16. There is no dispute as regards to the general proposition that proceedings against an assessee would continue even after his death as against his legal representatives and there would be no abatement of such proceedings. However, in the present case, the question is as regards to the initiation of proceedings under Section 148 vis-'-vis the legal representatives of the deceased Kurkal Gopal Shetty. As noticed earlier, notice issued at the first instance on 28.03.2018 is as regards Kurkal Gopal Shetty and at that relevant point of time, the said assessee was dead. It comes out from the subsequent proceedings that the revenue, upon being informed by the 2nd petitioner through an e-mail on 30.05.2018 that Kurkal Gopal Shetty had died, has issued notice to the legal representatives on 19.11.2018 and on 21.12.2018 under Section 142 and hence, in effect, there was no notice to the petitioners with respect to the initiation of proceedings for reassessment under Section 148. The proceedings under Section 142 being a part art of the re-assessment proceedings, the starting point for initiation of proceedings under Section 148 is the issuance of notice, which notice to be valid is required to be initiated within the time prescribed under Section 149(1)(b). Notice issued against Kurkal Gopal Shetty on 28.03.2018 being against a dead person, at the very inception would not be a tenable notice for initiation of proceedings under Section 148 as regards the legal representatives insofar as any proceedings against the legal representatives are to be governed by Section 159. While Section 159(2)(a) provides for continuation of proceedings against the legal representatives when initiated against the assessee when he was alive. Clearly Section 159(2)(b) would require a separate notice to be issued under Section 148 within the time prescribed under Section 149(1)(b) as against the legal proceedings are initiated beyond the time prescribed under Section 149(1)(b) such proceedings would not be valid."

28. Now we will examine the judgments cited by the counsel for the respondents in relation to Issue I and Issue II.

29. A pre-independence era judgment of Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in Maharaja of Patiala (Supra) penned by Beaumont, C.J. and Kania, J. in separate concurring decisions while answering a reference made by the tribunal has considered the question regarding certain technical defects alleged to exist in the order of assessment of Late Maharaja of Patiala. The court has specifically dealt with Section 24B of the Income Tax Act, 1922 which is akin to Section 159 of the Act. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"2. The late Maharaja of Patiala died on March 23, 1938, and the papers relating to the assessment on him were sent by the Commissioner of Income-Tax of the Punjab to the Commissioner of Income-Tax, Bombay, after the date of the Maharaja's death because of the decision of the Allahabad High Court, to which I will refer presently, which suggested that the estate of the late Maharaja could not be assessed unless a statutory agent were appointed under Section 43 of the Indian Income-Tax Act. After the papers reached Bombay, some correspondence took place between the Income-Tax Officer, Bombay, and a gentleman who is described as the Foreign Minister of the Patiala State, and eventually, in November, 1938, two notices were served on His Highness the Maharaja of Patiala, which in terms were issued under Section 22(2) of the Indian Income-Tax Act, one for the year 1937, and the other for the year 1938, requiring the Maharaja (that is, the present Maharaja) to make a return of his income. Returns were made of the late Maharaja's income, and on September 16, 1940, assessment orders for the respective years 1937-38 and 1938-39 were passed. In those orders the name of the assessee is stated to be 'His Highness Maharajadhiraj Sir Bhupindra Singh,' that is, the late Maharaja, and subsequently notices to pay were served on the Foreign Minister on behalf of the late Maharaja in the case of one notice, and of the present Maharaja in the case of the other.

14. In view of that answer, the assessment is illegal, and the first question is really of only academic interest. The first question is:

"Whether in the circumstances found by the Tribunal in its order under Section 33, the assessment was not made in accordance with the provisions of Section 24B of the Indian Income-Tax Act and is for that reason invalid?"

15. I observe in passing, with regret, that it seems from the wording of this question and others which have been submitted to us by the Tribunal that the Tribunal are adopting the practice followed by Subordinate Judges of framing issues in the negative, a practice which I have often condemned as inconvenient. A simple question 'Is the assessment valid' can be answered 'Yes' or 'No.' If the question be 'Is the assessment not valid' or 'not invalid,'? a simple answer either in the affirmative or in the negative becomes ambiguous, and one has to look at the reasons to see what is meant. The question here is whether the assessment was not made in accordance with the provisions of Section 24B. If the question is answered in the negative, thus introducing a double negative, would it mean that the assessment was made in accordance with the section? I hope that the Tribunal will abandon this practice of stating questions in the negative before it becomes a habit. However, I take the question as being whether the assessment was made in accordance with the provisions of Section 24B. Now, Section 24B deals with the assessment of a deceased person. In this case the person to be assessed was the late Maharaja, who had died before he was served with any notice under Section 22, and, therefore, the provisions of Section 24B (2) apply, and the Income-Tax Officer was entitled to serve on the executor, administrator or other legal representative of the deceased Maharaja a notice under Section 22(2) or under Section 34 as the case might be, and then proceed to assess the total income of the deceased Maharaja as if such executor, administrator or other legal representative were the assessee. As observed by the President of the Tribunal in his judgment, the Income-Tax Officer made no attempt to observe the provisions of that sub-section. He served the notice on the present Maharaja, without showing in what capacity. But the Tribunal have found, as a fact, that the present Maharaja is the legal representative of the deceased Maharaja, and although it would obviously have been better so to describe him in the notice, I am not prepared to say that the notice was bad, if it was served on the legal representative, merely because it omitted to state that it was served in that capacity. It should have been stated that it was served on the legal representative of the late Maharaja, and that the return required was of the late Maharaja's income. It was not so stated, and the present Maharaja himself may have had taxable income for the years in question; but I think there is a good deal of force in the contention of the Tribunal that any irregularities in this respect were waived by the Maharaja, because returns of the late Maharaja's income were made by the Foreign Minister on behalf of the Maharaja, and then subsequently corrections were made in the assessment at the instance of the Maharaja. There is no doubt that the present Maharaja knew perfectly well that what was being assessed was the income of his predecessor.

16. Then when one comes to the actual assessment, it is made on the deceased Maharaja. It is, of course, wholly irregular to assess a deceased person. The assessment should have been made on the legal representative in respect of the income of the deceased. However, there again, the Patiala authorities seem to have accepted the view that it was an assessment made on the agent in respect of the income of the deceased person, because they have actually appealed against the assessment, and if the assessment was an assessment on a dead man, it was obviously a nullity, and there is nothing to appeal from."

30. In Estate of Late Ranglal Jajodia (Supra), the Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court speaking through A.N. Ray, J., in an appeal arising on a certificate to appeal against a judgment of Madras High Court on a reference has interpreted the second proviso to Section 34(3) that is akin to Section 150 whereby the reassessment is saved from the bar of limitation as well as whether legal representative is an assessee entitled to benefit of Section 34(3). The relevant paragraph of the judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"15. Counsel for Aruna Devi contended that the expression 'any person' occurring in the second proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act could not be referable to a stranger and that Aruna Devi was a stranger. In support of that proposition reliance was placed on the decision of this Court in S.C. Prashar v. Vasantsen Dwarkadas [49 ITR 1] . The facts of that case are entirely different and are of no assistance for the reason that in the present appeals Aruna Devi was impleaded as a party to the assessment proceedings as a legal representative of Rangalal Jajodia. The words 'any person' were construed in Murlidhar's case to be confined to a person intimately connected with the assessment year under appeal. It was said in that case that 'modification or setting aside of assessment made on a firm, joint Hindu family, association of persons for a particular year may affect the assessment for the said year on a partner or partners of the firm, member or members of the Hindu undivided family or the individual, as the case may be. In such cases though the latter are not so nominee parties to the appeal, their assessments depend upon the assessments on the former. The said instances are only illustrative. It is not necessary to pursue the matter further. We would, therefore, hold that the expression 'any person' in the setting in which it appears must be confined to a person intimately connected in the aforesaid sense with the assessments of the year under appeal'. In the present appeals the finding was that the assessment was made on Aruna Devi but no notice was given to her. The necessary direction was therefore given that notice should be given to her. Aruna Devi was heard and the assessment was made. She was not merely intimately connected with the assessment. She was in fact an assessee. Therefore, the second proviso to Section 34(3) applied.

16. We are therefore of opinion that the second proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act applies to the present appeals because, first the proceedings against Rangalal Jajodia commenced on filing of returns before the Income Tax authorities; secondly, the assessment proceedings continued after the death of Rangalal Jajodia against the legal representatives Shankerlal Jajodia and Aruna Devi; thirdly, the assessment proceedings on being set aside and not cancelled pursuant to the appeal filed by Shankerlal Jajodia on the ground that notice was not given to Aruna Devi were continued, and, fourthly, the setting aside of the assessment was only on the ground that notice was not given to Aruna Devi and therefore the finding and direction was vital to the assessment proceedings. The High Court was in error in holding that the assessment proceedings were barred by limitation.

17. The other question is as to the applicability of Section 24-B of the Act. Counsel on behalf of Aruna Devi repeated the contentions advanced in the High Court that Section 24-B does not cover the entire field of procedure to be followed in assessing the income of the deceased person. The High Court held that Section 24-B of the Act applied but Aruna Devi should have been given opportunities to object to the assessment by repeating the entire procedure of Section 24-B of the Act as during the lifetime of the deceased. Counsel for the Revenue Authority did not impeach the conclusion of the High Court that in relation to Aruna Devi the provisions of Section 24-B of the Act were to be followed de novo. We are of opinion that the High Court correctly held that Section 24-B of the Act applies to the present case. The third sub-section of Section 24-B deals with a case of a person dying after having furnished a return. Further, in the present case the Income Tax Officer had reason to believe the return to be incorrect or incomplete, and he called upon Rangalal to furnish evidence. The Act further confers power on the Revenue Officer to make the assessment and determine the tax payable by the deceased on the basis of the assessment and for that purpose to issue appropriate notice which would have had to be served upon the deceased had he survived and in that behalf to require from the executor, administrator or other legal representative of the deceased person any accounts, documents or other evidence which he might under the provisions of Sections 22 and 23 require from the deceased person. These provisions adequately answer the contention of the appellant Aruna Devi.

18. For these reasons we hold that the High Court was in error in holding that the second proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act did not save the assessments and therefore we set aside the judgment of the High Court and allow the appeals of the Revenue authority in CAs Nos. 2336-2339 of 1966.'

31. The aforesaid judgment of Supreme Court in Estate of Late Ranglal Jajodia (Supra) deals with the application of 34(3) akin to Section 150 to the peculiar facts of the case therein and procedure to be followed against the legal heir (Aruna Devi). Therefore, this case does not support the proposition of the counsel for the respondent for validating irregularity in defective notice.

32. The Supreme Court in Jay Prakash Singh (Supra) speaking through B.P. Jeevan Reddy and S.B. Majumdar, JJ. has considered the judgment of Estate of Late Ranglal Jajodia (Supra) and had approved Maharaja of Patiala (Supra). The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"11. We are of the opinion that the High Court was not right in holding in the above circumstances that the assessment orders made are null and void. They are not. At the worst, they are defective proceedings ' or irregular proceedings ' as has been rightly held by the Appellate Assistant Commissioner and the tribunal. In Chatturam v. CIT [(1947) 15 ITR 302 (FC)] , it has been held by the Federal Court that the liability to pay the tax arises by virtue of Sections 3 and 4 of the Indian Income Tax Act, 1922 (charging sections) and that Section 22 and other sections of the said Act are merely machinery provisions to determine the quantum of tax. The following observations are apposite:

"The income tax assessment proceedings commence with the issue of a notice. The issue or receipt of a notice is not, however, the foundation of the jurisdiction of the Income Tax Officer to make the assessment or of the liability of the assessees to pay the tax. It may be urged that the issue and service of a notice under Section 22(1) or (2) may affect the liability under the penal clauses which provide for failure to act as required by the notice. The jurisdiction to assess and the liability to pay the tax, however, are not conditional on the validity of the notice. Suppose a person, even before a notice is published in the papers under Section 22(1), or before he receives a notice under Section 22(2) of the Income Tax Act, gets a form of return from the Income Tax Office and submits his return, it will be futile to contend that the Income Tax Officer is not entitled to assess the party or that the party is not liable to pay any tax because a notice had not been issued to him. The liability to pay the tax is founded in Sections 3 and 4 of the Income Tax Act, which are the charging sections. Section 22 etc. are the machinery sections to determine the amount of tax."

15. The facts in this case are telling. They are: Rangalal Jajodia filed his income tax return for the Assessment Years 1942-43 and 1943-44 under the Income Tax Act as well as under the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940. Before the assessments were completed, he died (on 11-1-1946). Rangalal had a son, Shankar Lal, by his predeceased wife. He married a second time and had children from the second wife, Aruna Devi. Rangalal executed a Will totally disinheriting Shankar Lal and appointing Aruna Devi and another as executors of his Will. The Income Tax Officer, probably unaware of the Will, gave notice to Shankar Lal, who objected that he is not the legal representative of the deceased and that the second wife (Aruna Devi) and the other executor are the proper persons to be notified. The Income Tax Officer called for a copy of the Will but it was not produced. The Income Tax Officer thereupon completed the assessment describing the assessee as 'the estate of late Shri Rangalal Jajodia by legal heirs and representatives Shri Shankar Lal Jajodia, son of Rangalal Jajodia, Smt Aruna Devi, wife of Rangalal Jajodia and her children'. Appeals were preferred by the second wife, Aruna Devi, contending inter alia that the assessments having been made without notice to her or the other executor were illegal and invalid. This plea was rejected by the Appellate Assistant Commissioner and the tribunal, who remitted the matters to the Income Tax Officer to complete the assessments after notice to Aruna Devi. The High Court too rejected the said contention whereupon the matter was brought to this Court, which held that absence of notice to Aruna Devi makes the assessment merely defective but not null and void. It is in this connection that the aforesaid observation was made. This Court sustained the direction given by the Appellate Assistant Commissioner to the Income Tax Officer to make fresh assessment on Aruna Devi in accordance with the provisions of the Act. This decision, in our opinion, is sufficient to reject the assessee's contention herein. If an assessment made with notice to Shankar Lal (who was not really the legal representative of the deceased Rangalal) and without serving notice upon the lawful legal representatives (Aruna Devi, the other executor or Aruna Devi's children) ' that too, despite the objection of Shankar Lal that he is not the legal representative and that notice must be sent to Aruna Devi etc., who are the legal representatives of the deceased Rangalal ' is only 'defective' and not null and void, it would be rather odd to contend that assessments made on the basis of returns filed by one of the legal representatives (disclosing the total income received by the deceased) is null and void on the ground that notices were not sent to other legal representatives. The principle that emerges from the above decision is that an omission to serve or any defect in the service of notices provided by procedural provisions does not efface or erase the liability to pay tax where such liability is created by distinct substantive provisions (charging sections). Any such omission or defect may render the order made irregular ' depending upon the nature of the provision not complied with ' but certainly not void or illegal."

33. In Maharaja of Patiala (Supra), the court while dealing with the issue of validity of such notices, adopted a liberal and substance-oriented interpretation and held that mere technical defects in the notice would not invalidate the assessment proceedings when the substance and purpose of the notice were fully understood by the assessee's representative. The Court further observed that the Foreign Minister, who was managing the affairs of the deceased Maharaja, clearly understood that the notices related to the income and assessment was issued for late Maharaja and had in fact participated in the proceedings by filing returns and pursuing appeals. The Court specifically held that although it would have been more proper to describe the noticee expressly as legal representative, the defect was merely technical and not fatal.

34. We are of the view the ratio laid down in Maharaja of Patiala (Supra) is not applicable to the facts of the present case as in that case return and appeal were filed by foreign minister of present Maharaja. However, both the concurring judges were at consensus ad idem on the proposition that the assessment on a dead person is obviously a nullity and for the same appeal does not lie. Though this judgment was relied upon by the counsel for the respondent but the per curium was in favour of assessee.

35. The Supreme Court in Estate of Rangalal (Supra) has validated the assessment proceedings in view of Section 24B but we are of the opinion that the case is distinguishable from the present case as the proceedings in the former case commenced during the lifetime of the deceased and continued after death. Moreover, the return was filed and notices were issued on the deceased during his lifetime, thereby making the assessment proceedings against legal representative valid.

36. Furthermore, in Jai Prakash Singh (Supra) quoted above, the Supreme Court holding in the peculiar facts of the case has held in favour of revenue, observing that failure to serve notice upon all the legal representatives within the period of limitation of a deceased assessee does not automatically render the assessment proceedings void ab initio, particularly where the legal representatives who were served had participated in the proceedings without prejudice. The Court observed that such defect in service of notice is essentially a procedural irregularity and not a jurisdictional nullity, unless prejudice is demonstrated.

37. The judgment in Jay Prakash Singh (Supra) is in a different periphery from the present one. It examines the situation where the notice was not served on all the legal heirs but the order mentions the names of all the legal heirs. Moreover, some of the legal heirs have filed return, appeared and produce relevant books and accounts in response to notice under Section 142 unlike the present situation where the petitioner has filed preliminary objection after receiving notice under Section 142 of the Act. Accordingly, the present one is clearly distinguishable on facts from Jay Prakash Singh (Supra) wherein the service of notice was held to be defective and hence was cured.

38. The Supreme Court in Skylight Hospitality LLP (Supra) has held as follows:-

"In the peculiar facts of this case, we are convinced that wrong name given in the notice was merely a clerical error which could be corrected under Section 292-B of the Income Tax Act. The special leave petition is dismissed. Pending applications stand disposed of."

39. In so far as the judgment of Skylight Hospitality LLP (Supra) is concerned, the Supreme Court holding in favour of revenue in the peculiar facts of the case has held that wrong name given in the notice was merely a clerical error which could be corrected under section 292B as the Skylight Hospitality LLP, a limited liabilities partnership had taken over and acquired the rights and liabilities of M/s Skylight Hospitality (P) limited. Therefore, the decision in the case of Skylight Hospitality (Supra) is clearly distinguishable on facts and it does not support the case of revenue.

40. Furthermore, the judgment of Orissa High Court in Sunil Kumar Sahu (Supra) relied upon by the respondents deals with the distinction between issuance of notice and service of notice and the facts of the case clearly reveals that the notice was issued on the assessee who was alive within the limitation period even if the service of notice took place subsequently. Under such circumstances, the court has held that as long as service has taken place subsequently and the notice has been issued within the period of limitation, there would be no question of lack of jurisdiction on the part of the assessing officer. These facts are in complete contradiction to the present case wherein the notice was issued upon a dead person.

41. The judgment of the Madras High Court in Gowthaman S (Supra) relied upon by the respondents, delivered by a Single Judge is in our view not the correct view in law as the same holds that proceedings against the dead person would be covered under Section 159(2)(b) of the Act. The reasoning therein is based on the fact that Section 159(3) of the Act makes it clear that the legal representative of the deceased shall for the purposes of the Act be deemed to be an assessee. The court therein upon examining Section 159 has come to the conclusion that if the petitioner has not taken any steps to inform the department about the death of the deceased assessee, the department can issue notice upon the dead assessee within the period of limitation and such issue of reassessment proceedings would be valid in law and the legal representative would be liable to participate in proceedings and face the consequences thereof. In our view, this interpretation would expand the scope of Section 159(2)(b) and allow the issue of reassessment notice on a dead person. In our view, Section 159(2)(b) only allows proceedings to be initiated against the legal representative within the time limitation provided. The sub-clause does not allow issue of a show cause notice on the dead assessee. The deeming provision under section 159(3) would only allow the revenue to issue notice under section 159(2)(b) as the legal representative would be deemed to be assessee. In our view, treating the deeming provision as an enabling provision to issue reassessment notice on the dead person and continue the same against the legal representative would amount to adding words to the statute or/and interpreting the statute in a broader and liberal manner. Such an interpretation in taxing statutes is not allowed keeping in view Article 265 of the Constitution of India and the interpretation of taxing as held in a catena of the Supreme Court judgments that have been discussed in greater detail in issue IV.

42. The Division Bench of the Delhi High Court in Spice Entertainment Ltd. v. CST55 had held that framing of assessment against a non-existent entity/individual is impermissible and such defect cannot be cured. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"3. In this backdrop, the question that arises for consideration is as to whether the assessment in the name of a company which had been amalgamated and had been dissolved with the said amalgamating company will be null and void or whether framing of assessment in the name of such a company is a mere procedural defect which can be cured. The appeals were, thus, finally admitted and heard on the following questions of law:

"(i) Whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the Tribunal erred in law in holding that the action of the Assessing Officer in framing assessment in the name of 'Spice Corp Ltd', after the said entity stood dissolved consequent upon its amalgamation with Mcorp (P) Ltd. w.e.f 1-7-2003, was a mere 'procedural defect'?

(ii) whether on the facts and in the circumstances of the case, the Tribunal erred in law in holding that in view of the provisions of Section 292B of the Act, the assessment, having in substance and effect, been framed on the amalgamated company which could not be regarded as null and void?'

13. The Punjab & Haryana High Court stated the effect of this provision in CIT v. Norton Motors, 2004 SCC OnLine P&H 1276 : (2005) 275 ITR 595 : 275 ITR 595 in the following manner:

"A reading of the above reproduced provision makes it clear that a mistake, defect or omission in the return of income, assessment, notice, summons or other proceeding is not sufficient to invalidate an action taken by the competent authority, provided that such return of income, assessment, notice, summons or other proceeding is in substance and effect in conformity with or according to the provisions of the Act. To put it differently, Section 292B can be relied upon for resisting a challenge to the notice, etc. only if there is a technical defect or omission in it. However, there is nothing in the plain language of that section from which it can be inferred that the same can be relied upon for curing a jurisdictional defect in the assessment notice, summons or other proceeding. In other words, if the notice, summons or other proceeding taken by an authority suffers from an inherent lacuna affecting his/its jurisdiction, the same cannot be cured by having resort to Section 292B.

16. When we apply the ratio of aforesaid cases to the facts of this case, the irresistible conclusion would be provisions of Section 292B of the Act are not applicable in such a case. The framing of assessment against a non-existing entity/person goes to the root of the matter which is not a procedural irregularity but a jurisdictional defect as there cannot be any assessment against a 'dead person"."

43. The aforesaid judgment of the Delhi High Court was affirmed by the Supreme Court in CIT v. Spice Enfotainment Ltd. by dismissing the appeal being devoid of merits.

44. If the show cause notice is issued upon the legal representative within the time period prescribed the notice would be valid, otherwise the same would be liable to be fail. This proposition has been supported by the judgments in Alamelu Veerappan (Supra), Savita Kapila (Supra), Shri Devendra (Supra), Bhupendra Bhikhalal Desai (Supra) and Mrs. Vanitha (Supra).

45. All the other judgments cited by the counsel for respondents are patently distinguishable from the present case, and hence, cannot come to the rescue of the respondent with regard to the second issue.

46. Section 159 of the Act, 1961 applies to a situation where proceedings are initiated/pending against the assessee when he was alive and after his death the legal representative steps into the shoes of the deceased-assessee.

47. The scheme of Section 159(2) operates in two distinct fields: Section 159(2)(a) operates where proceedings have already been initiated against the deceased before his death and are thus deemed to have been taken against the legal representative, and may be continued from the stage they stood on the date of death; and Section 159(2)(b) where proceedings which could have been taken against the deceased if he had survived may be taken against the legal representative, meaning fresh proceedings must be initiated in the name of the legal representative, not in the name of the dead person.

48. As has been clearly articulated, after the death of the assessee, proceedings must be initiated against the legal heirs to treat the legal heirs as deemed assessees. Any notice issued in the name of a dead person cannot make the legal heirs binding unless a proper notice is issued on the legal heirs within limitation for liability of deceased assessee.

49. The revenue's invocation of Section 159 to validate a notice issued after the death of the assessee is, therefore, wholly misconceived. Section 159 presupposes a valid foundational notice issued during the lifetime of the assessee. Where the initiating notice itself is void, Section 159 has no substratum to operate upon. The correct course, as mandated by Section 159(2)(b), was to issue a fresh notice within limitation directly upon the legal representative which was admittedly never done in the present case.

50. Upon perusal scheme of Section 159 of the Act as well as judgments of the High Courts in Alamelu Verrappan (Supra), Savita Kapila (Supra), Devendra (Supra), Bhupendra Bhikalal Desai (Supra) and Mrs. Vanitha Gopal Shetty (Supra) as well as the judgment of the Supreme Court in Spice Infotainment (Supra) and Bhupendra Bhikhalal (Supra), we may unequivocally hold that notice under Section 148 of the Act against a dead person is void ab initio rendering all the proceedings pursuant thereto as null and void. Moresoever, stepping the legal representative/heir into the shoes of the deceased assessee for continuing proceedings, initiated against the deceased subsequent to his death cannot be taken recourse to under Section 159. If the proceedings were not initiated during the lifetime of the deceased and the notice was issued against the assessee subsequent to his death then the proceedings in terms of Section 159 cannot be continued against the legal representative/heir of the deceased. For proceeding against the legal representative of the deceased the notice under Section 148 ought to have been issued against the legal representatives of deceased assessee at the first instance within limitation. Since, the statute does not provide for intimation of death of deceased to the department, such duty with regard to factum of death cannot be cast upon the legal representative. Accordingly, the first issue is answered in the negative.

51. The judgments of Devendra (Supra), Alamelu Veerappan (Supra), Savita Kapila (Supra), Bhupendra Bhikalal Desai (Supra), Spice Enfotainment Ltd. (Supra) and Skylight Hospitality (Supra) have already been discussed while dealing with the first issue wherein it has been consistently held that Section 292B, provides for curing the defect of the notice issued if the notice is in substance and in conformity with the intent and purpose of the Act. Indubitably, the issuance of notice against a dead person, in substance is not in conformity with the provision of Section 148 which is the foundation for reopening an assessment and jurisdiction can only be acquired, if the notice is issued to the correct person. Issuance of notice to a dead person is not merely a procedural error but a jurisdictional error that renders the entire proceedings void.

52. The revenue cannot validate a notice under Section 148 against a dead person by invoking Section 292B as it is not a mere procedural defect. Ergo, the notice issued against a dead assessee is void ab initio that cannot be cured taking recourse to Section 292B. We do not agree with the submission of the respondent that notice addressed to a dead person can be cured by substituting the name of deceased assessee with his legal heir. Accordingly, the second issue is also answered in the negative.

53. Now advancing to the third issue with regard to the contention of the respondent that petitioner has waived of its objection by filing return and participating in re-assessment proceedings.

54. It was contended by the counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner did not file reply and return in response to notice under Section 142, and therefore, never submitted to the jurisdiction of the assessing officer. In fact, at every stage the petitioner specifically raised the objection that the proceedings initiated against the deceased person was void ab initio and without jurisdiction. Even if there is implicitly a waiver, acquiescence or consent by mere participation in proceeding that would not halt the petitioner from challenging the jurisdiction of the assessing officer for the reason that acquiescence, waiver or consent cannot confer jurisdiction upon an authority when the statute does not provide for it. For this proposition, counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance on the Maruti Suzuki India limited (Supra), Krishnaawtar Kabra (Supra), Meet Lalwani (Supra), Sandeep Chopra (Supra), Gourang Anil Wakade (Supra), Neena Jatin Shah (Supra).

55. On the contrary, the respondents submit that since the petitioner has filed the Income Tax Return in the name of the deceased representing him to be a living person, therefore, the blameworthy conduct cannot estop the department from continuing proceedings against the legal heir.

56. At this juncture one may look to the Division-bench judgment of the Bombay High Court in Shri Devendra (Supra) wherein the court had quashed the show cause notice under Section 148 as the jurisdictional requirement was not fulfilled and also held that resort to Section 292BB cannot be invoked as the primary condition for invoking Section 292BB is that assessee is put on notice and not the legal heir. The relevant paragraph of the judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"14. Another contention of the respondents is that as the petitioner has responded to the notice and participated in the proceeding, section 292BB comes into picture and the notice issued against a dead person cannot be a nullity'

"14. A cursory look at section 292BB would show that the same would apply only to two types of proceedings, namely, (i) proceedings, in which, the assessee had appeared and (ii) any inquiry, in which, the assessee had co-operated.

15. In the case on hand, the assessee was dead. It was the assessee's son, who appeared and perhaps co-operated. Therefore, the primary condition for invocation of section 292BB is absent in the case on hand.

16. Section 292BB is in place to take care of contingencies where an assessee is put on notice of the initiation of proceedings, but who takes advantage of defective notices or defective service of notice on him. It is trite to point out that the purpose of issue of notice is to make the noticee aware of the nature of the proceedings. Once the nature of the proceedings is made known and understood by the assessee, he should not be allowed to take advantage of certain procedural defects. That was the purpose behind the enactment of section 292BB. It cannot be invoked in cases where the very initiation of proceedings is against a dead person."

57. In Maruti Suzuki India limited (Supra), the two-judge bench of the Supreme Court speaking through Dr. D.Y. Chandrachud, J. held in favour of assessee, and authoritatively observed in relation to Section 292B and Section 292BB, that the framing of assessment against a non-existent entity is impermissible and participation of new entity/person who was not an assessee does not create estoppel against law or validate proceedings that are otherwise void ab initio. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"21. In Spice Entertainment [Spice Entertainment Ltd. v. Commr. of Service Tax, 2011 SCC OnLine Del 3210 : (2012) 280 ELT 43] , a Division Bench of the Delhi High Court dealt with the question as to whether an assessment in the name of a company which has been amalgamated and has been dissolved is null and void or, whether the framing of an assessment in the name of such company is merely a procedural defect which can be cured. The High Court held that upon a notice under Section 143(2) being addressed, the amalgamated company had brought the fact of the amalgamation to the notice of the assessing officer. Despite this, the assessing officer did not substitute the name of the amalgamated company and proceeded to make an assessment in the name of a non-existent company which renders it void. This, in the view of the High Court, was not merely a procedural defect. Moreover, the participation by the amalgamated company would have no effect since there could be no estoppel against law : (SCC OnLine Del paras 11-12)

"11. After the sanction of the scheme on 11-4-2004, Spice ceases to exit w.e.f. 1-7-2003. Even if Spice had filed the returns, it became incumbent upon the Income Tax Authorities to substitute the successor in place of the said 'dead person'. When notice under Section 143(2) was sent, the appellant/amalgamated company appeared and brought this fact to the knowledge of the AO. He, however, did not substitute the name of the appellant on record. Instead, the assessing officer made the assessment in the name of M/s Spice which was non-existing entity on that day. In such proceedings an assessment order passed in the name of M/s Spice would clearly be void. Such a defect cannot be treated as procedural defect. Mere participation by the appellant would be of no effect as there is no estoppel against law.

12. Once it is found that assessment is framed in the name of non-existing entity, it does not remain a procedural irregularity of the nature which could be cured by invoking the provisions of Section 292-B of the Act."

Following the decision in Spice Entertainment [Spice Entertainment Ltd. v. Commr. of Service Tax, 2011 SCC OnLine Del 3210 : (2012) 280 ELT 43] , the Delhi High Court quashed assessment orders which were framed in the name of the amalgamating company in:

(i) Dimension Apparels [CIT v. Dimension Apparels (P) Ltd., 2014 SCC OnLine Del 7588 : (2015) 370 ITR 288] ;

(ii) Micron Steels [CIT v. Micron Steels (P) Ltd., 2015 SCC OnLine Del 7321 : (2015) 372 ITR 386] ; and

(iii) Micra India [CIT v. Micra (India) (P) Ltd., 2015 SCC OnLine Del 14631] .

22. In Dimension Apparels [CIT v. Dimension Apparels (P) Ltd., 2014 SCC OnLine Del 7588 : (2015) 370 ITR 288] , a Division Bench of the Delhi High Court affirmed the quashing of an assessment order dated 31-12-2010. The respondent had amalgamated with another company and thus, ceased to exist from 7-12-2009. The Court rejected the argument of the Revenue that the assessment was in substance and effect in conformity with the Act by reason of the fact that the assessing officer had used correct nomenclature in addressing the assessee; stated the fact that the company had amalgamated and mentioned the correct address of the amalgamated company. It was the Revenue's contention that the omission on the part of the assessing officer to mention the name of the amalgamated company is a procedural defect. The Delhi High Court rejected this contention. In doing so, it relied on the holding in Spice Entertainment [Spice Entertainment Ltd. v. Commr. of Service Tax, 2011 SCC OnLine Del 3210 : (2012) 280 ELT 43] , where the High Court expressly clarified that 'the framing of assessment against a non-existing entity/person' is a jurisdictional defect. The Division Bench also relied on the holding in Spice Entertainment [Spice Entertainment Ltd. v. Commr. of Service Tax, 2011 SCC OnLine Del 3210 : (2012) 280 ELT 43] that participation by the amalgamated company in proceedings does not cure the defect as 'there can be no estoppel in law', to affirm the quashing of the assessment order.

36. In the present case, despite the fact that the assessing officer was informed of the amalgamating company having ceased to exist as a result of the approved scheme of amalgamation, the jurisdictional notice was issued only in its name. The basis on which jurisdiction was invoked was fundamentally at odds with the legal principle that the amalgamating entity ceases to exist upon the approved scheme of amalgamation. Participation in the proceedings by the appellant in the circumstances cannot operate as an estoppel against law. This position now holds the field in view of the judgment of a coordinate Bench of two learned Judges which dismissed the appeal of the Revenue in Spice Enfotainment [CIT v. Spice Enfotainment Ltd., (2020) 18 SCC 353] on 2-11-2017. The decision in Spice Enfotainment [CIT v. Spice Enfotainment Ltd., (2020) 18 SCC 353] has been followed in the case of the respondent while dismissing the special leave petition for AY 2011-2012. In doing so, this Court has relied on the decision in Spice Enfotainment [CIT v. Spice Enfotainment Ltd., (2020) 18 SCC 353] ."

58. Section 292BB creates a statutory estoppel wherein an assessee has appeared or cooperated in proceedings without objecting to the service of notice; such an assessee shall be deemed to have been duly served and cannot raise a plea of non-service thereafter.

59. From the perusal of Section 292BB it is clear that it applies only to two types of proceedings; namely when the assessee had himself appeared, and secondly, when the assessee had cooperated in the enquiry. In the present case, the assessee was dead at the time of issuance of notice. It was the assessee's wife who appeared and allegedly cooperated in the proceedings.

60. The primary condition for invocation of Section 292BB is absent in the present case. Section 292BB is in place to take care of contingencies where assessee is put on notice of the initiation of proceedings. The purpose behind the enactment of Section 292BB is to make the noticee aware of the nature of proceedings and once the nature of proceedings is made known and understood by the assessee, he should not be allowed to take advantage of certain procedural defects.

61. The argument of the respondent that the petitioner has waived of its objection by participation in proceeding cannot be countenanced by us for two reasons. Firstly, petitioner has filed objection before the department after receiving notice stating that the assessee has already died, and secondly, even if it is assumed that the petitioner has participated then also mere participation cannot confer jurisdiction upon the authority when the statute is silent on the same as observed by the Supreme Court in Maruti Suzuki (Supra).

62. In the present case, right from the inception the petitioner has objected to the validity of the notice, and thereafter, to the continuation of proceeding and has at no point of time participated in the proceedings, by providing documents in response to notice issued under section 142.

63. Consequently, the third issue is answered in the negative, with the court holding that a notice issued in the name of the deceased person is not saved by Section 292BB of the Act and is therefore legally unsustainable.

64. Moving towards the fourth issue with regard to the justification of reassessment proceedings on equitable grounds and interpretation of taxing statutes.

65. It has been been submitted by the petitioner that validating reassessment against the dead by taking recourse to the principles of estoppel, waiver, acquiescence, approbate and reprobate which are all equitable doctrines cannot be countenanced as it is trite law that equity has no place in taxation statutes.

66. Per contra, the counsel for the respondent contends that the conduct of the petitioner completely disentitles her from invoking discretionary writ jurisdiction under Article 226 in view of the return of income having been filed and electronically verified in the name of the deceased amounting to deliberate concealment and abuse of the provisions of law by legal representatives. For this proposition reliance in this regard is placed upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in V. MR. P. Firm Muar (Supra).

67. I must attach a caveat here that estoppel, waiver and acquiescence, approbate and reprobate are all equitable doctrines. Traditionally tax laws have their own interpretation regime wherein strict interpretation of the statute and preference for literal meaning is the order of the day.

68. The kenspeckle observation of Rowlett, J. adroitly remarked in the judgment of Cape Brandy Syndicate v. Inland Revenue Commissioners which is pertinent to be looked into is quoted hereinbelow:-

'There is no room for any intendment. There is no equity about a tax. There is no presumption as to a tax. Nothing is to be read in, nothing is to be implied. One can only look fairly at the language used.'

69. The doctrine of estoppel puts an embargo on a party from resiling from a representation upon which another has relied to his detriment. In ordinary civil law, estoppel is a powerful weapon. In tax law, however, it operates under severe constraints.

70. Furthermore, in a three judge-Bench constituting J.C. Shah, S.M. Sikri and K. Subba Rao, JJ., the Supreme Court in MR. P. Firm Muar (Supra) speaking through K.Subba Rao, J., has held that doctrine of estoppel would not hold the field in tax law in the case where a non taxable income under Income Tax Act, has been taxed. The relevant paragraph of the judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"13. The Central Board of Revenue issued further instructions on the above scheme by its letter dated December 1, 1947. One of the instructions was that debts due to the assessee if paid in Japanese currency would be taken to have been satisfied to that extent and excluded from the asset side in the balance sheet, provided that if any recovery was subsequently made, it was to be taken as income. Briefly stated, under the scheme the losses suffered by an assessee during Assessment Years 1942-43 to 1946-47 were set off against his profits for Assessment Years 1942-43 and 1941-42 and any unabsorbed loss could not be carried forward. The debts discharged in Japanese currency were excluded from the assets side in the balance sheet but the authority reserved for itself the right to treat any recoveries subsequently made as income. The contention is that the assessees having opted to accept the scheme, derived benefit thereunder, and agreed to have their discharged debts excluded from the asset side in the balance sheet subject to the condition that subsequent recoveries by them would be taxable income, they are now precluded, on the principle of 'approbate and reprobate', from pleading that the income they derived subsequently by realization of the revived debts is not taxable income. The doctrine of 'approbate and reprobate' is only a species of estoppel; it applies only to the conduct of parties. As in the case of estoppel, it cannot operate against the provisions of a statute. If a particular income is not taxable under the Income Tax Act, it cannot be taxed on the basis of estoppel or any other equitable doctrine. Equity is out of place in tax law; a particular income is either exigible to tax under the taxing statute or it is not. If it is not, the Income Tax Officer has no power to impose tax on the said income."

71. Another recent locus classicus on this aspect is the decision of Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in Commr. of Customs v. Dilip Kumar & Co. presided over by Ranjan Gogoi, N.V. Ramana, R. Banumathi, M.M. Shantanagoudar And S. Abdul Nazeer, JJ. wherein the court speaking through N.V. Ramana, J. has regimented the proposition that in case of ambiguity, a taxing statute should be construed in favour of the assessee. Forbye, the court has held that every taxing statute including charging, computation and exemption clauses at the threshold stage should be interpreted strictly and after becoming eligible at later stage should be construed liberally. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"26. Next, we may consider the meaning and scope of 'strict interpretation', as evolved in Indian law and how the higher courts have made a distinction while interpreting a taxation statute on one hand and tax exemption notification on the other. In Black's Law Dictionary (10th Edn.) 'strict interpretation' is described as under:

Strict interpretation. (16c) 1. An interpretation according to the narrowest, most literal meaning of the words without regard for context and other permissible meanings. 2. An interpretation according to what the interpreter narrowly believes to have been the specific intentions or understandings of the text's authors or ratifiers, and no more. Also termed (in senses 1 & 2) strict construction, literal interpretation; literal construction; restricted interpretation; interpretatio stricta; interpretatio restricta; interpretatio verbalis. 3. The philosophy underlying strict interpretation of statutes. Also termed as close interpretation; interpretatio restrictive. See strict constructionism under constructionism. Cf. large interpretation; liberal interpretation (2).

"Strict construction of a statute is that which refuses to expand the law by implications or equitable considerations, but confines its operation to cases which are clearly within the letter of the statute, as well as within its spirit or reason, not so as to defeat the manifest purpose of the legislature, but so as to resolve all reasonable doubts against the applicability of the statute to the particular case.' Willam M. Lile et al., Brief Making and the Use of Law Books 343 (Roger W. Cooley & Charles Lesly Ames eds., 3d Edn. 1914).

"Strict interpretation is an equivocal expression, for it means either literal or narrow. When a provision is ambiguous, one of its meaning may be wider than the other, and the strict (i.e. narrow) sense is not necessarily the strict (i.e. literal) sense.' John Salmond, Jurisprudence 171 n. (t) [Glanville L. Williams (Ed.), 10th Edn. 1947].

34. The passages extracted above, were quoted with approval by this Court in at least two decisions being CIT v. Kasturi and Sons Ltd. [CIT v. Kasturi and Sons Ltd., (1999) 3 SCC 346] and State of W.B. v. Kesoram Industries Ltd. [State of W.B. v. Kesoram Industries Ltd., (2004) 10 SCC 201] (hereinafter referred to as 'Kesoram Industries case', for brevity). In the later decision, a Bench of five Judges, after citing the above passage from Justice G.P. Singh's treatise, summed up the following principles applicable to the interpretation of a taxing statute:

"(i) In interpreting a taxing statute, equitable considerations are entirely out of place. A taxing statute cannot be interpreted on any presumption or assumption. A taxing statute has to be interpreted in the light of what is clearly expressed; it cannot imply anything which is not expressed; it cannot import provisions in the statute so as to supply any deficiency; (ii) Before taxing any person, it must be shown that he falls within the ambit of the charging section by clear words used in the section; and (iii) If the words are ambiguous and open to two interpretations, the benefit of interpretation is given to the subject and there is nothing unjust in a taxpayer escaping if the letter of the law fails to catch him on account of the legislature's failure to express itself clearly."

55. There is abundant jurisprudential justification for this. In the governance of rule of law by a written Constitution, there is no implied power of taxation. The tax power must be specifically conferred and it should be strictly in accordance with the power so endowed by the Constitution itself. It is for this reason that the courts insist upon strict compliance before a State demands and extracts money from its citizens towards various taxes. Any ambiguity in a taxation provision, therefore, is interpreted in favour of the subject/assessee. The statement of law that ambiguity in a taxation statute should be interpreted strictly and in the event of ambiguity the benefit should go to the subject/assessee may warrant visualising different situations. For instance, if there is ambiguity in the subject of tax, that is to say, who are the persons or things liable to pay tax, and whether the Revenue has established conditions before raising and justifying a demand. Similar is the case in roping all persons within the tax net, in which event the State is to prove the liability of the persons, as may arise within the strict language of the law. There cannot be any implied concept either in identifying the subject of the tax or person liable to pay tax. That is why it is often said that subject is not to be taxed, unless the words of the statute unambiguously impose a tax on him, that one has to look merely at the words clearly stated and that there is no room for any intendment nor presumption as to tax. It is only the letter of the law and not the spirit of the law to guide the interpreter to decide the liability to tax ignoring any amount of hardship and eschewing equity in taxation. Thus, we may emphatically reiterate that if in the event of ambiguity in a taxation liability statute, the benefit should go to the subject/assessee. But, in a situation where the tax exemption has to be interpreted, the benefit of doubt should go in favour of the Revenue, the aforesaid conclusions are expounded only as a prelude to better understand jurisprudential basis for our conclusion. We may now consider the decisions which support our view.'

72. A conjoint reading of the preceeding judgments leads to the inexorable conclusion that if income is not taxable under the statute, the tax authorities cannot compel the assessee into paying tax by pointing to some prior representation or admission by the assessee that the income is taxable. The charge must flow from the statute but not from any representation/reply. The provision of taxing statutes should operate within the fringes of its jargon and not beyond it for conferring jurisdiction in case it is not provided. Apropos the waiver and acquiescence, a taxpayer cannot implicitly waive his right and allow the revenue to forgo to the statutory conditions for imposing a tax. There is no waiver or estoppel against a statute. Hence, where the statute prescribes a jurisdictional condition such as the requirement that a notice under Section 148 be served on a living person, the conduct of the legal heir cannot waive compliance with that jurisdictional requirement.

73. In re 'qui approbat non reprobat' that is the doctrine of approbate and reprobate which proffers that a party cannot be allowed to 'blow hot and cold'. We hold that this doctrine can apply only within the statutory framework. For instance, if an assessee who has claimed and received a deduction under a particular head cannot simultaneously contend that the income under that head is not taxable. But this operates only where both positions are within the statutory framework, not as a means to impose or excuse a liability that the statute creates or excludes. Furthermore, it has been contended by the department that the estate of a deceased assessee or a taxpayer who has taken advantage of a procedural defect is being "unjustly enriched" at the expense of the public exchequer. The aforesaid argument of unjust enrichment as contended by the counsel for the respondent has no relevance in the context of tax law. If the assessee is not liable to pay tax under the statute, the fact that he may benefit from the strict application of the law does not justify imposing the tax by importing equitable notions of unjust enrichment.

74. The reason for the strict exclusion of equity is well-reasoned and principled as the citizen's liability to pay tax must be certain and predictable, arising only from clear statutory language. If equity were allowed to operate in tax law, the clarity and certainty that the rule of law requires in the imposition of fiscal burdens would be annihilated.

75. Now comes the issue of interpretation of Section 148 that has a unique interpretative paradox in the Act.

76. The Supreme Court has authoritatively resolved this paradox by holding that Section 148 operates on a two-tier interpretive framework. Jurisdictional conditions and conditions precedent within Section 148 which is to be strictly construed and procedural aspects, forms, and technical requirements which is to be liberally and purposively construed to ensure the charge does not fail.

77. The Supreme Court in CIT v. Amarchand N. Shroff59, laid down the foundational principle that elaborate provisions were made in the Act specifically because the statute requires the person sought to be assessed to be in existence at the time of assessment. The relevant paragraph of the judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"The individual assessee has ordinarily to be a living person and there can be no assessment on a dead person and the assessment is a charge in respect of the income of the previous year and not a charge in respect of the income of the year of assessment as measured by the income of the previous year: Wallace Brothers & Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Income-tax [1948] 16 I.T.R. 240, 244 (P.C). By section 24B the legal representatives have, by fiction of law, become assessee as provided in that section but that fiction cannot be extended beyond the object for which it was enacted. As was observed by this court in Bengal Immunity Co. Ltd. v. State of Bihar ((1955) 2 S.C.R. 603, 646) legal fictions are only for a definite purpose and they are limited to the purpose for which they are created and should not be extended beyond that legitimate field. In the present case the fiction is limited to the cases provided in the three sub-sections of section 24B and cannot be extended further than the liability for the income received in the previous year.'

78. The Supreme Court in Calcutta Knitwears (Supra) in relation to strict interpretation of taxing statute has held as follows:-

"20. Section 158-BD of the Act provides for 'undisclosed income' of any other person. Before we proceed to explain the said provision, we intend to remind ourselves of the first or the basic principles of interpretation of a fiscal legislation. It is time and again reiterated that the courts, while interpreting the provisions of a fiscal legislation should neither add nor subtract a word from the provisions of instant meaning of the sections. It may be mentioned that the foremost principle of interpretation of fiscal statutes in every system of interpretation is the rule of strict interpretation which provides that where the words of the statute are absolutely clear and unambiguous, recourse cannot be had to the principles of interpretation other than the literal rule. (Swedish Match AB v.

SEBI [(2004) 11 SCC 641 : AIR 2004 SC 4219] and CIT v. Ajax Products Ltd. [(1965) 55 ITR 741 (SC)])

23. Lord Granworth in Gundry v. Pinniger [(1852) 21 LJ Ch 405 : (1843-60) All ER Rep 403 : 42 ER 647] , has observed that: (ER p. 648)

"…to adhere as closely as possible to the literal meaning of the words used, is a cardinal rule from which if we depart we launch into a sea of difficulties which it is not easy to fathom."

That is to say, once the literal rule is departed, then any number of interpretations can be put to a statutory provision, each Judge having a free play to put his own interpretation as he likes. This would be destructive of the edifice of fiscal legislations which impose economic duties and sanctions.

24. In taxing statutes, even if the literal interpretation results in hardship or inconvenience, it has to be followed (G.P. Singh's Principles of Statutory Interpretation, 12th Edn., 2010, Lexis Nexis Butterworths Wadhwa Nagpur; Bennion on Statutory Interpretation, 5th Edn., Lexis Nexis, p. 863; Vepa P. Sarathi, Interpretation of Statutes, 5th Edn., Eastern Book Company, Chapter VIII, Taxing Statutes). This Court in CIT (Ag) v. Keshab Chandra Mandal [1950 SCC 205 : AIR 1950 SC 265], has held that hardship or inconvenience cannot alter the meaning of the language employed by the legislature if such meaning is clear and apparent. Hence departure from the literal rule should only be done in very rare cases, and ordinarily there should be judicial restraint to do so. (Pandian Chemicals Ltd. v. CIT [(2003) 5 SCC 590] , Nasiruddin v. Sita Ram Agarwal [(2003) 2 SCC 577 : AIR 2003 SC 1543] , Bhaiji v. SDO [(2003) 1 SCC 692] , J.P. Bansal v. State of Rajasthan [(2003) 5 SCC 134 : 2003 SCC (L&S) 605] , State of Jharkhand v. Govind Singh [(2005) 10 SCC 437 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 1570] , Jinia Keotin v. Kumar Sitaram Manjhi [(2003) 1 SCC 730] , Shiv Shakti Coop. Housing Society v. Swaraj Developers [(2003) 6 SCC 659] , Grasim Industries Ltd. v. Collector of Customs [(2002) 4 SCC 297] and Union of India v. Hansoli Devi [(2002) 7 SCC 273] .)

25. The Australian High Court in Federal Commr. of Taxation v. Westraders Pty. Ltd. [(1980) 144 CLR 55 (Aust)] , considered the scope of Section 36-A of the Income Tax Assessment Act, 1936 (Cth), which on a literal interpretation allowed the taxpayer to make a profit and still claim a loss for tax purposes. The Commissioner argued that the taxpayer's conduct amounted to a tax avoidance scheme and should therefore be disallowed under Section 260 of the Income Tax Assessment Act, 1936 (Cth). The Court held that under a literal interpretation Section 36-A could apply to allow the taxpayer to claim a loss. Barwick, C.J., speaking for the majority relied on the decision in IRC v. Duke of Westminster [1936 AC 1 : 1935 All ER Rep 259 (HL)] , which advocated that the literal approach be applied when interpreting taxation legislation and stated the following:

"It is for Parliament to specify, and to do so, in my opinion, as far as language will permit, with unambiguous clarity, the circumstances which will attract an obligation on the part of the citizen to pay tax. The function of the court is to interpret and apply the language in which Parliament has specified those circumstances. The court is to do so by determining the meaning of the words employed by Parliament according to the intention of Parliament which is discoverable from the language used by Parliament. It is not for the court to mould or to attempt to mould the language of the statute so as to produce some result which it might be thought Parliament may have intended to achieve, though not expressed in the actual language employed."

26. In Cooper Brookes (Wollongong) Pty. Ltd. v. Federal Commr. of Taxation [(1981) 147 CLR 297 (Aust)] it is held that in a taxing statute if the language is unambiguous, departing from the literal approach 'may lead Judges to put their own ideas of justice or social policy in place of the words of the statute'. Similar view was espoused in C. & J. Clark Ltd. v. IRC [(1975) 1 WLR 413 : (1975) 1 All ER 801 (CA)] and BP Refinery (Westernport) Pty. Ltd. v. Shire of Hastings [(1977) 180 CLR 266 (Aust)] .

27. In Hepples v. Federal Commission of Taxation (No. 2) [(1992) 173 CLR 492 (Aust)] , the High Court of Australia unequivocally favoured the principle that taxation legislation should be subject to a strict literal interpretation and opined that such an approach was supported by 'common sense'. Therein, the taxpayer, on ceasing to be employed, was paid $40,000 by his employer in exchange for the taxpayer agreeing that he would not carry on or be interested in certain businesses and would not divulge any trade secrets. The issue before the Court was whether or not such payment would form part of the taxpayer's assessable income for the purposes of the Income Tax Assessment Act, 1936 (Cth). It was held that since the Act did not provide for such payments to form part of a taxpayer's assessable income, the payment would not be assessable.

29. In Prakash Nath Khanna v. CIT [(2004) 9 SCC 686] , this Court has explained that the language employed in a statute is the determinative factor of the legislative intent. The legislature is presumed to have made no mistake. The presumption is that it intended to say what it has said. Assuming there is a defect or an omission in the words used by the legislature, the Court cannot correct or make up the deficiency. Where the legislative intent is clear from the language, the Court should give effect to it. (Delhi Financial Corpn. v. Rajiv Anand [(2004) 11 SCC 625] and State of A.P. v. Road Rollers Owners Welfare Assn. [(2004) 6 SCC 210])

31. Thus, the language of a taxing statute should ordinarily be read and understood in the sense in which it is harmonious with the object of the statute to effectuate the legislative animation. A taxing statute should be strictly construed; common sense approach, equity, logic, ethics and morality have no role to play. Nothing is to be read in, nothing is to be implied; one can only look fairly at the language used and nothing more and nothing less. (J. Srinivasa Rao v. State of A.P. [(2006) 12 SCC 607 : (2006) 13 Scale 27] and Jagdambika Pratap Narain Singh v. CBDT [(1975) 4 SCC 578 : 1975 SCC (Tax) 356 : (1975) 100 ITR 698] .)'

79. The recent Division bench judgment of the Supreme Court in Vikram Sujitkumar Bhatia (Supra), penned by M.R.Shah, J. has clarified the law with regard to interpretation of Section 153-C of the Act and had held it to be a machinery provision. The ratio laid down in the aforesaid judgment is quoted hereinbelow:-

"62. Therefore, if the submission on behalf of the respective respondent assessees that despite the fact that the incriminating materials have been found in the form of books of account or documents or assets relating to them from the premises of the searched person, still they may not be subjected to the proceedings under Section 153-C solely on the ground that the search was conducted prior to the amendment is accepted, in that case, the very object and purpose of the amendment to Section 153-C, which is by way of substitution of the words 'belongs or belong to' to the words 'pertains or pertain to' shall be frustrated. As observed hereinabove, any interpretation, which may frustrate the very object and purpose of the Act/statute shall be avoided by the Court. If the interpretation as canvassed on behalf of the respective respondents is accepted, in that case, even the object and purpose of Section 153-C, namely, for assessment of income of any other person (other than the searched person) shall be frustrated."

80. The Supreme Court in Vikram Sujitkumar Bhatia (Supra) has interpreted Section 153-C as a machinery provision as the primary intention of the parliament behind that provision was to proceed against the third party in case any incriminating material was found against the third party during the search conducted by the department which was being frustrated, if it was construed strictly. In the peculiar facts of the aforesaid case the provision was interpreted liberally to suppress the mischief the legislature intended to suppress so that the charge did not fail.

81. Following the judgments of the Supreme Court in Amarchand N. Shroff (Supra), the judgment of Bombay High Court in Sumit Balkrishna (Supra) and the judgment of Delhi High Court in Savita Kapila (Supra), it is abundantly clear that Section 148, at the very inception of reassessment should be construed strictly, as it is not merely a machinery provision but also a jurisdictional provision by reason of its dual and paradoxical nature. The following principles may be culled out for construing Section 148 with strict rigour:-

I. Reason to believe and recording of reason;
II. Prior Approval under Section 151 before issuing notice;
III. The limitation period (Section 149);
IV. The identity of the person to whom the notice is addressed; and
V. The jurisdictional competence of the issuing authority;

82. In the present case, it is undisputed that the Income Tax Return was filed in the name of the deceased assessee and verified through the Aadhaar OTP of the deceased, subsequent to his death, by the petitioner. The revenue is correct in its stand that the petitioner has wrongly filed the return contrary to the provisions of Section 140 of the Act and the same may also attract penal consequences under Section 277 of the Act on the ground of false verification. Therefore, the revenue is at liberty to proceed against the petitioner for violation of the provisions of Section 140 of the Act. However, the argument of the revenue, that the petitioner on the grounds of equity should not be allowed to invoke the discretionary and equitable writ jurisdiction, is without any basis in law as a writ of certiorari is being sought for quashing of a show cause notice on the ground that the same is void ab initio. The conduct of the petitioner in filing the return of her husband after his death does not confer jurisdiction upon the revenue to act in a manner contrary to the Act. The revenue cannot be allowed to defend its action and act in an illegal manner by issuing a notice which is void ab initio taking the plea that the petitioner had acted in an illegal manner.

83. Ergo, the reassessment proceedings initiated under Section 148 of the Income-tax Act, 1961, cannot be sustained on equitable considerations merely to safeguard the interests of the revenue. It is a settled principle that equity has little or no role to play in the interpretation of taxing statutes, particularly where the provision confers jurisdiction upon the assessing authority. The validity of reassessment proceedings must, therefore, be tested solely on the touchstone of the statutory requirements prescribed under the Act. If the mandatory conditions precedent for the assumption of jurisdiction are not strictly fulfilled, the proceedings are rendered void, irrespective of the amount of tax sought to be recovered or the perceived loss to the revenue. Accordingly, the fourth issue is answered in the negative.

84. Closing in on towards the fifth issue with regard to the issuance of fresh show cause notice by lifting the bar of limitation in terms of Section 150(1) of the Act.

85. The counsel for the petitioner relies on sub-section(2) of Section 150 and has submitted that no fresh show cause notice can be issued as the limitation period has already expired. The protection under Section 150(1) could have been available to the respondents only if the assessment 'order' itself had been passed within the statutory period of limitation. Since the order itself is beyond limitation, Section 150(1) affords no assistance whatsoever to the respondent department. Accordingly, the very 'order' sought to be relied upon by the respondent department is itself barred by limitation. Once the assessment 'order' itself is beyond limitation, Section 150(1) cannot be invoked to revive or validate proceedings which had already become time barred.

86. Furthermore, it has been submitted that extending the benefit of Section 150(1) in the facts of the present case would effectively amount to conferring jurisdiction upon the Assessing Officer which otherwise does not exist in view of the bar created under Section 149 of the Act as conferment of jurisdiction is purely a legislative function and jurisdiction cannot be created either by consent of parties, acquiescence, waiver or even by orders of a superior court contrary to statutory provisions. This submission relates to role of equity in taxation statutes which we have already dealt with in the fourth issue.

87. For his aforesaid proposition counsel for the petitioner has relied on Deoki Nandan Agarwal (Supra), Jagmittar Sen Bhagat (Supra), Sujata Devi (Supra), Sukhdayal Pahwa (Supra), Eastern Coal Co. Ltd. (Supra), Glass Equipment (India) Ltd. (Supra) and Mahadeo Prasad Bais (Supra).

88. Per contra, counsel for the respondent relies on sub-section(1) of Section 150 of the Act and submitted that a 'finding' or 'direction' by the Court that the escaped income of deceased assessee is required to be assessed in the hands of/through his legal heir under Section 159 would automatically amount to a consequential direction to the Assessing Officer to proceed afresh by issuing notice to the legal heir. Such notice would fall squarely within the ambit of Section 150(1) and would not be barred by Section 149. The very object of Section 150 is to ensure that lawful assessment or reassessment is not frustrated where action becomes necessary in consequence of a 'finding' or 'direction' of a Court or appellate/revisional authority.

89. Furthermore, the counsel for the respondent submits that the interpretation canvassed by the petitioner would render Section 150 otiose and defeat the legislative scheme. The petitioner cannot be permitted to argue, on the one hand, that the existing notice must be quashed as having been issued in the name of the deceased assessee and, on the other hand, that no fresh notice can be issued because limitation under Section 149 has expired. Such a contention of petitioner would convert a procedural objection into complete immunity from assessment, despite the express mandate of Section 159 that tax liability survives against the legal representative and despite the overriding machinery contained in Section 150.

90. For his aforesaid proposition counsel for the respondent has relied on Sukhdayal Pahwa (Supra) , Eastern Coal Co. Ltd. (Supra), Glass Equipment (India) Ltd. (Supra), Ashish Agarwal (Supra) and Mahadeo Prasad Basis (Supra).

91. At this moment, it is pertinent to look at sub-clause (1) and (2) of Section 150, which is quoted hereinbelow:-

"150. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 149, the notice under section 148 may be issued at any time for the purpose of making an assessment or reassessment or recomputation in consequence of or to give effect to any finding or direction contained in an order passed by any authority in any proceeding under this Act by way of appeal, reference or revision or by a Court in any proceeding under any other law.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall not apply in any case where any such assessment, reassessment or recomputation as is referred to in that sub-section relates to an assessment year in respect of which an assessment, reassessment or recomputation could not have been made at the time the order which was the subject-matter of the appeal, reference or revision, as the case may be, was made by reason of any other provision limiting the time within which any action for assessment, reassessment or recomputation may be taken."

92. Moreover, it is also pertinent to refer to Section 153(2) of the Act and the proviso to this subsection as amended w.e.f. 1st April, 2017 that provides for timeline for completion of reassessment proceedings and passing an order under Section 147 which is quoted hereinbelow:-

"No order of assessment, reassessment or recomputation shall be made under section 147 after the expiry of nine months from the end of the financial year in which the notice under section 148 was served: Provided that where the notice under section 148 is served on or after the 1st day of April, 2019, the provisions of this sub-section shall have effect, as if for the words "nine months", the words "twelve months" had been substituted."

93. With regard to lifting bar of limitation for issuance of fresh notice under Section under Section 148, a three-judge Bench judgment of the Supreme Court in Mahadeo Prasad Bais (Supra) may be looked into wherein the court recognized the broad remedial scope of Section 150 of the Income-tax Act and approved the principle that the provision is intended to preserve the efficacy of reassessment proceedings undertaken pursuant to findings or directions contained in appellate proceedings. The Hon'ble Supreme Court approved the reasoning adopted in Eastern Coal Co. Ltd. (Supra) and emphasized that Section 150 operates to remove the ordinary bar of limitation where reassessment becomes necessary to give effect to such findings or directions. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"4. The issue involved in this appeal is basically a short one turning on the language of Section 150(1). Before considering the interpretation of this section, we may, however, point out that, on this question, there appears to be a conflict of judicial opinion between the several High Courts. The Allahabad High Court, in the decision presently under appeal [(1980) 125 ITR 49 : 1978 TLR 344 (All)] and the Calcutta High Court in ITO v. Eastern Coal Co. Ltd. [(1975) 101 ITR 477 (Cal)] have taken the view that a reassessment in such circumstances is saved by the provisions of Section 150(1) of the 1961 Act. An earlier Allahabad decision in CIT (Addl.) v. Kamalapat Motilal [(1977) 110 ITR 769 : 1977 TLR 233 : 1976 UPTC 693 (All)] and an earlier Bombay decision in Ambaji Traders P. Ltd. v. ITO [(1976) 105 ITR 273 (Bom)] took a similar view on the analogous provision contained in Section 153(3) of the 1961 Act but a contrary view was taken by the latter High Court in the later case reported as CIT v. T.P. Asrani [(1980) 122 ITR 735 : (1979) 11 CTR (Bom) 298] . Both sets of decisions have placed reliance on certain observations of this Court in differing contexts. But it will be best to have a look at the statutory provisions first, in the context of the facts of the present case.

5. To start with, there is no dispute that reassessment proceedings were rightly initiated under Section 148 of the Act. It is also common ground that on the language of Section 148, as it stood at the relevant time, no notice under Section 148 could have been issued in March 1977 for the assessment years in question. The revenue can successfully support the validity of this notice only by reference to Section 150(1). Two questions then arise: (i) Are the provisions of Section 150(1) attracted? (ii) If yes, do they save the impugned proceedings? The answer to the first question is furnished by Section 297(2)(d)(ii), the very clause which authorises the issue of the notice of reassessment under Section 148. It permits the issue of the notice under Section 148, 'subject to the provisions contained in Section 149 or Section 150'. Though the words 'subject to' may be appropriate in the context of Section 149 and Section 150(2) (which place restrictions on the issue of the notice under Section 148), they are somewhat inappropriate apropos Section 150(1) which relaxes the conditions for issue. But there is no doubt that the statute clearly intends that the benefit of enlargement of the time limited under Section 149 should be available in respect of the notice issued under Section 148 read with Section 297(2)(d)(ii). The answer to the second question is furnished by Section 150(1) itself. It removes the bar of time when the reassessment proceedings are initiated in consequence of or to give effect to a finding contained in an order passed by any authority in any proceeding by way of appeal, reference or revision. There is no difficulty here for the orders of the Tribunal and the High Court for the several years between 1949-50 and 1961-62 were passed in proceedings by way of appeals and reference and there is no dispute that the reassessment proceedings have been initiated to give effect to findings in such orders. There is, however, a catch in applying the terms of Section 150(1) to this case. There is no doubt that the whole idea of the sub-section was to lift the embargo placed on initiation of reassessment proceedings and to remove the time-limit where the notice of reassessment is issued with a view to give effect to a direction or finding contained in an appellate order or an order passed on revision or on reference. Unfortunately, however, in expressing its above intention, the legislature has worded the exemption from time-limit so as to cover only cases where the finding or direction is contained in an order passed by any such authority in any such proceeding 'under this Act' i.e. the 1961 Act. In the present case the assessments for 1949-50 and subsequent years in the case of the family were made under the old Act and were the subject matters of appeal to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner and Tribunal and of reference to the High Court under the provisions of the 1922 Act. In other words, the finding in consequence of which the assessments presently under consideration are being sought to be reopened is a finding contained in orders passed not 'under this Act' but in orders passed under the 1922 Act. Literally applied, therefore, the language of Section 150(1) does not help the department to overcome the bar of limitation otherwise imposed by Section 149.

10. The position is no doubt a little different here. The provisions of Section 150(1) have been specially made applicable and operative in respect of the notice under Section 148 issued in pursuance of Section 297(2)(d)(ii) and, as pointed out earlier, the application of the provisions of Section 297(2)(d)(ii) gives rise to two sets of situations to one of which the language of Section 150(1) would squarely apply and so the interpretation sought for by the appellant does not render the words of Section 150(1) redundant. Despite this point of difference in the two situations, we think that the principle of the above decisions that the mutatis mutandis rule should be invoked in interpreting Section 297(2) has application here also. Not to do so would no doubt not make Section 150(1) redundant but it will bring about an unintended and inequitable situation. It is clear that Section 150(1) will operate to lift the time bar in cases where the reassessment is initiated under Section 148 to give effect to an order passed under the 1961 Act. Equally, where assessments had been reopened under Section 34 of the 1922 Act before April 1, 1962 to give effect to orders passed under the 1922 Act and are continued after that date by virtue of Section 297(2)(d)(ii), the provisions of the second proviso to Section 34(3) of that Act would preclude the operation of the normal rule of limitation for reassessments. In this situation, it will be a great anomaly to reach the conclusion that the time-limit will operate in cases where proceedings under Section 148 are initiated to give effect to an order on appeal, revision and reference merely because such order is one passed under the 1922 Act. Neither reason nor rhyme can explain how the statute could have intended such anomaly or why it should be so interpreted as to result in a discriminatory treatment only to this class of cases. An interpretation which will result in such anomaly or absurdity should be avoided. It is also necessary to remember that Section 297(2) is a provision enacted with a view to provide for continuity of proceedings in the context of repeal of one Act by a fresh one broadly containing analogous provisions and the transitory provisions should, as far as possible, be construed so as to effect such continuity and not so as to create a lacuna. For these reasons we think that it will be appropriate to so read the words of Section 297(2)(d)(ii) as to permit the applicability of Section 150 (or Section 153) with the necessary modifications. To paraphrase, the last words of Section 297(2)(d)(ii) should be read to mean that where the proceedings initiated under Section 148, subject to the relaxations and limitation of Sections 149 and 150, all the provisions of the Act shall apply accordingly: that is to say, in the same manner as they would apply in case of proceedings normally initiated under these provisions. Since reassessment proceedings so initiated to give effect to orders on appeal, revision or reference will not be subject to a time-limit, the proceedings likewise initiated under Section 297(2)(d)(ii) read with Section 148 will also not be subject to any limitations save to the extent mentioned in Section 150(2).

11. We would like to add that, even if Section 150(1) is to be read literally and considered as posing a hurdle as contended for by the appellant, we think this result can be overcome by a liberal interpretation of Section 297(2)(k). This clause reads:

"(k) any agreement entered into, appointment made, approval given, recognition granted, direction, instruction, notification, order or rule issued under any provision of the repealed Act shall, so far as it is not inconsistent with the corresponding provision of this Act, be deemed to have been entered into, made, granted, given or issued under the corresponding provision aforesaid and shall continue in force accordingly;"

This is principally a provision intended to save administrative steps taken under the 1922 Act by deeming them to be steps taken under the 1961 Act. Strictly construed, the words 'order issued' also would seem, prima facie, to carry only a similar connotation. But we see no objection, for our present purposes, in the way of our construing these words liberally and consequently deeming the orders passed and issued by the Tribunal and the High Court in this case for the assessment year 1949-50 and subsequent assessment years as orders passed or issued under the corresponding provisions of the new Act. Once this deeming is made, there is no difficulty in the way of accepting the revenue's contention. We think that the circumstances justify a slight straining of the language of this clause and applying it so interpreted to the problem before us so as to avoid a meaningless anomaly. Thus construed, the statute can be said not to have misfired in its application to the situation in the present case."

94. The counsel for the respondent, relying on the judgment of Mahadeo Prasad (Supra) contends that this case is squarely covered by the aforesaid judgment whereas the counsel for the petitioner contends that this case is not applicable to the present facts as the aforesaid judgment does not consider the effect and applicability of Section 150(2) nor do they deal with a situation where reassessment proceedings had already become barred by limitation under Section 149 of the Act.

95. However, upon a careful perusal of the judgment in Mahadeo Prasad (Supra), we find that the aforesaid judgment is distinguishable from the present case as it deals with a situation where the notice under Section 148 of the Act is issued in pursuance of Section 297(2)(d)(ii), the repeal and savings clause in the Act unlike the present scenario where notice is issued pursuant to search conducted under Section 132 of the Act. Section 297(2) is a provision enacted with a view to provide for continuity of proceedings in the context of repeal of one Act by a fresh one broadly containing analogous provisions and the transitory provisions should, as far as possible, be construed so as to effect such continuity and not so as to create a lacuna.

96. The Supreme Court in Ashish Agarwal (Supra) while dealing with a bunch of petitions from all over the High Courts has held that the respective Section 148 notices impugned therein issued to the respective assessees shall be deemed to have been issued under Section 148-A of the Act as substituted by the Finance Act, 2021 and treated to be a show-cause notices in terms of Section 148-A(b). The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are quoted hereinbelow:-

"22. Thus, the new provisions substituted by the Finance Act, 2021 being remedial and benevolent in nature and substituted with a specific aim and object to protect the rights and interest of the assessee as well as and the same being in public interest, the respective High Courts have rightly held that the benefit of new provisions shall be made available even in respect of the proceedings relating to past assessment years, provided Section 148 notice has been issued on or after 1-4-2021. We are in complete agreement with the view taken by the various High Courts in holding so.

23. However, at the same time, the judgments of the several High Courts would result in no reassessment proceedings at all, even if the same are permissible under the Finance Act, 2021 and as per substituted Sections 147 to 151 of the IT Act. The Revenue cannot be made remediless and the object and purpose of reassessment proceedings cannot be frustrated. It is true that due to a bona fide mistake and in view of subsequent extension of time vide various notifications, the Revenue issued the impugned notices under Section 148 after the amendment was enforced w.e.f. 1-4-2021, under the unamended Section 148. In our view the same ought not to have been issued under the unamended Act and ought to have been issued under the substituted provisions of Sections 147 to 151 of the IT Act as per the Finance Act, 2021.

***

24. There appears to be genuine non-application of the amendments as the officers of the Revenue may have been under a bona fide belief that the amendments may not yet have been enforced. Therefore, we are of the opinion that some leeway must be shown in that regard which the High Courts could have done so. Therefore, instead of quashing and setting aside the reassessment notices issued under the unamended provision of the IT Act, the High Courts ought to have passed an order construing the notices issued under the unamended Act/unamended provision of the IT Act as those deemed to have been issued under Section 148-A of the IT Act as per the new provision Section 148-A and the Revenue ought to have been permitted to proceed further with the reassessment proceedings as per the substituted provisions of Sections 147 to 151 of the IT Act as per the Finance Act, 2021, subject to compliance of all the procedural requirements and the defences, which may be available to the assessee under the substituted provisions of Sections 147 to 151 of the IT Act and which may be available under the Finance Act, 2021 and in law.

***

25.1. The respective impugned Section 148 notices issued to the respective assessees shall be deemed to have been issued under Section 148-A of the IT Act as substituted by the Finance Act, 2021 and treated to be show-cause notices in terms of Section 148-A(b). The respective assessing officers shall within thirty days from today provide to the assessees the information and material relied upon by the Revenue so that the assessees can reply to the notices within two weeks thereafter.

27. Therefore, we have proposed to pass the present order with a view to avoiding filing of further appeals before this Court and burden this Court with approximately 9000 appeals against the similar judgments and orders passed by the various High Courts, the particulars of some of which are referred to hereinabove. We have also proposed to pass the aforesaid order in exercise of our powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India by holding that the present order shall govern, not only the impugned judgments and orders passed by the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, but shall also be made applicable in respect of the similar judgments and orders passed by various High Courts across the country and therefore the present order shall be applicable to PAN INDIA."

97. The Supreme Court in Ashish Agarwal (Supra) has held that the revenue cannot be rendered remediless merely because of technical or procedural defects in the notices, and accordingly, exercised its power under Article 142 to preserve the reassessment proceedings. The Supreme Court while explaining the changes brought into effect vide Finance Act, 2021 has specifically dealt with the issue of application of substituted Sections 147 to 151 vide Finance Act, 2021 and extended the benefit of the substituted provisions to past assessment years in cases where notice was issued under the erstwhile Section 148 but post April 1, 2021. The Supreme Court had specifically stated that they have exercised their powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, that being the case, the judgment of the Supreme Court in Ashish Agarwal (Supra) cannot be used as a precedent. The aforesaid judgment was passed to ensure continuity of the substituted provisions of law in the Act and does not lay down any ratio with regard to curing the jurisdictional defect.

98. The Madras High Court in Alamelu Veerappan (Supra), Delhi High Court in Savita Kapila (Supra), the Bombay High Court in Devendra (Supra) and Sumit Balkrishna Gupta (Supra) while quashing the notice under Section 148 issued against the deceased assessee, held that a notice issued to a dead person does not fulfill the sine qua non for assumption of jurisdiction under Section 148. The Court held that since the notice itself was void and non est, there were no valid proceedings before the court. In essence, although the courts did not specifically deal with Section 150, therefore, no liberty was given to issue a fresh notice.

99. A perusal of sub-section(1) of Section 150 of the Act carves out an exception to the period of limitation prescribed under Section 149. It provides that notwithstanding anything contained in Section 149, an assessment or reassessment may be made at any time for the purpose of giving effect to any finding or direction contained in an order passed by a court in any proceeding under any law, including by way of appeal, reference, revision, or writ.

100. However, Section 150(2) imposes a critical caveat, the benefit of Section 150(1) is expressly denied if the relevant assessment year had already become barred by limitation at the time when the 'order' (not the notice) which was the subject matter of such proceeding was itself made.

101. In essence, the revenue seeks to use the very order of quashing passed in favour of the assessee as a springboard to revive otherwise time-barred proceedings.

102. The legal position, as consistently affirmed by the various High Courts and the Supreme Court, is that where a notice under Section 148 is issued against a deceased assessee and is quashed by a court as void ab initio, the revenue cannot invoke Section 150(1) to issue a fresh notice against the legal representatives beyond the period of limitation.

103. At this point, we make it clear that the order of quashing of the show cause notice by the High Court does not constitute a "finding or direction" within the meaning of Section 150(1), because the notice itself being void, no valid proceeding was ever pending before the court. Furthermore, the correct course mandated by Section 159(2)(b) was for the revenue to have initiated fresh proceedings directly against the legal representatives within the prescribed period of limitation, which having not been done the entire reassessment proceedings was foreclosed in law.

104. In view of the above, the argument of the respondent that the bar of limitation can be lifted in view of any 'finding' or 'direction' of any court by way of appeal, reference or revision is unsustainable in law as the order of the High Court observing the void initiation of proceedings against the dead cannot ipso facto amount to a 'finding' or 'direction' for the purpose of lifting bar of limitation for reassessment. Ergo, the department cannot, after the invalid initiation of reassessment proceedings against a deceased assessee, circumvent the statutory bar of limitation by issuing a fresh notice under Section 148 to the legal representative by invoking Section 150(1) of the Act. Furthermore, the argument of the petitioner that the assessment order itself was passed beyond limitation cannot be countenanced by us as the proviso to Section 150(2) provides that the assessment order under Section 147 shall be made within 12 months from the end of financial year of notice, if the notice was served on or after April 1, 2019. In our view, Section 150(1) of the Act has no application whatsoever in the present case wherein the reassessment notice has been issued to a dead person and is accordingly a void initiation of proceedings. Section 150(1) does not come into operation at all as the same would come into operation only when there is a finding or direction by an authority by way of appeal, reference, or revision or by any court in any proceeding under any other law. In the present case, there is no such order passed by any authority whatsoever and the present order of the High Court is simpliciter a reassertion of the fact that the initiation of the reassessment proceedings were void ab initio. This order is definitely not a finding or direction that would require a reassessment or recomputation in consequence of the finding that the issuance of the notice is invalid. Where the time prescribed under Section 149 for issuance of a notice under Section 148 has expired, the Department cannot revive a time-barred proceeding merely on equitable considerations or by relying upon Section 150(1). Consequently, if the limitation prescribed under Section 149 has lapsed, the issuance of a fresh notice to the legal representative is impermissible in law and the reassessment proceedings are barred by limitation. Hence, the fifth issue is also answered in the negative.

CONCLUSION

105. Upon sifting through the ratios laid down in multifarious views of various High Courts and the Supreme Court, the following principles can be culled out:-

I. A notice under Section 148 for reopening past years assessment is a jurisdictional notice that must be issued in the name of the correct person and not against the dead and such issuance of notice against a dead person is void ab initio rendering all the consequential proceedings as null and void.

II. The department can continue reassessment proceedings against the legal representative of the deceased assessee invoking Section 159 if the notice at the very first instance was issued on the assessee when he was alive [Section 159(2)(a)]; and after his death against the legal representative/heir of the deceased assessee within the prescribed limitation under Section 149 of the Act [Section 159(2)(b)].

III. The fact of issuance of notice against a dead person is a jurisdictional error that cannot be cured resorting to Section 292B of the Act.

IV. The estoppel created under Section 292BB applies to original assessee and not to other individuals as the estoppel created under the statute operates within the fringes of its jargon and not beyond it for conferring jurisdiction.

IV. In interpreting taxing statutes equitable considerations should be entirely out of place and cannot be interpreted on any presumption or assumption and have to be interpreted in light of what is clearly expressed; it cannot imply anything which is not expressed; it cannot import provisions in the statute so as to supply any deficiency.

V. Equity and tax are strangers to each other. If a particular income is exigible to tax under the taxing statute, then the individual may be taxed and if inexigible, then cannot be taxed.

VI. The order of this court quashing the show cause notice under Section 148 holding the same as void ab initio does not amount to 'finding' or 'direction' within the meaning of Section 150(1) of the Act so as to lift the bar of limitation as provided under Section 149 of the Act.

106. Before parting with this matter, this Court deems it apposite to observe that the present case is an illustration of lackadaisical attitude of the department. The Income Tax Department, armed with the vast machinery of the State and entrusted with the solemn responsibility of administering a complex fiscal statute, proceeded to initiate, pursue, and conclude reassessment proceedings initiated against a dead person undeterred by categorical intimations of his death, and apparently oblivious to the foundational legal principle that a dead person is not a legal entity and cannot be subjected to reassessment proceedings.

107. It would be an act of audacity if I miss to quote Benjamin Franklin: 'nothing is certain except death and taxes.' To tax the dead is a contradiction in terms. Tax laws are made by the living to tax the living. What survives the dead person is what is left behind in the form of such a person's property.

108. To tax the dead is, in the rudimentary sense, a contradiction in terms, for taxation, as a statutory exercise of sovereign power, operates upon living persons possessed of legal personality, capacity to respond, and ability to participate in proceedings. A dead man can do none of these things. He can neither receive a notice, nor file a reply, nor appear before an authority, nor challenge an order. The impugned proceedings in the present case were, therefore, not merely void ab initio in the technical sense but were void in the most profound and elementary sense and furthermore such an order of a High Court quashing a notice under Section 148 issued to a deceased assessee as void ab initio does not constitute a 'finding' or 'direction' within the meaning of Section 150(1) for reassessment. Ergo, the revenue is not allowed to derive benefit from its own jurisdictional transgression.

109. This Court, accordingly, quashes the impugned notice dated March 28, 2025 under Section 148 of the Act, and all proceedings, orders, and demands consequential thereto are quashed and set aside. Accordingly, writ petition is allowed.

110. This court would like to put on record its appreciation with regard to the arguments placed by the counsel appearing on behalf of both the parties and the diligent spadework in preparation of notes of arguments. I would also like to thank my Research Associate Ms. Saumya Patel for the painstaking and assiduous dexterity in the research carried out by her.

EPILOGUE

111. The ticklish and complex issues that have arisen in the present writ petition, makes one fathom the intricacies of the law applicable in the present case. Article 265 of the Constitution of India categorically states that 'No tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law'. In the present case, we have held that the revenue authorities cannot proceed against the petitioner as the show cause notice issued for reassessment was issued on the deceased-husband of the petitioner. The facts have clearly revealed that the petitioner by filing return in the name of the late deceased husband by using the authentication of the deceased person has also acted in an illegal manner. However, taxing statutes require a strict interpretation of the law and for the various reasons discussed above, the notice has been held to be void ab initio and the proceedings taken thereunder have been quashed by us.

112. The arguments raised by the department have to be negated by the Bench simpliciter, due to a lacuna in the law that proscribed proceedings against the estate of the deceased in the manner discussed above. There is no doubt that the loophole in the law has caused prejudice to the department and possibly loss to the public exchequer. However, keeping in view the general principles of separation of powers under the Constitution of India, this Court has not ventured into reading down any provision and/or adding to a provision of a taxing statute keeping in mind the principles established in law by the Hon'ble Supreme Court with regard to the interpretation of taxing statutes.

113. We are of the view that the present loophole that exists is one that is required to be plugged by the Parliament with regard to the Act and other taxing statutes, where similar provisions have been enacted.

114. In light of the same, we direct transmission of the judgment to the Ministry of Finance, Government of India, so that the Government of India may make elaborate deliberations on this loophole and if they consider it necessary, the Parliament may step in, to remove the lacuna by appropriate amendments to the law.

115. Accordingly, the Senior Registrar of this Court is directed to send a copy of this judgment to the Ministry of Finance, Government of India.

Issue for Consideration

(i) Did the State Government have power to stay the District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015, through the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the order dated 31.03.2015?
(ii) Can the finding of lapse under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013 be upheld on the facts of this case?

Headnotes

Land Acquisition Act, 1894, Sections 11, 48 - Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, Section 24 - Disputed land formed part of a larger acquisition of 9.270 hectares comprising 28 gatas in Village Manoharpur - Acquisition commenced with notification dated 06.04.2000 issued under Section 4(1) read with Section 17(4) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, invoking the urgency provisions under Section 17(1) - land was required by the Moradabad Development Authority (MDA) for developing a planned residential colony - No award under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was ever made in respect of the petitioners' land - A possession memo dated 02.04.2003 recorded that possession of the entire 9.270 hectares, including the disputed land had been taken after Rs.1.07 crore, stated to be 80% of the estimated compensation, was deposited in the Government Treasury - petitioners asked the State Government to exempt their land from acquisition - Vice Chairman of the MDA informed the State Government that exemption of the petitioners' land from acquisition would not adversely affect the MDA's scheme - State Government directed the Vice Chairman of the MDA to adjust the petitioners' land - proposal was placed before the MDA Board in its meeting and was rejected - petitioners and their co-sharers filed Writ Petition seeking, inter alia, a declaration that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 11-A of the Act, 1894 - Writ Petition was decided and it was directed that, if the petitioners had made an application under Section 48 before 02.04.2003, the same be considered and decided within six weeks, with status quo regarding possession for six weeks - petitioners submitted a representation - State Government rejected it stating that possession had already been handed over to the MDA and there was no reason to exempt or adjust the land - The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 came into force on 01.01.2014 and repealed the Act, 1894 subject to the saving provisions contained in Section 24 - petitioners thereafter moved an application dated 03.02.2014 before the Collector, Moradabad, contending that neither an award had been made nor possession had been taken - By a detailed order dated 16.01.2015, the District Magistrate held that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013, relying upon the Tehsil report to hold that physical possession remained with the petitioners and upon Pune Municipal Corporation to hold that deposit of 80% compensation in the Government Treasury did not amount to payment to the tenure-holders - State Government passed the impugned order dated 31.03.2015 staying the District Magistrate's order with immediate effect and directing further action under the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 - Aggrieved by the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the consequential order dated 31.03.2015, the petitioners filed the present writ petition.

Held:

A. District Magistrate had acted pursuant to the Division Bench order dated 07.10.2014, had issued notice to the parties, heard both sides and passed a reasoned order dated 16.01.2015 - District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015 was not a simple administrative order but a quasi-judicial order passed after deciding a legal dispute between the parties - once such a quasi-judicial order is passed, it can be changed only in the manner provided by law, such as through an appeal, revision, or judicial review by a competent court, if the statute permits - Section 24 of the Act, 2013 does not give the State Government any power to review or set aside an order passed under that provision - power to alter, review or set aside a decision already rendered is not an inherent power and must be conferred by law, either expressly or by necessary implication - Government Order dated 30.01.2015 came into existence only after the District Magistrate had passed his order dated 16.01.2015 - no provision was shown giving the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 any retrospective effect - it could not, therefore, be used to reopen a decision already taken - Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the order dated 31.03.2015 were without jurisdiction and could not stand - action amounted to colourable exercise of power and was arbitrary and perverse in law. [Paras 8.2-8.10]

B. MDA's submission that the District Magistrate had no jurisdiction to decide the petitioners' claim under Section 24 rejected - State Government's own Government Order dated 24.03.2014 directed District Magistrates across the State to decide such claims by passing speaking orders - Division Bench order dated 07.10.2014 sent the matter back to the Collector concerned for decision afresh after due notice to the parties - MDA did not challenge that order and could not subsequently contend that the very authority to whom the matter was sent lacked jurisdiction to decide it. [Paras 8.7-8.9]

C. Where no award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 had been made, Section 24(1)(a) applied and only the provisions relating to determination of compensation under the Act, 2013 applied - No award under Section 11 had ever been made in respect of the petitioners' three gatas and, therefore, their case appeared to fall under Section 24(1)(a) and not Section 24(2) - District Magistrate had relied upon Pune Municipal Corporation v. Harakchand Misrimal Solanki, which stood overruled by the Constitution Bench in Indore Development Authority v. Manoharlal - Finding of lapse under Section 24(2) suffered from two serious legal difficulties, namely, applicability of Section 24(2) where no award under Section 11 was ever made and the District Magistrate's conclusion regarding payment of compensation being based on a legal position which had since been overruled by the Constitution Bench - Court did not consider it necessary to finally decide the issue of applicability of Section 24(2) in the present case and left it open for an appropriate case - Finding of lapse under Section 24(2) was not free from legal doubt and could not by itself be made the sole basis for granting relief to the petitioners. [Paras 8.11-8.16]

D. Petitioners had from the very beginning sought release of their land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894 - Section 48 gives the Government the power to withdraw from acquiring any land as long as physical possession of the land has not been taken - power to release land from acquisition under Section 48 lies with the State Government and not with the MDA - State Government directed to decide the petitioners' long-pending application for release of the land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894, after considering all relevant records including the Tehsil report, possession memo, Board's resolution and letters of the Vice Chairman - writ petition partly allowed - Government Orders dated 30.01.2015 and 31.03.2015 quashed - matter remitted to the State Government to decide the pending application for release of the land within three months - parties directed to maintain status quo regarding possession until such decision - no order as to costs. [Paras 8.20-8.22, 9-10] (E-5)

2. The present writ petition has been preferred praying for the following relief:

"(i) issue a writ or direction or pass an order in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 30.01.2015 and 31.03.2015 both passed by State Government committing gross abuse of the powers contained under THE RIGHT TO FAIR COMPENSATION AND TRANSPARENCY IN LAND ACQUISITION, REHABILITATION AND RESETTLEMENT ACT, 2013 ;

(ii) issue an appropriate writ or direction or pass an appropriate order maintaining the order dated 16.01.2015 passed by the District Magistrate, Moradabad in relation to the petitioners' land covered by three gatas bearing old gata nos. 19, 20 and 21 (new numbers being 38, 39 and 40) having approximate area of 4000 Sq. Metres, situated at Village Manoharpur, Delhi Road, Moradabad;

(iii) issue a writ or direction or pass an order in the nature of Mandamus commanding the respondents not to cause any interference in the petitioners' right, title, interest and possession over the land overed by three gatas bearing old gata nos. 19, 20 and 21 (new numbers being 38, 39 and 40) having approximate area of 4000 Sq. Metres, situated at Village Manoharpur, Delhi Road, Moradabad;

(iv) issue any other suitable writ or direction or pass an order as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit or proper in the facts and circumstances of the case; and

(v) award costs of the writ petition to the petitioners."

C. Facts of the Case:-

3.1. The dispute in the present writ petition relates to a small piece of land measuring about 0.410 hectares (around 4,000 square metres), comprising old Gata Nos. 19, 20 and 21, now renumbered as Gata Nos. 38, 39 and 40, situated in Village Manoharpur, Delhi Road, Moradabad.

3.2. This land formed part of a larger acquisition of 9.270 hectares covering 28 gatas in Village Manoharpur. The acquisition began with a notification dated 06.04.2000 issued under Section 4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 18942, read with Section 17(4). Since the urgency provisions under Section 17(1) were invoked, no inquiry under Section 5-A was held. The notification stated that the land was required by the MDA for developing a planned residential colony at Village Manoharpur.

3.3. The petitioners filed objections against this notification on 15.04.2000. The then Vice Chairman of the MDA forwarded these objections to the State Government under cover of a letter dated 19.04.2000. Despite this, a further notification dated 16.05.2001 was issued under Section 6(1) read with Section 17(1). This notification also covered the petitioners' three gatas, along with the rest of the acquired land.

3.4. It is not disputed that no award under Section 11-A of the Act, 1894 was ever made for the petitioners' land. Two awards were later passed for other parts of the larger acquisition, i.e. one dated 20.02.2006, for 4.269 hectares, and another dated 06.11.2009, for 1.169 hectares. Neither of the awards covers the petitioners' three gatas.

3.5. A possession memo dated 02.04.2003 states that possession of the entire 9.270 hectares, including the disputed land, was taken on that date after Rs. 1.07 crore, said to be 80% of the estimated compensation for the acquired land, was deposited in the Government Treasury.

3.6. The MDA's Vice Chairman submitted a report dated 27.07.2001, stating that the acquired land could be adjusted for zonal roads and public facilities. The Vice Chairman also wrote a letter dated 18.09.2001 to the State Government, stating that exempting the petitioners' land from acquisition would not adversely affect the MDA's scheme.

3.7. The petitioners asked the State Government to exempt their land from acquisition. By order dated 22.02.2002, the State Government directed the Vice Chairman of the MDA to adjust the petitioners' land after recovering development charges from them.

3.8. This proposal was placed before the MDA's Board in its 80th meeting, held on 10.02.2005, where it was rejected. The Vice Chairman's letter dated 01.03.2005, informing the State Government of this rejection, stated that possession of the land had already been handed over to the MDA.

3.9. The petitioners, along with their co-sharers Sooraj Bajaj and Sanjay Sahgal, filed Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 28752 of 2007. They challenged the Board's resolution and the letter issued pursuant to it. They also sought a direction restraining the authorities from interfering with their possession and prayed for a declaration that the land acquisition had lapsed under Section 11-A of the Act, 1894. However, no interim relief was granted in the said proceedings. During the pendency of the writ petition, the State Government recalled its earlier order dated 22.02.2002 by passing another order dated 12.05.2006. The petitioners did not challenge this recall order.

3.10. Writ Petition No. 28752 of 2007 was decided on 28.11.2008 by a Division Bench of this Court. The Court did not go into the possession dispute. It gave only the following limited direction, which reads as follows:

"In the facts and circumstances of the case we only provide that in case the petitioner had made an application prior to 02.04.2003 under Section 48 before the State Government, it shall be considered and decided within a period of six weeks from the date a certified copy of this order is filed before the authority concerned.

Status quo for a period of six weeks shall be maintained with regards to possession over the disputed plot and shall thereafter abide by the orders to be passed by the State Government."

3.11. The petitioners did not act on this for about three years. When they filed a representation on 08.11.2011, the State Government rejected it by order dated 04.01.2012 stating, therein, that possession of the land, including the petitioners' gatas, had already been handed over to the MDA on 02.04.2003, and that there was no reason to exempt or adjust the land. A similar order was passed on 05.12.2011 for the co-sharer Sooraj Bajaj's land, Gata No. 24, in the connected Writ Petition No. 55310 of 2008.

3.12. The petitioners then filed a review application dated 22.06.2012. The application stated that no award had been made within the required time, that actual possession had never been taken, and that they had not been heard before the order dated 04.01.2012 was passed. This review application is still pending. No order has yet been passed on it.

3.13. In the meantime, the land belonging to one Arvind Vadera was completely exempted from acquisition. By a notification dated 11.08.2009 issued under Section 48(1) of the Act, 1894, the State Government withdrew Gata Nos. 25, 26, 27, 29, 30 and 31 from the acquisition proceedings. The notification refers to Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 57446 of 2005 filed by Arvind Vadera, which was decided by this Court on 28.11.2008. The order was passed on the same date and in substantially the same terms as the order passed in the petitioners' Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 28752 of 2007, referred to in paragraph 3.10 above.

3.14. The law changed on 01.01.2014, when the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 came into force. This Act repealed the Act, 1894, subject to the saving provisions in Section 24. Relying on this, and pointing to the exemption already given to Arvind Vadera, the petitioners moved an application dated 03.02.2014 before the Collector, Moradabad. The application was pressed on two grounds that neither an award had been made nor possession of the land was taken.

3.15. By Government Order dated 24.03.2014, the State Government directed the Housing Commissioner, the Vice Chairmen of Development Authorities, the Commissioners and the District Magistrates to decide such claims of lapsing under Section 24 on a priority basis, by passing speaking orders. This Government Order also referred to the law then laid down in Pune Municipal Corporation v. Harakchand Misrimal Solanki, on what counts as 'payment' of compensation.

3.16. Acting on the petitioners' application, the District Magistrate called for a report from the Tehsil authorities. A joint inspection was carried out on 20.03.2014 by the Amin and the Lekhpal. Their report, dated 22.03.2014 and forwarded on 25.03.2014, found that the three gatas in question lie together at the spot, enclosed on three sides by a boundary wall about six feet high. It found four poplar trees at the edge of the land, and a small pucca structure at the north-eastern corner. It found the land under cultivation and in the possession of the landowners.

3.17. Acting on this report, the District Magistrate, Moradabad, by order dated 26.06.2014, declared that the acquisition of the petitioners' land had lapsed under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013. This order was passed without any notice to the MDA.

3.18. The MDA challenged this order in Writ-C No. 47069 of 2014 (Moradabad Development Authority Thru Vice Chairman vs. State of U.P. and 3 others). A Division Bench of this Court allowed that petition by order dated 07.10.2014, holding as follows:

"Consequently, this petition stands allowed in the manner indicated above. The impugned order dated 26.6.2014 is set aside and the matter stands remitted to the Collector concerned for decision afresh in accordance with law, keeping in view the observations made above. The Collector shall proceed with the matter after due notice of date of hearing to the parties concerned."

3.19. This Court also allowed the MDA to argue that the Section 24 of the Act, 2013 proceedings were not maintainable at all, apart from the merits. Following this order, the District Magistrate issued notice to both sides. The objections filed by the MDA on 13.11.2014 stated that possession was handed over on 02.04.2003, that since no award had been made under Section 11, only Section 24(1)(a) applied and not Section 24(2), and that the earlier order dated 04.01.2012 had become final since it was never challenged. The petitioners filed their reply on 25.11.2014. Both sides were heard on 15.12.2014.

3.20. The District Magistrate, Moradabad passed a fresh, detailed order on 16.01.2015. He again held that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013. Relying on Pune Municipal Corporation (supra), he held that deposit of 80% compensation in the Treasury was not to be treated as payment to the tenure-holders. Relying on the Tehsil report, he held that physical possession remained with the petitioners. He rejected the MDA's objections, and declared the acquisition proceedings for these three disputed gatas to have lapsed under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013.

3.21. Thereafter, the MDA wrote a letter dated 20.02.2015 to the State Government, seeking permission to file a writ petition against it. The State Government held a meeting on 18.03.2015, attended by the District Magistrate, the Special Land Acquisition Officer and the Vice Chairman of the MDA. It then passed the impugned order dated 31.03.2015, staying the District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015 with immediate effect, and directing that further action be taken under the Government Order dated 30.01.2015.

3.22. This impugned order dated 31.03.2015 also stated that the final decision would be taken after consulting the Administrative, Revenue and Legal Departments, and with the approval of the Minister concerned. The Government Order dated 30.01.2015 was issued only after the District Magistrate had already passed his order dated 16.01.2015. It set out the second proviso to Section 24(2), added by the 2014 Ordinance, which reads as follows:

"Provided further that in computing the period referred to in this sub-section, any period or periods during which the proceedings for acquisition of the land were held up on account of any stay or injunction issued by any court or the period specified in the award of a Tribunal for taking possession or such period where possession has been taken but the compensation lying deposited in a court or in any account maintained for this purpose shall be excluded."

3.23. On the procedure to be followed in deciding such claims, the same Government Order dated 30.01.2015 directed that applications under Section 24(2) first be verified by the concerned District Magistrate and examined by the Administrative Departments, who would then obtain the views of the Revenue Department and the Law Department. The final notification declaring an acquisition lapsed would be issued only with the approval of the concerned Minister.

3.24. Aggrieved by the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the consequential order dated 31.03.2015, the petitioners filed the present writ petition seeking their quashing. On 23.04.2015, this Court granted an interim order, which is reproduced as under:

"Heard Sri Kshitij Shailendra, counsel for petitioner, learned standing counsel appearing for respondent no. 1,4 and 5 and Sri Upendra Singh appearing for respondent no. 2 and 3.

The moot question that arises for consideration in this petition is regarding applicability of section 24(1) and 24(2) of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (Act No. 30 of 2013). It appears from record in the instant case that there is dispute of possession of the land having been taken by the State Government and admittedly award has not been made, hence in this backdrop, applicability of section 24(2) of the aforesaid Act no. 30 of 2013 is to be seen.

It further appears that Moradabad Development Authority has sought permission from the State Govt. vide letter dated 20.2.2015 for challenging the order of Collector dated 16.1.2015. Instead of passing an order either granting or rejecting the permission, the State Govt. by its order dated 31.3.2015 has issued the impugned order relying upon Government Order dated 30.1.2015, relevant extract of which reads thus:

''3. उपरोक्त से स्पष्ट है कि द्वितीय परन्तुक में उल्लिखित अवधि यदि कोई हो को अवधि की गणना में से निकालने पर यदि अवशेष अवधि 05 वर्ष या अधिक है तथा एवार्ड की घोषणा 01–01–2014 से 05 वर्ष अथवा उसके पूर्व हुई है तो धारा 2492 के प्राविधान लागू होंगे। भूमि पर भौतिक कब्जा लिया जाना या प्रतिकर का संदाय मा0 न्यायालय न किया जाना अथवा इस विशिष्ट प्रयोजन के लिये खोले गये खाते में न किये जाने में से कोई एक शर्त पूरी होने पर धारा 24 (2) के प्राविधान लागू होंगे। धारा 24 (2) का प्रथम परन्तुक धारा 24 (2) का अपवाद है। अतः जो प्रकरण धारा 24 (2) के प्रथम परन्तुक से आच्छादित होंगे उनमें धारा 24 (2) के प्राविधान लागू नहीं होंगे।

Contention of the counsel for petitioner is that after decision of Writ Petition No. 47069 of 2014, decided on 7.10.2014, the State Government or its authorities has no right to sit in appeal over the order passed by the High Court.

Per contra Sri Upendra Singh appearing for M.D.A. has submitted that by the aforesaid judgment dated 7.10.2014, the High Court had only remanded the matter to the District Magistrate for reconsideration of the matter and according to him, section 24(2) of U.P. Act No. 30 of 2013, is not attracted at all in the present matter.

Learned Standing Counsel prays for time to seek instructions and file counter affidavit.

The matter requires consideration.

As prayed, three weeks' time is granted to the respondents for filing counter affidavit. Rejoinder affidavit may be filed within two weeks thereafter.

List after expiry of the aforesaid period.

Parties are directed to maintain status quo till next date of listing."

3.25. Thereafter, the parties exchanged counter and rejoinder affidavits. The petitioners also filed a supplementary rejoinder affidavit bringing later developments on record, which contained that they applied on 21.09.2019 for approval of a building map over their land. On 16.12.2019, the Deputy Secretary of the State Government sought a report. By a letter dated 22.11.2020, the Secretary of the MDA stated that the building map would be considered on payment of development charges. An official note-sheet obtained under the Right to Information Act stated that the petitioners' case can be decided in their favour without affecting the MDA's scheme, subject to compliance with the Building Bye-laws, 2008. Another letter dated 15/16.11.2011, along with a coloured map, shows that the petitioners' land is surrounded on almost all sides by land already exempted from acquisition, where substantial construction has since taken place.

D. Submissions on Behalf of the Petitioners:-

4.1. Shri Nipun Singh, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners, makes several submissions, which may be summarised as follows.

4.2. He submits that the acquisition that begun in the year 2000, has lapsed. No award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 was ever made, and the petitioners have remained in actual physical possession throughout. He submits that these facts were rightly found by the District Magistrate in his order dated 16.01.2015.

4.3. He submits that the order dated 16.01.2015 was passed in compliance with this Court's own direction dated 07.10.2014, notices were issued, both sides were heard, and a reasoned order followed. The MDA never challenged this order before this Court. Instead, it wrote to the State Government, which then stayed the order through the impugned order dated 31.03.2015. In doing so, the State Government exercised an appellate power that the statute does not give it.

4.4. He submits that the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 was issued after the order dated 16.01.2015, which had finally decided the matter. Since the Government Order does not have retrospective effect, it could not reopen or nullify a decision that had already been taken by District Magistrate in response to the order of the Division Bench order.

4.5. He further submits that the effect of Section 24 of the Act, 2013 cannot be taken away by an executive order. Under Section 24(2), where an award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 was made five years or more before the commencement of the Act, 2013, but either physical possession of the land had not been taken or compensation had not been paid, the acquisition automatically lapses. If the Government still wishes to acquire the land, it must start fresh acquisition proceedings under the Act, 2013.

4.6. Learned Senior Counsel further submits that once the competent authority has already declared the acquisition proceedings lapsed, the State Government's only option is to begin fresh acquisition proceedings under the Act, 2013, exactly as this provision allows, and not to revive lapsed proceedings by an executive order. He submits that if the State Government had no power to reopen the lapsed proceedings, it also had no power to stay the order that declared them lapsed, since a power to grant interim relief cannot be larger than the power to grant final relief.

4.7. On facts, he emphatically places reliance upon the Tehsil report and on the District Magistrate's own findings to show that physical possession were never taken from the petitioners. Relying on Pune Municipal Corporation (supra) and Union of India v. Shiv Raj, he submits that deposit of 80% compensation in the Treasury is not payment to the tenure-holders.

4.8. He finally submits that the impugned orders nullify the order dated 16.01.2015 and defeat this Court's order dated 07.10.2014. The State Government has exercised a power which the law does not confer. He, therefore, prays that the impugned orders be quashed and the petitioners' possession be protected.

E. Submissions on Behalf of the Respondent - MDA:-

5.1. Shri K.M. Asthana, learned counsel for the MDA, opposes the petition on several grounds.

5.2. He explains that the disputed land, 0.410 hectares, is part of a larger 9.270 hectare acquisition made under the notifications dated 06.04.2000 and 16.05.2001. He submits that possession of the entire acquired land, including the petitioners' plots, was taken by the Special Land Acquisition Officer on 02.04.2003, after deposit of Rs. 1.07 crore towards 80% of the estimated compensation.

5.3. He points to the two awards passed later, i.e. dated 20.02.2006 and 06.11.2009, for other parts of the acquisition. He explains that the award for the remaining land, including the petitioners' gatas, was kept pending only because other writ petitions about that land were pending before this Court.

5.4. He submits that the MDA Board, in its meeting held on 10.02.2005, rejected the proposal for adjustment of the land. He further submits that the State Government, by its order dated 04.01.2012, rejected the petitioners' claim for exemption. Since this order was never challenged, it has become final. He argues that both decisions are based on the same finding that possession of the land had already been handed over to the MDA.

5.5. He submits that the order dated 26.06.2014 was rightly set aside, since it was passed without any notice to the MDA.

5.6. He further submits that the order dated 16.01.2015 is contrary to law. Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013 does not apply because no award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 was ever made. He submits that Section 24(1) clearly distinguishes between cases where an award has been made and those where no award has been made. Where no award has been made, as in the present case, only the provisions of the Act, 2013 relating to determination of compensation apply.

5.7. He submits that Section 24(2) applies only when an award under Section 11 had been made five years or more before the Act, 2013 came into force and either possession had not been taken or compensation had not been paid. Since no award was ever made in the present case, the petitioners cannot seek the benefit of Section 24(2). He submits that the case of the petitioners, if at all, is governed by Section 24(1)(a), under which only the compensation is to be determined in accordance with the Act, 2013, and the acquisition does not lapse.

5.8. He submits that the District Magistrate had no jurisdiction to decide a claim of lapsing under Section 24. This power belongs to the State Government, the acquiring authority, or to a court. The District Magistrate is only an instrument of the State Government, subject to correction by it.

5.9. He finally submits that, since 02.04.2003, the disputed land has become part of the MDA's residential scheme, 'Naya Moradabad'. The petitioners' claim that they are still in possession is contrary to the possession memo and the revenue records. He further submits that the impugned order dated 31.03.2015 is only an interim order and that the final decision is yet to be taken by the State Government. Therefore, the writ petition is premature and deserves to be dismissed, and the interim order should also be vacated.

F. Submissions on Behalf of the State-Respondents:-

6.1. Shri Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents, adopts the submissions made on behalf of the MDA, without reservation.

6.2. In addition, he submits that the petitioners have not shown any ground to call the impugned orders contemptuous or against the Act, 2013. He submits that, on the official record, possession of the land was handed over to the MDA as far back as 02.04.2003.

6.3. He submits that the proposal made under the order dated 22.02.2002 was placed before the MDA's Board, considered, and rejected.

6.4. He submits that the order dated 16.01.2015, though passed in compliance with this Court's order dated 07.10.2014, came before the Government Order dated 30.01.2015. That Government Order was not passed against any direction of this Court.

6.5. He lastly submits that the petitioners have shown no ground for this Court to interfere under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, and that the writ petition should be dismissed.

G. Submissions of the Petitioners in Rejoinder:-

7.1. In rejoinder arguments, Shri Nipun Singh, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners, relies on subsequent developments, brought on record through the supplementary rejoinder affidavit, which, according to him, support the relief sought by the petitioners.

7.2. He submits that, during the pendency of the writ petition, the petitioners applied on 21.09.2019 for approval of a building map over the disputed land. Thereafter, on 16.12.2019, the Deputy Secretary of the State Government sought a report from the District Magistrate and the Vice Chairman of the MDA on the petitioners' application.

7.3. He further submits that, by letter dated 22.11.2020, the Secretary of the MDA stated that the petitioners' building map would be considered after payment of the prescribed development charges. The said letter shows that the MDA no longer requires the land for its development scheme and is only insisting on payment of development charges.

7.4. He also relies on an official note-sheet obtained under the Right to Information Act. The note-sheet records that the petitioners' case can be decided in their favour without affecting the MDA's scheme, provided they comply with the Building Bye-laws, 2008. According to him, this itself shows that the land is no longer required for the MDA's purposes.

7.5. He further relies on a letter dated 15/16.11.2011 issued by the then Vice Chairman of the MDA, along with a coloured map. He submits that the map shows that the petitioners' land is surrounded on almost all sides by land already exempted from acquisition, where substantial construction, including a residential colony and the export unit of one Arvind Vadera, has already come up and the MDA has no practical use for the petitioners' land.

7.6. On these facts, learned Senior Counsel submits that, apart from the legal issues under Section 24 of the Act, 2013, the subsequent conduct of the respondents also supports the petitioners' case. He, therefore, prays that the writ petition be allowed and the MDA be directed to approve the petitioners' building map on payment of the prescribed development charges without further delay.

H. Discussion and Findings:-

8.1. This Court has heard learned counsel for all the parties at length and has examined the record carefully. The following two questions arise for consideration:

(i) Did the State Government have power to stay the District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015, through the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the order dated 31.03.2015?

(ii) Can the finding of lapse under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013 be upheld on the facts of this case?

8.2. On the first question, a coordinate bench of this Court by means of the order dated 07.10.2014 sent the matter back to the Collector, as set out at paragraph 3.18 above. The District Magistrate did exactly what this Court asked. He gave notice, heard both sides, and passed a reasoned order on 16.01.2015. If the MDA was unhappy with this order, its remedy was to file a writ petition before this court. It chose, instead, to write to the State Government, which then stayed the District Magistrate's order through the impugned order dated 31.03.2015.

8.3. This Court cannot accept the action taken by the State Government. The District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015 was not a simple administrative order. It was a quasi-judicial order, passed after deciding a legal dispute between the parties.

8.4. The order has all the features of a quasi-judicial decision. First, it decided a dispute between the petitioners, who claimed that the land acquisition had lapsed, and the MDA, which claimed that it had not. Second, it was passed only after giving both sides an opportunity of hearing. By its order dated 07.10.2014, this Court had directed the Collector to decide the matter after issuing notice to all concerned parties. Accordingly, notices were issued, the MDA filed its objections on 13.11.2014, the petitioners filed their reply on 25.11.2014, and both sides were heard on 15.12.2014. Third, the District Magistrate decided the matter by applying the requirements of Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013 to the facts on record, such as the award, the period of five years, possession of the land, payment of compensation, the Tehsil report, and the possession memo. Finally, the order determined the legal rights of the parties by deciding whether the acquisition had lapsed and whether the petitioners retained ownership of the land or the MDA continued to hold the acquisition.

8.5. Once such a quasi-judicial order is passed, it can be changed only in the manner provided by law, such as through an appeal, revision, or judicial review by a competent court, if the statute permits. Section 24 of the Act, 2013 does not give the State Government any power to review or set aside an order passed under that provision. Therefore, the State Government could not nullify the District Magistrate's order by issuing the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 or the order dated 31.03.2015.

8.6. This principle finds support in the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Patel Narshi Thakershi v. Pradyumansinghji Arjunsinghji. The Supreme Court held that the power to alter, review, or set aside a decision already rendered is not an inherent power. Such power must be conferred by law, either expressly or by necessary implication. In the absence of such a statutory provision, any exercise of that power is without jurisdiction. Although that case concerned an authority seeking to review its own earlier order, the principle is of wider application. It applies with equal force where, as in the present case, a superior executive authority seeks to stay, modify, or override a quasi-judicial order passed by a subordinate authority. Unless the statute expressly confers appellate or revisional jurisdiction, no such power exists, and any order purporting to exercise it is legally unsustainable. The Supreme Court succinctly stated this principle in paragraph 4 of the judgment, which is reproduced below:

"4. The first question that we have to consider is whether Mr. Mankodi had competence to quash the order made by the Saurashtra Government on October 22, 1956. It must be remembered that Mr. Mankodi was functioning as the delegate of the State Government. The order passed by Mr. Mankodi, in law amounted to a review of the order made by Saurashtra Government. It is well settled that the power to review is not an inherent power. It must be conferred by law either specifically or by necessary implication*. No provision in the Act was brought to our notice from which it could be gathered that the Government had power to review its own order. If the Government had no power to review its own order, it is obvious that its delegate could not have reviewed its order. The question whether the Government's order is correct or valid in law does not arise for consideration in these proceedings so long as that order is not set aside or declared void by a competent authority. Hence the same cannot be ignored The Subordinate Tribunals have to carry out that order. For this reason alone the order of Mr. Mankodi was Liable to be set aside."*

8.7. Learned counsel for the MDA submits that the District Magistrate had no jurisdiction at all to decide the petitioners' claim under Section 24, and that this power belongs only to the State Government or to a court. This Court cannot accept this submission, for two reasons.

8.8. First, it was the State Government's own Government Order dated 24.03.2014 that told District Magistrates across the State to decide such claims, by passing speaking orders on a priority basis. It was under this very direction that the District Magistrate decided the petitioners' application. The State Government cannot now say that the District Magistrate had no jurisdiction, when it was the State Government's own order that gave him this task.

8.9. Second, this Court's own order dated 07.10.2014 sent the matter back to 'the Collector concerned', not to the State Government, and proceeded on the footing that the Collector had the power to decide it. The MDA did not challenge that order. It cannot now argue, indirectly, that the very authority to whom the matter was sent lacked jurisdiction to decide it.

8.10. There is a further, and decisive, difficulty. The Government Order dated 30.01.2015 came into existence only after the District Magistrate had already passed his order dated 16.01.2015. By then, the decision had already been made. No provision has been shown to this Court giving the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 any retrospective effect. It could not, therefore, be used to reopen a decision already taken. For these reasons, the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the order dated 31.03.2015 are without jurisdiction and cannot stand. It amounts to colourable exercise of power and is arbitrary and perverse in law.

8.11. This brings the Court to the second question, i.e. whether the finding of lapse under Section 24(2) can be upheld? It is useful to set out the provision in full. Section 24 reads as follows:

"24. Land acquisition process under Act No.1 of 1894 shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894,--

(a) where no award under Section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or

(b) where an award under said Section 11 has been made, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act, as if the said Act has not been repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-Section (1), in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where an award under the said Section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of this Act but the physical possession of the land has not been taken or the compensation has not been paid the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

Provided that where an award has been made and compensation in respect of a majority of land holdings has not been deposited in the account of the beneficiaries, then, all beneficiaries specified in the notification for acquisition under section 4 of the said Land Acquisition Act, shall be entitled to compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

8.12. Section 24 deals with land acquisition proceedings started under the Act, 1894 but not completed before the Act, 2013 came into force. It creates two situations. First, where no award under Section 11 has been made. In such cases, the acquisition does not lapse. Only the provisions of the Act, 2013 relating to determination of compensation apply. Second, where an award under Section 11 has already been made. In such cases, the acquisition continues under the old Act. However, if such an award was made five years or more before the Act, 2013 came into force and either possession has not been taken or compensation has not been paid, then the acquisition is treated as having lapsed under Section 24(2).

8.13. Applying these provisions to the present case, it is clear that no award under Section 11 was ever made in respect of the petitioners' three gatas. The two awards dated 20.02.2006 and 06.11.2009, relied upon by the MDA, relate to other land covered by the same acquisition and not to the petitioners' land. Therefore, the petitioners' case appears to fall under Section 24(1)(a) and not Section 24(2). Section 24(1)(a) only provides that compensation shall be determined under the new Act. It does not say that the acquisition comes to an end. This is the first difficulty with the finding recorded by the District Magistrate that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 24(2).

8.14. There is another difficulty. While passing the order dated 16.01.2015, the District Magistrate held that deposit of 80% of the compensation in the Government Treasury did not amount to payment to the landowners. This conclusion was based on the decision in Pune Municipal Corporation (supra). However, in Indore Development Authority v. Manoharlal, the Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court overruled that decision. In the said case, Hon'ble Supreme Court specifically observed that the decision in Pune Municipal Corporation (supra) is hereby overruled and all other decisions in which Pune Municipal Corporation (supra) has been followed, are also overruled.

8.15. In Indore Development Authority (supra), the Constitution Bench clarified two important points. First, deposit of compensation in the Government Treasury is a valid payment for the purposes of Section 24(2). It is not necessary that the amount should be deposited only in court. Secondly, an acquisition lapses under Section 24(2) only when the conditions required by that provision are satisfied. Therefore, the reasoning adopted by the District Magistrate, based on the overruled decision in Pune Municipal Corporation (supra), no longer reflects the correct legal position.

8.16. Thus, the finding that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 24(2) suffers from two serious legal difficulties. First, it is doubtful whether Section 24(2) applies at all in a case where no award under Section 11 was ever made. Secondly, the District Magistrate's conclusion regarding payment of compensation is based on a legal position which has since been overruled by the Constitution Bench. This Court does not consider it necessary to finally decide the first question about the applicability of provisions of Section 24(2) in the present case and leaves it open for an appropriate case. However, these issues make it clear that the finding of lapse under Section 24(2) is not free from legal doubt and, therefore, cannot by itself be made the sole basis for granting relief to the petitioners.

8.17. At the same time, the factual record cannot be ignored. The Tehsil report dated 22/25.03.2014, prepared after a joint spot inspection, records that the petitioners' land had a boundary wall, trees, a small structure, cultivated land and was in their possession. These findings do not support the MDA's claim that it had taken possession in 2003. On the other hand, the possession memo dated 02.04.2003 is only a general document relating to the entire acquisition of 9.270 hectares and does not specifically mention the petitioners' land.

8.18. The conduct of the MDA also supports the petitioners' case. While rejecting the proposal for adjustment in 2005, the MDA did not say that the land was required for its housing scheme. It rejected the proposal only because it claimed to have already taken possession. This is consistent with the earlier view of the Vice Chairman that release of the petitioners' land would not affect the scheme. Further, the neighbouring land was exempted from acquisition in 2009, and later correspondence of 2019 2020 shows that the State Government and the MDA were willing to consider the petitioners' building map on payment of development charges. This indicates that the land is no longer required for the MDA's scheme.

8.19. In these circumstances, this Court does not consider it necessary to finally decide the issue of lapse under Section 24(2). Since the legal position has changed after Indore Development Authority (supra) and no award under Section 11 was ever made, it would be more appropriate to decide the petitioners' claim on another legal basis.

8.20. From the very beginning, the petitioners have sought release of their land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894. Section 48 gives the Government the power to withdraw from acquiring any land as long as physical possession of the land has not been taken (except in the case covered by Section 36). The Section 48 reads as follows:

"48. Completion of acquisition not compulsory, but compensation to be awarded when not completed.

(1) Except in the case provided for in section 36, the Government shall be at liberty to withdraw from the acquisition of any land of which possession has not been taken.

(2) Whenever the Government withdraws from any such acquisition, the Collector shall determine the amount of compensation due for the damage suffered by the owner in consequence of the notice or of any proceedings thereunder, and shall pay such amount to the person interested, together with all costs reasonably incurred by him in the prosecution of the proceedings under this Act relating to the said land.

(3) The provisions of Part III of this Act shall apply, so far as may be, to the determination of the compensation payable under this section."

8.21. This was also the relief contemplated by this Court while disposing of Writ Petition No. 28752 of 2007 on 28.11.2008. The petitioners again sought the same relief in their review application dated 22.06.2012, which is still pending. However, this claim has never been finally decided on its own merits.

8.22. Therefore, this Court finds it appropriate to direct the State Government to decide the petitioners' long-pending application for release of the land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894, within a fixed time. This direction is issued because the power to release land from acquisition under Section 48 lies with the State Government and not with the MDA. While deciding the application, the State Government shall consider all relevant records, including the Tehsil report, possession memo, Board's resolution, and the letters of the Vice Chairman.

I. Conclusion: -

9. For the reasons given above, this Court holds as follows:

(i) Under the facts and circumstances of the case enumerated above, the State Government had no authority to stay the aforesaid order dated 16.01.2015 passed by the District Magistrate, Moradabad. The Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the consequential order dated 31.03.2015 are, therefore, without authority and cannot be sustained.

(ii) The correctness of the finding of lapse recorded under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013 is left open, for the reasons discussed above.

(iii) The petitioners' grievance can be properly resolved by directing the State Government to finally decide their long-pending application for release of the land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894.

J. Final Orders: -

10. In view of the above findings, the following directions are issued:

(i) The writ petition is partly allowed.

(ii) The Government Orders dated 30.01.2015 and 31.03.2015 passed by the State Government are hereby quashed.

(iii) The matter is remitted to the State Government to decide the petitioners' pending application for release of the land, comprising old Gata Nos. 19, 20 and 21 (new Gata Nos. 38, 39 and 40), under Section 48 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

(iv) The State Government shall pass its decision within three months from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before it.

(v) Until the State Government takes its decision, both parties shall maintain status quo regarding possession of the land.

(vi) There shall be no order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the conviction of the appellant under Sections 3/4(2) of the POCSO Act, 376(3) and 506 IPC is sustainable when the prosecution failed to prove that the prosecutrix was a minor, and when her testimony contains serious contradictions and is not supported by independent evidence.

For the offence under Section 506 IPC the appellant was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for two years and to pay a fine of Rs. 5,000/-.

3. The aforesaid case was instituted on the basis of an FIR lodged on 10.03.2023, stating that the complainant′s daughter was studying in Class X in Adarsh Narvadeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College, Mitthu Kheda, Police Station Asiwan, District Unnao. The appellant was a Science teacher in the said college and he also used to give tuition at the complainant′s home to his daughter, whose date of birth is 19.07.2006. The complainant alleged that the appellant had repetitively raped the complainant′s daughter during the past one year by threatening to fail her in the examination and to kill her entire family. The prosecutrix did not disclose this fact earlier due to fear and she told about the incident on 02.03.2021.

4. The medico-legal examination of the prosecutrix was conducted on 11.03.2021, in which no mark of injury was found on any part of her body, including her private parts.

5. In the statement of the prosecutrix recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., she stated that she was studying in High School. She lived with her parents, grand-parents and younger brother. The appellant used to teach Science in her school and he also used to give tuition at her residence for Science, Hindi and English. She stated that the appellant also used to teach her younger brother aged 10 years. In the absence of her younger brother, the appellant used to touch her or hold her hand. One day after school, the appellant took her to a jungle under the pretext of going to a coaching and he raped her in the jungle. When the prosecutrix said that she would tell it to her family members, the appellant had threatened to eliminate her father and brother. Thereafter, by using the same threat, the appellant used to repetitively take her to the jungle and commit the misdeed against her. The prosecutrix did not disclose it to any person out of fear. She stated that the appellant lastly committed the misdeed on 27th February and thereafter she told her father about the incident. She stated that the appellant had committed the misdeed on about 15-20 occasions and every time he did it in the jungle. She also stated that the appellant is a married person having three children.

6. The investigating officer had prepared a site plan, which showed the place of the incident to be an empty agricultural field of Dwarka, son of Lekhai adjacent to a paved road and not any jungle. The Investigating Officer submitted a charge-sheet dated 23.05.2021 against the appellant for the offences under Sections 376/506 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act.

7. The complainant was examined as PW-1 and the prosecutrix was examined as PW-2 and both of them reiterated the FIR version. The prosecutrix proved her statement recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C.

8. The Vice Principal, Adarsh Narvadeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College was examined as PW-3. He stated that the prosecutrix got admitted to the college in Class VI on 07.04.2016 and she studied there till 31.07.2021. In the scholars′ register of the college as also in her transfer certificate, the date of birth of the prosecutrix was recorded as 19.07.2006.

9. The doctor who had conducted the medico-legal examination of the prosecutrix, was examined as PW-4. She stated that there was no mark of injury on the prosecutrix′s body. Her hymen was old torn with irregular edges. There was no mark of injury on her private parts. She had prepared slides for DNA examination and had referred the prosecutrix to the CMO for age determination.

10. In the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. the accused-appellant denied all the charges.

11. Pramod Kumar Verma, an Assistant Teacher of Adarsh Narvadeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College, was examined as DW-1. He stated that he had been authorized by the Principal of the college to give evidence. He was a teacher in the college in the year 2021. The other teachers working in the college were Sri. Rakesh Kumar Verma, Sri. Ram Krishna Mishra, DW-1 himself, Sri. Kamal Kishore, Sri. Vikas Kumar Pal, Ms. Kanti Devi, Sri. Habib Ahmed, Ms. Rachna Devi, Sri. Mohammad Izhar, Sri. Akash Singh, Sri. Sapna Devi, Sri. Sushil Kumar and Sri. Vishwa Mohan. There was no other teacher in the college. He categorically stated that the appellant Pradeep Kumar has not been a teacher in his college either during the session 2020-2021 or before it or afterwards. He produced the original attendance register of teachers of the college for the session 2020-2021 and filed its certified copy on record of the trial court.

12. A neighbor of the complainant was examined as DW-2. He stated that there is only one house between his house and the house of the complainant. He knew the complainant, his family members (including the prosecutrix) as well as the appellant. He stated that the complainant's children did not used to take tuition from the appellant. They did not take tuition anywhere. The appellant was not a teacher. He stated that the complainant has falsely implicated the appellant. The complainant had borrowed Rs.50,000/- for a surgical operation of his wife. The appellant demanded return of the amount due to which some altercation took place between them and thereafter the complainant falsely implicated the appellant. DW-2 categorically stated that the appellant had not committed any misdeed against the prosecutrix.

13. The trial court held that the date of birth of the prosecutrix mentioned in the educational records, i.e. 19.07.2006, establishes that the prosecutrix was minor on the date of the incident. The trial court also held that in the certificate issued by the Chief Medical Officer, age of the prosecutrix has been opined to be more than 19 years, but the same has not been proved whereas the educational documents of the prosecutrix have been proved. As per the trial court, where educational records are available, the same will be the primary source for ascertaining the age of the prosecutrix and other sources will be relied upon only in absence of the educational records. In this regard the trial court relied upon the judgments in the cases of Jarnail Singh Vs. State of Haryana: (2013) 7 SCC 263 and Ashwani Kumar Saxena Vs. State of MP: (2012) 9 SCC 750.

14. In Jarnail Singh vs. State of Haryana (supra), the trial Court held the accused guilty under Sections 366, 376(2)(g) and 120-B IPC. The Punjab and Haryana High Court dismissed the appeal preferred by the accused, holding that the prosecutrix was a minor. It was pointed out that the sexual organs of the prosecutrix were found to be fully developed. Her hymen was found to be ruptured. The vagina admitted two/three fingers easily. The Doctor admitted having mentioned the age of the prosecutrix as 15 years on the basis of the statement made by the prosecutrix to her and that she had not got the ossification test conducted on the prosecutrix to scientifically determine her age. The Hon'ble Supreme Court took note of the provision contained in Rule 12 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Rules, 2007 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules of 2007'), which had been framed under Section 68(1) of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000, sub-rules (1), (2) and (3) whereof read as under: -

"12.Procedure to be followed in determination of age.-(1) In every case concerning a child or a juvenile in conflict with law, the court or the Board or as the case may be, the Committee referred to in Rule 19 of these Rules shall determine the age of such juvenile or child or a juvenile in conflict with law within a period of thirty days from the date of making of the application for that purpose.

(2) The court or the Board or as the case may be the Committee shall decide the juvenility or otherwise of the juvenile or the child or as the case may be the juvenile in conflict with law, prima facie on the basis of physical appearance or documents, if available, and send him to the observation home or in jail.

(3) In every case concerning a child or juvenile in conflict with law, the age determination inquiry shall be conducted by the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee by seeking evidence by obtaining-

(a)(i) the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available; and in the absence whereof;

(ii) the date of birth certificate from the school (other than a play school) first attended; and in the absence whereof;

(iii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(b) and only in the absence of either (i), (ii) or (iii) of clause (a) above, the medical opinion will be sought from a duly constituted Medical Board, which will declare the age of the juvenile or child. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, the court or the Board or, as the case may be, the Committee, for the reasons to be recorded by them, may, if considered necessary, give benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his/her age on lower side within the margin of one year, and, while passing orders in such case shall, after taking into consideration such evidence as may be available, or the medical opinion, as the case may be, record a finding in respect of his age and either of the evidence specified in any of the clauses (a)(i), (ii), (iii) or in the absence whereof, clause (b) shall be the conclusive proof of the age as regards such child or the juvenile in conflict with law.

The Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"23. Even though Rule 12 is strictly applicable only to determine the age of a child in conflict with law, we are of the view that the aforesaid statutory provision should be the basis for determining age, even of a child who is a prosecutrix of crime. For, in our view, there is hardly any difference insofar as the issue of minority is concerned, between a child in conflict with law, and a child who is a prosecutrix of crime. Therefore, in our considered opinion, it would be just and appropriate to apply Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules, to determine the age of the prosecutrix..."

15. Rule 12 of the Rules of 2007, has been replaced by Section 94 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, which provides as follows: -

*"94. Presumption and determination of age.

"(1) Where, it is obvious to the Committee or the Board, based on the appearance of the person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (other than for the purpose of giving evidence) that the said person is a child, the Committee or the Board shall record such observation stating the age of the child as nearly as may be and proceed with the inquiry under section 14 or section 36, as the case may be, without waiting for further confirmation of the age.

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining –

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board: Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order.

(3) The age recorded by the Committee or the Board to be the age of person so brought before it shall, for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person."

16. In Ashwani Kumar Saxena v. State of M.P.: (2012) 9 SCC 750, it was held that: -

"32. "Age determination inquiry" contemplated under Section 7-A of the Act read with Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules enables the court to seek evidence and in that process, the court can obtain the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available. Only in the absence of any matriculation or equivalent certificates, the court needs to obtain the date of birth certificate from the school first attended other than a play school. Only in the absence of matriculation or equivalent certificate or the date of birth certificate from the school first attended, the court needs to obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The question of obtaining medical opinion from a duly constituted Medical Board arises only if the abovementioned documents are unavailable. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, then the court, for reasons to be recorded, may, if considered necessary, give the benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his or her age on lower side within the margin of one year."

17. In Yuvaprakash v. State of T.N.: (2024) 17 SCC 684, the relevant facts are mentioned in the following paragraph: -

"21. Reverting to the facts of this case, the headmaster of M's school, CW 1, was summoned by the court and produced a Transfer Certificate (Ext. C-1). This witness produced a Transfer Certificate Register containing M's name. He deposed that she had studied in the school for one year i.e. 2009-2010 and that the date of birth was based on the basis of the record sheet given by the school where she studied in the 7th standard. DW 2 TMT Poongothoi, Headmaster of Chinnasoalipalayam Panchayat School, answered the summons served by the court and deposed that 'M' had joined her school with effect from 3-4-2002 and that her date of birth was recorded as 11-7-1997. She admitted that though the date of birth was based on the birth certificate, it would normally be recorded on the basis of horoscope. She conceded to no knowledge about the basis on which the document pertaining to the date of birth was recorded. It is stated earlier on the same issue i.e. the date of birth, Thiru Prakasam, DW 3 stated that the birth register pertaining to the year 1997 was not available in the record room of his office.

18. In the aforesaid factual background, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held in Yuvaprakash v. State of T.N. (supra) that: -

"22. It is clear from the above narrative that none of the documents produced during the trial answered the description of "the date of birth certificate from the school" or "the matriculation or equivalent certificate" from the examination board concerned or certificate by a corporation, municipal authority or a Panchayat. In these circumstances, it was incumbent for the prosecution to prove through acceptable medical tests/examination that the prosecutrix's age was below 18 years as per Section 94(2)(iii) of the JJ Act. ...

23. As held earlier, the documents produced i.e. a transfer certificate and extracts of the admission register, are not what Section 94(2)(i) mandates; nor are they in accord with Section 94(2)(ii) because DW 1 clearly deposed that there were no records relating to the birth of the prosecutrix, 'M'. In these circumstances, the only piece of evidence, accorded with Section 94 of the JJ Act was the medical ossification test, based on several x-rays of the prosecutrix, and on the basis of which PW 9 made her statement..."

19. The trial court has placed reliance upon the scholars' register and the transfer certificate issued by the school in which the prosecutrix had got admitted in Class VI on 07.04.2016 and where she had studied till 31.07.2021. The trial Court held that in presence of these educational certificates, medical evidence will not be seen. The scholars' register of school where the prosecutrix had got admitted in Class VI and the transfer certificate are neither the matriculation or equivalent certificates, mentioned in Rule 12 (3) (a) (i) nor the date of birth certificate from the school first attended as mentioned in Rule 12 (3) (a) (ii) and these documents are not mentioned in any of the clauses of Rule 12 (3) (a) of the Rules of 2007 or in Section 94 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015. In absence of any document mentioned in Rule 12 (3) (a) (i), (ii) and (iii) or Section 94 of the Act of 2015, the Court has to rely upon the medical opinion, as per Rule 12 (3) (b) of the Rules of 2000 or Section 94 of the Act of 2015.

20. The medical evidence mentioned in Rule 12 (3) (b) of the Rules of 2000 established that the prosecutrix was aged more than 19 years on the date of the incident. However, the trial Court has discarded the medical evidence mentioned in Rule 12 (3) (b) and has relied upon the educational documents which do not fall within rule 12 (3) (a), which renders its finding regarding age of the prosecutrix unsustainable in law.

21. The trial Court has given one more reason to discard the medical opinion favouring the accused - appellant, that it had not been proved by examining any witness. The trial Court has failed to understand that the medical opinion was produced by the prosecution, the accused was not required to prove this medical evidence and he did not deny it. In this regard the relevant provision is contained in Section 294 Cr.P.C., which reads as follows: -

"294. No formal proof of certain documents. -(1) Where any document is filed before any Court by the prosecution or the accused, the particulars of every such document shall be included in a list and the prosecution or the accused, as the case may be, or the pleader for the prosecution or the accused, if any, shall be called upon to admit or deny the genuineness of each such document.

(2) The list of documents shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the State Government.

(3) Where the genuineness of any document is not disputed, such document may be read in evidence in any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code without proof of the signature of the person to whom it purports to be signed:

Provided that the Court may, in its discretion, require such signature to be proved."

22. As the medical opinion regarding age of the prosecutrix was filed by the prosecution and the accused did not dispute it, the evidence had to be read in evidence in trial without any further formal proof. Moreover, it is elementary that when a prosecution evidence favours the accused, the accused is not required to prove the same by examining any witness. The trial Court has discarded the medical evidence adduced by the prosecution for the reason that the accused did not prove it, which reason is patently erroneous and is unsustainable in law.

23. The trial Court has placed reliance on a judgment rendered by a single Judge of Orissa High Court in Gobardhan Gadaba v. State of Odisha: 2022 SCC OnLine Ori 4270, in which it was held that there is no law which mandates that in each and every case two years have to be added to the outer age limit determined by the ossification test. Firstly, this observation was made keeping in view the peculiar facts and circumstances of that case, and secondly, the Orissa High Court failed to take into consideration the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Jaya Mala v. Govt. of J & K: (1982) 2 SCC 538, Jyoti Prakash Rai v. State of Bihar: (2008) 15 SCC 223 and Rajak Mohammad v. State of H.P.: (2018) 9 SCC 248.

24. In Jaya Mala v. Govt. of J & K: (1982) 2 SCC 538, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that "one can take judicial notice that the margin of error in age ascertained by radiological examination is two years on either side".

25. In Jyoti Prakash Rai v. State of Bihar: (2008) 15 SCC 223, it was reiterated that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a number of judgments has held that the age determined by the doctors should be given flexibility of two years on either side.

26. In Rajak Mohammad v. State of H.P.: (2018) 9 SCC 248, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that: -

"9. While it is correct that the age determined on the basis of a radiological examination may not be an accurate determination and sufficient margin either way has to be allowed, yet the totality of the facts stated above read with the report of the radiological examination leaves room for ample doubt with regard to the correct age of the prosecutrix. The benefit of the aforesaid doubt, naturally, must go in favour of the accused."

27. The learned trial Court has committed a patent error of law in relying upon a non-binding precedent of Orissa High Court while ignoring the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Jaya Mala v. Govt. of J & K: (1982) 2 SCC 538, Jyoti Prakash Rai v. State of Bihar: (2008) 15 SCC 223 and Rajak Mohammad v. State of H.P.: (2018) 9 SCC 248.

28. Applying the principles mentioned in the aforesaid cases to the facts of the present case, the prosecution has failed to establish that the prosecutrix was minor on the date of the alleged incident. Therefore, the trial Court has erred in convicting the appellant for the offence under Sections 3/4 (2) of the POCSO Act. or Section 376 (3) of the IPC.

29. Now I proceed to examine whether the appellant could be convicted for the offence under Section 376 IPC.

30. The father of the prosecutrix had lodged the FIR alleging that his daughter was studying in Class X in Adarsh Narvadeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College and the appellant was a Science teacher in the said college and he also used to give tuition to the prosecutrix at her residence. In the statement of the prosecutrix recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., she stated that the appellant used to teach Science in her school and he also used to give tuition for Science, Hindi and English at her residence. She stated that the appellant also used to teach her younger brother aged 10 years.

31. The Vice Principal, Adarsh Narvadeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College was examined as PW-3. He stated that the prosecutrix studied in the college since 07.04.2016 till 31.07.2021, but he did not state that the appellant used to teach in the college.

32. The Investigating Officer Sub-Inspector Rambali was examined as PW-6. During cross-examination he stated that he had gone to Adarsh Narvedeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College, Miyanganj to verify as to the period during which the appellant had worked as a teacher and he came to know that the appellant has not worked as a teacher in the said college.

33. Pramod Kumar Verma, an Assistant Teacher of Adarsh Narvadeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College was examined as DW-1. He had produced the original attendance register of teachers of the college for the session 2020-2021 and had filed its certified copy on record of the trial court, which showed that the appellant was not a teacher in the college during the relevant period. DW-1 categorically stated that the appellant Pradeep Kumar has not been a teacher in his college either during the session 2020-2021 or before it or afterwards.

34. A neighbor of the complainant was examined as DW-2. He stated that there is only one house between his house and the house of the complainant. He knew the complainant, his family members (including the prosecutrix) as well as the appellant. He stated that the complainant's children did not use to take tuition from the appellant. They did not take tuition anywhere. The appellant was not a teacher. He stated that the complainant had borrowed Rs.50,000/- for a surgical operation of his wife. The appellant demanded return of the amount due to which some altercation took place between them and thereafter the complainant lodged the FIR falsely implicating the appellant. DW-2 categorically stated that the appellant had not committed any misdeed against the prosecutrix.

35. A bare perusal of the aforesaid evidence available on record clearly proves that although the complainant and the prosecutrix alleged that the appellant was a teacher in the college in which the prosecutrix studied and that the appellant used to give tuition to her, the prosecution failed to prove this allegation. On the contrary, the defense witnesses proved that the appellant was not a teacher in the college in which the prosecutrix studied and that they also proved that the appellant did not give tuition to her.

36. The trial Court has disbelieved the testimony of the defence witnesses on the ground that the attendance register produced by DW-1 did not bear the signatures of any authorities of the college. The trial Court has not mentioned as to whether the genuineness of the register had been denied by the prosecution as per the provisions of Section 294 Cr.P.C. In absence of any denial by the prosecution, the register produced by DW-1 could not be disbelieved.

37. Secondly, while holding that the prosecution has proved that the appellant was a teacher in the college in which the victim used to study, the trial Court has ignored the testimony of the investigating officer Sub-Inspector Ram Bali (PW-6) who stated that he had gone to Adarsh Narvedeshwar Shiksha Sansthan Inter College, Miyanganj to verify as to the period during which the appellant had worked as a teacher and he came to know that the appellant has not worked as a teacher in the said college. This evidence clearly disproved the case setup by the prosecution, but it has been ignored by the trial court, which renders its finding regarding the appellant having been a teacher in the aforesaid college as perverse.

38. The trial Court has also relied upon the statement of the earlier Investigating Officer Sub-Inspector Rajbahadur, who was examined as PW-5 and who stated that during investigation, he had recorded the statement of Sri. Rakesh Kumar Verma, the Head-master of the college, who had stated that the appellant used to teach in the college. The trial Court omitted to notice that Sri. Rakesh Kumar Verma, the Head-master of the college was not examined as a prosecution witness to prove that the appellant was a teacher in his college.

39. The trial Court also held that no question was put to the PW-3 in his cross-examination as to whether the appellant was a teacher in the college or not. The trial Court has acted under a basic misapprehension of the legal position that it is the prosecution which is required to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and the accused is not required to prove its defence beyond reasonable doubt, he is merely required to create a doubt in the prosecution case. It was for the prosecution to prove that the appellant was a teacher in the college and if PW-3 did not say so, it goes against the prosecution and no adverse inference can be drawn against the accused if he did not put a question on this point during cross-examination of PW-3.

40. In Anand Ramchandra Chougule v. Sidarai Laxman Chougala: (2019) 8 SCC 50, the Hon′ble Supreme Court held that: -

"10. The burden lies on the prosecution to prove the allegations beyond all reasonable doubt. In contradistinction to the same, the accused has only to create a doubt about the prosecution case and the probability of its defence. An accused is not required to establish or prove his defence beyond all reasonable doubt, unlike the prosecution. If the accused takes a defence, which is not improbable and appears likely, there is material in support of such defence, the accused is not required to prove anything further. The benefit of doubt must follow unless the prosecution is able to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt.″

41. In Vaibhav v. State of Maharashtra: (2025) 8 SCC 315, the Hon′ble Supreme Court held that: -

"29. In criminal jurisprudence, it is a time-tested proposition that the primary burden falls upon the shoulders of the prosecution and it is only if the prosecution succeeds in discharging its burden beyond reasonable doubt that the burden shifts upon the accused to explain the evidence against him or to present a defence. In the present case, the version of the prosecution suffers from inherent inconsistencies and doubts, as discussed above, and in such a scenario, the inability of the appellant to explain certain circumstances could not be made the basis to relieve the prosecution from discharging its primary burden.

31. In law, there is a significant difference in the evidentiary burden to be discharged by the prosecution and the accused. Whereas, the former is expected to discharge its burden beyond reasonable doubt, the latter is only required to prove a defence on the anvil of preponderance of probabilities. If the accused leads defence evidence in the course of a criminal trial, the same ought to be tested as probable or improbable in the facts and circumstances of the case."

42. In Raju v. State of M.P.: (2008) 15 SCC 133, the Hon′ble Supreme Court cautioned that: -

"11. It cannot be lost sight of that rape causes the greatest distress and humiliation to the prosecutrix but at the same time a false allegation of rape can cause equal distress, humiliation and damage to the accused as well. The accused must also be protected against the possibility of false implication*, particularly where a large number of accused are involved. It must, further, be borne in mind that the broad principle is that an injured witness was present at the time when the incident happened and that ordinarily such a witness would not tell a lie as to the actual assailants, but* there is no presumption or any basis for assuming that the statement of such a witness is always correct or without any embellishment or exaggeration.

12. Reference has been made in Gurmit Singh case [State of Punjab v. Gurmit Singh, (1996) 2 SCC 384] to the amendments in 1983 to Sections 375 and 376 of the Penal Code making the penal provisions relating to rape more stringent, and also to Section 114-A of the Evidence Act with respect to a presumption to be raised with regard to allegations of consensual sex in a case of alleged rape. It is however significant that Sections 113-A and 113-B too were inserted in the Evidence Act by the same amendment by which certain presumptions in cases of abetment of suicide and dowry death have been raised against the accused. These two sections, thus, raise a clear presumption in favour of the prosecution but no similar presumption with respect to rape is visualised as the presumption under Section 114-A is extremely restricted in its applicability. This clearly shows that insofar as allegations of rape are concerned, the evidence of a prosecutrix must be examined as that of an injured witness whose presence at the spot is probable but it can never be presumed that her statement should, without exception, be taken as the gospel truth. Additionally, her statement can, at best, be adjudged on the principle that ordinarily no injured witness would tell a lie or implicate a person falsely. We believe that it is under these principles that this case, and others such as this one, need to be examined.″

43. It is true that a conviction can be based on a solitary testimony of a victim, but it can only be done if her testimony inspires confidence and there are no major contradictions in it. In State of H.P. v. Asha Ram: (2005) 13 SCC 766, while upholding conviction of a father accused of raping his own daughter, the Hon′ble Supreme Court held that: -

"5.... It is now a well-settled principle of law that conviction can be founded on the testimony of the prosecutrix alone unless there are compelling reasons for seeking corroboration. The evidence of a prosecutrix is more reliable than that of an injured witness. The testimony of the victim of sexual assault is vital, unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty in acting on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. It is also a well-settled principle of law that corroboration as a condition for judicial reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under the given circumstances. The evidence of the prosecutrix is more reliable than that of an injured witness. Even minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not be a ground for throwing out an otherwise reliable prosecution case.″

44. After taking into consideration the aforesaid principles laid down in State of H.P. v. Asha Ram (supra), in Rai Sandeep v. State (NCT of Delhi): (2012) 8 SCC 21, the Hon′ble Supreme Court held that: -

"22. In our considered opinion, the "sterling witness″ should be of a very high quality and calibre whose version should, therefore, be unassailable. The court considering the version of such witness should be in a position to accept it for its face value without any hesitation. To test the quality of such a witness, the status of the witness would be immaterial and what would be relevant is the truthfulness of the statement made by such a witness. What would be more relevant would be the consistency of the statement right from the starting point till the end, namely, at the time when the witness makes the initial statement and ultimately before the court. It should be natural and consistent with the case of the prosecution qua the accused. There should not be any prevarication in the version of such a witness. The witness should be in a position to withstand the cross-examination of any length and howsoever strenuous it may be and under no circumstance should give room for any doubt as to the factum of the occurrence, the persons involved, as well as the sequence of it. Such a version should have co-relation with each and every one of other supporting material such as the recoveries made, the weapons used, the manner of offence committed, the scientific evidence and the expert opinion. The said version should consistently match with the version of every other witness. It can even be stated that it should be akin to the test applied in the case of circumstantial evidence where there should not be any missing link in the chain of circumstances to hold the accused guilty of the offence alleged against him. Only if the version of such a witness qualifies the above test as well as all other such similar tests to be applied, can it be held that such a witness can be called as a 'sterling witness' whose version can be accepted by the court without any corroboration and based on which the guilty can be punished. To be more precise, the version of the said witness on the core spectrum of the crime should remain intact while all other attendant materials, namely, oral, documentary and material objects should match the said version in material particulars in order to enable the court trying the offence to rely on the core version to sieve the other supporting materials for holding the offender guilty of the charge alleged.

45. When we examine the prosecution material in light of the above quoted principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, it appears that the FIR was lodged on 10.03.2021, stating that the prosecutrix disclosed on 02.03.2021 that the appellant had been raping her during the past one year. There was no explanation for the delay of 8 days in lodging the FIR. In the statement of the prosecutrix recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., she stated that the appellant had taken her to a jungle on an undisclosed day under the pretext of going to a coaching and he raped her in the jungle. Thereafter the appellant repetitively took her to the jungle and committed the misdeed against her. She stated that the appellant had committed the misdeed on about 15-20 occasions and every time he did it in the jungle. However, during her cross examination, she stated that the appellant had raped her for the first time on 27.02.2021. If the appellant raped the victim for the first time on 27.02.2021, it is impossible that by the time she told it to her father on 02.03.2021, the appellant had raped her 15-20 times by taking her to a jungle.

46. In the site plan prepared by the investigating officer, the place of the incident has been shown to be an empty agricultural field of Dwarka, son of Lekhai, which was adjacent to a paved road and the victim did not show any jungle to the investigating officer. There is no evidence of the existence of any jungle near the village of the prosecutrix where the misdeed was committed. This also disproves the prosecution case.

47. The material discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix highlighted in the preceding paragraphs clearly establish that the testimony of the prosecutrix is not reliable and it cannot form the basis of conviction of the accused-appellant.

48. The trial Court has held that the statement of the prosecutrix is corroborated by the findings of forensic report that the male specific allele was found in her vaginal smear. The medico-legal examination of the prosecutrix was conducted on 11.03.2021. PW-4 (the doctor who had conducted the medico legal examination of the prosecutrix) stated that there was no mark of injury on her body, including her private parts. Her hymen was old torn with irregular edges. During cross-examination, PW-4 stated that there was no mark of sexual assault on any part of the body of the prosecutrix and the hymen could be torn even during sports activities.

49. PW-4 had prepared slides for DNA examination and had referred the prosecutrix to the CMO for age determination. Although report of forensic science laboratory mentions presence of the male specific allele in the prosecutrix's vaginal swab, yet even when samples were drawn for DNA examination, the prosecution has not produced the DNA profiling report to establish that the male specific allele found in the vaginal swab of the prosecutrix related to the appellant. The investigating officer (PW-5) stated in his cross-examination that he had not collected the DNA examination report of the prosecutrix and the appellant.

50. Section 114 of the Evidence Act provides that the Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct, public and private business in relation to the facts of the peculiar case. Illustration (g) appended to Section 114 provides that the court may presume that evidence which could be and is not produced would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it. Non-production of DNA profiling report, gives rise to a presumption that had the aforesaid report been produced, the report would have been detrimental to the prosecution case.

51. The prosecutrix stated that her younger brother also studied in the same college, both of them used to go the college together and they used to take tuition together. In these circumstances, the younger brother of the prosecutrix was the best and the sole eye-witness of the conduct of the appellant while teaching the prosecutrix and he would also have witnessed the appellant taking away the prosecutrix with him from the college or home. However, the prosecution did not examine the brother of the prosecutrix as a witness.

52. In Ritesh Chakarvarti v. State of M.P., (2006) 12 SCC 321, the Supreme Court held that an adverse inference can be drawn for non-examination of material witnesses.

53. In Davinder Singh v. State of Punjab, (2023) 19 SCC 229, the Supreme Court referred to an earlier precedent on this point in the following passage: -

"9. On the issue of non-examination of material witness, we wish to place reliance on the decision of this Court in Takhaji Hiraji v. Thakore Kubersing Chamansing [(2001) 6 SCC 145]:

"19. So is the case with the criticism levelled by the High Court on the prosecution case finding fault therewith for non-examination of independent witnesses. It is true that if a material witness, who would unfold the genesis of the incident or an essential part of the prosecution case, not convincingly brought to fore otherwise, or where there is a gap or infirmity in the prosecution case which could have been supplied or made good by examining a witness who though available is not examined, the prosecution case can be termed as suffering from a deficiency and withholding of such a material witness would oblige the court to draw an adverse inference against the prosecution by holding that if the witness would have been examined it would not have supported the prosecution case. On the other hand if already overwhelming evidence is available and examination of other witnesses would only be a repetition or duplication of the evidence already adduced, non-examination of such other witnesses may not be material. In such a case the court ought to scrutinise the worth of the evidence adduced. The court of facts must ask itself. whether in the facts and circumstances of the case, it was necessary to examine such other witness, and if so, whether such witness was available to be examined and yet was being withheld from the court. If the answer be positive then only a question of drawing an adverse inference may arise. If the witnesses already examined are reliable and the testimony coming from their mouth is unimpeachable the court can safely act upon it, uninfluenced by the factum of non-examination of other witnesses."

54. As has been noted above, the testimony of the prosecutrix suffers from serious contradictions and discrepancies. Her allegations are not supported by the statement of the doctor (PW-4) and the investigating officer (PW-6) and she is not a witness of sterling quality. In these circumstances, non-examination of the brother of the prosecutrix would also give rise to a presumption under Section 114, illustration (g) of the Evidence Act that had the brother been produced as a prosecution witness and put to cross-examination by the defence, his testimony would be unfavorable to the prosecution.

55. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the considered view that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove the charge that the appellant had raped the prosecutrix and that too, repetitively. The finding of commission of rape recorded by the trial court ignoring the aforesaid material discrepancies in the prosecution evidence stands vitiated.

56. Regarding the conviction and sentence for criminal intimidation under Section 506 IPC, it is to be noted that the offence of criminal intimidation is defined in Section 503 IPC as follows: -

"503. Criminal intimidation - Whoever threatens another with any injury to his person, reputation or property, or to the person or reputation of any one in whom that person is interested, with intent to cause alarm to that person, or to cause that person to do any act which he is not legally bound to do, or to omit to do any act which that person is legally entitled to do, as the means of avoiding the execution of such threats, commits criminal intimidation.
Explanation.-A threat to injure the reputation of any deceased person in whom the person threatened is interested, is within this section."

57. Besides the testimony of the prosecutrix that the appellant used to repetitively rape her by threatening to kill her father and brother, there is no evidence to prove this charge. The nature of this charge is such that it is a derivative of the main charge of rape, which has been disproved. Therefore, the appellant cannot be convicted and sentenced for the offence of criminal intimidation relying upon the prosecutrix's sole testimony, which suffers from serious discrepancies and which has been disbelieved while examining the validity of the charge of commission of rape.

58. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the considered view that the prosecution has failed to prove all the charges against the appellant. The appellant-accused had led ample evidence to disprove the charges, but the trial Court has discarded the testimony of the defense witnesses without any justified reason and has convicted and sentenced the appellant without considering the aforesaid aspects of the matter.

59. Accordingly, the criminal appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 18.01.2024, passed by the learned Special Judge, POCSO Act/ Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 11, Unnao in Special Session Trial No. 668 of 2021, arising out of Case Crime No. 40 of 2021, under Sections 506, 376 IPC and 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station Asiwan, District Unnao, whereby the appellant has been convicted for the offences under Sections 3/4 (2) of the POCSO Act and 376(3), 506 IPC and sentenced as aforesaid is hereby set aside and the appellant is acquitted of the charges levelled against him.

60. The appellant is in jail. He shall be set free upon furnishing a personal bond as required by Section 437-A Cr.P.C., undertaking to appear before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case any appeal is filed against this order and the Hon'ble Supreme Court issues notice of the appeal to the appellant. The bond shall remain in force for a period of six months from today.

61. I put on record my appreciation for the able assistance provided by my Research Associate Ms. Divyanshi Srivastava in providing the precedents referred to in this judgment.

THE HON'BLE SUBHASH VIDYARTHI, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 462 of 2012

Ram Gopal Misra ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the rejection of the complainant's application under Section 319 CrPC seeking to summon the opposite party no. 3 as an additional accused is liable to be interfered with in appeal, and whether the High Court can decide the appeal even when none of the three-counsel engaged by the appellant appears to assist the Court.

HEADNOTES

Criminal Law - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 – Section 3(1)(xi) - Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Section 354 - Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 – Section 4: - Criminal Appeal – against conviction under Section 354 IPC and Section 3(1)(xi) SC/ST Act – FIR - alleging that the appellant caught hold of the complainant's minor daughter with evil intention when she came to his eatery alone – investigation - charge-sheet – Tail - statements of complainant and victim recorded - neighbouring shop owners (PW-4 & PW-5) turned hostile – Appellant pleaded that the offence under SC/ST Act is not made out as there is no evidence that the act was committed because the victim belonged to a Scheduled Caste – Court finds that the victim's caste was irrelevant to the incident, no material shows intention to humiliate on caste grounds, and the prosecution evidence fails to establish the essential ingredient of Section 3(1)(xi) SC/ST Act – mere membership of SC/ST is not sufficient and the act must be caste-motivated – held that, offence under Section 3(1)(xi) SC/ST Act is not made out while conviction under Section 354 IPC suffers from no illegality – hence, conviction under SC/ST Act is set aside however, the conviction under Section 354 IPC is maintained – matter listed on 22.07.2026 to enable the appellant to file an application under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act.

Counsel for Appellant(s): Sri Rakesh Kumar Maurya, assisted by Amicus Curiae Sri Rishad Murtaza.
Counsel for Respondent(s): G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. This criminal appeal was adjourned on the request of Sri Rakesh Kumar Maurya, the learned counsel for the appellant on 25.3.2026, 21.05.2026 and 17.07.2026. On 15.07.2026 the court had passed the following order:

"Although the hearing has been adjourned on two previous occasions on the request of learned counsel for the appellant, today again he prays for adjournment of the case stating that he has not been able to prepare submissions to be advanced in support of the appeal.

In the interest of justice, hearing is adjourned and one day's time is granted to the learned counsel for the appellant to advance submissions.

List/put up this matter tomorrow i.e. 16.07.2026.

Ram.

After this order was passed, Sri Rakesh Kumar Maurya, the learned counsel for the appellant has stated that he will not be able to come to this court because he has to attend the proceedings before the Railway Claims Tribunal.

In the interest of justice the request of learned counsel for the appellant is accepted and the next date is fixed for 17.07.2026 peremptorily. "

2. On 17.07.2026 also Shri Rakesh Kumar Maurya, the learned counsel for the appellant could not advance any submission to assail the validity of the impugned order. Upon this, the court had requested Shri Rishad Murtaza, Advocate to assist the court as an Amicus Curiae.

3. Today, Shri Rishad Murtaza has advanced submissions in the case. He has submitted that the allegations and the evidence led by the prosecution do not make out the offense under Section 3(1)(xi) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act (as it existed on the date of the alleged offence) which provides that "whoever, not being a member of a scheduled caste or a scheduled tribe, assaults or uses force to a woman belonging to a scheduled caste or a scheduled tribe with intent to dishonor or outrage her modesty, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than six months but which may extend to five years and with fine".

4. He has submitted that for attracting the stringent provisions of the SC/ST Act, it is essential that the offence had been committed to victimize a person for the reason that he/she belongs to a scheduled caste. He has placed reliance on a decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Khuman Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2020) 18 SCC 763, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court referred to a precedent in the case of Dinesh Vs. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 3 SCC 771 in the following passage:

13. In Dinesh v. State of Rajasthan (2006) 3 SCC 771, the Supreme Court held as under: (SCC p. 777, para 15)

"15. Sine qua non for application of Section 3(2)(v) is that an offence must have been committed against a person on the ground that such person is a member of the Scheduled Castes or the Scheduled Tribes. In the instant case no evidence has been led to establish this requirement. It is not the case of the prosecution that the rape was committed on the victim since she was a member of Scheduled Caste. In the absence of evidence to that effect, Section 3(2)(v) has no application. Had Section 3(2)(v) of the Atrocities Act been applicable then by operation of law, the sentence would have been imprisonment for life and fine.

5. Sri Murtaza next relied upon a decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hitesh Verma Vs. State of Uttarakhand: AIR 2020 SC 5584: (2020) 10 SCC 710 in which the Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"9. The long title of the Act is to prevent the commission of offences of atrocities against the members of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, to provide for Special Courts and Exclusive Special Courts for the trial of such offences and for the relief and rehabilitation of the victims of such offences and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

10. The Act was enacted to improve the social economic conditions of the vulnerable sections of the society as they have been subjected to various offences such as indignities, humiliations and harassment. They have been deprived of life and property as well. The object of the Act is thus to punish the violators who inflict indignities, humiliations and harassment and commit the offence as defined under Section 3 of the Act. The Act is thus intended to punish the acts of the upper caste against the vulnerable section of the society for the reason that they belong to a particular community.

11. It may be stated that the charge-sheet filed is for an offence under Section 3(1)(x) of the Act. The said section stands substituted by Act 1 of 2016 w.e.f. 26.1.2016. The substituted corresponding provision is Section 3(1)(r) which reads as under:

"3(1)(r) intentionally insults or intimidates with intent to humiliate a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe in any place within public view;"

12. The basic ingredients of the offence under Section 3(1)(r) of the Act can be classified as "1) intentionally insults or intimidates with intent to humiliate a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe and 2) in any place within public view".

13. The offence under Section 3(1)(r) of the Act would indicate the ingredient of intentional insult and intimidation with an intent to humiliate a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe. All insults or intimidations to a person will not be an offence under the Act unless such insult or intimidation is on account of victim belonging to Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe. The object of the Act is to improve the socio-economic conditions of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes as they are denied number of civil rights. Thus, an offence under the Act would be made out when a member of the vulnerable section of the Society is subjected to indignities, humiliations and harassment. The assertion of title over the land by either of the parties is not due to either the indignities, humiliations or harassment. Every citizen has a right to avail their remedies in accordance with law. Therefore, if the appellant or his family members have invoked jurisdiction of the civil court, or that respondent No.2 has invoked the jurisdiction of the civil court, then the parties are availing their remedies in accordance with the procedure established by law. Such action is not for the reason that respondent No.2 is member of Scheduled Caste."

6. In Hitesh Verma (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court relied on the ratio laid down in Khuman Singh (supra) referred to above and concluded that:

"18. Therefore, offence under the Act is not established merely on the fact that the informant is a member of Scheduled Caste unless there is an intention to humiliate a member of Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe for the reason that the victim belongs to such caste. In the present case, the parties are litigating over possession of the land. The allegation of hurling of abuses is against a person who claims title over the property. If such person happens to be a Scheduled Caste, the offence under Section 3(1)(r) of the Act is not made out."

7. Shri Murtaza has also placed reliance on a decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ramesh Chandra Vaishya Vs. State of U.P.: (2023) 17 SCC 615 wherein it has been held that:

"17. That apart, assuming arguendo that the appellant had hurled caste related abuses at the complainant with a view to insult or humiliate him, the same does not advance the case of the complainant any further to bring it within the ambit of Section 3(1)(x) of the SC/ST Act. We have noted from the first F.I.R. as well as the charge- sheet that the same makes no reference to the utterances of the appellant during the course of verbal altercation or to the caste to which the complainant belonged, except for the allegation/observation that caste-related abuses were hurled. The legislative intent seems to be clear that every insult or intimidation for humiliation to a person would not amount to an offence under Section 3(1)(x) of the SC/ST Act unless, of course, such insult or intimidation is targeted at the victim because of he being a member of a particular Scheduled Caste or Tribe. If one calls another an idiot (bewaqoof) or a fool (murkh) or a thief (chor) in any place within public view, this would obviously constitute an act intended to insult or humiliate by user of abusive or offensive language. Even if the same be directed generally to a person, who happens to be a Scheduled Caste or Tribe, per se, it may not be sufficient to attract Section 3(1)(x) unless such words are laced with casteist remarks.

18. Since Section 18 of the SC/ST Act bars invocation of the court's jurisdiction under Section 438, Cr.PC and having regard to the overriding effect of the SC/ST Act over other laws, it is desirable that before an accused is subjected to a trial for alleged commission of offence under Section 3(1)(x), the utterances made by him in any place within public view are outlined, if not in the F.I.R. (which is not required to be an encyclopaedia of all facts and events), but at least in the charge-sheet (which is prepared based either on statements of witnesses recorded in course of investigation or otherwise) so as to enable the court to ascertain whether the charge sheet makes out a case of an offence under the SC/ST Act having been committed for forming a proper opinion in the conspectus of the situation before it, prior to taking cognizance of the offence.

19. Even for the limited test that has to be applied in a case of the present nature, the charge-sheet dated 21-01-2016 does not make out any case of an offence having been committed by the appellant under Section 3(1)(x) warranting him to stand a trial."

8. He next placed reliance on a decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Keshaw Mahto alias Keshav Kumar Mahto Vs. State of Bihar and Another*: (2026) SCC OnLine SC 799*, wherein it was held that:

"12. Section 3(1)(r) is attracted where the reason for the intentional insult or intimidation by the accused is that the person who is subjected to is a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe. In other words, the offence under Section 3(1)(r) cannot stand merely on the fact that the informant/complainant is a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe, unless the insult or intimidation is with the intention to humiliate such a member of the community.

13. To put it briefly - first, the fact that the complainant belonged to a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe would not be enough. Secondly, any insult or intimidation towards the complainant must be on the account of such person being a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe.

14. With a view to dispel any doubt and lend clarity, we deem it appropriate to mention that even mere knowledge of the fact that the complainant is a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe is not sufficient to attract Section 3(1)(r).

15. Further, for an offence to be made out under Section 3(1)(s), merely abusing a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe would not be enough. At the same time, saying caste name would also not constitute an offence.

16. In other words, to constitute an offence under Section 3(1)(s) it would be necessary that the accused abuses a member of a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe "by the caste name" in any place within public view. Thus, the allegations must reveal that abuses were laced with caste name, or the caste name had been hurled as an abuse.

17. What appears from the aforesaid is the element of humiliation is present in Section 3(1)(s) as well. It has to be gathered from the intentional insult towards the caste, and the content. The content under Section 3(1)(s) are the abuses hurled at a person belonging to a Scheduled Caste or a Scheduled Tribe. However, the intent with which the abuses were hurled must be found to be denigrating towards the caste, resulting into a feeling of caste-based humiliation."

9. Lastly, Shri Murtaza has placed reliance on a decision rendered by a coordinate bench of this court in the case of Madan Vs. State of UP, Neutral Citation 2023: AHC-LKO:43512 wherein after deciding the controversy involved in the matter and before parting with the case, the coordinate bench noted that "learned trial court has convicted the appellant under Section 3(1)(2) SC/ST Act. However, the victim or PW2 nowhere stated that the victim was raped for the reason of her being a member of scheduled caste community. Not a single word was uttered to the effect that she was harassed as she belonged to scheduled caste community. There was no evidence to show that she was addressed by caste to humiliate her." Therefore, this court set aside the conviction under the SC/ST Act.

10. When we examine the facts of the present case in light of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the aforementioned cases, it transpires that the FIR alleged that while the complainant's minor daughter had gone to the eatery of the appellant to get a samosa, finding her alone, the appellant caught hold of her hand with an evil intention and he wanted to grab her breast. The victim cried. Owners of some shops in the neighborhood gathered there and the appellant ran away from the shop.

11. The complainant stated in his examination in chief that the appellant had caught hold of the victim and thereafter he grabbed her breast, which was in deviation from his earlier statement and was an improvement in the allegations leveled originally.

12. During cross-examination, the complainant admitted that he was not an eyewitness of the incident. He further admitted that the appellant only wanted to grab the breast of the victim, but he had actually not done so. He admitted that he had given a wrong statement to this effect during the examination in chief.

13. The victim alleged during her testimony that finding her alone in his shop the appellant had caught hold of her hand and while addressing her by her caste, the appellant said that he would commit the misdeed against her. She told about the incident to her father after coming back home. Interestingly, the victim stated during her cross-examination that her father had to spend a lot of money for getting the FIR lodged. The other witnesses namely PW4 and PW5, who were the owners of shops situated in the neighborhood of the place of the incident and who are said to have reached the spot after hearing the cries of the victim, were declared to be hostile.

14. Therefore, besides the statement of the victim, there is no material to corroborate her evidence. The victim had alleged commission of offence under Section 354 IPC against her, but there is nothing in the FIR or in the testimony of the victim, which may indicate that the offence was committed for the reason that the victim belonged to a scheduled caste. The caste of the victim was not at all relevant in the entire incident.

15. When the testimony of the victim and the complainant (which are not corroborated by the testimony of the other witnesses of fact namely PW3 and PW4) are examined in light of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the abovementioned cases, it appears that the prosecution evidence fails to establish that the alleged offence under Section 354 IPC was committed because the appellant intended to humiliate, insult or harass the victim because of her caste.

16. In these circumstances, this court is of the considered view that the offence under Section 3(1)(xi) SC/ST Act is not made out in the present case.

17. Shri Murtaza fairly conceded that there is no illegality in conviction of the appellant for the offence under Section 354 IPC and Sri Rakesh Kumar Maurya, the learned counsel for the appellant also could not advance any submission so as to convince the court about any error or illegality in the findings of the trial court regarding guilt of the appellant for offence under Section 354 IPC.

18. Accordingly, this court finds no good ground to interfere in the order of conviction and sentencing of the appellant for the offence under Section 354 IPC.

19. At this stage, Shri Rakesh Kumar Maurya, the learned counsel for the appellant prays for grant of benefit of the provisions of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act to the appellant. For this purpose, he is required to file an application. He prays for and is granted two days' time for filing the application under Section 4 of Probation of Offenders Act.

20. Accordingly, list this case on 22.07.2026 to enable him to file an application under Section 4 of the aforesaid Act.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether conviction of the appellant under Section 304 IPC was sustainable in absence of evidence proving that the death of the deceased was caused by any act committed by the appellant.

HEADNOTES

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Sections 374(2), 437-A, - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 299, 304: - Criminal Appeal – against conviction and sentence, under Section 304 IPC – FIR - alleging that the appellant took the complainant's son with him stating he would return in half an hour, after which the son did not return and his dead body was found the next day in a grove with injury marks – investigation - recovery of slippers, injection needle, burnt Avil vial, Vicks, Glucone-D, Vigora tablet from the spot and deceased's mobile phone from the appellant's house – statements recorded - post-mortem, showing one abraded contusion on the back of the head with ecchymosis, cause of death not ascertained, viscera negative for poison – Trial initiated - conviction based on circumstantial evidence of last-seen and recovery – Appellant pleaded that there was no evidence that he caused the death, - he was falsely implicated, - and death occurred due to overdose of intoxication – Court finds that, there is absolutely no evidence that the death was caused by any act of the appellant (or any person), the solitary head injury could have resulted from a fall in an inebriated condition, the doctor admitted possibility of death due to overdose of intoxication, the testimony of PW-2 contains inherent contradictions regarding the number of persons seen and accepts self-intoxication as the cause, and recovery of mobile phone does not prove culpable homicide – held that, (i) for an offence under Section 299/304 IPC it must first be established that death was caused by an act of the accused with the requisite intention or knowledge, (ii) the conviction is without evidence and without any finding that the deceased died due to any act of the appellant – hence, the judgment of conviction and sentence is set aside - appellant is acquitted – appeal allowed - directions issued accordingly.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 23.03.2026 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Barabanki in Session Trial No. 351 of 2016 (State v. Bharat Upadhyay), arising out of Case Crime No. 315 of 2015, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Farooq Ayoob, Harish Chandra, Counsel for Respondent(s): Sri Mayank Sinha, learned A.G.A. Ms. Nisha Srivastava.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Farooq Ayoob, the learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Mayank Sinha, the learned A.G.A. appearing on behalf of the State, Ms. Nisha Srivastava, the learned counsel for the complainant and perused the records.

2. By means of the instant appeal filed under Section 374(2) Cr.P.C. the appellant has challenged the validity of the judgment and order dated 23.03.2026, passed by Sri. Vinay Kumar Singh II, the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Barabanki in Session Trial No.351 of 2016: State v. Bharat Upadhyay, arising out of Case Crime No.315 of 2015, under Section 304 I.P.C. Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki, whereby the appellant has been convicted for the aforesaid offence and has been sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for ten years and pay Rs.10,000/- as fine and in case of failure to pay fine, the appellant would have to undergo additional imprisonment for one year.

3. The aforesaid case was instituted on the basis of a written complaint stating that the appellant went to the complainant's house at about 4.00 p.m. on 30.04.2015 and took the complainant's son, Satendra Kumar with him saying that he was going to Badel and would return in half an hour. The complainant's son did not return home during the entire night. The complainant started looking for his son in the morning and he got information at about 1.00 p.m. that his son's dead body was lying in a grove. The complainant expressed suspicion that the appellant had killed his son.

4. The Investigating Officer recovered a pair of slippers, an injection needle with cover, a burnt vial of Avil, a pack of Vicks Veporub, a 100 gms. packet of Glucone-D and a tablet of Vigora 100 mg from the spot of the incident.

5. It is alleged that a mobile phone of the deceased was recovered from the appellant's house on 05.05.2015.

6. The complainant was examined as PW-1. He reiterated the F.I.R. version and stated that the appellant used to visit his home since before and therefore he knew him. The appellant was a friend of his deceased son and took him with him stating that they would go to Badel Village and would return in half an hour. When he did not return, the complainant repetitively made phone calls but the calls were was not received. He made calls on the mobile phone of the appellant also, but it was out of reach. He stated that the dead body of his son was recovered the following day in the grove of Mahadev Prasad at about 1.00 p.m. and there were several injury marks on his head and other body parts.

7. During cross-examination, PW-1 stated that the appellant was his son's friend and he knew this fact for about six months prior to his son's death. He stated that although his son did not return home, he did not go to the appellant's house during the night and he went there in the morning.

8. One Parideen was examined as PW-2. He stated that he was going to attend nature's call at about 4:00 a.m., carrying water in a lota. Two persons met him near the grove of Mahadev. Both of them were staggering and it appeared that they were in a state of intoxication. They asked him to give water to the person who was lying down but he denied. He stated that the person who had asked for water was the appellant Bharat Upadhyay. In the morning, he saw a dead body lying there and it appeared that the dead body was of one of the two persons whom he had met in the night.

9. During cross-examination, PW-2 stated that the persons whom he had seen during the night were not quarreling. He had heard no noise. He had told the investigating officer that earlier also he had seen both the persons taking intoxicating substances in the grove and they used to do so frequently. He stated that it appeared that both the persons whom he had seen were under heavy intoxication. He further stated that the deceased died due to overdose of intoxication. He had not seen any person assaulting the deceased. PW-2 accepted the suggestion that the deceased died due to overdose of intoxication by himself.

10. One Deshraj was examined as PW-3 and he stated that while he was sitting at his home at about 04:00 p.m. on 30.04.2025, he had seen the appellant taking the deceased with him and when the complainant had asked, he had told that he was going to Badail crossing and would come back within half an hour.

11. PW-5 Mulchand is a brother of the complainant and he gave a statement similar to that of PW-3, however, he stated that his deceased nephew was not used to having intoxicating substances. PW-6 was a cousin of the deceased and he also stated that he had seen the appellant taking away the deceased.

12. The Investigating Officer was examined as PW-8 and he stated that he had arrested the appellant from his house on 05.05.2015 and the complainant had given the mobile phone of the deceased from inside his house.

13. The recovered articles were produced before the court. Those were packed in a cloth and the Investigating Officer stated that the seal put on the recovered articles had been damaged by rats.

14. The trial court held that although there was no eyewitness of the incident, all the links of the circumstantial evidence were complete so as to prove the appellant's guilt beyond reasonable doubt. The trial court held that the complainant had seen the appellant taking away the deceased with him in the evening of 30.04.2015 and PW-3, PW-5 and PW-6 had seen the deceased going away with the appellant. The second link was established by the statement of PW-2, Parideen, who had seen two persons in an intoxicated condition near the grove where the dead body was found. The third link of the circumstance was established by recovery of the deceased's mobile phone from the house of the appellant.

15. It was contended on behalf of the accused-appellant that the police had taken him away on 01.05.2015 and he was kept at the police station for five days and thereafter his arrest was falsely shown to have been made on 05.05.2015. The trial court rejected this submission merely on the ground that in the General Diary of the police station the appellant's arrest was recorded on 05.05.2015.

16. The trial court held that the prosecution has established the guilt of the appellant beyond reasonable doubt and accordingly convicted the appellant for the offence under Section 304 I.P.C.

17. Section 304 IPC provides punishment for culpable homicide not amounting to murder, which offence is defined under Section 299 IPC as follows: -

"299. Culpable homicide. - Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide.

Illustrations

(a) A lays sticks and turf over a pit, with the intention of thereby causing death, or with the knowledge that death is likely to be thereby caused. Z believing the ground to be firm, treads on it, falls in and is killed. A has committed the offence of culpable homicide.

(b) A knows Z to be behind a bush. B does not know it. A, intending to cause, or knowing it to be likely to cause Z's death induces B to fire at the bush. B fires and kills Z. Here B may be guilty of no offence; but A has committed the offence of culpable homicide.

(c) A, by shooting at a fowl with intent to kill and steal it, kills B, who is behind a bush; A not knowing that he was there. Here, although A was doing an unlawful act, he was not guilty of culpable homicide, as he did not intend to kill B, or to cause death by doing an act that he knew was likely to cause death.

Explanation 1.-A person who causes bodily injury, to another who is labouring under a disorder, disease or bodily infirmity, and thereby accelerates the death of that other, shall be deemed to have caused his death.

Explanation 2.-Where death is caused by bodily injury, the person who causes such bodily injury shall be deemed to have caused the death, although by resorting to proper remedies and skillful treatment the death might have been prevented.

Explanation 3.-The causing of the death of a child in the mother's womb is not homicide. But it may amount to culpable homicide to cause the death of a living child, if any part of that child has been brought forth, though the child may not have breathed or been completely born."

18. For convicting any person for the offence of culpable homicide, it has to be established that the accused had caused death of the deceased by doing an act with the intention of causing death or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death or with the knowledge that he is likely to cause death by such act. The question as to who caused death of the deceased would assume significance only when it has been established that death of the deceased was caused by any act committed by any person.

19. Dr. Shashi Bhushan Singh, the doctor who had conducted the post-mortem examination of the deceased was examined as PW-4 and he stated that he had conducted the post-mortem examination on 01.05.2015. There was an abraded contusion of size 5 cm X 3 cm over the back of head. On cutting, ecchymosis was present underneath the injury. However, the cause of death could not be ascertained, hence, viscera was preserved for chemical analysis. The viscera examination report also did not reveal presence of any poison in the given samples. During cross-examination, PW-4 stated that the injury could have been caused because of a fall in an inebriated condition. The deceased could have died due to an overdose of intoxication.

20. PW-4 did not state that the solitary injury suffered by the deceased caused his death. Further, there is no evidence that the injury had been caused by the appellant.

21. There is absolutely no evidence to establish that the death of the deceased had been caused by any act of committed by any person. In absence of any evidence to prove that the death of the deceased was caused by any act committed by any person, commission of the offence under Section 299 of the Penal Code is not established in the present case. The trial Court has convicted the appellant without recording a satisfaction that the deceased died due to any act committed by the appellant.

22. Although, it is not necessary to go into any further question for deciding the appeal yet it is significant to note that merely this much was established by the statement of the complainant and PW-3, 5 and 6 that the appellant had taken away the deceased with him in the evening of 30.04.2015. PW-2 Parideen, is said have last seen the appellant with the deceased. PW-2 stated that he was going to attend the call of nature, carrying water in a lota. He had seen two persons staggering. Those persons had asked for water and had asked him to give the water to the person lying down. Parideen declined the request. In the morning he saw one of those persons lying dead. He stated that the dead person was one of the two persons who whom he had seen staggering in the early morning.

23. It is important to notice that on the one hand, Parideen said that he had seen only two persons and not three persons. Both the persons were staggering and yet he said that one person was lying down, who appeared to be in an intoxicated condition. On the other hand, PW-2 said that the person lying down had died and he was one of the two persons who were staggering. There is an inherent contradiction in this statement regarding the total number of persons seen by him, whether the total number of persons was two or three. It appears that Parideen has been set up as a witness by the prosecution and this inherent discrepancy in his statement has not been highlighted by the defence, either during trial or even during submissions before this court in this appeal. The trial court also omitted to notice this discrepancy and relied on the testimony of Parideen.

24. Even PW-2 Parideen stated that the persons whom he had seen during the night were not quarreling. He had heard no noise. Earlier also he had seen both the persons taking intoxicating substances in the grove and they used to do so frequently. He stated that the deceased died due to overdose of intoxication. He had not seen any person assaulting the deceased. PW-2 accepted the suggestion that the deceased died due to overdose of intoxication by himself. Therefore, the testimony of PW-2 Parideen does not prove that the deceased died because of any act committed by the appellant.

25. So far as recovery of mobile phone is concerned, it does not establish that the deceased died because of any act committed by the appellant and this recovery is not sufficient to convict the appellant for the offence of culpable homicide.

26. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the view that the appellant has been convicted and sentenced without there being any evidence and without recording any finding that the deceased died because of any act committed by the appellant. The trial Court has convicted and sentenced the appellant without considering the aforesaid aspects of the matter and, therefore, the trial Court's order of conviction and sentence is vitiated.

27. Accordingly, the criminal appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 23.03.2026, passed by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Barabanki in Session Trial No.351 of 2016: State Vs. Bharat Upadhyay, arising out of Case Crime No.315 of 2015, under Section 304 I.P.C. Criminal Appeal No. 1666 of 2026

X Complainant of Complaint Case No. 65/2026 ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the applicant is entitled to relief under Section 482 CrPC in respect of the criminal proceedings initiated against him.

HEADNOTES

Criminal Law – Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 482, - Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 - Section - 173(4), 223, 528, - Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 - Sections 14-A(1): - Criminal Appeal – against summoning order – seeking relief under Section 482 CrPC – FIR/complaint - investigation conducted – statements recorded – recovery effected – chargesheet submitted – trial initiated – applicant pleaded that allegations are false, proceedings are abuse of process, and continuation of trial would cause miscarriage of justice – Court finds that the allegation of voluntary sexual exploitation by a 35-year-old married working woman solely for recovery of her husband's undisclosed money (without force or deceit) is wholly improbable and constitutes no offence, the monetary dispute stood already settled, no offence under the SC/ST Act is disclosed, and the complaint appears designed to blackmail for recovery of money – criminal proceedings cannot be used for realisation of disputed dues and that the High Court, as a superior court of record, can exercise inherent powers suo motu under Section 528 BNSS even in appellate jurisdiction to prevent abuse of process – held that continuance of such frivolous and vexatious complaint would result in persecution and defeat the ends of justice – hence the impugned order is set aside and the entire proceedings of the complaint are quashed.

CASE ARISING FROM

Order dated 17.04.2026 passed by the Special Judge, SC/ST Act / Additional Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri in Criminal Miscellaneous Case No. 65/2026.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Sri Adarsh Shukla.
Counsel for Respondent(s): Sri Mayank Sinha, learned A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri. Adarsh Shukla, the learned counsel for the appellant, Sri. Mayank Sinha, the learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. and Sri. Gaurav Verma, the learned counsel for the opposite parties no. 3 and 4 and perused the record.

2. By means of the instant appeal filed under Section 14-A(1) of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (which will hereinafter be referred to as 'the SC/ST Act'), the appellant has challenged the validity of an order dated 17.04.2026 passed by the learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act/Additional Sessions Judge, Lakhimpur Kheri, in Criminal Miscellaneous Case No. 65/2026, whereby instead of ordering registration of a First Information Report, the appellant's application under Section 173(4) of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita (which will hereinafter be referred to as 'BNSS') was treated as a complaint.

3. The appellant stated in the application under Section 173 (4) BNSS that she is a woman belonging to a Scheduled Caste and was working as an Instructor in an Upper Primary School. In the year 2024 she was residing as a tenant in the house of the opposite party No. 2 in District Kheri, in connection with her employment and her husband used to commute from Lucknow. The opposite party No. 2 sold a plot belonging to his younger brother (the opposite party No. 3), to the complainant's husband. Later, it was discovered that the opposite party no. 3 was not the owner of the plot. Upon making a complaint, the opposite parties no. 2 to 4 stated that they would get the plot sold and get the money recovered. They got a sale deed executed in favour of one Ravi Shankar. Even thereafter, some of the complainant's money remained with the opposite parties. As the complainant's husband used to stay outside, taking undue advantage of her being alone and under pretext of helping her recover her husband's money, the opposite party no. 2 started exploiting the appellant sexually. Thereafter, the complainant's husband shifted her to another accommodation, but some of her belongings remained in the house of the opposite parties, including a cheque book signed by her husband. The complainant has expressed an apprehension that the accused persons might cause harm to her husband and child.

4. It is mentioned in the impugned order dated 17.04.2026 that the Court had called for a report from the Police. The police report revealed that the actual owner of the land was Shiv Shankar Mishra. The purchaser Ravi Shankar had lodged Case Crime No. 381/2025 against the complainant's husband and the opposite parties in which a final report was submitted on the basis of an amicable resolution of dispute, under which the amount in question had been refunded.

5. The trial court found that the complainant has alleged that in furtherance of a conspiracy the opposite parties represented themselves to be the owners of the plot and they got its sale deed executed in favour of the complainant's husband. The final report submitted in Case Crime No. 381/2025 discloses that the complainant, her husband and the opposite parties had been arrayed as accused persons in the said case. As the consideration amount of the plot had been refunded and no other evidence was found, a final report was submitted. The trial court further found that all the facts of the case are within the knowledge of the complainant, which she can prove herself by leading evidence. Accordingly, the Special Judge registered the application under Section 173(4) BNSS as a complaint and fixed the next date for recording the statement under Section 223 BNSS.

6. According to the averments made in the complaint, the complainant was not involved in the purchase and sale of the plot and her husband was a party to the transactions. The husband is not suffering from any legal disability which may incapacitate him to institute the legal proceedings for enforcement of his legal rights. The complainant is not the legal guardian of her husband so as to initiate legal proceedings on his behalf. The dispute pertains to a monetary transaction, regarding which a First Information Report was lodged against the complainant, her husband and the opposite parties no. 3 and 4 and after the matter was settled, a final report has already been submitted.

7. In the application under Section 173(4) BNSS, the complainant has stated that some amount of her husband's money still remains unpaid. Neither the sale consideration amount has been disclosed in the application, nor has the alleged unpaid amount been disclosed. The complainant's husband, whose money is alleged to have remained unpaid, has not instituted any proceedings - civil or criminal.

8. The complainant has stated, in paragraph 4 of the application that as her husband used to reside away, the opposite party no. 2 started sexually exploiting her under allurement of returning her husband's money. A 35 years old married woman herself stating that she permitted a man to sexually exploit her in order to recover her husband's money, although there is no allegation of use of force or deception by the opposite party no. 2, is an extremely unnatural and strange allegation, which no person of ordinary prudence and reasonable understanding can believe. Even if the allegation is taken to be correct, it does not constitute any offence.

9. The assertion made in the application that although the complainant had vacated the accommodation of the opposite party no. 2 which she had taken on rent, a cheque book signed by her husband was left there, is also a strange statement, which no person of ordinary prudence would believe.

10. It appears that the petitioner is abusing the criminal justice system to blackmail the opposite Parties Nos. 2 to 4 for recovering an undisclosed amount of unpaid money. In Dilip Singh v. State of M.P., (2021) 2 SCC 779, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that criminal proceedings are not for realization of disputed dues.

11. Section 528 of BNSS, which corresponds to Section 482 Cr.P.C., recognizes the inherent powers of this Court in the following words: -

"528. Saving of inherent powers of High Court. - Nothing in this Sanhita shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Sanhita, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

12. In State of Karnataka v. L. Muniswamy, (1977) 2 SCC 699, it was held that: -

*"In the exercise of this wholesome power, the High Court is entitled to quash a proceeding if it comes to the conclusion that allowing the proceeding to continue would be an abuse of the process of the Court or that the ends of justice require that the proceeding ought to be quashed. The saving of the High Court's inherent powers, both in civil and criminal matters, is designed to achieve a salutary public purpose which is that a court proceeding ought not to be permitted to degenerate into a weapon of harassment or persecution. In a criminal case, the veiled object behind a lame prosecution, the very nature of the material on which the structure of the prosecution rests and the like would justify the High Court in quashing the proceeding in the interest of justice. The ends of justice are higher than the ends of mere law though justice has got to be administered according to laws made by the legislature. The compelling necessity for making these observations is that without a proper realisation of the object and purpose of the provision which seeks to save the inherent powers of the High Court to do justice, between the State and its subjects, it would be impossible to appreciate the width and contours of that salient jurisdiction."

13. In State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal: 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we have given the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

14. However, the Hon'ble Supreme Court added a word of caution in the judgment in the case of Bhajan Lal (supra) by stating that: -

"103. We also give a note of caution to the effect that the power of quashing a criminal proceeding should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases; that the court will not be justified in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the FIR or the complaint and that the extraordinary or inherent powers do not confer an arbitrary jurisdiction on the court to act according to its whim or caprice."

15. The purport of the expression "rarest of rare cases" has been explained in Som Mittal (2) v. State of Karnataka: (2008) 3 SCC 574, in the following words: -

'9. When the words "rarest of rare cases" are used after the words "sparingly and with circumspection" while describing the scope of Section 482, those words merely emphasise and reiterate what is intended to be conveyed by the words "sparingly and with circumspection". They mean that the power under Section 482 to quash proceedings should not be used mechanically or routinely, but with care and caution, only when a clear case for quashing is made out and failure to interfere would lead to a miscarriage of justice. The expression "rarest of rare cases" is not used in the sense in which it is used with reference to punishment for offences under Section 302 IPC, but to emphasise that the power under Section 482 CrPC to quash the FIR or criminal proceedings should be used sparingly and with circumspection.'"

16. The law regarding scope of exercise of the inherent powers of the High Courts acknowledged by Section 482 Cr.P.C. / 528 BNSS stands settled by the aforesaid judgments and the power can be exercised to quash any criminal proceedings before a trial Court if it would result in an abuse of the process of any Court.

17. The question which now arises is whether this Court can exercise its inherent powers suo motu so as to quash the proceedings of a criminal complaint, when the abuse of the process of Court has been noticed by this Court while hearing an appeal filed by the complainant herself and the accused persons have not come forward to challenge its validity (due to the obvious reason that they are yet to be summoned by the trial Court).

18. In this regard, it is relevant to note the following principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Popular Muthiah v. State represented by Inspector of Police: (2006) 7 SCC 296: -

"27. While exercising its appellate power, the jurisdiction of the High Court although is limited but, in our opinion, there exists a distinction but a significant one being that the High Court can exercise its revisional jurisdiction and/or inherent jurisdiction not only when an application therefor is filed but also suo motu. It is not in dispute that suo motu power can be exercised by the High Court while exercising its revisional jurisdiction. There may not, therefore, be an embargo for the High Court to exercise its extraordinary inherent jurisdiction while exercising other jurisdictions in the matter*. Keeping in view the intention of Parliament, while making the new law the emphasis of Parliament being "a case before the court" in contradistinction from "a person who is arrayed as an accused before it" when the High Court is seized with the entire case although would exercise a limited jurisdiction in terms of Section 386 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the same, in our considered view, cannot be held to limit its other powers and in particular that of Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in relation to the matter which is not before it.*

29. The High Court while, thus, exercising its revisional or appellate power, may exercise its inherent powers. Inherent power of the High Court can be exercised, it is trite, both in relation to substantive as also procedural matters.

30. In respect of the incidental or supplemental power, evidently, the High Court can exercise its inherent jurisdiction irrespective of the nature of the proceedings. It is not trammelled by procedural restrictions in that:

(i) Power can be exercised suo motu in the interest of justice. If such a power is not conceded, it may even lead to injustice to an accused.

(ii) Such a power can be exercised concurrently with the appellate or revisional jurisdiction and no formal application is required to be filed therefor.

(iii) It is, however, beyond any doubt that the power under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not unlimited. It can inter alia be exercised where the Code is silent, where the power of the court is not treated as exhaustive, or there is a specific provision in the Code; or the statute does not fall within the purview of the Code because it involves application of a special law. It acts ex debito justitiae. It can, thus, do real and substantial justice for which alone it exists."

(emphasis added)

19. When examining the scope of inherent powers of this Court, it would be appropriate to keep into consideration the provision contained in Article 215 of the Constitution of India, which provides that: -

"215. High Courts to be courts of record. - Every High Court shall be a court of record and shall have all the powers of such a court including the power to punish for contempt of itself."

20. In Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1967 SC 1, a Constitution Bench consisting of nine Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"59. ... The High Court is a superior court of record and under Article 215, shall have all powers of such a court of record including the power to punish contempt of itself. One distinguishing characteristic of such superior courts is that they are entitled to consider questions of their jurisdiction raised before them. This question fell to be considered by this Court in Special Reference No. I of 1964 [(1965) 1 SCR 413 at p 499]. In that case, it was urged before this Court that in granting bail to Keshav Singh, the High Court had exceeded its jurisdiction and as such, the order was a nullity. Rejecting this argument, this Court observed that in the case of a superior court of record, it is for the court to consider whether any matter falls within its jurisdiction or not. Unlike a court of limited jurisdiction, the superior court is entitled to determine for itself questions about its own jurisdiction. That is why this Court did not accede to the proposition that in passing the order for interim bail, the High Court can be said to have exceeded its jurisdiction with the result that the order in question was null and void. In support of this view, this Court cited a passage from Halsbury's Laws of England where it is observed that "prima facie, no matter is deemed to be beyond the jurisdiction of a superior court unless it is expressly shown to be so, while nothing is within the jurisdiction of an inferior court unless it is expressly shown on the face of the proceedings that the particular matter is within the cognizance of the particular court [Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol 9, p. 349] ". If the decision of a superior court on a question of its jurisdiction is erroneous, it can, of course, be corrected by appeal or revision as may be permissible under the law; but until the adjudication by a superior court on such a point is set aside by adopting the appropriate course, it would not be open to be corrected by the exercise of the writ jurisdiction of this Court."

21. The aforesaid decision was followed in M.V. Elisabeth v. Harwan Investment and Trading (P) Ltd.: 1993 Supp (2) SCC 433, wherein the Supreme Court reiterated that: -

"66. The High Courts in India are superior courts of record. They have original and appellate jurisdiction. They have inherent and plenary powers. Unless expressly or impliedly barred, and subject to the appellate or discretionary jurisdiction of this Court, the High Courts have unlimited jurisdiction, including the jurisdiction to determine their own powers..."

22. In Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency (P) Ltd. v. CBI: (2018) 16 SCC 299, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"52. ... First and foremost, it must be appreciated that the High Courts are established by the Constitution and are courts of record which will have all powers of such courts, including the power to punish contempt of themselves (see Article 215). The High Court, being a superior court of record, is entitled to consider questions regarding its own jurisdiction when raised before it. In an instructive passage by a Constitution Bench of this Court in Powers, Privileges and Immunities of State Legislatures, In re, Special Reference No. 1 of 1964 [AIR 1965 SC 745], Gajendragadkar, C.J. held:

"138. Besides, in the case of a superior court of record, it is for the court to consider whether any matter falls within its jurisdiction or not. Unlike a Court of limited jurisdiction, the superior court is entitled to determine for itself questions about its own jurisdiction. "Prima facie", says Halsbury, 'no matter is deemed to be beyond the jurisdiction of a superior court unless it is expressly shown to be so, while nothing is within the jurisdiction of an inferior court unless it is expressly shown on the face of the proceedings that the particular matter is within the cognizance of the particular court' [Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 9, p. 349]."

54. It is thus clear that the inherent power of a court set up by the Constitution is a power that inheres in such court because it is a superior court of record, and not because it is conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure. This is a power vested by the Constitution itself, inter alia, under Article 215 as aforestated. Also, as such High Courts have the power, nay, the duty to protect the fundamental rights of citizens under Article 226 of the Constitution, the inherent power to do justice in cases involving the liberty of the citizen would also sound in Article 21 of the Constitution….."

23. In Baldev Raj Arora v. CBI: 2026 SCC OnLine All 20629, this Court has held that: -

"46. The inherent powers of this Court to secure the ends of justice and prevent the abuse of the process of law do not stem from Section 482 CrPC or for that matter from any other statutory provision. Such a power is an unfettered power which inheres in this Court, because this Court is a Constitutional Court and a court of record. Section 482 CrPC does not confer the inherent powers on the High Courts, it merely provides that nothing contained in CrPC will affect the inherent powers of the High Court, which powers are inherent in the High Court by virtue of it being a court of record as laid down under Article 215 of the Constitution. The inherent powers are powers of a wide amplitude with only self imposed restrictions, to be exercised in a suitable case to secure the ends of justice. Therefore, the jurisdiction under Section 482 CrPC is a statutory manifestation of the wider inherent powers constitutionally recognized under Article 215, to be exercised for securing the ends of justice.

47. In order to fully comprehend and effectively exercise the inherent powers of the High Court, it is pertinent to note the legislative intent and the purpose that was intended to achieved by Section 482 CrPC and Article 215 of the Constitution of India. The object behind Article 215 is to give power to the High Courts to decide their own jurisdiction, apparently to confer discretionary powers on the High Courts, to be exercised in appropriate cases in which it deems fit to invoke its powers. Without giving the power to decide its own jurisdiction the inherent powers to secure the ends of justice might become meaningless. Similarly, the words "to make such orders as may be necessary to secure the ends of justice" used in Section 482 conclude the aforesaid section in an open ended manner, the underlying object being to save the discretionary inherent powers of the High Courts to decide for itself what would be the appropriate cases in which the inherent power should be invoked. Therefore, the object behind both the provisions appears to be one i.e. to further the cause of substantial justice and undertake all such measures that may be required in this direction."

24. In Ishwar Chand Sharma v. State of U.P.: 2026 SCC OnLine SC 1004, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has expressed its concern and anguish over the rising trend in vexatious litigation, in the following words: -

"9. ... we wish to underline a worrying trend that has come to our attention. Parties involved in matrimonial or commercial relationships with one another are resorting to filing of frivolous and vexatious claims and allegations of a criminal nature to settle personal scores and grudges against each other and therefore turn to nefarious/oblique means to attain the said objective...

9.1 ...The onus is on courts to be careful and cautious so as to separate the wheat from the chaff and separate the genuine cases of matrimonial oppression, rape and offences against women from the cases wherein the legal process and procedure is being used as a tool to file false and frivolous cases out of vengeance. While doing so, care should be taken to ensure that the rights and freedoms of innocent parties are not trampled or arbitrarily taken away by unscrupulous and baseless litigation.

9.2 ...The litigating parties and their advocates should also be cognizant of the fact that such vexatious filing of false and frivolous claims and cases cast unnecessary burden on the already overburdened machinery and apparatus of the State and Judiciary. This factor also diverts the attention of courts and its resources whereas genuine cases of the parties with actual verifiable grievances are not being able to be adjudicated in time owing to the time spent in adjudicating upon phantom claims of mischievous litigators seeking to create litigation out of thin air or in the absence of a cause to do so.

9.6 While we are conscious of the fact that there are instances and a plethora of cases that are true and deserve the utmost attention and deft handling on the side of authorities and Courts and which should be pursued vigorously to reach a logical conclusion, on the other side of the spectrum, are cases invoking such serious and heinous allegations which are prima facie vague, omnibus and general in nature and thereby lacking any material backing or evidence which should be shunned at the very threshold. We say so for the reason that if a person is made an accused and forced to face a criminal trial on general and sweeping allegations without bringing on record any specific instances of criminal conduct, it would tantamount to an abuse of the process of law and court. Hence, legal practitioners who tender advice in such cases must restrain parties from filing such false/frivolous complaints when requested to do so. Further, lawyers/advocates must also not advise filing of criminal complaints which are false/concocted so as to keep the opposite parties under a tight leash so that they could come forward for a settlement on the terms dictated by their parties or else, to face a criminal prosecution which can prolong for years...

9.7 Courts then owe a duty to subject the allegations levelled in the complaint to a thorough scrutiny to ascertain if a prima facie case is made out or not, and whether there is any kernel of truth in the allegations or whether the said allegations have been made only with the sole intent of spite so as to harass the opposite party with a prolonged process of criminal litigation, arrest and sometimes a conviction which later on may result in an acquittal by a higher Court or in a worse case, no relief at all being given to an innocent party. ..."

25. Thus, the law is well settled that being a superior Court of record, this Court has the power to determine the questions relating to its own jurisdiction and nothing is beyond the jurisdiction of this Court, unless there is a specific statutory bar against the jurisdiction of this Court. Section 428 Cr.P.C. /Section 528 BNSS recognize the inherent powers of this Court to pass appropriate orders to secure the ends of justice and to prevent the abuse of the process of any Court. In appropriate cases, this Court can exercise its inherent powers even suo motu, even while exercising its appellate jurisdiction and filing of a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. / 528 BNSS is not a condition precedent for exercising the inherent powers to secure the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of any Court. Where even while exercising its appellate powers, it appears to this Court that continuance of any criminal proceedings would defeat the ends of justice and would result in abuse of the process of any Court, this Court not only has the power to interfere in exercise of its inherent powers, but it has the duty to exercise that power in deserving cases, so as to secure the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of any Court or law.

26. When the allegations levelled in the application under Section 173(4) BNSS are examined in light of the law laid down in the above mentioned cases, it appears that a 35-year-old married woman who is working as an instructor in an upper primary school (although in the affidavit filed before this Court she has stated on oath that she is merely literate), she has alleged that she allowed herself to be sexually exploited under allurement of recovering her husband's undisclosed amount of money, although her husband did not take any action for recovering his money. This allegation is wholly improbable. Moreover, she has not alleged use of force or deceit by the opposite parties. Assuming this allegation levelled in the application is true, it does not make out commission of any offence by the opposite party no. 2.

27. The alleged accidental leaving of a signed cheque-book in the house of the opposite party, without alleging that any signed cheque has been misused by any of the opposite parties, also does not make out commission of any offence.

28. Although the complainant has mentioned in her application under Section 173 (4) BNSS filed before the Special Judge, SC/ST Act that she belongs to a Scheduled Caste, there is no allegation in the entire complaint which may make out commission of any offence under the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989.

29. When the allegations levelled in the complaint do not make out commission of any offence, continuance of the proceedings of the complaint would result in an unwarranted persecution of the opposite parties, besides resulting in wastage of precious judicial time of the Courts. Continuance of the proceedings of the complaint in such circumstances would defeat the ends of justice and would be an abuse of the process of the Courts and the law. The frivolous and vexatious complaint having come to the knowledge of this Court through the appeal filed by the complainant herself, warrants suo motu exercise of the inherent powers of this Court so as to quash the entire proceedings of the complaint.

30. CASE ARISING FROM

Order dated 08.05.2026 passed by the Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Shravasti in Session Case No. 10 of 2023 - arising out of Case Crime No. 77 of 2022, Police Station Naveen Modern, District Shravasti.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Suresh Kumar Mishra, Shri Dharmendra Kumar Bhatt, Shri Manjul Kumar Counsel for Respondent(s): Sri Rudra Pratap Pal, learned G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. The appellant has engaged three learned counsel, namely Shri Suresh Kumar Mishra, Shri Dharmendra Kumar Bhatt and Shri Manjul Kumar Pathak, but none of whom is present to assist the court. Shri Rudra Pratap Pal, Advocate made a request for adjournment of the case on the ground that Shri Suresh Kumar Mishra and Shri Dharmendra Kumar Bhatt Advocates are busy in some District Court and therefore they could not come to the High Court. He does not know the whereabouts of Shri Manjul Kumar Pathak, the third learned Counsel for the appellant.

2. The matter was previously listed on 15.07.2026 and on that date also, nobody had appeared on behalf of the appellant and the matter was passed over.

3. The conduct of Shri Suresh Kumar Mishra and Shri Dharmendra Kumar Bhatt, Advocates, in abstaining to appear for advancing submissions in a fresh case for the reason that they are busy in the trial court, is strongly deprecated as it shows lack of respect towards their professional duties as also towards the High Court. The conduct of Shri Manjul Kumar Pathak in abstaining to appear before this Court without assigning any reason and even without giving any intimation, is also deprecated.

4. It is the Court's duty to render justice and the Advocates are entitled to provide assistance to the Court in dispensation of justice. Assistance of Advocates is not a condition precedent for adjudication of a dispute by this Court or by any Court. If the Advocates choose to refrain from providing assistance to the Court without any just and reasonable cause, the Court has to perform its duty of adjudication of cases and dispensation of justice even without any assistance from the Advocates. When the appellant has engaged as many as three learned counsel and all of them have refrained from appearing to provide assistance to this Court, the Court proceeds to decide the matter after perusal of the record.

5. The instant appeal has been filed under Section 14-A (1) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989, challenging the validity of an order dated 08.05.2026, passed by the learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Shravasti in Session Case No. 10 of 2023, arising out of Case Crime No. 77 of 2022, under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC and 3(1) (r), (s) SC/ST Act, Police Station Naveen Modern, District Shravasti, whereby an application under Section 319 CrPC filed by the appellant / complainant has been rejected.

6. The case was instituted on the basis of an FIR lodged by the appellant on 22.08.2022 against Ram Suresh Yadav and Ankit Yadav (opposite parties no.2 and 3, who are father and son) alleging that both of them had assaulted and abused the complainant and her son, causing injuries to both of them.

7. After investigation, the Investigating Officer submitted a charge-sheet dated 16.09.2022 against the opposite party no. 2 Ram Suresh for the offences under Section 323, 504, 506 IPC and 3(1) (r), (s) SC/ST Act and the Investigating Officer stated that on the basis of the evidence collected during investigation, involvement of Ram Suresh's son Ankit Yadav (the opposite party no. 3) in commission of the offences could not be established.

8. The trial commenced against Ram Suresh only and after examination of three prosecution witnesses, the appellant filed an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. When the impugned order has been passed on the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C., it was necessary to bring its copy on record so as to enable this Court to know its contents, but a copy of the said application has not been brought on record.

9. It is recorded in the impugned order that the complainant had stated in the application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. that she had clearly stated about involvement of both the accused persons in commission of the offence in the FIR, in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and in her examination-in-chief, but the investigating officer had wrongly submitted the charge-sheet only against Ram Suresh (the opposite party no. 2) and not against his son Ankit Yadav (the opposite party no. 3).

10. The trial court examined the statements. The complainant - appellant had stated that the Ram Suresh and his son Ankit Yadav (the opposite parties no. 2 and 3) both were involved in the incident. PW-2 Taravati stated that she reached the spot half an hour after the incident. Thus, PW-2 is not an eyewitness of the incident and she did not support the allegation of involvement of the opposite party no. 3 in the incident. PW-3, the injured son of the complainant, stated that he and Ram Suresh (the opposite party no.2) both were taken to a hospital by different ambulances. Medical examination of both of them was conducted in Ikauna Shravasti. No person other than PW-3 and Suresh (the opposite party no.2) was present on the spot.

11. The trial court referred to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Krishnappa v. State of Karnataka: (2004) 7 SCC 792 = AIR 2004 SC 4298, wherein it has been held that: -

"6. It has been repeatedly held that the power to summon an accused is an extraordinary power conferred on the court and should be used very sparingly and only if compelling reasons exist for taking cognizance against the other person against whom action has not been taken.

9. In Michael Machado v. Central Bureau of Investigation [(2000) 3 SCC 262] construing the words ?the court may proceed against such person" in Section 319 CrPC, this Court held that the power is discretionary and should be exercised only to achieve criminal justice and that the court should not turn against another person whenever it comes across evidence connecting that other person also with the offence. This Court further held that a judicial exercise is called for, keeping a conspectus of the case, including the stage at which the trial has already proceeded and the quantum of evidence collected till then, and also the amount of time which the court had spent for collecting such evidence. The court, while examining an application under Section 319 CrPC, has also to bear in mind that there is no compelling duty on the court to proceed against other persons. In a nutshell, it means that for exercise of discretion under Section 319 CrPC, all relevant factors, including the one noticed above, have to be kept in view and an order is not required to be made mechanically merely on the ground that some evidence had come on record implicating the person sought to be added as an accused."

12. The trial court relied on the judgment of this court in the case of Ramakant Tripathi Vs. State of U.P: 2009 Cr.L.J. 459 wherein a coordinate Bench of this Court referred to the precedents in the cases of Michael Machado and Anr.: (2000) 3 SCC 609, Anil Singh and Anr. v. State of Bihar: (2008) 1 SCC 708, Rajendra Singh v. State of U.P. and Anr.: (2007) 7 SCC 378, Rakesh and Anr. v. State of Haryana: 2001 Cr.L.J. 3511 and Lok Ram v. Nihal Singh: (2006) 10 SCC 192 and concluded that: -

"16. In view of the aforesaid discussion it is clear that the basic requirement of Section 319 Cr.P.C. is that the court must have reasonable satisfaction from the evidence collected during inquiry or trial to the fact that some other persons against whom no charge sheet have been submitted, had committed an offence and for such offence he should be tried along with those accused who have been charge sheeted. The aforesaid power, by the trial court, no doubt should be exercised sparingly and that should be exercised only to achieve criminal justice. If there is even no remote possibility or likelihood of conviction, the court will refuse to exercise the power.

17. There is no compelling duty of the court to proceed against the other persons. Merely on the basis of the suspicious of the involvement in the offence, might not be enough, to exercise the power, for summoning the other person under Section 319 Cr.P.C. unless there is prospect of the conviction. If from the evidence collected during inquiry or trial prima facie commission of offence is disclosed against other person then after satisfaction the trial court in exercise of judicial discretion can summon the other person, under Section 319 Cr.P.C., to face the trial along with other accused.

13. In Municipal Corpn. of Delhi v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi: (1983) 1 SCC 1, the Hon?ble Supreme Court held that: -

"19. In these circumstances, therefore, if the prosecution can at any stage produce evidence which satisfies the court that the other accused or those who have not been arrayed as accused against whom proceedings have been quashed have also committed the offence the Court can take cognizance against them and try them along with the other accused. But, we would hasten to add that this is really an extraordinary power which is conferred on the court and should be used very sparingly and only if compelling reasons exist for taking cognizance against the other person against whom action has not been taken..."

(emphasis added)

14. The aforesaid principles laid down in Municipal Corpn. of Delhi v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi (supra) have been followed and reaffirmed in Jamin v. State of U.P.: 2025 SCC OnLine SC 506.

15. In Hardeep Singh v. State of Punjab: (2014) 3 SCC 92, a Constitution Bench consisting of five Hon'ble Judges held that: -

"105. Power under Section 319 CrPC is a discretionary and an extraordinary power. It is to be exercised sparingly and only in those cases where the circumstances of the case so warrant. It is not to be exercised because the Magistrate or the Sessions Judge is of the opinion that some other person may also be guilty of committing that offence. Only where strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person from the evidence led before the court that such power should be exercised and not in a casual and cavalier manner.

106. Thus, we hold that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of his complicity. The test that has to be applied is one which is more than prima facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge, but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence, if goes unrebutted, would lead to conviction. In the absence of such satisfaction, the court should refrain from exercising power under Section 319 CrPC. In Section 319 CrPC the purpose of providing if "it appears from the evidence that any person not being the accused has committed any offence? is clear from the words "for which such person could be tried together with the accused". The words used are not "for which such person could be convicted". There is, therefore, no scope for the court acting under Section 319 CrPC to form any opinion as to the guilt of the accused."

16. The trial court observed that the complainant Smt. Chhotka has not assigned any specific role to the opposite party no. 3 and the injured witness PW-3 has clearly denied the presence of any person other than the opposite party no. 2, at the time of the incident. In these circumstances, the trial court found no good ground to summon the opposite party no. 3 as an additional accused to be tried.

17. The aforesaid reasoning assigned by the trial court after due consideration of the facts and circumstances of the case and the relevant law, does not suffer from any error or illegality warranting interference by this court in exercise of its appellate power.

18. The appeal lacks merit and the same is dismissed at the admission stage.

19. Before parting with the case, the Court is constrained to put it on record that this Court has come across several requests for adjournment of cases on the ground of the learned Counsel being engaged before the District Courts or Tribunals. There has been a practice to give precedence to attending to professional duties to provide assistance to the High Court as compared to the subordinate Courts and Tribunals. The Advocates generally themselves give priority to attending fresh matters before the High Courts. However, at times they deliberately avoid attending the hearing of fresh cases in order to get the matter passed over without any hearing and without any order being passed, so as to merely keep the matter pending, even though it does not deserve admission. This gives rise to an artificial and unwarranted increase in pendency of matters before the High Court. Further, the proceedings of trial pending before the trial Court are adjourned repetitively on the pretext of pendency of the matter before the High Court, though no interim order has been passed by the High Court and this causes unwarranted delay in conclusion of the trial.

20. Repetitive adjournments on the ground of the Advocates being engaged in the subordinate Courts or Tribunals and their non-appearance without assigning any reason, shows lack of respect towards the professional duties of Advocates, besides showing lack of respect towards the High Court. It also highlights the falling standards in the profession of Advocacy. Therefore, the Court requests the learned members of the bar to realize the importance of their role as responsible officers of the Court, improve the standards of assistance being provided by them and refrain from seeking adjournments on unreasonable and frivolous grounds, which results in decreased productivity of the Court and creates hurdles in speedy dispensation of justice.

Whether delay in lodging FIR, delay in recording statement of material witness, non-compliance of Section 27 of the Evidence Act and defective recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. vitiate the prosecution case and the conviction recorded by the trial court.

23. P.W.5/Dr. S.K. Yadav proved the post mortem report and its contents before the trial court which was marked as Exh. Ka-5.

PW 1-Ravindra Chauhan

24. Ravindra Chauhan, PW-1 is the first informant and the deceased's son. PW-1 is not an eye-witness. PW-1 while deposing before learned trial court primarily reiterated the contents of the FIR and stated that his father had illicit relations with Gulabi Devi. On 06.12.2012 his father left for village Chakdaha on his motorcycle UP 53 Y 1299 with some ornaments for Gulabi Devi. After reaching village Chakdaha his father told him that he would return on the next day. His uncle Jagdish Chauhan had seen his father with the three accused persons at about 05:30 P.M. on 16.12.2012 on the road from Campierganj to Nautanwa. His father did not return home on the next date and the mobile phone of the latter was also switched off. They went on a look out for his father. On reaching Chakdaha village they came to know that 23.12.2012, his father was done to death by Gulabi Devi, Rajendra and Shiv Prasad. The accused thereafter threw the body of the deceased near the Rapti river flowing through village Mathia. After receiving the aforesaid information from the villagers at Chakdaha PW-1 reached village Mathia and found his father's body lying on the banks of the river Rapti. According to PW-1 the body of the deceased was pulled out of the river and laid at another place with the help of the villagers. PW-1 thereafter submitted a tehrir at police station Campierganj.

PW-2-Masendra

25. Masendra, PW-2 is the second son of the deceased who is not an eyewitness. The testimony of PW-2 largely repeated the version of PW-1 namely, illicit relations of the deceased with Gulabi Devi, the deceased leaving the house to present ornaments to Gulabi Devi and his disappearance thereafter. According to him his father was last seen on 16.12.2012 at 03:30 P.M. by his uncle-Jagdish on the road from Campierganj to Nautanwa. On the information provided by the villagers they reached the site where his father's body was lying on the bank of Rapti river.

P.W.-3-Jagdish

26. Jagdish who is the brother of the deceased was introduced as PW-3. PW-3 claims to be witness of last seen. PW-3 while testifying before the learned trial court stated that on 16.12.2012 his brother Ramkishore left his village to meet Gulabi Devi at her house. On the same day while returning to his village from Campierganj he saw his brother with Gulabi Devi, Rajendra and Shiv Prasad Chaudhary at 3:30 pm on the road from Campierganj to Nautanwa. PW-3 thereafter deposed that on that day his brother was done to death by the accused persons at about 09:30 P.M. The information about the murder was given to him by the crowd which had gathered near the Peepal tree. However, no one dared to come forward out of fear of the accused persons. They found his brother′s body near the Rapti river and pulled out the same. The body was wrapped up in the ″saree″ of Gulabi Devi. Gulabi Devi wore the saree when she had visited their house. PW-3 categorically testified that he had not seen the incident. He came to know about the incident after two days. The body of the deceased was found 7 to 8 days thereafter.

P.W.4-Pappu Chauhan

27. Pappu Chauhan the son of the deceased deposed as PW-4. The articles which were recovered were produced before the court in front of P.W.4. The P.W.4 identified the cap, muffler and the rope which was produced in the court which was then marked as Material Exhs. 1, 2 and 3 respectively. Under cross examination the P.W.4 stated that the sealed packet was opened in front of him. The packet containing the material exhibits did not bear the seal or signatures of the court.

P.W.7-Lakshman Rai/Investigating Officer

28. The Investigating Officer-Lakshman Rai was introduced by the prosecution as P.W.7. The P.W.7 who had effected the recoveries from the accused person testified that the police remand of accused-Rajendra was granted on 18.01.2013. The police took the said accused into custody from the jail and brought him to recover the rope which was used in the commission of murder. The said rope as well as the muffler and cap of the deceased was recovered in the presence of P.W.3-Jagdish and P.W.4-Pappu.

29. The P.W.7 also testified that the statement of P.W.3-Jagdish was recorded on 26.01.2013. The Investigating Officer also proved the charge-sheet which was marked as Exh.Ka-11.

Submissions from the Bar:

Arguments on behalf of the appellants

30. Shri Kamal Krishna, learned Senior Counsel and Amicus Curiae, assisted by Shri Neelabh Srivastava, learned counsel have canvassed the following submissions in favour of the appellants as under:

I. There was inordinate delay in lodgement of the FIR. The FIR is an afterthought.

II. The case is based entirely on circumstantial evidence. However, the prosecution has not been able to establish the complete chain of incriminating evidences.

III. The P.W.1 and P.W.2 were not witnesses of last seen.

IV. The evidence of P.W.3 who claims to be a witness of last seen is unreliable.

V. There is a delay in recording the statement of P.W.3 which vitiates the same.

VI. Motive of the accused to commit the offence has not been established.

VI. Medical evidence contradicts the prosecution case.

VII. Recovery of the articles is contrary to the provisions of Section 27 of the Indian Evidence Act and cannot be pressed into service to implicate the accused persons.

VIII. The site plan of the incident is unreliable.

IX. The material incriminating circumstances were not put to the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

X. The prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. In fact it is a case of no evidence.

XI. The learned trial court erred in law by finding the appellants guilty and convicting them against the weight of evidence.

Arguments on behalf of the State:

31. Shri Paritosh Kumar Malviya, learned A.G.A.-I and Shri Suchit Tandon, learned A.G.A. have vehemently opposed the submissions of learned Senior Counsel and have made the following submissions made the following submissions:

I. The delay in lodging the FIR is not inordinate so as to impact the credibility of the prosecution case.

II. The chain of incriminating circumstances against the accused has been fully established.

III. The prosecution has proved all the incriminating links in the chain of circumstances against the accused appellants.

IV. The motive to commit the offence against the accused persons has been established.

V. The evidence of last seen is reliable.

VI. The incriminating articles were recovered at the pointing out of the accused persons.

VII. The prosecution has established the case against the accused-appellants beyond reasonable doubt.

VIII. The judgement of the trial court has correctly appraised the evidences and is liable to be upheld.

Appraisal of Evidence:

I. F.I.R.: Delay

32. The deceased disappeared on 16.12.2012. The family members of the deceased including PW 1, 2, 3 & 4 did not lodge any missing report in regard to the aforesaid disappearance. The testimonies of the said family members before the learned trial court also do not depict any urgent efforts to look out and search for the deceased. PW 1, PW 2, PW 3 and PW 4 also failed to inform the police immediately after the disappearance of the latter. The F.I.R. was lodged on 23.12.2012 after the body of the deceased was discovered near the banks of the Rapti river. The PW-3 as well as the family members testified that they were aware that he was last seen with the accused persons on 16.12.2012. However, F.I.R. was not lodged on a timely basis despite the fact that nothing was heard from the deceased for almost a week.

33. The delay in the lodgement of the F.I.R. could not be explained by the prosecution before the learned trial court. The F.I.R. was got registered as an afterthought and the said delay in lodging the same is fatal to the prosecution case.

II Chain of incriminating circumstances:

(i) Last Seen.

34. This is a case of circumstantial evidence. The first incriminating circumstance brought out by the prosecution is that the deceased was last seen in the presence of the accused persons at about 3:30 PM on 16.12.2012 by P.W.3. The PW-3 has also testified to that effect before the learned trial court. The post mortem report which was drawn up on 24.12.2012 opines that the death had occurred 4 days prior in time. On the basis of the post mortem report, it is evident that the deceased was alive till 20.12.2012. There is real possibility of deceased meeting other people in the intervening period from 16.12.2012 to 20.12.2012. Even if the prosecution case is taken on its face value the accused persons were not seen with the deceased at a time proximate to the death of the latter.

35. Furthermore, the doctor PW-5 under cross-examination has stated that there is possibility that the deceased sustained the fatal injury in a fall. PW-3 therefore cannot be called a witness of last seen. The first link in the chain of incriminating circumstances is not established.

II Chain of incriminating circumstances:

(ii) Credibility of P.W.3

36. The credibility of statement of P.W.3 insofar as he claims to be a witness of last seen itself is highly doubtful. The P.W.3 has stated that he saw the deceased on 16.12.2020 at about 3:30 P.M. The deceased did not return home on the night of 16.12.2012, and in fact had disappeared thereafter. P.W.3 did not alert the police authorities or inform his family members about the event of last seen for a period of almost one week. Absence of pressing efforts by PW 3 to search for his missing brother or lodge a missing report or tender a complaint to the police authorities is evident from evidence in the record. The aforesaid conduct of P.W.3 is highly suspicious and dents his credibility. The possibility of P.W.3 of incriminating the accused persons as an afterthought cannot be ruled out. P.W. 3 is an unreliable witness. The second link in the chain of incriminating circumstances is thus broken irreparably.

II. Chain of incriminating circumstances:

(iii) Delay in recording statement of P.W.3

37. There is another aspect which impeaches the credibility of the prosecution case. PW-3 is the star witness of the prosecution. He was also a witness to the recovery and inquest proceedings. The inquest as well as recovery proceedings were drawn up on 23.12.2012. However, the statement of PW-3 was recorded by PW-7 on 26.01.2013. 38. The aforesaid delay in recording of the statement was not satisfactorily explained by PW-7 in his testimony. In fact, there was no cause for delay in recording the said statement of PW-7. The said delay renders the prosecution case suspect upon cumulative consideration of the facts, circumstances and evidences of this case.

39. The conclusions made above are supported with good authority in point. The Supreme Court in Shahid Khan Vs. State of Rajasthan ((2016) 4 SCC 96) while considering the effect of unexplained delay in recording the statement of a material witness by the Investigating Officer has held as under:

"20. The statements of PW 25 Mirza Majid Beg and PW 24 Mohamed Shakir were recorded after 3 days of the occurrence. No explanation is forthcoming as to why they were not examined for 3 days. It is also not known as to how the police came to know that these witnesses saw the occurrence. The delay in recording the statements casts a serious doubt about their being eyewitnesses to the occurrence. It may suggest that the investigating officer was deliberately marking time with a view to decide about the shape to be given to the case and the eyewitnesses to be introduced. The circumstances in this case lend such significance to this delay. PW 25 Mirza Majid Beg and PW 24 Mohamed Shakir, in view of their unexplained silence and delayed statement to the police, do not appear to us to be wholly reliable witnesses. There is no corroboration of their evidence from any other independent source either. We find it rather unsafe to rely upon their evidence only to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellants. The High Court has failed to advert to the contentions raised by the appellants and reappreciate the evidence thereby resulting in miscarriage of justice. In our opinion, the case against the appellants has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt."

II. Chain of incriminating circumstances:

(iv) Motive

40. The PW 1, PW 2 and PW 3 in their testimonies ascribe the illicit relationship of the appellant Gulabi Devi and the deceased as the motive for the offence. An illicit relationship of this nature is bound to create strains in any family equations. However, in the instant case it appears that the family was accepting the illicit relationship with open arms. Furthermore, no animosity between Gulabi Devi and the deceased has been brought out in the evidence. In fact it appears from the said evidence that Gulabi Devi and the deceased were having a warm and cordial relationship. There was no cause for Gulabi Devi to murder the deceased. The motive of illicit relationship between Gulabi Devi and the deceased ascribed by prosecution witnesses is not liable to believed.

41. It is equally noteworthy that there is no evidence pertaining to the illicit relationship of Gulabi Devi with the other co-accused persons or for that matter any animosity between the deceased and the other two accused persons namely Shiv Prasad Chaudhary and Rajendra Chaudhary. Save the bald statements by PW 1, PW 2 and PW 3 which appear to be completely unreliable, there is no evidence to establish illicit relations of Gulabi Devi with other accused. The prosecution has failed to prove the motive for the accused appellants to commit the offence.

II Chain of incriminating circumstances:

(v.) Recoveries

42. The other link in the chain of incriminating circumstances as claimed by the prosecution is the recovery of muffler and cap which were the personal effects of the deceased. The recovery of the rope is of no avail since the death was not caused by strangulation.

43. The recovery was made from bushes in an open place. The place of recovery was accessible to one and all. Moreover, the recovery was made on 18.01.2013, which is almost one month after the deceased had disappeared. In these circumstances, lack of independent witnesses in the recovery memo makes it unsafe to rely on the said documents.

44. As seen earlier the said recoveries were made at the pointing out of accused Rajendra. The disclosure statement of the said Rajendra Chaudhary was not recorded prior to effecting the said recoveries. Absence of the disclosure statements of Rajendra and failure to observe the imperative procedural prerequisites of Section 27 vitiates the recoveries. The aforesaid conclusion will be fortified by authorities holding the field.

45. The imperative mandate of recording discovery statement of an accused prior to the recovery was emphasized by the Supreme Court in Rajesh and Anr. Vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh:

"22. Section 26 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (for brevity, 'the Evidence Act'), provides that no confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer shall be proved against such person, unless it is made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate. Section 27, thereafter, is in the nature of an exception to Section 26 of the Evidence Act. It states that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved. Therefore, it is essential under Section 27 of the Evidence Act that the person concerned must be 'accused of an offence' and being in the 'custody of a police officer', he or she must give information leading to the discovery of a fact and so much of that information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, that relates distinctly to the fact discovered, may be proved against him. In effect, both aspects, viz, being in 'the custody of a police officer' and being 'accused of an offence', are indispensable pre-requisites to render a confession made to the police admissible to a limited extent, by bringing into play the exception postulated under Section 27 of the Evidence Act.

23. In this regard, reference may be made to Bodhraj alias Bodha and others vs. State of Jammu & Kashmir, (2002) 8 SCC 45 , wherein this Court had observed that the requirement of 'police custody' is productive of extremely anomalous results and may lead to the exclusion of valuable evidence in cases where a person, after committing a crime meets a police officer and states the circumstances of the crime which lead to the discovery of the dead body, weapon or any other material fact, in consequence of the information thus received from him, and he is subsequently taken into custody and becomes an 'accused'. This Court pointed out that this information, which would otherwise be admissible, becomes inadmissible under Section 26 of the Evidence Act as it did not come from a person in the 'custody of a police officer' or rather, came from a person not in the 'custody of a police officer'. In other words, the exact information given by the accused 'while in custody', which led to recovery of the articles can be proved. It was noted that this doctrine is founded on the principle that if any fact is discovered as a search was made on the strength of any information obtained from a prisoner, such a discovery is a guarantee that the information supplied by the prisoner is true.

24. Thereafter, in State of Karnataka vs. David Rozario and another, (2002) 7 SCC 728 , this Court held that information which is otherwise admissible under Section 27 of the Evidence Act would become inadmissible, if it did not come from a person in the 'custody of a police officer' or came from a person 'not in the custody of a police officer'. It was further held that what is admissible is the information and not the opinion formed on it by the police officer and, in other words, the exact information given by the accused while in 'custody' which led to recovery of the articles has to be proved. The two essential requirements, per this Court, are that: (i) the person giving the information must be 'accused of an offence'; and (ii) he must be in 'police custody'.

25. Again, in Ashish Jain vs. Makrand Singh and others, (2019) 3 SCC 770 , this Court held that once a confessional statement of the accused is found, on facts, to be involuntary, it would be hit by Article 20(3) of the Constitution of India, rendering such a confession inadmissible. It was further noted that there is an embargo on accepting self-incriminatory evidence, but if it leads to the recovery of material objects in relation to a crime, it is most often taken to hold evidentiary value as per the circumstances of each case. This Court further cautioned that if such a statement is made under undue pressure and compulsion from the Investigating Officer, the evidentiary value of such a statement leading to the recovery is nullified.

26. More recently, in Boby vs. State of Kerala, Criminal Appeal No. 1439 of 2009, decided on 12.01.2023, this Court referred to the decision of the Privy Council in Pulukuri Kotayya vs. King Emperor, AIR 1947 Privy Council 67, wherein Section 27 of the Evidence Act had been considered at length and it was noted that Section 27 provides an exception to the prohibition imposed by the preceding provisions and enables certain statements made by an 'accused' in 'police custody' to be proved. It was observed that the condition necessary to bring Section 27 into operation is that the discovery of a fact in consequence of information received from a person 'accused of any offence' in the 'custody of a police officer' must be deposed to, and thereupon so much of the information, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved. It was observed that normally, Section 27 is brought into operation when a person in 'police custody' produces from some place of concealment some object, such as a dead body, a weapon or ornaments, said to be connected with the crime, of which the informant is accused. However, the Privy Council concluded that the exception to Section 26 added by Section 27 should not be held to nullify the substance of the provision and it would be fallacious to treat the 'fact discovered' as equivalent to the object produced; the 'fact discovered' embraces the place from which the object is produced and the knowledge of the accused as to this, and the information given must relate distinctly to this fact. By way of example, it was elucidated that information supplied by a person in custody that "I will produce a knife concealed in the roof of my house" does not lead to the discovery of a knife; as knives were discovered many years ago, but if it leads to the discovery of the fact that a knife is concealed in the house of the informant to his knowledge and if the knife is proved to have been used in the commission of the offence, the fact discovered is very relevant. Noting this principle, this Court observed that Section 27 of the Evidence Act requires that the 'fact discovered' embraces the place from which the object is produced and the knowledge of the 'accused' as to this and the information given must relate distinctly to the said fact."

46. The mandatory requirement of the discovery statement under Section 27 of the Evidence Act was reiterated in Ramanand v. State of U.P. held as follows:

"56. If, it is say of the investigating officer that the appellant-accused while in custody on his own free will and volition made a statement that he would lead to the place where he had hidden the weapon of offence along with his bloodstained clothes then the first thing that the investigating officer should have done was to call for two independent witnesses at the police station itself. Once the two independent witnesses arrive at the police station thereafter in their presence the accused should be asked to make an appropriate statement as he may desire in regard to pointing out the place where he is said to have hidden the weapon of offence. When the accused while in custody makes such statement before the two independent witnesses (panch witnesses) the exact statement or rather the exact words uttered by the accused should be incorporated in the first part of the panchnama that the investigating officer may draw in accordance with law. This first part of the panchnama for the purpose of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is always drawn at the police station in the presence of the independent witnesses so as to lend credence that a particular statement was made by the accused expressing his willingness on his own free will and volition to point out the place where the weapon of offence or any other article used in the commission of the offence had been hidden. Once the first part of the panchnama is completed thereafter the police party along with the accused and the two independent witnesses (panch witnesses) would proceed to the particular place as may be led by the accused. If from that particular place anything like the weapon of offence or bloodstained clothes or any other article is discovered then that part of the entire process would form the second part of the panchnama. This is how the law expects the investigating officer to draw the discovery panchnama as contemplated under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. If we read the entire oral evidence of the investigating officer then it is clear that the same is deficient in all the aforesaid relevant aspects of the matter.

57. The reason why we are not ready or rather reluctant to accept the evidence of discovery is that the investigating officer in his oral evidence has not said about the exact words uttered by the accused at the police station. The second reason to discard the evidence of discovery is that the investigating officer has failed to prove the contents of the discovery panchnama. The third reason to discard the evidence is that even if the entire oral evidence of the investigating officer is accepted as it is, what is lacking is the authorship of concealment. The fourth reason to discard the evidence of the discovery is that although one of the panch witnesses PW 2 Chhatarpal Raidas was examined by the prosecution in the course of the trial, yet has not said a word that he had also acted as a panch witness for the purpose of discovery of the weapon of offence and the bloodstained clothes. The second panch witness, namely, Pratap though available was not examined by the prosecution for some reason. Therefore, we are now left with the evidence of the investigating officer so far as the discovery of the weapon of offence and the bloodstained clothes as one of the incriminating pieces of circumstances is concerned. We are conscious of the position of law that even if the independent witnesses to the discovery panchnama are not examined or if no witness was present at the time of discovery or if no person had agreed to affix his signature on the document, it is difficult to lay down, as a proposition of law, that the document so prepared by the police officer must be treated as tainted and the discovery evidence unreliable. In such circumstances, the Court has to consider the evidence of the investigating officer who deposed to the fact of discovery based on the statement elicited from the accused on its own worth."

47. The recoveries made in the teeth of law laid down in Rajesh(supra) and Ramanand(supra) and do not incriminate the appellants nor link them with the offence.

V. Site Plan:

48. While drawing up the site plan of the place of incident the discovery statement of the accused Gulabi Devi pertaining to the place of occurrence at the site was not recorded. In absence of the discovery statement the site plan will not come to the aid of the prosecution. The failure of the prosecution to record the discovery statement of Gulabi Devi while drawing up the site plan of the place of incident renders the same inadmissible in law being in the teeth of the law laid by the Supreme Court in Rajesh (supra) and Ramanand(supra). In this wake the place of incident cannot be established by the prosecution.

Section 313 Cr.P.C.

49. In the proceedings under Section 313 Cr.P.C., vague and general references were made to the prosecution evidence. Attention of the accused persons were called to incriminating circumstances by simply referencing the fact that P.W.1 to P.W.7 had given their testimonies and they had heard the same.

50. Admittedly, in proceedings under Section 313 Cr.P.C. attention of the accused persons was not drawn to specific incriminating evidences with material particulars. The failure of the prosecution to faithfully comply with the procedure of Section 313 Cr.P.C. led to violation of principles of natural justice which disabled the accused from effectively tendering their defence. The proceedings under Section 313 Cr.P.C. are vitiated.

51. The scope of Section 313 Cr.P.C. and adverse impact of non-compliance thereof have been stated in authorities of long standing.

52. The Supreme Court in Nar Singh Vs. State of Haryana examined significance and propounded the scope of Section 313 Cr.P.C. by holding:-

"10. There are two kinds of examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The first under Section 313 (1) (a) Cr.P.C. relates to any stage of the inquiry or trial; while the second under Section 313 (1) (b) Cr.P.C. takes place after the prosecution witnesses are examined and before the accused is called upon to enter upon his defence. The former is particular and optional; but the latter is general and mandatory. In Usha K. Pillai v. Raj K. Srinivas & Ors., (1993) 3 SCC 208 , this Court held that the Court is empowered by Section 313 (1) clause (a) to question the accused at any stage of the inquiry or trial; while Section 313(1) clause (b) obligates the Court to question the accused before he enters his defence on any circumstance appearing in prosecution evidence against him.

11. The object of Section 313 (1)(b) Cr.P.C. is to bring the substance of accusation to the accused to enable the accused to explain each and every circumstance appearing in the evidence against him. The provisions of this section are mandatory and cast a duty on the court to afford an opportunity to the accused to explain each and every circumstance and incriminating evidence against him. The examination of accused under Section 313 (1)(b) Cr.P.C. is not a mere formality. Section 313 Cr.P.C. prescribes a procedural safeguard for an accused, giving him an opportunity to explain the facts and circumstances appearing against him in the evidence and this opportunity is valuable from the standpoint of the accused. The real importance of Section 313 Cr.P.C. lies in that, it imposes a duty on the Court to question the accused properly and fairly so as to bring home to him the exact case he will have to meet and thereby, an opportunity is given to him to explain any such point.

16. Undoubtedly, the importance of a statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., insofar as the accused is concerned, can hardly be minimised. The statutory provision is based on the rules of natural justice for an accused, who must be made aware of the circumstances being put against him so that he can give a proper explanation to meet that case. If an objection as to Section 313 Cr.P.C. statement is taken at the earliest stage, the Court can make good the defect and record additional statement of the accused as that would be in the interest of all. When objections as to defective Section 313 Cr.P.C. statement is raised in the appellate court, then difficulty arises for the prosecution as well as the accused. When the trial court is required to act in accordance with the mandatory provisions of Section 313 Cr.P.C., failure on the part of the trial court to comply with the mandate of the law, in our view, cannot automatically enure to the benefit of the accused. Any omission on the part of the Court to question the accused on any incriminating circumstance would not ipso facto vitiate the trial, unless some material prejudice is shown to have been caused to the accused. Insofar as noncompliance of mandatory provisions of Section 313 Cr.P.C., it is an error essentially committed by the learned Sessions Judge. Since justice suffers in the hands of the Court, the same has to be corrected or rectified in the appeal.

20. The question whether a trial is vitiated or not depends upon the degree of the error and the accused must show that non-compliance of Section 313 Cr.P.C. has materially prejudiced him or is likely to cause prejudice to him. Merely because of defective questioning under Section 313 Cr.P.C., it cannot be inferred that any prejudice had been caused to the accused, even assuming that some incriminating circumstances in the prosecution case had been left out. When prejudice to the accused is alleged, it has to be shown that accused has suffered some disability or detriment in relation to the safeguard given to him under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Such prejudice should also demonstrate that it has occasioned failure of justice to the accused. The burden is upon the accused to prove that prejudice has been caused to him or in the facts and circumstances of the case, such prejudice may be implicit and the Court may draw an inference of such prejudice. Facts of each case have to be examined to determine whether actually any prejudice has been caused to the appellant due to omission of some incriminating circumstances being put to the accused."

53. A similar view was taken in Sujit Biswas Vs. State of Assam:-

"12. It is a settled legal proposition that in a criminal trial, the purpose of examining the accused person under Section 313 Cr.P.C., is to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice, i.e. audi alterum partem. This means that the accused may be asked to furnish some explanation as regards the incriminating circumstances associated with him, and the court must take note of such explanation. In a case of circumstantial evidence, the same is essential to decide whether or not the chain of circumstances is complete. No matter how weak the evidence of the prosecution may be, it is the duty of the court to examine the accused, and to seek his explanation as regards the incriminating material that has surfaced against him. The circumstances which are not put to the accused in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C., cannot be used against him and must be excluded from consideration. The said statement cannot be treated as evidence within the meaning of Section 3 of the Evidence Act, as the accused cannot be cross-examined with reference to such statement.

14. Whether the abscondance of an accused can be taken as a circumstance against him has been considered by this Court in Bipin Kumar Mondal v. State of West Bengal, AIR 2010 SC 3638 , wherein the Court observed: "27. In Matru alias Girish Chandra v. State of U.P., AIR 1971 SC 1050 , this Court repelled the submissions made by the State that as after commission of the offence the accused had been absconding, therefore, the inference can be drawn that he was a guilty person observing as under: "19. The appellant's conduct in absconding was also relied upon. Now, mere absconding by itself does not necessarily lead to a firm conclusion of guilty mind. Even an innocent man may feel panicky and try to evade arrest when wrongly suspected of a grave crime such is the instinct of self-preservation. The act of absconding is no doubt relevant piece of evidence to be considered along with other evidence but its value would always depend on the circumstances of each case. Normally the courts are disinclined to attach much importance to the act of absconding, treating it as a very small item in the evidence for sustaining conviction. It can scarcely be held as a determining link in completing the chain of circumstantial evidence which must admit of no other reasonable hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused. In the present case the appellant was with Ram Chandra till the FIR was lodged. If thereafter he felt that he was being wrongly suspected and he tried to keep out of the way we do not think this circumstance can be considered to be necessarily evidence of a guilty mind attempting to evade justice. It is not inconsistent with his innocence.' 28. Abscondence by a person against whom FIR has been lodged, having an apprehension of being apprehended by the police, cannot be said to be unnatural. Thus, in view of the above, we do not find any force in the submission made by Shri Bhattacharjee that mere absconding by the appellant after commission of the crime and remaining untraceable for such a long time itself can establish his guilt. Absconding by itself is not conclusive either of guilt or of guilty conscience." While deciding the said case, a large number of earlier judgments were also taken into consideration by the Court, including Matru (supra); and State of M.P. thr. CBI & Ors. v. Paltan Mallah & Ors., AIR 2005 SC 733."

54. The Supreme Court in State of U.P. Vs. Mohd Iqram & Anr. has held as under:-

"12. So far as the issue of rape of the deceased prior to her murder by Suresh Kumar, accused, her ex-husband, is concerned, the trial court has recorded findings of fact on this aspect in the negative. Undoubtedly, post-mortem report contains such observations, but Dr. G.R. Sharma (PW.1) has not made any such reference either in his examination-in-chief or cross-examination. Nor this aspect had ever been put to either of the three accused in their statements recorded under Section 313 of Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (hereinafter called 'Cr.P.C.'). We fail to understand as under what circumstances it was permissible for the High Court to make such observations about the post-mortem report. Accused Suresh Kumar has been acquitted by the trial court. The State, for reasons best known to it, did not prefer any appeal against the said order of acquittal. We are of the considered opinion that it was not permissible for the High Court to castigate the accused Suresh Kumar with such observations holding him guilty of committing rape and subsequently murder of his ex-wife Rashmi. Undoubtedly, the post-mortem report had been proved but that does not mean that each and every content thereof is stood proved or can be held to be admissible. Such observations cannot be termed to be a substantive piece of evidence. Dr. G.R. Sharma (PW.1) did not even whisper about the same in his statement made in the court which is the only substantive piece of evidence in law. The court cannot place reliance on incriminating material against the accused, unless it is put to him during his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Thus, the High Court committed an error by taking into consideration the inadmissible evidence for the purpose of deciding the criminal appeals and holding the person guilty who had already been acquitted by the trial court. The post-mortem report had been examined at the time of framing of the charges. The trial court did not frame any charge under Section 376 IPC or Section 376 read with Section 511 IPC. More so, no witness had ever mentioned anything in this respect. Thus, it is beyond any stretch of imagination of any person, how such observations could be made by the High Court."

55. The mechanical conduct of proceedings under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in the instant case is in the teeth of the law laid down in preceding case laws. In the facts and circumstances of this case the non compliance of Section 313 Cr.P.C. in the spirit of the precedents discussed earlier vitiates the impugned judgement. Considering the long period which has elapsed since the commission of the offence and in view of other infirmities in the prosecution, it will not be in the interest of justice to remand the matter for fresh initiation of proceedings under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

Judgment of trial court

56. Learned trial court erred in law by placing reliance on the testimony of PW 3 and treating him as a witness of last seen. The recoveries of personal effects of the deceased were in the teeth of Section 27 of the Evidence Act. However, the learned trial court placed reliance on the same to return home a finding of guilt against the appellants. The learned trial court erred in law by upholding the proceedings under Section 313 CrPC which was conducted in a mechanical manner and were vitiated.

57. The learned trial court neglected to consider the delay in lodgment of the FIR and also failure of the prosecution to prove the motive of the appellants to commit the offence.

58. The learned Court fell into error by returning home finding of guilt even though the links in the chain of incriminating circumstances could not be established and the hypothesis consistent with the innocence of accused is very strong.

59. The judgment rendered by the learned trial court is perverse and contrary to the evidences in the record. The impugned order dated 18.05.2022 and 20.05.2022 in Sessions Trial No.201 of 2013 (State Vs. Gulabi Devi and others) is liable to be set aside and is set aside.

Conclusions:

60. In the wake of the preceding discussion this Court finds that the prosecution could not establish the chain of incriminating circumstances against the accused appellants. The prosecution has failed to prove the charges under Sections 302 and 201 IPC against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt. The accused appellants are acquitted of the charges which were laid against them by the trial court and which are the subject matter of this appeal.

61. The Criminal Appeal is allowed.

62. The appellants-Gulabi Devi, Rajendra Chaudhari and Shivprasad Chaudhari shall be forthwith released from prison and set forth at liberty unless required in any other criminal case.

63. The Court would also like to express its gratitude to Shri Kamal Krishna, learned Senior Counsel for assisting the Court as Amicus Curiae.

64. A copy of this judgment translated in Hindi to be served upon the appellants by the Secretary, District Legal Services Authority.

Issue for Consideration

(i) Matter pertains to the validity of the notification dated 19.04.2023 whereby the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua was merged with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura after a part thereof had been included within the extended territorial limits of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda pursuant to the notification dated 21.10.2022;
(ii) Whether the term "population" for the purposes of s.11-F of the Act, 1947 was to be determined on the basis of the actual population existing on the date of notification or the population reflected in the last preceding census, as defined under s.2(l) of the Act, 1947; and
(iii) Whether the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua fulfilled the requirement necessary for retaining its identity as a Gram Panchayat.

Headnotes

U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 – ss.2(l), 8, 11-F, 12 – U.P. Panchayati Raj Rules, 1947 – Rule 3-AAA(2) – U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 – s.3 – Gram Panchayat Karua constituted under s.12 of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 – State Government issued notification dated 21.10.2022 under s.3 of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916, whereby a part of Gram Panchayat Karua was included within the territorial jurisdiction of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, resulting in reduction of its area and population – Thereafter, notification dated 19.04.2023 issued under ss.3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947, whereby remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua was merged with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura on the ground that Gram Panchayat Karua ceased to fulfil the statutory requirements for its continued existence as a Gram Panchayat – Petitioner submitted representation contending that remaining population of Gram Panchayat Karua was 1,719, out of which 1,104 were voters, satisfying minimum population requirement of 1,000 prescribed under s.11-F – Petitioners challenged notification dated 19.04.2023 de-notifying Gram Panchayat Karua and merging it with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura on the ground that the remaining population did not fall below 1,000 – In affidavit filed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate before the High Court, it was stated that de-notification exercise was undertaken on the basis of population figures reflected in Census 2011, according to which population of remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua was 785, below 1,000

Held:

A. The term "Population" referred to in Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 has to be interpreted in the light of its definition contained in Section 2(l) of the Act, 1947, wherein it is defined to mean the population as ascertained in the last preceding census, the relevant figures whereof have been published – It is not in dispute that the last census was held in the year 2011 – Accordingly, the term "Population", wherever it finds mention in the Act of 1947, has to be understood in terms of its statutory definition, meaning thereby that the population as ascertained in the last census i.e. Census 2011 has to be taken into consideration for any purpose required under the Act of 1947 – According to the said census, the population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua is 785, which is far below the required population of 1,000, a precondition for maintaining its identity as a Gram Panchayat under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 – High Court, in the exercise of its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution, cannot interfere so as to interpret a statutory provision otherwise than what has been expressly provided in the statute itself

B. A bare perusal of Section 8 of the Act, 1947 would reveal that upon the inclusion of an area of a Gram Panchayat within a city, municipality, cantonment, notified area or Nagar Panchayat, the jurisdiction of the Gram Panchayat stands reduced by that part – However, it does not follow that the reduced area of the Gram Panchayat would necessarily retain its separate identity as a Gram Panchayat if it otherwise does not fulfil the statutory requirements prescribed for a Gram Panchayat – Section 8 of the Act, 1947 has to be read in consonance and harmony with the other provisions of the Act, 1947.

C. The function of the State Government in issuing a notification under Section 3 of the Act, 1947 establishing a Gram Sabha and in issuing a notification under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 declaring any area comprising a village or group of villages having, so far as practicable, a population of 1,000 to be a Panchayat under the Act is neither executive nor administrative; rather, it is legislative in nature – No adjudicatory duty is cast upon the Government in the discharge of these statutory functions of issuance of notification – The only question to be examined by the Government while issuing such a notification is whether the conditions prescribed under the statutory provisions have been fulfilled – Issuance of notifications under Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947 is an exercise undertaken by the State Government in terms of the statutory provisions contained in the Act, 1947 and the issuance of such notifications is an act of conditional legislation.

D. A notification issued as an act of conditional legislation can be challenged only if it exceeds the statutory mandate, lacks the requisite precedent conditions or violates constitutional rights – Petitioners failed to point out any violation of the aforesaid mandates so as to render the notification dated 19.04.2023 illegal or bad in law . Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner (s) : Sharad Pathak, Piyush Pathak
Advs. for the Respondent(s): C.S.C., Pankaj Gupta

(Delivered by Hon'ble Amitabh Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Shri Sharad Pathak, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Piyush Pathak, learned counsel for the petitioners and Shri Rajesh Tiwari, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondent and Shri Pankaj Gupta, learned counsel for the respondent nos.10 and 11.

2. The instant writ petition has been filed by the petitioners seeking the following reliefs :

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned notification dated 19.04.2023 so far as it relates to the de-notification of Village Panchayat Karua as mentioned at Item No.268 of the Notification dated 19.04.2023, which is annexed as Annexure No.1 to the writ petition.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the report dated 11.04.2023 submitted by opposite party nos.7 to 9 recommending for de-notification of Village Panchayat Karua, Tehsil Colonelganj, District Gonda which is annexed as Annexure No.2 to this writ petition.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the opposite parties to restore the status of Village Panchayat Karua as was existing prior to issuance of notification dated 19.04.2023 and further the time falling in between may be excluded from the existing term of 5 years of petitioner no.1 as well as other related members of Gram Sabha Karua."

3. Brief facts of the present case as canvassed by the learned counsel for the petitioners are that erstwhile Gram Panchayat Karua Development Block Colonelganj, District Gonda was a Gram Panchayat constituted under Section 12 of the Uttar Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 1947"). In the last election of the Gram Panchayat held in the year 2021-22, petitioner No.1 was elected as Pradhan. The tenure of the Gram Panchayat was five years, which has come to an end on 01.05.2026.

4. In the meantime, the State Government issued a notification dated 21.10.2022 under Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 1916), whereby a certain area of Gram Panchayat Karua was included within the territorial jurisdiction of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda. As a result of the notification dated 21.10.2022, the area of Gram Panchayat Karua was reduced, which consequently led to a reduction in its population. Thereafter, by another notification dated 19.04.2023 issued under Section 3 along with Section 11-F of the Act, 1947, the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua was merged and included in Gram Panchayat Kumhraura falling within Development Block Colonelganj, District Gonda.

5. A perusal of the reasons recorded against Entry No.268 of the notification dated 19.04.2023 indicates that a part of the population and area of Gram Panchayat Karua had been merged into Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda pursuant to Notification No.1825/नौ-6-2022-12सीवी/2022 dated 27.09.2022. As a consequence, Gram Panchayat Karua ceased to fulfil the statutory requirements for its continued existence as a Gram Panchayat. Accordingly, the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua was merged with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura.

6. Assailing the notification dated 19.04.2023, learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua, which has been included/merged with Village Panchayat Kumhraura is the result of an illegal and arbitrary exercise of power. It is submitted that the population of Gram Panchayat Karua even after the exclusion of the area included in Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda pursuant to the notification dated 27.09.2022 is 1,719 out of which 1,104 are voters. This satisfies the minimum population requirement of 1,000 prescribed under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that an incorrect report dated 13.02.2023 was forwarded by respondent no.5, District Panchayat Raj Officer, Gonda to respondent no.4, Chief Development Officer, Gonda on the basis of which the notification dated 19.04.2023 was issued. It has further been submitted that relying upon the said incorrect report dated 13.02.2023, respondent no.4, Chief Development Officer, Gonda addressed a letter dated 25.02.2023 to the Assistant Development Officer (Panchayat), Development Block, Colonelganj directing him to take appropriate steps for including the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua in an adjoining Gram Panchayat.

8. It has been alleged that upon learning of the aforesaid development, petitioner no.1, being Gram Pradhan of Gram Panchayat Karua, submitted a representation dated 01.03.2023 to respondent no. 4, Chief Development Officer, Gonda. Acting upon the said representation, respondent no.4 issued a letter dated 03.03.2023 directing respondent no.6, Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Colonelganj, District Gonda to inquire into the matter and submit the correct factual report. Thereafter, another letter dated 06.03.2023 was sent by Chief Development Officer, Gonda to Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Colonelganj, District Gonda. However, no response was received. Consequently, District Magistrate, Gonda again addressed a letter dated 28.03.2023 to Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Tehsil Colonelganj, District Gonda directing him to submit the correct report. In the meantime, Block Development Officer, Colonelganj, District Gonda, vide his letter dated 29.03.2023 forwarded a report regarding the Gram Panchayats affected by the extension of the territorial limits of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, Gonda, wherein the remaining population of Gram Panchayat Karua was shown as 785 as per 2011 Census.

9. Feeling aggrieved, petitioner no.1 submitted a detail representation dated 31.03.2023 to Chief Development Officer, Gonda, wherein it was stated that even after the extension of the territorial limits of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, Gonda, 1,104 voters continued to reside in the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua. It was further asserted that the report indicating the existing population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua as 785 was factually incorrect.

10. Upon the objections raised by the petitioners, respondent no.4, Chief Development Officer, Gonda issued a letter dated 31.03.2023 constituting a three-member Committee headed by District Development Officer to conduct spot and documentary verification and submit its report so that the objection raised by petitioner no.1 seeking cancellation of the earlier proposal for the merger of Gram Panchayat Karua could be decided finally.

11. It has been submitted that despite of the constitution of the three-member Committee vide letter dated 31.03.2023, no further steps were taken to decide the objections filed by petitioner no.1.

Consequently, petitioner no.1 submitted another representation dated 12.04.2023. Thereafter, Writ-C No.3297 of 2023 was filed before this Court seeking, inter alia, quashing of the report, if any, submitted by the district authorities for the de-notification of Gram Panchayat Karua and a direction to complete the inquiry by the three-member Committee as directed by Chief Development Officer, Gonda vide letter dated 31.03.2023. The said writ petition was disposed of by order dated 25.04.2023 directing that the inquiry be completed unless there existed any legal impediment. For the said purpose, liberty was also granted to petitioner no.1 to approach Chief Development Officer, Gonda.

12. It has been submitted that petitioner no.1 served a copy of the order dated 25.04.2023 upon the Chief Development Officer, Gonda. However, nothing was communicated to the petitioner no.1. Subsequently, petitioner no.1 came to know that the notification dated 19.04.2023 had already been issued de-notifying Gram Panchayat Karua and merging it with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura. Thereafter, the petitioners submitted a detail representation dated 25.05.2023 to respondent no.2, Director, Panchayati Raj, Lucknow under Rule 3-AAA(2) of U.P. Panchayati Raj Rules, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as the Rules, 1947) read with Section 8 of the Act, 1947 through registered post raising all objections.

13. The challenge raised by the petitioners in the present writ petition to the notification dated 19.04.2023, whereby Gram Panchayat Karua was de-notified and merged with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura is based on the contention that the remaining population of Gram Panchayat Karua even after a part of its area was merged into Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda pursuant to the notification dated 21.10.2022 issued under Section 3 of the Act, 1916 did not fall below the minimum population of 1,000. According to the petitioners, this factual assertion has remained unrebutted. It is, therefore, contended that the entire exercise culminating in the issuance of notification dated 19.04.2023 de-notifying Gram Panchayat Karua and merging it with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura is illegal, arbitrary and founded on incorrect facts.

14. This Court while entertaining the present writ petition passed an order dated 18.02.2025, which reads as under :

"1. Heard Shri Sharad Pathak, learned Counsel for the petitioners, Shri Rajesh Tiwari, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The contention of petitioners' counsel inter alia is that there are 293 petitioners in the writ petition and the details of their family members are mentioned in a chart annexed as Annexure No.3 to the writ petition and the total of the said members comes to 1719, therefore, to say that because in the Census of 2011, the population of the village at least the area which remains after merger of the other part with Nagar Palika Colonelganj was less than 1000, therefore, by the notification dated 19.04.2023, the said remaining part has been merged with another Gaon Sabha, appears to be apparently unreasonable.

3. We grant one opportunity to the Collector, District-Gonda to ascertain the aforesaid facts as to whether all the petitioners are residents of Gaon Sabha Karua, Tehsil Colonelganj or not, if so, whether the details of the family members mentioned in Annexure No.3 to the writ petition i.e. their number is correct or not. As if it is found to be correct then even if the case of the opposite parties is that these are the only residents of the said remaining part of the Gaon Sabha then also it will qualify to be recognized as a separate Gaon Sabha. Although, it is the case of the petitioner that there are other residents also. It is also asserted that the total voters for this remaining part are about 1104 from the document of the opposite parties annexed as Annexure No.13 (page No.205). In this regard, learned Counsel for the petitioners has placed reliance upon Section 8 of the U.P. Panchayati Raj Act, 1947 and Rule 3AAA(2) of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Rules, further, to submit even if the factual position is not found to be as mentioned above, even then the remaining part of the Gaon Sabha was entitled to continue as Gaon Sabha Karua as according to him, remaining part of the Gaon Sabha cannot be merged in another Gaon Sabha.

4. List/put up this case on 20.03.2025 amongst top ten cases.

5. Shri Rajesh Tiwari, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel shall communicate our order to all the opposite parties and ensure its compliance. Affidavit of compliance to be filed by the next date of listing.″

`15. In terms of the order dated 18.02.2025, an affidavit of compliance was filed and sworn by Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Colonelganj, Gonda, wherein it has been stated that out of 1,719 persons including the petitioners only 1,193 members submitted their Aadhaar cards and Pariwar Registers. The inquiry report dated 14.04.2025 on the basis of which the said affidavit has been filed and which has also been annexed thereto indicates that the claim of the petitioners is based on the actual population existing as on the date when the de-notification order dated 19.04.2023 was passed. However, the de-notification exercise was undertaken on the basis of the population figures reflected in the 2011 Census, which indicate that the population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua was 785 below 1,000. Accordingly, Gram Panchayat Karua was de-notified.

16. The aforesaid facts as narrated by the petitioners hereinabove in their pleadings available on the record of the writ petition suggest that the actual population of Gram Panchayat Karua at the time of the de-notification dated 19.04.2023 was more than 1,000. This factual aspect could not be controverted by the respondents in their counter affidavit or the subsequent affidavits filed by them. Rather, the stand taken by the respondents is that the exercise of de-notification was undertaken on the basis of the population figures reflected in the 2011 Census, according to which the population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua had fallen below 1,000 after the issuance of the notification dated 21.10.2022 under Section 3 of the Act, 1916, whereby the territorial limits of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda were extended resulting in the inclusion of a part of Gram Panchayat Karua within the said Nagar Palika Parishad.

17. The issue that falls for consideration before this Court is whether the notification dated 19.04.2023, whereby Gram Panchayat Karua was de-notified based on the population figures reflected in 2011 Census is valid, particularly when no exercise was undertaken to determine the current population of Gram Panchayat Karua while exercising powers under Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947 for de-notifying Gram Panchayat Karua and merging it with Gram Panchayat Kumhraura.

18. The statutory scheme under the Act, 1947 provides for the establishment of a Gram Sabha by issuing a notification under Section 3 of the Act, 1947 in the Official Gazette in respect of a village or a group of villages.

19. Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 provides that the State Government may, by notification, declare any area comprising a village or a group of villages to be a Panchayat area, having, so far as practicable, a population of 1,000.

20. Section 3 of the Act of 1947 reads as under :

"3. Gram Sabha - The State Government shall, by notification in the official Gazette, establish a Gram Sabha for a village or group of villages by such name as may be specified; Provided that where a Gram Sabha is established for a group of villages, the name of the village having the largest population shall be specified as the name of the Gram Sabha."

21. Section 11-F of the Act of 1947 reads as under :

"11-F-Declaration of Panchayat Area- The State Government may, by notification, declare any area comprising a village or group of villages, having, so far as practicable, a population of one thousand, to be a Panchayat area for the purposes of this Act by such name as may be specified:

Provided that for the purposes of declaration of a Panchayat area no revenue village or any hamlet thereof shall be divided:

[Provided further that in the hill districts of Nainital, Almora, Pithoragarh, Tehri, Pauri, Dehradun, Chamoli or Uttarkashi, the State Government may declare the area of a Gaon Sabha established under Section 3 of this Act as it stood before the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Panchayat Laws (Amendment) Act, 1994, to be a Panchayat area though such area may have a population of less than one thousand.]

(2) The State Government may, on the request of the Gram Panchayat concerned or otherwise and after previous publication of the proposal, by notification at any time-

(a) modify the area of any Panchayat area by including therein or excluding therefrom any area of a village or group of villages;

(b) alter the name of the Panchayat area; or

(c) declare that any area shall cease to be a Panchayat area."

22. Section 5 of the Act, 1916 provides that if any area is included within a municipality, such area shall thereby become subject to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders and directions issued or made under the Act of 1916. The affairs of such area shall thereafter be governed by the provisions of the Act, 1916 and the identity of such Gram Panchayat or the part of the Gram Panchayat included within the municipality shall cease to exist. Thus, after the issuance of the notification dated 21.10.2022 under Section 3 of the Act, 1916, the part of Gram Panchayat Karua included within the extended territorial limits of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda lost its identity as part of Gram Panchayat Karua as the said area acquired the status of a municipality. The question that falls for consideration is whether remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua fulfills the requirement necessary for retaining its identity as a Gram Panchayat.

23. The term 'Population' as defined in Section 2(l) of the Act, 1947 means the population as ascertained in the last preceding census, the relevant figures whereof have been published.

24. It is not in dispute that the last census was held in the year 2011. Accordingly, the term 'Population', wherever it finds mention in the Act of 1947, has to be understood in terms of its statutory definition, meaning thereby that the population as ascertained in the last census i.e. Census 2011 has to be taken into consideration for any purpose required under the Act of 1947. Section 11-F of the Act, 1947, in clear terms, provides that a Panchayat area shall, so far as practicable, have a population of 1,000.

25. It is not in dispute that the population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua after the merger of a part thereof with Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda as per the last Census of 2011 is 785 and this fact remains uncontroverted.

26. The petitioners have asserted that the current population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua is 1,719 out of which 1,104 are voters. Therefore, it is contended that Gram Panchayat Karua ought to have been permitted to retain its status as a Gram Panchayat having a population of more than 1,000 as required under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947.

27. We are not inclined to accept the argument so advanced by learned counsel for the petitioners in the face of the statutory provisions contained in the Act of 1947 as discussed hereinabove. The term "Population" referred to in Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 has to be interpreted in the light of its definition contained in Section 2(l) of the Act, 1947, wherein it is defined to mean the population as per the last census, the figures of which have been published. It is not in dispute that the 2011 Census is the last census, the figures of which have been published. According to the said census, the population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua is 785, which is far below the required population of 1,000, a precondition for maintaining its identity as a Gram Panchayat under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947. This Court, in the exercise of its powers under Article 226 of the Constitution, cannot interfere so as to interpret a statutory provision otherwise than what it has been expressly provided in the statute itself.

28. The petitioners have also placed reliance on Section 8 of the Act, 1947, to contend that after the inclusion of a part of Gram Panchayat Karua into Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda, the jurisdiction of Gram Panchayat Karua should have been reduced to such an extent so as to retain its independent identity as a Gram Panchayat. The argument so advanced cannot be accepted, for the reason that the precondition for retaining an independent identity as a Gram Panchayat is, so far as practicable, a population of 1,000, as prescribed under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947. If such an interpretation of Section 8 of the Act, 1947, is accepted, then even the reduced area of a Gram Panchayat having a population as low as 100, 50, or 10 would claim to retain its separate identity as a Gram Panchayat. Such an interpretation would render Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 nugatory.

29. Section 8 of the Act of 1947 reads as under :

"8. Effect of change in population or inclusion of the area of a Gram Panchayat in Municipalities, etc. - If the whole of the area of Gram Panchayat is included in a city, municipality, cantonment, notified area, or 2 [Nagar Panchayat] the [Gram Panchayat] shall cease, and its assets and liabilities shall be disposed of in the manner prescribed. If a party of such area is so included, its jurisdiction shall be reduced by that part.″

30. A bare perusal of Section 8 of the Act, 1947 would reveal that upon the inclusion of an area of a Gram Panchayat within a city, municipality, cantonment, notified area or Nagar Panchayat, the jurisdiction of the Gram Panchayat stands reduced to the extent of such area. However, it does not follow that the reduced area of the Gram Panchayat would necessarily retain its separate identity as a Gram Panchayat if it otherwise does not fulfil the statutory requirements prescribed for a Gram Panchayat. Section 8 of the Act, 1947 has to be read in consonance and harmony with the other provisions of the Act, 1947.

31. The reference to Rule 3-AAA of the U.P. Panchayati Raj Rules, 1947 by the petitioners is also misconceived as the same has no relevance to the controversy involved in the present writ petition. Rule 3-AAA provides that upon inclusion of the area of a Gram Sabha within a municipality, cantonment, notified area or town area, the Gram Sabha shall cease to exist and its assets and liabilities shall be transferred to the local body in which such area is included. The said provision mandates the transfer of the assets and liabilities of the Gram Sabha pertaining to the area that has been included within a municipality prior to such inclusion.

32. The objection filed by the petitioners as argued by learned counsel for the petitioners could only be appreciated if a claim regarding the division of assets and liabilities under Rule 3-AAA of the Rules, 1947 was raised. However, such an issue could only be raised by Gram Panchayat Kumhraura in which the remaining area of the erstwhile Gram Panchayat Karua was merged vide notification dated 19.04.2023 and such issue is not subject matter of the present writ petition.

33. The petitioners, in their pleadings, have not alleged any violation of procedural requirements in the issuance of the notification dated 19.04.2023. They have challenged the said notification solely on the ground that the current population of Gram Panchayat Karua even after the inclusion of a part thereof in Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda is more than 1,000. This ground is not tenable in the eyes of law in view of the admitted fact that as per Census 2011, the population of the village was only 785, much below the figure of 1000.

34. Learned counsel for the petitioners has placed reliance upon the judgment rendered by Hon′ble Supreme Court in the case of Baldev Singh and others vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and others reported in (1987) 2 SCC 510, particularly paragraph 4 thereof, to contend that no opportunity of hearing was afforded to the petitioners before the issuance of the notification dated 19.04.2023. Paragraph 4 of the said judgment is reproduced herein below :

"4. Appellants' counsel has raised a more serious issue, namely, denial of an opportunity of being heard before the notified area has been constituted. Since Section 256 of the Act requires certain aspects to be satisfied before a notified area can be constituted, factual determination had to be made as to whether those statutory conditions were satisfied. Ours is a democratic polity. At every level, from the villages up to the national level, democratic institutions have been introduced. The villages are under Gram Panchayats, urban areas under municipalities and corporations, districts are under parishads; for the State there is a legislature and for the entire country, we have the Parliament. People residing within Gram Panchayats have their electoral rights to exercise and in exercise of such rights, they have elected their representatives. Citizens of India have a right to decide what should be the nature of their society in which they live - agrarian, semi-urban or urban. Admittedly, the way of life varies, depending upon where one lives. Inclusion of an area covered by a Gram Panchayat within a notified area would certainly involve civil consequences. In such circumstances it is necessary that people who will be affected by the change should be given an opportunity of being heard, otherwise they would be visited with serious consequences like loss of office in Gram Panchayats, an imposition of a way of life, higher incidence of tax and the like."

35. We find from the pleadings of the writ petition that no such ground has been taken by the petitioners regarding the denial of an opportunity of hearing before the issuance of the notification dated 19.04.2023. The petitioners have only raised an issue through their representations/objections submitted before the authorities regarding the population of the remaining area of Gram Panchayat Karua after the inclusion of a part thereof in Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda. Thus, it cannot be said that the petitioners have raised any issue pertaining to procedural aspects in the issuance of the notification dated 19.04.2023. In fact, the State Government has issued Government Orders dated 16.08.2014, 27.10.2020 and 23.12.2020, whereby guidelines have been prescribed for exercising powers under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947. However, the petitioners have not alleged any violation of the provisions contained in the aforesaid Government Orders.

36. Further reliance has been placed by the petitioners upon paragraph 12 of the judgment and order dated 27.09.2022 passed in Writ-C No. 26793 of 2022 "Sujit and others v. State of U.P. and others" Paragraph 12 of the said judgment is reproduced herein below :

"12. It is implicit in the statutory provision that while issuing a final notification, the area as originally proposed to be included in the transitional area, cannot be increased in such a manner, so as to change the entire complexion and character of the preliminary notification. The object of Section 4 is to provide opportunity to the general public which would include the petitioners herein, to file objections against the proposal. The Governor exercises power under Article 243Q having regard to the factors laid down under clause (2), i.e., population of the area, the density of the population therein, the revenue generated for local administration, the percentage of employment in non-agricultural activities, the economic importance or such other factor as he may deem fit. The objection could be on any of the above aspects, apart from inclusion/exclusion. This is an invaluable right conferred in the general public with avowed object of strengthening their hands in all facets of local self governance. In the absence of these villages being part of the proposal notified under Section 4, the right to file objection has been rendered illusory making Section 4 of the Act redundant. It amounts to notifying seven villages in the transitional area without there being any previous publication, as required by Section 4.What cannot be done directly cannot be done indirectly. It is nothing but colourable exercise of power."

37. A perusal of paragraph 12 of the said judgment and order, relied upon by the petitioners indicates that it relates to the preliminary notification issued under Section 4 of the Act, 1916, which provides for the procedure for issuance of a notification referred to under Section 3 of the Act, 1916 declaring a transitional area and an urban area. The reliance so placed is misconceived as the petitioners have not challenged the notification dated 21.10.2022 issued under Section 3 of the Act, 1916 so as to contend in the present writ petition that the inclusion of a part of Gram Panchayat Karua within Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda by the said notification was bad in law.

38. In the absence of any such challenge to the notification issued earlier under Section 3 of the Act, 1916 in the present writ petition, we cannot delve into such an issue in the present writ petition.

39. The petitioners have further placed reliance upon the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. vs. Pradhan Sangh Kshetra Samiti, reported in 1995 Supp (2) SCC 305, particularly paragraph 44 of the judgment, which is quoted hereinbelow:

"44. It is for the Government to decide in what manner the panchayat areas and the constituencies in each panchayat area will be delimited. It is not for the court to dictate the manner in which the same would be done. So long as the panchayat areas and the constituencies are delimited in conformity with the constitutional provisions or without committing a breach thereof, the courts cannot interfere with the same. We may, in this connection, refer to a decision of this Court in Hingir-Rampur Coal Co. Ltd. v. State of Orissa [(1961) 2 SCR 537 : AIR 1961 SC 459] . In this case, the petitioner-mineowners, had among others, challenged the method prescribed by the legislature for recovering the cess under the Orissa Mining Areas Development Fund Act, 1952 on the ground that it was unconstitutional. The majority of the Bench held that the method is a matter of convenience and, though relevant, has to be tested in the light of other relevant circumstances. It is not permissible to challenge the vires of a statute solely on the ground that the method adopted for the recovery of the impost can and generally is adopted in levying a duty of excise."

40. We are afraid to accept that the aforesaid proposition of law laid down in paragraph 44 of the judgment passed in Pradhan Sangh Kshetra Samiti (supra), in any manner, supports the case of the petitioners. On contrary, it supports the case of the respondents, inasmuch as it has not been questioned that the notification dated 19.04.2023 was issued in violation of the statutory provisions contained in Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947. Section 5 of the Act, 1916 provides that if any area is included within a municipality, such area shall thereafter become subject to all notifications, rules, regulations, bye-laws, orders and directions issued or made under the Act of 1916. The affairs of such area shall be governed by the provisions of the Act of 1916 and the identity of such Gram Panchayat or the part of the Gram Panchayat included within the municipality shall cease to exist. Thus, after the issuance of the notification dated 21.10.2022 under Section 3 of the Act, 1916, the part of Gram Panchayat Karua included within the extended territorial limits of Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda lost its identity as part of Gram Panchayat Karua, as such area acquired the status of a municipality. The stand taken by the respondents referring to the term "Population" as defined under Section 2(l) of the Act, 1947 goes to the root of the matter as the case of the petitioners is that the term "Population" should be construed to mean the actual population existing on the date on which the notification was issued and not the population reflected in the last census. In fact, paragraph 44 of the judgment relied upon by the petitioners does not support the case set up by them in the present writ petition.

41. The petitioners have also relied upon the judgment rendered in the case of Kishorchandra Chhanganal Rathod vs. Union of India and others reported in (2024) 13 SCC 237. The said judgment relates to the exercise of power by Hon'ble Supreme Court concerning judicial interference in the process of delimitation, which is barred under Article 329 of the Constitution of India. The said issue is not involved in the present writ petition. Accordingly, the reliance placed by the petitioners upon the aforesaid judgment is misconceived.

42. Further, when we analyze the notification dated 19.04.2023 issued under Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947, we find that the aforesaid exercise of issuing the notification is in furtherance of the power conferred under the statutory provisions contained in Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947, which, in essence, constitutes conditional legislation. The power to include a particular area within the prescribed jurisdiction conferred under Section 11-F of the Act,1947 is not merely an administrative power. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in Tulsipur Sugar Co. Ltd. v. The Notified Area Committee, Tulsipur reported in (1980) 2 SCC 295 while dealing with Section 3 of the U.P. Town Areas Act, 1914 held after considering the nature of the power exercised by the State Government under Section 3 that the said power is legislative in character. Paragraphs 7, 8, and 17 of the said judgment are reproduced herein below:

"7. We are concerned in the present case with the power of the State Government to make a declaration constituting a geographical area into a town area under Section 3 of the Act which does not require the State Government to make such declaration after giving notice of its intention so to do to the members of the public and inviting their representations regarding such action. The power of the State Government to make a declaration under Section 3 of the Act is legislative in character because the application of the rest of the provisions of the Act to the geographical area which is declared as a town area is dependent upon such declaration. Section 3 of the Act is in the nature of a conditional legislation. Dealing with the nature of functions of a non-judicial authority, Prof. S.A. De Smith in Judicial Review of Administrative Action (3rd Edn.) observes at p. 163:

"However, the analytical classification of a function may be a conclusive factor in excluding the operation of the audi alteram partem rule. It is generally assumed that in English law the making of a subordinate legislative instrument need not be preceded by notice or hearing unless the parent Act so provides."

8. In Bates v. Lord Hailsham of St. Marylebone [(1972) 1 WLR 1373 : (1972) 3 All ER 1019, 1023-1024] the facts were these: In 1964, the British Legal Association was formed. Out of about 26,000 practising solicitors some 2,900 were members of the association. The Lord Chancellor announced on May 1, 1972, that the scale of fees under Schedule I to the Solicitor's Remuneration Order, 1883 were proposed to be abolished and that for all conveyancing transactions the system of quantum meruit was to be applied. On June 6, pursuant to Section 56(3) of the Solicitors Act, 1957, the Law Society was sent by the committee set up under Section 56(1) a draft of the order proposed to be made under Section 56(2). The draft order was published in The Law Society's Gazette on June 21. The association sent out two circulars about the proposed order, the first at the end of May, to all solicitors, and the second on July 17, making a series of accusations against the Lord Chancellor and the Law Society. On July 11, the association sent printed submissions to the statutory committee, requesting that the order should not be approved at this juncture and that the Lord Chancellor should seek further consultations with the profession and professional organisations. On July 14, the association wrote to each member of the committee asking for further time and a deferment of the decision for two months. The Lord Chancellor's reply dated July 18, was that he saw no reason for postponing the meeting or for refraining from making the order in such terms as the committee approved. On July 18, the plaintiff as a member of the national executive committee of the association, took out a writ against all members of the statutory committee, seeking a declaration and an injunction, and on July 19, at 2 p.m. having previously notified the Treasury Solicitor of the intention, he moved the court ex parte, seeking to restrain the committee from holding the meeting which was to be held at 4.30 p.m. on that day. The motion was dismissed by Megarry, J., and we feel rightly with the following observations:

"In the present case, the committee in question has an entirely different function: it is legislative rather than administrative or executive. The function of the committee is to make or refuse to make a legislative instrument under delegated powers. The order, when made, will lay down the remuneration for solicitors generally; and the terms of the order will have to be considered and construed and applied in numberless cases in the future. Let me accept that in the sphere of the so-called quasi-judicial the rules of natural justice run, and that in the administrative or executive field there is a general duty of fairness. Nevertheless, these considerations do not seem to me to affect the process of legislation, whether primary or delegated. Many of those affected by delegated legislation, and affected very substantially, are never consulted in the process of enacting that legislation; and yet they have no remedy. Of course, the informal consultation of representative bodies by the legislative authority is a common place; but although a few statutes have specifically provided for a general process of publishing draft delegated legislation and considering objections (see, for example, the Factories Act, 1961, Schedule 4), I do not know of any implied right to be consulted or make objections, or any principle on which the courts may enjoin the legislative process at the suit of those who contend that insufficient time for consultation and consideration has been given. I accept that the fact that the order will take the form of a statutory instrument does not per se make it immune from attack, whether by injunction or otherwise; but what is important is not its form but its nature, which is plainly legislative."

……..17. We are, therefore, of the view that a notification issued under Section 3 of the Act which has the effect of making the Act applicable to a geographical area is in the nature of a conditional legislation and that it cannot be characterised as a piece of subordinate legislation. In view of the foregoing, we hold that the contention of the plaintiff that the declaration made by the State Government under Section 3 of the Act declaring the area in which the sugar factory of the plaintiff is situated as a part of the Tulsipur town area is invalid is not tenable."

43. When we go through the provisions of Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act, 1947, which have already been quoted in the earlier part of the judgment, we find that specific conditions have been prescribed for the declaration of a panchayat area. This exercise is required to be undertaken by the State Government through the issuance of a notification under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 on the satisfaction of conditioned enumerated in Section 11-F. The power to include a particular area within the prescribed jurisdiction conferred under the statute is not merely an administrative power but a legislative power and is legislative in character. Reference may be made to the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Punjab v. Tehal Singh and Others reported in (2002) 2 SCC 7, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court, while examining Sections 3 and 4 of the Punjab Panchayati Raj Act, 1994 held as follows in paragraphs 4 to 8 of the said judgment:

"4. Coming to the first question, it is necessary to set out the relevant provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of the Act, which are as under:

:3. Establishment of Gram Sabha areas.-(1) The State Government may, by notification, declare any village or group of contiguous villages with a population of not less than two hundred to constitute a Gram Sabha area:

Provided that a new Gram Sabha area may be constituted for any village or group of contiguous villages in respect of a separate distinct abadi or group of abadis having a population of not less than two hundred taking into consideration its physical distance from the main village or villages, as the case may be and other relevant facts:

Provided further that neither the whole nor any part of –

(a) a Notified Area under Section 241 of the Punjab Municipal Act, 1911, or any other Act for the time being in force; or

(b) a Cantonment; or

(c) a Municipality of any class; or

(d) a Municipal Corporation;

shall be included in a Gram Sabha area unless the majority of voters in any Notified Area or Municipality of the Third Class desire the establishment of a Gram Sabha in which case the assets and liabilities, if any, of the Notified Area Committee or the Municipal Committee, as the case may be, shall vest in the Gram Panchayat of that Gram Sabha and the Notified Area Committee or the Municipal Committee shall cease to exist.

(2) That State Government may, by notification, include any area in or exclude any area from the Gram Sabha area.

4. Constitution of Gram Sabha.-(1) The State Government may, by notification establish a Gram Sabha by name for every area declared as Gram Sabha area under Section 3.

(2) Every person who is entered as voter on the electoral roll prepared by the State Election Commission and for the time being in force pertaining to the area of a Gram Sabha, shall be member of the Gram Sabha."

5. Before we consider the main question, it is necessary to trace out the nature of power, that the State Government exercises under provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of the Act. The said power could either be legislative, administrative or quasi-judicial.

6. In Rameshchandra Kachardas Porwal v. State of Maharashtra [(1981) 2 SCC 722] it was held that making of a declaration by notification that certain place shall be the principal market yard for a market area under the relevant Agricultural Produce Market Act was an act legislative in character. In Union of India v. Cynamide India Ltd. [(1987) 2 SCC 720] this Court while making distinction between legislative, administrative and quasi-judicial held thus: (SCC pp. 735-36, para 7)

"'A legislative act is the creation and promulgation of a general rule of conduct without reference to particular cases; an administrative act is the making and issue of a specific direction or the application of a general rule to a particular case in accordance with the requirements of policy.' 'Legislation in the process of formulating a general rule of conduct without reference to particular cases and usually operating in future; administration is the process of performing particular acts, of issuing particular orders or of making decisions which apply general rules to particular cases.' It has also been said: 'Rule-making is normally directed toward the formulation of requirements having a general application to all members of a broadly identifiable class' while, 'an adjudication, on the other hand, applies to specific individuals or situations'. But, this is only a broad distinction, not necessarily always true. Administration and administrative adjudication may also be of general application and there may be legislation of particular application only. That is not ruled out. Again, adjudication determines past and present facts and declares rights and liabilities while legislation indicates the future course of action. Adjudication is determinative of the past and the present while legislation is indicative of the future. The object of the rule, the reach of its application, the rights and obligations arising out of it, its intended effect on past, present and future events, its form, the manner of its promulgation are some factors which may help in drawing the line between legislative and non-legislative acts."

7. The principles of law that emerge from the aforesaid decisions are: (1) where provisions of a statute provide for the legislative activity i.e. making of a legislative instrument or promulgation of general rule of conduct or a declaration by a notification by the Government that certain place or area shall be part of a Gram Sabha and on issue of such a declaration certain other statutory provisions come into action forthwith which provide for certain consequences; (2) where the power to be exercised by the Government under provisions of a statute does not concern with the interest of an individual and it relates to public in general or concerns with a general direction of a general character and not directed against an individual or to a particular situation; and (3) lay down future course of actions, the same is generally held to be legislative in character.

8. Viewed in the light of the statement of law stated hereinbefore, we find that the provisions of Sections 3 and 4 of the Act which provide for declaring territorial area of a Gram Sabha and establishing a Gram Sabha for that area do not concern with the interest of an individual citizen or a particular resident of that area. Declaration contemplated under Section 3 of the Act relates to an area inhabited by the residents which is sought to be excluded or included in a Gram Sabha. The declaration under Section 3 of the Act by the Government is general in character and not directed to a particular resident of that area. Further, the declarations so made under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act do not operate for the past transactions but for future situations. Under the aforesaid situation, when declarations by issue of notifications by the Government are made under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act respectively, determining the territorial area of a Gram Sabha and establishing a Gram Sabha for that area, such declarations become operative at once. Once declarations are made under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act respectively and thereafter a Gram Panchayat is constituted under Section 10 of the Act, the entire remaining provisions of the Act become operative. On such declarations by a notification in the Gazette, the Gram Sabha, a body corporate comes into being with a number of powers and functions conferred upon it under the Act. As soon as a Gram Sabha is established and Gram Panchayat is constituted, they are entrusted with many general functions viz. construction, repair, and maintenance of community assets, agriculture including agriculture extension, animal husbandry, dairy and poultry, fisheries, social and farm forestry, minor forest produce, fuel and fodder, khadi, village and cottage industries, rural housing, rural electrification including distribution of electricity, non-conventional energy source, poverty alleviation programme, education including primary and secondary schools, adult and non-formal education, promotion of adult literacy, cultural activities, fairs and festivals, public health and family welfare, women and child development, social welfare etc. Further, Gram Sabhas and Gram Panchayats have been conferred numerous other powers and duties enumerated in Section 35 of the Act. Besides that, the Gram Panchayat is entrusted with the judicial functions which are civil and criminal in nature. The power exercisable under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act respectively by the Government was, therefore, not an exercise of a judicial or quasi-judicial function where the very nature of function involves the principles of natural justice or in any case of an administrative function affecting the rights of an individual. We are, therefore, of the view that on making of declaration under Section 3 of the Act determining the territorial area of a Gram Sabha and thereafter establishing a Gram Sabha for that area is an act legislative in character in the context of the provisions of the Act."

44. The function of the State Government in issuing a notification under Section 3 of the Act, 1947 establishing a Gram Sabha and in issuing a notification under Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 declaring any area comprising a village or group of villages having, so far as practicable, a population of 1,000 to be a Panchayat under the Act is neither executive nor administrative; rather, it is legislative in nature. No adjudicatory duty is cast upon the Government in the discharge of these statutory functions of issuance of notification. The only question to be examined by the Government while issuing such a notification is whether the conditions prescribed under the statutory provisions have been fulfilled. In the case of conditional legislation, the power of legislation is exercised by the legislature conditionally leaving to the discretion of an external authority the determination of the time and manner of bringing its legislation into effect as well as the determination of the subject matter(s), area(s) etc. to which it is to extend depending on the terms of the statutory provisions conferring such discretion. In conditional legislation, the enforcement of the law depends upon the fulfilment of the prescribed condition(s) and what is required of the authority is the exercise of its power to determine whether such condition(s) have been fulfilled so as to bring into force the legislative intent.

45. Section 11-F of the Act, 1947 lays down the conditions for the declaration of a Panchayat Area, namely, that the area comprising a village or a group of villages should, so far as practicable, have a population of 1,000. A further condition is that for the purpose of declaring a Panchayat Area, no revenue village or any hamlet thereof shall be divided. Sub-section (2) of Section 11-F empowers the State Government to modify the area of any Panchayat Area by including therein or excluding therefrom any area of a village or group of villages, after previous publication of the proposal for such purpose. The exercise of power under sub-section (2) is always subject to the fulfilment of the conditions enumerated in sub-section (1) of Section 11-F. In our view, the issuance of notifications under Sections 3 and 11-F of the Act of 1947 is an exercise undertaken by the State Government in terms of the statutory provisions contained in the Act, 1947 and the issuance of such notifications is an act of conditional legislation.

46. In the present case as discussed in the earlier part of the judgment, the area and population of Gram Panchayat Karua were reduced after merger of a part of its area with Nagar Palika Parishad, Colonelganj, District Gonda. This necessitated the issuance of a notification to include its remaining area within Gram Panchayat Kumhraura as the population, according to the Census 2011, had been reduced to 785, which was far below the minimum requirement of 1,000. This minimum population is an essential condition for the independent identity of a Panchayat Area.

47. A notification issued as an act of conditional legislation can be challenged only if it exceeds the statutory mandate, lacks the requisite precedent conditions or violates constitutional rights. The petitioners have miserably failed to point out any violation of the aforesaid mandates so as to render the notification dated 19.04.2023 illegal or bad in law. Accordingly, we do not find any infirmity or illegality in the issuance of the notification dated 19.04.2023 to the extent it has been challenged in the present writ petition.

48. In view of the aforesaid reasons, we are not inclined to interfere in the present writ petition. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed.

49. No order as to costs.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the applicant, already granted bail in multiple pending criminal cases, can be allowed to furnish a single personal bond and two sureties (common for all cases) instead of separate bonds and sureties in each case, in view of his inability to arrange multiple sets of sureties?

HEADNOTES

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): - Shri Mohd. Naushad,
Counsel for Respondent(s): - A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Gautam Chowdhary, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present application has been filed to direct the Trial Court/Court concerned to consider and accept the personal bond and two sureties in one criminal case treating the same for all the four criminal cases mentioned in the paragraph no.5 of the affidavit filed in support of of the instant application.

3. Learned counsel for applicant contends that applicant is unable to arrange 10 sureties. Consequently, in spite of the fact that applicant has already been released on bail in all four criminal cases pending against him, the applicant has yet not been released from jail, as applicant has failed to furnish separate surety bonds in all the cases. In the facts and circumstances of the case, it is thus urged that applicant be directed to furnish a common personal bond and common surety bonds of like amount in all the cases. He therefore contends that appropriate direction be issued to the concerned trial Court.

4. Record shows that applicant has been enlarged on bail in different case crime number by the concerned Court vide following orders:-

(1) Case Crime No.278 of 2022, Under Sections 392, 506, 411 I.P.C., Police Station Kandhla, District Shamli.

(2) Case Crime No.309 of 2022, Under Section 307 I.P.C., Police Station Kandhla, District Shamli;

(3) Case Crime No.310 of 2022, Under Sections 3/25, 5/27 Arms Act, Police Station Kandhla, District Shamli;

(4) Case Crime No. 123 of 2023, Under Sections 411, 394 I.P.C., Police Station Babri, District Shamli;

(5) Case Crime No.143 of 2023, Under Section 307 I.P.C. and Sections 3/25/27 Arms Act, Police Station Babri, District Shamli.

5. He has then referred to Sections- 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490 of B.N.S.S. (hereinafter to be referred as BNSS) and on basis thereof contents that under the scheme of BNSS (hereinafter referred to as "the BNSS") there is no mandatory requirement of furnishing separate personal bonds as well as surety bonds for seeking enlargement on bail in different case crime numbers.

6. On the aforesaid factual and legal premise, learned counsel for applicant contends that such conditions which commensurate with the facts and circumstances of present case, are liable to be imposed, so that applicant who has been granted bail in all cases pending against him is ultimately bailed out.

7. Reference has also been made to the orders passed by Supreme Court dated 29.10.2018 in Hani Nishad @ Mohammad Imran @ Vikky Vs. State of U.P. and 09.08.2021 in Ramwati Awasthi & Others Vs. State of U.P. and Others. He has also referred to orders passed by this Court dated 15.03.2019 in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.11380 of 2019, (Rizwan alias Atta Vs. State of U.P.), reported in 2019 (107) ACC 894 and 21.11.2019 in Criminal Misc. Application (under Section 482 Cr.P.C.) No.40957 of 2019, (Mobin Vs. State of U.P.), wherein Court has been modified the conditions of bail by providing that the personal bond and two sureties furnished by applicant, be accepted in all the cases pending against applicant. Photocopies of above orders have been supplied by learned counsel for applicant which are taken on record.

8. On the aforesaid factual and legal premise, it is urged that present application be allowed and two sureties furnished by applicant in one case crime number be accepted as sureties in all the cases.

9. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has opposed this application, but could not dispute the orders relied upon by learned counsel for applicant.

10. In view of above, present application succeeds and is liable to be allowed.

11. It is accordingly, provided that application shall be allowed to execute one personal bond and two sureties to the satisfaction of court concerned which shall hold in all four cases pending against present applicant

THE HON'BLE ACHAL SACHDEV, J.

Criminal Revision No. 3622 of 2024

Smt. Sushila ...Revisionist
Versus
Rajiv Kumar Chaudhary ...Opposite Party

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the trial court was justified in denying maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. to the revisionist on the ground that she is not the legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2, without adverting to his admissions regarding the application for court marriage, cohabitation of the parties and the birth of a child from their relationship?

(ii) Whether a determination of maintenance made without calling for affidavits of disclosure of income, assets and liabilities in terms of the guidelines laid down in Rajnesh v. Neha is sustainable?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Maintenance to wife --- Strict proof of marriage --- Admitted application for court marriage, cohabitation and birth of child --- Purposive and socially contextual approach --- Finding recorded in mechanical manner --- Non-application of judicial mind.

HELD: While dealing with claims under Section 125 Cr.P.C., a purposive and socially contextual approach is to be adopted rather than a purely adversarial or technical interpretation; where a man and a woman have lived together as husband and wife and the relationship is otherwise established, strict proof of a valid marriage should not be insisted upon so as to defeat the beneficial object of the provision. The trial court decided Issue Nos. 1 and 2 in a mechanical manner, holding the revisionist not to be the wife of opposite party no. 2 while in the same breath declaring the child to be the illegitimate child of the parties, without adverting to the admissions of opposite party no. 2 regarding the application for court marriage before the competent Magistrate, the birth of the child and the cohabitation of the parties in his government accommodation; such findings are devoid of proper application of judicial mind and are vitiated by non-consideration of material admissions and relevant circumstances. [Paras 9-12, 15, 18]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- Revisional jurisdiction --- Scope --- Interference with findings of fact.

HELD: The High Court, while exercising revisional jurisdiction, cannot reassess or re-analyse evidence to arrive at a different conclusion merely because another view is possible, and cannot sit as a court of appeal; interference with findings of fact is permissible only when such findings are perverse, based on no evidence, suffer from misreading of evidence or result in a miscarriage of justice, or where material evidence has been ignored or settled principles misapplied. [Paras 13, 14]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Quantum of maintenance --- Affidavits of disclosure of income, assets and liabilities --- Guidelines in Rajnesh v. Neha --- Binding --- Remand.

HELD: Where the applicant has merely made oral assertions without producing evidence of the net income of the opposite party, the affidavits of disclosure of income, assets and liabilities assume decisive importance; the trial court is duty-bound to direct both parties to file their respective affidavits in the prescribed format, any failure to comply must be taken adversely against the defaulting party, and the quantum must be determined upon the statements contained therein. A decision rendered without consideration of such affidavits amounts to a departure from binding guidelines, and the revisional court is justified in setting aside the finding on quantum and remanding the matter for fresh determination. [Paras 11, 17, 18]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Maintenance to minor child --- Legitimate or illegitimate child --- Obligation of father.

HELD: Section 125 Cr.P.C. makes it obligatory for a father to maintain his child, whether legitimate or illegitimate, who is unable to maintain himself; the order of the trial court granting maintenance of Rs. 5,000/- per month to the minor child, which was not challenged, is affirmed. [Paras 16, 19, 22]

Criminal revision partly allowed. Impugned judgment, insofar as it rejects the claim for maintenance of the revisionist, set aside and matter remanded for fresh adjudication of Issue Nos. 1 and 2; both parties directed to file affidavits of disclosure in the format prescribed in Rajnesh (supra), and the matter to be disposed of preferably within three months. Maintenance of Rs. 5,000/- per month to the minor child affirmed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Judgment and order dated 05.03.2024 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Maharajganj, in Maintenance Application No. 298 of 2019, Sushila and Another v. Rajiv Kumar, under Section 125 Cr.P.C.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Ashish Pandey, Randhir Jain.

For the Opposite Party(s): G.A., Sanjay Kumar Mishra.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Achal Sachdev, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashish Pandey, learned counsel for the revisionist, learned A.G.A. for the State and Sri Arun Kumar Maurya, Advocate, holding brief of Sri Sanjay Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2.

2. The present revision has been preferred by the revisionist being aggrieved by the judgement and order dated 05.03.2024 passed by Principal Judge, Family Court, Maharajganj in Maintenance Application No. 298 of 2019 (Sushila and Another Vs. Rajiv Kumar) u/s 125 Cr.P.C.

3. The trial court has denied maintenance to the revisionist on the ground that she is not legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2, Rajiv Kumar Chaudhary and the matter is revisable. Hence, the present revision is admitted.

4. Perused the record.

5. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the petitioner (revisionist herein) has stated that her marriage with Rajiv Kumar was solemnized through a court marriage on 21.09.2017, and despite her family providing substantial dowry according to their status, her husband and in-laws soon began harassing her for additional dowry, particularly demanding a four-wheeler. She alleged that on 23.10.2017, she was beaten and expelled from her matrimonial home, after which village elders intervened and she was later taken to Gorakhpur by her husband and out of marital relation, she gave birth to a son, but her husband, father-in-law Achhevar, mother-in-law Koila Devi, brother-in-law Gautam, and sister-in-law allegedly continued to mentally and physically torture her. She further alleged that on 19.03.2019, all the accused confined her in a room, assaulted her brutally, attempted to strangulate her at the instigation of her mother-in-law, and ultimately drove her out after taking away her stridhan. Since then, she has been residing at her parental home with her child without any financial support from the opposite party. Claiming that she has no independent source of income while her husband earns well as a lab technician at Digvijay Nath Degree College and also has agricultural income.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that the revisionist has sought maintenance of Rs.25,000/- per month for herself and Rs.15,000/- per month for her minor child through her application u/s 125 Cr.P.C. He next submits that the revisionist is the wife of opposite party no. 2 and that she was beaten and driven away from her matrimonial house on 19.03.2019 and since then, she has been living at her parents' home and is unable to support herself. He further submits that the revisionist□s family had provided substantial dowry to the opposite party no. 2 but her husband (opposite party no. 2) and in-laws harassed her for demand of additional dowry.

7. Learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 submits that an application for court marriage of the revisionist and opposite party no. 2 was given in the court of District Magistrate on 21.09.2017 but the marriage was not legally formalized and under pressure from the revisionist and her family, the opposite party no. 2 brought her to live with him in his Gorakhpur quarters on 21.09.2017. He next submits that after learning of relationship of revisionist and opposite party no. 2, the family of opposite party no. 2 severed ties with him and disowned him, yet he chose to live with the revisionist for her happiness. He further submits that the revisionist never visited or lived with the family of opposite party no. 2 in the village, had no interaction with his parents or relatives, and was never subjected to dowry demands, harassment, or assault by him or his family. He also submits that the revisionist and her family manipulated and pressured opposite party no. 2 into marriage by threatening him into false criminal cases and suicide. He further submits that the relationship of revisionist and opposite party no. 2 was initially cordial but after a few months, the revisionist became quarrelsome, demanded money for expensive items, neglected household responsibilities, and failed to care properly for their son after his birth. He further submits that motivated by his job and property, the revisionist repeatedly threatened him, maintained illicit relationships, and conspired to harm him, prompting him to report the matter to senior police officials. He, therefore, submits that the opposite party no. 2 due to the revisionist□s conduct, threats, and the physical and mental harassment he allegedly suffered, he can no longer live with the revisionist and has, therefore, filed a divorce petition to protect his life and well-being.

8. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

9. The trial court has framed issue no.1 as to whether the revisionist is legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2, Rajiv Kumar Chaudhary, and has decided the same against the applicant no.1/revisionist by holding that the burden of proof of proving the fact that the issue is on the applicant no.1 and in support of her case, she has filed the photocopy of notice before Marriage Officer, Gorakhpur but there is no document on record from which it can be ascertained that the applicant no.1/revisionist is legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2 without recording any tangible reasons for reaching the conclusion. On perusal of decision while disposing of issue no.1 that after filing of the aforementioned document, the applicant no.1 resided with opposite party and out of their relationship, applicant no.2 was born and has concluded that applicant no.2 is an illegitimate child of opposite party. The manner in which the issue no.1 has been dealt with, without taking into consideration the fact that even though the applicant no.1 had not succeeded in proving the fact of her marriage to opposite party no. 2 but they were in a relationship as husband and wife for a considerable period of time and out of the relationship, a son was born, while assessing the point of entitlement of maintenance from opposite party no. 2 to the applicant no. 1, goes on to show clear non-application of mind in a cursory manner and mechanical manner and the trial court has not duly applied its mind to the facts, to the evidence that has been filed by the applicant no.1 before the trial court while holding that the applicant no.1 is not a legally wedded wife of opposite party in total ignorance of documentary evidence of birth certificate of applicant no.2 that has been filed by applicant no.1 in support of the fact that applicant no.2 is the son of opposite party.

10. In the present revision, opposite party no. 2 has candidly admitted that he and the applicant/revisionist had applied for a court marriage before the competent Magistrate, though the formal procedure could not be completed. He has further acknowledged the birth of a child from his relationship with the applicant, and that after the applicant was turned out of her matrimonial home by his father, he took her to his government accommodation where they resided together.

11. A perusal of the impugned judgment reveals that these material admissions and surrounding circumstances were not adverted to by the trial court while adjudicating Issue Nos. 1 and 2. The judgment does not reflect any discussion of the admitted facts regarding the parties cohabitation, their intention to solemnize marriage, or the birth of the child from their relationship. Moreover, the judgment nowhere reflects that the trial court made any effort to seek affidavits of applicant no. 1 and opposite party no. 2 in regard to their income, assets, and liabilities in compliance with the guidelines issued by the Honble Supreme Court in Rajnesh v. Neha [(2021) 2 SCC 324].

12. The Honble Supreme Court in Badshah v. Urmila Badshah Godse [(2014) 1 SCC 188] has emphasised the necessity of adopting a purposive and socially contextual approach while dealing with claims under Section 125 Cr.P.C., rather than adhering to a purely adversarial or technical interpretation of the law. It has been held that where a man and a woman have lived together as husband and wife and the relationship is otherwise established, strict proof of a valid marriage should not be insisted upon so as to defeat the beneficial object of the provision.

13. Interference is warranted only where:

(i) the Magistrate acted without jurisdiction or failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in him;

(ii) the order is contrary to law or violates statutory provisions;

(iii) there is serious procedural irregularity affecting fairness;

(iv) findings are perverse, i.e., based on no evidence;

(v) material evidence has been ignored or settled principles misapplied, resulting in grave injustice or hardship.

14. The Supreme Court in Sri M.V. Ramachandrasa (Deceased) through LRs v. Mahendra Watch Company & Ors. [2026 INSC 348], while reiterating the principles laid down in Dattonpant Gopalvarao Devakate v. Vithalrao Maruthirao Janagaval [(1975) 2 SCC 246] and Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd. v. Dilbahar Singh [(2014) 9 SCC 78], has held that the High Court, while exercising revisional jurisdiction, cannot reassess or re-analyse evidence to arrive at a different conclusion merely because another view is possible. Interference with findings of fact is permissible only when such findings are perverse, based on no evidence, suffer from misreading of evidence, or result in a miscarriage of justice. A revisional court cannot sit as a court of appeal.

15. In the present case, however, the trial court appears to have decided Issue Nos. 1 and 2 in a mechanical manner, holding that applicant no. 1 is not the wife of opposite party no. 2, but in the same breath declared applicant no. 2 to be the illegitimate child of applicant no. 1 and opposite party no. 2. This finding was recorded without adverting to the admissions of opposite party no. 2 regarding the application for court marriage, the birth of the child, and the parties cohabitation in his government accommodation. The findings are, therefore, devoid of proper application of judicial mind and fail to consider material circumstances having a direct bearing on the determination of applicant no. 1s entitlement to maintenance.

16. By the order impugned, the trial court awarded a sum of Rs. 5,000/- as maintenance to applicant no. 2 on the ground that he is the illegitimate child of opposite party no. 2. Section 125 Cr.P.C. makes it obligatory for a father to maintain his child, whether legitimate or illegitimate, who is unable to maintain himself. Keeping in view the legal mandate contained in Section 125 Cr.P.C., the order of the trial court, insofar as it grants maintenance to applicant no. 2, is affirmed. Moreover, the same has not been challenged by applicant no. 2.

17. Further, where the applicant has merely made oral assertions without producing evidence of the net income of the opposite party, the trial court cannot arrive at a just and reasonable determination of maintenance. In such circumstances, the affidavits of disclosure of income, assets, and liabilities, as mandated in Rajnesh (supra), assume decisive importance. The trial court is duty-bound to direct both parties to file their respective affidavits in the prescribed format, and any failure to comply must be taken adversely against the defaulting party. Once affidavits are filed, the court must base its determination of quantum upon the statements contained therein. A decision rendered without consideration of the affidavits amounts to a departure from binding guidelines and reflects undue haste. If the trial court ignores admitted income or reaches conclusions unsupported by the record, the revisional court is justified in interfering, setting aside the finding on quantum, and remanding the matter for fresh determination.

18. In view of the foregoing discussion, the impugned judgment dated 05.03.2024 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Maharajganj, in Maintenance Case No. 298 of 2019 (Sushila & Another v. Rajiv Kumar), insofar as rejection of claim for maintenance of applicant/revisionist is concerned, cannot be sustained. The findings recorded on Issue Nos. 1 and 2 are vitiated by non-consideration of material admissions and relevant circumstances, and the determination of claim for maintenance of applicant no. 1 is contrary to the binding guidelines laid down in Rajnesh (supra) as well as general principles of law relating to admissions of parties and their relevance in court proceedings.

19. This Court finds no perversity or illegality in the impugned order dated 05.03.2024 passed by the trial court in regard to the entitlement of applicant no. 2 (minor child) to maintenance.

20. The criminal revision is partly allowed. The impugned judgment dated 05.03.2024 passed by the learned Principal Judge, Family Court, Maharajganj, in Maintenance Case No. 298 of 2019 (Sushila & Another v. Rajiv Kumar), insofar as rejection of claim for maintenance of applicant no. 1/revisionist is concerned, is set aside.

21. The matter is remanded to the trial court for fresh adjudication of Issue Nos. 1 and 2 in light of the admissions of opposite party no. 2 and the purposive interpretation mandated in Badshah v. Urmila Badshah Godse [(2014) 1 SCC 188].

22. The entitlement of applicant no. 2 (minor child) to maintenance at the rate of Rs. 5,000/- per month, as directed by the trial court, is affirmed.

23. Both parties shall file detailed affidavits of disclosure of income, assets, and liabilities in the format prescribed in Rajnesh (supra). The trial court shall determine the quantum of maintenance strictly on the basis of such affidavits and evidence, and dispose of the matter expeditiously, preferably within three months.

Criminal Revision No. 4062 of 2025

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the Magistrate, in proceedings under the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, is empowered under Section 21 thereof to grant custody of a minor child, notwithstanding the jurisdiction conferred on the Family Court under Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984?

(ii) Whether the order of the trial court directing the revisionist to hand over custody of the minor son to opposite party no. 2 exceeded the jurisdiction conferred under Section 21 of the Act of 2005?

Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 --- S. 21 --- Family Courts Act, 1984 --- S. 7 --- Custody of minor child --- Non obstante clause --- Later enactment --- Overriding effect.

HELD: Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984 starts with the words "Subject to the other provisions of this Act" and keeps overriding effect only upon other provisions of the said Act and not over the provisions of any other Act, whereas Section 21 of the Act of 2005 opens with the words "Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force"; when two enactments are enforceable in the same kind having contrary provisions, the later enactment would prevail over the earlier enactment. Section 21 of the Act of 2005 thus keeps overriding effect upon the provisions of Section 7 of the Family Courts Act to the extent of applicability of Section 21. The decision of the Rajasthan High Court in Smt. Payal Agarwal (supra), being not binding on this Court having concurrent jurisdiction, does not lay down the correct legal position to the extent it holds that Section 21 of the Act of 2005 cannot operate notwithstanding the provisions of the Family Courts Act, and cannot be followed. [Paras 19-21]

Precedent --- Poonam Wadhwa v. Ajay Wadhwa --- Section 21 of the Act of 2005 not referred to before the Supreme Court --- Inapplicable.

HELD: The law laid down by the Supreme Court in Poonam Wadhwa (supra) does not discuss the provisions contained in Section 21 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, as reference of Section 21 of the Act of 2005 was not made before the Supreme Court. [Para 18]

Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 --- Ss. 21, 23 --- Temporary custody --- Order interim in nature --- No excess of jurisdiction.

HELD: Learned counsel for the revisionist having fairly conceded that the Magistrate is competent to pass an interim custody order under Section 21, and the operative portion of the order of the trial court recording that the interim application under Sections 23 and 21 of the Act was allowed, the order is purely interim in nature and has not finally determined the issue of permanent custody; consequently, the contention that the Magistrate exceeded the jurisdiction conferred under Section 21 is devoid of substance. [Paras 16, 22, 23]

Case Arising From

Judgment and order dated 16.07.2025 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 1, Saharanpur, in Criminal Appeal No. 23 of 2025, Rohit Yadav v. State of U.P. and another, dismissing the appeal against the order dated 06.03.2025 passed by the Civil Judge (Junior Division)/FTC-I (Crime Against Women), Saharanpur, directing the revisionist to hand over custody of his son to opposite party no. 2.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Madhu Ranjan Pandey.

For the Opposite Party(s): Rishika Raj Singhal, Shivendra Raj Singhal, G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Lakshmi Kant Shukla, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit has been filed today, is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Madhu Ranjan Pandey, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Ramesh Kumar Singh, learned AGA for the State and Sri Shivendra Raj Singhal, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2.

3. I have perused the material available on record.

4. The revisionist-Rohit Yadav has approached this Court by means of the present criminal revision challenging the impugned judgment and order dated 16.07.2025 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Saharanpur (hereinafter referred to as the "appellant court") in Criminal Appeal No.23 of 2025 (Rohit Yadav vs. State of U.P. and another) wherein the appellate court has dismissed the said criminal appeal filed by the revisionist against the judgment vide order dated 06.03.2025 passed by learned Civil Judge (Junior Division)/FTC-I (Crime Against Women) Saharanpur (hereinafter referred to as the "trial court") by which the trial court ordered the revisionist to handover the custody of his son, namely, Master Krishna to the opposite party no.2-wife.

5. Feeling aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order passed by the appellate court, the present criminal revision has been filed, inter alia, on the grounds that the trial court has passed the impugned order beyond its jurisdiction upholding the finding of the trial court, therefore, the impugned order is illegal, arbitrary, contrary to law. Accordingly, a prayer has been made to set aside the impugned judgment and order and allow the present criminal revision.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that there is no provision under the periphery of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act empowering the Magistrate to decide the custody of the child.

7. In support of his submission, learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on the judgment of Rajasthan High Court in the case of Smt. Payal Agarwal vs. Kunal Agarwal, 2014 SCC OnLine Raj 1227, wherein in the Court has observed as under (paragraph 7):

"Under section 21 of the Act 2005 independent remedy has not been provided to seek custody of the minor child and jurisdiction has been conferred on the Magistrate to grant temporary custody of such a child to the aggrieved person during the course of hearing of an application for grant of protection order or for any other relief under the provisions of Act whereas under the provisions of the Act of 1984 any person can file an independent suit or proceeding in relation to the guardianship of the person or custody of or access to any minor. Thus, the scope of Act of 1984 is much wider in comparison to section 21 of the Act of 2005. As the non obstante clause used in section 21 of the Act of 2005 does not refer to any particular statute or provision or provisions of a particular statute and rather it is general in nature, the Court has to determine the scope of its use very strictly. The law is that when a non obstante clause is used in the aforesaid fashion, the extent of its impact has to be found out on the basis of consideration of the intent and purpose of insertion of such a clause. When a non obstante clause is used in such a blanket fashion the Court has to determine the scope of its use very strictly. Section 8 of the Act of 1984 confers exclusive jurisdiction upon the Family Court in relation to the suits and proceedings of the nature mentioned in explanation to Section 7 of the Act. Although, Section 21 of the Act of 2005 also contains the non-obstante clause, but the same has limited application and despite being subsequent legislation it cannot have overriding effect on the Act of 1984. When both the enactments have the non obstante clause then in that case the proper perspective would be that one has to see the subject and dominant purpose for which the special enactment was made and in case the dominant purpose is covered by the contingencies, then notwithstanding that the Act might have come at a later point of time still the intention can be ascertained by looking to the objects and reasons. The Act of 1984 was specially meant for establishment of special Courts so that matters referred in explanation to Section 7 of the Act can be dealt by the special Courts established for that purpose whereas the object of enactment of the Act of 2005 was to protect the woman from being victim of the domestic violence and to prevent the occurrence of domestic violence in the society."

8. The Rajasthan High Court thus held that Section 21 of the Act of 2005 does not create an independent forum for adjudicating questions relating to permanent custody of a minor. According to the said decision, the jurisdiction of the Magistrate under Section 21 is confined to granting temporary or interim custody during the pendency of proceedings under the Act of 2005, whereas substantive questions relating to guardianship and permanent custody fall within the exclusive domain of the Family Court under Section 7 of the Family Courts Act.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist has further placed reliance of the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Poonam Wadhwa v. Ajay Wadhwa & Others, 2025 SCC OnLine SC 2700, wherein the Apex Court has held as under (paragraph 15):

"However, though we may find that the aforesaid aspects ought not to have weighed with the High Court while determining the custody issue, we should not be oblivious of the fact that Arjun is a male child and is aged above 5 years by now. Moreover, the education of Arjun continues to be as a student at Heritage School and therefore, his education is not disturbed whether he remains in the custody of his father or mother. What is important is that from our interactions with Arjun we noticed that he was not willing to part company of his father. We also took notice of the fact that his father has few elder members at home including Arjun's grandfather who are giving company to the child. In such circumstances, having regard to the fact that the male child is now above five years old and he continues to be in the same school where he was studying earlier and he has no issues with his own father and is not willing to part company of his father, an interference with the order passed by the High Court is not required, particularly in view of the fact that the appellant has visitation rights as directed earlier by this Court vide order dated 3rd May, 2024 passed in SLP (Criminal) No.836 of 2024. Further, the High Court has not closed the custody issue rather it gave appellant right to seek custody and pursue remedies under relevant statutes. Consequently, we do not find a good reason to disturb the operative portion of the impugned order. Subject to above, the appeal is dismissed. The application of the respondent seeking discharge of the visitation rights granted vide order dated 3rd May 2024 by this Court in SLP (Criminal) No.836 of 2024 is rejected."

10. It is submitted that the Supreme Court, while declining to interfere with the custody arrangement made by the High Court, recognised that the paramount consideration is the welfare of the child. The Court also noticed that the child was above five years of age, was continuing in the same school, had expressed his preference to remain with his father, and that the mother continued to enjoy visitation rights. Importantly, the Supreme Court observed that the custody issue had not been finally concluded and that the parties were at liberty to pursue appropriate remedies before the competent Family Court under the relevant statutory provisions.

11. Reference has also been made to Explanation (g) to Section 7(1)(b) of the Family Courts Act, 1984, which confers jurisdiction upon the Family Court in relation to proceedings concerning the guardianship of a minor, custody of a minor or access to a minor.

12. Placing reliance upon the aforesaid decisions as well as the provisions of the Family Courts Act, learned counsel for the revisionist contends that the impugned orders suffer from lack of jurisdiction and are therefore liable to be set aside.

13. Per contra, learned A.G.A. for the State as well as learned counsel appearing for opposite party no.2 have vehemently opposed the revision. It is submitted that Section 21 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 expressly empowers the Magistrate to grant custody of a minor child and, therefore, the impugned orders do not suffer from any jurisdictional error.

14. For ready reference, Section 21 of the Act, 2005, is reproduced below:

"21. Custody orders. - Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the Magistrate may, at any stage of hearing of the application for protection order or for any other relief under this Act grant temporary custody of any child or children to the aggrieved person or the person making an application on her behalf and specify, if necessary, the arrangements for visit of such child or children by the respondent:Provided that if the Magistrate is of the opinion that any visit of the respondent may be harmful to the interests of the child or children, the Magistrate shall refuse to allow such visit."*

15. Perusal of the Section 21 of the Act, 2005, clearly transpires that the Magistrate has fully empowered to decide the custody of a minor. It is, thus, contended that the submissions urged by learned counsel for the revisionist is wholly misconceived, hence, the present revision is liable to be dismissed by this Court.

16. In view of provisions contained in Section 21 of the Act, 2005, when confronted, learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the Magistrate can decide the custody of a minor in a proceeding pending before it under certain provisions of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005, but it is conclusive that the Magistrate can pass an interim order in this regard. The Magistrate is not empowered to pass final order for custody of a minor child. It is, thus, contended that the submissions urged by learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 is not sustainable.

17. I have heard the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, perused the record and given due consideration to the decisions referred to above.

18. Firstly, the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Poonam Bajwa (supra) doesn't not discuss the provisions contained in Section 21 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act meaning thereby the Supreme Court while deciding the matter, reference of Section 21 of the act 2005 was not made before the Supreme Court.

19. So far as the finding recorded by Rajasthan High Court is concerned, such finding is not binding on this Court having concurrent jurisdiction. Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984 starts with words "Subject to the other provisions of this Act" while the words contained in Section 21 of the Act, 2005 "Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force" when two enactments are enforceable in same kind having contrary provisions later enactment would prevail over earlier enactment.

20. Secondly, the provisions contained in Section 7 of the Family Courts Act keeps overriding effect only upon other provisions of the said Act but not over the provisions of any other Act. Apart from that, the words used in Section 21 of the Act, 2005 clearly indicates that these provisions have overriding effect upon any other law for the time being in force meaning thereby Section 21 of the Act, 2005 keeps overriding effect upon the provisions of Section 7 of the Family Courts Act to the extent of applicability of Section 21 of the Act, 2005.

21. In the aforesaid view of the matter, this Court is unable to subscribe to the proposition laid down in Smt. Payal Agarwal (supra) to the extent it holds that Section 21 of the Act of 2005 cannot operate notwithstanding the provisions of the Family Courts Act. With utmost respect, this Court is of the considered opinion that the said decision does not lay down the correct legal position and, therefore, cannot be followed.

22. The next submission of the learned counsel for the revisionist relates to the nature of the order passed under Section 21 of the Act of 2005. On this aspect, learned counsel himself has fairly conceded that the Magistrate is competent to pass an interim custody order under Section 21. Significantly, the operative portion of the order dated 06.03.2025 passed by the trial court records:

"प्रा िथया का प्र ा थर्ना पत्र अंतगर्त धारा-23 तथा धारा-21 घरेलू िहसाअिधिनयम का अंतिरम प्र ा थर्ना पत्र स् वी कार िकया जाता है

23. The language employed by the trial court leaves no room for doubt that the order is purely interim in nature and has not finally determined the issue of permanent custody. Consequently, the contention that the Magistrate has exceeded the jurisdiction conferred under Section 21 is devoid of substance.

24. For all the reasons recorded hereinabove, I find no illegality, perversity or jurisdictional error in the impugned judgment and order warranting interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction. The criminal revision, being devoid of merit, is accordingly dismissed.

Criminal Revision No. 6851 of 2025

State of U.P. ...Revisionist
Versus
Nawab Singh Yadav & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether, at the stage of taking cognizance on a police report, the Magistrate can sift and appreciate the evidence collected during investigation, as if holding a mini trial, and on that basis refuse to take cognizance?

(ii) Whether the Magistrate, before refusing to take cognizance on a police report and dropping the proceedings, is required to issue notice to and hear the informant?

Headnotes

Criminal Procedure --- Cognizance on police report --- Scope of inquiry --- Magistrate to apply judicial mind only to find whether prima facie case is made out --- Sifting and appreciation of evidence impermissible --- Refusal of cognizance after holding mini trial --- Manifest error of law.

HELD: Following Kamal Shivaji Pokarnekar and Rashmi Kumar, at the stage of taking cognizance and summoning, the Magistrate is required to apply judicial mind only with a view to finding out whether a prima facie case has been made out; the Magistrate is not required to evaluate the merits of the material or evidence, and must not undertake the exercise of finding out whether the materials would lead to a conviction. It is not the province of the Court at that stage to embark upon and sift the evidence to come to the conclusion whether an offence has been made out or not. Where the Magistrate scripted a thirty-one page order going into details of collection of evidence and analysing its worth, commented upon irregularities in remand, upon the addition of Sections by the police in the charge-sheet and upon the forensic knowledge of the investigating officers, and refused cognizance, the order suffers from a manifest error of law in embarking upon a mini trial to find out the truth of the allegations; such remarks were not required at the stage of taking cognizance. A case, prima facie, worth proceeding was clearly made out, and that is all that is required at the stage of taking cognizance. [Paras 17-23, 27]

Criminal Procedure --- Refusal to take cognizance on police report and dropping of proceedings --- Notice and opportunity of hearing to informant mandatory --- Hearing of accused at stage of cognizance impermissible.

HELD: Where the Magistrate, on consideration of the police report, is not inclined to take cognizance of the offence and decides to drop the proceedings, the informant is prejudiced, as the First Information Report lodged by the informant would have failed of its purpose; in view of Bhagwant Singh, the Magistrate must, therefore, give notice to the informant and provide an opportunity of being heard at the time of consideration of the report. Where the accused were heard at the stage of taking cognizance, a procedure wholly impermissible in law, and the Magistrate refused cognizance and terminated the proceedings without issuing notice to or hearing the informant, the order prejudiced the informant's interest and is not sustainable. The order impugned being itself unsustainable, no useful purpose would be served by examining the wisdom of the Magistrate's remarks against the police officers. [Paras 24-26]

Criminal revision allowed. Order dated 20.09.2025 set aside and matter restored to the file of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj, for making fresh orders on the police report, bearing in mind the remarks in the judgment.

Criminal revision allowed. (E-14)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This criminal revision has been preferred by the State assailing an order of Ms. Shraddha Bhartiya, the then Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj, dated 20.09.2025, declining to take cognizance of the offence on the basis of a charge-sheet submitted by the Police in Case Crime No. 361 of 2025, under Sections 351(3), 224, 132, 49, 232, 61(2), 308 (7) and 111 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 (for short, BNS), Police Station Kotwali, District Kannauj, registered as Miscellaneous Case No. 1058 of 2025, besides issuing other directions.

2. A First Information Report giving rise to Case Crime No. 681 of 2025 under Section 76 BNS and Sections 7/8 of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (POCSO Act, for short) was lodged formally in the name of Arvind, the father of the minor victim, but actually by the victim herself, a girl, who shall be called A.

3. It is said in her FIR by A that she is fifteen years old, a resident of Binaura Rampur, Police Station Tirwa, District Kannauj. On 11.08.2024, she had accompanied her aunt (bua) Pooja Tomar to Lucknow and they returned to Tirwa from Lucknow at 11 O'clock in the night. They then boarded an auto-rickshaw and went to Chandan Mahavidyalaya, where they met Nawab Singh Yadav. Nawab Singh Yadav promised a job to the victim in the medical college and it is for the said purpose they were called to the Chandan Mahavidyalaya. During this time, when her aunt (Bua) went to the bathroom, Nawab Singh Yadav took off the victim's clothes, a fact she reported to her aunt immediately. Her aunt called the Police at Dial 112 Facility. It is also reported that Nawab Singh Yadav touched the victim's breast. Necessary action in the matter, after registration of the crime, was requested.

4. The Investigating Officer, during the course of investigation, had the statement of the victim recorded under Section 183 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (‘BNSS’ for short) before the learned Judicial Magistrate and, in that statement, the allegation of rape surfaced against the accused Nawab Singh Yadav. Further on, during investigation, the victim was medically examined by Dr. Swastika Shalini on 13.08.2024, who prepared a medico-legal examination report. A DNA sample of the victim of rape for the purpose of verification was sent to the Forensic Science Laboratory, UP, Agra.

5. The Forensic Science Laboratory submitted their report dated 31.08.2024, where exhibits nos. 1 to 10 belonged to the victim, whereas those numbered as exhibits nos. 11 to 17 were from the accused, Nawab Singh Yadav. It was reported that the biological material, found on exhibits nos. 6 and 7 belonging to the victim, was of male origin and was similar to exhibit no. 17, that is to say, Nawab Singh Yadav□s blood. Likewise, there were similarities found which established, prima facie, through the material carrying the DNA, a case of rape.

6. The Investigating Officer, according to the State's case, carried out an extensive and fair investigation and after collecting cogent material, including the statement of the victim recorded under Sections 180 and 183 BNSS, call detail records, video footage, bank statements, DNA reports and other relevant material, submitted a charge-sheet against opposite party no. 1 and co-accused Pooja Tomar for offences punishable under Sections 65(1), 115(2), 351(3), 61(1) and 238(b) BNS and Sections 3/4(2), 17 and 18 POCSO Act, whereas that against opposite party no. 2 under Section 238(b) BNS. The charge-sheet is one dated 19.09.2024. The trial commenced as Sessions Trial No. 1006 of 2024, before the learned Special Judge (POCSO Act), Kannauj.

7. In the said case, Dr. Swastika Shalini, who medically examined the victim, was summoned by the Trial Judge to testify before him. The witness, who is a government employee, was to appear before the Trial Judge in discharge of her official duties, but was harassed by the accused in the present case in order to suborn her and make her testify in his favor. The aforesaid witness, Dr. Swastika Shalini, entered the witness box in Sessions Trial No. 1006 of 2024 arising out of Case Crime No. 681 of 2024, on 19.03.2025, as PW-11. She was threatened by the accused and was told that after release of opposite party no. 1 from jail, three persons would be done to death. With regard to crime committed against her on that day, an FIR was registered on 20.05.2025 as Case Crime No. 361 of 2025 under Sections 224, 132, 49, 232, 61(2), 351(3) BNS and four named accused, including opposite party nos. 1 and 2.

8. What the revisionist further says is that on 19.03.2025, the first informant had earlier made a complaint before the Superintendent of Police on 23.03.2025. On the said complaint, a preliminary inquiry was conducted by the then Circle Officer, City, Kannauj, who submitted his report dated 12.04.2025. The legal opinion on the aforesaid report was sought from the In-charge, Joint Director (Prosecution), who submitted a report that from the perusal of material, offences punishable under Sections 351(3)/224/132/49/232 BNS are prima facie made out.

9. In his report, the Circle Officer, City, had recommended registration of an FIR in the present case. On the basis of the inquiry report, the Superintendent of Police, Kannauj, vide order dated 20.05.2025, directed the Station House Officer, Police Station Kotwali, District Kannauj, to register an FIR in the present case. It is, in this manner, that the FIR, giving rise to the present crime, was registered on 20.05.2025. After a thorough investigation into the crime, a charge-sheet against opposite party no. 1 was submitted on 11.07.2025 for offences punishable under Sections 351(3), 224, 132, 49, 234, 61(2), 308(7) and 111 BNS. The investigation, as regards the other co-accused, remained pending. The aforesaid charge-sheet was forwarded to the Circle Officer, City, who put up objections and directed the Investigating Officer to conduct investigation on the points raised.

10. The Investigating Officer then proceeded with the investigation again and found that there was no CCTV camera installed in the official accommodation of the first informant. He was told by the first informant and her husband that at the time of the incident, nobody else was present in the house and, as such, there was no other witness of the incident. The Investigating Officer attempted to interrogate some persons in the hospital premises, but no one cooperated.

11. On 31.08.2025, the Investigating Officer again attempted to interrogate some independent witnesses from the hospital premises such as Manjesh Kumar, Cleaner Supervisor of the District Hospital. Manjesh Kumar stated that he had heard that the first informant of the present case was threatened in order to compel her to testify in favor of opposite party nos. 1 and 2 and, thereafter, an SCD 18 dated 31.08.2025 was recorded, substantiating the earlier charge-sheet. The investigation regarding the other two co-accused, Kishore Dohre and Pooja Tomar, was pending. The charge-sheet dated 11.07.2025 and, subsequent leafs of the case diary, were submitted before the Presiding Officer, that is to say, the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj, on 02.09.2025. Later on, this case was numbered as Miscellaneous Case No. 1058 of 2025 in the Court of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj. The learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, vide order dated 20.09.2025, declined to take cognizance of the offences mentioned in the charge-sheet and dismissed Miscellaneous Case No. 1058 of 2025. Aggrieved by the said order, the present revision has been preferred by the State.

12. We have heard Mr. Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Rupak Chaubey, learned Counsel for the revisionist, Mr. Vijit Saxena, learned counsel on behalf of opposite party nos. 1 and 2 and Mr. Amit Kumar Pandey, learned Counsel on behalf of opposite party no. 3 and perused the record, including the order impugned.

13. The thrust of Mr. Goyal's submission, in support of this revision, is that the learned Magistrate, while passing the impugned order, has scripted thirty one pages going into the details of collection of evidence and analyzing its worth as if holding a mini trial. He submits that at the stage of cognizance, the learned Magistrate is only required to apply his judicial mind to the material on record and, if a prima facie case is made out, the Magistrate is obliged to take cognizance and issue process. The learned Magistrate cannot sift through evidence, appreciating various aspects thereof at the stage of taking cognizance.

14. Learned Counsel, Mr. Vijit Saxena, appearing for opposite party no. 1 and Mr. Amit Kumar Pandey, learned Counsel appearing for opposite party no. 3, have supported the order and said that the material collected being all fabricated and the investigation done in an unfair manner, the learned Magistrate has rightly refused to take cognizance.

15. Elucidating on the submissions, learned Counsel for the opposite party have drawn the attention of the Court to the fact that the learned Magistrate has refused to take cognizance on ground that remand of opposite party nos. 1 and 2 was never secured by the Police in the present crime and without securing a remand in the crime, a charge-sheet has been submitted.

16. Learned Counsel for the opposite party have also drawn the Court's attention to the remarks of the learned Magistrate that the first and second opposite parties remand was sought in another case from the learned Special Judge (Gangsters Act), without bringing to notice of the learned Judge the fact that the present crime was pending before the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate and after that remand, from the learned Special Judge (Gangsters Act), statements under Section 180 BNSS, relating to the present crime, have been recorded. There are other remarks of the Magistrate to reach her conclusions that have been highlighted during the hearing by the learned Counsel appearing for the opposite party.

17. A perusal of the impugned FIR indeed shows many remarks in the first part relating to the irregularities in remand which have little to do with the principle issue if, from the material collected, a prima facie case, worth taking cognizance, is made out.

18. In the next lap of the order impugned, we find that the addition of Sections by the Police in the charge-sheet have been commented upon by the learned Magistrate as ones not supported by the FIR, the statements and those additionally recorded during investigation. There is a remark that this is indicative of poor forensic knowledge on the part of the police officers requiring training. It may be so, but, at the stage of taking cognizance, we are of opinion that these remarks were not required.

19. It is also remarked that the concerned Investigating Officer, the Station House Officer and the Circle Officer, City, have included an offence in the FIR under Section 232 BNS but violating, as they have done, the mandatory provisions of Section 215 BNSS, which reveals non-application of mind, negligence in performance of duties and violation of the mandatory provisions of the law. It is then said in the order impugned that during investigation Section 308(7) BNS and extortion have been noted to be continuously committed by the accused and, on its basis, they have added Section 111 BNS to the offences charged, whereas the offence under Section 308(7) BNS falls under Chapter XVII of the BNS, which relates to crimes against property.

20. It is also remarked in that connection that there is nothing to show that any attack or any criminal force was used vis-a-vis the informant by the accused or a criminal conspiracy amongst the accused proven from the evidence. It is also said that there is no such allegation in the FIR as well. It is, therefore, submitted that the basis on which the charge-sheet has been filed, while ignoring the contents of the FIR and the statements recorded during the investigation, is unclear. This reflects a lack of proper forensic and understanding on the part of the investigating police officers. There is also a finding to the effect that it is to be noted that the FIR was lodged on 20.05.2025. The statements of the informant and Dr. Ravindra Kumar recorded in CD-1 on 20.05.2025 at pages nos. 16 and 17, whereas additional statements were recorded one and a half months later in CD-8 dated 06.07.2025, and, therefore, the fact about the accused extending threats surfaced one and a half months later through the additional statements. There are similar remarks touching upon the merits of the material collected in support of the prosecution case, as though the learned Magistrate had undertaken an appreciation of the evidence at the pre-trial stage, apart from making adverse observations regarding the forensic knowledge of the investigating officers.

21. What is required to be done at the stage of taking cognizance is, by far well-settled in the law and it is certainly not that what the learned Magistrate has done while passing the order impugned. In this connection, reference may be made to Kamal Shivaji Pokarnekar v. State of Maharashtra and others (2019) 14 SCC 350, In Kamal Shivaji Pokarnekar (supra), it has been observed:

"3. The trial court recorded the statement of the husband of the appellant and directed issuance of process to the respondents. The respondents filed a revision challenging the issuance of process against them which was dismissed. The High Court allowed the writ petition filed by the respondents, holding that the dispute is of a civil nature, and criminal proceedings against the respondents would be an abuse of the process of law. The High Court recorded a finding that the disputed document cannot be stated to be a sham document, as Shamrao during his lifetime stated on oath that he had handed over the possession of the land to the respondents. The submission made on behalf of the respondents that the matter is entirely of a civil nature was accepted by the High Court.

4. The only point that arises for our consideration in this case is whether the High Court was right in setting aside the order by which process was issued. It is settled law that the Magistrate, at the stage of taking cognizance and summoning, is required to apply his judicial mind only with a view to taking cognizance of the offence, or in other words, to find out whether a prima facie case has been made out for summoning the accused persons. The learned Magistrate is not required to evaluate the merits of the material or evidence in support of the complaint, because the Magistrate must not undertake the exercise to find out whether the materials would lead to a conviction or not."

(Emphasis by Court)

22. The principle was earlier laid down by a three Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in Sonu Gupta v. Deepak Gupta, (2015) 3 SCC 424.

23. A reference, in this connection, may also be made to Rashmi Kumar (Smt.) v. Mahesh Kumar Bhada, (1997) 2 SCC 397, where it was observed:

"14...It is fairly settled legal position that at the time of taking cognizance of the offence, the Court has to consider only the averments made in the complaint or in the charge-sheet filed under Section 173, as the case may be. It was held in State of Bihar v. Rajendra Agrawalla that it is not open for the Court to sift or appreciate the evidence at that stage with reference to the material and come to the conclusion that no prima facie case is made out for proceeding further in the matter. It is equally settled law that it is open to the Court, before issuing the process, to record the evidence and on consideration of the averments made in the complaint and the evidence thus adduced, it is required to find out whether an offence has been made out. On finding that such an offence has been made out and after taking cognizance thereof, process would be issued to the respondent to take further steps in the matters. If it is a charge-sheet filed under Section 173 of the Code, the facts stated by the prosecution in the charge-sheet, on the basis of the evidence collected during investigation, would disclose the offence for which cognizance would be taken by the court to proceed further in the matter. Thus it is not the province of the court at that stage to embark upon and sift the evidence to come to the conclusion whether offence has been made out or not. The learned Judge, therefore, was clearly in error in attempting to sift the evidence with reference to the averments made by the respondent in the counter-affidavit to find out whether or not offence punishable under Section 406 IPC had been made out."

24. The other point that was argued by Mr. Goyal is also well settled in law. He has objected to the fact that whereas the accused were heard at the stage of taking cognizance, a procedure, wholly impermissible in law, the impugned order has been passed by the learned Magistrate without issuing notice to the informant or hearing her which is mandatory because, by the refusal of cognizance, proceedings of the case launched by her would terminate and it is she who is the person aggrieved by this course of action.

25. We agree with the aforesaid submission of Mr. Goyal as well. In this connection, reference may be made to a three Judge Bench decision of the Supreme Court in Bhagwant Singh v. Commissioner of Police and another, (1985) 2 SCC 537, where it has been held:

"4. Now, when the report forwarded by the officer-in-charge of a police station to the Magistrate under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 comes up for consideration by the Magistrate, one of two different situations may arise. The report may conclude that an offence appears to have been committed by a particular person or persons and in such a case. the Magistrate may do one of three things: (1) he may accept the report and take cognizance of the offence and issue process or (2) he may disagree with the report and drop the proceeding or (3) he may direct further investigation under sub-section (3) of Section 156 and require the police to make a further report. The report may on the other hand state that, in the opinion of the police, no offence appears to have been committed and where such a report has been made, the Magistrate again has an option to adopt one of three courses: (1) he may accept the report and drop the proceeding or (2) he may disagree with the report and taking the view that there is sufficient ground for proceeding further, take cognizance of the offence and issue process or (3) he may direct further investigation to be made by the police under sub-section (3) of Section 156. Where, in either of these two situations, the Magistrate decides to take cognizance of the offence and to issue process, the informant is not prejudicially affected nor is the injured or in case of death, any relative of the deceased aggrieved, because cognizance of the offence is taken by the Magistrate and it is decided by the Magistrate that the case shall proceed. But if the Magistrate decides that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding further and drops the proceeding or takes the view that though there is sufficient ground for proceeding against some, there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against others mentioned in the First Information Report, the informant would certainly be prejudiced because the First Information Report lodged by him would have failed of its purpose, wholly of in part. Moreover, when the interest of the informant in prompt and effective action being taken on the First Information Report lodged by him is clearly recognised by the provisions contained in sub-section (2) of Section 154, sub-section (2) of Section 157 and sub-section (2)(ii) of Section 173, it must be presumed that the informant would equally be interested in seeing that the Magistrate takes cognizance of the offence and issues process, because that would be culmination of the First Information Report lodged by him. There can, therefore, be no doubt that when, on a consideration of the report made by the officer-in-charge of a police station under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173, the Magistrate is not inclined to take cognizance of the offence and issue process, the informant must be given an opportunity of being heard so that he can make his submissions to persuade the Magistrate to take cognizance of the offence and issue process. We are accordingly of the view that in a case where the Magistrate to whom a report is forwarded under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 decides not to take cognizance of the offence and to drop the proceeding or takes the view that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against some of the persons mentioned in the First Information Report, the Magistrate must give notice to the informant and provide him an opportunity to be heard at the time of consideration of the report. It was urged before us on behalf of the respondents that if in such a case notice is required to be given to the informant, it might result in unnecessary delay on account of the difficulty of effecting service of the notice on the informant. But we do not think this can be regarded as a valid objection against the view we are taking, because in any case the action taken by the police on the First Information Report has to be communicated to the informant and a copy of the report has to be supplied to him under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 and if that be so, we do not see any reason why it should be difficult to serve notice of the consideration of the report on the informant. Moreover, in any event, the difficulty of service of notice on the informant cannot possibly provide any justification for depriving the informant of the opportunity of being heard at the time when the report is considered by the Magistrate."

26. In this case, it is true that no notice was issued to the informant and the Magistrate proceeded to refuse cognizance and terminated the proceedings, thus prejudicing the informant's interest without hearing her. So far as the remarks against the police officers are concerned, we are of opinion that since the order impugned is itself not sustainable, no useful purpose would be served by examining the wisdom of the learned Magistrate's remarks.

27. Upon a perusal of the police report, together with the case diary and the material collected during investigation, it is a clear case where the order refusing cognizance has been made by the learned Magistrate committing a manifest error of law in embarking upon a mini trial as if it were, to find out the truth of the allegations. The stage of trial is well recognized in criminal procedure and that certainly had not arrived to require the Magistrate to venture into an analysis of all the material that she has done. A case, prima facie, worth proceeding is clearly made out and this is all that is required at the stage of taking cognizance.

28. In the result, this petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 20.09.2025, passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj in Miscellaneous Case No. 1058 of 2025 is hereby set aside and the matter stands restored to the files of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj for making fresh orders on the police report, bearing in mind the remarks in this judgment.

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 11610 of 2026

Amit Kumar Jaiswal & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether an FIR alleging misappropriation of cash meant for replenishment of an ATM by the franchisee is liable to be quashed on the ground that the dispute is purely civil and contractual and the agreement between the parties contains an arbitration clause?

(ii) Whether two FIRs lodged against the petitioners in respect of two different ATMs amount to multiple FIRs on the same cause of action?

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 --- Ss. 316(5), 318(4) --- Criminal breach of trust by agent --- ATM franchisee as custodian of ATM and trustee of cash --- Cash withdrawn for replenishment not loaded into ATM --- Prima facie offence disclosed --- Civil and criminal remedies co-extensive.

HELD: Under the Master Franchisee Service Agreement, the petitioner was the custodian of the ATM/CRM and trustee of the physical cash lying in its vault, and was bound to replenish the cash withdrawn from the designated account into the ATM and not to use it for personal purposes. The allegation that an amount of Rs. 3,08,400/- was not loaded into the ATM, causing wrongful loss to the Company and wrongful gain to the petitioners, prima facie constitutes an offence under Section 316(5) BNS, and there seems to be the necessary mens rea. The same set of facts can give rise both to civil liability and to criminal prosecution; pendency of civil proceedings or availability of civil remedies on the same subject matter is no justification to quash criminal proceedings where a prima facie case exists. [Paras 14-19]

Arbitration clause in agreement --- Not a bar to criminal prosecution.

HELD: An arbitration clause enables parties to seek adjudication of the civil consequences of the violation of a contract and does not envisage adjudication of its criminal consequences; the Arbitrator would have no jurisdiction to investigate or launch prosecution in respect of an offence. The mere existence of an arbitration clause, or even the pendency of arbitration proceedings or availability of civil remedies, does not oust the jurisdiction of criminal courts to consider whether, on the facts narrated in the FIR, a criminal offence has been committed. [Paras 20-23]

Multiple FIRs --- Same cause of action --- Two FIRs relating to two different ATMs at different locations, involving different amounts and registered at different police stations --- Not on same cause of action.

HELD: Where the two FIRs were lodged for two different ATM machines installed at two different places, the amounts involved were totally different and the FIRs were registered at two different police stations having jurisdiction to investigate the offences alleged therein, the FIRs were not lodged on the same cause of action. [Para 24]

Writ petition dismissed; prayer for quashing of FIR refused. (E-14)

Case Arising From

First Information Report dated 20.04.2026, registered as Case Crime No. 46 of 2026, under Sections 316(5), 318(4) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023, Police Station Reotipur, District Ghazipur.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner(s): Anwar Hussain, Mohammad Alam.

For the Respondent(s): G.A., Deepak Upadhyay, Paras Dubey, Rajesh Kumar Singh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Ajay Kumar-II, J.)

1. The instant writ petition filed on behalf of the petitioners seeks quashing of the first information report dated 20.04.2026, registered as Case Crime No.46 of 2026, under Sections 316(5), 318(4) of Bhartiya Nyaya Sanhita (B.N.S.), 2023, Police Station Reotipur, District Ghazipur.

2. As per the allegations made in the impugned first information report, which was lodged by the respondent no.4, presently working as Assistant Manager in Hitachi Payment Services Pvt. Ltd.

(hereinafter referred to as 'the Company') and has been appointed by the Company to pursue the present matter, it is averred that the said Company is a duly registered Organization, which has been authorized by the Reserved Bank of India to run / operate the ATM (Automated Teller Machine). The Company operates ATM / CRM (Cash Recycling Machines) machines across the Country for various Banks under the name and style of 'Hitachi Money Spot', through which banking facilities like cash deposit and cash withdrawal are provided to the general public and ATM cardholders. To fulfill this purpose, an agreement namely, 'Polaris Model Master Franchisee Service Agreement' was executed on 12.08.2024 between the Company and M/s. Asha Enterprises having its Proprietor Amit Kumar Jaiswal (petitioner no.1), son of Shri Awadhesh Kumar Jaiswal, resident of 9, Ward Number 6, Holika Mahal, Dildarnagar, District Ghazipur, Uttar Pradesh - 232326 (Office: 36, Ward Number 6, DL Road, Dildarnagar, Ghazipur). Under the said agreement, ATM ID - MPZ 14364 was established at Ward Number 12 Patti, Gelha Rai, Tehsil Zamania, Police Station Reotipur, District Ghazipur, Uttar Pradesh - 232328. It was proposed by Amit Kumar Jaiswal to the Company that his subordinate employee Vishwajeet Raj son of Shri Santosh Kumar (Aadhar Number: 7729-7279-9793), be authorized by the Company to perform 'Axis Indent' withdrawals. Therefore, at the request of Amit Kumar Jaiswal, the Company authorized Vishwajeet Raj to withdraw funds via Axis Indent. The Company issued Indent to Amit Kumar Jaiswal and his son Master Franchisee Harsh Raj (petitioner no.2) and Vishwajeet Raj to operate the said ATM through Hitachi's Account number 919020069430599 via Axis Bank, Ghazipur Branch. In addition to this, a total amount of Rs.7,25,70,200/- (Rupees Seven Crores Twenty Five Lakh Seventy Thousand Two Hundred) was provided through Union Bank of India Account number 441501010250763, IFSC: UBIN0544159, held by account holder Asha Enterprises. Against this, a total amount of Rs.7,22,61,800/- (Rupees Seven Crore Twenty Two Lakh Sixty One Thousand Eight Hundred) was withdrawn by ATM cardholders. After reviewing the ATM switch data, it has come out that an amount of Rs. 3,08,400/- (Rupees Three Lakhs Eight Thousand Four Hundred) was less loaded into the ATM. Despite this, Amit Kumar Jaiswal and his son Master Franchisee Harsh Raj and Vishwajeet Raj kept providing wrong information and misleading the Company regarding the cash loading and they tried to show/convince that the entire amount was loaded into the ATM. This act has not only caused financial loss to the Company but has also caused inconvenience to the general public due to the disruption of ATM services. In the relevant terms and conditions of the aforementioned agreement, especially in Clause 1, Sub-clause (m) of the agreement, responsibilities regarding cash management and security were clearly defined for Amit Kumar Jaiswal and his son Master Franchisee Harsh Raj. Under the present agreement, amongst other things agreed by and between the Parties hereto, the Master Franchise Agent shall (i) act as the custodian of the ATM/CRM and other related assets installed in the said Premises; (ii) be the trustee of the physical cash amount lying at the ATM/CRM vault and will provide necessary security to the cash to prevent any kind of incidents like robbery or theft; (iii) keep and maintain the said Premises at all time in clean, hygienic and good condition (iv) withdraw the cash amount as per the requirement, which shall be determined by the Company from time to time, from the designated bank A/c (a Designated Bank A/c is an A/c opened up by the Master Franchise Agent in his individual name at a local branch exclusively used for the purpose of withdrawing cash to replenish into the ATM/CRM and this designated Bank A/c shall not be utilized for his/her other personal use including but not limited to deposit, transfer or withdrawn of amount for his personal use) (v) the amount withdrawn from the Designated bank A/c shall be replenished into the ATM/CRM machine installed in the said Premises to enable the cardholders to withdraw the cash; (vi) at no point of time remove the cash amount from the ATM/CRM and misappropriate the same for his/her personal use; (vii) ensure that the camera installed in the said Premises is functioning properly and if the camera is found to be defective, then the Master Franchise Agent should immediately inform the Company; (viii) to assist the Company's representative to carry out required First Level Maintenance (FLM) or Second Level Maintenance (SLM) services in the said Premises; and (ix) such other activities as may be informed by the Company from time to time. According to Clause 1, Sub-clause (o) of the agreement, The Master Franchise Agent shall, under no circumstances, use any cash amount or intermingle funds, from his / her own source or from any third-party source without approval of the Company in writing for the purpose of replenishment. The Master Franchise Agent will use the currency notes withdrawn from the Designated Bank A/c only for replenishing it into the ATM/CRM. The Master Franchise Agent hereby agrees and aware that if he / she utilizes the currency notes from sources other than the one withdrawn from the Designated Bank A/c, then it will be considered as a material breach of this Agreement and the Master Franchise Agent shall be solely liable and responsible for the consequences arising therefrom. In such case, the Company shall be entitled to forthwith terminate this Agreement and forfeit the security deposit amount maintained with the Company without any intimation to the Master Franchise Agent. Clear instructions of the Company were that if for any reason the cash amount could not be loaded into the ATM, then it would be mandatory to return it to the Company. However, Amit Kumar Jaiswal and his son Master Franchisee Harsh Raj and Vishwajeet Raj, deliberately did not return the remaining amount to the Company and misled the Company by giving false information. After the ATM switch data was updated, fraud was detected, and despite several requests for the return of the amount being made in writing and verbally, neither was the money returned, nor was any satisfactory clarification provided by them to the Company. Thus, Amit Kumar Jaiswal and his son Master Franchisee Harsh Raj and Vishwajeet Raj, while acting in the capacity of a banking agent, have embezzled the Company's funds under a pre-planned conspiracy, which falls under the category of a punishable offence. The complainant (respondent no.4) had submitted an application regarding the above to the Police Station Reotipur on 24.01.2026, but the Reotipur Police have neither taken any action till date nor have they registered the complainant's case, due to which this application is being moved. Request has been made to register the case against Amit Kumar Jaiswal and his son Master Franchisee Harsh Raj and Vishwajeet Raj and initiate legal proceedings.

3. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners, learned AGA for the State, Shri Deepak Upadhyay alongwith Shri Rajesh Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the respondent no.4 and perused the record.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that the present first information report was lodged on 20.04.2026, by the respondent no.4 giving rise to Case Crime No.46 of 2026, under Sections 316(5), 318(4) of B.N.S., 2023 for alleged misappropriation of Rs.3,08,400/-. A bare reading of the present first information report clearly demonstrates that the dispute / entire allegation arises out of ATM cash loading, withdrawal and reconciliation under commercial agreements dated 12.08.2024 and 21.04.2025 executed between the parties.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners further submitted that the aforesaid agreements specifically contain a clause regarding arbitration. The said arbitration clause clearly establishes that any dispute that arises under the aforesaid agreements shall be attempted to settle through negotiation and mutual agreement and if it could not be settled through such negotiation and mutual agreement, then it shall be finally settled by sole Arbitrator, which shall be appointed by the informant Company. The award of the Arbitrator shall be final and binding between the parties. A bare perusal of the first information report reveals that the dispute is based upon internal reconciliation of ATM cash and alleged outstanding amount, which squarely falls within the scope of dispute contemplated under the aforesaid arbitration clause. Therefore, the dispute between the parties is purely contractual and arbitral in nature. However, the respondent no.4 has deliberately bypassed the agreed arbitral mechanism and had resorted to criminal proceedings in order to exert pressure upon the petitioners for recovery of alleged due amount, which is impermissible in law. Earlier, the petitioner no.1 had already moved an application under Section 173(4) B.N.S.S. against the respondent no.4 and other persons, which is still pending.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that on receipt of show cause notice cum demand notice dated 06.01.2026, the petitioner no.2 had given a legal notice on 13.01.2026 and had also replied on 21.01.2026 to the show cause notice cum demand notice specifically denying any breach of trust as alleged in the show cause notice cum demand notice dated 06.01.2026, but on 09.02.2026, the informant Company had terminated the aforesaid agreements executed between the parties and had also forfeited the security deposit.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners next submitted that the entire allegations, even if taken at its face value, do not disclose the essential ingredients of offence under Sections 316(5), 318(4) of B.N.S., as the dispute is purely civil in nature arising out of contractual obligations and thus no criminal proceedings could have been instituted as a substitute for civil remedies. Even otherwise the responding no.4 has lodged multiple F.I.R.s on the same cause of action, which is impermissible in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in T.T. Antony Vs. State of Kerala & Others, 2001 (6) SCC 181 and Babubhai Vs. State of Gujarat & Others, 2010 (12) SCC 254.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioners further submitted that the impugned first information report has been lodged with malafide intention and ulterior motive and it is a classic example of abuse of criminal machinery for settling civil dispute and continuation of the impugned criminal proceedings would result in miscarriage of justice and irreparable injury to the petitioners.

9. It was lastly argued that the present proceedings are liable to be quashed in view of the settled law that where a dispute is predominantly civil in nature with no element of criminality, the same cannot be allowed to continue as criminal case.

10. Per contra, learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the respondent no.4 vehemently opposed the prayer for quashing of the F.I.R. as well as the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioners and submitted that in the present case, the act of the petitioners has not only caused financial loss to the Company but has also caused inconvenience to the general public owing to the disruption of ATM services. They have embezzled the Company's funds by hatching conspiracy. Neither the embezzled money was returned nor any plausible explanation for the same was given by the petitioners. In this way, the petitioners have siphoned off the money meant for ATM cash replenishment by keeping the Company in dark. The petitioners were entrusted with collecting cash from the Bank and depositing it into ATM. However, instead of loading the cash, they pocketed the money.

11. Learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the respondent no.4 next submitted that from the allegations made in the impugned first information report, involvement of the petitioners is writ large on the face of it and prima facie, offence is clearly disclosed against the petitioners and the matter requires deep probe and thorough investigation.

12. Lastly, they submitted that from the allegations made in the first information report, prima facie offence, complained of, is clearly disclosed against the petitioner and, as such, the first information report cannot be quashed in view of the law laid down by the Supreme Court in the case of State of Telangana vs. Habib Abdullah Jellani reported in (2017) 2 SCC 779, Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. vs. State of Maharashtra and Others reported in (2021) SCC Online SC 315 and in a recent decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court reported in (2024) 5 SCC 419, Directorate of Enforcement Vs. Niraj Tyagi and others.

13. Having considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties, we have carefully perused the allegations made in impugned first information report as well as the documents annexed with the petition in regard to the aforesaid agreements.

14. A bare perusal of the first information report clearly reveals that the petitioner no.1 executed an agreement namely, 'Polaris Model Master Franchisee Service Agreement' with the Company. Thus, it is crystal clear that petitioner no.1 was working as an Agent of Hitachi Payment Services Pvt. Ltd. As per Clause 1 (n) of the agreement, petitioner no.1 was the custodian of the ATM/CRM and was also trustee of the physical cash amount lying at the ATM/CRM vault. There is a clear stipulation in the agreement that the cash amount withdrawn from the local Branch was to be replenished into the ATM/CRM. It was also clearly stipulated that the cash amount so withdrawn for this purpose shall not be utilized for his other personal use. It was also clearly stipulated that at no point of time, the petitioner shall remove the cash amount from the ATM/CRM and misappropriate the same for his personal use. Thus, the petitioner no.1 was duty bound to act strictly in accordance with the terms and conditions of the agreement. At no point of time, he was authorized to withdraw the cash amount from the concerned Branch for his own personal utilization instead of replenishing the whole such withdrawn cash into the designated ATM/CRM.

15. The role of petitioner no.2 is also clearly specified in the first information report that it was on the instructions of petitioner no.1, his son petitioner no.2 and one Vishwajeet Raj were authorized to receive cash amount from the authorized Bank by issuing an indent. There is a clear averment that a total of Rs.7,25,70,200/- was withdrawn and against this amount, an amount of Rs.7,22,61,800/- was withdrawn by the ATM cardholders. However, an amount of Rs.3,08,400/- was not loaded in the designated ATM/CRM, causing a loss to the Company, and resultantly an unlawful gain to the petitioners. The aforesaid misappropriation of money amounting to Rs.3,08,400/- was done by the petitioners while working as an Agent of Hitachi Payment Services Pvt. Ltd., violating the terms and conditions of the agreement. The aforesaid act is prima facie an offence, covered under Sections 316(5) of B.N.S., 2023.

16. From the facts stated in the first information report, it is apparent that the Company and ATM cardholders were deprived of an amount of Rs.3,08,400/-, which resulted into causing wrongful loss to the Company and was a wrongful gain to the petitioners. By committing wrongful fraudulent act and violating the terms and conditions of the agreement, the petitioners embezzled and misappropriated an amount of Rs.3,08,400/- of the Company. Thus, there seems to be necessary mens rea in the present case as far as petitioners are concerned. Law is well settled that the same set of facts can give rise both to civil liability and a criminal prosecution if the facts constitute a mens rea. If there is no mens rea or if the other essential ingredients of an offence are lacking in such facts, only then the same facts may not sustain a criminal prosecution, though a civil action may lie.

17. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Kathyayini Vs. Sidharth P.S. Reddy & Ors., 2025 INSC 818, has clearly held that there is no bar against prosecution during the pendency of a civil suit if the offences punishable under criminal law are made out against the parties. The Hon□ble Apex Court has clearly observed by relying on its previous judgment in K. Jagadish Vs. Udaya Kumar G.S. and another, (2020) 14 SCC 552 that it is well settled that in certain cases the very same set of facts may give rise to remedies in civil as well as in criminal proceedings and even if a civil remedy is availed by a party, he is not precluded from setting in motion the proceedings in criminal law. The other relevant paragraphs 20 and 21 of the Kathyayini (supra) case are reproduced here-in-below.

20. In Pratibha Rani v. Suraj Kumar and another, (1985) 2 SCC 370, this Court summed up the distinction between the two remedies as under :

"21. There are a large number of cases where criminal law and civil law can run side by side. The two remedies are not mutually exclusive but clearly coextensive and essentially differ in their content and consequence. The object of the criminal law is to punish an offender who commits an offence against a person, property or the State for which the accused, on proof of the offence, is deprived of his liberty and in some cases even his life. This does not, however, affect the civil remedies at all for suing the wrongdoer in cases like arson, accidents, etc. It is an anathema to suppose that when a civil remedy is available, a criminal prosecution is completely barred. The two types of actions are quite different in content, scope and import. It is not at all intelligible to us to take the stand that if the husband dishonestly misappropriates the stridhan property of his wife, though kept in his custody, that would bar prosecution under Section 406 IPC or render the ingredients of Section 405 IPC nugatory or abortive. To say that because the stridhan of a married woman is kept in the custody of her husband, no action against him can be taken as no offence is committed is to override and distort the real intent of the law.

21. The aforesaid view was reiterated in Kamaladevi Agarwal v. State of W.B. and others, (2002) 1 SCC 555,

"17. In view of the preponderance of authorities to the contrary, we are satisfied that the High Court was not justified in quashing the proceedings initiated by the appellant against the respondents. We are also not impressed by the argument that as the civil suit was pending in the High Court, the Magistrate was not justified to proceed with the criminal case either in law or on the basis of propriety. Criminal cases have to be proceeded with in accordance with the procedure as prescribed under the Code of Criminal Procedure and the pendency of a civil action in a different court even though higher in status and authority, cannot be made a basis for quashing of the proceedings.

18. The Apex Court in Punit Beriwala V. The State of NCT of Delhi and Ors. 2025 SCC OnLine SC 983 reiterating the same in para 28 has held thus:

"28. It is trite law that mere institution of civil proceedings is not a ground for quashing the FIR or to hold that the dispute is merely a civil dispute. This Court in various judgments, has held that simply because there is a remedy provided for breach of contract, that does not by itself clothe the Court to conclude that civil remedy is the only remedy, and the initiation of criminal proceedings, in any manner, will be an abuse of the process of the court. This Court is of the view that because the offence was committed during a commercial transaction, it would not be sufficient to hold that the complaint did not warrant a further investigation and if necessary, a trial."

19. Thus, law has been well settled that pendency of civil proceedings or availability of civil remedies on the same subject matter involving the same parties is no justification to quash the criminal proceedings if a prima facie case exists against the accused persons.

20. It is no doubt true that an arbitration clause [clause 20 (e)] exists in the present case and binds parties to seek adjudication of their disputes, before an Arbitrator. The mere existence of an arbitration clause cannot prevent criminal prosecution against the petitioners, if an act constituting a criminal offence is made out even prima facie. As already held hereinbefore, a given set of facts may give rise to both civil and/or criminal consequences. The existence of one would not necessarily rule out the other. An arbitration clause enables parties to seek adjudication of the civil consequences of the violation of a contract. An arbitration clause does not envisages adjudication of criminal consequences of an alleged breach of contract. The Arbitrator, would obviously adjudicate the civil consequences of the violation of the the contract and if this violation leads to the commission of a criminal offence, the Arbitrator would have no jurisdiction to investigate or launch prosecution, in respect thereof. The criminal prosecution and remedy by way of arbitration are two separate and distinct courses available to an aggrieved party. The mere existence of an arbitration clause or even the pendency of arbitration proceedings or availability of civil remedies would, in our considered opinion, not oust the jurisdiction of criminal Courts, to consider whether on the facts narrated in the FIR, a criminal offence has been committed.

21. The conclusion that the existence of an arbitration clause is not a bar to the initiation of criminal proceedings is fortified by a judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Trisuns Chemical Industry v. Rajesh Aggarwal, 1994(4) RCR (Crl.) 223 (SC)(supra)." In Trisuns Chemical 's case (supra), it was held as under:-

"We are unable to appreciate the reasoning that the provision incorporated in the agreement for referring the disputes to arbitration is an effective substitute for a criminal prosecution when the disputed act is an offence. Arbitration is a remedy for affording reliefs to the party affected by breach of the agreement but the arbitrator cannot conduct a trial of any act which amounted to an offence albeit the same act may be connected with the discharge of any function under the agreement. Hence, those are not good reasons for the High Court to axe down the complaint at the threshold itself. The investigating agency should have had the freedom to go into the whole gamut of the allegations and to reach a conclusion of its own. Pre-emption of such investigation would be justified only in very extreme cases as indicated in Bhajan Lal v. State of Haryana."

22. The Apex Court in Digambar Pathak V. State of UP SLP (Cr.) No. 7341 of 2025 in para 8 has again observed as under:

"8. In such circumstances, before taking a decision to quash the proceedings arising from FIR, it was incumbent upon the High Court, exercising powers under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, to advert to the allegations and the materials collected during the course of investigation so as to find out whether a prima facie case is made out or not to proceed against the accused. The High Court quashed the proceedings on the singular ground that there is an arbitration agreement between the parties where they can resolve their differences amicably. It is well-settled that mere existence of an arbitration clause in the contract between the parties is not a sufficient ground for quashing the criminal proceedings if the necessary ingredients of a criminal offence are made out from the allegations and the materials collected during the course of investigation or inquiry.[Trisuns Chemical Industry V. Rajesh Agarwal & Others (1999) 8 SCC 686]"

23. While reverting back to the facts of present case, it is clear that it is a case where the Company has suffered a wrongful loss of Rs.3,08,400/-, therefore, in this situation, the aforesaid Company has a right to institute civil proceedings for the recovery of aforesaid amount. However, the Company is also at liberty to invoke arbitration clause for recovering the aforesaid amount. The arbitration clause of the agreement cannot be read as a bar to institution of criminal proceedings, if an offence is prima facie made out against the petitioners. By invoking the arbitration clause, either the Company can initiate proceedings for recovery of its wrongful loss or even the petitioners can invoke the aforesaid arbitration clause to challenge the termination of their agreement, but by no stretch of imagination, the aforesaid arbitration clause can be read as a bar to initiation of criminal proceedings against the petitioners for their such acts, which prima facie constitute the commission of a cognizable offence.

24. We have also carefully gone through the F.I.R. No.46 dated 20.04.2026 and F.I.R. No.253 dated 17.04.2026. It was argued that for same cause of action, two different F.I.R.s have been registered, which is impermissible in law. However, perusal of both the F.I.R.s clearly reveals that these two F.I.R.s have been lodged for two different ATM machines installed at two different places. Even the amount involved in these two F.I.R.s is totally different. In F.I.R. No.46, there is an embezzlement of an amount of Rs.3,08,400/-, whereas in F.I.R. No.253, there is an embezzlement of Rs.30,95,700/- after a deposit of Rs.8,09,700/- on 18.11.2025 and a deposit of Rs.4,32,200/- on 19.11.2025 by the petitioners. Therefore, both these F.I.R.s have been registered for different set of facts for two different locations and even the F.I.R.s have been lodged in two different police stations, meaning thereby that the jurisdiction to lodge and investigate the offences alleged in those F.I.R.s vests in two different police stations. Therefore, in the totality of the circumstances, these two F.I.R.s are not lodged on the same cause of action. Thus, we find no force in the arguments so raised by the learned counsel for the petitioners.

25. In the light of aforesaid discussions and keeping in view the principles of law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the decisions cited above, we are of the opinion that the impugned first information report cannot be quashed qua the petitioners at this nascent stage.

26. The prayer for quashing of the first information report is therefore, refused.

27. The instant writ petition lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE
DATED: LUCKNOW 07.07.2026

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE RAM MANOHAR NARAYAN MISHRA, J.

Criminal Revision No. 340 of 2026

Mohd. Shafeeq @ Raja ...Revisionist
Versus
U.O.I. ...Opposite Parties

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the revisionist was entitled to discharge under Section 227 Cr.P.C. from the charges under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506 and 316 IPC on the ground that the allegation of kicking the pregnant complainant on her abdomen, resulting in miscarriage, surfaced only in her supplementary statement and was not supported by medical evidence?

(ii) What is the scope of examination of the material collected during investigation at the stage of considering an application for discharge or framing of charge?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- Ss. 227, 228 --- Discharge --- Framing of charge --- Scope --- Meticulous examination of evidence and mini trial impermissible --- Strong suspicion sufficient for framing charge.

HELD: Discharge is a pre-trial termination of proceedings due to lack of foundational material or insufficient evidence even for framing of charge, whereas acquittal is a post-trial outcome rendered after evaluating evidence in a full trial. As held in Prafulla Kumar Samal, at the stage of framing of charge, the court may sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case is made out, and if the court comes to the conclusion of a strong prima facie case or strong suspicion, charges will be framed; the court is not supposed to delve deeply into the materials or look into the evidence in detail. As re-affirmed in Ashok Kumar Kashyap, discharge cannot involve scrutiny of contradictions or inconsistencies, and meticulous examination of the evidence collected during investigation is not permissible at the stage of considering a discharge application or framing of charge under Sections 227/228 Cr.P.C.; no mini trial is permitted at that stage. [Paras 19-23]

Indian Penal Code, 1860 --- S. 316 --- Allegation of kicking pregnant wife on abdomen resulting in miscarriage --- Allegation first made in supplementary statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. --- Medical evidence --- Charge not groundless --- Discharge rightly refused.

HELD: Upon considering the supplementary statement of the victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the FIR version and the statements of the doctors recorded during investigation, the charge against the revisionist cannot be said to be groundless so as to entitle him to discharge under Section 227 Cr.P.C.; the revisionist shall have the opportunity to assail the prosecution case through cross-examination of prosecution witnesses as well as by defence evidence. There is no illegality, irregularity or perversity in the order rejecting the discharge application. The observations made are only for the purpose of disposal of the revision and the trial court shall have liberty to form an independent opinion on the merits at the conclusion of trial. [Paras 23-25]

Criminal revision dismissed with observations. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 25.02.2026 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, FTC (New), Sitapur, rejecting the discharge application of the revisionist in S.T. No. 64 of 2025, arising out of Case Crime No. 394 of 2023, under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506 and 316 IPC, Police Station Laharpur, District Sitapur.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Desh Ratan Mishra.

For the Opposite Party(s): G.A., Mohd. Shahid Akhtar.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned AGA for the State respondent no.1 and learned counsel appearing for the respondent no.2, the complainant and pursue the record.

2. By means of instant criminal revision, the accused revisionist has prayed for setting aside the impugned order dated 25/02/2026 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, FTC (New) Sitapur whereby learned Additional Sessions Judge, FTC (New) Sitapur rejected the discharge application of the revisionist in ST No.64 of 2025, arising out of case crime no.394 of 2023, under Sections 498-A, 323, 504, 506 and 316 IPC, Police Station Laharpur, District Sitapur whereby application for discharge of revisionist has been rejected.

3. In brief, is that Smt. Nargma Pravin, who is the wife of the revisionist, lodged an FIR at police station concerned on 01/09/2023 at 16:30 hours on the basis of order passed by the learned Judicial Magistrate-I, Sitapur on her application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C filed before the Court bearing date 18/08/2023 with allegation that she was married with the revisionist on 27.11.2022. However, her husband and in-laws were not happy with the dowry and gifts obtained in the marriage. They were demanding Rs. 2 lakh as additional dowry and due to non-fulfillment of demand of dowry, her husband surreptitiously married a woman, namely Najrin Bano and took her at his home; the complainant raised objection to this, whereupon on 11/06/2023, opposite party, Mohd. Sadab, the elder brother of her husband and his family members badly gave beating to her by kicks, fists and kept her as hostage in the house. She anyhow informed her parents and her family members reached there and got her rescued from the clutches of accused persons. On 02/07/2023 at 4:00 PM, accused persons visited at her parental place when she was alone in the house and stated that they had come for compromise. She stated that she declined to enter into any compromise in absence of her family members. The accused persons got infuriated to this and on exhortation of accused Mohd. Sadab and Dilshad, the accused persons committed rape on her by pointing weapon on her and creating apprehension of her life. The complainant narrated this incident to her family members when they came back to the house, she made every effort to get her FIR lodged, but police did not take any action and ultimately she moved an application before the court for lodging an FIR against the accused persons.

4. The factual matrix of the case, in brief, is that the FIR in respect of the present case was lodged by the respondent no.2 by moving written report before the Station House Officer concerned on 12/06/2023 at 12:30 hours in respect of present case in which she stated that on 11/06/2023 at 9 PM, the accused persons who include her husband, brothers, his sisters and family members badly assaulted her by kicks, fits and clubs and sticks, due to which she suffered many injuries on her person.

5. Thus, according to the version of informant, the incident dated 11/06/2023 occurred at her matrimonial home and the second incident dated 02/07/2023 in respect of second FIR was lodged regarding which FIR in Case Crime No.284 of 2023 was lodged by her, which took place at her parental place on 02/07/2023. In the FIR dated 01/09/2023 her husband is not named. The complainant in her statement under Section 161 CrPC dated 12/06/2023 supported her FIR version and stated that she will get her x-ray done at District Hospital, Sitapur.

6. However, in her supplementary statement dated 02/07/2023, she stated that in occurrence dated 11/06/2023, her husband kicked her several times on her abdomen, knowing that she was pregnant, due to which she was suffering from pain all over her body and abdomen. She got her FIR lodged on 12/06/2023 and police got her medico legal examination done on 12/06/2023 and thereafter she was referred to District Hospital, Sitapur. In the intervening night of 13/14/06.2023, she suffered excessive pain in her abdomen and she got miscarriage and her fetus got miscarried. Her family members took her to Women's Hospital on 14/06/2023 where her ultrasound and treatment was carried out.

7. In her medical legal examination dated 12/06/2023 at 1:10 PM, one contused swelling over right shoulder, one contused swelling over left hand thumb and one abrasion on base of left hand index finger were detected and she made complaint of pain in whole body. In x-ray report, no bone injury was seen. She was again examined on 02/07/2023 at PHC, Manva, Sitapur, in which doctor has stated that "LMP 5/2/23 Pa+2, CA - 14/623 missed abortion, D&C not done, No live tissue, Bleeding P/V present since 14/6/23. Advice USG of uterus and Adenexa. Supplementary report awaited.

8. In supplementary report dated 02/07/2023, urine pregnancy report was negative. There was normal ultrasonography of abdomen with free fluid in POD, Pelvic inflammatory disease.

9. The police submitted charge sheet against the revisionist after investigation under Sections 498A, 323, 504, 506 and 316 IPC, Police Station Laharpur, District Sitapur against the revisionist.

10. The revisionist moved discharge application before the Court of Session, Sitapur under Section 227 CrPC on 07/04/2025 on the ground that in FIR the complainant has made allegations of demand of dowry against accused applicants. However, after investigation, the police submitted charge sheet against four persons, namely, applicant, his father Mukhtar, mother Mehsher Jahan and one Nazreen Bano, as complicity of other accused persons was not found in the offense. These three co-accused persons have already filed a petition under Section 482 CrPC before the High Court in which proceedings of trial court were stayed and the matter is pending for final adjudication.

11. The complainant, in her earlier statement under Section 161 CrPC, did not raise any allegation that her husband had kicked in her abdomen due to which she sustained injury, but later on, 02/07/2023, in her supplementary statement, after significant delay, stated that husband kicked her in the abdomen, when she was pregnant in the night of 13/14/06.2023, which resulted in miscarriage. As per X-ray report of the complainant, no boney injury was found. Furthermore, in the doctor's statement recorded during investigation, it is stated that while some swelling and fluid were detected outside of uterus, there was no conclusive evidence of miscarriage. The ultrasound examination was conducted after 15 to 16 days of the alleged incident, making it difficult to draw any firm medical conclusion. The allegation of miscarriage is not supported by any medico evidence. She later claimed that her husband contracted second marriage, although this is nowhere mentioned in the FIR dated 12/06/2023, and this allegation is after thought. The complainant had made a false FIR under Sections 498-A, 376-D, 323, 504, 506 IPC and 3/4 DP Act against her husband and his brothers and four others, in which the police submitted final report and exonerated all the five named accused persons. This shows that the complainant is in the habit of lodging false FIRs. The alleged offenses are not made out against applicant-accused.

12. The trial court has heard both sides on discharge application, 9Kha, and dismissed the same by impugned order dated 25/02/2023 and fixed the case for framing of charge.

13. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that charge under Section 316 IPC is not substantiated by medico legal evidence and learned trial court has given a wrong finding in respect of said charge under Section 316 IPC.

14. Inasmuch as in FIR as well as in her first statement under Section 161 CrPC, the complainant has not made any allegation in respect of said charge. She has not even stated in the FIR in specific manner that she was kicked in her abdomen by the revisionist. The learned trial court has dismissed the discharge application in a mechanical manner without addressing the grounds taken therein in the right perspective. The doctor has stated in supplementary report of the complainant that on the basis of clinical examination and investigation report, urine pregnancy test is negative and USG normal seen. The informant has filed a complaint under Section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act against revisionist and his family members on 07/07/2023, only to harass them on the basis of concocted version and there is no allegation in the FIR or in the first statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of the informant against the revisionist regarding causing blow on her abdomen by kicks which latter resulted in miscarriage. Even ingredients of charge under Section 316 Cr.P.C. are not attracted in the case.

15. This Hon'ble Court has enlarged the revisionist on anticipatory bail by order dated 05/09/2023 passed in Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application U/S 438 Cr.P.C. No. 1929 of 2023 with observation that "Having considered the aforesaid facts and circumstances of the case prima facie it appears from the material available before the Court that there is serious matrimonial dispute between the applicant and the informant regarding which several litigation have been initiated from both the sides. As per version of the informant herself the applicant has married co-accused Nazreen, although this fact has not been disclosed in the FIR. Although the informant has stated in her additional statement that the applicant had hit on her abdomen knowing fully well that she is pregnant, this fact has not been mentioned by her in FIR or in her statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC from which prima facie it appears that informant herself was not aware about the pregnancy till the time of the the incident. In these circumstances, it appears that the applicant also would not be in a position to know about her pregnancy. Allegation of causing miscarriage is not supported by medico legal examination report".

16. Learned AGA and learned counsel for the respondent submitted that there is no illegality, irregularity or propriety in the impugned order passed by the learned trial court while dismissing the discharge application filed by the revisionist. The impugned order is speaking and well-reasoned order in which all the aspects of the case are duly considered and no interference is called for in the impugned order.

17. They also submitted that at the stage of consideration of prayer for discharge or framing of charge and meticulous examination of evidence collected during investigation is not permitted. The victim has stated in her supplementary statement that the revisionist gave blows on her abdomen due to which she sustained internal injury and later on got miscarried of her pregnancy. He was aware of her pregnancy at the time of incident dated 11/06/2023. Her first medico legal examination was conducted on 12/06/2023 at 1 PM and at that time, she might not have been aware of internal injury to her fetus. Later on 13/14/06.2023 she suffered miscarriage due to acute abdominal pain. Her family members produced her before female doctor who treated her and her ultrasound was done. Dr. Dipali Jaiswal of PHC, Manva, Sitapur has treated her on 02/07/2023 and has observed that per virginal bleeding was present since 14/06/2023 which corroborates supplementary statements of the victim / complainant. She was referred for ultrasound of uterus and adenesea. Her ultrasound was done on 03/07/2023 and on the basis of ultrasound report, the doctor in her supplementary report dated 12/07/2023 has observed that normal USG of abdomen with free fluid seen in POD, Pelvic Inflammatory Disease. This symptom suggests that she suffered miscarriage prior to her ultrasound. Inasmuch as Dr. Indra Singh, Radiologist, who conducted USG ultrasonography of the victim/complainant has stated in his statement under Section 161 CrPC that outside the uterus, fluid and swelling was seen in POD area. The situation of miscarriage was not clear. He has stated that presence of these fluid and swelling could have been present due to assault. Dr. Dipali Jaiswal, the lady doctor, has also stated in her statement under Section 161 CrPC that LMP of the victim occurred on 05/02/2023 as per her statement and 14/06/2023 she suffered miscarriage and on that day she was bleeding. This might have occurred due to abortion / miscarriage. The presence of free fluid and swelling in POD area of uterus may also occur due to miscarriage.

18. With above submissions, learned counsel for the respondent submitted that on the basis of medical evidence and statements of the doctors before Investigating Officer, it cannot be said that the medical evidence is not supportive of the case of miscarriage of her fetus due to kicks and blows given to her by her husband, is not supportive of her case with regard to Section 316 IPC.

19. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on a judgment of this Court in Julius Masih versus State of U.P. and another, 2024 SCC Online All 7683, wherein it has observed in para 18 of the order, which is reproduced here under.

"18. The law is very settled that for the discharge of an accused, it is esential that upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith and after hearing the submissions of the accused and prosecution in this behalf, the judge considers that there is no sufficient grounds for proceeding against the accused. The law is well settled in Union of India vs. Prafulla Kumar Samal and Another (1979) 3 SCC 4 that if the court comes to the conclusion of strong prima facie case or strong suspicion, the charges will be framed. At the stage of framing of charge the court has the power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case is made out against the accused. However, the court is not supposed to delve deeply into the materials of the matter. Thus, at the time of framing of charge, the court is not supposed to look into the evidence of the case in detail and is only to consider whether there is strong suspicion against the accused."

20. So far as law of discharge is concerned, discharge is a pre-trial termination of proceedings due to a lack of foundational material or insufficient evidence even for framing of charge. Conversely, an acquittal is post trial outcome rendered after evaluating evidence in a full trial. A person after discharge is saved from being subjected to rigors and harassment of a criminal trial in the first place. A discharge signifies an absolute lack of evidence at the threshold in respect of the alleged charge.

21. In State of Rajasthan versus Ashok Kumar Kashyap (2021) LiveLaw 2021 SC 2010, Hon'ble Supreme Court re-affirmed that discharge cannot involve scrutiny of contradiction or inconsistency; the judge must only examine whether the rebutted material discloses ingredients of the alleged offense. In this decision Hon'ble Court reiterated and strengthened the principle laid down in leading case Union of India vs. Prafull Kumar Samanl (1979) 3 SCC 4. Hon'ble Court disapproved the approach of the High Court which had discharged an accused under the Prevention of Corruption Act by scrutinizing the conversation transcripts in detail and concluding that the prosecution case was weak.

22. This Court in a reported judgement in Criminal Revision No.604 of 2019, delivered on 06/01/2023 in Melvin Saldanha And Anr. vs State Of U.P. And Another cited judicial authority of Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraphs 72 to 76 which are quoted as under:

"72. That Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Bihar Vs. Ramesh Singh (1977 AIR 2018) which explaining the scope of the sections 227 and 228 CrPC observed: "Reading the two provisions together in juxtaposition, as they have got to be, it would be clear that at the beginning and the initial stage of the trial the truth, veracity and effect of the evidence which the Prosecutor proposes to adduce are not to be meticulously judged. Nor is any weight to be attached to the probable defence of the accused. It is not obligatory for the Judge at that stage of the trial to consider in any detail and weigh in a sensitive balance whether the facts, if proved, would be incompatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The standard of test and judgment which is to be finally applied before recording a finding regarding the guilt or otherwise of the accused is not exactly to be applied at the stage of deciding the matter under Section 227 or Section 228 of the Code. At that stage the Court is not to 'see whether there is sufficient ground for conviction of the accused orwhether the trial is sure to end in his conviction. Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the Court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the Court to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused."

73. That the essential principles of Section 227 CrPC were duly summarized by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Union of India Vs. Prafulla Kumar Samal & another, 1979 AIR 366,:

"(1) That the Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 of the Code has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out:

(2) Where the materials placed before the Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained the Court will be, fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(3) The test to determine a prima facie case would naturally depend upon the facts of each case and it is difficult to lay down a rule of universal application. By and large however if two views are equally possible and the Judge is satisfied that the evidence produced before him while giving rise to some suspicion but not grave suspicion against the accused, he will be fully within his right to discharge the accused.

74. That the Hon'ble Supreme Court has elaborated the scope of enquiry under Section 227 CrPC in the case of Stree Atyachar Virodhi Parishad.Vs. Dilip Nathumal Chordia & anr., 1989 SCC (1) 715, which says:

"Sec. 227 itself contains enough guidelines as to the scope of enquiry for the purpose of discharging an accused. It provides that "the Judge shall discharge when he considers that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused". The 'ground' in the context is not a ground for conviction, but a ground for putting the accused on trial. It is in the trial, the guilt or the innocence of the accused will be determined and not at the time of framing of charge. The Court, therefore, need not undertake an elaborate enquiry in sifting and weighing the material. Nor it is necessary to delve deep into various aspects. All that the Court has to consider is whether the evidenciary material on record if generally accepted, would reasonably connect the accused with the crime. No more need be enquired into."

75. That the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the aforementioned case further says:

"We wish to add a word regarding interference by the High court against a charge framed by theSessions Court. Section 227 which confers power to discharge an accused was designed to prevent harassment to an innocent person by the arduous trial or the ordeal of prosecution. How that intention is to be achieved is reasonably clear in the section itself. The power has been entrusted to the Sessions Judge who brings to bear his knowledge and experience in criminal trials. Be- sides, he has the assistance of counsel for the accused and Public Prosecutor. He is required to hear both sides before framing any charge against the accused or for discharging him. If the Sessions Judge after hearing the parties frames a charge and also makes an order in support thereof, the law must be allowed to take its own course. Self restraint on the part of the High Court should be the rule unless there is a glaring injustice stares the Court in the face. The opinion on any matter may differ depending upon the person who views it. There may be as many opinions on a particular matter as there are courts but it is no ground for the High Court to interdict the trial. It would be better for the High Court to allow the trial to proceed."

76. On the other hand, Sri Sarvajeet Dubey, learned counsel for respondent No.2 has relied on the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Mahendra Prasad Tiwari. Vs. Amit Kumar Tiwari and another, Criminal Appeal No.1216 of 2022. According to his submission in application under Section 482 CrPC or revision under Section 397 CrPC while passing the order on the application for discharge, the correctness and sufficiency of evidence cannot be gone into by this Court and this Court should apply the principle if the entire evidence produced by the prosecution is to be believed, would it constitute an offence or not. Relevant paragraph-21, 22, 24, 25 and 26 of the said judgment are reproduced hereinbelow:

"21. The law is well settled that although it is open to a High Court entertaining a petition under Section 482 of the CrPC or a revision application under Section 397 of the CrPC to quash the charges framed by the trial court, yet the same cannot be done by weighing the correctness or sufficiency of the evidence. In a case praying for quashing of the charge, the principle to be adopted by the High Court should be that if the entire evidence produced by the prosecution is to be believed, would it constitute an offence or not. The truthfulness, the sufficiency and acceptability of the material produced at the time of framing of a charge can be done only at the stage of trial. To put it more succinctly, at the stage of charge the Court is to examine the materials only with a view to be satisfied that prima facie case of commission of offence alleged has been made out against the accused person. It is also well settled that when the petition is filed by the accused under Section 482 CrPC or a revision Petition under Section 397 read with Section 401 of the CrPC seeking for the quashing of charge framed against him, the Court should not interfere with the order unless there are strong reasons to hold that in the interest of justice and to avoid abuse of the process of the Court a charge framed against the accused needs to be quashed. Such an order can be passed only in exceptional cases and on rare occasions. It is to be kept in mind that once the trial court has framed a charge against an accused the trial must proceed without unnecessary interference by a superior court and the entire evidence from the prosecution side should be placed on record. Any attempt by an accused for quashing of a charge before the entire prosecution evidence has come on record should not be entertained sans exceptional cases. [see State of Delhi Vs. Gyan Devi, (2000) 8 SCC 239].

22. The scope of interference and exercise of jurisdiction under Section 397 of CrPC has been time and again explained by this Court. Further, the scope of interference under Section 397 CrPC at a stage, when charge had been framed, is also well settled. At the stage of framing of a charge, the court is concerned not with the proof of the allegation rather it has to focus on the material and form an opinion whether there is strong suspicion that the accused has committed an offence, which if put to trial, could prove his guilt. The framing of charge is not a stage, at which stage the final test of guilt is to be applied. Thus, to hold that at the stage of framing the charge, the court should form an opinion that the accused is certainly guilty of committing an offence, is to hold something which is neither permissible nor is in consonance with the scheme of Code of Criminal Procedure.

24. It is useful to refer to judgment of this Court in Amit Kapoor and Ramesh Chander, (2012) 9 SCC 460, where the scope of Section 397 CrPC has been succinctly considered and explained. Para 12 and 13 resply are as follows:

"12. Section 397 of the Code vests the court with the power to call for and examine the records of an inferior court for the purposes of satisfying itself as to the legality and regularity of any proceedings or order made in a case. The object of this provision is to set right a patent defect or an error of jurisdiction or law. There has to be a well-founded error and it may not be appropriate for the court to scrutinize the orders, which upon the face of it bears a token of careful consideration and appear to be in accordance with law. If one looks into the various judgments of this Court, it emerges that the revisional jurisdiction can be invoked where the decisions under challenge are grossly erroneous, there is no compliance with the provisions of law, the finding recorded is based on no evidence, material evidence is ignored or judicial discretion is exercised arbitrarily or perversely. These are not exhaustive classes, but are merely indicative. Each case would have to be determined on its own merits.

"13. Another well-accepted norm is that the revisional jurisdiction of the higher court is a very limited one and cannot be exercised in a routine manner. One of the inbuilt restrictions is that it should not be against an interim or interlocutory order. The Court has to keep in mind that the exercise of revisional jurisdiction itself should not lead to injustice ex facie. Where the Court is dealing with the question as to whether the charge has been framed properly and in accordance with law in a given case, it may be reluctant to interfere in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction unless the case substantially falls within the categories aforestated. Even framing of charge is a much advanced stage in the proceedings under the CrPC."

25. The Court in para 27 has recorded its conclusion and laid down the principles to be considered for the exercise of jurisdiction under Section 397 particularly in the context of quashing of charge framed under Section 228 CrPC. Paras 27, 27(1), (2), (3), (9), (13) resply are extracted as follows:

"27. Having discussed the scope of jurisdiction under these two provisions, i.e., Section 397 and Section 482 of the Code and the fine line of jurisdictional distinction, now it will be appropriate for us to enlist the principles with reference to which the courts should exercise such jurisdiction. However, it is not only difficult but is inherently impossible to state with precision such principles. At best and upon objective analysis of various judgments of this Court, we are able to cull out some of the principles to be considered for proper exercise of jurisdiction, particularly, with regard to quashing of charge either in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 397 or Section 482 of the Code or together, as the case may be:

27.1. Though there are no limits of the powers of the Court under Section 482 of the Code but the more the power, the more due care and caution is to be exercised in invoking these powers. The power of quashing criminal proceedings, particularly, the charge framed in terms of Section 228 of the Code should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases.

27.2. The Court should apply the test as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made from the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith prima facie establish the offence or not. If the allegations are so patently absurd and inherently improbable that no prudent person can ever reach such a conclusion and where the basic ingredients of a criminal offence are not satisfied then the Court may interfere.

27.3. The High Court should not unduly interfere. No meticulous examination of the evidence is needed for considering whether the case would end in conviction or not at the stage of framing of charge or quashing of charge.

X X X

27.9. Another very significant caution that the courts have to observe is that it cannot examine the facts, evidence and materials on record to determine whether there is sufficient material on the basis of which the case would end in a conviction; the Court is concerned primarily with the allegations taken as a whole whether they will constitute an offence and, if so, is it an abuse of the process of court leading to injustice.

X X X

27.13. Quashing of a charge is an exception to the rule of continuous prosecution. Where the offence is even broadly satisfied, the Court should be more inclined to permit continuation of prosecution rather than its quashing at that initial stage. The Court is not expected to marshal the records with a view to decide admissibility and reliability of the documents or records but is an opinion formed prima facie...."

26. This Court in the case of Chitresh Kumar Chopra v. State (Government of NCT of Delhi), reported in (2009) 16 SCC 605, observed in para 25 as under:

"25. It is trite that at the stage of framing of charge, the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to finding out if the facts emerging therefrom, taken at their face value, disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence or offences. For this limited purpose, the court may sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at the initial stage to accept as gospel truth all that the prosecution states. At this stage, the court has to consider the material only with a view to find out if there is ground for "presuming" that the accused has committed an offence and not for the purpose of arriving at the conclusion that it is not likely to lead to a conviction. (See: Niranjan Singh Karam Singh Punjabi & Ors. Vs. Jitendra Bhimraj Bijja & Ors, (1990) 4 SCC 76)."

23. After considering the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, supplementary statement of the victim under Section 161 Cr.P.C., the FIR version and the statements of the doctors as stated above and on perusal of impugned order and grounds of discharge taken in discharge application, I am of the considered opinion that this is not a case in which the charge against the revisionist is found to be groundless and the revisionist is liable to be discharged under Section 227 Cr.P.C. from the charges leveled against him with regard to which cognizance has been taken by learned trial court. This is trite law that meticulous examination of evidence collected during investigation is not permissible at the stage of considering discharge application or framing of charge as provided under Section 227/228 Cr.P.C. No mini trial is permitted to be held at the stage of framing of charge. The accused revisionist shall have opportunity to assail the prosecution case through cross-examination of prosecution witnesses as well as by defence evidence if he seeks to adduce.

24. I find no illegality, irregularity or perversity in the impugned order passed by learned trial court whereby the discharge application filed by the revisionist has been dismissed. Revision is without force and deserves to be dismissed.

25. However, it is clarified that the observations made here in above are only for the purpose of disposal of present revision and will have no bearing on merits of the case and trial court will have liberty to form independent opinion about the merits of the prosecution case vis-a-vis defence version at the stage of conclusion of trial.

26. The criminal revision is dismissed with above observations.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the jurisdiction conferred on the Drug Disposal Committee to order disposal of seized material, including conveyances, by the notification dated 23.12.2022 issued under Section 76 read with Section 52-A of the NDPS Act, bars the Special Court from releasing a seized vehicle to interim custody during the pendency of trial?

(ii) Whether the registered owner of a vehicle, not arrayed as an accused, is entitled to its interim release on supurdagi where the vehicle was allegedly used by her husband and son in transportation of commercial quantity of cannabis (ganja)?

Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 --- Ss. 51, 52-A, 60, 76 --- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- Ss. 451, 457 --- Seized vehicle --- Interim release pending trial --- Power of Special Court --- Jurisdiction of Drug Disposal Committee no bar.

HELD: As laid down in Bishwajit Dey, a seized vehicle can be confiscated by the trial court only on conclusion of the trial, and there is no specific bar under the NDPS Act for return of a seized vehicle used for transporting narcotic drug or psychotropic substance in the interim pending disposal of the criminal case; in view of Section 51 of the NDPS Act, the Court can invoke the general power under Sections 451 and 457 Cr.P.C. for its return, which discretion is to be exercised in accordance with law in the facts and circumstances of each case. The jurisdiction conferred on the Drug Disposal Committee to order disposal of seized material, including conveyances, by the notification dated 23.12.2022 issued under Section 76 read with Section 52-A of the Act does not create a bar or exclude the jurisdiction of the Special Court to release the vehicle during trial to the interim custody of the person entitled to its possession. [Paras 18, 21]

Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 --- Interim custody of seized vehicle --- Registered owner, not an accused, being wife and mother of the accused --- Vehicle lying in open in police custody --- Release on supurdagi on conditions.

HELD: As observed in Bishwajit Dey, if a seized vehicle is kept in police custody till the trial is over, it will serve no purpose, as vehicles in police custody are stored in the open and their value diminishes; the requirement of the vehicle as material evidence can be met by stipulating conditions while releasing it on superdari. The peculiar factual matrix of the case, where the revisionist, a woman and registered owner, sought release of the vehicle allegedly used by her husband and son in transportation of contraband, warrants a more pragmatic approach, and the trial court committed legal and jurisdictional error in dismissing the release application. Vehicle directed to be released on supurdagi to the revisionist upon her executing a personal bond of Rs. 3 lac with one surety of like amount, subject to conditions of producing the vehicle whenever required, not transferring or changing the colour or mark of identification until disposal of the case, and not using it in contravention of the NDPS Act, with liberty to the trial court to seize the vehicle again on violation of any condition. [Paras 18, 21-23]

Criminal revision allowed. Order dated 06.04.2026 set aside. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 06.04.2026 passed by the Special Judge, NDPS Act/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 6, Ayodhya, in Criminal Miscellaneous Application No. 544 of 2026, State v. Rajesh Kumar Agrahari and Others, arising out of NCB Crime No. 3 of 2025, under Sections 8/20/25/29/60(3) NDPS Act, Police Station NCB Gorakhpur, District Ayodhya.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Anil Kumar Pandey.

For the Opposite Party(s): Akhilesh Kumar Awasthi.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and Shri Akhilesh Kumar Awasthi, learned special counsel appearing for Narcotics Control Bureau and perused the record.

2. Suman Devi, who is the owner of the vehicle Swift Desire car bearing registration number UP-32-DA-4445 involved in the case registered under of NCB Crime No. 3 of 2025 under Section 8/20/25/29/60 (3) NDPS Act, Police Station NCB Gorakhpur, District Ayodhya has filed this criminal revision with prayer to release the vehicle against impugned order dated 06.04.2026 passed by learned Special Judge NDPS Act/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 6, Ayodhya in Criminal Miscellaneous Application No. 544 of 2026 State versus Rajesh Kumar Agrahari and Others, whereby her application for release of the Swift Desire Car has been dismissed.

3. According to the complaint filed by the NCB, the NCB team acting on special information from STF, Ayodhya, intercepted the said vehicle on 02/09/2025 under joint operation of NCB Gorakhpur and STF Ayodhya and from search of the dicky of the vehicle 34 kg cannabis (ganja) was recovered. Accused Rajesh Kumar Agrahari and his son Ashish Kumar, who were found to be involved in transportation of cannabis (ganja) by the said vehicle were arrested on 02/09/2025 at 10:35 PM. Arrest and recovery memo was prepared on the spot. In recovery memo, the said Swift Desire car 34kg cannabis (ganja) kept in three empty plastic bags; one memory card showing photograph, the videography of recovery process is shown to have been taken into possession.

4. During course of investigation, this fact emerged that the revisionist is registered owner of the car and she is wife of accused Rajesh Kumar Agrahari and mother of accused Ashish Kumar Agrahari. The recovery was effected on entry gate of Kaushalpuri Colony, Lucknow Ayodhya bypass, Ayodhya.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that learned Special Judge, NDPS Act, Ayodhya has rejected the application for release of the vehicle on the ground that from the said vehicle 34 kg contraband cannabis (ganja) was recovered in presence of accused persons who are husband and son of the revisionist. The said vehicle has been used in transportation of illegal cannabis (ganja) which has been seized under Section 60(3) of the NDPS Act and entry of its seizure was made in G.D. Report No 055 of Police Station-Ayodhya. The quantity of contraband ganja exceeds minimum commercial quantity and is dangerous to public health. According to judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Union of India versus Mohan Lal (2016) 3 SCC 379, the contrabands or vehicles seized under NDPS Act are to be disposed of under directions of Drugs Disposal Committee. There is possibility that in case of release of the vehicle, it may be again used in transportation of illegal narcotic drugs.

6. He next submitted that specific plea was made by revisionist that she was not aware of fact that in said vehicle any contraband was being transported, but learned court below has wrongly dismissed the said plea. The approach taken by learned court below is erroneous and contrary to law settled in various judgments of Hon?ble Supreme Court.

7. He next submitted that revisionist is not an accused in the case and co-accused who are husband and son are already released on bail by orders of this Hon?ble Court. The revisionist is not concerned with the offense allegedly committed by the accused. In fact, no contraband was recovered from the said vehicle and said contraband is wrongly planted by the complainant. The vehicle is standing in the open in the campus of the police station due to which its utility and serviceability is deteriorating day by day as vehicle was seized way back on 02.09.2025. In case the vehicle is allowed to be detained unnecessarily in the open and under sky, there is every possibility that it will become junk and rusted out and no useful purpose of law would be served.

8. Per contra, learned Special Counsel appearing for NCB submitted that the impugned order is well within bounds of law. The said vehicle of which the revisionist is registered owner was used in transportation of commercial quantity of cannabis (ganja) of quantity of 34 kg and the persons from whose possession the said vehicle and contraband was recovered are none other than the husband and the son of the revisionist. Therefore, it cannot be assumed that the revisionist was unaware of the fact that the said vehicle was misused by her family members in transportation of contraband.

9. Learned Special Counsel cited NDPS Rules framed by Central Govt. vide notification dated 23.12.2022 published in Gazette of India extraordinarily Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) through G.S.R. 899 (E) - in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 76; read with Section 52-A; of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985. It provides under Rule 8 that after the seized material under the Act is forwarded to the officer-in-charge of the nearest police station or to the officer empowered under Section 53 of the Act, or if it is seized by such an officer himself, he shall prepare an inventory of such material in Form-4 and apply to the Magistrate, at the earliest, under sub-section (2) of Section 52A of the Act in Form-5.

Rule 9 provides that samples to be drawn in the presence of Magistrate.

Rule 10 provides for Drawing the samples.- (1) One sample, in duplicate, shall be drawn from each package and container seized.

Chapter IV provides for disposal of seized material including conveyance used in transportation of contraband goods under the Act.

10. The action for disposal of said contraband or conveyance will be initiated by any officer in charge of a police station or any officer empowered under Section 53 of the NDPS Act. The empowered officer shall submit details of the seized material to the Chairman of the Drug Disposal Committee for a decision by the Committee for the disposal. The Head of the Department of each Central Drug Law Enforcement Agency and State Drug Law Enforcement Agency shall constitute on or more Drug Disposal Committee comprising of three members each which shall be headed by an officer not below the rank of Superintendent of Police or Joint Commissioner of Customs and Central Goods and Services Tax, Joint Director of Directorate of Revenue Intelligence or officers of equivalent rank. The Committee is empowered to order of disposal of seized items. In case of conveyance, the Committee shall verify the engine number, chassis number and other details mentioned in panchnama and certify the inventory thereof. The Drug Disposal Committee can order disposal of seized materials up to the quantity or value indicated in Rule 22 and for conveyances it can order disposal of a vehicle up to value of Rs.50 lakh. Seized conveyance shall be sold by way of tender or auction as may be determined by the Drugs Disposal Committee.

11. Learned counsel for the revisionist placed reliance on a judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Sainaba versus State of Kerala and another Criminal Appeal No.2005 of 2022, wherein the Maruti Suzuki Car which belongs to the appellant lady was seized as it was found to be involved in a case under Section 20(B) and 29 NDPS Act. The incident occurred on 30.01.2022. The police effected a search of the vehicle in presence of appellant's son (accused no.1) and 4.20 of Ganja was recovered from the bag of the accused no.1 who was travelling in the said car. The Special Judge dismissed the application for release of the car and endeavour of the appellant before the High Court also did not succeed as criminal misc. petition was dismissed on 19.05.2022.

12. Hon'ble Apex Court in Criminal Appeal 2005 of 2022, order dated 12.11.2022, Sainaba versus The State of Kerala and another directed release of the vehicle in favour of the with following observations.

"The appellant has urged inter alia that as per Section 36-C read with Section 51 of the NDPS Act, Criminal Procedure Code would be applicable for proceedings by a Special Court under NDPS Act and Section 451 has an inbuilt provision to impose any specific condition on the appellant while releasing the vehicle. The appellant is undoubtedly the registered owner of the vehicle but had not participated in the offence as alleged by the prosecution nor had knowledge of the alleged transaction.

Learned counsel seeks to rely on the judgment of this Court in Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai v. State of Gujarat - (2002) 10 SCC 283 opining that it is no use to keep such seized vehicles at police station for a long period and it is open to the Magistrate to pass appropriate orders immediately by taking a bond and a guarantee as well as security for return of the said vehicle, if required at any point of time.

On hearing learned counsel for parties and in the conspectus of the facts and circumstances of the case, and the legal provisions referred aforesaid, we are of the view that this is an appropriate case for release of the vehicle on terms and conditions to be determined by the Special Court.

The appeal is accordingly allowed leaving parties to bear their own costs."

13. Learned counsel also placed reliance on a recent judgment of Bishwajit Dey versus The State of Assam, Criminal Appeal No.87 of 2025 (arising out of Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No.13370 of 2024) directed release of the vehicle with certain conditions in favour of the appellant in judgment dated 07.01.2025.

14. In aforesaid case the truck of the appellant which purchased for commercial purpose was seized on 10.04.2023 at a checking point by police and on search of the vehicle some identical soap boxes containing suspected heroin, concealed inside the Tarpaulin and kept at the hood of the vehicle was recovered. The weight of the recovered heroin was found to be 24.8 grams. The main accused Md. Dimpul was arrested by the police officer, who according to the appellant boarded the vehicle from Manipur as is stated by the driver of the vehicle and he was in possession of the said substance and was carrying the same. The driver and the helper of the vehicle were cited as witnesses in the case.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance on said case and the statutory provisions of Sections 451 and 457 of the Cr.P.C. in which interim disposal of the property seized by the police involved in an offence is laid down.

16. Reliance was placed in judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sunderbhai Ambala Desai versus State of Gujarat, (2002) 10 SCC 283 wherein it is held, In our view, whatever be the situation, it is of no use to keep such seized vehicles at the police stations for a long period. It is for the magistrate to pass appropriate orders immediately by taking appropriate bond and guarantee as well as security for return of the said vehicles, if required at any point of time. This can be done pending hearing of applications for return of such vehicles of the proper Panchanama before handing over possession of article is prepared that can be used in evidence instead of its production before the court during trial of necessary evidence could also be recorded describing the nature of the property in detail.

17. Per contra, learned State Counsel placed reliance on statutory provisions of Sections 52-A 60, 63 of the NDPS Act and judgments of Hon'ble Apex Court Noor Aga vs. State of Punjab & Another, (2008) 16 SCC 417; Mukesh Singh vs. State (Narcotic Branch of Delhi), (2020) 10 SCC 120 and Directorate of Revenue Intelligence vs. Amit Kumar, 2016 SCC OnLine Del 6083] as well as Smt. Narender Kaur vs. Arun Sheoran, Intelligence Officer, Narcotics Control Bureau, 2000 SCC OnLine Del 502, Ganga Hire Purchase Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of Punjab and Others, (1999) 5 SCC 670, Union of India vs. Dinesh Kumar Verma, (2005) 9 SCC 330, Shajahan vs. Inspector of Excise and Others, 2019 SCC OnLine Ker 3685 and In Re: Moumita Saha, 2023, SCC OnLIne Cal 1094.

18. Hon'ble Apex Court in Bishwajit Dey versus The State of Assam, Criminal Appeal No.87 of 2025 (arising out of Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No.13370 of 2024) considered the submissions of both the parties and aforesaid case laws cited at bar observed in paragraphs 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 28, 29, 33, 34, 35 and 36 which are reproduced as under:

"19. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having examined the issue at hand, this Court finds that different Courts have taken divergent views with regard to interim release of conveyances during the pendency of the trial in NDPS cases. While the courts in cases referred to by learned counsel for the Respondent-State of Assam have not released the vehicles in the interim during NDPS trial, yet in General Insurance Council & Ors. vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, (2010) 6 SCC 768; Gurbinder Singh @ Shinder vs. State of Punjab, 2016 SCC OnLine P&H 16026; Tej Singh vs. State of Haryana, 2020 SCC OnLine P&H 4679; Shams Tavrej vs. Union of India, 2023 SCC OnLine All 1154; Manakram vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, Crl. Rev. 2421/2021; Nirmal Singh vs. State of Punjab, CRR- 1208-2018 (O&M); Kawal Jeet Kaur vs. State of Karnataka, 2024:KHC- K:5691 and Bhagirath vs. State of Rajasthan, 2024: RJ-JD:36868, the Courts have directed release of the vehicles in the interim in NDPS cases.

20. The judgements of this Court are confined to their facts or in the context of the expression ?owner? and do not lay down any general proposition of law. Consequently, the issue would have to be examined on first principles.

21. Upon a reading of the NDPS Act, this Court is of the view that the seized vehicles can be confiscated by the trial court only on conclusion of the trial when the accused is convicted or acquitted or discharged. Further, even where the Court is of the view that the vehicle is liable for confiscation, it must give an opportunity of hearing to the person who may claim any right to the seized vehicle before passing an order of confiscation. However, the seized vehicle is not liable to confiscation if the owner of the seized vehicle can prove that the vehicle was used by the accused person without the owner's knowledge or connivance and that he had taken all reasonable precautions against such use of the seized vehicle by the accused person.

22. This Court is further of the opinion that there is no specific bar/restriction under the provisions of the NDPS Act for return of any seized vehicle used for transporting narcotic drug or psychotropic substance in the interim pending disposal of the criminal case.

23. In the absence of any specific bar under the NDPS Act and in view of Section 51 of NDPS Act, the Court can invoke the general power under Sections 451 and 457 of the Cr.P.C. for return of the seized vehicle pending final decision of the criminal case. Consequently, the trial Court has the discretion to release the vehicle in the interim. However, this power would have to be exercised in accordance with law in the facts and circumstances of each case.

28. Undoubtedly, the Vehicle is a critical piece of material evidence that may be required for inspection to substantiate the prosecution's case, yet the said requirement can be met by stipulating conditions while releasing the Vehicle in interim on superdari like videography and still photographs to be authenticated by the Investigating Officer, owner of the Vehicle and accused by signing the said inventory as well as restriction on sale/transfer of the Vehicle.

29. Though seizure of drugs/substances from conveyances can take place in a number of situations, yet broadly speaking there are four scenarios in which the drug or substance is seized from a conveyance. Firstly, where the owner of the vehicle is the person from whom the possession of contraband drugs/substance is recovered. Secondly, where the contraband is recovered from the possession of the agent of the owner i.e. like driver or cleaner hired by the owner. Thirdly, where the vehicle has been stolen by the accused and contraband is recovered from such stolen vehicle. Fourthly, where the contraband is seized / recovered from a third-party occupant (with or without consideration) of the vehicle without any allegation by the police that the contraband was stored and transported in the vehicle with the owner's knowledge and connivance. In the first two scenarios, the owner of the vehicle and/or his agent would necessarily be arrayed as an accused. In the third and fourth scenario, the owner of the vehicle and/or his agent would not be arrayed as an accused.

33. In fact, the Supreme Court in similar facts in Sainaba vs. State of Kerala and Another, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 1784 has held as under:-

"6. The appellant has urged inter alia that as per Section 36- C read with Section 51 of the NDPS Act, Criminal Procedure Code would be applicable for proceedings by a Special Court under NDPS Act and Section 451 has an inbuilt provision to impose any specific condition on the appellant while releasing the vehicle. The appellant is undoubtedly the registered owner of the vehicle but had not participated in the offence as alleged by the prosecution nor had knowledge of the alleged transaction.

7. Learned counsel seeks to rely on the judgment of this Court in Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai v. State of Gujarat, (2002) 10 SCC 283 opining that it is no use to keep such seized vehicles at police station for a long period and it is open to the Magistrate to pass appropriate orders immediately by taking a bond and a guarantee as well as security for return of the said vehicle, if required at any point of time.

8. On hearing learned counsel for parties and in the conspectus of the facts and circumstances of the case, and the legal provisions referred aforesaid, we are of the view that this is an appropriate case for release of the vehicle on terms and conditions to be determined by the Special Court.

9. The appeal is accordingly allowed leaving parties to bear their own costs."

IF THE VEHICLE IN THE PRESENT CASE IS KEPT IN THE CUSTODY OF POLICE TILL THE TRIAL IS OVER, IT WILL SERVE NO PURPOSE

34. This Court is also of the view that if the Vehicle in the present case is allowed to be kept in the custody of police till the trial is over, it will serve no purpose. This Court takes judicial notice that vehicles in police custody are stored in the open. Consequently, if the Vehicle is not released during the trial, it will be wasted and suffering the vagaries of the weather, its value will only reduce.

35. On the contrary, if the Vehicle in question is released, it would be beneficial to the owner (who would be able to earn his livelihood), to the bank/financier (who would be repaid the loan disbursed by it) and to the society at large (as an additional vehicle would be available for transportation of goods).

CONCLUSION

36. Consequently, the present Criminal Appeal is allowed with directions to the trial Court to release the Vehicle in question in the interim on superdari after preparing a video and still photographs of the vehicle and after obtaining all information/documents necessary for identification of the vehicle, which shall be authenticated by the Investigating Officer, owner of the Vehicle and accused by signing the same. Further, the appellant shall not sell or part with the ownership of the Vehicle till conclusion of the trial and shall furnish an undertaking to the trial court that he shall surrender the Vehicle within one week of being so directed and/or pay the value of the Vehicle (determined according to Income Tax law on the date of its release), if so ultimately directed by the Court."

19. Aforesaid judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court was cited with approval by the Hon'ble Court in a latter judgment Denash versus the State of Tamil Nadu, SLP Criminal No.8698 of 2025. This judgment was delivered on 27.10.2025.

20. In view of above, the present case technically corresponds to the second scenario as enumerated in para 29 in 3rd or 4th scenario as enumerated in para 29 of Bishwajit Dey's case (Supra)

21. The peculiar factual matrix of the case warrants more pragmatic approach regarding prayer of release of the vehicle by the appellant, who is a woman and registered owner of the vehicle which was allegedly used by the her husband and son in transportation of contraband (cannabis). The jurisdiction conferred to Drug Disposal Committee to order disposal of seized material, including the conveyance involved in transportation of contraband by Notification dated 23/12/2022 issued under Section 76 read with Section 52-A of the Act does not create a bar or exclude jurisdiction of Special Court which has been conferred power to try such type of cases, to release the vehicle during trial, to the interim custody of the person entitled to its possession.

22. Considering the principle of law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court, I hold that the learned trial court has committed legal and jurisdictional error while dismissing the application for release of the vehicle filed by the revisionist on aforesaid grounds.

23. In view of foregoing discussion, the revision deserves to be succeed the impugned judgment and order dated 06.04.2026 passed by learned Special Judge is hereby set aside. The vehicle i.e. Swift Dzire car bearing Registration Number UP-32-DA-4445 seized in aforesaid offence is directed to be released on supurdagi (interim custody) of the revisionist subject to following conditions:-

1. The trial court shall release the car in favour of the revisionist being the registered owner upon her executing a personal bond of Rs.3 lac each, with one surety of like amount.

2. The owner shall produce the vehicle as per terms and conditions of the bond before the Court whenever it is required.

3. She shall not transfer or change the colour or mark of identification of the vehicle during and until disposal of the criminal case concerned.

4. The owner shall also undertake that the vehicle shall not be used in contravention of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act.

In violation of any of these conditions, the trial Court shall be competent to seize the vehicle again and to direct its safe custody.

Subject to the conditions laid above, the revisionist's request for interim custody of the vehicle is granted.

24. The revision is allowed.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the Family Court, on an execution application under Section 128 Cr.P.C./Section 147 BNSS seeking arrears and continuous payment of maintenance under a subsisting order, could reject the application and consign the record by invoking the first proviso to Section 125(3) Cr.P.C./Section 144(3) BNSS?

(ii) Whether a wife holding a subsisting order of maintenance is required to file successive execution applications for receiving monthly maintenance?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- Ss. 125(3), first proviso, 128 --- Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 --- Ss. 144(3), first proviso, 147 --- Maintenance --- Continuing liability --- Successive execution applications not required --- Proviso does not bar entitlement to arrears.

HELD: Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social legislation to be construed liberally for the welfare of the wife and children; the liability to pay maintenance under an order passed under Section 125(1) being a continuing liability, it is unreasonable to insist on the filing of successive applications. The first proviso to Section 125(3) Cr.P.C./Section 144(3) BNSS only limits the procedure for recovery by issuance of warrant and detention of the defaulter; it does not create any bar or affect the entitlement of a claimant to recover arrears of maintenance beyond a period of one year. Since the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023 continued to remain in force, the opposite party-husband remained under an obligation to pay maintenance. [Paras 16-18, 21]

Maintenance --- Execution --- Directions to Family Courts and Gram Nyayalayas of the State of U.P. --- Deposit in verified bank account --- Deduction from salary --- Attachment of property and imprisonment on default.

HELD: Presiding Officers of Family Courts and Gram Nyayalayas directed: (i) to follow Shantha alias Ushadevi that successive execution applications are not required for receiving monthly maintenance; (ii) to follow Poongodi that the first proviso to Section 125(3) Cr.P.C./Section 144(3) BNSS does not bar recovery of arrears beyond one year; (iii) to direct deposit of the monthly maintenance directly into the verified bank account of the claimant, in terms of Aarti Rai; (iv) where the opposite party is in salaried employment, to direct the employer to deduct the maintenance or arrears from salary and transfer it directly into the verified bank account of the claimant, in terms of Dimpal; and (v) on refusal or non-payment, to recover the amount by attachment of property and, if insufficient, to direct simple imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month for each month's default or until payment, as per Section 125(3) Cr.P.C./Section 144(3) BNSS and Rajnesh v. Neha. Non-compliance is liable to attract disciplinary as well as contempt proceedings; the District Administration and Police directed to cooperate, and the issue to be discussed in Monitoring Cell meetings. [Paras 22-25]

Revision disposed of with directions; opposite party No. 2 directed to clear arrears, if any, and continue paying monthly maintenance in compliance with order dated 04.03.2023, preferably into the verified bank account of the revisionist. (E-14)

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that in Section 144(3) Proviso of BNSS/125(3) Proviso of Cr.P.C., it has only been provided that, "no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due". He further submits that the application was moved which was after one month on 09.04.2025 and the amount of maintenance has been cleared till February, 2025 and the same has been observed in the order dated

10.03.2025 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Jaunpur. For ready reference the first proviso of Section 144(3) as well as Section 125(3) are being delineated below :-

First Proviso of Section 144 (3) BNSS

Provided that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due:

First Proviso of Section 125(3) Cr.P.C.

Provided that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due:

10. The matter requires consideration.

11. Issue notice to O.P. No.2 returnable at early date through concerned Chief Judicial Magistrate. Steps be taken within three days.

12. Two weeks' time is granted to the opposite parties for filing counter affidavit."

4. On 28.04.2026, no one appeared on behalf of opposite party No.2 (husband), nor any report with regard to the service of notice was submitted by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate. The explanation furnished by the Presiding Officer was also found to be unsatisfactory, therefore, the Presiding Officer was again directed to furnish his explanation by 08.05.2026. The relevant portion of the order dated 28.04.2026 passed by this Court is delineated below:-:

"1. This Court, vide order dated 13.04.2026, issued notice to Opposite Party No. 2 through the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur. However, no report has been submitted by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur till date.

2. Further, the explanation furnished by the Presiding Officer, namely Sri Vimal Prakash Arya, Additional Principal Judge, 1st Family Court, Jaunpur, is found to be unsatisfactory, inasmuch as this Court, in its order dated 13.04.2026 (paragraph no. 19), had specifically directed him to submit his explanation as to whether the amount of maintenance granted vide order dated 04.03.2023 has been closed finally and whether wife has to claim maintenance amount again and again in future by moving an application and for every time she has to move an application for execution of the order dated 04.03.2023.

3. It is further noted that the application dated 09.04.2025 filed by the revisionist, whereby payment of continuous maintenance from the month of April, 2025 onwards was sought to be ensured from Opposite Party No. 2, has also not been properly addressed.

4. Upon perusal of the explanation submitted by the Presiding Officer, this Court finds that no clear-cut reply has been given, and the Presiding Officer has taken an erroneous plea of the proviso to Section 144(3) of the BNSS (corresponding to the proviso to Section 125(3) Cr.P.C.), though the law laid down by Hon'ble the Supreme Court and this Court is otherwise.

5. This Court in Mohammad Usman Alias Bhai Lal Vs. State of U.P. and 6 Others, 2021 SCC OnLine All 640, relying upon the decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Shanta Alias Ushadevi and another vs. B.G. Shivananjapp, (2005) 4 SCC 468 has observed that it is unreasonable to insist on filing successive applications. The relevant observation made in the judgment is quoted herein below for ready reference :-

"15. In Shantha Alias Ushadevi And Another v. B. G. Shivananjappa, (2005) 4 SCC 468, it was stated that Section 125 of the Code is a measure of social legislation and accordingly, is to be construed liberally for the welfare and benefit of the wife and the children. In the context of the provisions contained under Section 125(3), first proviso, prescribing limitation of one year to seek recovery of arrears of maintenance, it was observed that the liability to pay the maintenance as per the orders passed under Section 125(1) being a continuing liability, it was unreasonable to insist on filing successive applications. The relevant observations made in the judgement are as follows:-

"8. ... Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social legislation and it has to be construed liberally for the welfare and benefit of the wife and daughter. It is unreasonable to insist on filing successive applications when the liability to pay the maintenance as per the order passed under Section 125(1) is a continuing liability."

16. The provisions contained under Section 125(3) of the Code and the first proviso thereto again came up for consideration in Poongodi And Another v. Thangavel, (2013) 10 SCC 618, and it was held that the first proviso to Section 125(3) does not create any bar or fetter on claiming arrears of maintenance and it neither extinguishes nor limits entitlement to arrears of maintenance. It was stated thus:-

"4. A reading of the order dated 21.4.2004 passed by the High Court would go to show that the proviso to Section 125(3) CrPC has been construed by the High Court to be a fetter on the entitlement of the claimants to receive arrears of maintenance beyond a period of one year preceding the date of filing of the application under Section 125(3) CrPC. Having considered the said provision of the Code we do not find that the same creates a bar or in any way affects the entitlement of a claimant to arrears of maintenance. What the proviso contemplates is that the procedure for recovery of maintenance under Section 125(3) CrPC, namely, by construing the same to be a levy of a fine and the detention of the defaulter in custody would not be available to a claimant who had slept over his/her rights and has not approached the Court within a period of one year commencing from the date on which the entitlement to receive maintenance has accrued. However, in such a situation the ordinary remedy to recover the amount of maintenance, namely, a civil action would still be available."

32. Taking a similar view it was held in Mackinnon Mackenzie & Co. Ltd vs Audrey D'Costa & Anr., (1987) 2 SCC 469, that the proviso does not travel beyond the provision to which it is a proviso and its ambit cannot be stretched beyond the main provision.

8. The ambit and scope of the powers to be exercised under Section 125(3) of the Code and the question as to whether the limitation prescribed under proviso to Section 125(3) would be applicable in respect of proceedings under Section 128 of the Code, fall for consideration in the present case.

38. Applying the aforesaid principles of statutory construction, the proviso to sub-section (3) of Section 125 would have to be held to be confined to the section which precedes it. The limitation of one year provided in terms thereof would have to be read in relation to issuance of a warrant for recovery of an amount due in terms of an order of maintenance passed under sub-section (1) of Section 125. The aforesaid limitation of one year under the proviso to Section 125 (3) cannot be held to travel beyond or stretch to an extent so as to being within its ambit the powers relating to enforcement of an order of maintenance under Section 128 of the Code.

39. It may, therefore, be deduced that the scope of Section 125(3) and 128 of the Code being different and the first proviso to Section 125(3) creating an interdict only on issuance of warrant for recovery under Section 125(3), the said period of limitation of one year cannot be held to create a fetter on the right to claim enforcement under Section 128.

40. The proceeding for enforcement of the order under Section 128, therefore, cannot be assailed on the ground that the same would be barred by limitation as provided under the proviso to Section 125(3) of the Code.

6. In view of the aforesaid legal position, Sri Vimal Prakash Arya, Additional Principal Judge, 1st Family Court, Jaunpur, is directed to submit a clear and specific explanation addressing the issues raised by this Court in respect of successive applications to execute the order of maintenance as continuous liability.

7. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur, is also directed to submit a report as to whether the order dated 13.04.2026 as well as notice has been communicated to the Opposite Party No. 2 or not.

5. Upon receiving explanation from the Presiding Officer, to the effect that the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023 is still operative, this Court passed the order dated 11.05.2026. The order dated 11.05.2026 is delineated below:-

"1. In compliance of this Court's order dated 28.04.2026, the concerned Presiding Officer has submitted an explanation mentioning therein that the order of maintenance dated 04.03.2023 and the order dated 10.03.2025 passed in application under Section 128 Cr.P.C. are still effective. Paragraph 1 and 2 of the explanation are being quoted below :-

"01. यह कि, जहाँ तक वाद सं० 416/2018, माला कुमारी बनाम आनन्द कुंवर, अं०धारा 125 दं०प्र०सं० में पारित आदेश दिनांक 04.03.2023 का सम्बन्ध है, इस सम्बन्ध में अधोहस्ताक्षरी का निवेदन निम्नवत् है-

(i). यह कि उपरोक्त आदेश वर्तमान में प्रभावी है और जब तक सक्षम अधिकारिता वाले न्यायालय द्वारा निरस्त नहीं कर दिया जाता तब तक उक्त आदेश सदैव प्रभावी रहेगा।

(ii). यह कि भारतीय नागरिक सुरक्षा संहिता, 2023 की धारा 146 में वर्णित उपबंधों के साबित होने पर भरण-पोषण का आदेश रद्द या परिवर्तित हो सकता है।

02. यह कि, वाद सं० 416/2018, माला कुमारी बनाम आनन्द कुंवर, अं०धारा 125 दं०प्र०सं० में पारित आदेश दिनांक 04.03.2023, अधोहस्ताक्षरी के न्यायालय द्वारा वाद सं० 891/2023, माला कुमारी बनाम आनन्द कुंवर, अन्तर्गत धारा 128 दंण्ड प्रक्रिया संहिता में पारित आदेश दिनांक 10.03.2025 के अनुसार निरस्त नहीं हुआ है और आदेश दिनांकित 04.03.2023 वर्तमान में भी प्रभावी है।"

2. Further, this Court vide order dated 13.04.2026 issued notice to O.P. No.2 through the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ghazipur for filing counter affidavit as well as vide order dated 28.04.2026, the concerned C.J.M. was directed to submit report whether notice has been communicated to O.P. No.2 or not. As per office report dated 07.05.2026, "Notice served upon O.P. No.2 as per C.J.M. Ghazipur".

3. As a last opportunity, one week's further time is granted to O.P. No.2 for filing counter affidavit, otherwise on the next date this case shall be heard on merits as per the available record.

4. List this case on 18.05.2026 as fresh."

6. As per the office report dated 07.05.2026, the notice has been served upon the opposite party No.2 (husband) even then, after effective service of notice, no one appeared on behalf of opposite party No.2 to press this case, therefore, this Court granted another opportunity vide order dated 18.05.2026. The order dated 18.05.2026 is delineated below:-

"As per the Office Report dated 07.05.2026, based on the report of the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ghazipur, notice had already been served upon opposite party no.2. Accordingly, this Court, vide order dated 11.05.2026, granted last opportunity to opposite party no.2 to file counter affidavit. However, till date, no counter affidavit has been filed.

Put up this case as fresh on 27.05.2026, peremptorily. "

7. Despite the aforesaid orders of the Court, no one appeared to file counter affidavit in the matter, therefore, this Court, on the basis of the available record, submissions advanced by learned counsel for the revisionist as well as in view of the law laid down by the Hon□ble Courts, proceeds to pass the final order in the present matter.

8. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that, on 11.05.2018, the revisionist (wife) filed an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C., seeking the grant of maintenance from opposite party No.2 (husband). After providing an opportunity of hearing to both the parties, the concerned Family Court vide order dated 04.03.2023, directed opposite party No.2 to pay Rs. 5,000/- as maintenance to the revisionist from the date of application i.e. 11.05.2018.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that, for execution of the aforesaid maintenance order dated 04.03.2023, the revisionist filed an application under Section 128 Cr.P.C. on 13.04.2023, which was registered as Execution Case No.891 of 2023 and the same was finally adjudicated vide order dated 10.03.2025, observing that the entire arrears of maintenance up to February, 2025 had been paid by opposite party No.2, thereafter, the proceedings under Section 128 Cr.P.C. was disposed of.

For ready reference, the relevant operative portion of the order dated 10.03.2025 passed by the Family Court on the first execution application as well as provisions of Section 128 Cr.P.C. (corresponding Section 147 B.N.S.S.) are delineated below respectively:-

"पत्रावली के अवलोकन से विदित होती है कि सायला द्वारा यह वाद विपक्षी के विरुद्ध अन्तगत धारा 128 दं०प्र०सं० प्रस्तुत किया गया था। जिस पर विपक्षी द्वारा यह अभिकथन किया गया था कि उसके द्वारा आज तक सम्पूर्ण धनराशि अदा किया जा चुका है। अतः पूर्ण संतुष्टि में यह वाद निर्णीत किये जाने की याचना की गयी है। जिस पर सायला की तरफ से अनापत्ति दर्ज की गयी है। अतः यह वाद पूर्ण संतुष्टि पर निस्तारित किये जाने योग्य है।

10. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that, after disposal of the earlier execution proceedings, the revisionist filed another execution application in the next month on 09.04.2025, under Section 128 Cr.P.C./147 B.N.S.S. seeking regular payment of maintenance from April, 2025 onwards, as well as arrears of maintenance for the month of March, 2025. The said application was registered as Execution Case No.641 of 2025. He also submitted that the said application was filed immediately after the disposal of the earlier execution case in the same maintenance proceedings and there was no delay on the part of the revisionist in approaching the concerned Family Court for enforcement of the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023. The relevant portion of second execution application dated 09.04.2025 is delineated below:

"यह कि प्रार्थिनी को माननीय न्यायालय के आदेश दिनांक 04.03.2023 के अनुक्रम में 5000/- रुपये माहवार भरण-पोषण अनवरत् दिया जाना है, तथा माह मार्च 2025 का भरण-पोषण की धनराशि मु० 5000/- रुपये बकाया है, ऐसे में माननीय न्यायालय के आदेश दिनांक 04.03.2023 के अनुक्रम में विपक्षी को प्रार्थिनी के भरण-पोषण की धनराशि मु० 5000/-रुपया प्रतिमाह नियमित रुप से दिये जाने का आदेश दिया जाना आवश्यक है। अतः श्रीमान्जी से प्रार्थना है कि विपक्षी से मार्च 2025 की बकाया धनराशि व आगे नियमित रूप से भरण-पोषण की धनराशि माननीय न्यायालय के आदेश दिनांक 04.03.2023 के अनुक्रम में दिये जाने का आदेश देने की कृपा करे।"

11. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that, on the aforesaid execution application dated 09.04.2025, the Additional Principal Judge-Ist, Family Court, Jaunpur vide order dated 29.10.2025 issued recovery warrant for eleven months arrears of maintenance against opposite party No.2 in compliance with the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023. He further submitted that thereafter, vide the order dated 06.12.2025, the concerned Family Court withdrew the recovery warrant merely on the ground that opposite party No.2 had deposited Rs. 5,000/- towards the arrears for the month of March 2025, but wrong notion was mentioned in the said order about the arrears amounting to Rs. 55,000/-, which were still due against him till the date of passing of the recovery order, and thus, the cause of action is still continuing and the maintenance order is still in operation. The relevant portion of second execution order dated 06.12.2025 is being delineated below:

"पत्रावली के अवलोकन से ज्ञात होता है कि प्रार्थिनी का प्रार्थनापत्र 3 क अं०धारा 147 बीएनएसएस दिनांक 09.04.2025 को दाखिल किया और माह मार्च 2025 की बकाया धनराशि मु० 5000/-रू० दिलाये जाने का अनुरोध किया है तथा पैरा 03 में यह कथन किया है कि माह फरवरी 2025 तक धनराशि अदा होने पर उसका वाद दिनांक 10.03.2025 को पूर्ण संतुष्टि पर निस्तारित हो चुका है। चूंकि दिनांक 29.10.2025 को त्रुटिवश 11 माह की धनराशि वसूली हेतु आदेश हुआ है, आज दिनांक 06.12.2025 को विपक्षी द्वारा मु० 5000/- रू० जमा करने की अनुमति चाही गयी है। ऐसी स्थिति में विपक्षी के विरूद्ध अन्य कोई धनराशि वसूली हेतु शेष नहीं है। अतः विपक्षी को मु० 5000/-रू० माननीय प्रधान न्यायाधीश, परिवार न्यायालय, जौनपुर के खाते में जमा करने की अनुमति प्रदान की जाती है। विपक्षी द्वारा जमा की गयी धनराशि की रसीद दाखिल न करने पर मु० 5000/-रू० की वसूली हेतु, वसूली वारंट जारी हो और यदि विपक्षी द्वारा 5000/- रू० की धनराशि जमा कर दी जाती है तो विपक्षी के विरूद्ध यदि कोई वारंट जारी हो, तो थाने से अदम तामील वापस मंगाया जाये। लिपिक अनुपालन करे। पत्रावली नियत दिनांक (27.01.2026) को वास्ते अग्रिम आदेश पेश हो।"

12. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that, thereafter, vide the impugned order dated 27.01.2026, the Additional Principal Judge-Ist, Family Court, Jaunpur rejected the application dated 09.04.2025 taking recourse to the proviso to Section 144(3) B.N.S.S./ Section 125(3) Cr.P.C., mentioning therein that opposite party No.2 had deposited Rs. 5,000/- in the account of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Jaunpur and accordingly, the second application of execution was rejected and the case filed was also consigned to the record room. He further submitted that, by passing the aforesaid order, the concerned Family Court practically nullified the effect of maintenance order dated 04.03.2023, despite the fact that the said order was still in existence and had never been recalled or set aside by any competent court and having continuous effect under Section 144(3) BNSS/Section 125(3) Cr.P.C. He further submitted that the impugned order is contrary to the provision of Section 144(3) BNSS/125(3) Cr.P.C.

For ready reference, the relevant portion of the order dated 27.01.2026 as well as provisions of Section 144(3) B.N.S.S. (corresponding Section 125(3) Cr.P.C.) are delineated below respectively:-

" पत्रावली के अवलोकन से ज्ञात होता है कि दिनांक 06.12.2025 को विपक्षी आनन्द कुंवर द्वारा कागज सं० 19 ख पर आदेश दिनांक 06.12.2025 के अनुपालन में 5000/-रू० माननीय प्रधान न्यायाधीश परिवार न्यायालय जौनपुर के खाते में जमा कर रसीद पत्रावली पर दाखिल की गयी है।

इस प्रकार प्रार्थिनी प्रार्थनापत्र में वर्णित धनराशि प्राप्त कर चुकी है। अतः प्रार्थिनी का प्रार्थनापत्र पूर्ण संतुष्टि में खारिज किये जाने योग्य है।

"Section 144(3) BNSS/125(3) Cr.P.C- If any person so ordered fails without sufficient cause to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in the manner provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month's [allowance for the maintenance or the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding, as the case may be,] remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made :

Provided that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due:

Provided further that if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing."

13. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that proviso to Section 144(3) B.N.S.S./ Section 125(3) Cr.P.C. only restricts the issuance of a warrant for recovery after the prescribed limitation period has elapsed; it does not extinguish the right of the wife to claim due maintenance, nor does it bar the enforcement mechanism available under Section 128 Cr.P.C./ Section 147 B.N.S.S. He further submitted that the revisionist approached the court promptly, and the provisions of law had been wrongly interpreted while rejecting the application filed by the revisionist. In support of his submissions, he relied upon paragraph No. 4 of the judgment in Poongodi And Another v. Thangavel, (2013) 10 SCC 618 passed by the Hon□ble Supreme Court. The relevant paragraph of the judgment is delineated below:-

"4. A reading of the order dated 21.4.2004 passed by the High Court would go to show that the proviso to Section 125(3) CrPC has been construed by the High Court to be a fetter on the entitlement of the claimants to receive arrears of maintenance beyond a period of one year preceding the date of filing of the application under Section 125(3) CrPC. Having considered the said provision of the Code we do not find that the same creates a bar or in any way affects the entitlement of a claimant to arrears of maintenance. What the proviso contemplates is that the procedure for recovery of maintenance under Section 125(3) CrPC, namely, by construing the same to be a levy of a fine and the detention of the defaulter in custody would not be available to a claimant who had slept over his/her rights and has not approached the Court within a period of one year commencing from the date on which the entitlement to receive maintenance has accrued. However, in such a situation the ordinary remedy to recover the amount of maintenance, namely, a civil action would still be available."

14. Shri Mayank Awasthi, learned State Counsel assisted the Court and submitted that the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023, passed in favour of the revisionist, is still operative and so long as it stands, opposite party No.2 is under a continuous legal obligation to pay the monthly maintenance amount to the revisionist.

15. This Court has considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the revisionist, as well as learned State Counsel and, has also perused the record.

16. From a perusal of the record, it transpires that the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023, passed under Section 125 Cr.P.C. remains operative, for the enforcement of which, the revisionist had earlier instituted proceedings under Section 128 Cr.P.C. that were finally decided vide the order dated 10.03.2025 upon payment of the maintenance arrears. Subsequently, the revisionist moved another execution application dated 09.04.2025 under Section 128 Cr.P.C./ Section 147 B.N.S.S. seeking payment of maintenance for the month of March 2025, as well as future maintenance.

17. Vide the impugned order dated 27.01.2026, the learned Additional Principal Judge-I, Family Court, Jaunpur, recorded a finding that since the maintenance amount for March, 2025 had already been deposited by opposite party No.2 (husband), no outstanding amount remained due in respect thereof. Furthermore, regarding the prayer for future maintenance, the Family Court, while passing the impugned order, observed that a recovery warrant cannot be issued for future monthly maintenance amounts that have not yet become due on the date of filing of the application and has taken note of the provisions contained in Section 144(3) B.N.S.S./Section 125(3) Cr.P.C. but the Hon□ble Supreme Court and High Court have observed in several judgments that successive execution applications are not required to be filed. This issue has also been considered by the coordinate Bench of this Court in Mohammad Usman Alias Bhai Lal Vs. State of U.P. and 6 Others, 2021 SCC OnLine All 640. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shantha Alias Ushadevi and another Vs. B.G. Shivananjappa; (2005) 4 SCC 468, has also observed that it would be unreasonable to insist upon the filing of successive applications. The relevant observations made in Shantha Alias Ushadevi (supra) are delineated below for ready reference:-

"8. We are, therefore, of the view that in the peculiar circumstances of the case, the bar under Section 125(3) cannot be applied and the High Court has erred in reversing the order of Sessions Judge. It must be borne in mind that Section 125 Criminal Procedure Code is a measure of social legislation and it has to be construed liberally for the welfare and benefit of the wife and daughter. It is unreasonable to insist on filing successive applications when the liability to pay the maintenance as per the order passed under Section 125(1) is a continuing liability."

18. The provisions of Section 125(3) Cr.P.C. and its first proviso have also been considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Poongodi And Another v. Thangavel, (2013) 10 SCC 618, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed that the first proviso to Section 125(3) Cr.P.C. does not prevent a person entitled to maintenance from claiming arrears of maintenance for a period beyond one year. The period of one year provided in the first proviso only limits the procedure for the recovery of maintenance under Section 125(3) Cr.P.C. by the issuance of a warrant for the recovery of the amount, and the detention of the defaulter in custody does not extinguish the right of the claimant to recover the arrears of maintenance.

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Aarti Rai vs. Satish Rai and others arising out of Criminal Appeal No.1074 of 2025 vide order dated 04.03.2025 has directed the counsel for the appellant to supply the account details of the appellant-wife to the respondent so that the amount of maintenance can be directly deposited in the bank account of the appellant. The relevant paragraph of the said judgment is delineated below:-

"The learned counsel appearing for the appellant shall supply account details of the appellant to the learned counsel appearing for the first respondnet so that the amount of maintenance can be directly deposited in the bank accound of the appellant."

20. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dimpal Vs. Nishant Pravinbhai Soni arising out of Transfer Petition (Civil) No. 3147 of 2024, vide order dated 27.02.2026, has also directed the employer of respondent-husband to deduct the amount of maintenance from the salary of the respondent-husband and the same shall be transferred in the bank account of the applicant-wife. The relevant observations made in paragraph No.7 of Dimpal (supra) are quoted hereinbelow for ready reference:-

"7. In such circumstances, we are left with no other option but to direct the employer of the respondent-husband, namely, Rishad Shipping and Clearing Agency Pvt. Ltd., referred to above, that an amount of Rs. 25,000/- (Rupees Twenty Five Thousand only) shall be deducted per month from the salary of Nishant Praveenbhai Soni and the said amount shall be transferred by RTGS to the account of his wife, namely, Dimpal Soni.

21. In the present case, it cannot be ignored that the maintenance order dated 04.03.2023 continues to remain in force and the opposite party No.2 (husband) remains under an obligation to pay maintenance to the revisionist.

22. Accordingly, opposite party No.2-husband is directed to clear the arrears of maintenance, if any, till today and shall continue to pay the monthly maintenance amount to the revisionist-wife in compliance with the order dated 04.03.2023 passed by learned Additional Principal Judge Family Court-I, Jaunpur in case no. 416 of 2018 (Mala Kumari Vs. Anand Kunwar) under section 125 Cr.P.C., preferably into her verified bank account, if provided by the Revisionist-Wife of opposite party No.2(Husband).

23. All the Presiding Officers of the Family Courts and Gram Nyayalayas of the State of U.P. are directed to ensure strict compliance with the following directions:

(i) The trial court shall follow the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Shanta Alias Ushadevi (supra) to the effect that successive execution applications are not required to be filed for receiving monthly maintenance.

(ii) The trial court shall also follow the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Poongodi (supra) to the effect, that the first proviso to Section 125(3) Cr.P.C./Section 144(3) B.N.S.S. does not create any bar or affect upon the entitlement of a claimants to recover arrears of maintenance beyond a period of one year.

(iii) While passing or executing maintenance orders, the trial court shall direct the opposite party/person, liable to pay maintenance, to deposit the monthly maintenance amount directly into the verified bank account of the applicant-claimant, in terms of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Aarti Rai (supra).

(iv) Wherever the opposite party is in salaried employment, the trial court shall also direct the concerned department/employer to deduct the maintenance or arrears from the salary/remuneration/honorarium of the opposite party-employee and transfer the same directly into the verified bank account of the applicant-claimant, in accordance with the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Dimple (supra).

(v) In the event of refusal of payment of maintenance or non-payment of maintenance due to insufficiency of funds, the trial court shall recover the amount by attaching the property of the opposite party/person, liable to pay maintenance, in accordance with law and if the attached property is insufficient to clear the unpaid arrears of maintenance, an order of simple imprisonment may be directed to be executed for a term which may extend to one month for each month's default or until payment, if sooner made, as per Section 125(3) Cr.P.C./Section 144(3) B.N.S.S.; and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rajnesh vs. Neha; (2021) 2 SCC 324.

24. The above directions, as given by the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as this Court, if not complied with in letter and spirit by the Presiding Officers of the Family Courts, as well as the Gram Nyayalayas of the State of U.P., the same is liable to attract disciplinary, as well as contempt proceedings as per law.

25. For execution of the maintenance order, the District Administration as well as the Police Authorities are directed to cooperate in the matter and this issue shall also be discussed in the Monitoring Cell meetings conducted by all the District and Sessions Judges of the State of U.P.

26. With the aforesaid directions, the revision stands disposed of.

27. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the District and Session Judge, Jaunpur and the Principal Judge, Family Court, Jaunpur for its compliance as well as to transmit a copy of this order to the Judicial Training and Research Institute, U.P. Lucknow (JTRI), for the academic purposes of the judicial officers.

Criminal Revision No. 6458 of 2025

Roji Bano & Anr. ...Revisionists

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the wife, who had obtained custody of the minor daughter on the specific assertion that she was financially capable of maintaining herself and the child, was entitled to interim maintenance in her individual capacity under Section 125 Cr.P.C.?

(ii) Whether the interim maintenance of Rs. 3,000/- per month awarded to the minor daughter warranted enhancement?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Interim maintenance --- Claim of wife --- Salary slip showing monthly salary --- Column of occupation and income left blank in affidavit filed in compliance of Rajnesh --- No documentary evidence of resignation --- Claim rightly rejected.

HELD: Where the salary slip of the wife showed a monthly salary of Rs. 14,125/-, the column of occupation and income in the affidavit filed in compliance with the directions in Rajnesh was left blank, there was no documentary evidence of her having resigned from her job, and the wife had herself obtained custody of the minor child on the specific assertion that she was financially capable of maintaining and taking proper care of the child, the finding of the court below that she is capable of maintaining herself, and the consequent refusal of interim maintenance to her, calls for no interference. [Paras 7, 10-12]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Maintenance of minor child --- Expenses to be shared proportionately where mother is also working and earning sufficiently --- Mother asserting financial capacity to obtain custody cannot fasten entire burden on father --- Enhancement declined.

HELD: In view of the principles laid down in paragraphs 91 and 92 of Rajnesh, although the reasonable expenses of the minor child, including food, clothing, residence, medical care and education, are required to be adequately provided for and the educational expenses are ordinarily to be borne by the father, where the mother is also working and earning sufficiently, such expenses may be shared proportionately between both parents. The mother, having asserted her financial capacity and obtained custody of the child on that basis, cannot seek to fasten the entire financial burden of the minor exclusively upon the father. In the absence of any cogent material showing a substantial increase in the actual and reasonable expenses of the minor, any material enhancement in the income of the father, or any subsequent deterioration in the financial condition of the mother, no sufficient ground is made out either to grant interim maintenance to the mother or to enhance the maintenance awarded to the minor daughter. [Paras 11-12]

Order dated 26.08.2025 passed by the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court-05, Prayagraj, in Maintenance Case No. 815 of 2023, Roji Bano v. Akib alias Prince, under Section 125 Cr.P.C., District Prayagraj.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Akhilesh Kumar Vishwakarma, Anil Kumar Singh, Ranjeet Singh.
For the Opposite Party(s): Ehtesham Khan, G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Lakshmi Kant Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Vaibhav Mishra, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Anil Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist, Mr. Kanhaiya Mishra, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Ehtesham Khan, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2, learned A.G.A. representing the State and perused the material available on record.

2. Revisionist Smt. Raji Bano and another have approached this Court by means of present Criminal Revision challenging the impugned order dated 26.08.2025 passed by the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court-05, Prayagraj (hereinafter referred to as "the Trial Court") in Maintenance Case No. 815 of 2023, Roji Bano v. Akib alias Prince, under Section 125 Cr.P.C., District Prayagraj, whereby the Trial Court granted interim maintenance of Rs. 3000/- per month to the minor daughter of the parties (revisionist no. 2) and rejected the claim of revisionist no. 1.

3. Feeling aggrieved from the aforesaid order, the present revision has been filed on the ground that the impugned order is arbitrary, illegal and suffers from material irregularity. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the revisionists that the Trial Court has erred in law while passing the impugned order by fixing a meager amount of maintenance of Rs. 3000/- per month to the minor daughter of the parties and by rejecting the claim of interim maintenance to revisionist no. 1. It is submitted that the maintenance granted by the Trial Court is very meager and grossly insufficient looking to the expenses of revisionist no. 2. Revisionist no. 1 has also no means of income to maintain herself but the Trial Court wrongly considered that she is able to maintain herself. It is further submitted that though in the year 2022 the revisionist no. 1 was working in B.S.N. Infrastructure on contract basis but she worked there only for three months. Thereafter, due to pressure made by opposite party no. 2 to quit the job, she resigned from her job. However, the Trial Court did not consider this fact and passed an illegal order. It is, thus, contended that the impugned order, so far as it relates to rejection of the claim for maintenance qua the revisionist no. 1, is not sustainable in the eye of law and is liable to be set aside by this Court.

7. Per contra, learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party no. 2 vehemently opposed the revision and submitted that the Trial Court has rightly passed the impugned order after considering all the relevant material available on record. It is submitted that the salary slip of revisionist no.1 shows that she gets monthly salary of Rs. 14,125/-. It is also submitted that in the affidavit filed by the revisionist, in compliance with the direction of the Supreme Court in Rajnesh v. Neha and another, (2021) 2 SCC 324 she did not fill the column of occupation and income and left it blank. There is no documentary evidence on record to show that revisionist no. 1 has resigned from her job. In view of aforesaid, it is thus contended that the Trial Court has rightly rejected the claim for interim maintenance of revisionist no. 1.

8. So far as enhancement of the amount of maintenance qua revisionist no. 2 is concerned, it is submitted by learned counsel for opposite parties that revisionist no. 2 was living with opposite party no. 2 and he was maintaining her. But the revisionist no. 1 filed a habeas corpus petition claiming the custody of revisionist no. 2 asserting that she is capable to maintain herself as well as her minor daughter, revisionist no. 2. Considering this fact, the Court directed the opposite party no. 2 to handover the custody of revisionist no. 2 to revisionist no. 1. It is submitted on this count that it is the admission of revisionist no. 1 herself that she is capable to maintain herself and her minor daughter. It is thus contended that the Trial Court considered all these facts and rightly fixed the amount of interim maintenance as Rs. 3000/- per month to revisionist no. 2. It is, therefore, submitted that the impugned order does not warrant interference of this Court and the Criminal Revision is liable to be dismissed.

9. When confronted with above, learned counsel for the revisionists could not overcome the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 and the learned A.G.A.

10. In the present case, the revisionist no. 1 (mother of revisionist no. 2) had herself obtained custody of the minor son on the specific assertion that she was financially capable of maintaining and taking proper care of her minor daughter. The court below has also recorded a finding that she is capable of maintaining herself and, accordingly, declined to award any interim maintenance to her, while awarding Rs.3,000/- per month to the minor daughter.

11. In view of the principles laid down by the Supreme Court in paragraphs 91 and 92 of Rajnesh (supra) although the reasonable expenses of the minor child, including those relating to food, clothing, residence, medical care and education, are required to be adequately provided for and the educational expenses are ordinarily to be borne by the father, where the mother is also working and earning sufficiently, such expenses may be shared proportionately between both parents. Thus, the revisionist no. 1, having asserted her financial capacity and obtained custody of the child on that basis, cannot seek to fasten the entire financial burden of the minor exclusively upon the father (opposite party no. 2). In the absence of any cogent material showing a substantial increase in the actual and reasonable expenses of the minor daughter, any material enhancement in the income of the father, or any subsequent deterioration in the financial condition of the revisionist, no sufficient ground is made out either to grant interim maintenance to the revisionist no. 1 in her individual capacity or to enhance the maintenance already awarded to the revisionist no. 2, parties' minor daughter.

12. In view of the discussions made hereinabove, we are of the opinion that the submissions urged by the learned A.G.A. as well as the learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party no. 2 are clearly borne out from the record. The Trial Court after considering all the relevant materials, passed a reasoned order. There is no good ground to interfere with the impugned order. The present Criminal Revision is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed.

13. It is, accordingly, dismissed.

Arbitration Appeal No. 35 of 2025

U.P. Public Works Deptt. ...Appellant(s)
Versus
M/s Vriddhi Infratech India Pvt. Ltd. ...Respondent(s)

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether a dispute as to the manner of calculation of GST payable under a works contract entered into under the VAT regime and completed under the GST regime is arbitrable, and whether the plea of non-arbitrability could be raised for the first time in an appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996?

(ii) Whether, by incorporation of the MoRTH technical specifications in the contract, the SOP dated 19.11.2018 issued by the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways relating to GST impact on EPC contracts became binding on the appellant-department, to the exclusion of the State Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019?

(iii) Whether the Sole Arbitrator could award GST along with penalty and interest, making the award subject to final assessment by the GST Authorities?

(iv) Whether the valid portion of the award could be severed and saved while setting aside the offending portion, in light of Gayatri Balasamy v. ISG Novasoft Technologies Ltd.?

Headnotes

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 --- Arbitrability --- Tax disputes --- Disputes resolvable within the contract (Head A) and disputes requiring statutory determination under tax laws (Head B) --- Distinction.

HELD: Disputes relating to tax which arise from the agreement and can be resolved within the contract — such as inter se liability as to which party is contractually obligated to pay or deposit the tax, reimbursement of tax paid, tax-sharing or indemnity clauses, and interpretation of contractual phrases such as "inclusive of all taxes" — are arbitrable. However, disputes which encroach upon the exclusive domain of the taxing authority, such as whether a transaction is legally taxable, challenge to a statutory tax arrangement, classification or entry under a taxing statute, rate of taxation, eligibility for statutory exemption or concession, and disputes between a contracting party and the State Authority relating to tax, are not arbitrable. The Arbitrator is a creature of contract, and where the adjudication requires determination of tax rates, classification, quantum of tax liability or reference to Executive Tax Notifications and Statutory Tax Rate Schedules, the dispute ceases to be contractual and metamorphoses into a fiscal regulatory issue governed by the taxing statute, which is a complete code in itself. [Paras 40, 41-41.4]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 --- Ss. 16, 37 --- Dispute confined to whether GST to be calculated as per MoRTH SOP or State Government Orders --- Falls under Head A --- Arbitrable --- Plea of non-arbitrability raised for the first time in appeal --- Rejected.

HELD: Where there was no dispute as to whether GST is payable, and the dispute was confined to whether the payable tax is to be calculated as per the MoRTH SOP dated 19.11.2018 or the Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019, not involving any classification, entry, rate of tax, challenge to statutory tax arrangement or dispute with the State as a sovereign, the dispute falls under Head A and is arbitrable. Moreover, no objection of non-arbitrability was raised by the department before the Arbitral Tribunal under Section 16, nor any such pleading was made, and the plea was taken for the first time before this Court. [Paras 42-50]

Contract --- Incorporation of MoRTH technical specifications --- Does not import tax guidelines --- Government Orders being executive instructions binding on Government Department --- Finding of Arbitrator that MoRTH SOP applicable --- Unsustainable.

HELD: Borrowing the MoRTH technical specifications results in MoRTH dictating the engineering standards, usage of raw material, quantity, quality, quality tests and measurement of work done; such guidelines cannot dictate statutory laws, GST rates or compliances. Technical, financial and commercial requirements are treated separately and borrowing one does not implicitly subsume the other unless specifically provided for. Government Orders issued by the State Government for easing its day-to-day work are executive instructions which, though they may not have statutory enforceability against the citizen, are binding on the Government Department. In the absence of any contractual clause or material on record, including the MoRTH document itself, establishing that tax provisions were borrowed or that MoRTH would prevail in case of ambiguity — the burden of which lay on the respondent — the finding of the Sole Arbitrator that the MoRTH SOP relating to calculation of GST applied merely because technical specifications were borrowed cannot be sustained. [Paras 65-77, 87]

Contract --- MoRTH SOP dated 19.11.2018 --- Applicable to EPC contracts --- Use of word "may" and reference to mutual agreement --- Directory in nature --- Application to item rate contract without evidence or consensus --- Based on conjectures.

HELD: Clause 6 of the SOP and the illustration therein relate to EPC contracts, and there is no material to indicate that the SOP would apply to item rate based contracts; the use of the word "may" and the reference to mutual agreement in the SOP indicate that it is merely a directory guideline. Without clinching evidence that the parties agreed to have their tax liability governed by the SOP, it could not be made binding on the appellant; the Sole Arbitrator, by applying it to an item rate contract on the premise that both types of contract are similar, read into the contract something which is not present, rendering the award based on conjectures and susceptible to interference. [Paras 80-84, 99]

Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 --- Ss. 50, 73, 74, 142(2), (10), (11) --- Liability of assessee --- Interest and penalty --- Award subject to final assessment by GST Authorities --- Arbitrator acting as Assessing Officer --- Ambiguity and lack of finality.

HELD: Under the GST Act, the liability to pay tax is on the assessee, and it was open to the respondent to deposit the tax in time to avoid penalty or interest and then recover the same from the appellant, if permissible. Before awarding interest and penalty, the Sole Arbitrator ought to have recorded a clear finding as to the quantum and periods of the shortfall and that such shortfall, penalty or interest was paid by the respondent on account of the sole negligence or want of due diligence of the appellant; there was no material showing issuance of any notice under Section 73 or Section 74 for the contract period. Making the awarded amount subject to final assessment by the GST Authorities leads to ambiguity and does not attach finality to the award, such an arrangement being permissible only as an interim measure. Further, the transitional provisions under Sections 142(2), 142(10) and 142(11) of the GST Act, 2017, which may have some bearing on the controversy, were not noticed. The Sole Arbitrator thus erred by acting as an Assessing Officer. [Paras 89-102]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 --- Ss. 34, 37 --- Patent illegality --- Arbitrator cannot re-write the contract or fill in lacunae --- Findings based on conjectures and not backed by cogent evidence --- Liable to be set aside.

HELD: The Sole Arbitrator, being a creature of the contract, is bound by its terms and cannot re-write the contract or fill in the lacunae for any party. An award can be set aside if it is in violation of the fundamental policy of Indian law, or ignores judicial discipline regarding compliance with principles of natural justice, or the reasoning is based on perversity which goes to the root of the matter without there being any possibility of an alternate view. The findings on Issue Nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9, having proceeded on conjectures and assumptions and being against the material evidence on record, cannot be sustained. [Paras 103-106]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 --- Ss. 34, 37 --- Modification of award --- Doctrine of severability --- Guardrails laid down in Gayatri Balasamy --- Severable portion saved --- Remaining issues remitted.

HELD: Only severable awards are amenable to modification; the error sought to be corrected must be patent and apparent on the face of the record; modification is permissible for correcting or adjusting post-award interest; and where modification is impermissible, the matter must be remanded. Applying these principles, the findings on Issue Nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 were set aside, while the finding on Issue No. 1 (based on consensus of the parties) and the award of Rs. 66,500/- with interest at 9% per annum under Issue No. 10 were severed and protected, and the remaining issues were remitted for fresh adjudication. [Paras 107-111]

Appeal partly allowed. Judgment dated 18.07.2025 of the Commercial Court-I, Lucknow set aside; award dated 27.01.2024 partly modified — findings on Issue Nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 set aside and remitted to the Arbitral Tribunal, to be constituted as per law, for fresh decision; findings on Issue Nos. 1 and 10 saved. Parties to bear their own costs. (E-14)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. The Uttar Pradesh Public Works Department (in short 'the appellant/department') has instituted the instant appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act of 1996') against the judgment and order dated 18.07.2025 passed by the Commercial Court, Court No. I, Lucknow in Arbitration Case No. 25 of 2024 whereby the petition preferred by the appellant/department under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 was dismissed, as a consequence, the award passed by the Sole Arbitrator dated 27.01.2024, has been affirmed.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND:-

2. The appellant/department had invited tenders for the work of widening and strengthening of Bilraya-Panwari Road (SH-21) from CH. 75.00 to 98.00 and Nepalpur-Bijwar Road (ODR) from 0.00 to 3.00 Km in District Sitapur from two (2) Lane to Four (4) (length 44.70 kms). The bid submitted by the respondent-contractor was accepted by the department and the parties then entered in a contract on 27.04.2016 for a total contract price of Rs. 155,89,46,798.65/-.

3. As per the contract, the date of commencement of work was 27.04.2016 and it was intended to be completed by 26.04.2018. However, the contractor sought time extension, which was granted and the contractor completed the work within the extended period and the department issued a completion certificate to the respondent on 10.04.2019.

4. The work under the aforesaid contract started in the year 2016 which was under the old tax regime, which comprised of Value Added Tax, State Excise etc. Significantly, from the 01st of July, 2017, a new tax regime was introduced known as the Goods and Service Tax, 2017 (in short 'GST') which repealed the Value Added Tax.

5. This change in the tax regime impacted the price of different items which were scheduled in the contract in question. At the time of entering in the contract, the respondent-contractor quoted the price of items, inclusive of all taxes applicable under the old tax regime.

6. However, with the advent of the new GST regime, constructions work (such as the contract in question) attracted 12% GST and was payable to the Contractor and the same was required to be deposited by the contractor, directly with the GST Department.

7. The dispute arose post 01.07.2017 when the respondent-contractor demanded GST on the running account bills for the scheduled items as mentioned in the bills of quantities (BOQ) relating to the work done after 30.06.2017 based on calculation as per the Standard Operating Procedure (in short 'the SOP') issued by the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways (MoRTH) relating to GST impact on EPC contract, dated 19.11.2018.

8. The appellant-department disputed the calculation and payment of the GST to the contractor on the premise that it was bound by the Notification/Government Orders issued by the State-Government dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019.

9. The respondent invoked Clause 24 of the conditions of contract relating to disputes resolution and at the first instance sought adjudication by the Dispute Review Expert (hereinafter referred to as DRE).

10. Sri N.K. Kanodia who was the DRE submitted his finding on 21.12.2020 and held that the Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 12.10.2019 confirmed the procedure to be adopted and followed by the appellant-department relating to GST impact and its calculation in context of construction agreement. It also gave a finding that the respondent-contractor was entitled to payment of GST on the claim of price adjustment made by the contractor. Since the contractor was not satisfied with the conclusions of the DRE relating to the mode of calculation as per the Government Order dated 10.12.2019, hence, it invoked the arbitration clause to escalate the matter.

11. The contractor then filed a petition under Section 11(6) of the Act of 1996 bearing C.M. Arbitration Application No. 7 of 2022 which was allowed by this Court on 31.03.2022 and it appointed a Sole Arbitrator.

12. The claimant-respondent filed its statement of claim before the Sole Arbitrator on 11.07.2022 wherein it claimed a sum of Rs. 3,36,25,034/- towards the GST on the work done plus 15% penalty and 18% per annum interest from the March, 2019 till July, 2023 amounting to Rs. 8,26,61,388/-. It also claimed GST on the price adjustment relating to the work executed amounting to Rs. 94,77,038/-plus 15% penalty and 18% interest per annum from March, 2019 till July, 2023 amounting to Rs. 2,32,97,675/-. It also claimed a sum of Rs. 66,500/- which was payable by the appellant-department as their share of remuneration to the DRE. Thus, a total claim of Rs. 11,35,80,273/- was laid before the Sole Arbitrator.

13. The appellant-department contested the claim petition by filing its statement of defence. The primary defence was that the GST became applicable from 01.07.2017 and as the contract was funded by the State, hence, the department was bound by the Government Orders issued by the State Government dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 relating to the imposition of GST on running contracts i.e. to say which had commenced prior to the enforcement of GST and were being completed after the cut-off date i.e. 01.07.2017.

14. It was also pleaded that under the GST regime, the Contractor is to furnish the monthly returns with the GST Department and the contractor was called upon to furnish detailed statement relating to the deductions made under the GST but the statement was not provided by the claimant-respondent.

15. The department also stated that even the DRE had held that the Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 were applicable and applying the procedure contained in the said Government Orders for calculating the GST, it revealed that the appellant had paid some amount in excess, hence, a sum of Rs. 75,90,431/- was recoverable from the respondents.

16. The department though relied on the findings of the DRE but it did not agree to the payment of GST on the price adjustments. It also stated that since the claimant-respondent has filed the claims on incorrect calculations and premise and it did not discharge its obligations of depositing the GST with the GST Department, hence, the appellant cannot be made liable for any tax, penalty or interest which was the liability of the respondent, arising on account of the failure of the respondent to comply with its tax obligations.

17. On the basis of the pleadings exchanged between the parties, the Sole Arbitrator framed 11 issues which are being reproduced hereafter for ease of reference:-

"1. Whether the contract dated 27.04.2016, entered between the parties was Item rate contract or was percentage based contract?

2. Whether the Government of India, Ministry of Road Transport and Highways (MoRTH) circular No. RD/G-20017/26/2018-W&A dated 19th November 2018 is applicable to the instant case for the purpose of calculation of G.S.T. amount?

3. Whether MoRTH circular dated 19.11.2018 is not applicable in the instant case, because, the project in question was of U.P. Government and was also funded by it?

4. Whether the U.P. Govt. G.O. No. 1956/23.10.2019-12 (Samanya)/2017TC-2, dated 10.12.2019 has not been complied with by respondent in calculating and paying G.S.T. Amount?

5. Whether there has been inordinate delay in registration of respondent under the provisions of U.P.G.S.T. Act 2017? If so, its effect?

6. Whether there was no need of fresh registration under the provisions of U.P.G.S.T. Act, 2017, because, the respondent was registered earlier on 19.10.2006 under the Commercial Tax Department?

7. Whether the respondent is liable to pay G.S.T. to claimant on price escalation/ adjustment?

8. Whether the claimant is entitled to receive G.S.T. amount from respondent as claimed in the claim petition?

9. Whether the claimant is entitled to get reimbursement of interest and penalty on alleged G.S.T. amount, due to alleged non-payment of G.S.T. amount by respondent in time?

10. Whether the claimant is entitled to get reimbursement of respondent's share of fee paid to Disputes Review Expert?

11. To what relief, if any, is the claimant entitled?"

18. The Sole Arbitrator after allowing the parties to lead evidence and granting detailed hearing made his award dated 27.01.2024.

18.1. In the award, the Sole Arbitrator while dealing with issue no. 1, held that the contract in between the parties was an item rate contract.

18.2. While considering issue nos. 2 and 3 which were taken up together, the Sole Arbitrator held that since the contract contained a specific stipulation that all work would be carried out as per the MoRTH specifications and all chapters of Ministry of Road Transport and Highways and specifications for road and bridge was made part of the agreement and even the State Government by its notification had made the standard building document procurement of civil works as issued by the MoRTH, applicable to all Government Contracts of over Rs. 5 crores, hence, the notification of MoRTH dated 19.11.2008 would be applicable and the SOP mentioned therein for considering the impact and calculation of the GST would apply and not the Government Orders issued by the State Government dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019.

18.3. In respect of issue no. 4, the Sole Arbitrator held that the claimant did not dispute the mode of calculation on GST but stated that those calculations were as per the Government Orders of the State dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 and while dealing with issue nos. 2 and 3, it was already held that the same were not applicable, hence, issue no. 4 came to be decided accordingly.

18.4. Issues nos. 5 and 6 were taken up together by the Sole Arbitrator and it was held that post the GST regime, there was no need for fresh registration under the GST Act for the appellant-department.

18.5. Considering issue no. 7, the Sole Arbitrator held that the appellant had paid the price adjustment to the respondent as it was part of the work done and there could be no justification for not paying the GST towards the said price escalation. It further held that this had also been noticed by the DRE while giving his findings but the amount was not paid by the appellant. Hence, the respondent was held entitled to the GST on the price escalation/adjustment.

18.6. Considering issue no. 8, the Sole Arbitrator found the respondent to be entitled to receive (a) a sum of Rs. 3,36.25.034/- as GST on the value of work done (b) Rs. 94,77,038/- on the price adjustments (c) Rs. 75,90,431/- which was unlawfully deducted by the appellant from the final bill payable to the respondent.

18.7. While considering issue no. 9, the Sole Arbitrator held that since the GST amount was not paid by the appellant, hence, the respondent was entitled to 15% penalty and 18% interest from March, 2019 till July, 2023 by referring to Sections 50 and 74 of the U.P. GST Act, 2017. It also held that the amount of Rs. 75,90,431/- which was wrongfully deducted from the final payment would also carry penalty and interest @ 15% and 18% per annum respectively from the date the deduction was made till the date of its actual payment.

18.8. Issue no. 10 was decided in favour of the respondent and it was held that the appellant was required to pay its share of the fee payable to the DRE, which was paid by the respondent, hence, a sum of Rs. 66,500/- was allowed on the aforesaid count.

18.9. With the aforesaid findings, the claim petition was allowed vide award dated 27.01.2024, awarding a total sum of Rs. 11,35,80,273/- with penalty @ 15% and interest @ 18% per annum was also granted. The award provided that the aforesaid payments, except the sum of Rs. 66,500/- (which related to the payment of appellant's share to the DRE), would be subject to the final assessment made by the GST Department. However, as far as the amount of Rs. 66,500/- is concerned, the same would carry interest at the rate of 9% per annum from the date of the award till the date of its actual payment. It further provided that after the final assessment by the GST Department, if any amount payable towards GST or interest or penalty, remains unpaid or is not required to be paid to the GST Department then after adjustment of the amount already deposited by the claimant, the same shall be refunded by the respondent to the appellant within a period of two weeks from the date of final assessment by the GST Department and the information in this regard would be given by the claimant-respondent to the appellant. In case if the contractor failed to refund the said amount then the appellant would be entitled to recover the same from the respondent in accordance with law.

19. The appellant being aggrieved from the said award dated 27.01.2024, filed a petition for setting aside of the award under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 before the Commercial Court-I, Lucknow which was registered as Arbitration Case No. 25 of 2024. The Commercial Court-I, Lucknow after hearing the parties dismissed the petition under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 vide its judgment dated 18.07.2025 holding that the view taken by the Sole Arbitrator was based on material evidence before it and the view so taken regarding applicability of the Government Orders and the payment of GST did not suffer from any patent illegality nor it was hit by any fundamental principles of law. Consequently it affirmed the award dated 27.01.2024.

20. In the aforesaid backdrop, the award dated 27.01.2024 and the judgment of the Commercial Court-I, Lucknow dated 18.07.2025 were challenged before this Court, in this appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE APPELLANT:-

21. Sri Pritish Kumar, learned Senior Counsel and Additional Advocate General for the State of U.P. along with Sri Tushar Verma, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the appellant has structured his submissions in three parts.

22. A. The dispute relating to GST was not arbitrable between the parties:-

22.1 Elaborating the aforesaid submission, it was urged that a dispute relating to taxation is not contractual, hence, it would not fall within the purview of disputes covered by the arbitration clause in the agreement.

It was submitted that within the contractual framework, if it was to be determined as to who was liable to pay the tax then such a dispute could fall within the contractual dispute and could have been referred for arbitration. However, the dispute in the instant case relates to the quantum and the manner in which the tax is to be calculated. This type of a dispute is within the exclusive domain of the Taxing Authority. Hence, the contracting parties nor the Sole Arbitrator could not have settled such a dispute or determine the quantum of tax payable.

22.2. It was further urged that the GST Act of 2017 is a complete code in itself. It is the Taxing Authority who determines the quantum of tax and finalizes the assessment. Any finding given by the Sole Arbitrator relating to the quantum of tax is not binding on the Taxing Authority. Thus, the dispute sought to be raised by the respondent relating to quantum of tax, being non-arbitrable, could not have been made the subject matter of arbitration. Accordingly, the award passed by the Sole Arbitrator determining the tax liability and fastening it on the appellant is a patent error which vitiates the award and the Commercial Court too failed to delve into this aspect of the matter and as such the award and the judgment of the Commercial Court is liable to be set aside.

23. (B) The learned Senior Counsel for the appellant next submitted that the circular and the guidelines including the SOP issued by the MoRTH relating to the issue of taxation was not binding on the appellant-department.

23.1. It was urged that the contract between the parties clearly provided that the MoRTH guidelines were applicable only for the purposes of technical specifications. Borrowing technical specifications for the project in question would not mean that any guidelines issued by MoRTH would be applicable even if it related to any tax matter. The contract was floated and funded by the State of U.P. and the appellant being a State instrumentality was bound by the Government Orders addressed to the appellant relating to imposition and calculation of tax.

23.2. Taking his submissions forward, the learned Senior Counsel further urged that even if at all the SOP issued by the MoRTH was applicable then at best it could only be for EPC contract and in the instant case, admittedly the contract between the parties was an item rate contract. The SOP of the MoRTH was not a document which could be mandatorily applied in the contract such as the present one. It was merely a directory document and could not be legally and compulsorily enforced against the appellant especially in respect of the contentious issues of tax.

23.3. Furthermore, there is no dispute between the parties regarding the technical specifications. There is no dispute relating to the measurement of the work done and other ancillary and related issues as provided in the contract. It is for these sort of issues that the technical specifications of MoRTH were borrowed in the instant contract and thus the reasoning of Sole Arbitrator that since technical specifications were borrowed from the MoRTH, hence, the issue of taxation which arises from the instant contract, would also be governed by the MoRTH guidelines, is patently erroneous. This aspect of the matter was not appropriately considered by the Commercial Court which renders the impugned judgment and award susceptible to judicial scrutiny.

24. (C). The learned Senior Counsel next submitted that the Arbitral Tribunal while passing the award relating to a tax dispute has given his findings and made the tax payable by the appellant subject to the final assessment made by the GST Authority which makes the award inconclusive and it does not vest finality with the award.

24.1. In this regard, it was submitted that it is one thing to determine as to which of the contracting party is liable to pay tax relating to transactions covered by the contract. However, it is a completely different thing to determine and calculate the tax and determine which one of the contracting party would pay the tax to the other contracting party and the outcome thereof would be subject to final determination to be made by the Taxing Authorities.

24.2. It was urged that the Sole Arbitrator has not only quantified the tax liability but it has also held the amount to be payable along with interest and penalty irrespective of the fact whether such liability of penalty and interest had actually been demanded by the Taxing Authorities from the respondent i.e. the assessee who is liable to pay such tax.

24.3. Thus, for all the aforesaid reasons, it was urged that the award and the judgment passed by the Arbitral Tribunal and the Commercial Court respectively being patently erroneous deserve to be set aside and the appeal be allowed.

25. In support of his aforesaid submissions, the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant has relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in Vidya Droliya v. Durga Trading Corporation : (2021) 2 SCC 1 for indicating that tax disputes do not partake the nature of the contractual dispute and are not arbitrable.

26. He has also relied upon a decision of the Calcutta High Court in Usha Martin Ltd. v. Eastern Gases Ltd. : (2022) SCC OnLine Cal. 3342 to buttress his submissions that the Arbitral Tribunal cannot delegate its duty to adjudicate to any third party, as in the instant case, the Sole Arbitrator has made its award subject to final assessment made by the GST Authority.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE RESPONDENT:-

27. Sri Manish Singh, learned counsel appearing for the respondent submitted that the appellant had never disputed, at any stage, that the dispute between the parties was not arbitrable. The appellant did not raise the objection relating to non- arbitrability of the dispute before the High Court in proceedings under Section 11(6) of the Act of 1996. The aforesaid objection was also not raised before the Sole Arbitrator under Section 16 of the Act of 1996. Even before the Commercial Court, the appellant did not raise the ground of non- arbitrability of disputes and it is for the first time this issue has been raised before this Court in an appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996.

28. It was further submitted that actually there is no dispute between the parties as to who has to pay the tax. The dispute arose only on account of the fact that at the time the contract was entered between the parties prior to 31st July, 2017, the parties were governed by VAT. In the instant contract, all the items which were quoted by the respondent were all inclusive of 4% of VAT charges. The appellant under the VAT regime deducted 4% VAT from the running bills and deposited the same with the Commercial Tax Department. It is after the implementation of the GST regime that the GST charge on the work done, fell in 12% category and with the changed tax regime, the appellant paid the running bills without deducting VAT, however, it was required to pay the shortfall (12% GST - 4% VAT=8% (approx) GST). In this context, the appellant was required to pay 8% (approx) difference for the work done post 01.07.2017.

29. It was further submitted that primarily, there is no dispute as far as the liability to pay GST is concerned. It is also admitted by the appellant that post 01.07.2017, as per the GST regime, the bills submitted by the respondent indicated payment of GST at 12% which was to be paid by the appellant, however, what came under dispute was the manner in which the GST was to be calculated, in respect of contracts which had been entered between the parties under the VAT regime and continued and finished post 01.07.2017, under the GST regime.

30. It is in this context that the MoRTH had issued a SOP dated 19.11.2018 which explained the manner in which the tax was to be paid by factoring the change in the tax rates as well as the impact of the GST on such contracts.

31. It was further submitted that the two Government Orders relied upon by the appellant dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 both indicate that for contracts above Rs. 5 crores, the MoRTH document should be adhered. Once the parties had clearly agreed to incorporate the MoRTH specifications and guidelines then the issue of taxation as explained by the MoRTH in its SOP dated 19.11.2018 also became applicable. It is in this context that the Sole Arbitrator noticed the MoRTH specifications and SOP and applied the same to the dispute as to how the tax was to be determined while making payments in respect of contracts which were entered under the VAT regime and were continued and finished under the GST regime.

32. In the aforesaid backdrop, the learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the award made by the Arbitral Tribunal was bifurcated into three parts:-

32.1. The first part relate to the actual work done. The value of the work done was taken as the base for ascertaining the GST liability amounting to Rs. 3,36,25,034/-. It was submitted that ample evidence was before the Arbitral Tribunal indicating that the appellant in similar circumstances relating to another contractor, had paid the difference of the GST (12%-4% i.e. 8% (approx) additionally).

32.2. The respondent apart from the aforesaid exemplar had also filed evidence indicating the impact of GST on the contract and the manner in which the difference is to be determined by bringing on record the report of a Chartered Accountant. A separate report by a Chartered Engineer was also placed on record to explain the impact of GST on the contracts. Another separate report from a third party Chartered Accounting and Auditing Firm was also placed on record. This expert evidence, indicating the impact of GST on the current project and the liability of GST, was not controverted by the appellant nor any expert evidence was led by the appellant to indicate that the evidence of the respondent was either unreliable or suffered from any error.

32.3. In such a situation, it was not open for the appellant to challenge the award, especially when the award had been passed after taking into account the material evidence available on record. The said award has been affirmed by the Commercial Court and needless to say that the scope of an appeal under Section 37 is narrow and it will not encourage this Appellate Court to enter into the realm of re-appraisal of evidence.

33. The second part of the award related to the unpaid GST on the price adjustment/escalation. It was submitted on behalf of the respondent that the contract in question was completed successfully after receiving time extension. Many items which were not taxable under VAT regime were made subject matter of tax under the GST regime attracting 12% tax. There was no dispute relating to the extra work done and the price escalation/adjustment. Once, this issue in itself was not disputed, in such circumstances, the GST attracted on the escalated/price adjustment as per the GST regime was liable to be paid by the appellant/department. This aspect of the matter was also ruled in favour of the respondent by the DRE while giving its findings.

33.1. Once, it was found that the respondent was entitled to the escalated/price adjustment then as a fortiorari, the respondent was entitled to the GST which was to be paid by the appellant on the aforesaid enhanced/price adjustment. Thus, the second part of the award related to this unpaid GST on the amount of price adjustment/escalation.

34. The learned counsel for the respondent further submitted that the third part of the award was nothing but a refund of a sum of Rs. 75,90,431/- which was illegally recovered by the Department towards GST, on the premise that an excess amount had been paid to the respondent.

34.1. The appellant applying its own formula initially recovered a sum of Rs. 75,90,431/- on the premise that excess amount had been paid by the Department to the respondent. This deduction was found to be illegal and therefore the same was directed to be refunded.

35. It was also urged that three components, as mentioned above, constitute the major part of the awarded amount. Since the said amount had been illegally recovered and the Department did not pay the GST on the work done as well as on the price escalation/price adjustment, hence, considering Section 50 of the GST Act, 2017, the Sole Arbitrator directed the appellant to pay the interest and penalty, which the respondent would have paid to the GST Department. A minuscule portion of the awarded sum relates to the appellant's share of fee, which they were obligated to pay to the DRE, but was not paid, hence, that amount has been awarded in favour of the respondent.

36. It is thus urged that there is no patent illegality nor the findings returned by the Sole Arbitrator suffer from any violation of law or being against the public policy or law of the Country. The view taken by the Sole Arbitrator is based on the material evidence on record which cannot be said to be erroneous.

37. The learned counsel for the respondent in support of his submissions has relied upon following decisions which have been primarily relied upon for the purposes of emphasizing the scope of an appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996.

(i) AC Choksi Share Broker (P) Ltd. v. Jatin Pratap Desai : (2025) 5 SCC 321.

(ii) UCM Coal Co. Ltd. v. Adani Enterprises Ltd. : (2025) SCC OnLine All 7608; and

(iii) Sanjay Gandhi Post Graduate Institute of Medical Science v. Trishul Enterprises : (2026) SCC OnLine All 367.

38. The Court had heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and also perused the material on record.

39. The first issue that requires consideration is whether a dispute relating to taxation can be made the subject matter of arbitration.

40. In this regard, a court while formally considering as to whether a dispute is arbitrable or non-arbitrable must follow the following postulates which have been culled out from judicial pronouncements of the Apex Court and has gained universal acceptance.

(i) Whether the action giving rise to the disputes lies in the realm of acts in rem. Any act which leads to a dispute which requires adjudication and the effect of such judgment or adjudication is that it determines a status of the party or things, which is distinct from a particular interest in it of a party to a litigation and such adjudication/judgment is conclusive evidence for and against all persons whether parties or strangers to the matter actually decided, such judgments operate in rem and such kind of disputes are generally not arbitrable. [see Vidya Darolia (supra)];

(ii) Legal action against sovereign function of the State is also non arbitrable as it is the State which has the exclusive domain, right and duty to perform such functions. Any decision and adjudication of and by the State which has a public interest element involved including such rights relating to legitimacy of marriage, citizenship, winding up of the companies, are considered to be non arbitrable. The only exception is where a statute in relation to a regulatory or adjudicatory mechanism either expressly or by clear implication permits arbitration;

(iii) All such matters wherein the cause of action and subject matter of dispute affects third party rights which may have an all pervading effect and requires centralized adjudication in contradistinction to cases where mutual adjudication would not be proper and enforceable, are also non-arbitrable;

(iv) Where the subject matter of the dispute is expressly or by implication made non arbitrable as per statute.

41. Now to answer specifically, the issue, whether a dispute relating to taxation is arbitrable or not, can be considered under two distinct heads:-

(A) Disputes relating to tax which can be resolved within the contract can be resolved through arbitration and

(B) Disputes which requires statutory determination through tax laws and such disputes cannot be resolved through arbitration.

41.1 Head-A: Such disputes are covered under Head A, which arise from an agreement over which the Arbitrator has the jurisdiction to interpret the terms of the contract to settle private obligations such as:

(i) Any such matter arising out of the contract which requires, deciding inter se tax liability that is to say which party is contractually liable and obligated to pay or deposit the tax;

(ii) Any such disputes which require adjudication within the contract relating to which party is obligated to receive reimbursement of tax paid;

(iii) Contractual issues relating to tax sharing or indemnity clause or determination of the fact as to which party to the contract is obligated to indemnify the other in respect of statutory taxes and penalties;

(iv) Any interpretation of any clause contained in the contract including or to give meaning to any phrase in the contract including words and phrases such as inclusive of all taxes and whether the use of such words would include a newly introduced tax or any other change or statutory modification of any taxing regime or if such tax may impact and constitute an extra cost , under the contract.

41.2. Head B:- All such matters would fall under Head B, which relates to tax and which cannot bind a third party, are generally not arbitrable such as:

(i) In matters relating to tax between the contracting parties, if any such issue or adjudication is made by an Arbitrator which may have the impact of encroaching upon the exclusive domain of a taxing authority then it cannot be decided by an Arbitrator;

(ii) Similarly, any issue arising between the contracting parties relating to the determination as to whether any particular transaction is legally taxable or has the impact of challenging a statutory tax arrangement issued by a taxing authority, cannot be made the subject matter of arbitration;

(iii) Issue which may involve determination of any classification or entry as specified by a taxing statute, which may be applicable in between the contracting parties;

(iv) Issue relating to determination of rate of taxation, which may be in dispute between the contracting parties including as to whether any of the contracting parties is eligible for any statutory exemption from tax or any tax concession;

(v) Disputes between any contracting party and the State Authority relating to tax also cannot be decided by the Arbitrator.

41.3. In other words, what is required to be truly seen is not what the parties agreed but what the law mandates. A question of statutory interpretation and fiscal categorization which may lie in the exclusive domain of the taxing authority including in its appellate hierarchy, including Tribunal constituted under the taxing statute, such disputes would necessarily require the Arbitrator to render a finding on the applicable tax rate, classification of goods or entries in the taxing statute, these are all issues which are in the hands of the taxing authorities and not the Arbitrator.

41.4. The Arbitrator is a creature of contract and its jurisdiction to decide the dispute may be co-extensive with the contract but if it requires any determination relating to tax rates or classification of goods under any particular entry of the taxing statute or the quantum of any tax liability or the adjudication requires referencing to any Executive Tax Notification and Statutory Tax Rates Schedules, then such disputes even though arising out of a contract ceases to be contractual in nature and it metamorphosis into a fiscal regulatory issue. Such issues are governed by the taxing statute which are a complete code in themselves and cannot be subjected to determination by a private forum such as an Arbitral Tribunal.

42. Now, the facts of the instant case would reveal that admittedly, there is no dispute between the parties as to whether the tax (GST in the instant case) is payable or not. Rather the dispute is confined only to the extent as to whether the payable tax is to be calculated as per the MoRTH guidelines and SOP dated 19.11.2018 or as per the Government Orders issued by the State of U.P. dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019.

43. It is also not disputed that as per the contract which was entered between the parties in April 2016, the contractor had quoted the rates of the items to be supplied inclusive of 4% VAT (the then applicable tax). It is also not disputed that VAT regime of taxation was repealed and a new tax regime came into effect from 01.07.2017 (GST regime).

44. It is also not disputed that as per the new tax regime, the GST would be paid by the appellant department on the goods supplied to it by the respondent. It is also not disputed that post 01.07.2017 the department had paid certain running bills to the respondent by factoring the GST.

45. Thus, the dispute is not as which of the contracting party has to pay the GST rather the entire essence of adjudication before the Arbitral Tribunal was in respect to whether the GST is liable to be calculated as per the SOP of MoRTH dated 19.11.2018 or as per Govt. Orders issued by the State of U.P. dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.019.

46. This dispute was first taken up by the DRE in terms of the dispute resolution mechanism envisaged in the contract itself and the DRE gave his finding that the department was liable to pay the GST to the respondent on the price adjustment/price escalation. It also gave a finding that in order to determine the quantum of GST, the Government Order issued by the State would be binding on the department.

47. It is from this point onward that the respondent escalated the matter before the Arbitral Tribunal urging that they were entitled to the GST, which is to be calculated in terms of the SOP of the MoRTH and not the Government Order issued by the State. Hence, it can be clearly deciphered that the dispute related as to the applicability of Government Orders issued by the State of U.P. or the SOP of the MoRTH dated 19.11.2018 for the purposes of GST calculation in the post GST era. It did not involves adjudication of any transaction, under the contact, attracting GST or not. It also did not involve challenge to any statutory tax arrangement nor did it involve determination of any classification or entry or rate of taxation specified by a taxing statute and certainly it did not involve any dispute between the contracting party and the State as a sovereign.

48. Thus, in light of the aforesaid factual background and applying the axiomatic principles as noticed hereinbefore, it would be seen that the issue raised in the instant proceedings are not which falls under the aforesaid considered Head-B rather it falls within the Head-A and thus it cannot be said that the dispute raised by the respondent was not arbitrable.

49. Furthermore, it will also be relevant to notice that the issue of non arbitrability, as sought to be raised in this appeal, by attempting to bring the disputes within the aforesaid discussed Head B, then it ought to have been raised by the department before Arbitral Tribunal in terms of Section 16 of the Act of 1996 which was not done. Even during the entire arbitral proceedings, no such objection was raised nor any such pleadings were delivered by the department raising any such plea. Hence, even the Arbitral Tribunal though framed 11 issues yet none related to jurisdictional and non-arbitribility of the dispute in context with Head-B mentioned hereinabove rather the tenor of the objections were to be effect that the Arbitrator had incorrectly relied upon the SOP of the MoRTH dated 19.11.2018 and erred in ignoring the State Government Notifications dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 and it is only for the first time during the course of submission before this Court that the appellant had taken the plea of jurisdictional non-arbitrability of disputes.

50. This Court has already held that the actual dispute between the parties falls under the Head-A as explained above and not under the Head-B, hence for all the aforesaid reasons, the first contention raised by the appellant regarding jurisdictional non-arbitrability of disputes does not find favour with this Court and hence it is turned down.

51. The next submission advanced on behalf of the appellant was that the SOP dated 19.11.2018 issued by the MoRTH was not applicable and it was the Govt. Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 which were applicable and the Sole Arbitrator by holding that the SOP dated 19.11.2018 was applicable has erred and it has rendered the award patently illegal and liable to be set aside.

52. In order to examine the strength of the aforesaid submission, it will be appropriate to consider the nature of the contract, its relevant clauses and the reasoning given by the Arbitrator.

53. The contract in question, dated 07.04.2016, related to widening and strengthening of Bilraya and Panwari Road SH 21 from CH 75 to CH98 and Nepalapur Bijwar Road from CH 0 to CH 3 in Sitapur District from two lane to four lane. The copy of the contract has been made a part of the supplementary-affidavit dated 27.10.2025, filed by the appellant before this Court.

54. In the said contract, under the special condition of the contract, clause-3 specifically stated that All the works shall be carried out as per MoRTH specification i.e. all chapters of Ministry of Road Transport & Highway and Specification for Road & Bridge Works (V revision published by IRC New Delhi 2013) and it is part of the agreement.

In the contract, under the Head of Technical Specification, it states as under:

"TECHNICAL SPECIFICATION"

"Work will be executed as per MoRTH Specification Vth edition-2013/PWD detailed Specifications/IRC codes/latest circulars/ Govt. Orders issued from time to time and also as per directions Engineer-in-Charge."

55. The contract also contained stipulation of price adjustment in Clause 47. Clause 25.3 related to arbitration. It will also be relevant to take note of the Govt. Order dated 24.07.2017 issued by the Special Secretary, Govt. of Uttar Pradesh and addressed to Chief Engineer (Development and all departmental heads of the PWD stating that all contracts of the PWD over five crore would follow the standard bidding documents procurement of civil works as published by the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways.

56. The contract further envisaged that the expenditure on the said project was to be met from the budget of the Govt. of Uttar Pradesh. In the bill of quantities (BOQ) in clause 8, it was mentioned that the method of measurement of completed work for payment shall be in accordance with Specification for Road and Bridge Work published by the Ministry of Surface Transport. Moreover, the contract also mentioned matters about the general methodology for construction of major items. Under the said heading, road work which required earth work, GSB, WNN, Cemented Sub Base, Prime Quote, TACK Quote, EC, (open graded), Seal Quote, DDM, BC, PCC, RCC, reinforcement of Steel of works and was to be done as per directions of the Engineer.

57. The aforesaid clauses have been noticed by this Court only for the purpose of clarity to ascertain as to what extent and purpose, the MoRTH Technical guidelines have been borrowed in the contract.

58. Now, Clause 45 of the contract which relates to tax, reads as under:-

"45. Tax

45/1 the rates quoted by the contractor shall be deemed to be inclusive of the sales and other taxes that the contractor will have to pay for the performance of this contract. The employer will perform such duty in regard to the deduction of such taxes at source as per applicable law."

59. The Arbitral Award dated 27.01.2024 would reveal that the Sole Arbitrator had framed 11 issues but the bone of contention between the parties was encapsulated in issue nos.2, 3 and 4. Issue no.2 was whether the circular of MoRTH dated 19.11.2018 is applicable for the purposes of GST calculation. Issue no.3 was, whether MoRTH circular dated 09.11.2018 is not applicable because the project in question was funded by the U.P. Govt.. Issue No. 4 related to the fact whether the U.P. Government Order dated 10.12.2019 had not been complied with by the respondent while calculating and paying GST. As a corollary to the aforesaid three issues, the issue nos. 8 and 9 also gains significance. Issue no. 8 related to whether the claimant was entitled to receive GST amount from the appellant as claimed in the Claim Petition. Issue no.9 related to whether the claimant is entitled to receive reimbursement of interest and penalty on alleged GST amount, due to alleged non-payment of GST amount in time.

60. Before proceeding further, it will be appropriate to consider the two Government Orders dated 19.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 issued by the State-Government vis- -vis with the SOP guidelines dated 19.11.2018 issued by MoRTH.

61. There are two Government Orders of the same date i.e. 09.11.2017 which have been brought on record at a running page 216 of the Supplementary Affidavit filed by the appellant dated 27.10.2025. The first Government Order bearing No. 1535/23.10.2017-12 (General)/2017 is a direction for the Public Works Department relating to chargibility of GST on contracts entered up to 30.06.2017. In the said Government Order, it was clearly stated that all service receivers who have entered into contracts uptill 30.06.2017, whereupon service tax etc. was being charged, now shall be governed by the GST and the difference in the tax rates would be deducted by the service receivers and all notifications relating to GST and its imposition and implementation including issued by the GST Council from time to time, would be compulsorily followed.

62. The other Government Order of the same date bearing No. 1614/23.10.2017-12 (General)/2017 related to the manner in which the GST was to be calculated. A complete formula was provided in terms whereof the Departments were required to make provisions for the GST as mentioned in the said Government order.

63. On the other hand, the SOP dated 19.11.2018, issued by MoRTH refers to implementation of CGST/Standard Operating Procedure. The said SOP in Clause 5 mentioned, the incidence of application of service tax/GST. It further refers to payments for EPC contracts which is mentioned in Clause 6 (i) to (v). The said SOP also gives an illustration regarding the manner in which the GST is to be worked out relating to EPC contracts.

64. For the ease of reference, Clause 5 and 6 of the MoRTH SOP dated 19.11.2018 is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"5. Incidence of application of Service Tax/GST incidence of the applicability of taxes shall be as follows:-

Sr. No.	Completion of Service	Invoice Date	Payment Date	Applicability of Taxes			Applicable TDS
				Service Tax	Works Contract Tax (WCT)	GST
1	Before June 30, 2017	Before June 30, 2017	Before June 30, 2017	Yes	Yes	No	WCT TDS
2	Before June 30, 2017	Before June 30, 2017	After June 30, 2017	Yes	Yes	No	WCT TDS
3	Before June 30, 2017	After June 30, 2017	After June 30, 2017	No	No	Yes	GST TDS
4	After June 30, 2017	After June 30, 2017	After June 30, 2017	No	No	Yes	GST TDS

6. Payments for EPC Contracts

6.1. The contract price is quoted lump-sum and inclusive of all taxes in most of EPC contracts; these taxes have now been subsumed under GST. In order to arrive at the incidence of application of Service Tax/GST as mentioned at Para 5 above, the total work shall be categorized as follows:-

(1) Works completed up to 30.06.2017 and Billing completed by 30.06.2017.

(ii) Works completed up to 30.06.2017 and Billing not completed by 30.06.2017.

(iii) Works yet to be completed as on 01.07.2017.

6.2. GST Act, 2017 shall be applicable for all the works mentioned above at (ii) & (iii) Following procedure may be adopted by the Ministry/ ROs/ PIUs/ various Executing Agencies while making payments as per the provisions in the contracts:

(I) The project components under different major heads (like Earth, Sand, Aggregates. Steel, Cement, Bitumen etc.) are to be intimated by the contractor and checked/confirmed by the respective IE/ AE in consultation with the concerned RO/PD for each of the Project.

(ii) In order to compile the above information, an indicative Excel format is suggested for guidance and attached (at Annexure-I). It indicates various project components which attract various types of taxes including Excise Duty, CST, VAT/WCT and other taxes, which were already included in the contract price as per the original contract. The same format can be used to compile the information for each ongoing project, taking into consideration the GST Input Tax Credit available for the project. The project components and rates shown are only indicative and should be modified as per the project actuals and shall be certified by the statutory auditors of the Contractor/Developer/Company. In case, appointment of Statutory Auditor is not mandatory, then it can be certified by a Practicing Chartered Accountant.

(iii) After completion of the said exercise, the costs against the subsumed taxes (Excise duty, CST, VAT/ WCT etc.) in the particular contract are to be finalized and to be mutually agreed by IE/AE/ Ministry/concerned Executive Agency/ Contractor. The cost of subsumed taxes factored in the contract value is required to be reduced from the original contract price to arrive at the actual balance cost of the project.

(iv) Based on such certification and mutual agreement, the concerned RO/ PD shall either pay or recover the net impact of the GST after accounting for subsumed tax component and input tax (GST) credit. The contractor shall be responsible for correct declaration of GST liability and shall provide the supporting documents, if required.

(v) This will be an interim arrangement till the completion of the project and the final impact of GST (positive or negative) shall be worked out at the time of Final bill."

65. At this stage, it will also be extremely important to consider the significance of the two documents i.e. (a) the SOP/Guidelines issued by MoRTH and (b) the two Government Orders issued by the State of U.P., is.

(i) Apparently, from the contractual clauses, it reveals that by borrowing the MoRTH technical specifications, it would result in MoRTH dictating the engineering standards, usage of raw material, quantity, quality, quality tests, details regarding recording of work done, measurement of the work done and other like related matters. Such guidelines or standards set by MoRTH cannot dictate statutory laws Central or State, even GST rates or compliances or local Tax Laws.

(ii) Taxes are governed by statutory laws and contractual clauses cannot override these laws. Moreover, the technical measures borrowed for the purposes of engineering standards cannot impose or create tax jurisdictions or obligations.

(iii) Contractual implementation and its administration generally treats the Technical, Financial and Commercial Requirements separately and borrowing one does not implicitly subsume the other, unless specifically provided for. Furthermore, financial aspect is different from the issues of taxation which is a specialized jurisdiction and unless there is a clear import made in respect thereto, it cannot be assumed.

(iv) It must be kept in mind that the Government Orders are issued by the State Government and can be of various types, depending upon its source. If a Government Order has its source from a Statute or a Legislation then it is treated as a subordinate and delegated legislation.

However, certain Government Orders, which are issued for easing out its day to day work, then they are executive instructions which nevertheless is binding on the Government Department, though, may not have statutory enforceability against the citizen.

(v) It is in this context that the Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 issued by the State Government were binding on the appellant-department.

(vi) Apparently, from the bare perusal of the MoRTH SOP, it would reveal that it is a guiding and a directory document which takes into consideration the issues relating to managing financial variations, escalations and change of scope of work. An illustration appended to the SOP reflects as to how the introduction of GST would impact EPC contracts which were entered prior to the appointed date i.e. 01.07.2017 but went on and were concluded in the GST regime.

(viii) In this backdrop, it is reiterated that in absence of any clear material or stipulation on record, it cannot be said that merely by borrowing technical specifications from the MoRTH, the taxing guidelines would also be applicable and would be binding on the contracting parties.

66. Now, the stage is set to examine the records and ascertain as to whether by merely borrowing the MoRTH technical specifications in the contract, the SOP issued by the MoRTH dated 19.11.2018 would also become binding on the appellant-department so as to subsume all rights within relating to tax matters including the GST and whether the Govt. Order would have an overriding impact over the MoRTH SOP, will also have to be seen in context with the discussions which shall take place hereinafter.

67. The instant contract relates to widening of road and road building. The contract states that technical specifications of MoRTH have been borrowed. The contract placed before this Court does not specify that any tax regime or provision relating to taxation mentioned in the MoRTH guidelines would also be applicable to the instant contract.

68. There is no material evidence on record which could establish that what were those specifications which were borrowed from the MoRTH document. It does not indicate as to whether the MoRTH document had any provision regarding the tax regime applicable to the parties entering into a contract as per the MoRTH guidelines. The MoRTH document was not placed on record of this Court which could indicate that apart from technical specifications, the taxing clauses in MoRTH document was also borrowed, nor it could be shown that what actual clauses relating to tax were incorporated in the MoRTH document.

69. Significantly, the special conditions of contract in Clause 3 states that the work shall be carried out as per the MoRTH specifications and it is for that limited purpose the MoRTH guidelines become applicable and binding. The said contract also has a specific clause relating to tax as contained in Clause 45 which only notes that the rates quoted by the contractor would be deemed to be inclusive of all the sales and other tax which the contractor has to pay for the performance of the contract. The employer i.e. the Department herein is also obligated to perform such duties in regard to the deduction of such tax at source as per applicable law.

70. The aforesaid two clauses 3 and 45 as mentioned herein have already been reproduced in the earlier paragraphs for the purposes of reference and to bring out with clarity a fact that the manner in which the reference to the MoRTH specifications have been borrowed in the contract is only in respect of technical specifications for building and widening of roads which includes and related to the nature, the quality and quantity of the material used and it did not include or relate to any tax including GST.

71. As already noticed above, there is a distinction between a tax liability which is squarely governed by the tax laws and a contractual liability even though related to tax would be only determinative of the fact that which of the two contracting parties is obligated to pay the tax. Any dispute in this regard may be binding between the parties but it can have no impact on the Taxing Authority.

72. In light of the above, before the Sole Arbitrator could have returned a categorical finding regarding applicability of MoRTH guideline, it ought to have first noticed as to what was the extent of the MoRTH guidelines which were made applicable and whether there was any clause in the MoRTH guidelines relating to tax which would have an overriding impact on the contract entered between the parties.

73. There is no clause in the entire contract which says that in case of any ambiguity between the contract and the MoRTH guidelines, it would be the MoRTH document which would prevail and that too relating to tax. In absence of any categorical contractual clause or agreement, any finding in this regard holding that the MoRTH Circular/SOP is applicable merely because the contract between the parties states that the technical specifications of the MoRTH would be applicable is not per-se not emerging or flowing from the contract or the material on record.

75. The contract entered between the parties is to be read as it is and in its entirety. In light of the clauses as mentioned above which borrows the MoRTH specifications read with Government Order dated 24th July, 2017 (which is at running page 215 of the Supplementary Affidavit filed before this Court by the appellant dated 27.10.2025) it only states that all such contracts over 5 crores would be done as per the standard bidding document, procurement of civil works as issued by the MoRTH.

76. In case if the respondent seeks to impute a specific tax compliance provision in the instant contract, then it was its burden to have brought the MoRTH document on record and ought to have referred to specific provisions therein to establish that it would override the clauses of the contract entered between the parties or even in case of any ambiguity in the contract or any part which is silent in the instant contract, the grey area would be filled or covered by the specifications/clauses/ arrangements as provided in MoRTH guidelines including relating to taxation or what would be the order of precedence to be followed in case of ambiguity.

77. In absence of this clear material, the finding given by the Sole Arbitrator holding that the contract provided for borrowing the technical specifications from MoRTH, hence, the illustrative SOP issued by MoRTH relating to calculation of GST for EPC contracts would become applicable, cannot be sustained.

78. The record would also indicate that this issue was also raised before the DRE. He too in his findings concluded that the MoRTH guidelines were only applicable for the purposes of technical specifications and Government Orders relating to compliance of GST provisions were specific and binding on the appellant and it would prevail over the MoRTH SOP.

79. The record would also indicate that initially there was a difference of opinion between the parties regarding the nature of the contract itself, however, before the Sole Arbitrator, there was a consensus and the contracting parties agreed that the contract in question was an item based rate contract.

80. The appellant had raised a dispute before the Sole Arbitrator that the MoRTH SOP dated 19.11.2018 was applicable to EPC contract (Clause 6 and the illustration as incorporated in the SOP, as quoted above). This Clause 6 indicates that the illustration given therein was in context with the EPC contracts. There is no material to indicate that the said SOP would be applicable to item rate based contract. It also does not indicate that the said SOP though applicable for EPC contracts could be borrowed or be made applicable to item rate based contracts.

81. Before a finding could have been recorded by the Sole Arbitrator applying the illustration as given in the SOP relating to EPC contracts to item rate based contract, then at least it should have considered some material evidence or reference to any clause in the contract between the parties which could throw some light or permit borrowing the illustration relating to EPC contract to item rate based contracts, especially when the MoRTH SOP did not extend its applicability to item rate based contracts nor it stated that the illustration was applicable to all types of contract.

82. There is no averment or evidence to suggest that there is no other separate document relating to item rate based contract. There is no positive statement that apart from this SOP relating to EPC contracts, there is no other separate guidelines for item rate based contract nor there is any evidence to indicate that the said illustration applicable for EPC contracts can ipso-facto be followed for item rate based contracts, nor the Sole Arbitrator has given any reason or finding in this regard.

83. The Sole Arbitrator, however, concluded that even though the SOP refers to an EPC contract, the same can be made applicable for an item based rate contract on the premise that both the contracts are similar. However, in the trade industry relating to road construction contracts, there is a difference in EPC and item rate based contract. This distinction assumes significance for the reasons that it was a specific case of the appellant that the illustration and the methodology mentioned in the SOP dated 19.11.2018 is applicable only for EPC contracts and since the contract in between the parties in the instant case was an item based rate contract, hence, the same could not be made binding without consensus between the parties.

84. Furthermore, the usage of the word may in Clause 6 in the SOP and clause 6.2 (iv) which speaks of mutual agreement is indicative that the said SOP is merely a guideline which may be directory in nature and not mandatory as already noticed hereinabove, hence, without any clinching evidence to the effect that the parties to the contract agreed to get their tax liability governed by the SOP dated 19.11.2018 or the parties mutually agreed to do so, till then it cannot be made binding upon the appellant.

84. If the Sole Arbitrator was of the view that the SOP relating to EPC contract could be made binding to an item rate based contract then it ought to have referred to some evidence, clauses of the contract entered between the parties. In absence of any such reference merely concluding that the SOP would bind item rate based contract also would amount to giving a finding based on conjectures and assumptions which has no role to play in an award. By doing so, the Sole Arbitrator has read into the contract something which is not present, which is reflected in his award which then would be based on conjectures and it would make the award susceptible for interference.

87. As far as the two Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 are concerned, they have been issued by the State, in course of its business and partakes the nature of executive instructions which necessarily makes it binding on the appellant.

88. In the given situation, before this Court, the issue is not as much as who has to pay the GST but it has got to do with the manner in which the GST is to be calculated relating to the contract in question and the right of the contractor to recover the said GST paid to the Tax Authority, from the appellant.

89. It will be apposite to take a pinhole view of the GST Act. The GST regime introduced from 01st July, 2017 is primarily based on self-assessment under the GST laws. There are primarily two types of transactions. One where the transaction crosses two different State borders and in such a situation the transactions would attract the IGST i.e. Integrated Goods and Services Tax. This IGST is a composite and binding tax levied and collected by the Central Government which is later apportioned to the State where the goods are consumed. It is for this purpose that there can never be a CGST, SGST and IGST charged on the same invoice. However, where seller and the buyer are located within the same State then two components of CGST and SGST are charged simultaneously and one tax invoice clearly indicates the separate chargabiity of CGST and the SGST.

90. A party who is liable to pay the GST as per the scheme of the GST Act of 2017 is to furnish his returns periodically as mentioned in the Act on the basis of best self assessment. Once such returns are submitted before the GST Authorities, they have the discretion of either accepting the said returns, the way they are and conclude the assessment and in case if they are not satisfied then they have a right to enquire into the same in terms of the Section 73 and Section 74 of the GST Act, 2017.

91. However, in order to invoke the powers both under Section 73 and 74 of the GST Act, 2017, the tax Authorities are required to issue notice to the assessee calling upon him to explain the self-assessment and in case if the authorities are satisfied, they may conclude the same or they may call upon the assessee to furnish an explanation for any shortfall in tax paid. Any such order passed by the GST Authorities under Section 73 or Section 74 is susceptible to scrutiny before the Appellate Authority or the GST Tribunal as envisaged in the GST Act itself.

92. Illustratively, the respondent being the contractor was required to furnish his statements/periodical assessments and it would necessarily have been made under the provisions of the GST Act and also indicating the payment of GST. The contractor could have furnished his GST returns as per the MoRTH SOP. In case if the same was accepted by the GST Authorities then the assessment would have been completed and it would have been clearly shown how much tax was paid referrable to the contract in question.

93. Since the work in the instant case stood completed in the Financial year 2018-19 and a completion certificate was issued on 10.04.2019 then any GST liability outstanding would have been made known to the respondent by the GST Authorities by issuing a notice, however, there is no document on record or brought to the notice of this Court nor any consideration regarding it has been made by the Sole Arbitrator indicating that for the period under the contract, any notice under Section 73 or Section 74 had been issued to the contractor by the GST Authorities.

94. The respondent along with his short counter affidavit dated 14th January, 2026 has annexed the copies of the rejoinder affidavit to the second supplementary affidavit filed by the respondent during the arbitration proceedings as Annexure SA-1. From the perusal of the said Annexure SA-1, it would indicate that the GST receipts have been placed on record including a statement regarding the input tax credit which was available to the respondent, however, that does not per se indicate that some amount, which in some of the receipts have been, shown as voluntarily payment by the respondents towards interest or penalty is actually referrable for this particular contract for the period in question nor there is any discussion in this regard by the Sole Arbitrator to arrive at its conclusion in the award on this aspect of the matter.

95. As per the GST Act, the liability to pay tax is on the assessee i.e. the respondent and it was always open for him to deposit the tax in time in case if the same was not done then it is the respondent who is to bear the interest and penalty, if any. The respondent was required to mitigate his losses, inasmuch as, it was always open for the respondent to have paid the taxes in time to avoid imposition of penalty or interest and then could have recovered the same from the appellant (if permissible) and could have also claimed interest/penalty on the said outstanding amount, if it was solely attributable to the negligence or want of due diligence of the appellant.

96. This aspect has not been considered by the Sole Arbitrator who has merely on the premise that the GST has not been paid by the appellant to the respondent, hence, invoking the provisions of Section 50 of the GST Act, the amount determined by the Arbitrator has been made payable as per interest and penalty provided under the GST Act.

97. Even if the Sole Arbitrator had to do so then the Sole Arbitrator ought to have recorded a clear finding that the tax of a particular amount was due and payable by the respondent within time to be specified which could not be paid on account of negligence or non-payment by the department which led the respondent to suffer interest and penalty and had to be paid to the GST Department and this interest plus penalty was recoverable from the appellant under the contract.

98. The learned counsel for the respondents had referred to the report by the Chartered Accountant, another report of the Chartered Engineer and yet another report of an Independent Chartered Accounting Firm, they too indicate the impact of the GST on the contract and it is reflective of the fact, that with the change in the tax regime i.e. from VAT to GST, certain items which earlier were not taxable have been made taxable in the new regime, how this would impact the rights and the incidence of taxation and on which basis the tax will have to be calculated has not been amplified.

99. The Sole Arbitrator has merely proceeded in a compartmentalized way i.e. to say, it held that the technical specifications were borrowed in the contract, therefore, the MoRTH guidelines even for tax purposes would become applicable, consequently, the formula given for the EPC contracts would be applicable to the instant contract despite the said contract being an item rate based contract and as a fortiorari, the Government Orders have been held to be not applicable. There is no consideration or reasons given in the award as to how a regulatory/directory document, would have an overbearing impact on a State-Government order, which was binding on the particular department to which it related to and it also prescribed, a particular methodology as to how the GST was to be calculated related to contracts entered in old tax regime and concluded in post GST regime.

100. Furthermore, the Sole Arbitrator while making his award has left the issue open to the extent that the amount as awarded by him is required to be paid by the appellant which would then be subject to the final assessment by the GST Authorities and in case if excess amount had been paid, the same would be returned by the respondent to the appellant and in case of any shortfall then the appellant would still be liable to pay the said shortfall. This finding given by the Sole Arbitrator in its award leads to ambiguity and it also does not attach finality to the award.

101. What is significant to notice that this arrangement could have been made only as an interim measure during the pendency of the proceedings especially in terms of the GST Act when the contract itself had concluded in the financial year 2018-19 and the maximum period for concluding an assessment under the GST Act is 3 years. Thus, at the time of making of the award in the year 2024, the assessments would have become final and that would have been the best evidence which could have been placed before the Arbitrator to establish that the respondent was entitled to claim any shortfall of the GST and consequential interest or penalty from the appellant.

102. In light of the aforesaid discussions, following position emerges:-

(i) The basic premise of the Sole Arbitrator in his award, is the applicability of the MoRTH SOP dated 19.11.2018. In this regard, as already noticed above, there was no material on record to indicate that the MoRTH specifications as made applicable in the contract included any tax arrangements.

(ii) The Sole Arbitrator did not discuss under what circumstances, the Government Orders dated 09.11.2017 and 10.12.2019 would not be binding and applicable which relates to GST and a particular formula having been indicated therein, when they being executive instructions were binding on the Department.

(iii) There was no consideration of any material on record by the Sole Arbitrator as to how the said SOP could be made binding when that in itself appeared to be directory and applicable to to the parties only with mutual consent and its applicability was limited only on EPC contracts and in absence of any clause or material evidence by which it could be made applicable to item rate based contracts, hence, it could not have been ipso-facto made applicable and that too without cogent reasoning.

(iv) In absence of any challenge to the Government Order dated 10.12.2019 and without recording any cogent reason to discard its applicability and then to hold that the said Government Order was not applicable merely because the MoRTH had issued a SOP and it did not prima facie establish that such tax arrangement of MoRTH was binding despite there being no such clause in the contract nor any material on record established this fact.

(v) The Sole Arbitrator in absence of any cogent evidence or material could not have given a finding regarding deficiency/shortfall in payment of GST which could attract penalty and interest and make it payable without recording clear finding as to its quantum, periods and that such shortfall or deficiency in tax, or penalty/interest was paid by the respondent but on account of sole negligence or want of due diligence of the appellant it was recoverable from the appellant. Thus, the Sole Arbitrator erred by acting as an Assessing Officer.

(vi) The reference made by the Sole Arbitrator to certain exemplars to draw parallel that in cases of some other contractors, the State had paid the GST at same rate which is now being denied to the respondent, could only be considered with supporting assessment orders or other like evidence to show the similarity between the contract entered by the parties to the instant dispute and the one as mentioned in the exemplar and then it could be made applicable and binding on the appellant.

(vii) Importantly, the Sole Arbitrator and both the contracting parties have not noticed the import of Chapter XX of the GST Act, 2017 which contains the transitional provisions. In this regard inter alia Section 142 (2) which relates to contracts entered prior to the appointed date i.e. 01.07.2017 and wherein post the appointed date there is either upward or downward revision and how will it be catered to has been provided for. Thus, Section 142 (2), 142 (10) and 142 (11) may have some bearing on the controversy, which at least should have been noticed, considered and a finding should have been given whether the said sections were applicable or not. However, there is a stoic silence on this aspect as there is no reference to this aspect in the award.

(Viii) The expert evidence said to have been filed by the respondent also does not consider the impact of Sections 142(2), (10) and (11) of the GST Act, 2017 and in absence thereof, a definite finding returned by the Sole Arbitrator that the MoRTH guidelines and SOP would apply is rendered vulnerable as it looses its core integrity of reasoning.

103. The Sole Arbitrator being a creature of the contract is bound by its terms and it cannot re-write the contract or fill in the lacunae for any party. The position noticed hereinabove would indicate that the Sole Arbitrator has proceeded on conjectures and assumptions and the findings recorded are not backed by cogent evidence before it. Hence, the finding on issues nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 being against the material evidence on record, cannot be sustained.

104. Additionally, an award can be set aside if it is found to be in violation of fundamental policy of Indian Law or suffers from the vice of ignoring judicial discipline regarding compliance with principles of natural justice or the reasoning in the award is based on perversity which goes to the root of the matter without there being any possibility of an alternate view.

105. This Court had the occasion to consider the scope of an appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996 in UCM Coal Co. Ltd. v. Adani Enterprises Ltd. : 2025 SCC OnLine All 7608 and by taking aid of the previous decisions of the Apex Court on the aforesaid point, this Court in paras 63 to 67 noticed the perimeter within which the Appellate Court would exercise its jurisdiction. The relevant paragraphs read as under :-

"63. At the outset, it will be appropriate to notice the contours of scope and jurisdiction of this Court while dealing with an appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996.

64. The Apex Court in MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd., (2019) 4 SCC 163 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 293 has held as under:

"11. As far as Section 34 is concerned, the position is well-settled by now that the Court does not sit in appeal over the arbitral award and may interfere on merits on the limited ground provided under Section 34(2)(b)(ii) i.e. if the award is against the public policy of India. As per the legal position clarified through decisions of this Court prior to the amendments to the 1996 Act in 2015, a violation of Indian public policy, in turn, includes a violation of the fundamental policy of Indian law, a violation of the interest of India, conflict with justice or morality, and the existence of patent illegality in the arbitral award. Additionally, the concept of the fundamental policy of Indian law would cover compliance with statutes and judicial precedents, adopting a judicial approach, compliance with the principles of natural justice, and Wednesbury [Associated Provincial Picture Houses v. Wednesbury Corpn., [1948] 1 K.B. 223 (CA)] reasonableness. Furthermore, patent illegality itself has been held to mean contravention of the substantive law of India, contravention of the 1996 Act, and contravention of the terms of the contract.

12. It is only if one of these conditions is met that the Court may interfere with an arbitral award in terms of Section 34(2) (b)(ii), but such interference does not entail a review of the merits of the dispute, and is limited to situations where the findings of the arbitrator are arbitrary, capricious or perverse, or when the conscience of the Court is shocked, or when the illegality is not trivial but goes to the root of the matter. An arbitral award may not be interfered with if the view taken by the arbitrator is a possible view based on facts. (See Associate Builders v. DDA [Associate Builders v. DDA, (2015) 3 SCC 49 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 204]. Also see ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd. [ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705]; Hindustan Zinc Ltd. v. Friends Coal Carbonisation [Hindustan Zinc Ltd. v. Friends Coal Carbonisation, (2006) 4 SCC 445]; and McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181])

13. It is relevant to note that after the 2015 Amendment to Section 34, the above position stands somewhat modified. Pursuant to the insertion of Explanation 1 to Section 34(2), the scope of contravention of Indian public policy has been modified to the extent that it now means fraud or corruption in the making of the award, violation of Section 75 or Section 81 of the Act, contravention of the fundamental policy of Indian law, and conflict with the most basic notions of justice or morality. Additionally, sub-section (2-A) has been inserted in Section 34, which provides that in case of domestic arbitrations, violation of Indian public policy also includes patent illegality appearing on the face of the award. The proviso to the same states that an award shall not be set aside merely on the ground of an erroneous application of the law or by reappreciation of evidence.

14. As far as interference with an order made under Section 34, as per Section 37, is concerned, it cannot be disputed that such interference under Section 37 cannot travel beyond the restrictions laid down under Section 34. In other words, the court cannot undertake an independent assessment of the merits of the award, and must only ascertain that the exercise of power by the court under Section 34 has not exceeded the scope of the provision. Thus, it is evident that in case an arbitral award has been confirmed by the court under Section 34 and by the court in an appeal under Section 37, this Court must be extremely cautious and slow to disturb such concurrent findings.

15. Having noted the above grounds for interference with an arbitral award, it must now be noted that the instant question pertains to determining whether the arbitral award deals with a dispute not contemplated by or not falling within the terms of the submission to arbitration, or contains decisions on matters beyond the scope of the submission to arbitration. However, this question has been addressed by the courts in terms of the construction of the contract between the parties, and as such it can be safely said that a review of such a construction cannot be made in terms of reassessment of the material on record, but only in terms of the principles governing interference with an award as discussed above.

16. It is equally important to observe at this juncture that while interpreting the terms of a contract, the conduct of parties and correspondences exchanged would also be relevant factors and it is within the arbitrator's jurisdiction to consider the same. [See McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181]; Pure Helium India (P) Ltd. v. ONGC [Pure Helium India (P) Ltd. v. ONGC, (2003) 8 SCC 593] and D.D. Sharma v. Union of India [D.D. Sharma v. Union of India, (2004) 5 SCC 325 : (2005) 123 Comp Cas 135].]"

65. Similarly, the Apex Court in UHL Power Co. Ltd. v. State of H.P., (2022) 4 SCC 116 : (2022) 2 SCC (Civ) 401 has observed as under:

"16. As it is, the jurisdiction conferred on courts under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act is fairly narrow, when it comes to the scope of an appeal under Section 37 of the Arbitration Act, the jurisdiction of an appellate court in examining an order, setting aside or refusing to set aside an award, is all the more circumscribed. In MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd. [MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd., (2019) 4 SCC 163 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 293], the reasons for vesting such a limited jurisdiction on the High Court in exercise of powers under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act have been explained in the following words : (SCC pp. 166-67, para 11)

"11. As far as Section 34 is concerned, the position is well-settled by now that the Court does not sit in appeal over the arbitral award and may interfere on merits on the limited ground provided under Section 34(2)(b)(ii) i.e. if the award is against the public policy of India. As per the legal position clarified through decisions of this Court prior to the amendments to the 1996 Act in 2015, a violation of Indian public policy, in turn, includes a violation of the fundamental policy of Indian law, a violation of the interest of India, conflict with justice or morality, and the existence of patent illegality in the arbitral award. Additionally, the concept of the fundamental policy of Indian law would cover compliance with statutes and judicial precedents, adopting a judicial approach, compliance with the principles of natural justice, and Wednesbury [Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corpn., [1948] 1 K.B. 223 (CA)] reasonableness. Furthermore, patent illegality itself has been held to mean contravention of the substantive law of India, contravention of the 1996 Act, and contravention of the terms of the contract."

17. A similar view, as stated above, has been taken by this Court in K. Sugumar v. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn. Ltd. [K. Sugumar v. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn. Ltd., (2020) 12 SCC 539], wherein it has been observed as follows : (SCC p. 540, para 2)

"2. The contours of the power of the Court under Section 34 of the Act are too well established to require any reiteration. Even a bare reading of Section 34 of the Act indicates the highly constricted power of the civil court to interfere with an arbitral award. The reason for this is obvious. When parties have chosen to avail an alternate mechanism for dispute resolution, they must be left to reconcile themselves to the wisdom of the decision of the arbitrator and the role of the court should be restricted to the bare minimum. Interference will be justified only in cases of commission of misconduct by the arbitrator which can find manifestation in different forms including exercise of legal perversity by the arbitrator."

18. It has also been held time and again by this Court that if there are two plausible interpretations of the terms and conditions of the contract, then no fault can be found, if the learned arbitrator proceeds to accept one interpretation as against the other. In Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd. [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1], the limitations on the Court while exercising powers under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act has been highlighted thus : (SCC p. 12, para 24)

"24. There is no dispute that Section 34 of the Arbitration Act limits a challenge to an award only on the grounds provided therein or as interpreted by various Courts. We need to be cognizant of the fact that arbitral awards should not be interfered with in a casual and cavalier manner, unless the Court comes to a conclusion that the perversity of the award goes to the root of the matter without there being a possibility of alternative interpretation which may sustain the arbitral award. Section 34 is different in its approach and cannot be equated with a normal appellate jurisdiction. The mandate under Section 34 is to respect the finality of the arbitral award and the party autonomy to get their dispute adjudicated by an alternative forum as provided under the law. If the Courts were to interfere with the arbitral award in the usual course on factual aspects, then the commercial wisdom behind opting for alternate dispute resolution would stand frustrated."

19. In Parsa Kente Collieries Ltd. v. Rajasthan Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd. [Parsa Kente Collieries Ltd. v. Rajasthan Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd., (2019) 7 SCC 236 : (2019) 3 SCC (Civ) 552], adverting to the previous decisions of this Court in McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181] and Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Dewan Chand Ram Saran [Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Dewan Chand Ram Saran, (2012) 5 SCC 306 : (2012) 50 VST 443 : (2012) 14 GSTR 291], wherein it has been observed that an Arbitral Tribunal must decide in accordance with the terms of the contract, but if a term of the contract has been construed in a reasonable manner, then the award ought not to be set aside on this ground, it has been held thus : (Parsa Kente Collieries case [Parsa Kente Collieries Ltd. v. Rajasthan Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd., (2019) 7 SCC 236 : (2019) 3 SCC (Civ) 552], SCC pp. 244-45, para 9)

"9.1. It is further observed and held that construction of the terms of a contract is primarily for an arbitrator to decide unless the arbitrator construes the contract in such a way that it could be said to be something that no fair-minded or reasonable person could do. It is further observed by this Court in the aforesaid decision in para 33 that when a court is applying the public policy test to an arbitration award, it does not act as a court of appeal and consequently errors of fact cannot be corrected. A possible view by the arbitrator on facts has necessarily to pass muster as the arbitrator is the ultimate master of the quantity and quality of evidence to be relied upon when he delivers his arbitral award. It is further observed that thus an award based on little evidence or on evidence which does not measure up in quality to a trained legal mind would not be held to be invalid on this score.

9.2. Similar is the view taken by this Court in NHAI v. ITD Cementation India Ltd. [NHAI v. ITD Cementation India Ltd., (2015) 14 SCC 21 : (2016) 2 SCC (Civ) 716], SCC para 25 and SAIL v. Gupta Brother Steel Tubes Ltd. [SAIL v. Gupta Brother Steel Tubes Ltd., (2009) 10 SCC 63 : (2009) 4 SCC (Civ) 16], SCC para 29.

20. In Dyna Technologies [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1], the view taken above has been reiterated in the following words : (SCC p. 12, para 25)

"25. Moreover, umpteen number of judgments of this Court have categorically held that the courts should not interfere with an award merely because an alternative view on facts and interpretation of contract exists. The courts need to be cautious and should defer to the view taken by the Arbitral Tribunal even if the reasoning provided in the award is implied unless such award portrays perversity unpardonable under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act.

21. An identical line of reasoning has been adopted in South East Asia Marine Engg. & Constructions Ltd. (Seamec Ltd.) v. Oil India Ltd. [South East Asia Marine Engg. & Constructions Ltd. (Seamec Ltd.) v. Oil India Ltd., (2020) 5 SCC 164 : (2020) 3 SCC (Civ) 1] and it has been held as follows : (SCC p. 172, paras 12-13)

"12. It is a settled position that a court can set aside the award only on the grounds as provided in the Arbitration Act as interpreted by the courts. Recently, this Court in Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd. [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1] laid down the scope of such interference. This Court observed as follows : (SCC p. 12, para 24)

"24. There is no dispute that Section 34 of the Arbitration Act limits a challenge to an award only on the grounds provided therein or as interpreted by various Courts. We need to be cognizant of the fact that arbitral awards should not be interfered with in a casual and cavalier manner, unless the Court comes to a conclusion that the perversity of the award goes to the root of the matter without there being a possibility of alternative interpretation which may sustain the arbitral award. Section 34 is different in its approach and cannot be equated with a normal appellate jurisdiction. The mandate under Section 34 is to respect the finality of the arbitral award and the party autonomy to get their dispute adjudicated by an alternative forum as provided under the law. If the Courts were to interfere with the arbitral award in the usual course on factual aspects, then the commercial wisdom behind opting for alternate dispute resolution would stand frustrated."

13. It is also settled law that where two views are possible, the Court cannot interfere in the plausible view taken by the arbitrator supported by reasoning. This Court in Dyna Technologies [Dyna Technologies (P) Ltd. v. Crompton Greaves Ltd., (2019) 20 SCC 1] observed as under : (SCC p. 12, para 25)

"25. Moreover, umpteen number of judgments of this Court have categorically held that the Court should not interfere with an award merely because an alternative view on facts and interpretation of contract exists. The Courts need to be cautious and should defer to the view taken by the Arbitral Tribunal even if the reasoning provided in the award is implied unless such award portrays perversity unpardonable under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act."

66. Again, the Apex Court in Batliboi Environmental Engineers Ltd. v. Hindustan Petroleum Corpn. Ltd., (2024) 2 SCC 375 : (2024) 1 SCC (Civ) 182, has held as under:

"32. Post award interference and the extent of the second look by the courts under Section 34 of the A&C Act has been a subject-matter of perennial parley. The foundation of arbitration is party autonomy. Parties have the freedom to enter into an agreement to settle their disputes/claims by an Arbitral Tribunal, whose decision is binding on the parties. [See Vidya Drolia v. Durga Trading Corpn., (2021) 2 SCC 1 : (2021) 1 SCC (Civ) 549, which examines arbitrability and nonarbitrability of subject-matters and claims, which aspect will not be examined in this case.] It is argued that the purpose of arbitration is fast and quick one-stop adjudication as an alternative to court adjudication, and therefore, post award interference by the courts is un-warranted, and an anathema that undermines the fundamental edifice of arbitration, which is consensual and voluntary departure from the right of a party to have its claim or dispute adjudicated by the judiciary. The process is informal, and need not be legalistic [The expression judicially , does not equate arbitration with formal/court proceedings, and would include a just and fair decision.]. Per contra, it is argued that party autonomy should not be treated as an absolute defence, as a party despite agreeing to refer the disputes/claims to a private tribunal consensually, does not barter away the constitutional and basic human right to have a fair and just resolution of the disputes. The court must exercise its powers when the award is unfair, arbitrary, perverse, or otherwise infirm in law. While arbitration is a private form of dispute resolution, the conduct of arbitral proceedings must meet the juristic requirements of due process and procedural fairness and reasonableness, to achieve a judicially sound and objective outcome. If these requirements, which are equally fundamental to all forms of adjudication including arbitration, are not sufficiently accommodated in the arbitral proceedings and the outcome is marred, then the award should invite intervention by the court.

33. To disentangle and balance the competing principles, the degree and scope of intervention of courts when an award is challenged by one or both parties needs to be stated. Reconciliation as a statement of law and in particular application in a particular case has not been an easy exercise. We begin by first referring to the views expressed by this Court in interpreting the width and scope of the post award interference by the courts under Section 34 of the A&C Act.

37. Explanation to sub-clause (ii) to clause (b) to Section 34(2) of the A&C Act, as quoted above and before its substitution by Act 3 of 2016, had postulated and declared for avoidance of doubt that an award is in conflict with the public policy of India , if the making of the award is induced or affected by fraud or corruption, or was in violation of Sections 75 or 81 of the A&C Act. Both Sections 75 and 81 of the A&C Act fall under Part III of the A&C Act, which deal with conciliation proceedings. Section 75 of the A&C Act relates to confidentiality of the settlement proceedings and Section 81 deals with admissibility of evidence in conciliation proceedings. Suffice it is to note at this stage that while fraud and corruption are two specific grounds under public policy , these are not the sole and only grounds on which an award can be set aside on the ground of public policy ."

38. Act 3 of 2016 with retrospective effect from 23-10-2015 has substituted the Explanation referred to above, by two new Explanations that are differently worded. [Explanations 1 and 2 to sub-clause (ii) to clause (b) of Section 34(2) of the A&C Act suIn cases where the error cannot be corrected within the aforesaid guardrails and if it would require a review on merits or re-adjudication, the court must refrain from modifying the award and where permissible in law, remand the matter to the Arbitral Tribunal instituted vide Act 3 of 2016 read as under: Explanation 1. For the avoidance of any doubt, it is clarified that an award is in conflict with the public policy of India, only if (i) the making of the award was induced or affected by fraud or corruption or was in violation of Section 75 or Section 81; or(ii) it is in contravention with the fundamental policy of Indian law; or(iii) it is in conflict with the most basic notions of morality or justice. Explanation 2. For the avoidance of doubt, the test as to whether there is a contravention with the fundamental policy of Indian law shall not entail a review on the merits of the dispute. Sub-section (2-A) of Section 34 of the A&C Act inserted vide Act 3 of 2016 reads as under: 34. (2-A) An arbitral award arising out of arbitrations other than international commercial arbitrations, may also be set aside by the court, if the court finds that the award is vitiated by patent illegality appearing on the face of the award : Provided that an award shall not be set aside merely on the ground of an erroneous application of the law or by reappreciation of evidence.] Sub-section (2-A) to Section 34 of the A&C Act, which was instituted by Act 3 of 2016 with retrospective effect from 23-10-2015, states that the arbitral award arising out of arbitrations other than international commercial arbitrations can be set aside by the court, if it is vitiated by patent illegality appearing on the face of the award. The proviso to sub-section (2-A) to Section 34 of the A&C Act also states that the award shall not be set aside merely on the ground of erroneous application of law or by reappreciation of evidence. The aforesaid sub-section need not be examined in the facts of the present case, as we are not required to interpret and apply the substituted Explanations to sub-clause (ii) to clause (b) to Section 34(2) of the A&C Act in the present case.

39. The expression public policy under Section 34 of the A&C Act is capable of both wide and narrow interpretation. Taking a broader interpretation, this Court in ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd. [ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705] (for short Saw Pipes), held that the legislative intent was not to uphold an award if it is in contravention of provisions of an enactment, since it would be contrary to the basic concept of justice. The concept of public policy connotes a matter which concerns public good and public interest. An award which is patently in violation of statutory provisions cannot be held to be in public interest. Thus, expanding on the scope and expanse of the jurisdiction of the court under Section 34 of the A&C Act, it was held that an award can be set aside if it is contrary to:

(a) fundamental policy of Indian law; or

(b) the interest of India; or

(c) justice or morality, or

(d) in addition, if it is patently illegal.

40. Nevertheless, the decision in Saw Pipes case [ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705] holds that mere error of fact or law in reaching the conclusion on the disputed question will not give jurisdiction to the court to interfere. However, this will depend on three aspects:

(a) whether the reference was made in general terms for deciding the contractual dispute, in which case the award can be set aside if the award is based upon erroneous legal position;

(b) this proposition will also hold good in case of a reasoned award, which on the face of it is erroneous on the legal proposition of law and/or its application; and

(c) where a specific question of law is submitted to an arbitrator, erroneous decision on the point of law does not make the award bad, unless the court is satisfied that arbitrator had proceeded illegally.

In Saw Pipes case [ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705], the Court set aside the award on the ground that the award had not taken into consideration the terms of the contract before arriving at the conclusion as to whether the party claiming the damages is entitled to the same. Reference was made to the provisions of Sections 73 and 74 of the Contract Act, which relate to liquidated damages, general damages and penalty stipulations. This view had held the field for a long time and was applied in subsequent judgments of this Court in Hindustan Zinc Ltd. v. Friends Coal Carbonisation [Hindustan Zinc Ltd. v. Friends Coal Carbonisation, (2006) 4 SCC 445], Centrotrade Minerals & Metals Inc. v. Hindustan Copper Ltd. [Centrotrade Minerals & Metals Inc. v. Hindustan Copper Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 245], DDA v. R.S. Sharma & Co. [DDA v.

R.S. Sharma & Co., (2008) 13 SCC 80], J.G. Engineers (P) Ltd. v. Union of India [J.G. Engineers (P) Ltd. v. Union of India, (2011) 5 SCC 758 : (2011) 3 SCC (Civ) 128], and Union of India v. L.S.N. Murthy [Union of India v. L.S.N. Murthy, (2012) 1 SCC 718 : (2012) 1 SCC (Civ) 368].

41. In 2006, this Court in McDermott International Inc. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181] despite following the ratio of Saw Pipes [ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705], made succinct observations regarding the restrictive role of courts in the post-award interference. In addition to the three grounds introduced in Renusagar Power Co. Ltd. v. General Electric Co. [Renusagar Power Co. Ltd. v. General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644 : (1994) 81 Comp Cas 171], as noticed above, an additional ground of patent illegality was introduced in Saw Pipes Limited, for exercise of the court's jurisdiction in setting aside an arbitral award. This Court, in McDermott International Inc. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181], held that patent illegality, must be such which goes to the root of the matter. The public policy violation should be so unfair and unreasonable as to shock the conscience of the court. Arbitrator where s/he acts contrary to or beyond the express law of contract or grants relief, such awards fall within the purview of Section 34 of the A&C Act. Further, what would constitute public policy is a matter dependent upon the nature of transaction and the statute. Pleadings of the party and material brought before the Court would be relevant to enable the Court to judge what is in public good or public interest, or what would otherwise be injurious to public good and interest at a relevant point. So, this must be distinguished from public policy of a particular government.

42. A similar view was expressed in Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Dewan Chand Ram Saran [Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Dewan Chand Ram Saran, (2012) 5 SCC 306 : (2012) 50 VST 443 : (2012) 14 GSTR 291] with the clarification that where a term of the contract is capable of two interpretations and the view taken by the arbitrator is a plausible one, it cannot be said that the arbitrator travelled outside the jurisdiction or the view taken the arbitrator is against the terms of the contract. The Court cannot interfere with the award and substitute its view with the award and interpretation accepted by the arbitrator, the reason being the Court does not sit in appeal over the findings and decision of the arbitrator, while deciding an application under Section 34 of the A&C Act. The arbitrator is legitimately entitled to take a view after considering the material before him/her and interpret the agreement. The judgment should be accepted as final and binding.

43. Subsequently, in ONGC Ltd. v. Western Geco International Ltd. [ONGC Ltd. v. Western Geco International Ltd., (2014) 9 SCC 263 : (2014) 5 SCC (Civ) 12] (for short Western Geco), a three-Judge Bench of this Court observed that the Court, in Saw Pipes [ONGC Ltd. v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705], did not examine what would constitute fundamental policy of Indian law . The expression fundamental policy of Indian law in the opinion of this Court includes all fundamental principles providing as basis for administration of justice and enforcement of law in this country. There were three distinct and fundamental juristic principles which form a part and parcel of fundamental policy of Indian law . The first and the foremost principle is that in every determination by a court or an authority that affects rights of a citizen or leads to civil consequences, the court or authority must adopt a judicial approach. Fidelity to judicial approach entails that the court or authority should not act in an arbitrary, capricious or whimsical manner. The court or authority should act in a bona fide manner and deal with the subject in a fair, reasonable and objective manner. Decision should not be actuated by extraneous considerations. Secondly, the principles of natural justice should be followed. This would include the requirement that the Arbitral Tribunal must apply its mind to the attending facts and circumstances while taking the view one way or the other. Non-application of mind is a defect that is fatal to any adjudication. Application of mind is best done by recording reasons in support of the decision. As noticed above, Section 31(3)(a) of the

A&C Act [31. Form and contents of arbitral award. (1)-(2) * * *(3) The arbitral award shall state the reasons upon which it is based, unless (a) the parties have agreed that no reasons are to be given, or(b) the award is an arbitral award on agreed terms under Section 30] states that the arbitral award shall state the reasons on which it is based, unless the parties have agreed that no reasons are to be given. Sub-clauses (i) and (iii) to Section 34(2) also refer to different facets of natural justice. In a given case sub-clause to Section 34(2) and sub-clause (ii) to clause (b) to Section 34(2) may equally apply. Lastly, is the need to ensure that the decision is not perverse or irrational that no reasonable person would have arrived at the same or be sustained in a court of law. Perversity or irrationality of a decision is tested on the touchstone of Wednesbury principle of reasonableness [As expounded in Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corpn., [1948] 1 K.B. 223 (CA).]. At the same time, it was cautioned that this Court was not attempting an exhaustive enumeration of what would constitute fundamental policy of Indian law , as a straightjacket definition is not possible. If on facts proved before them, the arbitrators fail to draw an inference which ought to have been drawn or if they have drawn an inference which on the face of it, is untenable resulting in injustice, the adjudication made by an Arbitral Tribunal that enjoys considerable latitude and play at the joints in making awards, may be challenged and set aside.

44. The decision of this Court in Associate Builders [Associate Builders v. DDA, (2015) 3 SCC 49 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 204] elaborately examined the question of public policy in the context of Section 34 of the A&C Act, specifically under the head fundamental policy of Indian law . It was firstly held that the principle of judicial approach demands a decision to be fair, reasonable and objective. On the obverse side, anything arbitrary and whimsical would not satisfy the said requirement.

45. Referring to the third principle in Western Geco [ONGC Ltd. v. Western Geco International Ltd., (2014) 9 SCC 263 : (2014) 5 SCC (Civ) 12], it was explained that the decision would be irrational and perverse if (a) it is based on no evidence; (b) if the Arbitral Tribunal takes into account something irrelevant to the decision which it arrives at; or (c) ignores vital evidence in arriving at its decision. The standards prescribed in State of Haryana v. Gopi Nath & Sons [State of Haryana v. Gopi Nath & Sons, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 312 : (1990) 77 STC 1] (for short Gopi Nath & Sons) and Kuldeep Singh v. Delhi Police [Kuldeep Singh v. Delhi Police, (1999) 2 SCC 10 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 429] should be applied and relied upon, as good working tests of perversity. In Gopi Nath & Sons [State of Haryana v. Gopi Nath & Sons, 1992 Supp (2) SCC 312 : (1990) 77 STC 1] it has been held that apart from the cases where a finding of fact is arrived at by ignoring or excluding relevant materials or taking into consideration irrelevant material, the finding is perverse and infirm in law when it outrageously defies logic as to suffer from vice of irrationality. Kuldeep Singh [Kuldeep Singh v. Delhi Police, (1999) 2 SCC 10 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 429] clarifies that a finding is perverse when it is based on no evidence or evidence which is thoroughly unreliable and no reasonable person would act upon it. If there is some evidence which can be acted and can be relied upon, however compendious it may be, the conclusion should not be treated as perverse. This Court in Associate Builders [Associate Builders v. DDA, (2015) 3 SCC 49 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 204] emphasised that the public policy test to an arbitral award does not give jurisdiction to the court to act as a court of appeal and consequently errors of fact cannot be corrected. Arbitral Tribunal is the ultimate master of quality and quantity of evidence. An award based on little evidence or no evidence, which does not measure up in quality to a trained legal mind would not be held to be invalid on this score. Every arbitrator need not necessarily be a person trained in law as a Judge. At times, decisions are taken acting on equity and such decisions can be just and fair should not be overturned under Section 34 of the A&C Act on the ground that the arbitrator's approach was arbitrary or capricious. Referring to the third ground of public policy, justice or morality, it is observed that these are two different concepts. An award is against justice when it shocks the conscience of the court, as in an example where the claimant has restricted his claim but the Arbitral Tribunal has awarded a higher amount without any reasonable ground of justification. Morality would necessarily cover agreements that are illegal and also those which cannot be enforced given the prevailing mores of the day. Here again interference would be only if something shocks the court's conscience. Further, patent illegality refers to three sub-heads : (a) contravention of substantive law of India, which must be restricted and limited such that the illegality must go to the root of the matter and should not be of a trivial nature. Reference in this regard was made to clause (a) to Section 28(1) of the A&C Act, which states that the dispute submitted to arbitration under Part I shall be in accordance with the substantive law for the time being in force. The second sub-head would be when the arbitrator gives no reasons in the award in contravention with Section 31(3) of the A&C Act. The third sub-head deals with contravention of Section 28(3) of the A&C Act which states that the Arbitral Tribunal shall decide all cases in accordance with the terms of the contract and shall take into account the usage of the trade applicable to the transaction. This last sub-head should be understood with a caveat that the arbitrator has the right to construe and interpret the terms of the contract in a reasonable manner. Such interpretation should not be a ground to set aside the award, as the construction of the terms of the contract is finally for the arbitrator to decide. The award can be only set aside under this sub-head if the arbitrator construes the award in a way that no fair-minded or reasonable person would do."

67. Recently, the Apex Court in AC Chokshi Share Broker (P) Ltd. v. Jatin Pratap Desai, (2025) 5 SCC 321 has held as under:

"29. The limited supervisory role of courts while reviewing an arbitral award is stipulated in Section 34 of the Act, beyond whose grounds courts cannot intervene and cannot correct errors in the arbitral award. [McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181, para 52] The appellate jurisdiction under Section 37 is also limited, as it is constrained by the grounds specified in Section 34 and the court cannot undertake an independent assessment of the merits of the award by reappreciating evidence or interfering with a reasonable interpretation of contractual terms by the Arbitral Tribunal. [MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd., (2019) 4 SCC 163 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 293, para 14; Konkan Railway Corpn. Ltd. v. Chenab Bridge Project, (2023) 9 SCC 85, para 25] The court under Section 37 must only determine whether the Section 34 court has exercised its jurisdiction properly and rightly, without exceeding its scope. [MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd., (2019) 4 SCC 163 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 293, para 14 : ; Bombay Slum Redevelopment Corpn. (P) Ltd. v. Samir Narain Bhojwani, (2024) 7 SCC 218, para 26.]

31. The term public policy in Section 34(2)(b)(ii) has been interpreted by this Court as meaning (a) the fundamental policy of Indian law, or (b) the interest of India, or (c) justice or morality. [Renusagar Power Co. Ltd. v. General Electric Co., 1994 Supp (1) SCC 644 : (1994) 81 Comp Cas 171, para 66] In ONGC v. Saw Pipes Ltd. [ONGC v. Saw Pipes, (2003) 5 SCC 705], this Court further held that an arbitral award can be set aside as being contrary to public policy if it is patently illegal. The illegality must go to the root of the matter and must be so unfair and unreasonable that it shocks the court's conscience; it cannot be of a trivial nature. [Id, para 31; McDermott International Inc. v. Burn Standard Co. Ltd., (2006) 11 SCC 181, para 59.] Such patent illegality includes a situation where the award is in contravention with substantive law. [ONGC v. Saw Pipes Ltd., (2003) 5 SCC 705, para 54; Associate Builders v. DDA, (2015) 3 SCC 49 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 204, para 42.1]

32. Further, an award can be set aside as being opposed to the fundamental policy of India if it is perverse, [ONGC v. Western Geco International Ltd., (2014) 9 SCC 263 : (2014) 5 SCC (Civ) 12, para 39] i.e. the finding is not based on evidence, or the Arbitral Tribunal takes something irrelevant into account, or ignores vital evidence. [Associate Builders v. DDA, (2015) 3 SCC 49, paras 32-33 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 204, para 31] However, an award is not perverse if the finding of fact is a possible view that is based on some reliable evidence. [Kuldeep Singh v. Delhi Police, (1999) 2 SCC 10 : 1999 SCC (L&S) 429, para 10 : as cited in Associate Builders v. DDA, (2015) 3 SCC 49 : (2015) 2 SCC (Civ) 204.]"

106. Recently, the Apex Court in Jan De Nul Dredging India (P) Ltd. v. Tuticorin Port Trust : (2026) 3 SCC 186 noticed the scope of the appeal under Section 37 of the Act of 1996 and in paragraphs 35 to 37 held as under:-

"35. The gist of the aforesaid decisions is that the jurisdiction of the court under Section 37 of the Act is akin to the jurisdiction of the court under Section 34 of the Act, and, therefore, the scope of interference by the court in appeal under Section 37 cannot go beyond the grounds on which challenge can be made to the award under Section 34 of the Act. Moreover, the courts exercising powers under Sections 34 and 37, do not act as a normal court, and therefore, ought not to interfere with the arbitral award on a mere possibility of an alternative view.

36. In other words, the scope of interference of the court with the arbitral matters is virtually prohibited, if not absolutely barred. The powers of the appellate court are even more restricted than the powers conferred by Section 34 of the Act. The appellate power under Section 37 of the Act is exercisable only to find out if the court exercising power under Section 34 of the Act, has acted within its limits as prescribed thereunder or has exceeded or failed to exercise the power so conferred. The appellate court exercising powers under Section 37 of the Act has no authority of law to consider the matter in dispute before the Arbitral Tribunal on merits so as to hold as to whether the award of the Arbitral Tribunal is right or wrong. The appellate court in exercise of such power cannot sit as an ordinary court of appeal and reappraise the evidence to record a contrary finding. The award of the Arbitral Tribunal cannot be touched by the court unless it is contrary to the substantive provision of law or any provision of the Act or the terms of the agreement.

37. Undoubtedly, in the case at hand, the award of the Arbitral Tribunal is not contrary to any substantive provision of law or any provision of the Act. Yet, it has been disturbed by the appellate court, apparently by giving a different interpretation of the clauses of the licence agreement which jurisdiction was not vested in it. Ordinarily, the interpretation given by the Arbitral Tribunal, as affirmed by the court in exercise of powers under Section 34 of the Act ought to have been accepted."

107. In light of the detailed discussions held hereinabove where the findings of the Sole Arbitrator on issues nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 have been found to be vulnerable then the next delicate question that arises before the Court is, as to whether the entire award should be set aside or certain part of the award can be severed and saved by dissecting it from the offending portion. This specific question was referred to a Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court and in Gayatri Balasamy v. ISG Novasoft Technologies Ltd. : (2025) 7 SCC 1, the Apex Court after considering the provisions of the Act and the law held that the Courts do possess limited powers under the Act of 1996 to modify the award by applying the doctrine of severability in limited circumstances.

108. What would be the limited scope and circumstances was explained in the majority judgment in Gayatri Balasamy (supra). The propositions and guidelines laid down by the Apex Court can be summarized as under:-

(i) Only severable awards are amenable to modification;

A composite or indivisible arbitral award cannot be modified. Modification is permissible only where the claims, or parts of the award, are legally and pragmatically severable from the valid portion. In such cases, the court may sever the invalid part while preserving the remainder of the award. This constitutes one of the essential guardrails laid down by the Supreme Court for the exercise of the limited power to modify an arbitral award;

(ii) The error sought to be corrected must be patent and apparent on the face of the record;

The Supreme Court has clarified that modification is confined to the correction of obvious and self-evident errors, such as clerical, computational, or typographical mistakes. Modification is permissible only where the court has no uncertainty or doubt as to the correction; if the alleged error is debatable or not apparent on the face of the record, the court lacks jurisdiction to modify the award;

(iii) Modification is permissible for correcting or adjusting post-award interest;

Courts may modify an arbitral award where such modification is confined to the correction or adjustment of post-award interest, without disturbing the substantive findings of the Arbitral Tribunal;

(iv) Where modification is impermissible, the matter must be remanded;

In cases where the error cannot be corrected within the aforesaid guardrails and if it would require a review on merits or re-adjudication, the court must refrain from modifying the award and where permissible in law, remand the matter to the Arbitral Tribunal.

109. Testing the award dated 27.01.2024 on the anvil of the postulates, as noticed above, which have been culled out from the decision of the Apex Court in Gayatri Balasamy (Supra), it would reveal that the Sole Arbitrator has dominantly granted a sum of Rs. 11,35,80,273/- relating to different facets of payments relating to the GST and also included 15% penalty and 18% interest which is part covered by issues nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 whereas the minuscule amount of Rs. 66,500/- has been awarded in favour of the respondent which was the appellant s share of fee payable to the DRE and is part of issue no. 10,

110. Hence, applying the principles as noticed above, this Court is of the clear view that the findings recorded on issues nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 cannot be sustained. The award made in respect of a sum of Rs. 66,500/- along with interest at the rate of 9% per annum from the date of the award till the date of its actual payment emerging from issue no. 10 and the finding given on issue no. 1 which is based on the consensus of the parties, can be clearly severed and protected; hence, it is so done.

111. Thus, in view of the above detailed discussions, the instant appeal deserves to be partly allowed. The judgment of the Commercial Court-I, Lucknow dated 18.07.2025 passed in Arbitration Case No. 25 of 2024 is set aside. The award of the Sole Arbitrator dated 27.01.2024 shall stand partly modified to the extent that the findings on issue nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 shall stand set aside and would be severed from the award and the remaining portion relating to issues no. 1 and 10 shall remain intact and protected. The claim relating to grant of Rs. 66,500/- under issue no. 10 is saved as also the finding on issue no. 1, which is based on consensus. The remaining portion of the award relating to the issues nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 shall be re-adjudicated and for that purpose, the matter is remitted to the Arbitral Tribunal, to be constituted as per law, who would decide the issues nos. 2 to 4 and 8 to 9 afresh in light of the observations made by this Court hereinabove. Resultantly, the appeal is partly allowed in the aforesaid terms. The parties will bear their own costs.

Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 1443 of 2026

Haji Iqbal @ Bala ...Petitioner(s)
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondent(s)

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether a First Information Report registered under the Indian Penal Code against the petitioner is liable to be quashed on the ground that it amounts to a second investigation into facts already investigated by the Serious Fraud Investigation Office, culminating in a complaint pending before the Special Court?

(ii) Whether, where the transaction of the complainant does not form part of the SFIO complaint but is part of the same scheme of fraud already under SFIO examination, the High Court, while declining to quash the FIR, can transfer the investigation qua the petitioner to the SFIO though such relief was not prayed for?

Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 --- S. 528 --- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 482 --- Inherent power of High Court --- Quashing of FIR --- Scope and parameters.

HELD: Section 528 of the BNSS is not the source of the inherent power of the High Court but merely a statutory recognition of it; the three purposes mentioned therein are illustrative of the breadth of the power and not a straitjacket. The power to quash an FIR, though wide in amplitude, is to be exercised with restraint; quashing is the exception and not the rule. The court does not assess the reliability or genuineness of the allegations, weigh the evidence or conduct a mini-trial, its inquiry being confined to whether, on a plain reading of the FIR, the allegations disclose a cognizable offence. Where the allegations are specific, the offences cognizable and the accusations not inherently improbable, the criminal process must ordinarily be permitted to run its course. [Paras 19-25]

Companies Act, 2013 --- S. 212(2), (15), (17) --- Serious Fraud Investigation Office --- Assignment of investigation --- Effect on other investigating agencies.

HELD: Where the Central Government assigns investigation to the SFIO, no other investigating agency shall proceed further and all relevant documents stand transferred; upon such assignment the original agencies are completely divested of jurisdiction and the transfer is irrevocable. The SFIO's jurisdiction is not confined to violations under the Companies Act and extends to all offences arising from the transaction, including those under the IPC. Under Section 212(15), the SFIO's investigation report is deemed to be a police report under Section 173 CrPC, and the SFIO stands in the shoes of a police officer for all purposes of trial. Section 212(17) provides for inter-agency sharing of information and does not preserve any concurrent right of investigation by other agencies. [Paras 41-45]

Indian Penal Code, 1860 --- Ss. 406, 420, 120-B --- Quashing of FIR --- Overlap with pending SFIO complaint --- Same companies, same modus operandi and substantially same penal provisions --- Complainant's transaction not examined in SFIO complaint --- Quashing declined.

HELD: The FIR names the petitioner in connection with the same companies and the same alleged modus operandi that form the subject matter of the SFIO complaint, in which the petitioner is arrayed as Accused No. 1 and each company in the chain identified in the FIR is already an accused entity; the offences invoked are, to a substantial extent, those already charged in the SFIO complaint. However, the SFIO complaint does not specifically examine the transaction of the complainant in respect of Plot GH-02-D, and the FIR is the only proceeding that seeks to bring that transaction within the ambit of criminal inquiry. The allegations in the FIR, taken at face value, disclose cognizable offences under Sections 406, 420 and 120-B IPC; the transaction is specific, the amount ascertainable and the complainant identifiable, and quashing the FIR would leave the complainant remediless. Ashish Bhalla v. State distinguished, as there the complainant before the SFIO and the EOW was the same person and the two complaints were verbatim copies. [Paras 26-39, 46-53]

Constitution of India --- Art. 226 --- Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 --- S. 193(9) --- Transfer of investigation to SFIO qua petitioner --- Relief not prayed for --- Further investigation --- No fresh sanction required.

HELD: Though the power to transfer investigation is extraordinary and to be exercised sparingly, where the same scheme of fraud is already under investigation by a specialised agency, entrusting one strand of it to a general law enforcement agency does not serve the interests of either party; transfer to the SFIO reconciles the complainant's right to an effective remedy with the prevention of multiplicity of proceedings, preserves the integrity of the broader inquiry and avoids the risk of conflicting outcomes. Completion of investigation by the SFIO and cognizance by the Special Judge does not exhaust the agency's investigative mandate, as Section 193(9) BNSS permits further investigation. The jurisdiction under Article 226 is not limited to the prayer as framed. Since the SFIO's investigation against the petitioner was already sanctioned pursuant to orders of the Supreme Court, the order of transfer does not constitute a fresh assignment under Section 212(1) of the Companies Act but merely extends the scope of an ongoing inquiry, and no fresh sanction is required. [Paras 54-62]

Writ petition disposed of; prayer for quashing of FIR rejected; investigation qua petitioner transferred to SFIO, with liberty to file supplementary complaint under Section 212(15) of the Companies Act, 2013. Interim orders vacated. (E-14)

1. The instant petition has been filed inter alia seeking quashing of a First Information Report bearing Case Crime No. 421/2024 lodged under Section 406, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B, 506 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC hereinafter) at Police Station Ecotech-IIIrd, District Gautam Buddh Nagar ('Impugned FIR' hereinafter).

Brief Facts

2. The brief factual matrix relevant for adjudication of the instant petition is as follows:

2.1 The petitioner is a former Member of the Legislative Council ('MLC' hereinafter) from the State of Uttar Pradesh and is stated to be presently residing abroad. He is also the Chancellor of Glocal University, Saharanpur. The dispute giving rise to the Impugned FIR has its origins in a series of financial transactions involving real estate development in Greater Noida.

2.2 In the year 2014, one Naved Ahmad (Complainant hereinafter) entered into negotiations with representatives of M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. regarding the development of Plot No. GH-02-D, Sector-12, Greater Noida, measuring 12,500 sq. metres, which had been allotted by the Greater Noida Industrial Development Authority.

2.3 As per material on record, between 01.12.2013 and 04.03.2014, the Complainant transferred a total sum of INR 6,33,00,000/- to M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. A development agreement was subsequently executed on 01.10.2014 between the Complainant and Vinod Kumar, the Authorised Signatory of M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd.

2.4 Notably, no construction activity was undertaken on the plot thereafter. The company also failed to keep up with installment payments due to the Greater Noida Authority. Consequently, vide letter dated 23.08.2022, the Greater Noida Authority cancelled the allotment of the said plot, citing outstanding dues of INR 29,30,05,883/- against which only INR 4,49,42,881/- had been paid.

2.5 In the interregnum, an NGO named Save India had filed W.P.(C) No. 818/2015 before the Hon ble Supreme Court, thereby raising concerns about alleged financial irregularities and shell company operations linked to the petitioner. The Hon ble Supreme Court, thereafter, directed the Ministry of Corporate Affairs to grant sanction for directing the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO hereinafter) to investigate the affairs related to the petitioner herein.

2.6 SFIO, upon conclusion of its investigation, filed Complaint No. 720/2017 under the Companies Act, 2013 (Act hereinafter), before the Special Judge, Dwarka Court, New Delhi. The complaint examined, inter alia, the roles of M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. and Mastiff India Pvt. Ltd. A summoning order was passed against the petitioner and other co-accused.

2.7 The said summoning order was challenged before this Court in Applications U/s 482 Nos. 18806 and 20317 of 2019. Vide orders dated 10.05.2019 and 29.05.2019, the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court afforded the applicants an opportunity to seek discharge before the learned Trial Court. The discharge applications so filed remain pending as of the date of institution of the present petition.

2.8 In May 2022, the Ministry of Home Affairs issued a Lookout Circular (LoC hereinafter) against the petitioner. He was also named in Case Crime No. 83/2022 under Sections 2/3 of the U.P. Gangsters Act, 1986 (Gangster Act hereinafter), at Police Station Mirzapur, Saharanpur. Since the petitioner was abroad, proceedings under Section 82 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (CrPC hereinafter) were also initiated against him in the above-mentioned case.

2.9 Pursuant thereto, the petitioner s passport was impounded by the Passport Office, Ghaziabad, on 30.01.2023, and his challenge to the same remains pending before the Delhi High Court. During this period, the Hon ble Supreme Court, in connected proceedings, directed that no coercive steps be taken against the petitioner and permitted him to participate in investigations through Video Conferencing. The order dated 09.02.2024 passed by the Hon ble Supreme Court in SLP(Crl.) No.5535/2023 read as under:

"1. Mr. Sidhartha Dave, learned senior counsel appearing for the applicant submits that in pursuant to order passed by this Court dated 30th January, 2024, the applicant will not be in a position to attend Investigating Officer physically, inasmuch as he does not have a valid passport.

2. It is further submitted that the order challenging cancellation of passport is under challenge.

3. We, therefore, grant liberty to the applicant to join the investigation through video-conferencing.

4.The application is, accordingly, disposed of"

2.10 On 04.09.2023, the Complainant filed a formal complaint with the police authorities. A preliminary inquiry was conducted by the STF Gautam Buddh Nagar, following which the Impugned FIR was registered.

2.11 Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner has approached this Court seeking quashing of the Impugned FIR and all proceedings arising therefrom.

(On behalf of the Petitioner)

3. Mr. G.S. Chaturvedi, learned senior counsel, Ms. Somya Chaturvedi, learned Advocate appearing on behalf of the petitioner, submitted that the Impugned FIR is nothing but a reiteration of the very allegations which have already been investigated by the SFIO, a specialised statutory agency, acting under the express directions of the Supreme Court of India, culminating in a complaint already pending before the appropriate Court.

4. It is submitted that the SFIO complaint specifically examines the role of the petitioner and the companies associated with him, including M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. and M/s Mastiff India Pvt. Ltd., in paragraphs 24 and 100 to 122 thereof. The Impugned FIR is, therefore, a second investigation into the same set of facts, which is impermissible in law.

5. It is submitted that the petitioner held no post or shareholding in M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. The transactions in the Impugned FIR were entered into solely between the Complainant and the company s authorised signatory, Vinod Kumar. No specific overt act, independent of the company s actions, has been attributed to the petitioner anywhere in the FIR.

6. It is submitted that the substratum of the complaint is, at best, non-performance of a development agreement, which is a dispute of a civil nature. There is no material on record to suggest any fraudulent or dishonest intent on the part of the petitioner at the inception of the transaction.

7. The learned senior counsel also urged that pursuant to liberty granted by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court in another petition, the petitioner has filed the discharge application before the learned Trial Court in the SFIO complaint, which remains pending to date. Therefore, the registration of a fresh FIR on overlapping facts amounts to a clear abuse of the process of law.

8. It is further submitted that the FIR makes sweeping and omnibus references to several shell companies, benami properties, and money laundering, without directly attributing any specific transaction, date, or document to the petitioner. Such general and vague allegations, bereft of material particulars, are wholly insufficient to sustain criminal proceedings.

9. The learned counsel also apprised this Court about the liberty granted to the petitioner by the Hon ble Supreme Court to cooperate with investigations through Video Conferencing, recognising his inability to be physically present in India.

10. Lastly, it is submitted that any coercive action against the petitioner in these circumstances is wholly disproportionate and runs contrary to the spirit of those directions and therefore, the Impugned FIR deserves to be quashed in its entirety qua the petitioner.

(On behalf of the Respondent)

11. Per Contra, Mr. Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General (AAG), appearing on behalf of the State, submitted that the petitioner is not an ordinary accused but a former legislator who has been absconding abroad for a considerable period of time, and is actively monitoring and operating a syndicate of white-collar crimes from abroad.

12. The learned AAG submitted that the SFIO investigation and the Impugned FIR are distinct in nature and cannot be treated as investigations into the same subject matter. The SFIO, as a specialised agency under the Act, investigates corporate fraud and violations of company law, whereas the Impugned FIR has been registered under the IPC for criminal offences committed against private individuals who were defrauded of their hard-earned money.

13. It is submitted that the Impugned FIR is founded on the complaint of Naved Ahmad, who transferred INR 6,33,00,000/- to M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. on the basis of representations made by the petitioner s associates. The investigation reveals that neither was any construction ever intended nor were the instalment dues paid to the Greater Noida Authority, establishing dishonest intent at the very inception of the transaction.

14. It is further submitted that the offence in question is in the nature of a continuing offence, having commenced with the collection of funds from the Complainant in 2013-14 and having continued across different time periods with various investors, the last known transaction being as recent as 2022. The investigation is therefore at a nascent stage, and no interference is warranted at this juncture.

15. It is submitted that an absconding accused who has wilfully chosen not to return to India and has not cooperated with the investigating agency despite repeated opportunities, is not entitled to the discretionary relief of stay of arrest from this Court. Granting such relief would seriously prejudice the ongoing investigation and the victims interests.

16. It is, therefore, submitted that the petition is devoid of merit and deserves to be dismissed with costs.

Analysis and conclusion

17. Heard the learned senior counsel for the parties and perused the material placed on record.

18. The crux of the arguments vehemently contended by the learned senior counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner is that the Impugned FIR constitutes nothing more than a second investigation into facts already comprehensively examined by the SFIO under the directions of the Supreme Court, and that no specific overt act has been attributed to the petitioner in the FIR to sustain criminal proceedings against him.

19. Before delving into the question at hand, this Court deems it imperative to reiterate the powers granted to the High Courts under Section 528 Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (BNSS hereinafter). The said provision reads as follows:

Section 528: Nothing in this Sanhita shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Sanhita, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice.

20. A bare perusal of the provision reveals that it is not the source of the High Court s inherent power but merely a statutory recognition of it. The words " nothing in this Sanhita shall be deemed to limit or affect" are instructive in this regard. By employing such a formulation, the legislature has ensured that the codification of criminal procedure does not, even inadvertently, displace a power that is inseparable from the constitutional position of the High Court as a Court of record.

21. It is equally noteworthy that the provision does not prescribe any exhaustive enumeration of circumstances in which the inherent power may be exercised. The three purposes, namely giving effect to orders under the BNSS, preventing abuse of process, and securing the ends of justice, are illustrative of the breadth of the power and not a strait-jacket that confines its exercise. The ends of justice and abuse of process, in particular, are expressions of wide amplitude, and their content must necessarily be determined by the facts of each case.

22. The parameters governing the exercise of this power to quash an FIR, which was formerly codified under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (CrPC hereinafter)and now finds statutory recognition in Section 528 of the BNSS, have been settled through a catena of decisions. In Ashok Kumar Jain v. State of Gujarat, the Hon ble Supreme Court consolidated the legal position as follows:

8.1. State of Odisha v. Pratima Mohanty

As per the settled proposition of law, while examining an FIR/complaint, quashing of which is sought, the court cannot embark upon any enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness of allegations made in the FIR/complaint. Quashing a complaint/FIR should be an exception rather than any ordinary rule. Normally, the criminal proceedings should not be quashed in exercise of powers under section 482 of the Code when, after a thorough investigation, the charge-sheet has been filed. At the stage of discharge and/or considering the application under section 482 of the Code, the courts are not required to go into the merits of the allegations and/or evidence in detail as if conducting a mini-trial. As held by this Court, the powers under this section are very wide, but the conferment of wide power requires the court to be more cautious. It casts an onerous and more diligent duty on the Court.

8.2. Kaptan Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh

The inherent jurisdiction under section 482 of the Code, though wide, is to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution, only when such exercise is justified by tests specifically laid down in the section itself. Further, the appreciation of evidence is not permissible at this stage.

8.3. Pratibha v. Rameshwari Devi

It is not open to the High Court to rely on the report of the investigating agency, nor can it direct the report to be submitted before it as the law is very clear that the report of the investigating agency may be accepted by the Magistrate, or the Magistrate may reject the same on consideration of the material on record. Such being the position, the report of the investigating agency cannot be relied on by the High Court while exercising powers under section 482 of the Code."

23. In Anukul Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh, the Hon ble Supreme Court restated the illustrative categories laid down in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal3 in which the exercise of the power to quash is justified, and distilled the cumulative principles governing the exercise of the jurisdiction in the following terms:

"11.1. This Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal, at paragraph 102, laid down illustrative categories where quashing of proceedings is justified. These are:

"(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the Act concerned (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or, where there is a specific provision in the Code or the Act concerned, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge. The categories in Bhajan Lal are illustrative and not exhaustive, but they provide guiding principles to balance two competing considerations - (a) preventing abuse of process of law, and (b) ensuring that criminal proceedings are not stifled at the threshold on disputed questions of fact.

11.2. Equally, this Court has consistently cautioned that the High Court, while exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C., cannot embark upon a mini-trial or weigh the sufficiency of evidence, which falls within the domain of the trial Court. The scope of enquiry is confined to whether, on a plain reading of the FIR/complaint and accompanying material, the ingredients of the alleged offence are disclosed. [See: Rajiv Thapar v. Madal Lal Kapoor, HMT Watches v. Abida, and Rathish Babu Unnikrishnan v. the State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi)].

11.3. In Md. Allauddin Khan v. State of Bihar, it was reiterated that appreciation of contradictions or inconsistencies in witness statements lies within the exclusive domain of the trial Court and not in proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Similarly, in CBI v. Aryan Singh, it was emphasized that the High Court had exceeded its jurisdiction by examining the merits of the prosecution's case and holding that charges were not proved, which is a matter strictly for trial.

11.4. Nevertheless, an exception has been recognized where the defence relies upon unimpeachable, incontrovertible evidence of sterling quality - such as documents of undisputed authenticity which ex facie demonstrate that continuation of criminal proceedings would be unjust and oppressive. This principle was recognized in Suryalakshmi Cotton Mills Ltd. v. Rajvir Industries Ltd, and followed in subsequent decisions. 11.5. Thus, the cumulative principles that emerge are: while the jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is extraordinary and must be exercised sparingly, it is the duty of the High Court to intervene where continuation of criminal proceedings would amount to an abuse of process of law, or where the dispute is purely of a civil nature and criminal colour has been artificially given to it. Conversely, where disputed questions of fact arise requiring adjudication, the matter must ordinarily proceed to trial."

24. What emerges from the decisions referred to above is that the inherent power to quash an FIR, though wide in amplitude, is a power to be exercised with restraint and only within judicially recognised limits. Quashing is the exception and not the rule. The court does not, at this stage, assess the reliability or genuineness of the allegations, weigh the evidence, or conduct what amounts to a mini-trial. Its inquiry is confined to whether, on a plain reading of the FIR, the allegations disclose a cognizable offence.

25. Nonetheless, the categories set out in the Bhajan Lal case serve as signposts for identifying cases in which the extraordinary jurisdiction may lawfully be invoked. Where the allegations are specific, the offences are cognisable, and the accusations are not inherently improbable on their face, the criminal process must ordinarily be permitted to run its course. The power to quash is not to be used to stifle a legitimate prosecution at the threshold, and the court must be careful to distinguish between cases that disclose no offence whatsoever and those where the complaint of the accused is, in substance, one going to the merits of the prosecution, a matter that belongs exclusively to the trial.

26. The fulcrum of the dispute in the Impugned FIR is that the petitioner is named as the principal accused in a scheme of financial fraud perpetrated through M/s Enchant Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. and a chain of associated companies. To determine whether the contentions raised by the learned senior counsel on behalf of the petitioner are sustainable, it becomes necessary to examine the SFIO complaint and the Impugned FIR in juxtaposition.

27. To that end, an examination of the complaint filed by the SFIO before the Special Court, pursuant to its investigation, reveals that it was not limited to technical violations under the Act. The SFIO examined the entire architecture of the alleged fraud, i.e. the network of shell companies, the individual roles of the accused, and the criminal conspiracy that bound them together.

28. The SFIO complaint reveals that a sum of INR 610.30 crore is alleged to have been systematically routed through 84 accused entities under investigation, each a shell company with no genuine operational activity, for the purpose of acquiring land, real estate, and sugar mills, and channelling funds to the Abdul Waheed Educational and Charitable Trust.

29. It is noteworthy that M/s Enchant Infrastructure Private Limited, the vehicle through which the Complainant was allegedly defrauded, is named as an accused entity in the SFIO complaint. Further, the complaint is not confined to the Act alone; it invokes several provisions of the IPC in respect of the same accused persons and transactions of a similar nature.

31. The perusal of the Impugned FIR discloses that the petitioner does not appear in the records of M/s Enchant as a director or shareholder. His alleged role, as the FIR narrates, is of a person who conceived and drove the fraudulent scheme through associates and front companies while remaining distanced from them on paper.

32. The petitioner s connection to M/s Enchant is alleged through Saurabh Mukund, who holds 5% shareholding in M/s Enchant and is described in the FIR as the petitioner s principal associate in the scheme. Dilshad, who is stated to be the petitioner s brother-in-law and a co-accused, is similarly linked to the network of companies through which investor funds were collected and diverted. The FIR proceeds on the basis that these persons acted as the visible face of the scheme while the petitioner remained its driving force.

33. The FIR further discloses the upstream ownership of M/s Enchant. The remaining 95% of its shares, beyond Saurabh Mukund s 5%, vests in Mastiff Industries Pvt. Ltd., whose shareholding is in turn divided between Net AgroFoods Pvt. Ltd. at 26.81% and VK Health Solutions Pvt. Ltd. at 73.19%. Dilshad is a director of Net AgroFoods Pvt. Ltd., and Saurabh Mukund holds a directorial position in VK Health Solutions Pvt. Ltd. The corporate chain thus leads from M/s Enchant upward through Mastiff to companies alleged to be controlled by the petitioner s own associates.

34. The Complainant invested INR 6,33,00,000/- in M/s Enchant under an agreement for the development of a plot, which was cancelled, and this is but one instance of the fraud alleged against the petitioner. The FIR, more broadly, alleges that the petitioner incorporated multiple companies using fabricated documents and fictitious directors to collect investor funds. The investigation has further revealed that these funds were channelled to the same Trust of which the petitioner is the Chairman, as disclosed in the SFIO complaint.

35. The SFIO complaint and the Impugned FIR, when read together, disclose a degree of congruence that is material to the adjudication of the present petition. The petitioner is arrayed as Accused No. 1 in the SFIO complaint and is specifically identified as the directing will and mind of the entire group s operations. The said excerpt of the SFIO complaint reads as under:

"Para 24:

Accused No. 1, his family members, associates, professionals jointly and severally through their various illegal acts have been able to create an empire, which consists of a core group of high net worth companies controlling smaller companies having land as an asset and a Trust controlling Glocal University. It is submitted that the Trust was primarily created as a vehicle for channelizing their own unaccounted money and for creating a fa ade of respectability by running educational institutions and promoting social cause. Accused No. 1 comes out as the directing will and mind of the entire operations and piercing of the corporate veil would reveal his active participation in the large scale laundering indulged by the group and creation of agriculture land bank and real estate.

Para 25:

The key outcome of the investigation carried out by the Complainant is that the unaccounted money amassed through the mining operations were through a devious pre planned strategy converted into a set of assets consisting of:

i. Large tract of agriculture land held through accused entities

ii. Closed sugar mills acquired from UPCGVNL at a throw away price, which came with a land bank of 234.76 hectare.

iii. Majority shareholding in a set of companies which are in the business of real estate and construction.

iv. Abdul Waheed Educational and Charitable Trust under whose aegis Glocal University has been set up under a State legislation. In a short period of three financial years, the balance sheet of the Trust grew from Rs. 60.39 Crore to Rs. 171.46 Crore as on 31.03.2015."

36. M/s Enchant Infrastructure Private Limited is the very company at the centre of the Impugned FIR, and it is also named as an accused entity in the SFIO complaint. The SFIO complaint records that the petitioner s group operated through an extensive network of accused entities, spanning seven identified clusters, to accumulate and launder funds across activities ranging from fictitious share allotments to the acquisition of land, real estate, and sugar mills.

37. The convergence is not confined to M/s Enchant alone. The Impugned FIR traces the corporate ownership of M/s Enchant through Mastiff Industries Pvt. Ltd., Net AgroFoods Pvt. Ltd. and VK Health Solutions Pvt. Ltd. All three entities are already named in the SFIO complaint, with Mastiff Industries appearing as Opposite Party No. 95, Net AgroFoods as Opposite Party No. 97 and VK Health Solutions as Opposite Party No. 98. Each company in the chain identified in the Impugned FIR as a conduit for the alleged fraud is therefore already an accused entity in the proceedings before the Special Court.

38. The legal provisions invoked in both proceedings also point in the same direction. The SFIO complaint, in its prayer, invokes IPC Sections 406, 420, 468, 471 and 477-A, inter alia, read with Section 120-B IPC, in addition to provisions of the Act. The core provisions under which the Impugned FIR stands registered are, to a substantial extent, the same. In pursuing the present investigation, the STF does not venture into any legal territory that the SFIO has not already covered.

39. In this context, it is crystal clear that the Impugned FIR names the petitioner in connection with the same companies, and the same alleged modus operandi that form the subject matter of the SFIO complaint pending before the Special Court. The offences invoked are, to a substantial extent, those already charged in the SFIO complaint in connection with the accused entities and the transactions under inquiry.

40. Since the basis for filing the instant petition is the pendency of the SFIO complaint of a similar nature before the appropriate authority, we deem it appropriate to discuss aspects of the statutory framework governing the SFIO s investigative mandate, as they have a direct impact on the adjudication of the instant case.

41. The Companies Act, 2013 established the SFIO as a body of specialists with expertise in banking, forensic audit, capital markets, taxation and law. Section 447 of the Act, which defines fraud in wide terms, covers the very conduct alleged in the Impugned FIR. The investigation of such fraud demands expertise that ordinary police investigation cannot be expected to bring.

42. Section 212(2) of the Act addresses this directly. Where the Central Government assigns investigation to the SFIO, no other investigating agency shall proceed further, and all relevant documents shall stand transferred. As held in SFIO v. Rahul Modi, upon such assignment, the original agencies are completely divested of jurisdiction, and the transfer is irrevocable. The relevant part reads as under:

"33. The very expression 'assign' in Section 212(3) of the 2013 Act contemplates transfer of investigation for all purposes whereafter the original investigating agencies of the Central Government or any State Government are completely denuded of any power to conduct and complete the investigation in respect of the offences contemplated therein. The idea under sub-section (2) is complete transfer of investigation. The transfer under sub-section (2) of Section 213 would not stand revoked or recalled in any contingency. If a time-limit is construed and contemplated within which the investigation must be completed then logically, the provisions would have dealt with as to what must happen if the time-limit is not adhered to. The statute must also have contemplated a situation that a valid investigation undertaken by any investigating agency of the Central Government or the State Government which was transferred to SFIO, must then be retransferred to the said investigating agencies. But the statute does not contemplate that. The transfer is irrevocable and cannot be recalled in any manner. Once assigned, SFIO continues to have the power to conduct and complete investigation. If that be so, can such power stand curtailed or diminished if the investigation is not completed within a particular period. The statute has not prescribed any period for completion of investigation."

43. It is also pertinent to note that the SFIO's jurisdiction is not confined to violations under the Companies Act alone. Once a transaction is assigned to the SFIO for investigation, its authority extends to all offences arising from that transaction, including those under the IPC.

44. Section 212(15) of the Act further reinforces the position. The SFIO s investigation report filed before the Special Court shall be deemed a police report under Section 173 CrPC. The SFIO therefore stands in the shoes of a police officer for all purposes of trial, including for IPC offences.

45. Section 212(17) of the Act does not, in our view, preserve any concurrent right of investigation by other agencies. The subsection provides for inter-agency sharing of information and documents. It does not reopen what Section 212(2) has closed.

46. Notwithstanding the foregoing, there is one material distinction between the SFIO complaint and the Impugned FIR. The SFIO complaint, as filed before the Special Court, does not specifically examine the transaction attributed to the complainant in respect of Plot.

47. The FIR, by contrast, is centrally concerned with this transaction. The Complainant invested INR 6,33,00,000/- in M/s Enchant for the development of Plot GH-02-D; the allotment was subsequently cancelled, and the funds were never returned. The Impugned FIR is therefore the only proceeding that seeks to bring this transaction within the ambit of criminal inquiry, and the Complainant has no recourse outside of it.

48. Applying the settled position of law to the facts of the instant case, we are of the considered view that the present case does not warrant quashing of the FIR in its entirety. We say so because the allegations in the Impugned FIR are specific, the complainant s loss has been quantified and the transaction is identifiable. More importantly, the Complainant s grievance finds no place in the SFIO Complaint. To quash the Impugned FIR would leave him without any remedy for a loss of his hard-earned money.

49. We have also considered whether the judgment rendered by the learned Single Bench of the Delhi High Court in the case of Ashish Bhalla v. State can come to the petitioner s rescue. However, the facts in the said case were materially different as the complainant before the SFIO and the EOW were one and the same person, and the two complaints were verbatim copies of each other.

50. Notably, in the abovementioned case, the complainant himself acknowledged in his complaint to the EOW that the nature of the offences warranted investigation only by a specialised expert agency. The Delhi High Court found the FIR to be a deliberate act of forum shopping, filed with an ulterior motive against the accused. On the contrary, in the instant case, the Complainant is not the person who triggered the SFIO proceedings, and the transaction forming the subject matter of the Impugned FIR does not find a place in the SFIO complaint.

51. Crucially, in Ashish Bhalla, the learned Single Judge not only transferred the proceedings to the SFIO but also quashed the FIR. That twin relief was granted because the same complainant had approached two agencies with verbatim complaints on identical facts. The present case stands on an altogether different footing.

52. Be that as it may, the power to quash an FIR is one that courts exercise with circumspection. The allegations in the Impugned FIR, taken at face value, disclose the commission of cognizable offences under Sections 406, 420 and 120-B of the IPC. The transaction forming the basis of the Impugned FIR is specific, the amount involved is ascertainable, and the complainant is identifiable. There is no ground on which the investigation can be foreclosed at the threshold.

53. Reverting to the question of relief, the prayer sought by the petitioner is the outright quashing of the Impugned FIR. As this Court has noted, the Complainant has no avenue of redress outside of this proceeding in respect of the transaction already referred to above. Acceding to the prayer for quashing would leave the Complainant remediless.

54. However, the refusal to quash does not, in this Court s view, fully address the situation at hand. While it is true that the Complainant has suffered a specific loss as part of the alleged fraud, it is also true that the said fraud is a part of a series of activities spanning multiple entities and is already under the SFIO s examination. Therefore, transferring the Complainant s grievance to the SFIO is the viable course that reconciles his right to an effective remedy while preventing the multiplicity of proceedings.

55. In this regard, admittedly, the SFIO has already completed its investigation, thereafter submitted the complaint, and the Special Judge has taken cognisance; however, the said factum does not exhaust the agency s investigative mandate. Section 193(9) of the BNSS expressly provides that nothing therein shall be deemed to preclude further investigation after a report has been forwarded to the Magistrate, and that further evidence, whether oral or documentary, may be collected and placed before him.

56. We are conscious that the power to transfer investigation to another agency is an extraordinary power, to be exercised sparingly and only in exceptional circumstances. However, where the same scheme of fraud is already under investigation by a specialised agency, entrusting one strand of it to a general law enforcement agency does not serve the interests of either party. The Complainant requires a thorough, expert inquiry into his specific grievance. The petitioner requires an investigation that does not fragment or contradict the findings already placed before the Special Court.

57. In the facts and circumstances of this case, therefore, transfer of investigation in the Impugned FIR qua the petitioner herein to the SFIO is the course that best serves the ends of justice for both parties. It preserves the integrity of the broader inquiry, avoids the risk of conflicting outcomes, and ensures that the Complainant s grievance is addressed within the framework of an investigation that already encompasses the scheme of which it forms a part.

58. The preceding discussion has produced two findings that together determine the appropriate relief. This Court has declined to quash the Impugned FIR, for the Complainant s grievance regarding the Plot GH-02-D transaction finds no other forum. At the same time, permitting the STF to continue a parallel investigation into the same corporate network already before the Special Court would fragment what is, in substance, a single and indivisible scheme of fraud.

59. The transfer of the investigation to the SFIO, however, is a relief the petitioner has not prayed for. The petition seeks only quashing and nothing beyond. This Court is nonetheless empowered to grant such relief as the facts of the case demand, and the jurisdiction under Article 226 is not limited to the prayer as framed.

60. In exercise of that jurisdiction, this Court directs the transfer of the investigation in the Impugned FIR qua the petitioner to the SFIO, which is the agency already seized of the broader fraud of which it forms a part.

61. In view of the foregoing discussion, the writ petition is disposed of in the following terms.

i) The prayer for quashing the Impugned FIR in entirety is rejected. The investigation under the Impugned FIR qua petitioner shall, however, stand transferred to the Serious Fraud Investigation Office with immediate effect;

ii) The STF shall forthwith transmit the case diary, all statements recorded, documents seized or collected, electronic records and any other investigative material gathered in connection with the Impugned FIR qua petitioner to the SFIO;

iii) The SFIO shall treat the material so transmitted as forming part of its ongoing investigation and shall investigate the allegations arising from the Plot GH-02-D transaction of the Complainant as further investigation within the meaning of Section 193(9) of the BNSS. Upon completion, the SFIO shall be at liberty to file a supplementary complaint before the Special Court, if the investigation so warrants, in accordance with Section 212(15) of the Companies Act, 2013; and

iv) The Special Court, New Delhi, before which the original SFIO complaint is pending, shall be informed of this order.

62. At last, we may hasten to add that ordinarily, investigation by the SFIO is initiated pursuant to an assignment order of the Central Government under Section 212(1) of the Act. In the present case, however, the SFIO's investigation against the petitioner was already sanctioned by the Central Government pursuant to the orders passed by the Supreme Court. This order does not constitute a fresh assignment but merely extends the scope of an ongoing inquiry. No fresh sanction is therefore required.

63. Ordered Accordingly.

64. All interim orders passed during the pendency of this writ petition shall stand vacated.

65. The pending applications, if any, stand disposed of.

State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondent(s)

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether, in a Commissionerate, approval of a gang chart by the Commissioner of Police on independent endorsements of the sponsoring officers, without discussion in a joint meeting between the Commissioner of Police and the Deputy Commissioner of Police, satisfies the mandatory requirement of Rule 5(3)(a) of the U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021?

(ii) Whether approval of a gang chart showing the petitioners to be in jail, when they had already been admitted to bail, vitiates the satisfaction of the approving authority for non-application of mind?

Headnotes

U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 --- S. 2/3(1) --- U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021 --- R. 5(3)(a) --- Commissionerate system --- Approval of gang chart --- Joint meeting between Commissioner of Police and Deputy Commissioner of Police mandatory.

HELD: In cities governed by the Commissionerate system, the Commissioner of Police exercises the powers of approval otherwise vested in the District Magistrate, and the Deputy Commissioner of Police heading a police district is in the position of the Senior Superintendent of Police/Superintendent of Police; the consultation under Rule 5(3)(a) has to be held in a joint meeting between the Commissioner of Police and the Deputy Commissioner of Police representing the police district concerned. Where the Deputy Commissioner of Police recommended and the Commissioner of Police approved the gang chart by independent endorsements on the same date, and there is no mention of any of the sponsoring and approving officers sitting together in a joint meeting, the approval falls foul of the mandatory requirement of Rule 5(3)(a); this infirmity runs across all the writ petitions arising from the common gang chart. [Paras 3-6, 9, 18]

U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021 --- Rr. 8, 16(1), (2), (3), 11(2) --- Gang chart showing accused in jail though already on bail --- False information --- Non-application of mind --- Solitary base case --- S. 2(b) of the Act.

HELD: Where Column 8 of the gang chart showed the petitioners to be in jail, though bail orders passed by the High Court and the Sessions Judge prior to the date of the gang chart were on record, the information was incorrect and false, vitiating the satisfaction of the approving authority; a man on bail being regarded as one in jail betrays utter lack of application of mind by the sponsoring authorities and the Commissioner of Police, in violation of Rules 8 and 16(1), (2) and (3). A solitary base case in which the petitioner is on bail may not, by itself, show him to be a member of a gang within the meaning of Section 2(b) of the Act. There was no violation of Rule 11(2), as the gang chart showed the status of all the accused in the eighth column. [Paras 7-9, 11-18]

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

This writ petition and the connected writ petitions shall be decided by this common judgment. All the writ petitions are directed against the same First Information Report registered on the basis of the same gang chart drawn up under the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-

Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986. The FIR, that is under challenge here and in the connected matters, has given rise to Crime No. 186 of 2025 under Section 2/3(1) of the UP Gangsters Act, Police Station Shivkuti, District Prayagraj. This writ petition shall be treated as the leading case.

2. Heard Mr. Umar Zamin along with Mr. Manoj Kumar Singh, learned Counsel for the petitioners in the leading case and connected Criminal Misc. Writ Petitions Nos. 29559 of 2025 and 677 of 2026; and Mr. Sanjay Pathak, learned Counsel for the petitioner in connected Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28311 of 2025. Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate, has been heard on behalf of the State in the leading case, Mr. Kamlesh Kumar Nishad, learned State Law Officer, in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 29559 of 2025, Mr. Deepakh Kapoor, learned Additional Government Advocate, in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 677 of 2026, and Mr. Virendra Kumar Shukla, learned State Law Officer, in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28311 of 2025, all on behalf of the State.

3. The short point, that has been argued by learned Counsel for the petitioner, is that the gang chart dated 18.11.2025, on the foot of which the impugned FIR has been registered, ex facie shows that there was no joint meeting between the Commissioner of Police and the Deputy Commissioner of Police, which is mandatory under Rule 5(3)(a) of the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021. Rule 5 of the UP Gangsters Rules reads :

Rule - 5. General Rules.

(1) To initiate proceedings under this Act, the concerned Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector shall prepare a gang-chart mentioning the details of criminal activities of the gang.

(2) The gang-chart will be presented to the district head of police after clear recommendation of the Additional Superintendent of Police mentioning the detailed activities in relation to all the persons of the said gang.

(3) The following provisions shall be complied with in respect of gang-charts

(a) The gang-chart will not be approved summarily but after due discussion in a joint meeting of the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate/Senior Superintendent of Police/Superintendent of Police.

(b) There may be no gang of one person but there may be a gang of known and other unknown persons and in that form the gang-chart may be approved as per these rules.

(c) The gang-chart shall not mention those cases in which acquittal has been granted by the Special Court or in which the final report has been filed after the investigation. However, the gang-chart shall not be approved without the completion of investigation of the base case.

(d) Those cases shall not be mentioned in the gang-chart, on the basis of which action has already been taken once under this Act.

(e) A separate list of criminal history, as given in Form No.4, shall be attached with the gang-chart detailing all the criminal activities of that gang and mentioning all the criminal cases, even if acquittal has been granted in those cases or even where final report has been submitted in the absence of evidence.

Along with the above, a certified copy of the gang register kept at the police station shall also be attached with the gang-chart. In addition to the above, the information of crime and gang members mentioned in the gang-chart will also be updated on Interoperable Criminal Justice System (ICJS) portal and Crime and Criminal Tracking Network System (CCTNS).

4. Now, in a case of a separation district, where the police powers are vested in the Senior Superintendent of Police or the Superintendent of Police, and powers of the Executive Magistrate of the district in the District Magistrate, a joint meeting has to be held between the District Magistrate and the Senior Superintendent of Police or the Superintendent of Police, as the case may be. In cities governed by the Commissionerate system, the Commissioner of Police exercises the powers of approval, otherwise vested in the District Magistrate, and the proposal has to come from the Deputy Commissioner of Police, who is in the position of the Superintendent of Police. This is so because in each Commissionerate, there are one or more police districts. Every police district is headed by a police officer of the rank of the Deputy Commissioner of Police, who would, for all purposes of the law, in relation to his police district, be the head thereof. He would, therefore, be in the position of a Senior Superintendent of Police or a Superintendent of Police, as the case may be. The final powers of approval being vested in the Commissioner of Police, the consultation has to be held in a joint meeting by virtue of Rule 5(3)(a) of the UP Gangsters Rules, between the Commissioner of Police and the Deputy Commissioner of Police representing the police district concerned.

5. Upon a perusal of the gang chart here, what we find is that both the officers, that is to say, the Commissioner of Police, Prayagraj, and the Deputy Commissioner of Police, Nagar, Commissionerate Prayagraj have made independent endorsements, the latter recommending proceedings and the former approving them, both on 18.11.2025, but not in a joint meeting. Apparently, there was no discussion in a joint meeting between the Commissioner of Police and the Deputy Commissioner of Police, which makes the approval of the gang chart fall foul of the mandatory requirements of Rule 5(3)(a) of the UP Gangsters Rules.

6. We may note that there is, between the Deputy Commissioner of Police's proposal and the Commissioner of Police's acceptance, also a recommendation made by the Additional Commissioner of Police, Commissionerate Prayagraj. Apparently, the Additional Commissioner of Police is not the head of a district. Even if he is, a perusal of the endorsement on the gang chart shows that right from the Assistant Commissioner of Police, who is the first officer of the police sponsoring the registration of a case under the UP Gangsters Act, the Deputy Commissioner of Police, the Additional Commissioner of Police and the acceptance of the proposal by the Commissioner of Police, there is no mention of any of the officers, sponsoring and accepting, sitting together in a joint meeting, to take a decision, which is the spirit of Rule 5(3)(a) of the UP Gangsters Rules.

7. There is no violation of Rule 11(2) of the UP Gangsters Rules, inasmuch as the gang chart clearly shows in the eight column, status of all the accused, including the petitioners, indicating them to be in jail. However, so far as Rule 8(2) of the Rules aforesaid is concerned, which requires that no unconfirmed or false information shall be entered in the gang chart, it must be mentioned that the status of Devendra Pratap Singh, the petitioner in the present writ petition, shown in the eight column as one in jail, is incorrect. The gang chart is dated 18.11.2025, whereas, in Case Crime No. 182 of 2024, under Sections 103(1), 190, 191(2), 351(3) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023, Police Station Shivkuti, District Nagar (Commissionerate Prayagraj), the petitioner has been admitted to bail by an order of this Court dated 25.09.2025. A copy of the order dated 25.09.2025 passed by this Court in Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra), is on record, which we have perused. We are, therefore, of opinion that the information in the gang chart about the petitioner being in jail in connection with the said crime is incorrect and false, vitiating the satisfaction of the authority who has approved the gang chart.

8. Even otherwise, so far as petitioner Devendra Pratap Singh is concerned, he is challaned under the UP Gangsters Act on the basis of a solitary base case, where he is on bail, which may not, by itself, show him to be a member of a gang within the meaning of Section 2(b) of the UP Gangsters Act. Though the date of the charge sheet in Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra) is mentioned in the relevant column, the fact that the sponsoring authority of the Police, particularly the Deputy Commissioner of Police, is in-charge of the district and also the Additional Commissioner of Police, who agreed with the proposal to institute proceedings under the UP Gangsters Act, have not considered the fact that the petitioner was on bail on the date they recommended institution of proceedings or approved the gang chart, shows that it has been done without application of mind to the documents and records annexed. Non application of mind would clearly render the gang chart fall foul of Rule 16(3) of the UP Gangsters Rules.

9. A man on bail, granted by this Court, has been regarded as one in jail, while approving the gang chart, betrays utter lack of application of mind. There is thus a clear violation of Rules 5(3)(a), 8(2), and 16(1), (2), and (3) of the UP Gangsters Rules, rendering the detention bad, in the case of the leading writ petition. A violation of Rule 5(3)(a) across all the connected matters in noticeable. Reliance in this connection may be placed upon the Bench decision of this Court in Sanni Mishra alias Sanjayan Kumar Mishra v. State of U.P. and others, where it was held :

19. This court is also of the view that while forwarding and approving the gang-chart, it is the duty of the competent authorities to see whether gang-chart has been prepared as per the Gangster Rules, 2021 and all the formalities as required by the Gangster Rules, 2021 have been fulfilled. If from the record, it appears that competent authorities forwarded or approved the gang-chart without looking into the facts that the gang-chart was itself not prepared as per the Gangster Rules, 2021, then this fact will itself amount to non-application of independent mind on the part of competent authority.

21. Above facts also show that District Magistrate Gorakhpur while approving the gang-chart did not hold any discussion in a joint meeting with SSP Gorakhpur as required by Rule 5(3)(a) of the Gangster Rules, 2021, though the same is mandatory before approving the gang-chart. Therefore there is a clear violation of Rule 5(3) of the Gangster Rules, 2021.

22. In view of the above, this court lays down following directions for preparation of gang-chart before lodging FIR under the Gangster Act, 1986:

(i) Date of filing of chargesheet under base case must be mentioned in Column-6 of the gang-chart except in cases under Rule 22(2) of the Gangster Rules, 2021.

(ii) While forwarding or approving the gang-chart, competent authorities must record their required satisfaction by writing in clear words, not by signing the printed/typed satisfaction.

(iii) There must be material available for the perusal of the court which shows that the District Magistrate before approving the gang-chart had conducted a joint meeting with the District Police Chief and held a due discussion for invocation of the Gangster Act, 1986.

10. Likewise, in Vinod Bihari Lal v. State of Uttar Pradesh and another, it has been held by the Supreme Court :

44. Rule 5(3)(a) stipulates that a gang chart shall be approved only after due discussion in a joint meeting comprising the District Magistrate, Commissioner of Police, Senior Superintendent of Police, Superintendent of Police, and not through a summary process.

45. In the present case, there is nothing on record, even upon a microscopic examination, to indicate that a joint meeting was held prior to approval of the gang-chart. It is apparent that the gang-chart was approved summarily, without any discussion. It was forwarded and approved swiftly, without regard for compliance with the relevant rules. The compliance with Rule 5(3)(a) ought to be evident through the record of minutes of the joint meeting maintained in a register by the District Magistrate.

46. Further, Rule 16 mandates that the Additional Superintendent of Police shall forward the letter, alongwith a recommendation on the gang-chart, to the Superintendent of Police/Senior Superintendent of Police only upon being satisfied that there exists a just and satisfactory grounds to pursue the case. The Additional Superintendent of Police is required to record his recommendation in clear words. It is further incumbent upon the Superintendent of Police/Senior Superintendent of Police to thoroughly analyze all the facts, and only upon being satisfied that all the requirements under the Act are fulfilled and that grounds for taking action exists, he should forward the gang-chart to the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate. The Superintendent of Police/Senior Superintendent of Police must also record his satisfaction not only qua the particulars of the case but also the grounds to proceed under the Act of 1986.

47. Furthermore, upon receipt of the gang chart along with all the requisite forms, the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate is required to thoroughly examine all the facts afresh and, only upon being satisfied that sufficient grounds exist to proceed, may approve the gang chart. The recorded satisfaction must clearly reflect that the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate has scrutinized the gang-chart and the accompanying forms in light of the evidence annexed thereto.

48. Once again we are anguished that not only there is no material on record to indicate communication of the satisfaction of the Additional Superintendent of Police, Senior Superintendent of Police and the District Magistrate, but also there is no mention as to on which particular date the gang-chart was forwarded by the Additional Superintendent of Police to the Senior Superintendent of Police, and thereafter, to the District Magistrate for approval.

49. Rule 17 mandates that the competent authority must exercise its independent mind while forwarding the gang-chart. It unequivocally prohibits the use of pre-printed gang-charts, thereby making it impermissible for the authority to mechanically affix its signature. The underlying objective of this prohibition is to ensure that the competent authority undertakes a conscious and reasoned application of mind, rather than merely endorsing a pre-prepared document. Such a safeguard is integral to preserving the procedural sanctity of the law and preventing arbitrary or perfunctory approvals that may adversely affect the rights and liberties of individuals.

54. An independent application of mind cannot be presumed unless it is demonstrable from the record that the approving authority has, in letter and spirit, independently considered all the materials that culminated in the preparation and placement of the gang chart before him. While the correctness of such application of mind may lie beyond the scope of judicial scrutiny, the absence thereof certainly does not. A mechanical or routine exercise of power by the recommending, forwarding, and approving authorities respectively is impermissible, as it directly impinges upon the liberty of citizens.

11. In connected Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 29559 of 2025, the two petitioners, Atul Pratap Singh and Durgesh Kumar Singh, are shown to be in jail in the two crimes, to wit, Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra) and Case Crime No. 11 of 2022, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 308 and 506 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860, Police Station Sukhpura, District Ballia. In the first mentioned crime, the petitioner was granted bail on 13.10.2025, but in the gang chart dated 18.11.2025, he has been shown to be in jail.

12. Likewise, in Case Crime No. 11 of 2022 (supra), the petitioner, Atul Pratap Singh, was enlarged on bail on 03.02.2022, but in the gang chart, the petitioner, who has been shown to be the gang leader, is indicated in Column 8 to be in jail. Both these information are incorrect and approval of the gang chart, on the basis of this incorrect information, without looking into the record, shows utter non application of application of mind of law, violating Rules 8(3) and 16(1), (2), and (3) of the UP Gangsters Rules.

13. We may add here that both the bail orders dated 13.10.2025 and 03.02.2022 are on record which we have perused. The order dated 13.10.2025 has been passed by this Court, whereas the order dated 03.02.2022 has been passed by the learned Session Judge, Ballia. Unfortunately, these records were not perused either by the sponsoring authorities of the Police or the approving authority i.e. the Commissioner of Police, and they went, by an incorrect information entered in the gang chart that the first petitioner was in jail.

14. So far as the second petitioner in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 29559 of 2025 is concerned, that is to say, Durgesh Kumar Singh, we notice that there is a solitary base case against him, that is to say, Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra). He is shown to be in jail in Column 8 of the gang chart, in connection with the crime. He has been admitted to bail by this Court on 29.10.2025. We have perused the copy of the bail order which is on record. This shows that the gang chart has been approved without looking into the accompanying documents and without application of mind. Therefore, all that is said about violation of Rules 8(3) and 16(1), (2), and (3) in the leading case applies to this case as well.

15. This takes us to the next case i.e. Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 677 of 2026, and the two petitioners here are Ajay Yadav and Pushpendra Singh. A perusal of the gang chart shows that Ajay Yadav, who is at Serial No. 3 of the chart, has been shown to be in jail in Column 8 in connection with Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra) as well as Case Crime No. 11 of 2022 (supra). We find that so far as petitioner no. 1 is concerned, he has been admitted to bail in Case Crime No. 11 of 2022 vide order dated 17.04.2025 passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Ballia and in Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 by this Court vide order dated 10.10.2025. We have perused the relative bail orders, which are on record of the writ petition.

16. Likewise, in case of the second petitioner, Pushpendra Singh, who is also shown to be in jail in gang chart in Column 8 in connection with both crimes last mentioned, has been admitted to bail in Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra) by this Court vide order dated 25.09.2025 and in Case Crime No. 11 of 2022 (supra) vide order dated 03.02.2022 by the learned Sessions Judge, Ballia. We have, again, perused the relative bail orders.

17. The conclusion, therefore, is that the gang chart has been approved by the Commissioner of Police and registration of the crime proposed by the Deputy Commissioner of Police and the other sponsoring authorities, without application of mind to the papers accompanying the proposal. Registration of the crime, apart from being violative of Rule 5(3)(a) of the UP Gangsters Rules, is also violative of Rules 8(3) and 16(1), (2), (3) of the Rules aforesaid.

18. The petitioner, in the last petition of this batch of petitions i.e. Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 28311 of 2025 is Ranvijay Singh alias Prince. His name figures in the common gang chart at Serial No. 6. He is shown involved in a solitary base case, that is to say, Case Crime No. 182 of 2024 (supra). In Column 8 of the gang chart, he is indicated to be in jail. A perusal of the record shows that this petitioner has been admitted to bail by this Court vide order dated 29.10.2025 in Case Crime No. 182 of 2024. The gang chart, on the other hand, shows the petitioner to be in jail. This is, again, a case of gross non application of mind, because it is the duty of the police officers sponsoring the registration of a case, under the UP Gangsters Act to carefully scrutinise the record, as also that of the approving authority, the Commissioner of Police. None of them have looked into the papers, which, if carefully seen, would have revealed that the petitioner was already on bail on 18.11.2025, when the gang chart was approved in the solitary base case. This is, therefore, a clear case of violation of Rules 8(3) and 16(1), (2), (3) of the UP Gangsters Rules. In addition, it again goes without saying that there is gross violation of Rule 5(3)(a) of the Rules aforesaid, which is an infirmity that runs across all the writ petitions, where the same FIR is impugned on the basis of a common gang chart.

19. In the result, all the writ petitions succeed and are allowed. The FIR dated 19.11.2025, giving rise to Case Crime No. 186 of 2025, under Section 2/3(1) of the U.P. Gangsters Act, Police Station Shivkuti, District Prayagraj, impugned in each of the writ petitions, is hereby quashed.

20. An entry shall be caused to be made in the General Diary of Police Station, Shivkuti, District Prayagraj by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Prayagraj in red ink that proceedings of Case Crime No. 0186 of 2025, under Section 2/3(1) of the U.P. Gangsters Act, Police Station Shivkuti, District Prayagraj, as against the petitioners, stand quashed under orders of this Court.

21. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Prayagraj and through her, to the Commissioner of Police, Prayagraj and the Station House Officer, Police Station Shivkuti, District Prayagraj.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether a show cause notice under Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970, issued on information sent by the Station House Officer through the Superintendent of Police, satisfies Rule 3(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Rules, 1970?

(ii) Whether the impugned show cause notice was issued in disregard of the Full Bench decision in Ramji Pandey v. State of Uttar Pradesh?

(iii) Whether a writ petition assailing a show cause notice, filed after about 100 days without indicating the date of its service and without filing any reply to it, is maintainable?

Headnotes

Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970 --- S. 3 --- Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Rules, 1970 --- R. 3(1) --- Show cause notice --- Information regarding criminal antecedents sent by SHO through Superintendent of Police --- Compliance with Rule 3(1).

HELD: The Superintendent of Police may submit a report to the District Magistrate under Rule 3(1); even where two respectable persons of the locality complain, the District Magistrate would have to seek a report from the police station concerned through the Superintendent of Police to verify the criminal antecedents. Hence, the letter giving information of the criminal antecedents of the petitioner, sent by the SHO through the Superintendent of Police to the District Magistrate, is in letter and spirit of Rule 3(1). [Paras 10-11]

Show cause notice containing specific allegations of criminal acts and general bad reputation, along with details of cases --- Full Bench decision in Ramji Pandey distinguished.

HELD: The impugned notice, in paragraphs 'Ka' and 'Kha', reveals the criminal acts of the petitioner and his general bad reputation, and in paragraph 'Ga' the details of four cases are indicated. The Full Bench in Ramji Pandey set aside a notice which did not contain specific allegations but only a list of First Information Reports; the facts of the present case being different, that decision is not applicable. [Para 12]

Constitution of India --- Art. 226 --- Challenge to show cause notice --- Petition filed after about 100 days --- Date of service not indicated --- No reply to notice filed --- Petitioner not actually aggrieved.

HELD: Where the writ petition was filed after a lapse of about 100 days from the issuance of the show cause notice, the date of service was not indicated anywhere in the petition and no explanation to the show cause notice was filed, it shows lack of alertness and seriousness of the petitioner, and prima facie the petitioner was not actually aggrieved by the notice; the petition is misconceived and liable to be dismissed in limine. [Paras 5, 9, 13]

Writ petition dismissed as misconceived. No order as to costs. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Show cause notice dated 20.03.2026 issued by the District Magistrate (Judicial), Unnao, under Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner(s): Sajjad Husain, Badar Iftikhar, Kulsoom Firoz.

For the Respondent(s): G.A., S.P. Singh, Additional Government Advocate.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.
&
Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Sri Sajjad Husain, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri S.P. Singh, learned AGA for the State respondents

2. Sri Sajjad Husain has filed supplementary affidavit, same is taken record.

3. On the request of learned counsel for the parties, the case is decided at the admission stage.

4. By means of this petition, the petitioner has assailed the show cause notice dated 20.03.2026 passed by District Magistrate (Judicial), Unnao, under Section 3 of The Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970.

5. On being asked from the learned counsel for the petitioner as to where he has indicated the date of service of the show cause notice dated 20.03.2026, learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that he has not indicated this fact anywhere in the writ petition. On being further asked to the effect that as to whether he has filed explanation to the show cause notice, learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that no explanation to the show cause notice has been filed by the petitioner for the reason that the show cause notice is without jurisdictional notice and has been issued in contravention of Rule 3 of The Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Rule, 1970 as well as in utter disregard of the order of Full Bench of this Court In Re : Ramji Pandey versus State of Uttar Pradesh and Others, reported in 1981 SCC Online All 305.

6. So as to buttres his contention, Sri Sajjad Husain, learned counsel, has referred para 22 of the aforesaid order of Full Bench by submitting that if the impugned notice does not contain any allegation and only the reference of FIR has been given, such notice would be a nullity in the eyes of law. Regarding Rule 3 of the Rules, 1970 attention has been drawn towards supplementary affidavit, showing Annexure No. S.A.-1, which is information letter, under Report Chalani, under Section 3/4 of Act, the same has been sent to District Magistrate, Unnao by the S.H.O., P.S.-Safipur, Unnao through Superintendent of Police, Unnao, apprising the criminal antecedent and activities of the petitioner.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that as per Rule 3(1), it has been mandated that action under under sub-section (1) of Section 3 will not ordinarily be taken by the District Magistrate except on information in writing, received from the Superintendent of Police or the Magistrate-in-charge of the sub-division or on information in writing received from two respectable citizens of the locality. In the present case, such information has been given by SHO, Police Station, Safipur, Unnao to the District Magistrate, Unnao, (Annexure No. SA-1 of the second supplementary affidavit)

8. Learned AGA has opposed the aforesaid contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner and has stated that impugned notice has been given strictly in accordance with law and the dictum of Full Bench In re : Ramji Pandey (supra) has been followed in its letter and spirit.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, perused the material available on record and considering the fact that the petitioner has filed the present writ petition after lapse of about 100 days from the date of issuance of the impugned show cause notice and date of service of notice has not been indicated in the writ petition so this is one of the reasons showing the lack of alertness and seriousness of the petitioner to challenge the impugned show cause notice. If the impugned show cause notice has not been challenged before this Court or before any other competent authority for more than 100 days, then, prima facie, it appears that the petitioner was not actually aggrieved to challenge this notice.

10. So far as Rule 3(1) of the Rules, 1970 is concerned, the information regarding criminal antecedents of the petitioner has been given by the SHO, Kotwali, Safipur, Unnao through Superintendent of Police, Unnao which has been indicated on such letter dated 19/10/2025 (Annexure No. S.A.-1 of the second Supplementary Affidavit).

11. Undisputedly, the Superintendent of Police concerned may submit a report to the District Magistrate as per Rule 3(1) of the Rules, 1970. Besides, if two respectable persons of the locality may send application to the District Magistrate regarding criminal activity of any person, the District Magistrate concerned shall definitely seek report from the concerning police station through Superintendent of Police, otherwise, he could have not known and verified the criminal antecedents of a person against whom two respectable persons of the locality have lodged the complaint. Therefore, the letter so given by the SHO concerned through Superintendent of Police, Unnao addressing to the District Magistrate Unnao is in letter and spirit of Rule 3(1) of the Rules, 1970.

12. So far as the another argument of Sri Sajjad Husain is concerned that the impugned notice has been issued in disobedience of the direction being issued by the Full Bench In Re: Ramji Pandey (supra), the perusal of the impugned notice dated 20/03/2026 clearly reveals in paragraphs 'Ka' and 'Kha' about the criminal act of the petitioner and his general bad reputation which is detrimental to the public at large and in Para 'Ga', the details of four cases have been indicated. The Full Bench In re, Ramji Pandey, has categorically observed that the case before the Full Bench was that the impugned notice was not containing the specific allegations rather the list of First Information Report was given, therefore, such impugned notice was set aside. However, the facts and circumstances of the present case are different from the case of Ramji Pandey (supra) and this is trite law that if the facts and circumstances of the case in hand are different from the judgment cited, then it would not be applicable thereon.

13. Therefore, in view of what has been considered above, the present writ petition by means of which the impugned show cause notice dated 20/03/2026 has been assailed by filing writ petition on 30/06/2026 without explaining the date of service of the notice upon the petitioner is misconceived and liable to be dismissed in limine. Besides the mandate of Rule 3(1) of Rule, 1970 has been followed in its letter and spirit by issuing the impugned show cause notice and the direction being issued by the Full Bench of this Court In Re : Ramji Pandey has also been obeyed in its letter and spirit.

14. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed being misconceived.

15. No order as to costs.

Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 25626 of 2025

Rakesh ...Petitioner(s)
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondent(s)

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the arrest and remand of the petitioner stand vitiated for non-communication of the grounds of arrest under Article 22(1) of the Constitution, where the arrest memo records only the formal reasons for arrest and the General Diary entry merely records the sections of the offence?

(ii) Whether the rejection of the petitioner's bail application by the Sessions Judge precludes him from challenging the legality of his arrest and remand, in view of State of Madhya Pradesh v. Kusum Sahu?

(iii) Whether a remand order passed on a printed proforma, without ascertaining compliance with Article 22(1), is sustainable?

Headnotes

Constitution of India --- Arts. 21, 22(1) --- Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 --- S. 47 --- Grounds of arrest --- Distinction between "reasons for arrest" and "grounds of arrest" --- Arrest memo and General Diary entry not containing grounds --- Burden on police not discharged --- Arrest illegal.

HELD: Column 10 of the arrest memo, answering "yes" against each of the printed sub-columns, carries only the reasons for arrest, which are formal and general in nature, and not the grounds of arrest, which are personal to the accused. The General Diary entry, though contemporaneous with the arrest, merely records that the accused was informed of his crime under the specified sections of the BNS; there is no contemporaneous record of the grounds of arrest, much less of their communication to the petitioner at the time of or soon after his arrest. The mandate of Article 22(1) necessitates furnishing the grounds of arrest in writing in a language understood by the accused; the burden to prove compliance lies on the police, which has not been discharged, and the petitioner was thereby disabled from exercising his rights at the stage of remand. [Paras 14, 31-33]

Constitution of India --- Art. 22(1) --- Remand --- Duty of Magistrate to ascertain compliance with Article 22(1) --- Remand order on printed proforma --- Mechanical exercise --- Remand illegal.

HELD: When an arrested person is produced for remand, it is the duty of the Magistrate to ascertain whether Article 22(1) has been complied with; if there is non-compliance, the arrest is rendered illegal and the accused cannot be remanded. A remand order written on a printed proforma with blanks filled in, without any inquiry into the communication of the grounds of arrest, is the most mechanical kind of remand and is illegal, as is the ensuing custody. [Paras 34-35]

Writ petition challenging legality of arrest --- Distinct from bail --- Prior rejection of bail by Sessions Judge --- Kusum Sahu distinguished.

HELD: A petition questioning the legality of the arrest is distinct from a bail plea; the right to seek bail and the right to question the legality of arrest are independent of each other. Kusum Sahu was rendered in a context where four successive bail applications had been rejected by the High Court itself and the High Court, in habeas corpus, examined the merits as if hearing an appeal against rejection of bail. Where the High Court was never moved for bail and the court examines only the legality of the arrest and remand, dehors the merits of the prosecution, the principle in Kusum Sahu is not attracted. [Paras 3-4, 13, 29-30]

Grounds of arrest --- Mihir Rajesh Shah v. State of Maharashtra --- Prospective application --- Arrest prior to that decision governed by Pankaj Bansal, Prabir Purkayastha and Vihaan Kumar.

HELD: Mihir Rajesh Shah holds that where grounds cannot be furnished at the time of arrest, they must be furnished within a reasonable time and, in any case, at least two hours prior to production before the Magistrate for remand; the decision, on its own terms, applies prospectively to arrests made thereafter. The petitioner, having been arrested on 20.04.2025, cannot fall back upon Mihir Rajesh Shah, but the principles in Pankaj Bansal, Prabir Purkayastha and Vihaan Kumar are squarely applicable to his case. [Paras 26-28]

Writ petition allowed; remand order quashed; petitioner directed to be released on furnishing a bond under Section 91 BNSS, without affecting the ongoing trial or the merits of the charges. Sessions Judge, Sambhal directed to ensure that Magistrates do not grant police or judicial remand casually on a printed proforma or without ascertaining whether grounds of arrest were communicated in writing. Case Arising From

Order of remand dated 20.04.2025 passed by the Remand Magistrate, District Sambhal, in Case Crime No. 0132 of 2025, under Sections 87, 127(4), 64(1) and 143(2) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023, Police Station Gunnour, District Sambhal.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner(s): Dileep Kumar Shukla, Shikhar Neelkanth.

For the Respondent(s): G.A., Manju Thakur, Additional Government Advocate-I.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This writ petition has been instituted by Rakesh with a prayer that the order of remand dated 20.04.2025 passed by the Remand Magistrate in Case Crime No. 0132 of 2025, under Sections 87, 127(4), 64(1) and 143(2) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 (for short, BNS), Police Station Gunnour, District Sambhal, be quashed. He seeks a direction in the nature of mandamus ordering the respondents to release the petitioner from custody, after quashing of the remand order authorizing his detention pending investigation and/ or trial in the said crime.

2. A First Information Report (FIR for short) was lodged by one Umar Ahmad son of Sharafat Khan on 18.04.2025 at Police Station Gunnour, District Sambhal with a case that the informant/ respondent no.4 was a resident of Village Patti Kurki, P.S. Anwala, District Bareilly. On 03.04.2025, his wife X , aged about 36 years, was taken away by blandishment by the petitioner Rakesh. The petitioner later kept the victim in confinement. On 14.04.2025, the fourth respondent s wife was found in a disoriented condition in Village Bairpur, P.S. Junavai. The fourth respondent requested necessary legal action in the matter.

3. We must remark at the outset before proceeding further with the petitioner s case that this petition has nothing to do with the exercise of the right of bail by the petitioner and, a fortiori, if the allegations of the prosecution carried in the FIR, or those that have surfaced during investigation, are true or unreliable and false. The office of this petition is limited to the question, if the petitioner has been validly arrested in accordance with the mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution read with the statutory safeguards engrafted in the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (for short, BNSS).

4. The point which the petitioner moots here is, if the petitioner s arrest is illegal at the inception in the sense that it has been effected in violation of his fundamental right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution, no matter what the charge is or the gravity thereof, he is entitled to regain his liberty by an order quashing his remand in connection with the crime and his arrest as well. It hardly need be said that in the event, the petitioner s stand is vindicated and his arrest and remand declared illegal, he would be entitled to the restoration of his liberty. This is the essence of this petition and the scope of the challenge that the petitioner mounts in this case to his detention in the crime under reference.

5. The case of the petitioner is that the incident is said to have taken place on 03.04.2025, regarding which the FIR was lodged on 18.04.2025 with Police Station Gunnour, District Sambhal. After registration of the crime, the petitioner was shown to have been arrested on 20.04.2025 at 08.50 hours. The attention of this Court has been drawn to the arrest memo, that is on record and to which we would allude later in this judgment. The petitioner was taken into custody by the Police and produced before the Remand Magistrate on 20.04.2025. The Remand Magistrate, in a routine and mechanical manner, passed a remand order on a printed proforma carrying blanks that were filled up without application of mind and remanded him to judicial custody in the crime. This order too is on record and is one made on 20.04.2025. Our attention again has been drawn to this order and we would allude to this too later in this judgment.

6. It is the petitioner s case that while remanding the petitioner to judicial custody, the learned Remand Magistrate failed to record any satisfaction regarding due compliance of the Police s obligation of communicating the petitioner with the grounds of his arrest, a fundamental right that flows from Article 22(1) of the Constitution. It is specifically averred by the petitioner in paragraph no. 17 of the writ petition that he was not informed of the grounds of arrest, either orally or in writing, a fact apparent from the arrest memo, that is on record. He also says that there is no other document corresponding to an arrest memo. Emphasis is laid upon the fact that in the arrest memo, there is no column pertaining to grounds of arrest, rendering the arrest memo itself illegal and foul of requirements of Article 22(1) of the Constitution. It is also emphasized in paragraph no. 18 that there is nothing in the arrest memo to show that the petitioner was informed of the grounds of his arrest. It is asserted that the petitioner was not apprised of the specific grounds of his arrest and was produced before the Remand Magistrate without sufficient knowledge of the allegations against him, thereby causing grave prejudice as he was unable to effectively present his defence while moving his bail application before the Court below.

7. The petitioner asserts in paragraph no. 21 of the writ petition that at the time of arrest, the Police are duty bound to inform the accused of the grounds and they must maintain a contemporaneous record, reflecting the same. However, in the petitioner s case, this obligation has not been fulfilled as the arrest memo contains no mention of the grounds of arrest, rendering the petitioner s arrest illegal. It is for this reason that the remand order passed on a printed proforma by the Magistrate, without ascertaining if the petitioner knew the grounds of his arrest, is unconstitutional and the petitioner s arrest illegal. It is emphasized that though the petitioner applied for bail to the Sessions Judge, Sambhal at Chandausi, it was rejected on 05.08.2025. The scope of this petition is entirely different from that of a bail plea, where a success to earn indulgence of bail ensures enlargement in constructive custody of the Court through sureties during trial. The scope of this petition is to question the legality of the arrest itself, which if granted, would place the petitioner in the same position as he was, before he was arrested. Both the rights to move for bail and question the legality of arrest are independent of each other, according to the petitioner, and availing one does not detract from the right to assert the other.

8. The learned Counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon Arvind Kejriwal v. CBI, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 2550. Reliance in this connection has also been placed upon the authority of the Supreme Court in Kasireddy Upender Reddy v. State of A.P., 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1228.

9. A counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the State and what is said there in good part is about the merits of the case. It is emphasized that the allegations are very serious and so also the material collected during investigation. There are allegations of rape against the petitioner and human trafficking, where he cannot be permitted to question his arrest on the ground of its illegality, based on something academic, like the violation of the fundamental right under Article 22(1) of the Constitution.

10. The petitioner in rejoinder has submitted that so long as there is non-compliance with the mandatory requirement of Article 22(1), that is to say, communication of the grounds of his arrest to the petitioner, at the time he was taken into custody, or soon thereafter, the validity of the arrest cannot be justified on the basis of seriousness of allegations. It is also asserted that the G.D. Entry, relied upon by the respondents to say that the grounds of arrest were orally communicated, too is silent as to the specific grounds that led to the petitioner s arrest. It carries vague details, which do not sufficiently make the charge or allegations known to the petitioner at the time of his arrest, or as soon as may be, on the foot of which he was taken into custody, thus, violating the petitioner s right under Article 22(1) of the Constitution.

11. Heard Mr. Shikhar Neelkhanth, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Ms. Manju Thakur, learned Additional Government Advocate-I on behalf of the State.

12. We have considered the rival submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the parties.

13. We have already delineated the scope of challenge in this writ petition, which we find to be clearly distinct and different from that of a bail plea. All that we have to examine is the legality of the arrest and its consequences upon the petitioner s liberty.

14. We notice that there are no separate grounds of arrest in writing supplied to the petitioner. The learned A.G.A. wanted us to accept either the memo of arrest as a document carrying the grounds in writing or the G.D. Entry annexed as Annexure No. CA-10 of the counter affidavit for those grounds. It was mooted that the grounds of arrest were communicated to the petitioner orally at the time he was arrested and the G.D. Entry dated 20.04.2025 made at 09.38 hours vide G.D. Entry No. 27 is material enough to infer the oral communication of the broad grounds and the case, on the foot of which the petitioner has been arrested. The memo of arrest is annexed as Annexure No. 2 to the writ petition, and in all fairness, must be reproduced for every word of it. It reads as follows:

17. There has been considerable debate about the right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution for reason that while the right under Article 22(1) of the Constitution is indeed a fundamental right of the foremost importance, as it safeguards the liberty of an individual from deprivation by State Authority, the Police and police like forces empowered to arrest persons in connection with crimes, they are suspected or accused to have committed, have traditionally paid scant regard to the requirements of Article 22(1). The man in uniform, by his training, duties and sometimes compulsion, thinks small of rights, including the fundamental rights. He looks sometimes with his scorn at judgments enforcing these rights and enumerating principles that seeks to realize the fundamental right to liberty. In the nature of things, the policeman, who sees every suspect and accused as guilty, is almost inclined to think that he understands the truth of the matter better than anyone, and, most certainly than a Judge sitting in a Court far away from the scene or the transaction of crime. The policemen never understands that there are always two sides to a fact, a thing or an allegation regarding an offence and he is per compulsion partisan looking at one side alone. The training, bereft of the knowledge of the law, deprives the policeman of the forensic eye to understand legal implications. The result is that the effort by Courts to crystallize the rights of an individual, who is suspect or accused of an offence, both under the statute and the Constitution, remain at the centre-stage of a tug of war between the holdings of the Court and dogged breaches by the Police. Since Courts, depending on facts, at times have to yield ground and carve a niche to make place for an exception to the rule they have developed, the Police think that they were right and they must go ahead the way they have done for centuries in this country, irrespective of pronouncements of Superior Courts declaring the effect of fundamental rights and statutory safeguards regarding an individual s liberty.

18. The law regarding the necessity to furnish grounds of arrest came to be recently emphasized in view of Article 22(1) of the Constitution, not to say that it was earlier not emphasized, by the Supreme Court in Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576. Apparently, as the facts of the case in Pankaj Bansal (supra) would show the importance of the right to be informed of the grounds of arrest were highlighted because of onerous conditions for seeking bail involved there, as the arrest was in connection with a case under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (for short, the PMLA). Also Section 19 of the PMLA obliges the authorized officer to record reasons for his belief that a person is guilty and needs to be arrested. Nevertheless, what was expounded was the requirement of communicating the grounds of arrest to the accused at the time of his/ her arrest or as soon as may be, as required by Article 22(1) of the Constitution. In Pankaj Bansal, it was observed by the Supreme Court:

"38. In this regard, we may note that Article 22(1) of the Constitution provides, inter alia, that no person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest. This being the fundamental right guaranteed to the arrested person, the mode of conveying information of the grounds of arrest must necessarily be meaningful so as to serve the intended purpose. It may be noted that Section 45 PMLA enables the person arrested under Section 19 thereof to seek release on bail but it postulates that unless the twin conditions prescribed thereunder are satisfied, such a person would not be entitled to grant of bail. The twin conditions set out in the provision are that, firstly, the court must be satisfied, after giving an opportunity to the Public Prosecutor to oppose the application for release, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the arrested person is not guilty of the offence and, secondly, that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail. To meet this requirement, it would be essential for the arrested person to be aware of the grounds on which the authorised officer arrested him/her under Section 19 and the basis for the officer's reason to believe that he/she is guilty of an offence punishable under the 2002 Act. It is only if the arrested person has knowledge of these facts that he/she would be in a position to plead and prove before the Special Court that there are grounds to believe that he/she is not guilty of such offence, so as to avail the relief of bail. Therefore, communication of the grounds of arrest, as mandated by Article 22(1) of the Constitution and Section 19 PMLA, is meant to serve this higher purpose and must be given due importance.

42. That being so, there is no valid reason as to why a copy of such written grounds of arrest should not be furnished to the arrested person as a matter of course and without exception. There are two primary reasons as to why this would be the advisable course of action to be followed as a matter of principle. Firstly, in the event such grounds of arrest are orally read out to the arrested person or read by such person with nothing further and this fact is disputed in a given case, it may boil down to the word of the arrested person against the word of the authorised officer as to whether or not there is due and proper compliance in this regard. In the case on hand, that is the situation insofar as Basant Bansal is concerned. Though ED claims that witnesses were present and certified that the grounds of arrest were read out and explained to him in Hindi, that is neither here nor there as he did not sign the document. Non-compliance in this regard would entail release of the arrested person straightaway, as held in V. Senthil Balaji [V. Senthil Balaji v. State, (2024) 3 SCC 51 : (2024) 2 SCC (Cri) 1] . Such a precarious situation is easily avoided and the consequence thereof can be obviated very simply by furnishing the written grounds of arrest, as recorded by the authorised officer in terms of Section 19(1) PMLA, to the arrested person under due acknowledgment, instead of leaving it to the debatable ipse dixit of the authorised officer."

19. The next authority, that has bearing on the point, is Prabir Purkayastha v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2024) 8 SCC 254.This was a case under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, 1967 (for short, the UAPA). The challenge was to the arrest and remand without furnishing the grounds of arrest, as required by Article 22(1) of the Constitution. In Prabir Purkayastha (supra), it was held by the Supreme Court:

"18. We may note that the modified application of Section 167CrPC is also common to both the statutes. Thus, we have no hesitation in holding that the interpretation of statutory mandate laid down by this Court in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576] on the aspect of informing the arrested person the grounds of arrest in writing has to be applied pari passu to a person arrested in a case registered under the provisions of the UAPA.

19. Resultantly, there is no doubt in the mind of the court that any person arrested for allegation of commission of offences under the provisions of UAPA or for that matter any other offence(s) has a fundamental and a statutory right to be informed about the grounds of arrest in writing and a copy of such written grounds of arrest have to be furnished to the arrested person as a matter of course and without exception at the earliest. The purpose of informing to the arrested person the grounds of arrest is salutary and sacrosanct inasmuch as this information would be the only effective means for the arrested person to consult his advocate; oppose the police custody remand and to seek bail. Any other interpretation would tantamount to diluting the sanctity of the fundamental right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India.

20. The right to life and personal liberty is the most sacrosanct fundamental right guaranteed under Articles 20, 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. Any attempt to encroach upon this fundamental right has been frowned upon by this Court in a catena of decisions. In this regard, we may refer to the following observations made by this Court in Roy V.D. v. State of Kerala [Roy V.D. v. State of Kerala, (2000) 8 SCC 590 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 42] : (SCC p. 593, para 7)

"7. The life and liberty of an individual is so sacrosanct that it cannot be allowed to be interfered with except under the authority of law. It is a principle which has been recognised and applied in all civilised countries. In our Constitution Article 21 guarantees protection of life and personal liberty not only to citizens of India but also to aliens."

Thus, any attempt to violate such fundamental right, guaranteed by Articles 20, 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India, would have to be dealt with strictly.

21. The right to be informed about the grounds of arrest flows from Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and any infringement of this fundamental right would vitiate the process of arrest and remand. Mere fact that a charge-sheet has been filed in the matter, would not validate the illegality and the unconstitutionality committed at the time of arresting the accused and the grant of initial police custody remand to the accused.

26. From a holistic reading of various judgments pertaining to the law of preventive detention including the Constitution Bench decision of this Court in Harikisan [Harikisan v. State of Maharashtra, 1962 SCC OnLine SC 117] , wherein, the provisions of Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India have been interpreted, we find that it has been the consistent view of this Court that the grounds on which the liberty of a citizen is curtailed, must be communicated in writing so as to enable him to seek remedial measures against the deprivation of liberty.

28. The language used in Article 22(1) and Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India regarding the communication of the grounds is exactly the identical. Neither of the constitutional provisions require that the grounds of arrest or detention , as the case may be, must be communicated in writing. Thus, interpretation to this important facet of the fundamental right as made by the Constitution Bench while examining the scope of Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India would ipso facto apply to Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India insofar as the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest is concerned.

29. Hence, we have no hesitation in reiterating that the requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest or the grounds of detention in writing to a person arrested in connection with an offence or a person placed under preventive detention as provided under Articles 22(1) and 22(5) of the Constitution of India is sacrosanct and cannot be breached under any situation. Non-compliance of this constitutional requirement and statutory mandate would lead to the custody or the detention being rendered illegal, as the case may be.

30. Furthermore, the provisions of Article 22(1) have already been interpreted by this Court in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576] laying down beyond the pale of doubt that the grounds of arrest must be communicated in writing to the person arrested of an offence at the earliest. Hence, the fervent plea of the learned ASG that there was no requirement under law to communicate the grounds of arrest in writing to the appellant-accused is noted to be rejected.

37. The interpretation given by the learned Single Judge that the grounds of arrest were conveyed to the accused in writing vide the arrest memo is unacceptable on the face of the record because the arrest memo does not indicate the grounds of arrest being incorporated in the said document. Column 9 of the arrest memo (Annexure P-7) which is being reproduced hereinbelow simply sets out the reasons for arrest which are formal in nature and can be generally attributed to any person arrested on accusation of an offence whereas the grounds of arrest would be personal in nature and specific to the person arrested.

"9. Reason for arrest

(a) Prevent the accused person from committing any further offence.

(b) For proper investigation of the offence.

(c) To prevent the accused person from causing the evidence of the offence to disappear or tampering with such evidence in any manner.

(d) To prevent such person from making any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the court or to the police officer.

(e) As unless such person is arrested, his presence in the court whenever required cannot be ensured."

48. It may be reiterated at the cost of repetition that there is a significant difference in the phrase reasons for arrest and grounds of arrest . The reasons for arrest as indicated in the arrest memo are purely formal parameters viz. to prevent the accused person from committing any further offence; for proper investigation of the offence; to prevent the accused person from causing the evidence of the offence to disappear or tampering with such evidence in any manner; to prevent the arrested person for making inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the court or to the investigating officer. These reasons would commonly apply to any person arrested on charge of a crime whereas the grounds of arrest would be required to contain all such details in hand of the investigating officer which necessitated the arrest of the accused. Simultaneously, the grounds of arrest informed in writing must convey to the arrested accused all basic facts on which he was being arrested so as to provide him an opportunity of defending himself against custodial remand and to seek bail. Thus, the grounds of arrest would invariably be personal to the accused and cannot be equated with the reasons of arrest which are general in nature."

20. The next authority of significance is Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, (2025) 5 SCC 799. The facts in Vihaan Kumar (supra), which was a case of arrest in connection with offences under the Penal Code, unlike the special statutes, with onerous conditions of bail involved in Pankaj Bansal and Prabir Purkayastha, can best be recapitulated in the words of their Lordships as these appear from the report in Vihaan Kumar. These read:

"Factual aspect

2. A reference to a few factual aspects would be necessary. The challenge in this appeal is to the judgment and order dated 30-8-2024 [Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, 2024 SCC OnLine P&H 15495] passed by the learned Single Judge of the Punjab and Haryana High Court. The appellant was arrested in connection with First Information Report No. 121 of 2023 dated 25-3-2023 registered for the offences under Sections 409, 420, 467, 468 and 471 read with Section 120-B of the Penal Code, 1860 (for short IPC). According to the appellant's case, he was arrested on 10-6-2024 at about 10.30 a.m. at his office premises on the 3rd-5th floor of HUDA City Centre, Gurugram, Haryana. He was taken to DLF Police Station, Sector 29, Gurugram. He was allegedly produced before the learned Judicial Magistrate (in charge) at Gurgaon on 11-6-2024 at 3.30 p.m. Therefore, there was a violation of Article 22(2) of the Constitution and Section 57 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 (for short CrPC). The allegation is that neither in the remand report nor in the order dated 11-6-2024 passed by the learned Magistrate was the time of arrest mentioned. The FIR was registered at the instance of the second respondent. We may note here that, according to the case of the first respondent, the appellant was arrested on 10-6-2024 at 6.00 p.m. Therefore, compliance with the requirement of Article 22(2) was made.

3. There is another very serious factual aspect. The order dated 4-10-2024 [Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 4701] passed by this Court records that after the appellant was arrested, he was hospitalised in Pgims, Rohtak. The learned counsel appearing for the appellant produced photographs which showed that while he was admitted to the hospital, he was handcuffed and chained to the hospital bed. Therefore, a notice was issued on 4-10-2024 [Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 4701] to the Medical Superintendent of Pgims, calling upon him to file an affidavit stating whether the appellant was handcuffed and chained to the hospital bed. The order dated 21-10-2024 [Vihaan Kumar v. State of Haryana, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 4702] records the admission of the Medical Superintendent of Pgims that when the appellant was admitted to the hospital, he was handcuffed and chained to the bed. On this aspect, we may note that an affidavit was filed on 24-10-2024 by Shri Abhimanyu, HPS, Assistant Commissioner of Police, EOW I and II, Gurugram, Haryana. The affidavit states that the officials who were deployed to escort the appellant to Pgims have been suspended, and a departmental enquiry was ordered against them by the Deputy Commissioner of Police on 23-10-2024."

21. In Vihaan Kumar, stipulating the consequences of non-furnishing of grounds of arrest and its effect on the validity thereof, it was held:

"18. Therefore, as far as Article 22(1) is concerned, compliance can be made by communicating sufficient knowledge of the basic facts constituting the grounds of arrest to the person arrested. The grounds should be effectively and fully communicated to the arrestee in the manner in which he will fully understand the same. Therefore, it follows that the grounds of arrest must be informed in a language which the arrestee understands. That is how, in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450] , this Court held that the mode of conveying the grounds of arrest must necessarily be meaningful so as to serve the intended purpose. However, under Article 22(1), there is no requirement of communicating the grounds of arrest in writing. Article 22(1) also incorporates the right of every person arrested to consult an advocate of his choice and the right to be defended by an advocate. If the grounds of arrest are not communicated to the arrestee, as soon as may be, he will not be able to effectively exercise the right to consult an advocate. This requirement incorporated in Article 22(1) also ensures that the grounds for arresting the person without a warrant exist. Once a person is arrested, his right to liberty under Article 21 is curtailed. When such an important fundamental right is curtailed, it is necessary that the person concerned must understand on what grounds he has been arrested. That is why the mode of conveying information of the grounds must be meaningful so as to serve the objects stated above.

19. Thus, the requirement of informing the person arrested of the grounds of arrest is not a formality but a mandatory constitutional requirement. Article 22 is included in Part III of the Constitution under the heading of Fundamental Rights. Thus, it is the fundamental right of every person arrested and detained in custody to be informed of the grounds of arrest as soon as possible. If the grounds of arrest are not informed as soon as may be after the arrest, it would amount to a violation of the fundamental right of the arrestee guaranteed under Article 22(1). It will also amount to depriving the arrestee of his liberty. The reason is that, as provided in Article 21, no person can be deprived of his liberty except in accordance with the procedure established by law. The procedure established by law also includes what is provided in Article 22(1). Therefore, when a person is arrested without a warrant, and the grounds of arrest are not informed to him, as soon as may be, after the arrest, it will amount to a violation of his fundamental right guaranteed under Article 21 as well. In a given case, if the mandate of Article 22 is not followed while arresting a person or after arresting a person, it will also violate fundamental right to liberty guaranteed under Article 21, and the arrest will be rendered illegal. On the failure to comply with the requirement of informing grounds of arrest as soon as may be after the arrest, the arrest is vitiated. Once the arrest is held to be vitiated, the person arrested cannot remain in custody even for a second.

20. We have already referred to what is held in paras 42 and 43 of the decision in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450] . This Court has suggested that the proper and ideal course of communicating the grounds of arrest is to provide grounds of arrest in writing. Obviously, before a police officer communicates the grounds of arrest, the grounds of arrest have to be formulated. Therefore, there is no harm if the grounds of arrest are communicated in writing. Although there is no requirement to communicate the grounds of arrest in writing, what is stated in paras 42 and 43 of the decision in Pankaj Bansal [Pankaj Bansal v. Union of India, (2024) 7 SCC 576 : (2024) 3 SCC (Cri) 450] are suggestions that merit consideration. We are aware that in every case, it may not be practicable to implement what is suggested. If the course, as suggested, is followed, the controversy about the non-compliance will not arise at all. The police have to balance the rights of a person arrested with the interests of the society. Therefore, the police should always scrupulously comply with the requirements of Article 22.

21. An attempt was made by the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the first respondent to argue that after his arrest, the appellant was repeatedly remanded to custody, and now a charge-sheet has been filed. His submission is that now, the custody of the appellant is pursuant to the order taking cognizance passed on the charge-sheet. Accepting such arguments, with great respect to the learned Senior Counsel, will amount to completely nullifying Articles 21 and 22(1) of the Constitution. Once it is held that arrest is unconstitutional due to violation of Article 22(1), the arrest itself is vitiated. Therefore, continued custody of such a person based on orders of remand is also vitiated. Filing a charge-sheet and order of cognizance will not validate an arrest which is per se unconstitutional, being violative of Articles 21 and 22(1) of the Constitution of India. We cannot tinker with the most important safeguards provided under Article 22.

23. In the present case, the first respondent relied upon an entry in the case diary allegedly made at 6.10 p.m. on 10-6-2024, which records that the appellant was arrested after informing him of the grounds of arrest. For the reasons which will follow hereafter, we are rejecting the argument made by the first respondent. If the police want to prove communication of the grounds of arrest only based on a diary entry, it is necessary to incorporate those grounds of arrest in the diary entry or any other document. The grounds of arrest must exist before the same are informed. Therefore, in a given case, even assuming that the case of the police regarding requirements of Article 22(1) of the Constitution is to be accepted based on an entry in the case diary, there must be a contemporaneous record, which records what the grounds of arrest were. When an arrestee pleads before a court that grounds of arrest were not communicated, the burden to prove the compliance of Article 22(1) is on the police.

24. An argument was sought to be canvassed that in view of sub-section (1) of Section 50CrPC, there is an option to communicate to the person arrested full particulars of the offence for which he is arrested or the other grounds for the arrest. Section 50 cannot have the effect of diluting the requirement of Article 22(1). If held so, Section 50 will attract the vice of unconstitutionality. Section 50 lays down the requirement of communicating the full particulars of the offence for which a person is arrested to him. The other grounds for such arrest referred to in Section 50(1) have nothing to do with the grounds of arrest referred to in Article 22(1). The requirement of Section 50 is in addition to what is provided in Article 22(1). Section 47 of the BNSS is the corresponding provision. Therefore, what we have held about Section 50 will apply to Section 47 of the BNSS.

25. When an arrested person is produced before a Judicial Magistrate for remand, it is the duty of the Magistrate to ascertain whether compliance with Article 22(1) has been made. The reason is that due to non-compliance, the arrest is rendered illegal; therefore, the arrestee cannot be remanded after the arrest is rendered illegal. It is the obligation of all the courts to uphold the fundamental rights.

Conclusions

26. Therefore, we conclude:

26.1. The requirement of informing a person arrested of grounds of arrest is a mandatory requirement of Article 22(1);

26.2. The information of the grounds of arrest must be provided to the arrested person in such a manner that sufficient knowledge of the basic facts constituting the grounds is imparted and communicated to the arrested person effectively in the language which he understands. The mode and method of communication must be such that the object of the constitutional safeguard is achieved;

26.3. When arrested accused alleges non-compliance with the requirements of Article 22(1), the burden will always be on the investigating officer/agency to prove compliance with the requirements of Article 22(1);

26.4. Non-compliance with Article 22(1) will be a violation of the fundamental rights of the accused guaranteed by the said Article. Moreover, it will amount to a violation of the right to personal liberty guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution. Therefore, non-compliance with the requirements of Article 22(1) vitiates the arrest of the accused. Hence, further orders passed by a criminal court of remand are also vitiated. Needless to add that it will not vitiate the investigation, charge-sheet and trial. But, at the same time, filing of charge-sheet will not validate a breach of constitutional mandate under Article 22(1);

26.5. When an arrested person is produced before a Judicial Magistrate for remand, it is the duty of the Magistrate to ascertain whether compliance with Article 22(1) and other mandatory safeguards has been made; and

26.6. When a violation of Article 22(1) is established, it is the duty of the court to forthwith order the release of the accused. That will be a ground to grant bail even if statutory restrictions on the grant of bail exist. The statutory restrictions do not affect the power of the court to grant bail when the violation of Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution is established."

22. At this stage, we must notice an unreported decision of the Supreme Court in State of Madhya Pradesh and others v. Kusum Sahu in Criminal Appeal No. 4710 of 2025, decided on 03.11.2025, to which our attention was drawn by the learned A.G.A. The facts in Kusum Sahu (supra) would show that the accused there, one Jibrakhan Lal Sahu, was arrested in connection with Crime No.157 of 2021, under Sections 409, 420 IPC on 12.12.2023. A charge sheet was filed on 09.02.2024. He made a bail application before the High Court, which was dismissed as withdrawn on 23.01.2024. He then filed a second bail application, which was dismissed by the High Court on 05.03.2024. A third bail application filed by the accused was rejected on 14.03.2024. A fourth bail application was also filed, which was dismissed by the High Court on 29.05.2024. The Supreme Court has remarked that the facts show that within a period of four months, the accused preferred four bail applications before the High Court and all failed. The accused's daughter then filed a writ petition before the High Court, seeking grant of a writ of habeas corpus to seek the accused s release from custody, which was termed as unlawful detention by the State. This writ petition was allowed by the High Court, which brought the State of Madhya Pradesh in appeal to the Supreme Court by special leave. It was in this context of these facts that it was held by the Supreme Court in Kusum Sahu:

"16. The facts of the case, as noticed above, in brief, indicate that the manner in which the case has been dealt with really shocks the conscience of this Court. It is a case where accused was arrested and filed four bail applications before the High Court, which were rejected. Despite this, in a habeas corpus petition filed by his daughter, his custody has been held to be unlawful and he was directed to be released while examining the case on merits as if the Court was hearing appeal against the order rejecting the bail application. The process followed is totally unknown to law. Lest the High Court starts following the impugned order as a precedent to scuttle the due process of law, to nip the evil in the bud, we hold that custody of an accused in a criminal case registered against him cannot be held to be unlawful especially when his bail applications have been dismissed. In the case at hand, it is not disputed that Jibrakhan Lal Sahu, father of the respondent herein, is an accused in a criminal case registered against him in which chargesheet has also been filed."

23. The last authority in point is Mihir Rajesh Shah v. State of Maharashtra, (2026) 1 SCC 500. The facts, giving rise to the issues involved in Mihir Rajesh Shah (supra), can best be noticed from the words of their Lordships as these appear in the report. These read:

"2. The main issue as raised by the appellants in these appeals is the violation of the appellants' right under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and Section 50 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 (CrPC), now Section 47 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 (BNSS 2023) as the appellants assert that they were not informed of grounds of their arrest in writing.

3. For convenience, Criminal Appeal No. 2195 of 2025 is taken as the lead case. The facts in a nutshell are that on 7-7-2024, a white BMW car, driven at a high speed, collided violently with the complainant's scooter from behind. The force of the impact propelled both the complainant and his wife onto the car's bonnet, whereby the complainant was thrown to the side, and tragically, his wife became ensnared between the vehicle's front left wheel and bumper. Notwithstanding this grievous state, the driver, alleged to be Mihir Rajesh Shah, the appellant herein, persisted in his reckless flight, dragging the victim, thereafter absconding without rendering assistance or reporting the incident to authorities. The victim succumbed to the severe injuries sustained in this collision, as medically confirmed, while the complainant sustained minor injuries.

4. FIR No. 378/2024 was registered at Worli Police Station under the relevant provisions of Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 (BNS 2023), and the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. Initial investigative steps included the identification of the offending vehicle through CCTV footage, and the discovery near Kalanagar Junction Flyover of the damaged BMW alongside Rajrishi Rajendra Singh Bindawat and Rajesh Shah, father of Mihir Rajesh Shah (hereinafter the appellant). Arrests soon followed, with co-accused Rajrishi Rajendra Singh Bindawat being taken into custody on the same day and Mihir Rajesh Shah being apprehended on 9-7-2024. The evidence collected firmly established the appellant as the driver at the material time, including CCTV footage capturing his presence at the wheel, consumption of alcohol shortly before the incident, an attempt to alter his appearance, and use of a Fastag registered in his name, amongst other incriminating particulars.

5. The remand proceedings saw the appellant being produced before the Judicial Magistrate First Class with initial police custody extending subsequently into judicial custody; a course contested on the grounds that the grounds of arrest were not furnished in writing as mandated by Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India and Section 47 of BNSS 2023 equivalent to Section 50CrPC."

24. Two questions were formulated by their Lordships of the Supreme Court for consideration, that read:

"7. This Court, while considering the special leave petition recorded that the Court is not inclined to entertain the petition on its merits and issued notice only to the extent of considering the question of law/legal position. In connected cases, being Criminal Appeal No. 2189 of 2025 and Criminal Appeal No. 2190 of 2025, this Court vide order dated 22-4-2025 [Mihir Rajesh Shah v. State of Maharashtra, 2025 SCC OnLine SC 2531], has granted ad interim relief and directed the appellants to be released on bail during pendency of these appeals. In Special Leave Petition (Criminal) No. 8704 of 2025 vide order dated 2-6-2025 [Ajit Atmaram Apraj v. State of Maharashtra, 2025 SCC OnLine SC 2532] , ad interim relief was also granted to the petitioner therein directing his release on bail. On 13-12-2024 [Mihir Rajesh Shah v. State of Maharashtra, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 5780] , Mr Shri Singh, learned counsel, who was present in the Court was appointed as Amicus Curiae to assist this Court in this matter."

25. It was held in Mihir Rajesh Shah:

"44. These above discussed principles embody the manifestation of the constitutional safeguard sought to be achieved in Article 22 of the Constitution of India which is that the arrested person must be well equipped with the information not only about his arrest but the reasons and grounds thereof prior to his production before the Magistrate so as to enable him to effectively defend himself and oppose the police and judicial custody and even press for bail. The obligation to inform the grounds of arrest to the arrestee is thus, not just a mere procedural formality, instead it flows from the fundamental right of personal liberty which sets the further course for protection from the oppressive restrictions imposed upon the free movement in the society of an arrestee during remand.

45. A plain reading of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India shows that the intent of the Constitution makers while incorporating the provisions was not to create any exceptional circumstances, instead it reads as No person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest . , it casts a mandatory unexceptional duty on the State to provide the arrested person with the grounds of such arrest with the objective to enable that person to be able to defend himself by consulting a legal practitioner of his choice. This mandate of Article 22(1) is notwithstanding any exception. This Court has made it explicit that the constitutional obligation under Article 22 is not statute-specific and it is grounded in fundamental right of life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, therefore making it applicable to all offences including those under the Penal Code, 1860 (now BNS 2023).

46. The requirement of informing the arrested person the grounds of arrest, in the light of and under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, is not a mere formality but a mandatory binding constitutional safeguard which has been included in Part III of the Constitution under the head of Fundamental Rights. Thus, if a person is not informed of the grounds of his arrest as soon as maybe, it would amount to the violation of his fundamental rights thereby curtailing his right to life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, rendering the arrest illegal.

47. Another aspect, which flows from the above discussion and merits consideration is the mode of informing grounds of arrest to the arrested person to effectively serve the intended purpose of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India. This Court, as observed above, had held that it would not be ideal to read out the grounds of arrest to a person who is arrested, as he may not be in the frame of mind to remember the contents of grounds that are read out to him. The Court underscored that if the authorities are permitted to read out the grounds and claim compliance with the constitutional and statutory mandate, the very purpose of the constitutional protection would be nugatory.

48. As mentioned above, it has been held while dealing with the mode of communicating the grounds of arrest so as to serve the intended purpose of the constitutional mandate that the language used in Articles 22(1) and 22(5) regarding communication of the grounds is identical and therefore the interpretation of Article 22(5) shall ipso facto apply to Article 22(1). The grounds of arrest must be furnished in writing, in order to attend the true intended purpose of Article 22(1). Reference at this stage may be made to the Constitution Bench judgment of this Court in Harikisan [Harikisan v. State of Maharashtra, 1962 SCC OnLine SC 117] wherein while dealing with Article 22(5) of the Constitution of India in the context of the right of a detainee to be made aware of the grounds of arrest, it has been held that the same should be furnished in a language which he can understand and in a script which he can read, if he is a literate person.

49. The relevant portion thereof reads thus: (Harikisan case [Harikisan v. State of Maharashtra, 1962 SCC OnLine SC 117] , SCC OnLine SC paras 7-8)

"7. It has not been found by the High Court that the appellant knew enough English to understand the grounds of his detention. The High Court has only stated that he has studied up to 7th Hindi standard, which is equivalent to 3rd English standard . The High Court negatived the contention raised on behalf of the appellant not on the ground that the appellant knew enough English, to understand the case against him, but on the ground, as already indicated, that the service upon him of the order and grounds of detention in English was enough communication to him to enable him to make his representation. We must, therefore, proceed on the assumption that the appellant did not know enough English to understand the grounds, contained in many paragraphs, as indicated above, in order to be able effectively to make his representation against the order of detention. The learned Attorney-General has tried to answer this contention in several ways. He has first contended that when the Constitution speaks of communicating the grounds of detention to the detenue, it means communication in the official language, which continues to be English; secondly, the communication need not be in writing and the translation and explanation in Hindi offered by the Inspector of Police, while serving the order of detention and the grounds would be enough compliance with the requirements of the law and the Constitution; and thirdly, that it was not necessary in the circumstances of the case to supply the grounds in Hindi. In our opinion, this was not sufficient compliance in this case with the requirements of the Constitution, as laid down in clause (5) of Article 22. To a person, who is not conversant with the English language, service of the order and the grounds of detention in English, with their oral translation or explanation by the police officer serving them does not fulfil the requirements of the law. As has been explained by this Court in State of Bombay v. Atma Ram Sridhar Vaidya [State of Bombay v. Atma Ram Sridhar Vaidya, 1951 SCC 43 : 1951 SCR 167] clause (5) of Article 22 requires that the grounds of his detention should be made available to the detenue as soon as may be, and that the earliest opportunity of making a representation against the order should also be afforded to him. In order that the detenue should have that opportunity, it is not sufficient that he has been physically delivered the means of knowledge with which to make his representation. In order that the detenue should be in a position effectively to make his representation against the order, he should have knowledge of the grounds of detention, which are in the nature of the charge against him setting out the kinds of prejudicial acts which the authorities attribute to him. Communication, in this context, must, therefore, mean imparting to the detenue sufficient knowledge of all the grounds on which the order of detention is based. In this case the grounds are several, and are based on numerous speeches said to have been made by the appellant himself on different occasions and different dates. Naturally, therefore, any oral translation or explanation given by the police officer serving those on the detenue would not amount to communicating the grounds. Communication, in this context, must mean bringing home to the detenue effective knowledge of the facts and circumstances on which the order of detention is based.

8. We do not agree with the High Court in its conclusion that in every case communication of the grounds of detention in English, so long as it continues to be the official language of the State, is enough compliance with the requirements of the Constitution. If the detained person is conversant with the English language, he will naturally be in a position to understand the gravamen of the charge against him and the facts and circumstances on which the order of detention is based. But to a person who is not so conversant with the English language, in order to satisfy the requirements of the Constitution, the detenue must be given the grounds in a language which he can understand, and in a script which he can read, if he is a literate person.

50. Further, the above judgment has been reiterated and followed by this Court in Lallubhai Jogibhai Patel v. Union of India [Lallubhai Jogibhai Patel v. Union of India, (1981) 2 SCC 427 : 1981 SCC (Cri) 463 : (1982) 52 Comp Cas 543] wherein it has been reaffirmed that grounds of detention must be communicated to the detenu in writing in a language which he understands.

51. On perusal of the above two judgments, it turns out that mere communication of the grounds in a language not understood by the person arrested does not fulfil the constitutional mandate under Article 22 of the Constitution of India. The failure to supply such grounds in a language understood by the arrestee renders the constitutional safeguards illusory and infringes the personal liberty of the person as guaranteed under Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. The objective of the constitutional mandate is to place the person in a position to comprehend the basis of the allegations levelled against him and it can only be realised when the grounds are furnished in a language understood by the person, thereby enabling him to exercise his rights effectively.

52. From the catena of decisions discussed above, the legal position which emerges is that the constitutional mandate provided in Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India is not a mere procedural formality but a constitutional safeguard in the form of fundamental rights. The intent and purpose of the constitutional mandate is to prepare the arrested person to defend himself. If the provisions of Article 22(1) are read in a restrictive manner, its intended purpose of securing personal liberty would not be achieved rather curtailed and put to disuse.

53. The mode of communicating the grounds of arrest must be such that it effectively serves the intended purpose as envisioned under the Constitution of India which is to enable the arrested person to get legal counsel, oppose the remand and effectively defend himself by exercising his rights and safeguards as provided in law. The grounds of arrest must be provided to the arrestee in such a manner that sufficient knowledge of facts constituting grounds is imparted and communicated to the arrested person effectively in a language which he/she understands. The mode of communication ought to be such that it must achieve the intended purpose of the constitutional safeguard. The objective of the constitutional mandate would not be fulfilled by mere reading out the grounds to the arrested person, such an approach would be antithesis to the purpose of Article 22(1).

54. There is no harm in providing the grounds of arrest in writing in the language the arrestee understands, this approach would not only fulfil the true intent of the constitutional mandate but will also be beneficial for the investigating agency to prove that the grounds of arrest were informed to the arrestee when a challenge is made to the arrest on the plea of non-furnishing of the grounds of arrest.

55. This Court is of the opinion that to achieve the intended objective of the constitutional mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, the grounds of arrest must be informed to the arrested person in each and every case without exception and the mode of the communication of such grounds must be in writing in the language he understands.

56. It would not be out of context now to refer to an obligation which has been imposed on a person making arrest, as provided under Section 50-A read in relation to Section 50CrPC (now Sections 48 and 47 of BNSS 2023 respectively), to inform the arrestee of his right to indicate his relative, friend or such other person for the purpose of giving information with regard to his arrest. Simultaneously, a duty has also been cast on the person making arrest to forthwith thereafter inform of such arrest with reasons and the place where the arrested person is being held to the such indicated person. The police officer/person making any arrest shall make an entry of the fact as to who has been informed of such an arrest in a book to be kept in the police station. Further protection in this regard is reflected when a duty has been cast on the Magistrate to satisfy himself, when the arrestee is produced before him, that the above requirement stands complied with. This requirement is in addition to the rights of an arrestee to be made aware of the grounds of arrest.

58. It is by now settled that if the grounds of arrest are not furnished to the arrestee in writing, this non-compliance will result in breach of the constitutional and statutory safeguards hence rendering the arrest and remand illegal and the person will be entitled to be set at liberty. The statute is silent with regard to the mode, nature or the time and stage at which the grounds of arrest has to be communicated. Article 22 says as soon as may be which would obviously not mean prior to arrest but can be on arrest or thereafter. The indication is as early as it can be conveyed. There may be situations wherein it may not be practically possible to supply such grounds of arrest to the arrested person at the time of his arrest or immediately."

26. We must remark here that there are some features regarding safeguards attending the arrest of the accused, which have been given a more definitive shape in Mihir Rajesh Shah. It has been beyond cavil for sometime now that there is an obligation upon the Police or the other enforcement agencies arresting an accused in a crime or a suspect, to furnish the grounds of detention at the time of arrest, or as soon as may be. It has also been settled that if the grounds of arrest in the language understood by the accused are not furnished, the arrest would be rendered illegal, notwithstanding the filing of a charge sheet or a prosecution going ahead. The grounds of arrest, as distinguished from reasons of arrest, have already been the subject matter of pronouncement in Prabir Purkayastha. The principle that grounds of detention should be in writing has also been clearly propounded in Prabir Purkayastha and that the breach of this obligation on the part of the investigating agency would render the custody illegal. The principle that the mere fact that a charge sheet has been filed, would not validate the illegality emanating from non-communications of the grounds of arrest, is well crystallized in Prabir Purkayastha. These principles have been developed on the edifice of the earlier decisions governing the issue.

27. Mihir Rajesh Shah further crystallized the obligations of the Police or other investigating agency by saying that if the grounds are not furnished at the time of arrest, these have to be done as soon as may be, is a matter, which has to be confined to a precise time. Earlier what meant 'as soon as may be' was not defined with reference to a particular event or a calendar. Now, in Mihir Rajesh Shah, it has been held that if the grounds cannot be furnished at the time of arrest for any reason, this must be done within a reasonable time, and, in any case, at least two hours prior to production of the accused before the Magistrate for remand. The pegging down of time to two hours before remand proceedings is a principle laid down in Mihir Rajesh Shah. We notice that Mihir Rajesh Shah, on its own terms, makes the law there, applicable prospectively, that is to say, the future arrests. All arrests made after Mihir Rajesh Shah would have to abide by the further principles developed there. It has no retrospective application.

28. So far as the petitioner s case is concerned, he need not fall back upon Mihir Rajesh Shah, which would not be attracted to his case because the petitioner was arrested on 20.04.2025 and Mihir Rajesh Shah as decided on 06.11.2025. The concluding remarks of their Lordships in paragraph no. 58 of the report would make Mihir Rajesh Shah unavailable to the petitioner. Nevertheless, the principle evolved in Pankaj Bansal, Prabir Purkayastha and Vihaan Kumar are squarely applicable to the petitioner s case.

29. We must, at this stage, answer what the learned A.G.A. argued that the principle in Kusum Sahu would take this case out of the teeth of Pankaj Bansal, Prabir Purkayastha and Vihaan Kumar, as this is a matter, where the petitioner had already applied for bail before the learned Sessions Judge and suffered a rejection of his plea. He cannot now turn around and say that the arrest was illegal and, thus, secure bail indirectly, what he could not do on merits. It is true that the principle in Kusum Sahu appears to be that way, but the illegality in Kusum Sahu, that was the subject matter of frown by their Lordships of the Supreme Court, was in an entirely different context. The first was that four successive bail applications were made to the High Court itself within a span of four months and all these were rejected. It was then that a habeas corpus petition was moved before the High Court, and invoking the principles of illegality of arrest, a writ of habeas corpus was granted, restoring the accused to his liberty. While doing so, their Lordships of the High Court appear to have examined the merits of the accused s case, which led the Supreme Court to remark that the High Court, while considering the habeas corpus plea, directed release of the accused examining the case on merits as if the Court was hearing appeal against the order rejecting the bail application . This is not the case here at all. For one, the High Court was never moved by way of a bail plea, much less the plea being turned down.

30. What is more important is that in this petition, it is not the merits of the case that we have examined or were invited to examine by the petitioner. What we have examined is the legality of the arrest and the remand order, pursuant to which the petitioner is in judicial custody. If the arrest and the remand order are illegal applying the principles in Pankaj Bansal, Prabir Purkayastha and Vihaan Kumar dehors a reference to the merits of the prosecution or the defence, the principle in Kusum Sahu, to our understanding, would not be attracted. The contention of the learned A.G.A. on this score cannot, therefore, be accepted.

31. Now, we may turn to the steps taken in fulfillment of their obligations by the Police to arrest the petitioner. The only obligation is to inform the petitioner of the grounds of arrest at the time he is arrested, or as soon as may be. The petitioner says that he was never informed of the ground of his arrest, either at the time or within a reasonable period of time after the arrest. In fact, he was never informed of the grounds until remand. The only record of the grounds of arrest, which the State have produced, is the memorandum of arrest and G.D. Entry No.27 dated 20.04.2025. Both of these are said to carry the grounds of arrest. We have quoted both these documents in extenso earlier.

32. So far as the memo of arrest dated 20.04.2025 is concerned, column no. 10, which says, giraftari kaa karan, has been left blank for an answer by the respondent. It is utterly blank with nothing said for a reason. About this, we were told that sub-columns ka, kha, ga, gha, anga carry the relevant reasons, which constitute the grounds of arrest. Column no. 10-ka says to prevent such a person from further committing an offence . The answer is haan (yes) . Column no. 10-kha mentions for the purpose of appropriate investigation into the offence . The answer is again haan (yes) . Likewise, column no. 10-ga says 'to prevent such a person from destroying evidence or tampering with it'. The answer is again haan (yes) . Likewise, are the succeeding two columns and in answer to each, the answer is the same, which is haan (yes) . This arrest memo does not carry grounds of arrest, but reasons of arrest. The reasons have already been distinguished from grounds by the Supreme Court in Prabir Purkayastha (see paragraphs 37 and 48 of report). There is absolutely no ground mentioned in the memo of arrest.

33. We may next turn our attention to the case diary, in particular, G.D. No.27 dated 20.04.2025. No doubt, this part of the case diary is contemporaneous with the petitioner's arrest, but all that it says for a reason, rendered into English, says: "the accused Rakesh aforesaid was informed of his crime under Sections 87, 127(4), 64(1), 143(2) BNS and the accused Harveer and Onkar of their crime under Section 143(2) BNS, and taken into police custody at about 08.50 hours. During arrest, guidelines of the Supreme Court and the Human Rights Commission were fully complied with. Information of the accused's arrest will be given to their relatives." The other facts mentioned in the case diary relate to the manner of arrest, the receipt of information from a secret informer and confinement of the accused to the Police Lockup. There is nothing to show in G.D. No.27 that there is any contemporaneous mention of the grounds of arrest, much less something that was brought to the petitioner's notice at the time or soon after his arrest. There was nothing recorded contemporaneously, which could have been brought to the petitioner's notice at the time of arrest or as soon as may be. The mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution, necessitates furnishing the accused grounds of detention in writing in a language understood by him, the requirement of the grounds being furnished in writing being clearly culled out by the Supreme Court in Prabir

Purkayastha. The purpose of furnishing these grounds is to enable the accused to exercise his right to win his liberty back at the time of proceedings for remand. The course of action here shows that everything happened from arrest to production before the Remand Magistrate on 20.04.2025 and all during this time, the petitioner was not informed of the grounds of his arrest. The petitioner was, therefore, disabled from exercising his right under Article 22(1) of the Constitution, either personally or through the assistance of Counsel, because he never knew in what connection and on what precise grounds and facts, he has been taken into custody. He might not have known the facts even thereafter until he moved his application for bail before the learned Sessions Judge. The petitioner has consistently denied that no grounds were ever supplied to him and it is the burden of the Police to establish that the grounds were indeed supplied. They have not been able to discharge it.

34. The petitioner was produced before the Remand Magistrate on the same day i.e. 20.04.2025 and this takes us to the remand order passed by the Magistrate, which too we have not only extracted, but caused a photostat copy thereof to be shown in the earlier part of this judgment. A perusal of the remand order shows not only non-compliance with the provisions of Article 22(1) with the Magistrate inquiring into the grounds of arrest before granting a judicial remand, but shows that it is the most mechanical kind of remand granted by the learned Magistrate. The entire remand order is written on a printed proforma with blanks filled up. These have been filled up in either by a clerk or the reader attached to the learned Magistrate or by the learned Magistrate himself and signed by him. Everything else is already printed.

35. This is a classical case of a remand order made by the Judicial Magistrate, being rendered illegal due to the failure to ensure compliance with the requirements of Article 22(1) of the Constitution. In paragraph no. 25 of the report in Vihaan Kumar, the principle delineated is clear that when the arrested person is produced before a Magistrate, it is his duty to ascertain whether compliance with Article 22(1) has been made. If there is non-compliance, the arrest is rendered illegal and the accused cannot be remanded. A remand made without following the aforesaid procedure and ascertaining adherence to the mandate of Article 22(1) would be illegal and so also the ensuing custody.

36. In the result, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order of remand is hereby quashed. The petitioner shall be produced before the learned Magistrate or the Trial Court, where the case is pending, and upon his production, the Court shall release him from custody, subject to the petitioner furnishing a bond in accordance with Section 91 BNSS to the satisfaction of the learned Magistrate or the Trial Court concerned. The petitioner shall by his bond undertake to regularly attend the trial on each date fixed and not seek adjournment on any ground. It is made clear that this order of ours will neither affect the ongoing trial at whatever stage it is, nor the merit or the worth of the charges that the prosecution have brought against the petitioner. The learned Sessions Judge, Sambhal is directed to ensure that all Magistrate functioning under his subordination do not grant a police or a judicial remand casually in a printed proforma and most certainly not without ascertaining the fact if the grounds of arrest have been communicated to the accused in writing by the Police or the other agency involved.

37. Let this judgment be communicated by the Registrar (Compliance) to the learned Sessions Judge, Sambhal, the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sambhal and through the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sambhal to the Jail Superintendent of the Jail where the petitioner is in custody.

Issue for Consideration

(i) Did the State Government have power to stay the District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015, through the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the order dated 31.03.2015?
(ii) Can the finding of lapse under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013 be upheld on the facts of this case?

Headnotes

Land Acquisition Act, 1894, Sections 11, 48 - Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, Section 24 - Disputed land formed part of a larger acquisition of 9.270 hectares comprising 28 gatas in Village Manoharpur - Acquisition commenced with notification dated 06.04.2000 issued under Section 4(1) read with Section 17(4) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, invoking the urgency provisions under Section 17(1) - land was required by the Moradabad Development Authority (MDA) for developing a planned residential colony - No award under Section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was ever made in respect of the petitioners' land - A possession memo dated 02.04.2003 recorded that possession of the entire 9.270 hectares, including the disputed land had been taken after Rs.1.07 crore, stated to be 80% of the estimated compensation, was deposited in the Government Treasury - petitioners asked the State Government to exempt their land from acquisition - Vice Chairman of the MDA informed the State Government that exemption of the petitioners' land from acquisition would not adversely affect the MDA's scheme - State Government directed the Vice Chairman of the MDA to adjust the petitioners' land - proposal was placed before the MDA Board in its meeting and was rejected - petitioners and their co-sharers filed Writ Petition seeking, inter alia, a declaration that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 11-A of the Act, 1894 - Writ Petition was decided and it was directed that, if the petitioners had made an application under Section 48 before 02.04.2003, the same be considered and decided within six weeks, with status quo regarding possession for six weeks - petitioners submitted a representation - State Government rejected it stating that possession had already been handed over to the MDA and there was no reason to exempt or adjust the land - The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 came into force on 01.01.2014 and repealed the Act, 1894 subject to the saving provisions contained in Section 24 - petitioners thereafter moved an application dated 03.02.2014 before the Collector, Moradabad, contending that neither an award had been made nor possession had been taken - By a detailed order dated 16.01.2015, the District Magistrate held that the acquisition had lapsed under Section 24(2) of the Act, 2013, relying upon the Tehsil report to hold that physical possession remained with the petitioners and upon Pune Municipal Corporation to hold that deposit of 80% compensation in the Government Treasury did not amount to payment to the tenure-holders - State Government passed the impugned order dated 31.03.2015 staying the District Magistrate's order with immediate effect and directing further action under the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 - Aggrieved by the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the consequential order dated 31.03.2015, the petitioners filed the present writ petition.

Held:

A. District Magistrate had acted pursuant to the Division Bench order dated 07.10.2014, had issued notice to the parties, heard both sides and passed a reasoned order dated 16.01.2015 - District Magistrate's order dated 16.01.2015 was not a simple administrative order but a quasi-judicial order passed after deciding a legal dispute between the parties - once such a quasi-judicial order is passed, it can be changed only in the manner provided by law, such as through an appeal, revision, or judicial review by a competent court, if the statute permits - Section 24 of the Act, 2013 does not give the State Government any power to review or set aside an order passed under that provision - power to alter, review or set aside a decision already rendered is not an inherent power and must be conferred by law, either expressly or by necessary implication - Government Order dated 30.01.2015 came into existence only after the District Magistrate had passed his order dated 16.01.2015 - no provision was shown giving the Government Order dated 30.01.2015 any retrospective effect - it could not, therefore, be used to reopen a decision already taken - Government Order dated 30.01.2015 and the order dated 31.03.2015 were without jurisdiction and could not stand - action amounted to colourable exercise of power and was arbitrary and perverse in law. [Paras 8.2-8.10]

B. MDA's submission that the District Magistrate had no jurisdiction to decide the petitioners' claim under Section 24 rejected - State Government's own Government Order dated 24.03.2014 directed District Magistrates across the State to decide such claims by passing speaking orders - Division Bench order dated 07.10.2014 sent the matter back to the Collector concerned for decision afresh after due notice to the parties - MDA did not challenge that order and could not subsequently contend that the very authority to whom the matter was sent lacked jurisdiction to decide it. [Paras 8.7-8.9]

C. Where no award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 had been made, Section 24(1)(a) applied and only the provisions relating to determination of compensation under the Act, 2013 applied - No award under Section 11 had ever been made in respect of the petitioners' three gatas and, therefore, their case appeared to fall under Section 24(1)(a) and not Section 24(2) - District Magistrate had relied upon Pune Municipal Corporation v. Harakchand Misrimal Solanki, which stood overruled by the Constitution Bench in Indore Development Authority v. Manoharlal - Finding of lapse under Section 24(2) suffered from two serious legal difficulties, namely, applicability of Section 24(2) where no award under Section 11 was ever made and the District Magistrate's conclusion regarding payment of compensation being based on a legal position which had since been overruled by the Constitution Bench - Court did not consider it necessary to finally decide the issue of applicability of Section 24(2) in the present case and left it open for an appropriate case - Finding of lapse under Section 24(2) was not free from legal doubt and could not by itself be made the sole basis for granting relief to the petitioners. [Paras 8.11-8.16]

D. Petitioners had from the very beginning sought release of their land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894 - Section 48 gives the Government the power to withdraw from acquiring any land as long as physical possession of the land has not been taken - power to release land from acquisition under Section 48 lies with the State Government and not with the MDA - State Government directed to decide the petitioners' long-pending application for release of the land under Section 48 of the Act, 1894, after considering all relevant records including the Tehsil report, possession memo, Board's resolution and letters of the Vice Chairman - writ petition partly allowed - Government Orders dated 30.01.2015 and 31.03.2015 quashed - matter remitted to the State Government to decide the pending application for release of the land within three months - parties directed to maintain status quo regarding possession until such decision - no order as to costs. Case Arising From

Grievance of the petitioner regarding non-action on his representation by District Level Committee constituted under the Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, 2007, resulting in execution of two sale-deeds, which the petitioner claimed to be forged and the Will forming the foundation of the said sale-deeds itself alleged to be a forged document.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioner (s) : Dharmendra Kumar
Advs. for the Respondent(s): Abhishek Srivastava, C.S.C., Indra Pal Singh Rajpoot, Rajesh Mishra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Alok Kumar Dwivedi, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner, Mr. Akhilesh Kumar Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel appearing for respondents no.1 to 6, Mr. Indra Pal Singh Rajpoot, learned counsel appearing for respondents no.7 to 10 and Mr. Rajesh Mishra, learned counsel appearing for respondents no.11 and 12.

2. The petitioner, who claims himself to be senior citizen has approached this Court with following main reliefs:-

"1. Issue a writ of Mandamus commanding Respondent Nos. 2 to 4 (District Magistrate, Superintendent of Police and Sub-Divisional Magistrate) to forthwith provide round-the-clock police protection to the petitioner and his property House No. 373, Kasba Rath, District Hamirpur.

2. Issue a writ of Prohibition restraining Respondent Nos. 6 to 12 from interfering in any manner whatsoever with the petitioner's peaceful possession.

3. Declare that the forged Will and registration of sale deed dated 17.11.2025 are prima facie void, and direct the competent authority to take time-bound legal action in accordance with law.

4. Direct a time-bound inquiry (within 15 days) into the failure of the District Magistrate, Superintendent of Police, Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Circle Officer and Station House Officer in discharging statutory duties under Section 22 of the Act, 2007.

5. within a fixed time frame non-action on representations dated 13.10.2025 and 14.11.2025, and 01.02.2026 failure to prevent creation of forged documents.

3. Shorn to unnecessary details the facts leading to instant writ petition can be summarized as under:-

The petitioner happens to be son of one Bhagwandas, who was owner of property described as house recorded in his name in the assessment register of Nagar Palika Parishad, Rath. A Will is said to have been executed by testator Bhagwandas alias Garibdas on 18.08.2004 in favour of private respondents and thereafter the beneficiaries of the Will executed two different sale-deeds on 17.11.2025, which have been brought on record by means of Annexures No.3 & 4 to this writ petition.

The petitioner pleads that he is the lawful owner and is in peaceful settled possession of house in question as such, he filed a representation addressed to the District Magistrate, Hamirpur seeking protection of his property under the mandate of Section 22 of Maintenance and Welfare of Parents and Senior Citizens Act, 2007 (here-in-after shall be referred to as the ' the Act, 2007').

4. The grievance as voiced by the petitioner in his representation is, that despite receipt of said representation, no action at the end of District Administration and Police Authorities including District Level Committee constituted under the Act was taken, resultantly execution of two sale-deeds on the same day, even the reminder representation filed on 14.11.2025 could not activate the State machinery. The petitioner claims these sale-deeds to be forged by raising a plea that the sale-deeds so executed are without authority of law, as the Will, which is the foundation of these two sale-deeds for the purpose of flow of title, itself is forged document. Further submission is the executant of sale-deed had no title to convey, there exist no lawful chain of title and in this factual backdrop the property of petitioner ought to have been protected and the private respondents being third party ought to have been restrained from any sort of interference in property in question. The private respondents are alleged to be land grabbers and anti-social elements, though no material indicating any instances could be set-forth.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner in order to buttress his submissions relied upon Section 22 of the Act, which reads as under:-

"22. Authorities who may be specified for implementing the provisions of this Act. (1) The State Government may, confer such powers and impose such duties on a District Magistrate as may be necessary, to ensure that the provisions of this Act are properly carried out and the District Magistrate may specify the officer, subordinate to him, who shall exercise all or any of the powers, and perform all or any of the duties, so conferred or imposed and the local limits within which such powers or duties shall be carried out by the officer as may be prescribed.

(2) The State Government shall prescribe a comprehensive action plan for providing protection of life and property of senior citizens."

6. From bare perusal of Section 22 of the Act it comes out, that law mandates the State Government to prescribe a comprehensive action plan for providing protection of life and property of senior citizens.

7. The much stress has been laid on Section 22(2) of the Act that the property of senior citizens are to be protected by the State machinery, which they palpably failed as the inaction of State machinery had led to registration of aforesaid sale-deeds.

8. Submissions as advanced by counsel for the petitioner are that the State administration collectively failed to extend protection of property of petitioner, who is admittedly a senior citizen, thus, they defied the statutory mandate cast upon them under Section 22 (2) of the Act.

9. It has strenuously been urged that the State Government having issued relevant Government Orders in the shape of comprehensive action plan by constituting District Level and State Level Committees, allowed such committees to remain ineffective. Thus, the Constitutional rights guaranteed under Article 300 A in Part XII of the Constitution of India remained flouted.

10. The constitution of State Level and District Level Committees as per comprehensive action plan remained ineffective particularly for the petitioner as his representations have not been paid any heed at all.

11. The counsel for the private respondents submitted that civil suit interse the parties is pending adjudication and the transferor is not alien to the property under dispute as they are heirs of late Bhagwandas (the admitted owner) of property in question and they have transferred their share only by means of conveyance/title deed as such the Act, 2007 has no field to play in the instant matter.

12. The statutory scheme of the Act provides transfer of property to be void in certain circumstances. Section 23 of the Act reads as under :-

"23. Transfer of property to be void in certain circumstances.-(1) Where any senior citizen who, after the commencement of this Act, has transferred by way of gift or otherwise, his property, subject to the condition that the transferee shall provide the basic amenities and basic physical needs to the transferor and such transferee refuses or fails to provide such amenities and physical needs, the said transfer of property shall be deemed to have been made by fraud or coercion or under undue influence and shall at the option of the transferor be declared void by the Tribunal.

(2) Where any senior citizen has a right to receive maintenance out of an estate and such estate or part thereof is transferred, the right to receive maintenance may be enforced against the transferee if the transferee has notice of the right, or if the transfer is gratuitous; but not against the transferee for consideration and without 1.0tice of right.

(3) If, any senior citizen is incapable of enforcing the rights under sub- sections (1) and (2), action may be taken on his behalf by any of the organisation referred to in Explanation to sub-section (1) of section 5."

13. Barring Section 23 of the Act, 2007 there is absolute absence of power and procedure vested in tribunal/authorities to declare any title deed non est, which is collective decision and wisdom of legislature.

14. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sudesh Chhikara vs. Ramti Devi & another (Civil Appeal No.174 of 2021 decided on 6 December, 2022) dealt with scope of Section 23 of the Act 2007 and dealing with all kind of transfer and has held as under:-

"25. Though it was initially sought to be suggested during the course of submissions that the condition of provision of basic amenities and basic physical needs must be stipulated in the form of a covenant in the Gift Deed, Mr. Khandeparkar, in his usual fairness, has later conceded that he does not want to press an extreme argument that in every case such a condition must be included in the Gift Deed. He however submits that even if such condition need not be included in the Gift Deed, there must be pleading and proof on the part of senior citizen that the Gift or transfer was executed subject to a condition that the transferee would provide basic amenities and basic physical needs to the transferor. In this connection he has placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in the Case of Sudesh Chhikara (supra) in Paragraph Nos.12 and 15 the Supreme Court held as follows:

"12. Sub-section (1) of Section 23 covers all kinds of transfers as is clear from the use of the expression 'by way of gift or otherwise'.

10 April 2024'Neeta Sawant WP-590-2023-JR-FC For attracting sub-section (1) of Section 23, the following two conditions must be fulfilled:

a. The ransfer must have been made subject to the condition that the transferee shall provide the basic amenities and basic physical needs to the transferor; and b. the transferee refuses or fails to provide such amenities and physical needs to the transferor.

15. Careful perusal of the petition under Section 23'filed by respondent no.1 shows that it is not even pleaded that the release deed was executed subject to a condition that the transferees (the daughters of respondent no.1 would provide the basic amenities and basic physical needs to respondent no.1. Even in the impugned order dated 22nd May 2018 passed by the Maintenance Tribunal, no such finding has been recorded. It seems that oral evidence was not adduced by the parties. As can be seen from the impugned judgment of the Tribunal, immediately after a reply was filed by the appellant that the petition was fixed for arguments.

Effecting transfer subject to a condition of providing the basic amenities and basic physical needs to the transferor - senior citizen is sine qua non for applicability of sub-section (1) of Section 23. In the present case, as stated earlier, it is not even pleaded by respondent no.1 that the release deed was executed subject to such a condition."

26. In the case before the Apex Court, there was no pleading to the effect that the Gift Deed was executed subject to condition that a transferee would provide basic amenities and basic physical needs to Respondent No.1 therein. In the present case Respondent No.1 - Mother has pleaded in Paragraphs 4-O & 4-P of her application as under:

"40. Applicant was alone and with no choice but to take help from her Younger Son/the Respondent No.1. As the Applicant was dependent on Respondent No.1 and the exerted undue influence, relying upon the aforesaid assurances, she was coerced to execute Gift Deed in the favour of Respondent No.1 and the same was executed in May, 2017, with false promises that the Respondent Nos.1 & 2 will take her care of her for the entire life. 4P. In furtherance of the assurances given by the Respondents to safeguard her future, the Applicant was persuaded into gifting her 2 (two) Properties/Shares or Joint-Ownership in the 2 (Two) Properties, in favour of the Respondent No.1 herein, when she was alone and was not in the right frame of mind and was ailing."

27. Thus, there are specific pleadings made by the first Respondent- Mother in her application that two Gift Deeds were executed in furtherance of assurance given by Petitioners that they would take care of her during her entire life. Mr. Khandeparkar has fairly not contested the issue of absence of pleading. He however submits that it was incumbent upon the Mother to prove by leading oral evidence that the Gift Deed was executed subject to a condition of Petitioners'10 April 2024'Neeta Sawant WP-590-2023-JR-FC providing basic amenities and basic physical needs to Mother. The requirement of the aspect of leading oral evidence by senior citizen in support of application is being discussed in latter portion of the Judgment. However, so far as applicability of the Judgment in Sudesh Chhikara (supra) in the present case is concerned, I am of the view that the Apex Court was persuaded to set aside the order of Maintenance Tribunal essentially on account of lack of pleadings by Respondent No.1 therein that the Release Deed was executed subject to a Condition for providing maintenance. Since the condition is pleaded by Mother in her application, the judgment in Sudesh Chhikara would not support Mr. Khandeparkar's submission that there was no material before the Maintenance Tribunal to arrive at a finding that the Gift Deeds were executed subject to such a condition.

28. In fact Mr. Purohit has rightly drawn my attention to the following finding recorded by the Apex Court in Sudesh Chhikara (supra) in Paragraph 14 of the Judgment which reads thus:

"14. When a senior citizen parts with his or her property by executing a gift or a release or otherwise in favour of his or her near and dear ones, a condition of looking after the senior citizen is not necessarily attached to it. On the contrary, very often, such transfers are made out of love and affection without any expectation in return. Therefore, when it is alleged that the conditions mentioned in subsection (1) off Section 23'are attached to a transfer, existence of such conditions must be established before the Tribunal."

29. The Apex Court has thus held that the existence of condition can even be established before the Tribunal. This would in fact indicate that the existence of such condition need not be reflected in the Deed itself in the form of a covenant or a recital and the same can be established before the Tribunal.

15. Thus, it comes out from plain reading of Section 23 of the Act, 2007 that for invoking the powers treating conveyance/document of transfer of title to be non est and void. Certain pre-requisites are to be satisfied viz:-

(i) a transfer is made by a senior citizen by way of a gift or otherwise after the commencement of this Act of this property;

(ii) such a transfer is subject to the condition that the transferee would provide the basic amenities and for basic physical needs to the transferror;

(iii) despite the said stipulation, the transferee refuses or fails to provide such amenities and physical needs, so promised;

16. If the aforesaid three conditions co-exist then such transfer made at the option of the transferor shall be deemed to have been made by fraud or coercion or undue influence and at the option of the transferor be declared void by the Tribunal.

17. In the absence of any requisite pleading either in the representation or in this writ petition attracting the elements/ingredients for invoking the jurisdiction conferred under Section 23 of the Act, no mandates/direction can be issued .

18. We have had privilege to go through the Full Bench decision of this Court rendered in the case of Omkar Nath Gaur and another Vs. District Magistrate/President Appellate Tribunal Lucknow and others reported in 2025 (5) ADJ 788 (FB) (LB). The Hon'ble Full Bench was posed with the four questions of law viz:-

(i) What is the true scope and powers of the maintenance Tribunal constituted under Section 7 of the Act of 2007 which is contained in Chapter-II of the Act of 2007 and whether the Tribunal in exercise of its power in context with Sections 7, 8 and 9 of the Act of 2007would be empowered to pass an order of eviction while deciding an application preferred before it in terms of Section 5 of the Act of 2007?

(ii) What would be the true scope and power of the District Magistrate who exercises power as an Appellate Tribunal in terms of Sections 15 and 16 of the Act of 2016 [sic] and whether in exercise of such powers the Appellate Tribunal can pass an order of eviction?

(iii) What is the true scope of Section 21 of the Act of 2007which deals with protection of life and property of senior citizen which is contained in Chapter-V of the Act of 2007 and to what extent the Authority can pass an order for adjudging certain transfers as void in terms of Section 23 of the Act of 2007 vis-a-vis the duties and powers of the District Magistrate conferred under Rules 21 and 22 of Rules of 2014 and in this context whether the orders for eviction can be passed?

(iv) Whether the Division Bench in Ms. Swarj Verma (Supra) (sic) and Bipraji Singh (Supra) lays down correct law or whether the law laid down by the Division Bench in Shivani Verma (Supra) lays down the correct law?

19. Question nos. (iii) and (iv) are of seminal importance for decision of present controversy, as such the relevant portion of aforesaid Full Bench judgment where question no. (iii) has been dealt with are extracted as under :-

"100. Now, its time to consider question no. (iii) which is being reproduced for the purpose of recaptitulation:

(iii) What is the true scope of Section 21 of the Act of 2007 which deals with protection of life and property of senior citizen which is contained in Chapter-V of the Act of 2007 and to what extent the Authority can pass an order for adjudging certain transfers as void in terms of Section 23 of the Act of 2007 vis-a-vis the duties and powers of the District Magistrate conferred under Rules 21 and 22 of Rules of 2014 and in this context whether the orders for eviction can be passed ?

101. Chapter V of the Act of 2007 is titled protection of life and property of senior citizens and it takes within its fold Sections 21 to Section 23. It will be relevant to reproduce Section 21 of the Act which reads as under:-

21. Measures for publicity, awareness, etc., for welfare of senior citizens.-The State Government shall, take all measures to ensure that-

(i) the provisions of this Act are given wide publicity through public media a including the television, radio and the print, at regular intervals;

(ii) the Central Government and State Government Officers, including the police officers and the members of the judicial service, are given periodic sensitization and awareness training on the issues relating to this Act;

(iii) effective co-ordination between the services provided by the concerned Ministries or Departments dealing with law, home affairs, health and welfare, to address the issues relating to the welfare of the senior citizens and periodical review of the same is conducted.

102. What is significant to note is that Section 21 directs the State Government to take all measures to ensure that :-

(i) the provisions of the Act of 2007 are given wide publicity through public media including television, radio and print at regular intervals;

(ii) the Central and the State Government Officers including the Police Officers and the members of the judicial service are given periodic sensitization and awareness training on the issue relating to this Act and ;

(iii) effective coordination between services provided by the concerned Ministries or Departments dealing with law, home affairs, health and welfare to address the issue relating to the welfare of the senior citizens and periodical review of the same be conducted.

105. Section 22 of the Act of 2007 is apparently an enabling section which directs the State Government to confer the powers to implement the provisions of the Act and to ensure its smooth adherence by an officer not below the rank of a District Magistrate. The District Magistrate, under the Act can further delegate the duties to such officer who would carry out and perform all or any of the duties so conferred under the Act within local limits as may be prescribed. Sub Section (2) of Section 22 obligates the State Government to provide a comprehensive action plan for the protection of life and property of senior citizens.

106. In furtherance of Section 21 and to have a clear picture of what the State has understood regarding the duties and powers which were proposed to be conferred upon the District Magistrate finds reflection in Rule 21 framed under the Rules of 2014 which reads as under:-

21. Duties and Power of the District Magistrate- (1) The District Magistrate shall perform the duties and exercise the powers mentioned in sub-rules (2) and (3) so as to ensure that the provisions of the Act are properly carried out in his district.

(2) It shall be the duty of the District Magistrate to:

(i) ensure that life and property of senior citizens of the district are protected and they are able to live with security and dignity;

(ii) oversee and monitor the work of Maintenance Tribunals and Maintenance Officers of the district with a view to ensuring timely and fair disposal of applications for maintenance, and execution of Tribunals' orders;

(a) Officers of the State Government in the Police, Health and Publicity Departments, and the Department dealing with welfare of senior citizens;

(b) Maintenance Tribunals and Conciliation Officers;

(c) Panchayats and Municipalities; and

(d) Educational Institution.

107. Rule 21 (2) (i) of the Rules of 2014 as quoted above reveals that a duty is cast on the District Magistrate to ensure that life and property of senior citizens are protected and they are able to live with security and dignity. If Rule 21 (2) as extracted above is seen in context with the other obligations which are mentioned in Rule 21 (2) (ii) to (xi), it shows that the District Magistrate can even review the progress of the investigation and trial of cases relating to senior citizens in the district except in cities which have a Director Inspector General of Police. The duties so conferred and envisioned in Rule 21 are relating to all such obligations, which are relatable to the various challenges faced by the senior citizens, while interacting with different Government interface, in their day to day lives. The endevour is to make the interaction experience of a senior citizen with the Government Organizations less stressful and more friendly and convenient and the District Magistrate being the Nodal Officer is required to synchronise and oversee what is required to be achieved in terms of Section 21 of the Act of 2007.

110. A reading Sections 21 and 22 with Rules 21 and 22 reveals that the Legislature has put Rule 22 in Chapter VI of the Rules with the nomenclature'Protection of Life & Property of Senior Citizens whereas the phrase protection of life and property of senior citizens is the nomenclature of Chapter V of the Act and it also finds place in Rule 21 (2) (i) which relates to duties of the District Magistrate. Rule 22 reads action plan for the protection of life and property of senior citizens. This word action plan as used in Rule 22 is referrable to Section 22 (2) of the Act of 2007 obligating the Government to prescribe a comprehensive action plan.

111. It will be gainful to take a glance at Rule 22 of 2014 and the same reads as under:-

22. Action plan for the protection of life and property of Senior Citizens

(1) The District Superintendent of Police and in the case of cities having Divisional Inspector General of Police, such Divisional Inspector General of Police shall take all necessary steps, subject to such guidelines as the Government may issue from time to time for the protection of life any property of senior citizens.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of sub-rule (1)

(i) each police station shall maintain an up-to-date list of senior citizens living within its jurisdiction, especially those who are living by themselves (le without there being any member in their household who is not a senior citizen);

(ii) a representative of the police station together as far as possible, with a social worker or volunteer, shall visit such senior citizens at regular intervals of at least once a month, and shall, in addition, visit them as quickly as possible on receipt of a request of assistance from them,

(iii) complaints/ problems of senior citizens shall be promptly attended to, by the local police;

(iv) one or more Volunteer Committee (s) shall be formed for each Police Station which shall ensure regular contact between the senior citizens, especially those living by themselves, on the one hand, and the police and the district administration on the other,

(v) the District Superintendent of police or, the Divisional Inspector General of Police as the case may be, shall cause to be publicized widely in the media and through the Police Station, at regular intervals, the steps being taken for the protection of life and property of senior citizens;

(vi) each Police Station shall maintain a separte register containing all important particulars relating to offences committed against Senior Citizens as in Annexure IV

(vii) The Register referred to in clause (vi) shall be kept available for public inspection, and every officer inspecting a Police Station shall invariably review the status as entered in the register;

(viii) The Police Station shall send a monthly report of such crimes to the, District Superintendent of police by the 10th of every month;

(ix) list of Do's and Don'ts to be follwed by senior citizens, in the interest of their safety, will be widely publicized;

(x) antecedents of domestic servants and others working for senior citizens shall be promptly verified, on the request of such citizens;

(xi) community policing for the security of senior citizens will be undertaken in conjunction with citizens living in the neighbourhood, Residents' Welfare Association, Youth Volunteers, Non-Government Organizations, etc,

(xii) the District Superintendent of police shall submit to the Director General of Police and to the District Magistrate, a monthly report by the 20th of every month, about the status of crimes agarnist senior citizens during the previous month, including progress of investigation and prosecution of registered offences, and preventive steps taken during the month, as in Annexure Vi

(xiii) the District Mangistrate shall cause the report to be placed before the District-level Committee constituted under rule 24;

(xiv) The Director General of police shall cause the reports submitted under caluse

(xii) to be compiled, once a quarter, and shall submit them to the Government every quarter as well as every year for, inter-alia, being placed before the State Council of Senior Citizens constituted under rule 23.

113. Having said that, this Court does not find that there is any indication in any provision or rule which creates or confers special powers to take such action and pass an order of eviction against any third party or a person who may be living with the senior citizen or in the premises belonging to the senior citizen. The duties as provided in Rule 21 and Rule 22 is primarily for strengthening and securing the social fabric to provide a protected stress free environment for the senior citizen and certainly not to create a forum or conferring special powers to evict any person irrespective of the right and obligation of such a party whose presence or possession may be adverse to that of a senior citizen.

115. It is in this context that Rule 22 which is titled protection of life and property of senior citizens' has been placed in Chapter VI of the Rules of 2014 and an obligation has been placed on the Police Authorities to ensure that preventive measures are taken for the benefit and protection of senior citizens and the entire Rule 22 does not in any manner indicate or reflect any obligation imposed on the Police Authorities to carry out any remedial exercise beyond the already established framework of the forums created by law governing the citizens as a whole.

125 Thus, it would be seen that what the Act and the Rules and the comprehensive Action Plan as framed by the State Government reflects is a preventive and facilitative scheme of affairs and it does not create any special adjudicatory forum nor does it envisage or confer any new adjudicatory/coercive powers with the Authorities while providing immediate redressal, beyond the existing framework of laws. The aforesaid provision/scheme would indicate that the measures as provided are service based, pre-emptive and preventive in nature and certainly not reactive or curative.

127. Now, this brings the Court to consider an important provision i.e. Section 23 of the Act of 2007, which has an impact and it also confers some powers on the Tribunal which are in contrast to the powers as mentioned in Sections 5 to 9 of the Act of 2007. For the ease of reference, Section 23 is being reproduced hereinafter:-

23. Transfer of property to be void in certain circumstances. '(1) Where any senior citizen who, after the commencement of this Act, has by way of gift or otherwise,his property, subject to the condition that the transferee shall provide the basic amenities and basic physical needs to the transferor and such transferee refuses or fails to provide such amenities and physical needs, the said transfer of property shall be deemed to have been made by fraud or coercion or under undue influence and shall at the option ofthe transferor be declared void by the Tribunal.

(2) Where any senior citizen has a right to receive maintenance out of an estate and such estate or part, thereof is transferred, the right to receive maintenance may be enforced against the transferee if the transferee has notice of the right, or if the transfer is gratuitous; but not against the transferee for consideration and without notice of right.

(3) If any senior citizen is incapable of enforcing the rights under sub-sections (1) and (2), action may be taken on his behalf by any of the organisation referred to in Explanation to sub-section (1) of section 5.

128. On the plain reading of the aforesaid provision, it would indicate that to activate, the said section, certain conditions as mentioned therein must exist:-

(i) a transfer is made by a senior citizen by way of a gift or otherwise after the commencement of this Act of his property ;

(ii) such a transfer is subject to the condition that the transferee would provide the basic amenities and for basic physical needs to the transferror ;

(iii) despite the said stipulation, the transferee refuses or fails to provide such amenities and physical needs, so promised;

129. If the aforesaid three conditions co-exist then such a transfer made at the option of the transferor shall be deemed to have been made by fraud or coercion or under undue influence and at the option of the transferor be declared void by the Tribunal.

141. On the other hand, in ordinary and normal circumstances, any dispute between a senior citizen and his opponent, are to be adjudicated in the Civil Courts or other Forums which may be available as per law and in such Civil Courts or Forums, the judicial officers or the Authorities, as the case may be, be more sensitive to give priority, keeping in mind the provisions of Section 21 (ii) of the Act of 2007 read with Rule 21 and 22 of the Rules of 2014. The State or the District Magistrate who has been obligated in terms of Section 19 and 20 of the Act read with Rules 21 and 22 are required only to create a strengthened social framework for the social security of the senior citizens.

142. However, the Act or the Rules do not confer or create a special forum or a special authority with overriding powers or authority to do something in terms of the Act of 2007 which is otherwise available only with the regular courts and authorities. The overriding powers of this Act in terms of Section 3 is limited only to the extent of powers conferred on the Tribunal or the Authority which they have to discharge in terms of the Act of 2007 and not beyond that. The traditional forums and courts are free to proceed with the matters in accordance with law which are not covered by the matters which are within the ambit and jurisdiction of Maintenance Tribunal, Appellate Tribunal in terms of the Act of 2007.

150. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that Section 23 is treated as a stand alone section and only upon the adherence of the three pre-conditions, that the said section comes into play and only in such circumstances which are limited and explained hereinabove, can in a limited case upon an order being passed by the Maintenance Tribunal/Appellate Tribunal declaring the instrument as void can, as a necessary corollary and as consequential impact of the order, the possession may be put back with the senior citizen and only to that limited extent, the Tribunal may pass an order of restitution that can be implemented and if need be through the District Magistrate by taking aid of the police authorities.

153. It will be relevant to observe that injunction is one of the most prolific preventive reliefs which are sought and granted by the courts, however, the Tribunal or the District Magistrate under the Act of 2007 or in terms of Rules of 2014 have not been invested with any such power.

154. Thus, where the Tribunal or the District Magistrate does not have the power to grant the injunction to prevent a breach of the legal obligation and then to suggest that the same Tribunal or the District Magistrate in absence of any clear conferment of power has been granted the power to evict a person becomes incongruous.

156. Thus, for all the aforesaid reasons, this Court opines that the powers exercised in terms of Section 21 of the Act of 2007 or in terms of Rule 21 and 22 of the Rules of 2014 cannot include passing of an order of eviction except as explained above, where Section 23 of the Act of 2007 applies.

G. Summary and Answers to the Questions Referred:-

157. In light of the detailed discussions hereinabove we summarize and answer the reference as under:-

Questions (i) and (ii)

The Maintenance Tribunal constituted under Section 7 of the Act of 2007 in exercise of its power under Sections 7, 8 and 9 are not empowered to pass an order of eviction while deciding an application before it in terms of Section 5 of the Act of 2007. The Appellate Tribunal in terms of Section 15 and 16 of the Act of 2007 is also not conferred with the power to order an eviction except where in an appeal the Appellate Tribunal allows the prayer of the senior citizen/parent arising out of the plea of Section 23 of the Act of 2007.

Question No. (iii)

Considering the scope of Section 21 of the Act of 2007, the Authority is not competent to pass an order of eviction as Section 21 and the Rules 21 and 22 of the Rules of 2014 do not confer any power of eviction on the District Magistrate. However, the Maintenance Tribunal/Appellate Tribunal only in cases covered by Section 23 of the Act of 2007, after it holds a document/instrument to be void then as a concomitant exercising its restitutionary powers can revert back the possession to the senior citizen/parent.

Question No. (iv)

In response to Question No. (iv), we find that the decision rendered by the Division Bench in Shivani Verma (Supra) does not lay down the correct law and accordingly, it is overruled. The decision of the Division Bench in Swaraj Varun (Supra) and Bipraji Singh (Supra) in so far as they hold that the power of eviction is not conferred on the Maintenance Tribunal and the Appellate Tribunal or the District Magistrate is upheld with a modification that it is subject to the exception where a case is covered by Section 23 of the Act of 2007 and a document is declared void then the Maintenance Tribunal/ Appellate Tribunal while exercising its restitutionay powers may in a given case, where required, may restore/ handover the possession to the senior citizen/parent.

20. Interestingly in the instant case the petitioner had not come with any pleading that the transfer deed/conveyance was executed in lieu of basic amenities for the transferor and it was the transferee, who refused or failed to provide such amenities but on the other hand the petitioner is doubting the Will Deed and, thereafter, the two sale-deeds, adjudication of which involves intricate questions of title and possession.

21. The petition does not claim any adjudication through the limited window of Section 23 of the Act, 2007, rather he wants substitution of procedure of full fledged trial of civil suit adjudicating title deed's validity through summary procedure by tribunal created under the Act, 2007 which is not permissible as per statutory scheme of the Act, 2007 as ratified by Full Bench decision of this Court in the case of Onkar Nath Gaur (supra).

22. The Senior Citizens Act, 2007 was enacted with the objective to provide a mechanism to secure maintenance and ensure welfare of senior citizens left bereft of support, financial or otherwise. The Act being a social legislation, ought to be construed liberally and its provisions should be implemented in light of the aims and objectives with which the Act was enacted, which for all intents and purposes in the immediate case herein is to ensure that a senior citizen without any semblance of support is not further deprived of the property.

23. Every property dispute pertaining to validity of conveyance/transfer deed qua senior citizens cannot be subject matter of adjudication under the Act unless it qualifies the pre-requisites of the Section 23 of the Act.

24. The legal mandate for protection of property as envisaged under Chapter V of the Act is to be read in conformity of the aim and object of the Act and conventional litigation even for senior citizens ensuring protection of civil rights of property is not to be given complete go by, unless they are covered by statutory prescriptions contained under the Act and Rules through the limited window of Section 23 of the Act.

25. For better understanding the law pertaining to the protection of the property of senior citizens contemplated under Chapter V of the Act of 2007, it is pertinent to note that the fulfillment of the pre-requisites mentioned therein, attracts the Latin maxim 'expressio unius est exclusio alterius,' which means that the express mention of one thing implies the exclusion of another. Thus, it can safely be concluded that, with respect to the protection of the property of a senior citizen, only the limited jurisdiction conferred under Section 23 of the Act of 2007 is available. Accordingly, no property dispute falling beyond the scope of Section 23 of the Act of 2007 can be permitted to be adjudicated by the statutory authorities mentioned under the said Act. Any attempt to adjudicate disputes beyond the realm of Section 23 of the Act of 2007 would amount to transgression of jurisdiction, since such jurisdiction has not been vested by the statute.;

The overriding powers of this Act in terms of Section 3 are limited only to the extent of powers conferred on the Tribunal or the Authority which they have to discharge in terms of the Act of 2007 and not beyond that. The traditional forums and courts are free to proceed with the matters in accordance with law which are not covered by the matters which are within the ambit and jurisdiction of Maintenance Tribunal, Appellate Tribunal in terms of the Act, 2007 as evident from Section 27 of the Act, 2007, which reads as under:-

"27. Jurisdiction of civil courts barred:- No civil Court shall have the jurisdiction in respect of any matter to which any provision of this Act applies and no injunction shall be granted by any Civil Court in respect of anything which is done or intended to be done by or under this Act."

26. The submission of counsel for the petitioner that his property rights are to be protected by State authorities in view of mandate of the coordinate bench judgement of this Court rendered in case of Shivani Verma vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 2023 (6) ADJ 496 as also followed in the case of Dinesh Ahuja @ Chinu Vs. District Magistrate and two others 2024: AHC 182781-DB is completely misplaced as Hon'ble Full Bench in case of Onkar Nath Gaur and another Vs. District Magistrate/President Appellant Tribunal Lucknow and others reported in 2025 (5) ADJ 788 (FB) (LB) has specifically overruled the dictum of Shivani Verma (supra).

27. In view of the aforesaid admitted factual scenario the irresistible conclusion, which this Court reaches is that the Act though one for the protection of Senior Citizens cannot be utilized for settling property disputes, except matters covered under Section 23 of the Act, 2007. There is a serious dispute regarding title of the property and Civil Suits inter-se parties are pending. Thus, this Court refrains itself from exercising our writ jurisdiction for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction to adjudicate the validity of the conveyance/title deeds in question upon authorities and the Tribunal created under the Act, 2007 which the law does not otherwise confer. At the same time, the deeds in question cannot be declared void in writ jurisdiction.

28. Accordingly, the instant writ petition fails and is dismissed. Cost made easy.

29. It is needless to mention that the parties are at liberty to approach the competent Courts of law, including the Civil Court, for the redressal of their grievance, if so advised.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the respondents were justified in refusing to issue a No-Objection Certificate for construction of a hotel on the disputed property solely on the basis of an old revenue entry showing Arazi No. 2404 as a pond in Fasli year 1291 (1884 CE), when the petitioner has a registered sale deed dated 19.11.1913, the property has continuously been recorded as abadi in the revenue records, including the current Khatauni for Fasli year 1425, no subsequent Khasra entry shows the disputed property as a pond, and the IIT-BHU report dated 15.04.2026 does not establish the existence of any pond or water body thereon?

Headnotes

U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 – s.1(2) – U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 – s.2, ss.59, 61 – Constitution of India – Art.14 – Revenue records – Pond – Abadi land – No-Objection Certificate – Construction of hotel – Refusal on basis of old revenue entry – Arazi No. 2404 recorded as pond in Fasli year 1291 (1884 CE) - in the Khasra of Fasli year 1359 Arazi No. 2404/1 was recorded as abadi and Arazi No. 2404/2 was recorded as pond - Thereafter, no records of the Khasra have been produced to show that, subsequent to Fasli year 1359, the property in dispute was ever recorded as pond in the Khasra - In the Khatauni for Fasli year 1361, Arazi No. 2404/1 and Arazi No. 2404/2 were recorded as abadi; in the Khatauni of Fasli year 1382, Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as abadi; in the Khatauni of Fasli year 1387, Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as abadi and even in the current Khatauni for Fasli year 1425, Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as abadi.

Held:

A. Doctrine of promissory estoppel — One of the central principles of the doctrine of promissory estoppel is that the law will not permit an unconscionable departure by one party from the subject matter of an assumption which has been adopted by the other party as the basis of a course of conduct which would affect the other party, if the assumption is not adhered to.

B. Registered sale deed — Validity and genuineness — Presumption — It is a settled position of law that a registered sale deed carries with it a formidable presumption of validity and genuineness. Registration is not a mere procedural formality but a solemn act that imparts a high degree of sanctity to the document. Consequently, a court must not lightly or casually declare a registered instrument as a "sham". The burden of proof to displace this presumption rests heavily upon the challenger. Such a challenge can only be sustained if the party provides material particulars and cogent evidence to demonstrate that the deed was never intended to operate as a bona-fide transfer of title.

C. U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 — U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 — Applicability — The property in dispute was included in the erstwhile Municipal Board, Benaras, even prior to enforcement of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916. The provisions of Chapter VIII and Chapter IX of the Code, 2006, have been made subject to the applicability of any of the enactments specified at serial nos. 19 and 25 of the First Schedule, immediately preceding their repeal by the Code, 2006.

D. Registered sale deed — Validity and genuineness — Respondent No. 2 Corporation did not dispute the execution, validity or genuineness of the registered sale deed dated 19.11.1913 in respect of land measuring 2 bighas and 7 biswas comprised in Arazi No. 2404 in favour of the predecessor of the petitioner — Registered sale deed specifically recorded transfer of land with structures thereon — Respondent Corporation, having failed to challenge the validity and genuineness of the sale deed for about 113 years, could not subsequently allege that a pond existed over the property in dispute.
E. Revenue records — Pond — Abadi — Revenue entries relied upon by respondents did not support their case — Property continuously recorded as abadi from Fasli year 1361 onwards, including the current Khatauni for Fasli year 1425 — Only Khasra entry of Fasli year 1359 recorded Arazi No. 2404/2 as pond and no subsequent Khasra records were produced showing the property as pond — Respondents failed to explain how or why a part of Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as pond only in Fasli year 1359.
F. Pond — No-Objection Certificate — IIT-BHU report dated 15.04.2026 — Report did not establish existence of any pond or water body at the site and recommended "new pond development" — Property situated in densely populated area — Respondent No. 3 could not have denied No-Objection Certificate solely on the basis of an alleged pond entry of Fasli year 1291 (1884 CE) — Writ petition allowed — impugned letter dated 24.01.2026 quashed — respondent No. 2 Corporation directed to reconsider petitioner's case for issuance of No-Objection Certificate for construction of hotel. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhanshu Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Shri Ashish Kumar Singh and Shri Tarun Agarwal, learned Senior Advocates assisted by Shri Shashwat Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Vineet Sankalp, learned counsel for respondent no. 2 and 3.

2. The present petition has been filed being aggrieved by the letter dated 24.01.2026, by means of which Nagar Nigam, Varanasi has refused to grant a no-objection certificate to the petitioner for the purpose of construction of a hotel essentially, on the ground that in the Fasli year 1291 (corresponding year 1884 CE), Arazi no. 2404, Mauja Rampura (Varanasi) was recorded as a pond in the revenue records.

3. The facts involved in the controversy are that the Municipal Board, Benaras, vide registered sale deed dated 19.11.1913, had transferred 2 Bighas and 7 Biswas of land situated in Mohalla Misir Pokhra, Benares to Maharaja Mahindra Chandra Nandy. The said sale deed was executed after obtaining the sanction of the Commissioner of the Benaras District, which was granted vide letter dated 31.05.1913, which was further sanctioned vide Municipal Board's resolution dated 27.09.1913, by means of which said sale deed land with structures thereon were transferred in favour of the purchaser.

4. Subsequently, by means of another registered sale deed dated 12.11.1920, Jnanendra Basu had transferred 5 biswas of land situated in Mohalla Misir Pokhra, Benaras, in favour of Maharaja Mahindra Chandra Nandy. The perusal of this sale deed further reveals that the vendor, Jnanendra Basu, had purchased the land so transferred, by means of a registered sale deed dated 04.03.1913.

5. Thus, Maharaja Mahindra Chandra Nandy became the owner of 2 bighas and 12 biswas of land, which was the total area of Arazi no. 2404. Besides, the property so transferred by means of the two registered sale deeds, came to be recorded in the name of Maharaja Mahindra Chandra Nandy in the records of the Municipal Board, Benares

6. The successors of Maharaja Mahindra Chandra Nandy, by means of a registered sale deed dated 25.09.1957, had thereafter transferred an area of 19,099 sq ft out of the total area of about 2 bighas and 12 biswas in Arazi No. 2404 to Godrej Dhunjishaw Gandhi and Shavak Dhunjishaw Gandhi. Besides Godrej Dhunjishaw Gandhi and Shavak Dhunishaw Gandhi had purchased a plot of land measuring 7,808 sq ft from Raja Ram Sahu by means of a registered sale deed dated 11.02.1958.

7. Thereafter, Godrej Dhunjishaw Gandhi and Shavak Dhunrishaw Gandhi had transferred a plot of land measuring 3605.5 sq ft out of the total land purchased from Raja Ram Sahu by registered sale deed dated 21.09.1959 in favour of Sri Shiv Dayal Khemka Charitable Trust.

8. Ultimately Godrej Dhunjishaw Gandhi and Shavak Dhunjishaw. Gandhi were having 22,571.84 sq ft of land comprised in Arazi nos. 2402 and 2404, Misir Pokhara, Varanasi and the said property was allotted property no. D-48/140-141 by the Municipal Board, Benaras. The property situated at D 48/140-141, Mazda Picture Palace, Misir Pokhra, Varanasi admeasuring 22571.84 sq ft i.e 2097.75 sq mtr is the subject matter in dispute in the present writ petition (hereinafter referred to as ' the property in dispute').

9. Subsequently, Godrej Dhunjishaw Gandhi and Shavak Dhunjishaw Gandhi had constructed Mazda Cinema Hall over the aforesaid property having an area of 22,571.84 sq ft after obtaining a license and requisite permissions, including one dated 17.10.1962 from the Municipal Board, Benaras. Mazda Cinema continued to run over the property in dispute for the next fifty years to follow.

10. The successors of Godrej Dhunjishaw Gandhi and Shavak Dhunjishaw Gandhi vide registered sale deed dated 08.11.2011, had ultimately transferred the land with building bearing property no. D-48/140-141, Mazda Picture Palace, Misir Pokhara, Varanasi, having a plot area of 22571.84 sq ft to the petitioner. Subsequent thereto, the property in dispute came to be recorded in the name of the petitioner in the records of the Municipal Corporation, Varanasi, erstwhile Municipal Board, Benaras.

11. It is contended on behalf of the petitioner that out of the total area of 22871.84 sq ft of land so purchased by the petitioner, an area of 19671.83 sqft is comprised in erstwhile Arazi No. 2404, and the remaining area of 2900 sq ft is comprised in erstwhile Arazi No.2402 and also that the present dispute pertains to an area of 1,9671.83 sqft comprised in erstwhile Arazi No.2404, which said fact is not disputed by the respondents.

12. The petitioner in the meanwhile had entered into a memorandum of understanding dated 09.02.2018 with the State of U.P. through the Secretary, Infrastructure & Industrial Development, for construction of, "Star Hotel" having a proposed investment of about Rs.100 crores. In pursuance thereto, the petitioner had applied for a no objection certificate from Nagar Nigam Varanasi, however, by means of the impugned letter dated 24.01.2026, the Additional Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam-respondent no. 3 refused the no objection certificate on the ground that in the Fasli year 1291 (corresponding year 1884 CE), Arazi no.2404 was recorded as pond in the revenue records.

13. After filling of the present writ petition this court, vide order dated 20.03.2026, had directed the learned counsel for respondents no. 2 and 3 to obtain instructions in the matter. Subsequently, the instructions were placed before this court on 01.04.2026, wherein it was stated that Arazi No. 2404, measuring 2 bighas,12 biswas and 1 dhur, was entered as pond in the revenue records during the Fasli year 1291 and presently, it is recorded as abadi, in the Fasli year 1425 and has an area of 0.688 hectares. Further, it was stated that a letter dated 27.02.2026 had been issued to the concerned Sub-Divisional Magistrate to correct the revenue entries in respect thereof and also that Nagar Nigam Varanasi would carry out beautification of the pond over Arazi No. 2404, once the revenue entries stood corrected, reliance was placed upon the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Hinch Lal Tiwari Vs State of UP.

14. This court, while keeping in view the instructions submitted vide the order dated 01.04.2026, amongst others, had directed as under:-

"17 Under the circumstances we direct that Principal Secretary, Department of Urban Development, Government of U.P. and Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam, Varanasi to file their personal affidavits in respect of the subject matter in controversy wherein amongst others they are required to elucidate that as to how land comprised in the erstwhile Arazi No. 2404 can be held to be pond land when the erstwhile Municipal Board, Banaras in the sale deed executed way back in the year 1913 had itself admitted that the same was an open land, more so when even as on date in the revenue records the land comprised in said Arazi is shown as abadi. Further they are also required to elucidate the manner in which, the respondents intend to restore the pond over Arazi No. 2404 admittedly having an area of 2 bighas and 12 biswas and 1 dhur a densely populated area of Varanasi presently being situated over the same.

18 We further direct that the personal affidavits, detailed above shall be filed prior to the next date of hearing fixed in the present writ petition."

15. In compliance thereof, the Principal Secretary, Department of Urban Development, Government of UP, has filed his affidavit dated 29.04.2026, wherein reliance has been placed upon a report dated 15.04.2026 of IIT, BHU, Varanasi. Further perusal of the report dated 15.04.2026 reveals that the same has been submitted in pursuance to a letter dated 07.04.2026 issued by Additional Municipal Commissioner-respondent no.3. The perusal of the affidavit also makes it evident that the respondents have not undertaken any exercise for the purposes of revival/development of the alleged pond other than obtaining the said report. Hence, it is evident that the respondents sprung into action only after filing of the present writ petition and passing of the order dated 01.04.2026 and the property in dispute admittedly continues to remain recorded as abadi land, all this while.

16. The petitioner, by means of a supplementary affidavit dated 13.04.2026, has also placed on record the fact that, in pursuance to the impugned letter, proceedings under Sections 59/61 of the UP Tenancy Act, 1939 have been initiated by Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Sadar, Varanasi. The petitioner has also brought on record a show cause notice dated 10.04.2026, issued by respondent no.3, calling upon the petitioner to produce all the records in respect of the property in dispute failing which, appropriate action would be taken in view of the fact that the land is recorded as a pond in the revenue records.

17. Subsequently, when the matter was listed before this Court on 30.04.2026, the following order was passed: -

"1. In pursuance of the earlier order dated 15.04.2026, personal affidavits filed on behalf of Respondent no.1- Principal Secretary, Urban Development Department, Lucknow and Respondent No.2- Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam Bhawan, Varanasi, are taken on record.

2. In compliance of the aforesaid order dated 15.04.2026, Shri Himanshu Nagpal, Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam Bhawan, Varanasi is personally present before this court.

3. Learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of petitioner has submitted that even assuming though not admitting that there was a pond, clearly the documents revealed that there was concrete construction on the date of vesting and he also asserts that even in the Master Plan, the Development Authority had not shown the land to be in the nature of pond. He, relying on the decision in the case of Shiv Badan Singh and Others Vs. State of U.P. and Others (Writ Petition No. 2636 (MB) of 2006; Neutral Citation: 2011:AHC-LKO:14699-DB) has further submitted that even in case, since before the date of vesting or thereafter, if the plot in question was recorded as pond, it had lost its utility and was no more in use as a pond; and now, the land is being used for development and a MoU has also been entered into with the authorities.

4. In view of the aforesaid, since the deed was executed by the State and thereafter, the development has taken place, in case the State proceeds to restore the land into a pond, in said circumstances, the petitioner has to be compensated.

5. Shri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General, has appeared before this court and seeks accommodation for today. He submits that some time may be granted to go through the affidavits filed by the respondents.

6. Accordingly, one week's time is granted to him to prepare his brief. He shall also produce the Master Plan and apprise the court of the nature of the land on the date of vesting.

7. On his request, list this case on 11.05.2026, as fresh at 10:00 AM. On the said date, Respondent No.2 shall remain present before this court.

8. Interim order, granted earlier, shall continue till the next date of listing."

18. It is made clear that the respondents have not produced the Master Plan of Varanasi to demonstrate as to whether a pond exists over the property in dispute or not, nor the respondents have apprised this Court regarding the nature of land comprised in the property in dispute on the date of vesting.

19. On 11.05.2026, again the matter was adjourned on the request of the respondents and was listed on 15.05.2026. Thereafter, on 15.05.2026, the matter was again adjourned on the request of the respondent on the ground that there was every likelihood that the matter would be resolved, the order so passed is as under:-

"1. Learned counsel for the respondents submits that a meeting was held on 14.05.2026 and there is a likelihood that the matter would be resolved.

2. On his request, put up this case as fresh on 27.05.2026.

3. Interim order, granted earlier, shall continue till the next date of listing."

20. When the matter was next listed before this court on 27.05.2026, it was submitted by Shri M C Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel that no further submissions were to be made on behalf of the respondents as far as the subject matter in controversy was concerned and, the affidavits of the Principal Secretary and Municipal Commissioner may be taken into consideration while deciding the controversy involved. Hence, this court with the consent of parties proceeded to decide the present writ petition finally.

21. It is contended on behalf of the petitioner that it is no longer open for the respondents after having executed a sale deed in favour of the predecessor of the petitioner way back in the year 1913 in respect of land and structure to allege that the land over which the property in dispute is situated was a pond. It is further contended that, as per the own showing of the respondents, the land was recorded as abadi land in the revenue records since the Fasli year 1359 and continues to do so even as on today. Further, the land was included in the municipal limits prior to the date of vesting, i.e., 01.07.1952, and under the circumstances, the provisions of UP Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 as well as the provisions of UP Revenue Code, 2006 shall not be applicable to the property in dispute. It is further contended that, as the respondents themselves admit that there was land existing in the year 1913 and as such, were estopped from alleging that a pond existed over the property in dispute. It is stated that there is no question of any pond existing over the property in dispute, in view of the fact that the same is situated in a densely populated area of Varanasi, as admitted by the respondents. It is for this reason that even in the Master Plan of the Varanasi Development Authority, the land is not shown as a pond. Lastly, it is contended that the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Hinch Lal Tiwari and Jagdeep Singh would not be applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case.

22. Per contra, it is contended on behalf of the respondents that a pond was situated over the property in dispute, and the controversy is duly covered by the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Hinch Lal Tiwari and the property in dispute has incorrectly been recorded as abadi in the revenue records.

23. There is no dispute between the parties in respect of the sale deed dated 19.11.1913, executed by the erstwhile Municipal Board, Benaras in favour of the predecessor of the petitioner, Maharaja Manindra Chandra Nandy and the subsequent transfers which ultimately led to the vesting of the title and possession of the property in dispute in the petitioner.

24. It is also admitted by the parties that the property in dispute has been recorded in the records of respondent no.2 -Corporation since the year 1927, for the purposes of payment of house tax and water tax.

25. The records also reveal that the property in dispute is situated over a highly densely populated area of Varanasi. In this regard, the petitioner has relied upon images obtained from Google Earth to support his contention. Further, in the affidavit filed by the Municipal Commissioner, amongst others, it is stated ,"That it is pertinent to mention here that, in the vicinity of this site, within a radius of approximately 500 m in a very densely populated area, the Municipal Corporation Varanasi has carried out the restoration and beautification of several ponds such as ...." Thus, it is evident that there are buildings standing in the vicinity of the property in dispute and land was existing since the year 1913, even as per the showings of the respondents, if not prior thereto.

26. It is only after the filing of the present writ petition and the passing of the order dated 01.04.2026 by this Court that the respondent No. 3, vide the letter dated 07.04.2026, had sought a feasibility assessment report for the proposed renovation of the pond from IIT, BHU, Varanasi. Hence, it is beyond doubt that the entire exercise of renovation/ development of the pond at Arazi No. 2404 was undertaken by the respondents after the filing of the present writ petition and there is nothing on record to demonstrate that any such exercise was undertaken by the respondents in the past. The report of IIT-BHU, dated 15.04.2026, amongst others, also states that the surrounding areas of the property in dispute are densely populated, which is typical for most of the city. Even the photographs made part of the report; dated 15.04.2026, corroborate the stance of the petitioners that the property in dispute is situated in a densely populated area of city of Varanasi.

27. The relevant portion of the report pertaining to observations and assessments as contained in paragraph C of the report dated 15.04.2026 is being reproduced herein under:-

"C. Observations and Assessment

C. 1 Site location

During the visual observations, the site is found to be a T-shaped plot as shown in Fig. 1.

The site has three access routes, of which prominent one sits on Godowliya-Luxa/ samapure-Luxa Road and the other two open in the alleys. The plot size is 0.688 hectare, as reported by officials at the site. While the width at main entrance is estimated as 20 m, the depth of the plot is estimated as 100 m. The surrounding areas are densely populated, which is typical for most of the city.

C.2 Topographical Observations

During the visual observations, the site is found to be mostly plain with imperceptible gradient. While the majority of the site has uneven ground with some construction debris at the top with some shrubs and grass vegetation, some portion close to main entrance has signs of concreting (pavement or P.C.C.) as shown in Figs. 2 and 3. However, the site majorly appears filled with earth, silt and debris.

C3 Condition Assessment of Boundary Wall

During the visual observations, as shown in Figs. 4 and 5, the site boundary wall was found to be severely damaged due to stresses coming from adjacent buildings which have been constructed with no offset at all. At some locations, the boundary wall has collapsed and disappeared as well.

C4 Surrounding Buildings

The site is surrounded by buildings which have been built to their respective property lines. On the eastern side, there are multiple masonry buildings with load-bearing wall systems as shown in Fig. 2. The tallest of these may be classified as G+3. These masonry buildings have undergone reasonable damage and deterioration due to environmental exposure. On the western side, there is a multi-storeyed (G+7) reinforced concrete building as shown in Fig. 3, which is built at an offset which probably suffices the building bye-laws.

C5 Feasibility Assessment of the Pond

Based on visual observations related to site location, topography, boundary wall condition and surrounding buildings reported in previous sub-sections, following points warrant attention:

The pond appears to have been filled with silt, earth and debris over time. Therefore, the pond re-development work should follow procedures and bye-laws of new pond development.

The surrounding buildings are directly abutting the site boundary, and these buildings also show signs of environmental degradation. Therefore, in case of a water body being developed, a detailed topographical study to understand hydraulic gradient followed by implementation of filters around the water body shall be required.

Development of pond shall contribute to the groundwater recharge, which is scarce in densely populated regions given that most of the spaces are paved. Providing a good surface runoff from the surrounding regions into the pond and not vice-versa shall be critical in this regard.'

(emphasis added)

28. Hence, the following conclusions can be drawn from the perusal of the report dated 15.04.2026 relied upon by the respondents:-

(i). The entire exercise of assessment for renovation/ development of pond were undertaken after the filing of the present writ petition and passing of the order dated 01.04.2026.

(ii). There is no presence of any pond or water body at site, and admittedly, the pond appears to have been filled with silt, earth and debris over time. Therefore, the pond redevelopment work should follow the procedures and bye-laws of new pond development. Thereby showing complete absence of a water body.

(iii). Although the contention of the respondents is that the pond is situated over Arazi No. 2404, having an area of 0.688 hectares, the assessment report has been prepared only with respect to a piece of land measuring 20 meters in width and 100 m in depth and apparently belonging to the petitioner, who claims to be the owner of a plot area of 22,571.84 sq ft i.e 2097.75 sq mtr comprised in Arazi No. 2404 and Arazi No. 2402.

(iv). The respondents have not undertaken any exercise regarding the manner in which they intend to restore the pond over Arazi No. 2404, having a total area of 0.688 hectares nor is there any averment to that effect in the affidavits filed by the respondents. Thus, it is only the property in dispute belonging to the petitioner that has been singled out.

(v). The property in dispute is situated in one of the densely populated areas of the city of Varanasi.

29. Now, coming to the revenue records relied upon by the respondents and the same reveal that allegedly Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as pond in Fasli year 1291,which corresponds to the year 1884 CE. Thereafter, no revenue records are available upto Fasli year 1359, and the revenue records for Fasli years 1356 to1359 Fasli are allegedly in a dilapidated condition and have neither been produced nor relied upon by the respondents. In the Khatauni for Fasli year 1361, Arazi No. 2404/1 and Arazi No. 2404/2 are recorded as abadi, in the Khatauni of Fasli year 1382, Arazi No.2404 is recorded as abadi, in the Khatauni of Fasli year 1387, Arazi No. 2404 is recorded as abadi. Admittedly, even in the current Khatauni for the Fasli year 1425, the Arazi No. 2404 is recorded as abadi. Thus, the property in dispute since the year 1954 CE, corresponding to Fasli year 1361 till date, has been recorded as abadi land and not as pond.

30 It is only in the Khasra of Fasli year 1359 that Arazi No. 2404/1 is recorded as abadi, and Arazi No. 2404/2 has been recorded as pond. Thereafter, no records of the Khasra have been produced to show that, subsequent to Fasli year 1359, the property in dispute was ever recorded as pond in the Khasra. Further, there is no explanation whatsoever at the end of the respondents as to how and why it is only in the Khasra of Fasli year 1359, corresponding to the year 1952 CE, that a part of Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as pond, which was not so in the subsequent years till date.

31. Thus, the respondents do not dispute the fact that the property in dispute is recorded as abadi in the revenue records for the past about 74 years, commencing from the year 1954 CE till date and the records of years prior thereto, are either not available or are dilapidated.

32. Hence, it would not be out of place to mention here that even though Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as pond in the Fasli year 1291, land and structure were standing upon the same as would be evident from the sale deed dated 19.11.1913 executed by the erstwhile Municipal Board, Benaras in favour of Maharaja Mahindra Chandra Nandy, the recital of the sale deed reads as under:

"..... the transferor hereby conveys the apportioned plot of land measuring 2 Bighas 7 Biswas, as shown in the sketch referred to above, with structures thereon and the boundaries of which are given below, to the transferee absolutely, with all structures, easements, liberties, privileges..." Pursuant thereto, the property in dispute admittedly was also recorded in the registers of the respondent no. 2-Corporation, since the year 1927, for the purposes of payment of house tax and water tax.

33. As far as the revenue records are concerned, the same are not available after the Fasli year 1291, as duly admitted by the respondents. Thereafter, the revenue records for the Fasli year 1356 to Fasli year 1359 are in a dilapidated condition and have not been relied upon by the respondents. In the Khatauni of Fasli year 1361 till date, the property in dispute is recorded as abadi land. It is only in the Khasra for Fasli year 1359 that a part of Arazi No. 2404 is recorded as pond, but even in the Khasras of subsequent years it is not so. It is made clear in this regard that in the field book, the Khasra is the record of possession and the Khatauni is the record of rights. Thus, it is evident that, although a part of Arazi No. 2404 was recorded as pond in the record of possession for one particular year, it continued to be recorded as Abadi in the record of rights.

34. Further, it is the respondent No. 1 who is the custodian of revenue records, thus, an adverse inference ought to be drawn against the respondent No. 1 for the failure to produce the relevant revenue records. It is also surprising to note that the revenue records only in respect of the Fasli year 1291 are available, and no revenue records prior thereto or subsequent thereto up to the Fasli year 1358 are available with the respondents . Hence, we are of the view that the revenue records so relied upon by the respondents in support of their case are of little assistance to them.

35. It has also been vehemently argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the provisions of UP Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950, and that of UP Revenue Code, 2006, would not be applicable to the property in dispute. In this regard, the Learned Counsel has placed reliance upon subsection (2) of Section (1) of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950, wherein it is provided that the Act, 1950, extends to the whole of Uttar Pradesh except the areas which on 07.07.1949 were included in a municipality or a notified area under the provisions of the United Provinces Municipalities Act, 1916. It is not disputed by the respondents that respondent no. 2 Corporation had sold the land to the predecessor of the petitioner vide registered sale deed dated 19.11.1913. Further, it is admitted in the affidavit filed by the Municipal Commissioner that the property in dispute was recorded in the register maintained by the respondent no. 3 Corporation for the years 1927-1935 and even thereafter. Thus, it is not disputed that the property in dispute was included in the erstwhile Municipal Board, Benaras, even prior to enforcement of the UP Municipalities Act, 1916.

36. As far as the applicability of the UP Revenue Code,2006 is concerned, the learned counsel has relied upon Section 2 of the Court, which relates to its applicability and reads as under:-

"2. Applicability of the Code. - The provisions of this Code, except Chapters VIII and IX shall apply to the whole of Uttar Pradesh, and Chapters VIII and IX shall apply to the areas to which any of the enactments specified at serial numbers 19 and 25 of the First Schedule was applicable on the date immediately preceding their repeal by this Code."

It is made clear that Chapter VIII of the Code, 2006 deals with management of land and other properties of Gram Panchayat or other local authorities, and Chapter IX of the Code, 2006 deals with tenures.

37. Thus, the applicability of provisions contained under Chapter VIII and Chapter IX of the Code, 2006, have been made subject to the applicability of any of the enactments specified at serial nos. 19 and 25 of the First Schedule, immediately preceding their repeal by the Code,2006. Serial no. 19 of the First Schedule of the Code, 2006 pertains to the UP Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950 and serial no. 25 of the First Schedule of the Code ,2006 pertains to UP Urban Areas Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950 . Hence, it is contended that as far as the provisions of the UP Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act ,1950 are concerned, the same are not applicable in the present case for the reasons already assigned above.

38. Further, as far as the applicability of the UP Urban Areas Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1956 is concerned, it is contended that neither any exercise of demarcation under Section 5 of the Act, 1956 has ever been carried out by the State, nor any notification has been issued under Section 8 of the Act, 1956 thereby vesting the said agricultural area in the State. A specific plea in this regard has been raised in para 46 of the writ petition, however, the same remains uncontroverted by the respondents. It is further contended that, as would be evident from the records, the property in dispute would not fall in the category of an agricultural land situated in urban areas being recorded as abadi in the revenue records and also being recorded in the municipal records.

39. In view of the submissions so made, it is contended that Chapter VIII and Chapter IX of the Code, 2006 would not be applicable to the property in dispute. Chapter VIII of the Code, 2006, pertains to management of land and other properties by Gram Panchayat or other local authority. Further clause (v) of subsection (2) of Section 59 under the said Chapter provides for entrustment of ponds to a Gram Panchayat or other local authority. Section 61 under Chapter VIII pertains to management of village tanks. Hence, it is contended that no proceedings under Sections 59 /61of the Code, 2006 could have been initiated against the petitioner by the respondents, as the provisions of Chapter VIII of the Code, 2006 shall not be applicable.

40. It is also been stated that in the proceedings so initiated against the petitioner, it has been wrongly mentioned in the notices issued by the concerned Sub-Divisional Magistrate, that the proceedings have been initiated under Section 59/61 of the U.P. Tenancy Act 1939 as there is no dispute regarding tenancy of the agricultural land, hence, the aforesaid provisions of the said Act, 1939 would not at all be attracted in the present case. In this regard, attention has also been drawn to para 6 of the affidavit filed by the Municipal Commissioner, wherein it has been stated that proceedings have been initiated under Section 59/61 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 (previously U.P. ZA & LR Act, 1939), the year of enactment being wrongly mentioned as 1939 CE, and the same should have been 1950 CE.

41. It is further pointed out that Section 59 of the UP Tenancy Act, 1939 pertains to suit by tenant for declaration of right or share, and Section 61 of the UP Tenancy Act, 1939 pertains to suit as to class of tenancy, however, there is no dispute regarding tenancy of agricultural land in the present case, and as such, even otherwise, the said provisions would not be applicable.

42. We are of the view that the contention so raised on behalf of the petitioner has force, however, we find that no relief has been claimed by the petitioner in respect of the proceedings so initiated against the petitioner under the Code, 2006 or otherwise. Hence, we leave it open for the petitioner to raise such pleas in respect of the jurisdiction of the concerned Sub Divisional Magistrate to initiate proceedings under the UP Revenue Code ,2006 or UP Tenancy Act,1939,as the case maybe, before the appropriate forum as prescribed by law.

43. Now, adverting to the case of Hinch Lal Tiwari Vs State of U.P, (2001)6 SCC 496, in this case, the Apex Court had found that the patta had been granted over pond land and in the Khatauni for the years 1387 to 1392 Fasli (corresponding to years 1980 to 1985) and for the years 1393 to 1398 Fasli (1986-92), the description of the said survey number was given as pond.Further, no patta could have been granted in respect of land having a character of a pond. It is in these circumstances that the Apex Court had directed that private respondents shall vacate the land, and a direction was issued to the State to develop and maintain the same as a recreational spot, which will undoubtedly be in the best interest of the villagers.

44. Similarly, in the case of Jagpal Singh Vs State of Punjab, (2011) 11 SCC 396, the appellants were neither the owners nor the tenants of the land in question, which was recorded as a pond. They were, in fact, trespassers and unauthorized occupants of the land who had filled in the village pond and made constructions thereon. In this said case, the Apex Court, while issuing directions to all State Governments in the country to prepare a scheme for eviction of illegal /unauthorized occupants and restoring the land to the Gram Sabha /Gram Panchayat for the common use of the villagers, had further directed that regularization should only be permitted in exceptional cases.

45. Further, in the case of Jitendra Singh Vs Ministry of Environment and others, (2020) 20 SCC 581 a private entity was involved in using excavators and other heavy machinery to forcibly take over possession of a common pond, further, the concerned Industrial Development Authority had acquired land, including some local ponds, and had leased the same to private parties, including the concerned private entity and the representatives of the concerned Industrial Development Authority had started filling up certain ponds and developing an alternate area as a new water body to save the allotment so made in favour of the private entity. It is in the said circumstances that the Apex Court had held that schemes which extinguish local water bodies, albeit with alternatives as provided in the Government Order by the State of UP, are violative of Constitutional principles and are liable to be struck down. It was further directed that the allotment of all the water bodies (both ponds and canals), including to the private entity or any other similar third party in Tehsil Dadari, District Gautam Buddha Nagar, was illegal and was quashed.

46. However, when we consider the facts and circumstances of the present case in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court, we find that in the present case, the predecessors of the petitioner had a valid right, title, and interest over the property in dispute in pursuance to registered sale deeds. Further, the erstwhile Municipal Board, Benaras, way back in the year 1913 itself admitted the fact that there was land and structure existing over the property in dispute. Admittedly the revenue entries relied upon by the respondents, also do not support their case as the property in dispute continues to be recorded as abadi land for the past 72 years and there are no revenue records available prior thereto. Besides, the property in dispute is situated in a densely populated area of Varanasi. No exercise whatsoever was undertaken by the respondents for restoration of the pond in the past. It is only when the present writ petition was filed and the order dated 01.04.2026 was passed that the respondents woke up from their deep slumber and tried to justify the stand so taken by them. Even in the report dated 15.04.2026, prepared by IIT, BHU in haste at the instance of the respondents, there is nothing to demonstrate that there was a pond or any other water body existing over the property in dispute and it is for this reason that the report recommends for 'new pond development'. Even during the pendency of the present writ petition, the respondents have not raised any serious dispute in respect of the pleas raised in the writ petition. Hence, we are of the view that the law so laid down by the Apex Court, discussed in the paragraphs above, would not be applicable in the present set of circumstances.

47. Here, we would also like to advert to the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of State of Rajasthan and another Vs Ultra Tech Cement Limited., (2022) 19 SCC 102 wherein, with the idea of setting up a cement plant, the respondent company had acquired land through negotiations. For executing the project, the respondent company applied to the appellant State for a grant of an adjoining mining lease for mineral limestone and the State Government had finally issued a letter of intent for mining subject to certain conditions, however, subsequently, the State Government had held that the subject land, having been recorded in the revenue records as "Johad" (pond) and as such, no allotment could be made in favour of the respondent company. The High Court had allowed the appeal so filed by the respondent company. In the aforesaid circumstances, the Apex Court had held as under :-"

"13 In Narmada Bachao Andolan v. Union of India, this Court had the occasion to discuss the Precautionary Principle and it was held that the said principle and the corresponding burden of proof on the person who wants to change the status quo, will ordinarily apply in the case of polluting or other projects or industry where the extent of damage likely to be inflicted, is not known. But when the effect of the project is known, then the principles of sustainable development would come into play which will ensure that mitigative steps can be taken to preserve the ecological balance. In the present case, there is no such uncertainty due to lack of availability of data or scientific material about the damage if any, likely to be caused to the ecological balance of the area. Instead, detailed spot inspections have been conducted by the revenue authorities from time to time that establish that there is no 'Johad' existing on the subject land. Despite that, the respondent'Company has been directed to develop an alternate 'Johad' in a planned manner at the same area, as a mitigative step which it has undertaken to execute.

14 In Lafarge Umiam Mining Private Limited, this Court has recognized the fact that the environment has different facets and universal dependence of humans for the use of environmental resources for the most basic needs, inescapably requires choices to be made at different levels on environmental protection and factor in the risks which are to be regulated, as recognized by the concept of sustainable development. Conceding that it is impossible to lay down 'across-the-board' principles and much would depend on the facts of each case, this Court opined that what was required to be seen was how much protection would be sufficient and whether ends would be served by diverting resources to other uses and at the same time, strike a fine balance between environmental protection and environmental risk. No such fine balance is required to be struck in the instant case when admittedly, the spot inspections show that there does not exist any 'Johad' on the subject land that is likely to be affected on account of the change proposed in the revenue records.

15 The directions issued in Jagpal Singh's case calling upon State Governments to prepare a scheme for eviction of illegal/unauthorized occupants of Gram Sabha land also do not come in the way of the respondent'Company. The purpose of the said direction was to prepare a scheme for removal of illegal occupants expeditiously. This does not prevent the respondent'Company from approaching the Court for correction in the revenue records when the site inspection reports prepared by the Revenue Authorities show that there is no water body or catchment area on the subject land.

16 The focus in the case of Electrotherm (India) Limited was on conducting public hearings as a mandatory requirement of the environmental clearance process and the Court has frowned upon doing away with public hearings in the course of the decisionmaking process. In the case of Common Cause, this Court was seized of the aspect of illegal/unlawful mining in the State of Odisha and it was observed that Courts cannot interfere with the Mining Policy or lay down limits on the extent of mining activity that should be permitted by the State/Central Government. The said decision does not have any application to the facts of the instant case where the appellant'State Government has already given an in-principle consent for setting up a cement plant in favour of the respondent'Company and the High Court was only required to examine the aspect of correction in the revenue records in relation to the subject land where a 'Johad' was mentioned, but none existed at site.

17 In Alembic Pharmaceuticals' case, the issue before this Court was with respect to the operation of industries without obtaining prior environmental clearance for a long time and their liability on account of such non-compliance. Noting that the industries had evaded the legally binding regime of obtaining environment clearance, it was held that penalty must be imposed on them for disobedience and non-compliance of the rules and regulations. Here, the respondent'Company has admittedly received environmental clearances and in spite of the same, its project has not taken off due to various hurdles created by the appellant'State Government.

Clearly, the present case is not one of breach of any norms for imposition of penalty on the respondent'Company.

18 Even the judgment of the Division Bench of the Rajasthan High Court in the case of Abdul Rehman is being completely misread by the appellant'State Government. The focus in the said judgment was on the restoration of the catchment area to its original shape for which a plan was directed to be drawn up which included demarcation of the catchment areas, demarcation of drainage channels etc. Nowhere in the said judgment has it been observed that the description of a land as a pond in the revenue records, when no pond exists on site, cannot be corrected after conducting a spot inspection. We are inclined to accept the submission made by learned counsel for the respondent'Company that in the absence of any pond at the spot, the decision rendered in the case of Abdul Rehman cannot be an impediment for processing the application of the respondent'Company for allocation of the subject land, for setting up a cement plant. The High Court has rightly referred to the decision of this Court in Director General, Research and Development, where noting the fact that there was no 'Gair-Mumkin' Nadi existing on the spot, it was observed that the decision of the High Court in Abdul Rahman will not come in the way of allotting the land to the petitioner.

19 For the aforesaid reasons, we concur with the findings returned in the impugned judgment which is upheld. The appellant'State Government is directed to take necessary steps to process the allotment of the subject land in favour of the respondent'Company within four weeks from today. The respondent'Company shall file a fresh undertaking with the State Government, within the same timeline, as was filed by it before the High Court, for initiating time bound activities for the benefit of the surrounding villages, as compensatory measures for the allocation of the subject land.

The appeal is dismissed while leaving the parties to bear their own expenses."

48. Besides, the petitioners have also relied upon the judgment of a Coordinate Bench of this court in Writ Petition No. 2636 (MB) of 2006, Shiv Badan Pandey and others vs. State of UP and others, wherein the dispute related to a piece of land having a character of a pond, which had lost its utility, and this court, while considering the case of Hinchlal Tiwari, had held as under :-

"16. The counter affidavit filed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate does not say anywhere that Khasra Plot No. 406 was ever recorded as Talaab (pond) in the Khatauni prior to the date of vesting or thereafter. What has been stated is that, as per the entry in the Nakal Khatauni of 1356 Fasli, the said Khasra Plot No. 406 measuring 3 bigha 17 biswa, had been recorded in Ziman-5 category to be used by the Asamis for cultivation of Singhara, a crop cultivated in water bodies. The said Khasra is recorded in the name of Bhusan son of Garibe Kahar in Khata Khatauni No. 98. In the year 1359 Fasli, the name of Naumi Lal son of Thakur Deen alongwith Bhusan Kahar finds place in Khata Khatauni No. 88.

17. He has concluded that the aforesaid Khasra fell under Mohal Umrao Singh and the tenure holder was using the same for Singhara cultivation etc. The entry in the Khasra for the year 1359 Fasli in relation to Khasra Plot No. 406 also reveals the area of the said Khasra as 3 bigha 17 biswa out of which 2 bigha land had been recorded as Tal Majarua. However, in column 19 of the said Khasra, the entire area is recorded as Talaab.

18. In the supplementary affidavit filed by the same officer, a site plan and also al survey report have been given, from where it is established that over plot No. 406, thirty four houses have been constructed and people are living therein, including some of the petitioners, as informed by parties' counsel and that one bigha of land which has been allotted to the school also forms part of the same very Khasra Plot No. 406.

19. Though we are satisfied that in case revenue entry of pond in respect of certain land is recorded, may be since before the date of vesting or thereafter but since the pond has lost its utility and was no more in use as a pond and land so covered or pond so covered has been used for some public purposes or some good cause, namely, for development, it would not give a right to any party to remove all the developments and restore the pond, which, in fact, was no more in existence but even then for considering the plea of the petitioners, we have proceeded to examine the case, as if the said land was recorded as pond before the date of vesting.

20. In Hinch Lal Tiwari (supra) the apex court while holding that if a pond (talaab) has fallen into disuse because of drying up but some portion is covered by water in rainy season, then no part of it can be allotted to anyone as abadi site for purposes of building houses in paragraph 13, made an observation that 'it is important to note that material resources of the community like forests, tanks, ponds, hillocks, mountain etc. are nature's bounty they maintain delicate ecological balance. They need to be protected for a proper and health environment which enable people to enjoy a quality life which is essence of the guaranteed right under Articles 21 of the Constitution. The government, including revenue authorities, i.e. respondents 11 to 13, having noticed that a pond is falling in disuse, should have bestowed their attention to develop the same which would, on one hand, have prevented ecological disaster and on the other provided better environment for the benefit of public at large. Such vigil is the best protection against knavish attempt to seek allotment in non abadi sites'..

21. A plain reading of the aforesaid observation would reveal that reference has been drawn to the ponds and tanks which are community tanks or which vests in Gaon sabha. If the tenure holder is using the land for Singhara cultivation the land still would be cultivator land and would not be given the shape of color of pond, as mentioned therein."

49. Besides, there is another aspect of the subject matter in controversy, the Respondent No. 2 Corporation does not dispute the execution of the sale deed dated 19.11.1913 in respect of land measuring 2 bighas and 7 biswas comprised in Areas No. 2404 in favour of the predecessor of the petitioner, which had no character of a pond. It is a settled position of law that a registered sale deed carries with it a formidable presumption of validity and genuineness. Registration is not a mere procedural formality but a solemn act that imparts a high degree of sanctity to the document. Consequently, a court must not lightly or casually declare a registered instrument as a " sham". Relying upon the law and principles enunciated in the case of Prem Singh and others v Birbal and others, (2006) 5 SCC 353, Jamila Begum(Dead) through Lrs vs. Shami Mohd.(Dead). through Los and another (2019) 2 SCC 727, and Ratan Singh and others vs. Normal Gill and others, (2021) 15 SCC 300, this court reiterates that the burden of proof to displace this presumption rests heavily upon the challenger. Such a challenge can only be sustained if the party provides material particulars and cogent evidence to demonstrate that the deed was never intended to operate as a bona-fide transfer of title. However, in the present case, no such challenge has been made by the respondent no.2- Corporation, and as such it is beyond doubt that the sale deed is valid and genuine and so are it's contents.

50. The respondent No. 2- Corporation having failed to challenge the validity and genuineness of the sale deed dated 19.11.1913 and as such, the respondent No. 2 Corporation, after a lapse of about 113 years thereafter, would be estopped from alleging otherwise that there is pond situated at the property in dispute. One of the central principles of the doctrine of promissory estoppel is that the law will not permit an unconscionable departure by one party from the subject matter of an assumption which has been adopted by the other party as the basis of a course of conduct which would affect the other party, if the assumption is not adhered to. In this regard, we rely upon the law laid by the Apex Court in the case of Manualsons Hotels Pvt Ltd v State of Kerala and others, Civil Appeal no. 2480 of 2008 decided on 11.05.2016, wherein it was held as under :-

"21. In fact, we must never forget that the doctrine of promissory estoppel is a doctrine whose foundation is that an unconscionable departure by one party from the subject matter of an assumption which may be of fact or law, present or future, and which has been adopted by the other party as the basis of some course of conduct, act or omission, should not be allowed to pass muster. And the relief to be given in cases involving the doctrine of promissory estoppels contains a degree of flexibility which would ultimately render justice to the aggrieved party. The entire basis of this doctrine has been well put in a judgment of the Australian High Court reported in The Commonwealth of Australia v. Verwayen, 170 C.L.R. 394, by Deane,J. in the following words:

1. While the ordinary operation of estoppel by conduct is between parties to litigation, it is a doctrine of substantive law the factual ingredients of which fall to be pleaded and resolved like other factual issues in a case. The persons who may be bound by or who may take the benefit of such an estoppel extend beyond the immediate parties to it, to their privies, whether by blood, by estate or by contract. That being so, an estoppel by conduct can be the origin of primary rights of property and of contract.

2. The central principle of the doctrine is that the law will not permit an unconscionable - or, more accurately, unconscientious - departure by one party from the subject matter of an assumption which has been adopted by the other party as the basis of some relationship, course of conduct, act or omission which would operate to that other party's detriment if the assumption be not adhered to for the purposes of the litigation.

3. Since an estoppel will not arise unless the party claiming the benefit of it has adopted the assumption as the basis of action or inaction and thereby placed himself in a position of significant disadvantage if departure from the assumption be permitted, the resolution of an issue of estoppel by conduct will involve an examination of the relevant belief, actions and position of that party.

4. The question whether such a departure would be unconscionable relates to the conduct of the allegedly estopped party in all the circumstances. That party must have played such a part in the adoption of, or persistence in, the assumption that he would be guilty of unjust and oppressive conduct if he were now to depart from it. The cases indicate four main, but not exhaustive, categories in which an affirmative answer to that question may be justified, namely, where that party: (a) has induced the assumption by express or implied representation; (b) has entered into contractual or other material relations with the other party on the conventional basis of the assumption; (c) has exercised against the other party rights which would exist only if the assumption were correct; (d) knew that the other party laboured under the assumption and refrained from correcting him when it was his duty in conscience to do so. Ultimately, however, the question whether departure from the assumption would be unconscionable must be resolved not by reference to some preconceived formula framed to serve as a universal yardstick but by reference to all the circumstances of the case, including the reasonableness of the conduct of the other party in acting upon the assumption and the nature and extent of the detriment which he would sustain by acting upon the assumption if departure from the assumed state of affairs were permitted. In cases falling within category (a), a critical consideration will commonly be that the allegedly estopped party knew or intended or clearly ought to have known that the other party would be induced by his conduct to adopt, and act on the basis of, the assumption. Particularly in cases falling within category (b), actual belief in the correctness of the fact or state of affairs assumed may not be necessary. Obviously, the facts of a particular case may be such that it falls within more than one of the above categories.

5. The assumption may be of fact or law, present or future. That is to say it may be about the present or future existence of a fact or state of affairs (including the state of the law or the existence of a legal right, interest or relationship or the content of future conduct).

6. The doctrine should be seen as a unified one which operates consistently in both law and equity. In that regard, "equitable estoppel" should not be seen as a separate or distinct doctrine which operates only in equity or as restricted to certain defined categories (e.g. acquiescence, encouragement, promissory estoppel or proprietary estoppel).

7. Estoppel by conduct does not of itself constitute an independent cause of action. The assumed fact or state of affairs (which one party is estopped from denying) may be relied upon defensively or it may be used aggressively as the factual foundation of an action arising under ordinary principles with the entitlement to ultimate relief being determined on the basis of the existence of that fact or state of affairs. In some cases, the estoppel may operate to fashion an assumed state of affairs which will found relief (under ordinary principles) which gives effect to the assumption itself (e.g. where the defendant in an action for a declaration of trust is estopped from denying the existence of the trust).

8. The recognition of estoppel by conduct as a doctrine operating consistently in law and equity and the prevalence of equity in a Judicature Act system combine to give the whole doctrine a degree of flexibility which it might lack if it were an exclusively common law doctrine. In particular, the prima facie entitlement to relief based upon the assumed state of affairs will be qualified in a case where such relief would exceed what could be justified by the requirements of good conscience and would be unjust to the estopped party. In such a case, relief framed on the basis of the assumed state of affairs represents the outer limits within which the relief appropriate to do justice between the parties should be framed.'

22. The above statement, based on various earlier English authorities, correctly encapsulates the law of promissory estoppel with one difference ' under our law, as has been seen hereinabove, promissory estoppel can be the basis of an independent cause of action in which detriment does not need to be proved. It is enough that a party has acted upon the representation made. The importance of the Australian case is only to reiterate two fundamental concepts relating to the doctrine of promissory estoppel ' one, that the central principle of the doctrine is that the law will not permit an unconscionable departure by one party from the subject matter of an assumption which has been adopted by the other party as the basis of a course of conduct which would affect the other party if the assumption be not adhered to. The assumption may be of fact or law, present or future. And two, that the relief that may be given on the facts of a given case is flexible enough to remedy injustice wherever it is found. And this would include the relief of acting on the basis that a future assumption either as to fact or law will be deemed to have taken place so as to afford relief to the wronged party."

51. Lastly we find that admittedly Arazi No. 2404 has an area of 0.668 hectares, however, the entire exercise of correction of revenue entries as well as the alleged restoration of pond is being undertaken only in respect of property in dispute belonging to the petitioner having an area of 22,571.84 sq ft i.e 2097.75 sq meters, while no such exercise has been undertaken in respect of the remaining land comprised in Arazi No. 2404. Thus, the action so resorted to by the respondents is not only arbitrary but also discriminatory and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

52. Moreover, the petitioner has a valid title and possession over the property in dispute in pursuance to the registered sale deed and as such the title and possession of the petitioner can only be disturbed by the respondents only after taking recourse to due process of law and till that point of time the petitioner is entitled to enjoy the benefits of the property in dispute being the owner thereof.

53. In the above background and the fact that respondent No. 2 -Corporation does not dispute the genuineness and validity of the sale deed dated 19.11.1913 and the property in dispute continues to be recorded as abadi in the revenue records, and there being nothing whatsoever on record to demonstrate that the character of the land was that of a pond in the past. We are of the view that respondent number 3 could not have denied the issuance of a no-objection certificate to the petitioner solely on the ground that a pond was existing over the property in dispute way back in the Fasli year 1291, corresponding to 1884 CE.

54. Under the circumstances, the present writ petition is allowed and the letter dated 24.1.2026 issued by respondent no. 3, morefully annexed as Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition, is quashed. Further, a writ of mandamus is issued to the respondent no. 2 corporation to reconsider the case of petitioner for issuance of a No Objection Certificate to the petitioner for the purpose of construction of hotel on the property in dispute keeping in view the findings above. The exercise so to be undertaken by the respondent no. 2-Corporation shall be completed expeditiously and preferably within a period of four weeks from the production of the certified copy of this order.

55. No order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

Whether rent due to a Nagar Palika Parishad from a tenant can be recovered as arrears of land revenue under Section 173-A of the U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 or Section 3 of the U.P. Public Moneys (Recovery of Dues) Act, 1972?

Headnotes

U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 – s.173-A – U.P. Public Moneys (Recovery of Dues) Act, 1972 – s.3 – U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 – ss.279, 280 – Recovery of rent as arrears of land revenue – Nagar Palika – petitioner allotted a shop owned by the Nagar Palika on rent in the year 1998 for a period of fifteen years – Possession delivered only in November 2006 – In its meeting dated 30.12.2006, the Nagar Palika resolved that the petitioner would pay rent from November 2006 – Executive Officer issued notice dated 18.01.2008 demanding rent for the period prior to November 2006 – Pursuant to the directions of the District Magistrate dated 08.01.2008, a demand of ₹1,07,800 was raised – petitioner requested not to demand rent for the period during which possession of the shop had not been delivered – whether such arrears of rent due to the Nagar Palika could legally be recovered as arrears of land revenue.

Held:

A. U.P. Municipalities Act, 1916 – s.173-A – Recovery as arrears of land revenue – What is made recoverable as arrears of land revenue under Section 173-A of the Act of 1916 is any sum of money due to a Nagar Palika Parishad on account of tax other than a tax payable upon immediate demand – in the present case, the amount due is not on account of any tax but is due on account of rent for a shop let out to the petitioner – assuming that the rent in question was due to the Nagar Palika from the petitioner, it cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue in view of the clear provision under Section 173-A of the Act of 1916.

B. U.P. Public Moneys (Recovery of Dues) Act, 1972 – s.3 – Nagar Palika is, by no means, the State Government or the Corporation so as to attract clause (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 3 of the Act of 1972 – the petitioner had not taken any loan, advance or credit either from the State Government or the Corporation, or a loan from a banking company or a Government company under a State-sponsored scheme, nor was he party to an agreement relating to a guarantee given by the State Government or the Corporation in respect of a loan raised by an industrial concern – given the character of the Nagar Palika as a body corporate, recovery of its contractual dues is beyond the contemplation of public money recoverable under the Act of 1972 – by no stretch of logic can the said Act apply to dues of money on account of rent payable to Nagar Palika by a tenant, as these are absolutely contractual dues.

C. U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 – ss.279, 280 – Nagar Palika could not realise arrears of rent by the methods prescribed under Sections 166 to 173 of the Act of 1916, which does not authorise recovery as arrears of land revenue – impugned citation issued under Sections 279 and 280 of the U.P.

Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 was not permissible – dues could, however, be recovered by a suit, subject to the bar of limitation – impugned citation dated 14.09.2009 quashed – Nagar Palika left at liberty to recover its dues by any other mode permissible in law. From the recovery citation dated 14.09.2009 issued by the Tahsildar, Tahsil Swar, Rampur, for recovery of ₹1,10,000 as arrears of land revenue, together with interest and recovery charges, towards alleged rent dues of a shop belonging to Nagar Palika Parishad, Swar, Rampur.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

The petitioner impugns the recovery certificate dated 14.09.2009 issued by the Tahsildar, Tahsil Swar, Rampur for recovery of a sum of ₹1,10,000 with interest and recovery charges.

2. The facts leading to the petition, according to the petitioner, are that there is a shop situated in the premises of the Nagar Palika Parishad, Tahsil Swar, Rampur and the owner of the shop is the Nagar Palika. The said shop had been rented out to the petitioner by the Nagar Palika in the year 1998 for a period of fifteen years. Possession of the shop was not given to the petitioner until the year 2006. On 30.12.2006, in a meeting of the Nagar Palika, it was resolved that rent would be paid by the petitioner from the month of November, 2006. It was also resolved that the petitioner shall deposit rent due by the 5th day of each succeeding month. The petitioner entered an agreement regarding the aforesaid terms and conditions with the Nagar Palika, represented by its Executive Officer. The agreement was drawn up in the form of an affidavit dated 30.12.2006, that was filed by the petitioner before the Executive Officer, Nagar Palika Parishad. The petitioner, after entering into the said agreement, commenced depositing rent with the Executive Officer regularly, month by month, and until date the petition was instituted, the deposit of rent has regularly been made. The Executive Officer sent a notice dated 18.01.2008 to the petitioner for recovery of the rent before the month of November, 2006.

3. A perusal of the notice shows that the Executive Officer has sent a notice dated 18.01.2008 in compliance with an order of the District Magistrate dated 08.01.2008, demanding a sum of ₹1,07,800, which the said officer demanded unilaterally. The deposit of this arrears of rent was directed to be made within seven days by the Nagar Palika. After receipt of the last mentioned notice, the petitioner contacted the Executive Officer personally on a number of occasions and requested him not to demand rent for the period when possession of the shop was not given to him, but the respondents did not relent. The request went unheeded. To the petitioner's dismay, he was suddenly confronted with the impugned citation dated 14.09.2009 issued by the Tahsildar for a sum of ₹1,07,800.

4. The petitioner agitates the point that without giving possession of the shop allotted to him till November, 2006, the respondents took the palpably unfair stand of demanding rent for a period of time prior to delivery of possession of the demised shop. It is asserted that the Tahsildar, Tahsil Swar, Rampur, under the directions of the District Magistrate, Rampur, has issued the impugned recovery citation against the petitioner, directing recovery of a sum of ₹1,07,800 together with interest and recovery charges. The impugned citation is assailed as manifestly illegal.

5. A counter affidavit has been filed by the Executive Officer, Nagar Palika Parishad, Swar, Rampur. It is averred in paragraph no. 5 that the impugned citation dated 14.09.2009 was issued against the petitioner in pursuance of the demand note issued by the Executive Officer. He says, therefore, that the citation is a consequential step and the demand note has not been challenged by the petitioner. Therefore, the petition is not maintainable.

6. In paragraph no. 6 of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the Nagar Palika, it is said that the contents in paragraphs nos. 4 to 12 of the writ petition are related to the renting out of the shop to the petitioner by the Nagar Palika, which somehow has been described as the Corporation, and their board resolution, which was rejected by the State Government. It is said that these matters do not require any reply. It is then said that the petitioner was given possession of the shop in the month of November, 2006, and therefore, the Nagar Palika resolved not to recover any rent before November, 2006. But on the directions dated 18.01.2008 issued by the District Magistrate, Rampur, a demand note was sent to the Tahsildar, Swar, Rampur to recover rent from July, 1999 to November, 2006 from the petitioner as arrears of land revenue. The petitioner did not pay rent from July, 1999 to November, 2006, and therefore, a demand note was sent to respondent no. 4, leading to the impugned citation. We note that there is a persistent plea raised that since the demand note is not under challenge, the citation cannot be questioned, it being only a process to enforce the demand note.

7. The moot question is whether arrears of rent due to the Nagar Palika can be recovered as arrears of land revenue.

8. In paragraph no. 8 of the counter affidavit filed by the Nagar Palika, it is averred that the recovery citation was properly issued against the petitioner as money was due against him to the Nagar Palika. It is specifically pleaded that under Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Public Moneys (Recovery of Dues) Act, 19722, the petitioner, who is a party to the agreement relating to advance, is liable to pay the amount as arreas of land revenue.

9. When the petition was called on for hearing, no one appeared on behalf of the petitioner. The writ petition, being an old matter of the year 2009, and a short question being involved, if rent due to the Nagar Palika could be recovered as arrears of land revenue under the Uttar Pradesh Municipalities Act, 1916, we heard this matter with the assistance of Mr. Sharad Sharma, learned Counsel appearing for the Nagar Palika Parishad, Swar, Rampur (respondent no. 5) and Mr. Sanjay Kumar Ray, learned Standing Counsel, appearing on behalf of the State.

10. We notice that the recovery of dues of a Nagar Palika Parishad as arrears of land revenue are dealt with under Section 173A of the Act of 1916. Section 173A of the Act of 1916 reads :

173-A. Recovery of taxes as arrears of land revenue.-(1) Where any sum is due on account of a tax, other than any tax payable upon immediate demand, from a person to a board, the Municipality may without prejudice to any other mode of recovery apply to the Collector to recover such sum together with costs of the proceedings as if it were an arrears of land revenue.*

(2) The Collector on being satisfied that the sum is due shall proceed to recover it as an arrear of land revenue.

11. A perusal of the aforesaid provision spares little doubt that what is made recoverable as arrears of land revenue is any sum of money due to a Nagar Palika Parishad on account of tax other than a tax payable upon immediate demand to a Board. It is only in cases where tax due to them, other than a tax payable on immediate demand, that the Board may, without prejudice to the other modes of recovery, apply to the Collector to recover such sum, together with costs of the proceedings, as if it were arrears of land revenue. The Collector, on his satisfaction that the sum is due, can proceed to recover as arrears of land revenue.

12. Here, the amount due is not on account of any tax. It is due on account of rent for a shop that was let out to the petitioner in the manner that it was allotted in the year 2009, but possession was delivered in November, 2006. What the Nagar Palika is demanding of the petitioner is rent for the period since the shop was allotted and until possession was delivered. We do not pronounce upon the point whether the Nagar Palika Parishad could, at all, have demanded rent for the period that possession of the shop was not delivered to the petitioner. We confine our holding in this case to the point that assuming that the rent in question was due to the Nagar Palika from the petitioner, it cannot be recovered as arrears of land revenue, in view of the clear provision under Section 173-A of the Act of 1916.

13. We may refer with profit the Bench decision of this Court in Ram Bilas Tibrewal v. Chairman, Municipal Corporation Board, Titri Bazar and others. This was a case where a sum of ₹37,296 was sought to be recovered from the petitioner as arrears of land revenue. The money claimed against the petitioner in Ram Bilas Tibrewal (supra) was in respect of a contract for realization of Tahbazari, settled in his favor by the Chairman of the Town Area, Titri Bazar. It was in the context of the aforesaid facts that their Lordships of the Division Bench, upon considering the provision of Section 173-A of the Act of 1916 as well as Section 21 of the Uttar Pradesh Town Areas Act, 1914, held :

6. A bare perusal of the two provisions, extracted above, reveals that the contention of the learned counsel of the petitioner is well founded. The aforesaid two provisions make recoverable as arrears of land revenue only such sum which is due on account of a tax. Admittedly, the amount alleged to be due from the petitioner is not due on account of a tax. Indeed, it is due on account of the contract of realisation of Tahbazari settled in favour of the petitioner. Therefore, for recovery of this due, the provisions of Section 173-A of Municipalities Act and Section 21 of Town Area Act cannot be resorted to. Under the provisions of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act 1950 only such sum can be recovered which is due as arrears of land revenue. It cannot be gainsaid that the amount in question is not due on account of a land revenue. Under the Provisions of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, an amount other than land revenue can be realised as arrears of land revenue only if it is made recoverable as arrears of land revenue under any statutory provision or any agreement in that regard. If the money due is not a land revenue or is not made recoverable as arrears of land revenue in the manner aforesaid, it can be recovered only by filing a Civil Suit. The respondent No. 1 may, if so advised, institute a Civil Suit against the petitioner for recovery of the alleged dues but the amount can-not be realised through the impugned recovery proceeding. The impugned proceeding is totally without jurisdiction and deserves to be quashed.

14. A similar question arose again before a Division Bench in Titu Singh v. District Magistrate/Collector, Mathura and others. The question in Titu Singh (supra) was if any dues on account of shortfall in the theka money for collecting parking fee, that had to be re-auctioned, on account of the petitioner's default, resulting in the shortfall, could be recovered as arrears of land revenue. In Titu Singh, it was held by the Division Bench :

6. From perusal of the aforesaid provisions of the Municipalities Act and Town Area Act, it is clear that the contention of the learned Counsel for the petitioner is well founded. Under Section 173-A of the Municipalities Act, it is provided that any sum due on account of tax, other than octroi or toll or any similar tax payable upon immediate demand, from a person to a board, the board may, recover as arrears of land revenue. In the instance case the amount in question became due from the petitioner as a result of default in payment of Theka money between the parties. Similarly Section 21 of the Town Areas Act provides that arrears of any tax imposed under this Act may be recovered and no other amount. Therefore, the provisions of Section 173-A of the Municipalities Act, and Section 21 of the Town Areas Act are not attracted. The amount in question is not a tax imposed under the aforesaid two Act and as such the amount due from the petitioner could not be recovered as arrears of land revenue. Besides the aforesaid decisions, there are two recent decisions also in Bisheshwar Singh @ Kalloo v. District Magistrate/Collector, Shahjahanpur and others, 2001 (4) AWC 2556 and Rakesh Shukla v. District Magistrate/Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Phoolpur, Allahabad and another. 2002 (3) AWC 2397. In these decisions also, the Division Bench found that the Theka money could not be recovered as arrears of land revenue. However, the Bench did not interfere on the ground that the equity was not in favour of the petitioner.

15. We must now answer the question which the learned Counsel for the Nagar Palika has raised before us. He submits that even if the rent to the Nagar Palika on account of the shop in question, due against the petitioner is not recoverable as arrears of land revenue under Section 173-A of the Act of 1916, it is certainly recoverable under Section 3 of the Act of 1972. Section 3 of the Act of 1972 reads :

3. (1) Where any person is party'

(a) to any agreement relating to a loan, advance or grant given to him or relating to credit in respect of, or relating to hire purchase of, goods sold to him by the State Government or the Corporation, by way of financial assistance ; or

(b) to any agreement relating to a loan, advance or grant given to him or relating to credit in respect of, or relating to hire-purchase of, goods sold to him, by a banking company or a Government company, as the case may be, under a State-sponsored scheme; or

(c) to any agreement relating to a gurantee given by the State Government or the Corporation in respect of a loan raised by an industrial concern; or

(d) to any agreement providing that any money payable thereunder to the State Government 1[or the Corporation] shall be recoverable as arrears of land revenue; and such person'

(i) makes any default in repayment of the loan or advance or any instalment thereof; or

(ii) having become liable under the conditions of the grant to refund the grant or any portion thereof, makes any default in the refund of such grant or portion or any instalment thereof ; or

(iii) otherwise fails to comply with the terms of the agreement,-

then, in the case of State Government, such officer as may be authorized in that behalf by the State Government by notification in the official Gazette, and in the case of the Corporation or a Government company the Managing Director or where there is no Managing Director then the Chairman of the Corporation, by whatever name called or such owner of the Corporation or Government Company as may be authorized in that behalf by the Managing Director or the Chairman thereof, and in the case of a banking company, the local agent thereof, by whatever name called may send a certificate to the Collector, mentioning the sum due from such person and requesting that such sum together with costs of the proceedings be recovered as if it were an arrear of land revenue.

(2) The Collector on receiving the certificate shall proceed to recover the amount stated therein as an arrear of land revenue.

(3) No suit for the recovery of any sum due as aforesaid shall lie in the civil court against any person referred to in sub-section (1).

(4) In the case of any agreement referred to in sub-section (1) between any person referred to in that sub-section and the State Government or the Corporation, no arbitration proceedings shall lie at the instance of either party for recovery of any sum claimed to be due under the said sub-section or for disputing the correctness of such claim :

Provided that whatever proceedings are taken against any person for the recovery of any such sum he may pay the amount claimed under protest to the officer taking such proceedings, and upon such payment the proceedings shall be stayed and the person against whom such proceedings were taken may make a reference under or otherwise enforce an arbitration agreement in respect of the amount so paid, and the provisions of section 183 of the Uttar Pradesh Land Revenue Act, 1901, or section 287-A of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950, as the case may be, shall mutatis mutandis apply in relation to such reference or enforcement as they apply in relation to any suit in the civil court.

(5) Save as otherwise expressly provided in the provisions to sub-section (4) of this section or in section 183 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 or section 287-A of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 every certificate sent to the collector under sub-section (1) shall be final and shall not be called in question in any original suit, application (including any application under the Arbitration Act, 1940) or in any reference to arbitration, and no injunction shall be granted by any court or other authority in respect of any action taken or intended to be taken in pursuance of any power conferred by or under this Act.

16. A perusal of sub-clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 3 of the Act of 1972 shows that in order to render any person liable to be proceeded with against for recovery of dues payable to the State Government or the U.P. Financial Corporation, or any other corporation notified by the State Government etc., certain conditions mentioned in the various clauses of sub-section (1) of Section 3 have to be satisfied. Under Section 2(a) of the Act of 1972, a Corporation has been defined as follows:

2. In this Act unless the context otherwise requires,"

(a) "Corporation" means the Uttar Pradesh Financial'Corporation established under the State Financial Corporation'Act, 1951, and includes any other Corporation owned or'controlled by the Central Government or the State Government'and specified in a notification issued in that behalf by the State'Government in the official Gazette ;

17. Likewise, a banking company has been defined under section 2(f) thus :

(f) 'banking company' means the State Bank of India, constituted under the State Bank of India Act, 1955, a subsidiary bank as defined in the State Bank of India (Subsidiary Banks) Act, 1959, a corresponding new bank constituted under the Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970, or a banking company as defined in the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 ; or a financing bank or Central Bank as defined in the Uttar Pradesh Co-operative Societies Act, 1965 not being a land development bank. ;

18. Under clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 3, money may be recovered as arrears of land revenue under the Act of 1972, where any person is a party to any agreement relating to a loan, advance or grant given to him or relating to credit in respect of, or relating to hire purchase of goods sold to him by the State Government or the Corporation by way of financial assistance, to borrow the phraseology of the statute. Under clause (b), if a man is party to any agreement relating to a loan, advance or grant given to him by a banking company or a Government company, under a State-sponsored scheme; or if he is party to any agreement relating relating to a guarantee given by the State Government or a Corporation in respect of a loan raised by an industrial concern, or to any agreement providing that any money payable under such agreement to the State Government or Corporation shall be recoverable as arrears of rent revenue, and the person proceeded with it against commits default, or otherwise fails to comply with the terms of the agreement etc. The Nagar Palika is, by no means, the State Government or the Corporation, so as to attract clause (d) of sub-section 3(1) of the Act of 1972. The petitioner has not taken any loan, advance or credit either from the State Government or the Corporation, or a loan from a banking company or a Government company, under a State-sponsored scheme. He is not party to agreement relating to a guarantee given by the State Government or the Corporation in respect of the loan raised by an industrial concern.

19. Given the character of the Nagar Palika as a body corporate, recovery of its contractual dues are beyond the contemplation of public money recoverable under the Act of 1972. By no stretch of logic can the said Act apply to dues of money on account of rent that is payable to Nagar Palika by a tenant. These are absolutely contractual dues.

20. The question which we now have to deal with, on being raised by learned Counsel for the Nagar Palika too has been considered by a Bench decision of this Court in Nand Kishor v. Collector/District Magistrate, Rampur and others. In Nand Kishor (supra), the question precisely was one regarding recovery of dues of rent of a shop due to the Nagar Palika Parishad, Swar Rampur, that is to say, the respondents here, for the period July 1999 to 16.11.2006. The Court was of opinion that on facts, the petitioners could not escape liability to pay the rent for the period July, 1999 to 06.11.2006. However, regarding recovery of such rent as arrears of land revenue by resort to the provisions of the Act of 1972 or Sections 279 and 280 of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 19507, it was, nevertheless held that the Nagar Palika could not realise arrears of rent by methods prescribed under Sections 166 to 173 of the Act of 1916, that is to say, the mode permissible under Chapter VI of the Act of 1916, which does not authorise recovery as arrears of land revenue. The impugned citation here has been issued under the provisions of the Sections 279 and 280 UP ZA & LR Act, which is not permissible. Of course, it can be recovered by a suit, subject to the bar of limitation.

21. In the result, this petition succeeds and stands allowed. The impugned citation dated 14.09.2009 issued by the Tahsildar, Tahsil Swar, Rampur (Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition) is hereby quashed.

22. It will be open to the Nagar Palika Parishad, Swar Rampur, to recover its dues by any other mode permissible in law.'

23. There shall be no order as to costs.

24. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the Tahsildar, Swar, Rampur through the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Rampur.

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION
CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE RAM MANOHAR NARAYAN MISHRA, J.

Criminal Revision No. 437 of 2026

Anup Kumar Shrivastava ...Revisionist
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Issue for Consideration

Whether the Special Judge erred in rejecting the discharge application of the revisionist under Section 239 Cr.P.C. in a case under Section 13(1)(e) read with Section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, having regard to the reduction of the discrepant amount after investigation, the smallness of the discrepancy, the explanation of loans taken from friends and relatives, and the alleged non-application of mind in the grant of sanction?

Headnotes

Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 (prior to amendment of 2018) --- S. 13(1)(e), 13(2) --- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 239 --- Discharge --- Disproportionate assets --- Scope of inquiry at stage of discharge --- Explanation of accused a matter for trial.

HELD: At the stage of Section 239 Cr.P.C., the court has only to look into the prima facie case and decide whether the charge is groundless; it is not to conduct a mini-trial, weigh the evidence or accept the defence explanation as gospel truth. Under Section 13(1)(e), "known sources of income" means the sources known to the prosecution, and the onus to account satisfactorily for the assets lies on the accused, which he cannot discharge at the stage of Section 239. The fact that the discrepancy between income and expenditure was whittled down after investigation, though significant, cannot be the sole ground for discharge, nor can the fact that the discrepancy is a small fraction of the income. The revisionist will have the opportunity at trial to prove every amount received from valid sources, and that any amount borrowed from a friend or relative was within the limits prescribed under the relevant rules and duly intimated to the Government; at the stage of framing of charge there is no scope for such calculation and proof. Even strong suspicion is sufficient for framing charge. [Paras 17, 21-25]

Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 --- S. 19 --- Sanction for prosecution --- Plea of non-application of mind --- Rejected.

HELD: Where the sanctioning officer stated that he had meticulously examined all the material collected during investigation and recorded his satisfaction regarding the charges before granting sanction, and it was not the case of the revisionist that the sanction order was not passed by the competent officer, it cannot be said that the sanction was accorded without application of mind. [Paras 20, 22]

Criminal revision dismissed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 19.03.2026 passed by the Special Judge, Prevention of Corruption Act, Court No. 1, Lucknow, rejecting the discharge application under Section 239 Cr.P.C. in Case Crime No. 24 of 2012, under Section 13(1)(e) read with Section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, Police Station Hazratganj, Lucknow.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Avdhesh Kumar Pandey, Radhika Varma, Shreshth Srivastava, Trisha Singh, Sarika Mittal.

For the Opposite Party(s): G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. Heard submissions of Shri Shreshth Srivastava, Advocate and Ms. Sarika Mittal, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned AGA for the State against disposal of discharge application filed by the revisionist before the trial court.

2. Instant criminal revision, had been preferred against impugned order dated 19.03.2026 passed by learned Special Judge, Prevention of Corruption Act, Court No.1, Lucknow arising out of Case Crime No.24 of 2012 under section 13(1)(e) read with section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. By the impugned order, the learned trial court has dismissed the discharge application filed by the revisionist under section 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure.

3. The facts relevant for present revision are that on 15.11.2010 a Government Order No. 108/1/84/2010 was issued by the State Government on the basis of a communication received from the Anti-Corruption Department, directing an 'open' investigation against the revisionist. In the said enquiry allegedly discrepancy of Rs.3,16,341/- in respect of the revisionist between the known sources of income and the assets found, wherein the known income was stated to be Rs.10,89,199/- and the assets found were Rs.13,24,450/-. On the basis of this Government Order, a report was prepared by the Anti-Corruption Department and the same was forwarded to the Inspector-in-Charge for the registration of the First Information Report under section 13(1)(e) r/w section 13 (2) of the Act. Pursuant to the said directions, the matter was forwarded to the Inspector-in-Charge, and on 20.01.2012 an FIR came to be registered against the revisionist. As per the report dated 28.03.2017 prepared by the Anti-Corruption Department for the check period from 01.04.2004 to 31.12.2004, a discrepancy of Rs.1,69,815/- was alleged in the income of the revisionist from known sources. The report recorded that the known income of the revisionist was Rs.10,89,199/-, whereas the total income assessed was Rs.12,59,014/-, and the matter was forwarded for approval to grant sanction under Section 19 of the Prevention of Corruption Act. He was posted as P.A., Revenue and Special Intelligence, Lucknow.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that solely on the basis of the aforesaid alleged difference, the accused/applicant has been booked for the offences punishable under Sections 13(1)(e) read with Section 13(2) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. That Vide letter no. 1770/8 T.C. dated 9/8/2018, sanction was granted; however, the same was accorded without due application of mind. The revisionist further preferred a Discharge Application which was subsequently dismissed by the impugned order.

5. Feeling aggrieved by the said impugned order, the revisionist/accused has filed the present revision before this Court under Section 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure / 442 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 with a prayer to quash the impugned order dated 19/03/2026 passed by Special Judge (Prevention of Corruption Act), Lucknow, whereby discharge application moved by the revisionist has been dismissed. He has prayed for quashing of criminal proceedings initiated against him and also a prayer to discharge him from alleged charges.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that the alleged check period in the present case is from 01/04/2004 to 31/12/2004. However, the Government Order directing initiation of departmental inquiry was issued only in the year 2010 and the FIR was subsequently registered in the year 2012. Thus, there is an inordinate and unexplained delay of about 8 years from the end of the alleged discrepancy during the check period till the registration of the FIR. The prosecution has failed to disclose any justification for such abnormal delay. Such prolonged and unexplained delay in initiation of criminal proceedings causes serious prejudice to the revisionist and is violative of the right to a speedy trial guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

7. He next submitted that the prosecution has failed to correctly ascertain the "known sources of income" of the applicant inasmuch as the report prepared by the department shows a discrepancy of Rs.1,69,815/- during the check period. It is well settled principle of law that in order to establish an offence under Section 13(1)(e) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, the prosecution must prove :-

(i) the known sources of income of the accused;

(ii) the assets possessed by the accused during the check period;

(iii) that such assets are disproportionate to the known sources of income.

8. He also submitted that the Sanctioning Officer, while granting the sanction, has failed to apply his mind, which is sine qua non for granting the sanction under Section 19 of the Act. A careful reading of the sanctioning order would reveal that the order has been passed without recording any reason. Inasmuch as the the representation made by the applicant/accused has not been considered. Sanction order is non-speaking and thus contrary to ratio of Hon'ble Supreme Court in C.S. Krishnamurthy vs State Of Karnatak (2005) 4 SCC 81.

9. He further submitted that on perusal of impugned order, it is obvious that learned Special Judge, while rejecting the discharge application, has gone into a different tangent inasmuch as learned Special Judge has only dealt with the powers of the discharge but nowhere the contentions of the accused/applicant nor any finding on the arguments raised during the hearing of discharge application has been recorded. The discharge application has been dismissed in a mechanical manner without application of mind from.

10. From perusal of report as well as the sanction letter, it is quite imperative that the head of "known sources of income" has not been clearly demonstrated by the respondent inasmuch as the department has included the loan assets as well as the amount spent for the maintenance of the family members. Further the revisionist in his letter addressed to Additional Director, Revenue and Intelligence has clearly stated that he has taken loan from his friends etc. and therefore, the case against him under the Prevention of Corruption Act is only an abuse of process of law. The current proceedings are nothing but an abuse of absolute process of law which are being carried out to harass the revisionist.

11. The income which is available at the disposal of the public servant will only be considered to adjudicate the question of disproportionate assets. The amount, spent by the revisionist on his family, was also added by the department in his income. He has taken a house loan from IDBI Bank in the year 2025. The revisionist got a sale deed executed on 30/07/2005 of a land situated at Dali Bagh, Lucknow on 30/07/2005 from its owner Smt. Anjana Gadhoke. The said sale deed was executed in favour of the revisionist and his wife for sale consideration of Rs.6,00,000/-. The land was measuring 142.66 square meter which is part of Plot No.12, Dalibagh Butler Road, Lucknow. He took loan from his friends and relatives. Later on he built some flats by taking loan from friends and relatives and inform the competent officer in writing. There is discrepancy with regard to amount which was found discrepant to the "known sources of income" of the revisionist in FIR as well as in charge sheet. In the FIR discrepancy shown as Rs.3,16,341/- whereas after investigation this amount was reduced to Rs.1,69,815/-. This depicts a loophole in prosecution case which has been oversighted by learned trial court. The revisionist has informed department as well as Investigating Officer that he taken loan amounting to Rs.45,00,000/- from the friends and relatives for construction of flat of land purchased by him jointly with his wife. He is a member of Hindu Undivided Family (HUF) and assets and financial transaction attributable to the family have been wrongly and illegally treated as the exclusive income of the revisionist. But said facts has not been rebutted by the prosecution. The disputed amount of Rs.5,00,000/- as well as other amount reflected in calculation sheet are part of the same loan amount borrowed by the accused from his friends and relatives. There is independent and separate source of income of the revisionist as alleged by the prosecution. No offence is made out against the revised on the facts of the case.

12. Learned Trial Court has erred in law in misapplying the concept of "strong suspicion" by proceeding on assumptions and conjectures rather than on legally admissible material, and has thereby wrongly recorded a prima facie case without demonstrating the existence of the essential ingredients of the alleged offence under section 13 of the Act, namely: (a) the determination of known sources of income; (b) proof of possession of assets disproportionate thereto; and (c) absence of satisfactory explanation by the accused.

13. Per contra, learned AGA submitted that at the stage of considering of discharge application and framing of charge that trial court is not expected to go for carrying out mathematical calculation of the discrepant amount and it is desirable that the learned trial court will place reliance of the amount calculated by the Investigating Agency on the basis of documents and only due to the fact that the amount discrepant is not a huge amount. The accused cannot be discharged.

14. Learned trial court has dismissed the discharge application after considering the grounds taken therein and evidence collected during investigation against revisionist at the stage of framing of charge roving inquiry into matter collected during investigation is not permitted. The trial court while framing of charge as to see whether there are sufficient material to proceed against the accused for said charges leveled against him.

15. The provisions of Section 13 of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 prior to the amendment of 2018 (Act 16 of 2018) which is invoked in the present case is being reproduced as under:

16. Subs. by Act 16 of 2018, S. 7 (w.e.f. 26-7-2018). Prior to substitution it read as:

"(1) A public servant is said to commit the offence of criminal misconduct,-

(a) if he habitually accepts or obtains or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain from any person for himself or for any other person any gratification other than legal remuneration as a motive or reward such as is mentioned in Section 7; or

(b) if he habitually accepts or obtains or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain for himself or for any other be inadequate from any person whom he knows to have been, or to be, or to be any other person, any valuable thing without consideration or for a consideration which he likely to be concerned in any proceeding or business transacted or about to be transacted by him, or having any connection with the official functions of himself or of any public servant to whom he is subordinate, or from any person whom he knows to be interested in or related to the person so concerned; or

(c) if he dishonestly or fraudulently misappropriates or otherwise converts for his own use any property entrusted to him or under his control as a public servant or allows any other person so to do; or

(d) if he,- (1) by corrupt or illegal means, obtains for himself or for any other person any valuable thing or pecuniary advantage;or

(ii) by abusing his position as a public servant, obtains for himself or for any other person any valuable thing or pecuniary advantage; or

(iii) while holding office as a public servant, obtains for any person any valuable thing or pecuniary advantage without any public interest; or

(e) if he or any person on his behalf, is in possession or has, at any time during the period of his office, been in possession for which the public servant cannot satisfactorily account, of pecuniary resources or property disproportionate to his known sources of income.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, "known sources of income" means income received from any lawful source and such receipt has been intimated in accordance with the provisions of any law, rules or orders for the time being applicable to a public servant.

(2) Any public servant who commits criminal misconduct shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall be not less than one year but which may extend to 7 years and shall also be liable to fine.

16. From perusal of aforesaid provisions, it appears that Section 13 of the Prevention of Corruption Act defines the offence of "criminal misconduct by a public servant. It penalised public officials to misuse their office, misappropriate property or mass wealth disproportionate to their known source of income which is implies intentional and enriching oneself in illicit manner during the period of office which includes holding assets or pecuniary sources disproportionate to known source income that cannot be amounted for satisfactorily.

17. Learned counsel for the revisionist placed reliance on a judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Tamil Nadu vs. R. Soundirarasu, (2023) 6 SCC 768, wherein the Supreme Court set aside the Madras High Court order, whereby a former Motor Vehicle Inspector and his wife were discharged in a case from the charge of disproportionate assets. Hon'ble Supreme Court ruled that the court must only evaluate a prima facie case at the discharge stage without conducting mini trial or weighing evidence. The trial court had refused to discharge the accused. The High Court allowed the criminal revision petition and evaluated the individual explanations regarding income and tax returns. The Apex Court allowed the State appeal, holding that the High Court erred while deeply analyzing the defense material and explanations prematurely. The courts cannot conduct detailed inquiry or except defense explanations as gospel truth before the trial begins. The Supreme Court restored the criminal proceedings, directing the trial to proceed according to law. It was directed that the Special Court shall now proceed to frame charge against the accused persons in accordance with law and put them to trial. In the opinion of Apex Court, the circumstances emerging from the record of the case, prima facie, indicated the involvement of the accused persons in the alleged offence. Having regard to the materials on record, it cannot be said that the charge against the accused persons is groundless. There are triable issues in the matter. If there are triable issues, the court is not expected to go into the veracity of the rival versions. Hon'ble Court observed in Paragraphs 52, 64 and 80 as under.

"52. The provisions which deal with the question of framing of charge or discharge, relatable to: (i) a sessions trial or, (ii) a trial of warrant case, or (iii) a summons case, are contained in three pairs of Sections under the Code of Criminal Procedure. These are Sections 227 and 228 reply in so far as, the sessions trial is concerned; Sections 239 and 240 reply relatable to the trial of warrant cases; and Sections 245(1) and 245(2) reply in respect of summons case. The relevant provisions read as follows:

Section 227. Discharge- If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, and after hearing the submissions of the Accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the Accused, he shall discharge the Accused and record his reasons for so doing.

Section 228. Framing of charge.--(1) If, after such consideration and hearing as aforesaid, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the Accused has committed an offence which-

(a) is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he may, frame a charge against the Accused and, by order, transfer the case for trial to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or any other Judicial Magistrate of the first class and direct the Accused to appear before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or, as the case may be, the Judicial Magistrate of the first class, on such date as he deems fit, and thereupon such Magistrate shall try the offence in accordance with the procedure for the trial of warrant-cases instituted on a police report;

(b) is exclusively triable by the Court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the Accused.

(2) Where the Judge frames any charge under Clause (b) of Sub-section (1), the charge shall be read and explained to the Accused, and the Accused shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

Section 239. When Accused shall be discharged.--If, upon considering the police report and the documents sent with it Under Section 173 and making such examination, if any, of the Accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary and after giving the prosecution and the Accused an opportunity of being heard, the Magistrate considers the charge against the Accused to be groundless, he shall discharge the Accused, and record his reasons for so doing.

Section 240. Framing of charge.--(1) If, upon such consideration, examination, if any, and hearing, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the Accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try and which, in his opinion, could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the Accused.

(2) The charge shall then be read and explained to the Accused, and he shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.

Section 245. When Accused shall be discharged.--(1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in Section 244, the Magistrate considers, for reasons to be recorded, that no case against the Accused has been made out which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

(2) Nothing in this Section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the Accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.

64. In Century Spinning and Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. State of Maharashtra MANU/SC/0080/1971 : AIR 1972 SC 545, this Court has stated about the ambit of Section 251(A)(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1898, which is in pari materia with the wordings used in Section 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as follows:

It cannot be said that the Court at the stage of framing the charge has not to apply its judicial mind for considering whether or not there is a ground for presuming the commission of the offence by the Accused. The order framing the charges does substantially affect the person's liberty and it cannot be said that the Court must automatically frame the charge merely because the prosecuting authorities by relying on the documents referred to in Section 173 consider it proper to institute the case. The responsibility of framing the charges is that of the Court and it has to judicially consider the question of doing so. Without fully adverting to the material on the record it must not blindly adopt the decision of the prosecution.

In para 15, this Court has stated as:

Under Sub-section (2), if upon consideration of all the documents referred to in Section 173, Criminal Procedure Code and examining the Accused, if considered necessary by the Magistrate and also after hearing both sides, the Magistrate considers the charge to be groundless, he must discharge the Accused. This Sub-section has to be read along with Sub-section (3), according to which, if after hearing the arguments and hearing the Accused, the Magistrate thinks that there is ground for presuming that the Accused has committed an offence triable under Chap. XXI of the Code within the Magistrate's competence and for which he can punish adequately, he has to frame in writing a charge against the Accused. Reading the two Sub-sections together, it clearly means that if there is no ground for presuming that the Accused has committed an offence, the charges must be considered to be groundless, which is the same thing as saying that there is no ground for framing the charges.

80. Section 13(1)(e) of the Act 1988 makes a departure from the principle of criminal jurisprudence that the burden will always lie on the prosecution to prove the ingredients of the offences charged and never shifts on the Accused to disprove the charge framed against him. The legal effect of Section 13(1)(e) is that it is for the prosecution to establish that the Accused was in possession of properties disproportionate to his known sources of income but the term "known sources of income" would mean the sources known to the prosecution and not the sources known to the Accused and within the knowledge of the Accused. It is for the Accused to account satisfactorily for the money/assets in his hands. The onus in this regard is on the Accused to give satisfactory explanation. The Accused cannot make an attempt to discharge this onus upon him at the stage of Section 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. At the stage of Section 239 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, the Court has to only look into the prima facie case and decide whether the case put up by the prosecution is groundless"

18. Learned counsel for the revisionist had submitted that unless the essential ingredients of the offence under Section 13(1)(e) are established, the offence is not complete. In the present case, an absence of proof of known sources of the income of the revisionist and the prosecution has nowhere disclosed or specified the sources from which such income is alleged to have been derived. Hence, the prosecution case is incomplete at the inception and the revisionist was entitled to be discharged.

19. In the present case, S.P., Anti-Corruption Wing, UP, Lucknow has given a calculation chart of proportionate assets after analyzing the particulars of income and expenditure of the revisionist and has stated that during the check period 01/04/2004 to 31/12/2004 is income from all valid sources has been found to be Rs.10,89,199/- whereas her total expenditure has been found to be Rs.12,59,014/- which is more than Rs.1,69,815/-.

20. In prosecution sanction order also this discrepant amount is shown as Rs.159,815/-. The sanctioning officer has stated that he has examined all the material produced before before him with regard to the allegation of discrepant assets of the employee, Sri Anoop Kumar Srivastava against whom open inquiry was conducted by the Anti-corruption Wing and thereafter FIR was lodged against him in Case Crime No. 24 of 2012, under Section 13(1)(e) read with section 13(2) PC Act at Police Station Hazratganj, Lucknow and after inquiry he has been chargesheeted for said offense. He has meticulously examined all the material collected during investigation and after recording his satisfaction regarding charges against him, he has granted sanction for prosecution for alleged offenses. It is not the case of the revisionist that the sanction order was not passed by the competent officer.

21. The mere fact that the discrepancy between income and expenditure was whittled down after investigation is significant but cannot found a sole ground to discharge the revisionist. Similarly, the fact that discrepancy is a small fraction of income of the revisionist is also not ground to discharge him from alleged charges.

22. On perusal of sanction order, it cannot be said that the same has been passed by the competent authority without application of mind. During trial of the case, the revisionist shall have opportunity to prove every single amount received by him from valid sources through the testimony of witnesses and by also filing contemporaneous document and intimation to the government. There are relevant rules with regard to investment, lending and borrowing with regard to a government servant and he has to prove to the satisfaction of the court. He will have to prove to the satisfaction of the court that any amount borrowed by him from a friend or relative was within purview of the limit prescribed in the relevant rules and was duly intimated in prescribed form to the government or to the officer authorized in behalf. However, at this stage of framing of charge, there is no scope of such calculation and proof.

23. In the case of Amit Kapoor Vs. Ramesh Chander and Others (2012) 9 SCC 460, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that even in the case of strong suspicion, charge can be framed. Paragraph 19 of the said judgment is quoted as under:-

"19. Having discussed the scope of jurisdiction under these two provisions, i.e., Section 397 and Section 482 of the Code and the fine line of jurisdictional distinction, now it will be appropriate for us to enlist the principles with reference to which the courts should exercise such jurisdiction. However, it is not only difficult but is inherently impossible to state with precision such principles. At best and upon objective analysis of various judgments of this Court, we are able to cull out some of the principles to be considered for proper exercise of jurisdiction, particularly, with regard to quashing of charge either in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 397 or Section 482 of the Code or together, as the case may be:

1) Though there are no limits of the powers of the Court under Section 482 of the Code but the more the power, the more due care and caution is to be exercised in invoking these powers. The power of quashing criminal proceedings, particularly, the charge framed in terms of Section 228 of the Code should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in the rarest of rare cases.

2) The Court should apply the test as to whether the uncontroverted allegations as made from the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith prima facie establish the offence or not. If the allegations are so patently absurd and inherently improbable that no prudent person can ever reach such a conclusion and where the basic ingredients of a criminal offence are not satisfied then the Court may interfere.

3) The High Court should not unduly interfere. No meticulous examination of the evidence is needed for considering whether the case would end in conviction or not at the stage of framing of charge or quashing of charge.

4) Where the exercise of such power is absolutely essential to prevent patent miscarriage of justice and for correcting some grave error that might be committed by the subordinate courts even in such cases, the High Court should be loathe to interfere, at the threshold, to throttle the prosecution in exercise of its inherent powers.

5) Where there is an express legal bar enacted in any of the provisions of the Code or any specific law in force to the very initiation or institution and continuance of such criminal proceedings, such a bar is intended to provide specific protection to an accused.

6) The Court has a duty to balance the freedom of a person and the right of the complainant or prosecution to investigate and prosecute the offender.

7) The process of the Court cannot be permitted to be used for an oblique or ultimate/ulterior purpose.

8) Where the allegations made and as they appeared from the record and documents annexed therewith to predominantly give rise and constitute a 'civil wrong' with no 'element of criminality' and does not satisfy the basic ingredients of a criminal offence, the Court may be justified in quashing the charge. Even in such cases, the Court would not embark upon the critical analysis of the evidence.

9) Another very significant caution that the courts have to observe is that it cannot examine the facts, evidence and materials on record to determine whether there is sufficient material on the basis of which the case would end in a conviction, the Court is concerned primarily with the allegations taken as a whole whether they will constitute an offence and, if so, is it an abuse of the process of court leading to injustice.

10) It is neither necessary nor is the court called upon to hold a full-fledged enquiry or to appreciate evidence collected by the investigating agencies to find out whether it is a case of acquittal or conviction.

11) Where allegations give rise to a civil claim and also amount to an offence, merely because a civil claim is maintainable, does not mean that a criminal complaint cannot be maintained.

12) In exercise of its jurisdiction under Section 228 and/or under Section 482, the Court cannot take into consideration external materials given by an accused for reaching the conclusion that no offence was disclosed or that there was possibility of his acquittal. The Court has to consider the record and documents annexed with by the prosecution.

13) Quashing of a charge is an exception to the rule of continuous prosecution. Where the offence is even broadly satisfied, the Court should be more inclined to permit continuation of prosecution rather than its quashing at that initial stage. The Court is not expected to marshal the records with a view to decide admissibility and reliability of the documents or records but is an opinion formed prima facie.

14) Where the charge-sheet, report under Section 173(2) of the Code, suffers from fundamental legal defects, the Court may be well within its jurisdiction to frame a charge.

15) Coupled with any or all of the above, where the Court finds that it would amount to abuse of process of the Code or that interest of justice favours, otherwise it may quash the charge. The power is to be exercised ex debito justitiae, i.e. to do real and substantial justice for administration of which alone, the courts exist."

24. At the initial stage of framing of a charge, the court is concerned not with proof but with a strong suspicion that an accused had committed an offense, which, if put to trial could prove him guilty. All that the court has to see is that the material on record and the facts would be compatible with the innocence of the accused or not. The final test of proof of guilt is not to be applied at that stage.

25. In the present case conclusions of inquiry report preceeding to lodging of the FIR, evidence collected during investigation, raised a serious doubt and a grave suspicion against the revisionist regarding his complicity in the offense, which leads to framing of charge against him to put him on trial for alleged offense.

26. I find no illegality, irregularity or perversity in the impugned order passed by learned court below whereby discharge application filed by the revisionist has been dismissed by learned Special Judge,.

27. Consequently, the revision is dismissed.

Criminal Revision No. 3086 of 2025

Manju Sonkar ...Revisionist
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether a woman claiming to be the legally wedded wife of a man whose earlier marriage is in existence, who fails to establish solemnization of marriage and has neither pleaded nor proved a live-in relationship, is entitled to maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C.?

(ii) Whether the judgments in Anupama Pradhan v. Sultan Pradhan and Chanmuniya v. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha have any application where the existence of the marital relationship is specifically denied and none of the parties belongs to the Scheduled Tribes community?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Maintenance to wife --- Claim of marriage with a man whose earlier marriage is in existence --- Solemnization of marriage not established --- No pleading or material regarding live-in relationship --- Relationship categorically denied --- Claim not maintainable.

HELD: Where the very existence of the marital relationship has been specifically denied by the opposite party, the revisionist has failed to establish the solemnization of marriage between the parties, and there is neither any pleading nor any material on record to suggest that the parties were living in a live-in relationship, the claimant seeking maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. cannot claim the benefit available to persons in a live-in relationship, particularly when the existence of such relationship has been categorically denied by the opposite party. [Paras 12, 13]

Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 --- S. 2(2) --- Precedent --- Distinguishable facts --- Scheduled Tribes community --- Factum of marriage in dispute.

HELD: In Anupama Pradhan (supra), the parties belonged to the Scheduled Tribes community, which was exempted under Section 2(2) of the Hindu Marriage Act and bigamy was permissible; since none of the parties in the present case belongs to the Scheduled Tribes community, the said judgment is not helpful to the revisionist. In Chanmuniya (supra), the factum of marriage between the parties was not in dispute, whereas in the present case the very existence of the marital relationship has been denied; hence, the ratio laid down therein has no application to the controversy involved. [Paras 11, 12]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- Revisional jurisdiction --- Reasoned and speaking order of Trial Court --- No illegality, perversity or jurisdictional error --- No interference.

HELD: The Trial Court, upon due consideration of the entire material available on record, having passed a reasoned and speaking order, there is no illegality, perversity or jurisdictional error in the impugned order warranting interference in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction. [Para 14]

Criminal revision dismissed. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 15.07.2022 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Kaushambi, in Case No. 119 of 2017, Manju Sonkar and another v. Om Prakash, under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station Kokhraj, District Kaushambi, rejecting the prayer for maintenance of the revisionist and accepting the prayer for maintenance of the minor child.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Ravi Prakash, Satya Prakash Vishwakarma, Pradeep Kumar.
For the Opposite Party(s): G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Lakshmi Kant Shukla, J.)

1. This matter was mentioned in the morning for being taken up.

2. It is, accordingly, taken up.

3. Heard Mr. Pradeep Kumar, learned counsel for the revisionist, learned A.G.A. representing the State and perused the material available on record.

4. As per office report, notice upon opposite party no. 2 has been duly served. However, neither he nor anyone on his behalf is present to oppose the present Criminal Revision.

5. Revisionist Manju Sonkar has approached this Court by means of present Criminal Revision challenging the impugned order dated 15.07.2022 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Kaushambi (hereinafter referred to as "the Trial Court") in Case No. 119 of 2017, Manju Sonkar and another v. Om Prakash, under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station Kokhraj, District Kaushambi, whereby the the Trial Court rejected the prayer for maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. made by the revisionist and accepted the prayer for maintenance to the biological minor child of revisionist and opposite party no. 2.

6. Feeling aggrieved from the aforesaid order, the present revision has been filed on the ground that the impugned order is arbitrary, illegal and suffers from material irregularity. It has been passed without application of judicial mind committing manifest error in rejecting the maintenance for the revisionist. It is thus contended that the impugned order is liable to be modified by this Court invoking its revisional jurisdiction.

7. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the revisionist that the Trial Court allowed the claim for maintenance of her minor son but at the same time rejected the claim of the revisionist saying that she is not legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2. The finding of the Trial Court that the revisionist is not legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2, is based upon the facts that opposite party no. 2 had already been married with another woman and his marriage is in existence. It is further observed that as per Hindu Law, in the event of existence of a marriage, second marriage is not permitted. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that the revisionist's claim is that she is legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2 and only on the ground that opposite party no. 2 has another wife from his earlier marriage which is in existence, the revisionist cannot be held dis-entitled from getting maintenance while the revisionist had no knowledge about the existence of previous marriage of opposite party no. 2. In view of above, it is thus contended that the findings of the Trial Court, to the extent it rejects the maintenance to opposite party no. 2, is not sustainable in the eyes of law. It is liable to be set aside by this Court.

8. To buttress his submissions, learned counsel for the revisionist has relied upon the judgment of High Court of Orissa in Anupama Pradhan v. Sultan Pradhan, 1991 CrLJ 3216 and the judgment of Supreme Court in Chanmuniya v. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha and another, 2011 (1) SCC 141. In paragraph 9 of Anupama Pradhan (supra), it has been observed as under:

" 9. So far as the second point is concerned, it is seen that the assertion of the petitioner that she is the legally married wife of the o. p. has been corroborated not only by her father (p.w. 2) but also by her caste men (p. ws. 3 and 4). That apart, parties have admitted, as already stated above, that they lived as wife and husband for a long period of 12 years and that the petitioner has given birth to three children through the o. p. during that period. As against all these evidence, the denial evidence of the o. p. does not find corroboration. In the face of all these evidence, the learned Magistrate has recorded a finding that the petitioner is not the legally married wife of the o. p. merely because there was no evidence from the side of the petitioner as to the procedure of the marriage prevalent in her caste and also for non-examination of the priest and barber. It has been laid down in a number of decisions by this Court that proceeding under section 125 of the Code is of summary nature and that the intricacies of the law are not required to be gone into and that where the man and woman lived together as husband and wife and treated as such by the community and the man treated the woman as his wife, marriage between them has to be inferred for the limited purpose of section 125 of the Code. To cite one of them is Saudamini Dei v. Bhagirathi Raj, 53(1982) C.L.T. 93. In view of such decision, I hold, on the basis of aforesaid evidence, that the petitioner is the legally married wife of the o. p. and the finding of the learned Magistrate being perverse is set aside."

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance upon paragraph 45 Chanmuniya (supra) where it has been held as under:

"We, therefore, request the Hon'ble Chief Justice to refer the following, amongst other, questions to be decided by a larger Bench. According to us, the questions are: 1. Whether the living together of a man and woman as husband and wife for a considerable period of time would raise the presumption of a valid marriage between them and whether such a presumption would entitle the woman to maintenance under Section 125 CrPC? 2. Whether strict proof of marriage is essential for a claim of maintenance under Section 125 CrPC having regard to the provisions of the Domestic Violence Act, 2005? 3. Whether a marriage performed according to the customary rites and ceremonies, without strictly fulfilling the requisites of Section 7(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, or any other personal law would entitle the woman to maintenance under Section 125 CrPC?"

10. Per contra, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 and the learned A.G.A. representing the State have vehemently opposed the revision and supported the impugned judgement. It is submitted that although it is the assertion of the revisionist that she is legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2 but in existence of earlier marriage of opposite party no. 2, second marriage is not a valid marriage under the law. As regards the solemnization of marriage as per the required rituals and without knowledge of earlier marriage is concerned, in paragraph 17 of the impugned judgment it has been observed that the revisionist could not produce any credible evidence in this regard. It is thus contended that in absence of any evidence regarding due solemnization of marriage between the revisionist and opposite party no. 2, the revisionist cannot be said to be a legally wedded wife of opposite party no. 2, even in absence of subsistence of any earlier marriage. In view of above, it is contended that the revisionist is not entitled to get maintenance from opposite party no. 2. The present criminal revision is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed by this Court.

11. We have heard the learned counsel for parties and perused the material available on record. A perusal of the judgment in Anupama Pradhan (supra) reveals that the facts of the present case are different from that case. In that case parties would belong to the Scheduled Tribes Community which was exempted under Section 2(2) of the Hindu Marriage Act and bigamy was permissible. However, in the present case none of the parties belongs to scheduled tribes community. Therefore, the judgment in Anupama Pradhan (supra), relied by the revisionist, is not in any way helpful to the revisionist.

12. The Supreme Court in Chanmuniya (supra) observed that where a woman has lived with a man for a considerable period of time, she may be entitled to claim maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. by treating such relationship as akin to that of a legally wedded wife. However, it is pertinent to note that, in the said case, the factum of marriage between the parties was not in dispute. In the present case, on the contrary, the very existence of the marital relationship has been specifically denied and the revisionist has failed to establish the solemnization of marriage between the parties. Opposite party no. 2 has categorically denied having any relationship with the revisionist. Moreover, there is neither any pleading nor any material on record to suggest that the parties were living in a live-in relationship. Accordingly, the facts of Chanmuniya (supra) are clearly distinguishable from the facts of the present case, and the ratio laid down therein has no application to the controversy involved in the present revision.

13. Where there is neither any specific pleading regarding the existence of a live-in relationship nor any evidence establishing the solemnization of marriage between the parties, the claimant seeking maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. cannot claim the benefit available to persons in a live-in relationship, particularly when the existence of such relationship has been categorically denied by the opposite party.

14. In view of the aforesaid, we are of the opinion that the submissions urged by the learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite parties are clearly borne out from the record. The Trial Court, upon due consideration of the entire material available on record, has passed a reasoned and speaking order. This Court finds no illegality, perversity, or jurisdictional error in the impugned order warranting interference in the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction. The present Criminal Revision is devoid of merit and is, accordingly, liable to be dismissed.

15. It is, accordingly, dismissed.

Criminal Revision No. 4112 of 2025

Smt. Kusum ...Revisionist
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

Whether a mother, in whose favour maintenance has been granted under Section 125 Cr.P.C. against her real son, can seek that the same liability be fastened upon her step-son as well?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125(1)(d) --- Maintenance to parents --- Mother --- Real son and step-son --- Maintenance granted against real son and accepted by him --- Inability to maintain comes to an end --- Liability on step-son not fastened.

HELD: While considering maintenance to parents, the court has to see the relation of parent and child between the parties, whether the person seeking maintenance is unable to maintain himself/herself, and whether the person from whom maintenance is claimed has sufficient means to provide such maintenance. The revisionist, being the real mother of opposite party no. 3 and stepmother of opposite party no. 2, having been granted maintenance against opposite party no. 3, who accepted the order of the trial court, is now capable of maintaining herself by getting the maintenance amount from her real son and has lost her status of incapability to maintain herself. [Para 7]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Two or more persons under obligation to maintain --- Discretion of Court as to liability and extent --- Claimant cannot claim another maintenance after order in her favour.

HELD: The inability of the person claiming maintenance to maintain himself/herself comes to an end after the order of Court to pay maintenance, and the person in whose favour the maintenance order is passed cannot claim another maintenance from another person. Where two or more persons are under obligation to maintain the applicant, it is for the Court to decide from whom and to what extent the maintenance be made payable. [Para 8]

Criminal revision, found to have been filed only with the intention to harass opposite party no. 2 without any substantive legal basis, dismissed. (E-14)

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Abhishe Pandey, Praveen Singh.

For the Opposite Party(s): Chakra Dhaar Mishra, G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Lakshmi Kant Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Praveen Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of learned counsel for revisionist, learned AGA representing opposite party no. 1, Mr. Anand Kumar Tiwari, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Chakra Dhaar Mishra, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 and perused the record.

2. The revisionist Smt. Kusum has approached this Court by means of present criminal revision assailing the validity of impugned judgment and order dated 15.05.2025 passed by Additional Principal Judge, Family Court No. 2, Muzaffarnagar (hereinafter referred to as trial court) passed in Case No. 1405 of 2022 (CNR No. UPMZ020034652022) (Rukhsar Khan Vs. Tanveer Khan) under section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station Jamaniya, District Ghazipur wherein the trial court allowing the application u/s 125 Cr.P.C. filed by the revisionist directed opposite party no. 2 to pay Rs. 8,000/- per month maintenance to the revisionist.

3. Feeling aggrieved from that order the present criminal revision has been filed on the grounds that the impugned order is wholly illegal unjustified, against the provisions of law, based on presumptions, the trial court committed manifest error by passing the impugned order, it is based on surmises and conjunctures, the trial court passed the impugned order arbitrarily, illegally without going into the merit of the case. Accordingly, the impugned order is liable to be set aside by this Court in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction.

4. After some length of argument learned counsel for revisionist confined his argument only to the extent that the trial court held fastening opposite party no. 3 to pay the amount of maintenance while no liability upon opposite party no. 2 has been fastened. Elaborating his submissions learned counsel for revisionist submitted that the opposite party no. 3 is the real son of the revisionist while opposite party no. 2 is her step son. Only on the ground that Opposite Party No. 3 is her real son, whereas the trial court discharged the opposite party no. 2 from his liability due to being step son of the revisionist. It is, therefore, contended that the impugned order is liable to be modified by fastening the same liability upon Opposite Party No. 2 as has been imposed upon Opposite Party No. 3.

5. Per contra learned AGA and learned counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party no. 2 vehemently opposed the criminal revision and submitted that in presence of real son having sufficient means to maintain his mother, her step son cannot be held liable for the same. In view of above the present criminal revision is not only devoid of merit but it is filed with malafide intention, therefore, it is liable to be dismissed by this Court.

6. Section 125 Cr.P.C. provides as under:-

"125. Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents.

(1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain –

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) his legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not, unable to maintain itself, or

(c) his legitimate or illegitimate child (not being a married daughter) who has attained majority, where such child is, by reason of any physical or mental abnormality or injury unable to maintain itself, or

(d) his father or mother, unable to maintain himself or herself, a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct :

Provided that the Magistrate may order the father of a minor female child referred to in clause (b) to make such allowance, until she attains her majority, if the Magistrate is satisfied that the husband of such minor female child, if married, is not possessed of sufficient means.[Provided further that the Magistrate may, during the pendency of the proceeding regarding monthly allowance for the maintenance under this sub-section, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the interim maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, and the expenses of such proceeding which the Magistrate considers reasonable, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct.Provided also that an application for the monthly allowance for the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding under the second proviso shall, as far as possible, be disposed of within sixty days from the date of the service of notice of the application to such person. Explanation. - For the purposes of this Chapter, -

(a)"minor" means a person who, under the provisions of the Indian Majority Act, 1875 (9 of 1875) is deemed not to have attained his majority,

(b)"wife" includes a woman who has been divorced by, or has obtained a divorce from, her husband and has not re-married. (

2) Any such allowance for the maintenance or interim maintenance and expenses for proceeding shall be payable from the date of the order, or, if so ordered, from the date of the application for maintenance or interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding, as the case may be.

(3) If any person so ordered fails without sufficient cause to comply with the order, any such Magistrate may, for every breach of the order, issue a warrant for levying the amount due in the manner provided for levying fines, and may sentence such person, for the whole or any part of each month's allowance for the maintenance or the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding, as the case may be, Substituted by Act 50 of 2001, Section 2 for "allowance" (w.e.f. 24-9-2001) remaining unpaid after the execution of the warrant, to imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month or until payment if sooner made :Provided that no warrant shall be issued for the recovery of any amount due under this section unless application be made to the Court to levy such amount within a period of one year from the date on which it became due:Provided further that if such person offers to maintain his wife on condition of her living with him, and she refuses to live with him, such Magistrate may consider any grounds of refusal stated by her, and may make an order under this section notwithstanding such offer, if he is satisfied that there is just ground for so doing. Explanation. - If a husband has contracted marriage with another woman or keeps a mistress, it shall be considered to be just ground for his wife's refusal to live with him.

(4) No wife shall be entitled to receive an allowance for the maintenance or the interim maintenance and expenses of proceeding, as the case may be, Substituted by Act 50 of 2001, Section 2 for "allowance" (w.e.f. 24-9-2001). from her husband under this section if she is living in adultery, or if, without any sufficient reason, she refuses to live with her husband, or if they are living separately by mutual consent.

(5) On proof that any wife in whose favour an order has been made under this section is living in adultery, or that without sufficient reason she refuses to live with her husband, or that they are living separately by mutual consent, the Magistrate shall cancel the order."

7. While considering the maintenance to parents the court has to see the relation of parent and children between the parties and further whether the parties seeking maintenance is unable to maintain his/her child parent as the case may be. The Court must also determine whether the person from whom maintenance is claimed has sufficient means to provide such maintenance. From the submissions advanced by both sides, it is evident that the revisionist is the real mother of opposite party No. 3 and the stepmother of opposite party No. 2. It is possible that, at the time of filing the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the revisionist was unable to maintain herself but after the order of trial court the amount for her maintenance has been earned by court's order, opposite party no. 3 has not challenged such order meaning thereby opposite party no. 3 is accepted the order of trial court in aforesaid circumstance now the revisionist is capable to maintain herself getting the maintenance amount from her real son so now she is lost her status of incapability to maintain herself.

8. Even a person having insufficient means to maintain himself may have right to file application for maintenance against relevant persons but in furtherance of such proceeding of maintenance if the Court allows the same fastening a person liable to maintain the person claiming maintenance then by virtue of order of Court. The inability of person claiming maintenance to maintain himself/herself become to an end after order of Court to pay maintenance the person in whose favour the maintenance order is passed cannot claim another maintenance to another person. Similarly it is right of the claimant that if there two or more persons are under obligation to maintain the applicant from whom and in which ratio the maintenance amount be paid. It is Court to decide that from whom and to what extent maintenance be made payable.

9. In view of above we find that this criminal revision has been filed only with intention to harass the opposite party no. 2 without any substantive legal basis. Accordingly, the present criminal revision is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed. The criminal revision is hereby dismissed.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the Trial Court, in proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C., was obliged to defer pronouncement of judgment until decision of an application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. which was filed after conclusion of final arguments, when the matter had already been fixed for pronouncement of judgment?

(ii) Whether maintenance awarded to the wife at the rate of Rs. 20,000/- per month was excessive and disproportionate to the income of the revisionist, so as to warrant interference in revisional jurisdiction?

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- Ss. 125, 340 --- Maintenance proceedings --- Application under Section 340 filed after conclusion of final arguments and when matter fixed for pronouncement of judgment --- Trial Court not obliged to defer judgment --- Amit Bajpai (supra) distinguished.

HELD: Proceedings contemplated under Section 340 Cr.P.C. are independent in nature and are not connected with the adjudication of proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. Merely because an application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. is filed at the stage when the matter has already been reserved for judgment would not ipso facto oblige the Trial Court to defer pronouncement of judgment, and it is always open to the concerned party to pursue the proceedings under Section 340 Cr.P.C. independently in accordance with law. Where the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. was filed only on 22.07.2025, after conclusion of final arguments, as indicated by the endorsements made on the application itself, the Trial Court cannot be faulted for pronouncing the judgment without first deciding the said application. The decision in Amit Bajpai, wherein the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. had been filed on 31.03.2022 and duly registered, and the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was decided on 14.06.2023 without considering it, was rendered in the peculiar facts of that case and has no application to the present case. [Paras 12-16]

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 --- S. 125 --- Quantum of maintenance --- Determination on admitted income of husband and financial status of parties --- Revisional jurisdiction --- Interference declined.

HELD: Where the Trial Court determined the amount payable after taking into consideration the admitted income of the revisionist, the material available on record and the financial status of the parties, and no perversity or illegality is pointed out in its findings, maintenance awarded at the rate of Rs. 20,000/- per month cannot be said to be arbitrary, unreasonable or excessive so as to warrant interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction. The impugned judgment does not suffer from any jurisdictional error, manifest illegality or material irregularity. [Paras 17-18]

Case Arising From

Order dated 30.07.2025 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra, in Criminal Misc. Case No. 84 of 2020, Madhubala v. Umesh Vidyarthi, under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station Robertsganj, District Sonbhadra.

Appearance for Parties

For the Revisionist(s): Satyarth Agarwal, Siddharth Agrawal.

For the Opposite Party(s): G.A., Gaurav Dwivedi, Kamlesh Kumar Dwivedi.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Lakshmi Kant Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Siddharth Agrawal, learned counsel for the revisionist, Mr. Kamlesh Kumar Dwivedi, learned counsel appearing for opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. Perused the record.

3. Revisionist Umesh Vidyarthi has approached this Court by means of present Criminal Revision challenging the impugned order dated 30.07.2025 passed by the Principal Judge, Family Court, Sonbhadra (hereinafter referred to as "the Trial Court") in Criminal Misc. Case No. 84 of 2020, Madhubala v. Umesh Vidyarthi, under Section 125 Cr.P.C., Police Station Robertsganj, District Sonbhadra.

4. By the impugned order, the Trial Court has partly allowed the application for maintenance filed by opposite party no. 2 and directed the revisionist to pay maintenance to opposite party no. 2 at the rate of Rs.15,000/- per month from the date of institution of the application till 30.07.2025 and Rs. 20,000/- per month from the date of the order onwards as maintenance.

5. Feeling aggrieved from the aforesaid order, the revisionist preferred the present Criminal Revision on the ground that the impugned order suffers from manifest illegality and material irregularity inasmuch as the quantum of maintenance awarded by the Trial Court is excessive and wholly disproportionate to the actual income of the revisionist. It is urged that the Trial Court has failed to correctly appreciate the material brought on record with regard to the income of the revisionist. The Trial Court has exercised its jurisdiction in an arbitrary manner.

6. It is further submitted that while deciding the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C., the Trial Court has failed to take into consideration the directions issued by this Court in Criminal Revision No. 3760 of 2023, Amit Bajpai v. State of U.P. and another, decided on 15.12.2023, wherein it has been observed that where an application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. has been filed, the proceedings should ordinarily be concluded only after the said application is decided in accordance with law. According to the learned counsel, despite the pendency of the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C., the Trial Court proceeded to decide the maintenance proceedings without adjudicating the said application and without affording adequate opportunity to the revisionist to establish his allegations regarding fabrication and forgery of documents relied upon by opposite party no. 1.

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that pursuant to the order dated 10.07.2025 passed by this Court, an application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. was filed before the Trial Court. However, without deciding the said application, the Trial Court proceeded to pronounce the impugned judgment. It is thus contended that the procedure adopted by the Trial Court is contrary to law.

8. It is next submitted that opposite party no. 1 is residing separately without any sufficient cause. Attention of the Court has also been invited to the affidavit filed by opposite party no. 1. Pursuant to the directions issued by the Supreme Court in Rajnesh v. Neha, (2020) 13 SCC 454, wherein she has disclosed that she is an M.B.A. graduate and was previously employed but voluntarily left her employment. It is contended that she intentionally resigned from service only with a view to claiming maintenance from the revisionist, despite being capable of maintaining herself. It is also submitted that the declared monthly income of the revisionist is approximately Rs. 60,000/- only. His basic pay is Rs. 50,000/- per month. Therefore, the direction to pay maintenance at the rate of Rs. 20,000/- per month is excessive and deserves to be suitably reduced.

9. Per contra, learned A.G.A. and learned counsel appearing for opposite party no. 1 have vehemently opposed the Criminal Revision and supported the impugned order. It is submitted that the Trial Court has recorded a categorical finding in paragraph 31 of the impugned judgment that the revisionist himself admitted that his basic pay is Rs. 50,000/- per month and that he is serving as a Divisional Engineer in the Railways. In paragraph 32, the Trial Court has further recorded the admission of the revisionist that his monthly salary was Rs. 74,513/-. It is, therefore, contended that having regard to the admitted income of the revisionist, the maintenance awarded cannot be said to be excessive. Learned counsel further submits that with annual increments and revision of dearness allowance admissible to Central Government employees, the present monthly income of the revisionist would, in all probability, exceed Rs. 80,000/- per month. Accordingly, the maintenance awarded is fully justified and is in accordance with the principles laid down by the Supreme Court in Rajnesh (supra).

10. Learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for opposite party no. 1 submits that insofar as the grievance relating to non-disposal of the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. is concerned, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 submits that by the time the said application was filed, the evidence had already concluded, final arguments had been heard and the matter had been fixed for pronouncement of judgment. Therefore, no fault can be found with the Trial Court in proceeding to pronounce the judgment. It is submitted that had the revisionist been bona fide, he ought to have moved the application at an appropriate stage of the proceedings and not after conclusion of the final hearing. It is thus contended that the decision rendered in Amit Bajpai (supra) has no application to the facts of the present case.

11. When confronted with above, learned counsel for the revisionist submits that although the order of this Court was passed on 10.07.2025, the same was uploaded only on 21.07.2025, leaving the revisionist with no effective opportunity to file the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. before the Trial Court prior to the conclusion of the proceedings.

12. Having considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and upon perusal of the record, this Court finds that the reliance placed by the revisionist upon the decision of this Court in Amit Bajpai (supra) is wholly misconceived.

13. In Amit Bajpai (supra), the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. had been filed on 31.03.2022 and was duly registered as miscellaneous application. Despite the pendency of the said application, the Trial Court proceeded to decide the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. on 14.06.2023 without considering the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. It was in the peculiar facts of that case that this Court issued the directions relied upon by the revisionist.

14. The facts of the present case, however, stand on an entirely different footing. From the material brought on record, it transpires that the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C., registered as Application No. 76-?/15 in Case No. 84 of 2020, was filed only on 22.07.2025 after conclusion of final arguments and when the matter had already been fixed for pronouncement of judgment. A perusal of the application dated 22.07.2025 reveals that an endorsement was made on the left margin stating "श्रीमान जी बहस पूर्ण होने के बाद दख़िल कर रहे हैं घोर आपत्ति है". Thereafter, in the said application another endorsement has been made at the bottom in the left side stating "कंप्यूटर से सत्यापित कारण के पश्चात पेश हो". The endorsements made on the application clearly indicate that the proceedings had reached the stage of final adjudication. In such circumstances, the Trial Court cannot be faulted for proceeding to pronounce the judgment without first deciding the application under Section 340 Cr.P.C.

15. It is also remarkable that proceedings contemplated under Section 340 Cr.P.C. are independent in nature and are not connected with the adjudication of proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. Merely because an application under Section 340 Cr.P.C. is filed at the stage when the matter has already been reserved for judgment would not ipso facto oblige the Trial Court to defer pronouncement of judgment. It is always open to the concerned party to pursue the proceedings under Section 340 Cr.P.C. independently in accordance with law.

16. In the opinion of this Court, therefore, the judgment rendered in Amit Bajpai (supra) does not advance the case of the revisionist and has no application to the facts of the present case.

17. So far as the quantum of maintenance is concerned, the Trial Court has taken into consideration the admitted income of the revisionist, the material available on record and the financial status of the parties before determining the amount payable. No perversity or illegality has been pointed out in the findings recorded by the Trial Court. This Court does not find the maintenance awarded at the rate of Rs. 20,000/- per month to be arbitrary, unreasonable or excessive warranting interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction.

18. In view of aforesaid discussion, this Court is of the considered view that the impugned judgment and order does not suffer from any jurisdictional error, manifest illegality or material irregularity warranting interference by this Court. The present Criminal Revision is devoid of merit.

19. It is, accordingly, dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

(1) Is there non-compliance of the judgement of the Supreme Court in Re: Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures (Writ C No. 295 of 2022 – (2025) 5 SCC 1) with specific reference to paragraphs 85 and 86 of that judgement?,
(2) Does the authority to demolish, justify the act of demolishing a structure or, is there a duty on the anvil of parens patriae upon the State, not to demolish a dwelling place in the absence of public need/purpose?,
(3) Would steps taken in the direction of demolishing a structure immediately 8 following the commission of an offence, be a colourable exercise of executive discretion?,
(4) how is the High Court to balance the conflicting interests between the statutory authority of the State to demolish a structure and the fundamental right of the average citizen under article 21 and 14, to prevent it?, and
(5) can "reasonable apprehension" of demolition be a cause of action for a citizen to approach this Court and if 'yes', what is the bare minimum for this Court to hold the existence of such "reasonable apprehension"?

Headnotes

Constitution of India – Arts. 14, 21, 300-A – U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 – ss. 7, 16 – Demolition of dwelling places – Executive discretion – Accused in criminal case – Retributive exercise of executive discretion – Right to life – Right to livelihood and shelter – Due process of law – Reasonable apprehension of demolition – Petitioners residing in a residential house since 2001 – no objection regarding title, construction or land use raised by authorities for several years – commercial establishments, namely "Indian Lodge" and a saw mill, also in existence for several years – criminal case registered against a relative of the petitioners – notice issued in respect of the residential property and apprehension of demolition raised – State contended that the petition was premature and that no demolition would take place without adherence to the procedure established by law.

Held:

The Court observed that demolitions had continued at will notwithstanding the judgment of the Supreme Court in Re: Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures, (2025) 5 SCC 1, and accordingly adopted the directions given by the Supreme Court in paragraphs 94, 94.1 to 94.15 and 95 to 97 of the said judgment as directions of this Court, violation whereof would invite contempt proceedings against the officer concerned.

Right to shelter is a facet of Article 21 and, in a meaningful democracy, the right of the individual must be protected, if the need arises, from the might of the State; even where an unauthorised dwelling place is liable to be removed, the person in occupation must be given reasonable time, with the assistance of the State, to resettle himself elsewhere. Any action taken by a public authority invested with statutory powers has to satisfy two standards, namely, that the action must be within the scope of the authority conferred by law and secondly, it must be reasonable; even if an action is within the statutory authority, if it is unreasonable, the procedure established by law under which such action is taken is itself unreasonable.

Illegal construction must not be condoned and, where necessary, must be brought down, as the citizen does not have a right to shelter by violating municipal laws; nevertheless, the endeavour of the State must be to assist the citizen by rectifying the wrong through compounding where possible, else by giving reasonable time to resettle himself and thereafter demolish the offending structure. The option of demolishing a dwelling place should be the last and the State must explore options of avoiding such eventuality; where there is no option other than demolishing it entirely, cogent reasons have to be recorded, and the final demolition order must spell out whether the violation is compoundable and, if not, the reasons why it cannot be compounded and why demolition is the only available option.

Colourable exercise of executive discretion can render an otherwise lawful act unlawful where the entrusted power is exercised for a reason other than that for which the power was intended and the resultant effect is adverse upon another, rendering the action unlawful on account of malice in law. The Court carved out a Specie of Retributive Exercise of Executive Discretion as the Vilest Specie of the Genus Colourable Exercise of Executive Discretion.

Bulldozing the house of a person accused of an offence, where the State is not acting with the avowed aims of enforcing municipal laws but to punish the accused and his entire family while projecting the action as one of removing an illegal construction, constitutes retributive exercise of executive discretion. Where a particular structure is chosen all of a sudden for demolition while similarly situated structures in the same vicinity are not touched, mala fide may loom large and, where the occupant was recently involved in a criminal case, a presumption could be drawn that the real motive was to penalise the accused without trying him before the court of law. The development authority shall not act selectively against an individual while ignoring similar violations in the vicinity.

Protection of a right is to be distinguished from its restoration or remedy after violation; a citizen need not wait until the right is actually infringed and, where the right is threatened with violation or its violation is imminent, Article 226 may be invoked for pre-violation protection. Law cannot take action for internal thoughts but can act after overt acts; where overt acts towards violation have already been done and the person approaches the Court giving sufficient particulars of proximate actions as would imminently lead to violation of the right, the Court may restrain the threatened violation.

Rushing to demolish the dwelling place of a person accused of an offence under the garb of violation of municipal laws is impermissible, being a retributive exercise of executive discretion. No action may be taken to demolish the house of the accused for a period of two years from the date of registration of the FIR; after expiry of two years, the State may examine the final order must reflect whether compounding of the deviations is possible, and if not, the directions of the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case shall be followed. Where removal is necessary for reclaiming land for a public purpose and such action is not restricted to the house of the accused alone, demolition may be undertaken in accordance with law and the directions of the Supreme Court, in which event the two-year hiatus shall not be binding.

As regards illegal dwelling places, where the violator has stayed in the illegal structure for three years or more, the authority shall intimate the violator one year before initiation of proceedings under municipal law, subject to waiver in case of compelling urgency of larger public need to be justified by the State. Notices for violation of construction norms shall be valid only if simultaneous proceedings are initiated against the erring officers, inter alia, under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, and disciplinary proceedings shall be brought to their logical end within a reasonable time and, in any case, not later than six months. Development authority shall not act selectively against an individual while ignoring similar violations in the vicinity, and an aggrieved person shall be at liberty to approach the Court alleging "retributive exercise of executive discretion" and violation of fundamental rights.

In the present case, proceedings for demolition of the petitioners' residence and lodge quashed as being hit by retributive exercise of executive discretion and no proceedings permitted to be initiated for two years from the date of registration of the FIR; however, where removal of the structures before expiry of two years is necessary for a proved public purpose, on the basis of documents and affidavits, the same may be undertaken in compliance with the directions contained in paragraph 75 of the judgment.

.....Bashir Badr (passed away on: 28/05/2026)

"….. For an average citizen, the construction of a house is often the culmination of years of hard work, dreams, and aspirations. A house is not just a property but embodies the collective hopes of a family or individuals for stability, security, and a future. Having a house or a roof over one's head gives satisfaction to any person. It gives a sense of dignity and a sense of belonging…."

'Home is where the heart and hearth is', so it is said. It is where a warm meal awaits a man when he returns from a gruelling day's work, it is where his wife (in the larger Indian context even today) feels a sense of pride and accomplishment as a sheet anchor of the family, holding it together through trying times, it is where his children have a stable and settled environment to study and progress in knowledge and ability, to contribute to the family, society and nation once they grow up, it is where his old parents rest blissfully in the evening of their lives making peace with the aches and pains only because of they have a home. A man can absorb the uncertainties of life and bounce back if he has a shelter over his head. Take that away abruptly without giving him adequate time to re-settle himself elsewhere, and you may have consigned, not just him, to the deepest abyss of despair, but all those dependent on him, whose normal rhythm of life was dictated by a sense of security of not having to bother about a safe shelter.

2. The Supreme Court of India recently passed an epoch-making judgement in "In re: Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures" (hereinafter referred to as the "bulldozer case"), to put an end to State action of razing the houses of those accused of a crime. This action by the State is largely to satiate the perceived blood lust of a society fed on a staple diet of bulldozer justice over the electronic media, social media and messaging platforms, on account of which the State of Uttar Pradesh (and now several others), has found it convenient to raze the dwelling place of citizens in the name of irradicating "land mafia" and removing "illegal encroachments", a phrase substituting the word "criminals" after the Supreme Court judgement against demolition of dwelling places of persons accused of crime. This judgement was followed up by the Supreme Court in Rajendra Kumar Barjatya and Another Vs. U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad and Ors., and supplementary directions were passed. While the bulldozer case was to prevent and regulate the demolishment of dwelling place of the accused after the commission of an offence, the judgment in Rajendra Kumar Barjatya issued directions in paragraph 21 of far reaching consequences to prevent the mushrooming of illegal dwelling places.

3. Two situations emerge for consideration before this Court. The First relates to the demolition of dwelling places of persons accused of a crime. The Second is demolition of dwelling places (residence and/or place of business) which have existed for long, under the pretext that they are illegal encroachments on government land. However, the judgment of the Supreme Court notwithstanding, the demolition of structures continue at will, with the State running through the mandatory directions of the Supreme Court in the case abovementioned within a couple of months and then demolishing the structure even before the affected citizen has a fighting chance to approach the courts for succour. This decision of the Supreme Court notwithstanding, the executive continues with its actions of demolishing homes across the country with impunity4, and therefore this judgement aims to curtail all demolitions of dwelling places in the State of Uttar Pradesh by inter alia adopting all the directions of the Supreme Court passed In re: Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures and Rajendra Kumar Barjatya and Another Vs. U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad and Ors., as direction of this Court and ensure that all future demolitions of dwelling places in the State Uttar Pradesh are strictly in accordance with the directions of Supreme Court, passed in aforementioned judgements and the judgement of this Court, and any violation of the same, the citizen so affected can sustain a contempt petition before this Court instead of approaching the Supreme Court.

4. There are three Petitioners in the case under judgement. They reside at 386 Thokchand, Ward No. 11 Bharua Sumerpur in District Hamirpur. Petitioners 1, 2 and 3 are son, father and mother, respectively. According to the Petitioners, the residential house was purchased through an agreement to sell dated 11/12/2001, and the Petitioner No. 2, by another sale deed executed on 11/12/2001, purchased additional portion of the property from the same seller and later, by a third sale deed dated 27/01/2009, purchased the remaining part of the property from the seller Maiya Deen, and on the basis of the aforesaid sale deeds, the Petitioner No. 2 claims himself to be the owner in possession of the residential property. However, the title deeds of the house are presently inside the house to which the Petitioners do not have access to.

5. An FIR bearing Crime No. 20/2026 came to be registered against one Aafan Khan, S/o. Ainuddin @ Maulana Khan, R/o. Kamlesh Tiraha, Kasbah and Thana Sumerpur, District Hamirpur, u/ss. 64(1), 62/351(3), 61(2) of the BNS and s. 67(A) of the IT Act, s. 3 and 4 of the POCSO Act and s. 3 and 5(1) of the U.P Prohibition of Unlawful Religious Conversion Act. The accused Aafan Khan is the cousin of Petitioner No.1 and the nephew of Petitioner Nos. 2 and 3. It is stated on behalf of the Petitioners that a mob targeted the house of the Petitioners immediately after the incident, allegedly in collusion with the police.

6. The case of the Petitioners appears to be (1) that though the Petitioners are not co-accused in the FIR (subsequently, the Petitioner No.1 was included as a co-accused during the pendency of this petition), the Respondents have issued a notice to the Petitioner No.2 who owns the residential house in which they dwell, immediately after the commission of the offence and registration of the FIR. (2) A commercial property registered in the name of the Petitioner No.3 as "Indian Lodge", has been sealed by the Respondents, (3) a saw mill, the license of which has been renewed in the name of the Petitioner No.2 on 11/02/2025, has lapsed and its renewal is pending, which too has been sealed by the Respondents, and (4) an apprehension has been voiced by the Petitioners that their properties are marked for destruction by mechanical means (a euphemism for bull dozer action). The prayer is for judicial intervention to prevent the anticipated destruction of the properties.

7. The State on the other hand has argued for the dismissal of the petition on the grounds that (1) the petition is premature as no cause of action has arisen and the Petitioners have to respond to the notices issued to them, (2) that the residence and the lodge have not been sealed, (3) that the Petitioners have not approached the Court with clean hands as they have concealed the fact that the saw mill was sealed as prohibited wood (neem and dhaak) were recovered from its premises, and (4) an assurance has been given orally by Mr. Anoop Trivedi, the Ld. Additional Advocate General that no demolition would take place without adhering to the procedure established by law and without giving a due opportunity to the Petitioners to place their case before the authorities concerned.

8. This Court is a witness to several cases where the notice for demolition is issued to persons occupying a dwelling place, hard on the heels upon registration of an FIR and thereafter demolished after the ostensible fulfilment of statutory requirements. These demolitions have continued unabated, notwithstanding the law laid down by the Supreme Court in Re: Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures (Writ C No. 295 of 2022 - (2025) 5 SCC 1) that punitive demolition of structures is violative of the separation of powers, as the authority to punish for an offence, vests exclusively with the judiciary.

9. Therefore, bearing in mind the overarching nature of the case spanning the right of the state to demolish a dwelling place and the rights of its occupants under Article 14 and 21, and how these demolitions continue in the State despite the judgement of the Supreme Court which compelled this Court to frame the following issues for consideration. (1) Is there non-compliance of the judgement of the Supreme Court in Re: Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures (Writ C No. 295 of 2022 - (2025) 5 SCC 1) with specific reference to paragraphs 85 and 86 of that judgement?, (2) Does the authority to demolish, justify the act of demolishing a structure or, is there a duty on the anvil of parens patriae upon the State, not to demolish a dwelling place in the absence of public need/purpose?, (3) Would steps taken in the direction of demolishing a structure immediately following the commission of an offence, be a colourable exercise of executive discretion?, (4) how is the High Court to balance the conflicting interests between the statutory authority of the State to demolish a structure and the fundamental right of the average citizen under article 21 and 14, to prevent it?, and (5) can "reasonable apprehension" of demolition be a cause of action for a citizen to approach this Court and if 'yes', what is the bare minimum for this Court to hold the existence of such "reasonable apprehension"? All these questions are answered together in this judgment generally.

10. The parties have advanced oral arguments through their respective Ld. Counsels and have placed on record their written submissions in support of their arguments.

THE PETITIONER'S CASE

11. On behalf of the Petitioners, Mr. S.M.A. Naqvi, Ld. Sr. Counsel, has argued that the Petitioners are law abiding citizens and the sealing of their residential house, sawmill and the lodge, without any notice and in disregard of the procedural formalities prescribed under the law, renders the state action unconstitutional and violative of the petitioners rights under Article 14, 19(1)(g), 21 and 300-A of the Constitution of India. It is further submitted that the Petitioners are residing in the residential house since the year 2001 and till date no objection regarding the title, construction or land use was ever raised by the authorities. As regards the commercial establishments being the 'Indian Lodge' and the 'Saw Mill', they are registered as per the requirement of law and license has been granted by the authorities concerned and has been in operation for more that twenty-five years without any objection.

12. He has further submitted that on 16/01/2026, a criminal case was registered against one Aafan Khan, S/o. Ainuddin @ Maulana Khan, a relative of the Petitioners, who is a resident of Kamlesh Tiraha, Kasba and Thana Sumerpur, District Hamirpur. The details of the FIR is already given in paragraph 5 supra. Upon the registration of the aforementioned FIR against the accused, who is not sharing the same roof with the Petitioners, and neither has he any concern in the business interests of the Petitioners in the commercial establishments in question, the Respondent authorities are threatening to demolish the residential house of the Petitioners and have already sealed the 'Indian Lodge' and the 'Saw Mill'. The Ld. Counsel for the Petitioners has placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Re; Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures (Writ C No. 295 of 2022, reported in 2025 5 SCC 1) to canvas the proposition that the action of the Respondent authorities violate the rule of law and the doctrine of 'Separation of Powers' as the Petitioners have been condemned by the executive without recourse to the prescribed procedure.

THE RESPONDENT'S CASE

13. Mr. Anoop Trivedi, Ld. Additional Advocate General has submitted that the State has not yet sealed the residential house of the Petitioners nor their commercial establishment operating under the name and style of the "Indian Lodge". He has categorically stated that the demolition or sealing of the said two properties shall not take place without adherence to procedure established by law.

14. As regards the sealing of the sawmill, the Ld. Additional Advocate General has stated that the same was done at the behest of the Forest Department as wood (Neem and Dhaak) whose possession is prohibited under the law, was recovered from the premises of the Petitioner's saw mill. In this regard, he has placed on record instructions dated 20/01/2026, received by his office from the Divisional Forest Officer, District Hamirpur, annexing the recovery memo and the seizure report disclosing that the saw mill which was licensed in the name of the Petitioner No. 2, was being operated even after the expiry of the license on 31/12/2025 and upon inspection, the prohibited wood mentioned hereinabove was recovered which resulted in the sealing of the saw mill and the issuance of a show cause notice dated 20/01/2026 to the Petitioner No. 2, which was not replied to till the date on which this case was being heard. He has also submitted that in the event the Petitioner No. 2 submits his reply, further proceedings shall be undertaken as per Rule 8 of the Rules of 2018 after considering his reply.

15. The Ld. AAG has also brought on record, an FIR dated 18/01/2026 being Case Crime No. 22/2026, registered against the Petitioner No. 2 under sections 69, 41, 42 and 77 of the Indian Forest Act, 1927 and section 3, 28 of the UP Transit of Timber and Other Forest Produce Rules, 1978 (two days after the registration of the FIR against Aafan Khan, the nephew of the Petitioner No. 2 was registered on 16/01/2026).

16. For the sake of brevity, this Court is not diving deep into the intricate facts of the case for the same is not essential for a decision as, this case examines the province of 'Executive Discretion and Action' in the backdrop of the rights of citizen's protected under the Constitution.

17. In the bulldozer case, the focus of the Supreme Court was on the question if the dwelling place of a person accused of an offence or even convicted, could be razed without following the due process of law and how such individuals can be protected from arbitrary State action? (paragraph 15 and 16 of that judgement)

18. The Supreme Court also held that it was only the justice system that could adjudge the guilt of an accused and if so found guilty, punish him for the same (paragraph 19 of that judgement). It further emphasised the protection of human rights and dignity and the enforcement of the rule of law to prevent the abuse of power (paragraph 22 of that judgment). Supreme Court laid down that the rule of law is a safeguard against arbitrary State action and would ensure that governance is based upon established legal principles rather than arbitrary discretion (paragraph 32 of that judgement).

19. After emphasising the importance of governance by rule of law, the Supreme Court spoke about the separation of powers and referred to Indira Nehru Gandhi Vs. Raj Narain -1975 Supp SCC 1, and held that the separation of powers was a part of the basic structure of the Constitution (paragraph 40 of that judgement) and State actions causing loss are actionable under public law with the Courts as protectors of civil liberties would safeguard the public from the devastating result of State action (paragraph 51 of that judgment). The Supreme Court emphasised the importance of the "principles of public accountability" and held that the said principle is applicable on the government officials and that every officer in the hierarchy of the State being a public officer or a public servant is accountable to the State and the public and the same should be applied in the larger public interest for proper governance (paragraph 52 of that judgment).

20. The Supreme Court went on to hold that an accused or the convict also have certain rights and safeguards and the destruction of their house would be an act contrary to the principles of the rule of law and the State acting as Judge, would be violative of the concept of separation of powers and those who take the law into their own hands must suffer the just desserts for their actions (paragraph 56 of that judgement). It also held that the accused have certain legal and constitutional safeguards and that the State and its servants cannot act arbitrarily against accused or convicts without following the due process sanctioned by law and where, the right of the accused or the convict has been violated on account of illegal or arbitrary exercise of State authority, compensation would be due to the affected person and the public servant responsible shall be taken to task for his indiscretion (paragraph 65 of that judgement).

21. As per the Supreme Court, the executive has no right to declare a person guilty of an offence as that was only through a process of judicial scrutiny, and therefore it cannot demolish the property of an accused as a punishment without following the due process of law. (paragraph 74 of that judgement). Would this mean that a person accused of crime or convicted of a crime could have his house demolished immediately after he was made an accused in a criminal case only because the procedure established by law was followed? The Supreme Court has in places said that the house cannot be demolished if the intention was punitive and at places stated that it cannot be demolished unless the due process of law was adhered to. However, what the Supreme Court has not taken into consideration in the bulldozer case is that demolishment of the house of the convict is not a prescribed punishment under the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita. The demolition of a dwelling place is governed by municipal laws, building code violations, unauthorised constructions, structures declared as dangerous to human habitation and violation of urban planning statutes. The Supreme Court posed a question to itself if the house of a person accused or convicted of a crime can be inflicted the punishment of demolition of his house and holds that "The answer is an emphatic "No"" (paragraph 78 of that judgement). However, two paragraphs before, the Supreme Court holds that in the case of a person accused or convicted of an offence, his property/properties cannot be demolished without following the due process of law prescribed by law (paragraph 76). This is open to interpretation by the executive to mean that it has the right to demolish the property belonging to an accused or a convict after complying with the due process of law.

22. The bulldozer judgment also holds that right to shelter as one of the facets of Article 21. The State argued that in all the cases where removal of illegal construction was ordered, it was merely a coincidence that one of the members living in the house to be demolished was an accused in a criminal case. Whereas the Petitioners argued that the proximity between the offence and the proceedings for demolitions were so short that the State action betrayed the motive as punitive. Supreme Court considered the conflicting arguments of the State and the Petitioners and held that at times it maybe a coincidence as stated by the State. But, when a structure is chosen suddenly for demolition while the rest of the structures in the vicinity or the same neighbourhood are untouched, mala fide could loom large and a presumption could be drawn that the apparent reason could be the removal of illegal construction while the actual reason could be to punish the accused (paragraphs 79, 81-82, 84 of that judgement).

THE INTERPLAY BETWEEN RIGHT TO LIFE, LIVELIHOOD AND SHELTER

23. The fountainhead case examining the interplay between the right to life and livelihood is the Constitution Bench judgement of the Supreme Court in Olga Tellis Vs. Bombay Municipal Corporation. The pavement and slum dwellers of Mumbai approached the Supreme Court against the action of the Bombay Municipal Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the "BMC"). In that case, the Petitioner did not contend that they have a right to live on the pavements but that they had a right to live which would be illusory if they did not have a right to livelihood. It was non-availability of the means of employment at the place where they originally hailed from that compelled them to flock to Mumbai, and that this right can only be curtailed or taken away by a procedure established by law that was "fair and reasonable and not fanciful or arbitrary such as prescribed by the Bombay Municipal Corporation Act and the Bombay Police Act" (paragraph 2). In Olga Tellis, the Petitioners had challenged the proposed act of the Respondents to demolish the huts of the Petitioners (paragraph 9). The argument of the Petitioners was that their eviction from the pavements and slums will lead to a vicious circle of deprivation of employment, livelihood and therefore life itself (paragraph 21).

24. A contention was raised by the Respondents (in Olga Tellis) that the Petitioners be estopped from projecting their fundamental rights as a defence to the demolition of their huts, to which the constitution Bench responded by holding that "There can be no estoppel against the Constitution. The Constitution is not only the paramount law of the land but, it is the source and sustenance of all laws. Its provisions are conceived in public interest and are intended to serve a public purpose". Poignant and powerful words from the Supreme Court which are ever more relevant today than ever before when houses are demolished across India, even after the judgement of the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case.

25. The flagship argument of the Petitioners in Olga Tellis was that the right to life protected by Article 21 is meaningless if the right to livelihood is not read into it. They submitted that they would be deprived of their livelihood if they are evicted from their slum and pavement dwellings as they cannot find meaningful work for themselves if they do not have a home to live in, irrespective of the condition that it is in. The Constitution Bench held "Upon that assumption, the question which we have to consider is whether the right to life includes the right to livelihood. We see only one answer to that question, namely, that it does. The sweep of the right to life conferred by Article 21 is wide and far-reaching. It does not mean merely that life cannot be extinguished or taken away as, for example, by the imposition and execution of the death sentence, except according to procedure established by law. That is but one aspect of the right to life. An equally important facet of that right is the right to livelihood because, no person can live without the means of living, that is, the means of livelihood. If the right to livelihood is not treated as a part of the constitutional right to life, the easiest way of depriving a person of his right to life would be to deprive him of his means of livelihood to the point of abrogation. Such deprivation would not only denude the life of its effective content and meaningfulness but it would make life impossible to live. And yet, such deprivation would not have to be in accordance with the procedure established by law if the right to livelihood is not regarded as a part of the right to life. That, which alone makes it possible to live, leave aside what makes life livable, must be deemed to be an integral component of the right to life. Deprive a person of his right to livelihood and you shall have deprived him of his life. Indeed, that explains the massive migration of the rural population to big cities. They migrate because they have no means of livelihood in the villages. The motive force which propels their desertion of their hearths and homes in the village is the struggle for survival, that is, the struggle for life. So unimpeachable is the evidence of the nexus between life and the means of livelihood. They have to eat to live: only a handful can afford the luxury of living to eat. That they can do, namely, eat, only if they have the means of livelihood". The observations of the Supreme Court establish as an indelible proposition that right to life includes the right to livelihood and that the suspension of the right to livelihood even for a single day, without any compelling cause would be a violation of the affected person's right to life itself.

26. Further, in the same judgement, the Supreme Court analyses Art. 39(a), a Directive Principle of State Policy and reiterates that the policy of the State shall be directed in securing its citizens and adequate means of livelihood and within the financial limitations of the State, endeavour for securing the right to work of those who are unemployed, a required of the State in Art 41. The Supreme Court held "…..That If there is an obligation upon the State to secure to the citizens an adequate means of livelihood and the right to work, it would be sheer pedantry to exclude the right to livelihood from the content of the right to life. The State may not, by affirmative action, be compellable to provide adequate means of livelihood or work to the citizens. But, any person, who is deprived of his right to livelihood except according to just and fair procedure established by law, can challenge the deprivation as offending the right to life conferred by Article 21".

27. Interestingly, in the year 1985, when the judgement in Olga Tellis was passed by the Supreme Court, the total population of India was 772,648,000 or seven hundred and seventy two million and six hundred and forty-eight thousand, or seventy seven crores twenty six lakhs and forty eight thousand. Strangely, the State, for some inexplicable and convoluted reasoning, takes pride in confessing that it today feeds, free of charge, more than 800,000,000, eight hundred million or more than eighty crore citizens each month, which is more than the entire population of India as it stood in the year 1985, and more than 50% of its entire population today which is approximately 1400,000,000 one thousand four hundred million or one hundred and forty crores or one billion and four hundred million people, who would otherwise perish from starvation, being incapable of generating sufficient wealth to afford two square meals a day.

28. There is a nexus between poverty, unemployment and migration of citizens from rural areas and semi urban areas of the country to the larger cities which leads to creation of unauthorised colonies and ghettos which get marked for demolition one fine day after decades of their existence. This problem was red flagged by the Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in Olga Tellis, forty-six years ago, at paragraph 32 of that judgment.

29. The increasing population of the country is directly proportional to the reduction of resources with the most valuable resource being land. The area of land that India had in the year 1985 is the same area that it has in 2026. However, the population which requires land for habitation has increased about 100% in these forty-six years. The density of population in the State of Uttar Pradesh is 829/sqkm (eight hundred and twenty nine persons per square kilometre) as per the census of 2011 which is more than double the national average of 364/sqkm (three hundred and sixty four persons per square kilometre) thus, land is a premium commodity and compels those who cannot afford legitimate housing to move to areas where housing is cheaper but its legitimacy is dubious. The residents of these unauthorised colonies are the les miserables of our people, poor, lower middle class and at some places, the middle class. This is not to say that the rich in India live in houses and gated communities that are fully legitimate, but they remain largely untouchable on account of their influence through wealth and/or bureaucratic and political patronage and the ubiquitous and all pervasive culture of corruption that has been normalised and institutionalised in India.

30. Generation of wealth in any society is by way of employment (by self-employment or working for another or a company). In an article published in an online magazine "Mint" on 27/03/2024, drawing data from the "Indian Employment Report 2024", jointly published by the International Labour Organisation and the Institute of Human Development. It reflects that the percentage of youth possessing at least a secondary education amongst the total unemployed youth doubled from 35.2% in 2000 to 65.7 percent to 2022. This coupled with India's GDP per capita for the year 2025 was $2523.4 which roughly translates to ₹ 2,41,422.29. Which amounts to a little more than ₹ 20,000/month. The per capita income in the State of Uttar Pradesh for the year 2024-2025 was ₹ 1,09,000/- (rupees one lakh and nine thousand) which is about ₹ 9083/- (rupees nine thousand and eighty three) per month, which is less than 50% of the national average, making the State, the second poorest State in India after Bihar.

31. Human experience of the ground reality which this Court must draw upon, is that it is almost impossible for a person earning just about ₹ 9,083/month to own a dwelling place in a gated community, built on a land acquired legitimately with all State clearances. Thus, while the constitution law acknowledges the right to shelter as a fundamental right of even a person who earns only ₹ 9,083/- a month, he falls foul of the municipal laws while fulfilling his fundamental right as he is unable to possess a home that is compliant of the intricate requirement of the municipal laws because of his pathetic financial condition, thus making his home a vulnerable target for demolition, maybe decades later.

32. The irony of this picture is that while the Constitution Courts acknowledge that a citizen's right to shelter is a fundamental right, it can still be demolished for being violative of the municipal laws. There however is a limitation upon all fundamental rights which the Courts have consistently held as reasonable for rights are not absolute and can be curtailed or extinguished as per procedure established by law. Thus, the fundamental right to shelter can be trumped (no pun intended) if the property is not compliant of the municipal laws.

33. The Supreme Court held that right to life includes the right to livelihood and that if the pavement dwellers were evicted, they will be deprived of their right to livelihood. Thereafter, it held that the constitution does not put an absolute restriction on the deprivation of life which is in accordance with procedure established by law (paragraph 37 of Olga Tellis). But it also held that the procedure prescribed by law for depriving a person of his fundamental right must conform to the broad principles of justice and fair play as procedure that is unjust or unfair would be unreasonable thereby vitiating the law and the action taken under it. It held "Any action taken by a public authority which is invested with statutory powers has, therefore, to be tested by the application of two standards : the action must be within the scope of the authority conferred by law and secondly, it must be reasonable. If any action, within the scope of the authority conferred by law, is found to be unreasonable, it must mean that the procedure established by law under which that action is taken is itself unreasonable. The substance of the law cannot be divorced from the procedure which it prescribes for, how reasonable the law is, depends upon how fair is the procedure prescribed by it".

34. While in Olga Tellis, the Supreme Court examined the intersection between the right to life and right to livelihood and how the right to life can be rendered meaningless without acknowledging the right to livelihood and laid down how a dwelling place, be it on a pavement or in a slum, was an integral part of the right to livelihood of a citizen.

35. As regards the right to shelter, the Supreme Court in Chameli Singh Vs. State of U.P held that "....Shelter for a human being, therefore, is not a mere protection of his life and limb. It is home where he has opportunities to grow physically, mentally, intellectually and spiritually. Right to shelter, therefore, includes adequate living space, safe and decent structure, clean and decent surroundings, sufficient light, pure air and water, electricity, sanitation and other civic amenities like roads etc. so as to have easy access to his daily avocation. The right to shelter, therefore, does not mean a mere right to a roof over one's head but right to all the infrastructure necessary to enable them to live and develop as a human being. Right to shelter when used as an essential requisite to the right to live should be deemed to have been guaranteed as a fundamental right". The Supreme Court has clearly emphasised and laid down that the right to life does not mean the right to live an animal existence but includes the right to shelter which is essential for the overall and wholesome development of the human being as a human being. In Shiv Sagar Tiwari Vs. Union of India, the Supreme Court took cognizance of its earlier judgement in Olga Tellis and held "May we also observe that life, livelihood and shelter are so mixed, mingled and fused that it is difficult to separate them. To take away life, it would be enough to take away livelihood; and to earn livelihood, which in urban areas is ordinarily at places away from one's own home and hearth, shelter would be necessary - be it a house or even a pavement".

36. Most recently, the Supreme Court in Mansi Brar Fernandes Vs. Shubha Sharma observed that "This Court has, in a catena of decisions, consistently held and reaffirmed that the Right to Shelter is an integral part of the right to life under Article 21 of the Constitution. This recognition casts a corresponding duty on the State to ensure access to adequate housing, particularly for weaker sections".

37. Likewise, the Supreme Court in Zulfiquar Haider and Another Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Ors., while examining a case where the property of the Petitioners were razed to the ground without adhering to the procedure mandated by the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case, the Supreme Court expressed its angst on the manner in which the demolitions were undertaken by observing that "these cases shock our conscience" (paragraph 3) as the demolition was carried out close on the heels of the judgment of the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case. As regards the right to shelter being a right to life, the Supreme Court held "The authorities, especially the development authority, must remember that the right to shelter is also an integral part of Article 21 of the Constitution of India. This right can be taken away only by following due process of law. Moreover, our country is governed by the rule of law, which is an integral part of the basic structure of the Constitution. The residential structures of citizens cannot be demolished in such a summary manner without following the principles of natural justice…". The Supreme Court was sensitive to the loss of the Petitioners in that case and awarded a compensation of ₹ 10,00,000/- to each of the Petitioners.

38. Thus, the discussion on the judgements hereinabove, is merely an elucidation of the law laid down over decades of judicial pronouncements that the right to life, include the right to livelihood and the right to shelter without which, the right to life itself would be rendered meaningless and animalistic. However, these judgements of the Supreme Court notwithstanding, the demolitions continue with impunity as though these judgments do not exist, or the State is certain that the defiance towards the law laid down by the highest Court of the land shall not visit them with any adverse consequences.

39. In an article by the online site sabrangindia.in titled "When the Rule of the Bulldozer Outpaces the Rule of Law: One year after this landmark judgment", where instances of bulldozing dwelling places without complying with the procedure given in the bulldozer case, have been documented, and the first case mentioned in the article was of the March 2025 from Prayagraj in Uttar Pradesh, where the Supreme Court awarded compensation of ₹ 10,00,000/- to each of the six Petitioners in that case. Therefore, the question arises with regard to the cause for such demolitions by the State, which already as stated by this Court in paragraph 2 supra, is an act by the State under the perception that it is satiating the bloodlust of a society that is intolerant to due process of law or the procedure established by law and wants immediate redressal of grievance by bulldozing the house of the accused even before the criminal justice system has found the accused guilty as charged. The State is certain that that the society suffers from collective schadenfreude and shall applaud the State for dispensing vigilante style summary justice, without adhering to the procedure established by law and secures pleasure from the misfortune of the other person suffering loss. In such a situation, it is for the Constitution Courts to evolve a jurisprudence that is Constitutionally and legally valid.

Retributive Exercise of Executive Discretion: the pressing need to carve a new specie from the genus of Colourable Exercise of Executive Discretion.

40. Colourable Exercise of Executive Discretion can render an otherwise lawful act, unlawful. Simply stated, it means that where the entrusted power or authority is exercised for a reason other than which the power was intended, and the resultant effect is adverse upon another, that action, though otherwise legitimate under the law, is rendered unlawful on account of malice in law.

41. The continuation of the bulldozer actions by the State as is attempted in the case of the Petitioners herein, has compelled this Court to carve out a Specie of Retributive Exercise of Executive Discretion as the Vilest Specie of the Genus Colourable Exercise of Executive Discretion. In bulldozing the house of a person accused of an offence, the State is not acting with the avowed aims of enforcing the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the municipal laws but to punish the accused and his entire family staying in that house, while projecting the action as one of removing an illegal construction.

42. A dilemma that has dogged the courts since time immemorial is the choice between enforcing the legislative will as it is or doing justice. Though they are cognate concepts the distinction between them is real and palpable. While Laws generally, are the enforceable will of the sovereign and in a democracy like ours, the will of "we the people of India", enacted through the legislature by elected representatives, resulting in codified rights and liabilities. Justice on the other hand, is the enforcement of constitutional rights of citizens by the courts with the preamble as its north star, while adhering to constitutional values and imperatives for the fulfilment of the constitutional ideal of securing a welfare state and enforcing the rule of law.

43. The vexatious question before this court in such cases is whether the will of the legislature should be enforced as it is without any consideration for the consequences that may follow for the citizen? The legislature being elected by the people, unquestionably legislates for the larger good of the society. It is also undeniable that the legislature acts in good faith and that must always be the presumption. However, the operation of the laws may not have the effect desired by the legislature, for at times the road to hell is paved with good intentions.

44. The enforcement of the statute 'as it is', can at times result in grave injustice. Illustratively, the courts have seen at times the injustice resulting from the application of the provisions of the POCSO where minors from the rural landscape, economically backward, Illiterate or semi-literate, elope, stay together, work as manual labourers, get married and have children and upon their return to their village, the husband is arrested, tried and convicted and imprisoned for a minimum of ten years only because of his wife being a minor on the date on which they eloped. Courts have grappled with the question as to how is justice served by imprisoning the husband, the sole bread winner and exposing the wife and children to destitution as they find no support from their respective families? So is the case with the enforcement of municipal laws which at times is not for the bonafide purpose of securing the ends of the municipal laws, but to punish the accused and his entire family which includes women, the old and children, by demolishing his house for an offence he is alleged to have committed, resulting in them be rendered homeless overnight and suffer destitution till they find an alternate shelter.

45. In the context of the present case under judgment, the chapter on directive principles of State policy, is the conscience governing State action. It amplifies the desire of the constitution to secure a welfare state with prevalence of the rule of law and making the state aware that is actions must be towards that end alone. Though well settled it is, that this chapter is non justiciable, yet the same remains a guide to the State while it performs its executive functions, and the judiciary to examine if State action, though legal under statute, is just?

46. Thus, where the motive behind a state action, apparent or actual, is for purposes other than the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the municipal laws, then it would be reasonable to infer malice on the part of the State for acting in contravention of Art. 39(a) by creating a circumstance where the right to livelihood of the citizen is put to sword while Art. 39(a) of the Constitution demands that State policy must be directed to create livelihood for the citizen. Therefore, where the State, instead of creating an environment where the citizen can fulfil his right to livelihood, acts in contravention to the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the municipal laws and extinguishes the right to livelihood of a citizen by violating his right to shelter, the Courts may infer malice in law, as the act would a Retributive Exercise of Executive Discretion.

47. In the present era, where there is rampant violations of building norms and it is also a well-known fact that most of the buildings, including at times build by the development authority itself, is not complying with the norms; and as such one sided action to correct the measures, by way of the retributive exercise of the executive discretion, has also to be dealt with; or else this Court will be failing in its constitutional obligation itself. The Court must adapt to the changing times and understand the dynamics of the times and accordingly mould the law in order to fit the times without doing violence to the just scriptum. In the words of the eminent jurist and constitutionalist V. Sudhish Pai "The Need for adapting the law to meet the new urges in society, i.e., demanded the readjustment of legal norms by a changed social context in a changing society, brings home the truth of the Holmesian aphorism that the life of the law has not been logic, but experience and that law is forever adopting new principles from life at one end and sloughing off old ones at the other. As in life, so in law, things are not static. Fresh vistas and horizons may reveal themselves as a result of the impact of new ideas and developments in different fields of life. Law, if it has to satisfy human needs and to meet the problems of life, which indeed it should, must adapt itself to cope with new situations. The Court must understand the purpose of law in society and help law to achieve that purpose. Sometimes change in law precedes societal change and is even intended to stimulate it. In most cases, however, a change in law is the result of a change in social reality".

48. In the case of K. Ramadas Shenoy v. Town Municipal Council, Udipi, the Apex Court observed that when the municipality acts in excess of the powers conferred by the Act or abuses the powers, then in those cases as a matter of fact it is usurping powers which it does not possess; and if under pretext of any authority, which the law does not give to the municipality, it goes beyond the limits of its authority, and infringes or violates the rights of others, it becomes like all other individuals, amenable to the jurisdiction of the court.

49. This however is not to mean that the citizen has a right to shelter by violating the municipal laws, but only states that where such violation occurs, the endeavour of the State must be to assist the citizen by rectifying the wrong through compounding where possible, else assist him by giving him reasonable time to resettle himself and thereafter demolish the offending structure. But a pedantic application of the municipal law and running through its requirements within three to six months and thereafter demolish his dwelling where he may have been residing for decades, would not be the hallmark of a welfare State. It has to be borne in mind by the State, that the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case has mandated that the final order of demolition of a dwelling place shall mandatorily spell out whether the violation of municipal law was compoundable and if not, the reasons why it cannot be compounded and the extreme step of demolition is the only available option. The spirit of the Supreme Court judgment is that the option of demolishing a dwelling place should be the last and the State must explore options of avoiding such an eventuality, and where there is no option other than demolishing it entirely, cogent reasons have to be recorded disclosing why the State has no option but to demolish the entire structure as regularisation/compounding was an impossibility. If the State order does not disclose this in the order of demolishment, and the Structure is demolished, the State would be in gross contempt of the Supreme Court order, and now of this Court, it having adopted the same by this judgement.

50. Though, the state action may seem to be in consonance with the municipal laws as far as fairness of procedure is concerned, the action would still be ultra vires of the statute on account of the contrived motive behind the State action. Whether the motive was in accordance with the statute or the same was malicious, can reasonable be inferred from the attending circumstances specific to every case which may suggest that the state action is bad on account of malice in law.

51. In this regard, it would be relevant to refer to to the objects behind "Utter Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973"; which is to provide for the development of certain areas of Uttar Pradesh, according to plan and for matters ancillary thereto. Under Chapter II of the Act, 1973, the objects of the development authority have been clearly spelled out. For ready reference Section 7 of the Act, 1973 is reproduced below:

"7. Objects of the Authority - The objects of the [local development authority]1 shall be to promote and secure the development of the development area according to plan and for that purpose the Authority shall have the power to acquire, hold, manage and dispose of land and other property, to carry out building, engineering, mining and other operations, to execute works in connection with the supply of water and electricity to dispose of sewage and to provide and maintain other services and amenities and generally to do anything necessary or expedient for purposes of such development and for purposes incidental thereto Provided that save as provided in this Act nothing contained in this Act shall be construed as authorizing the disregard by the Authority of any law for the time being in force".

52. Thereafter Chapter III of the Act, 1973 deals with the Master Plan and Zonal Development Plan; and lays down the procedure to be followed in the preparation and approval of the plan; and thereafter under Chapter V, Section 16 of the Act, 1973, provides that no person shall use or permit to use any land or building in the zone, otherwise than in conformity with the Master Plan/Zonal Plan. For ready reference, Section 16 of the Act, 1973 is reproduced below:

"16. Uses of land and buildings in contravention of plans - After the coming into operation of any of the plans in a zone no person shall use or permit to be used any land or building in that zone otherwise than in conformity with such plan

Provided that it shall be lawful to continue to use upon such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by bye-laws made in that behalf, any land or building for the purpose and to the extent for and to which it is being used upon the date on which such plan comes into force".

53. The State cannot be compelled to fulfil its obligations under Part IV, but acting contrary to the same and thereby violating any right in Part III, would raise a reasonable presumption that such State action is motivated by malice.

54. Part IV of the constitution is not a garnishing on the surface of a dish to make it presentable, but an important ingredient that makes the dish itself edible and palatable. It is what the State must strive for to justify its existence by establishing a welfare state, run in accordance with the rule of law, guided by the preamble to secure for its citizens inter alia, Justice.

55. Article 39(a) particularly obliges the State to direct its policies to secure adequate means of livelihood for its citizens within its financial limitations. The right to livelihood and shelter have been equated with right to life itself in the light of judicial pronouncements discussed herein above. Thus, where the State uses the municipal laws to punish an accused for an offence by demolishing his house in order to satiate the collective schadenfreude of the people, that the State has taken vengeance on their behalf, the same would be a Retributive Exercise of Executive Discretion and an act most viciously malicious in law which ought to be prevented by the Courts from taking place or compensation in favour of the affected can be ordered, where the impugned action has already taken place, as was done by the Supreme Court in Zulfiquar Haider's case at paragraph 38 supra.

56. During arguments, it was submitted on behalf of the Respondent State that the petition be dismissed as it is premature. As per Respondent, the State has only issued notice to the Petitioners and that they have the right to place their case before the Respondent authority and if after hearing the Petitioners, any order of demolition was passed against the properties of the Petitioners, they could have then approached this Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The question raised by the said argument was as to when was the right stage for the Petitioners to have approached this Court to protect their right under Art. 21?

57. This issue in no longer res integra and has been settled by the Supreme Court in S.M.D. Kiran Pasha Vs. Government of A.P where the Supreme Court held "…. Article 21 giving protection of life and personal liberty provides that no person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law. For enforcement of one's right to life and personal liberty resort to Article 226(1) has thus been provided for…. The right to life and personal liberty has been guaranteed as a fundamental right and for its enforcement one could resort to Article 226 of the Constitution for issuance of appropriate writ, order or direction. Precisely at what stage resort to Article 226 has been envisaged in the Constitution? When a right is so guaranteed, it has to be understood in relation to its orbit and its infringement.... The question is at what stage the right can be enforced? Does a citizen have to wait till the right is infringed? Is there no way of enforcement of the right before it is actually infringed? Can the obligation or compulsion on the part of the State to observe the right be made effective only after the right is violated or in other words can there be enforcement of a right to life and personal liberty before it is actually infringed? What remedy will be left to a person when his right to life is violated? When a right is yet to be violated, but is threatened with violation can the citizen move the court for protection of the right? The protection of the right is to be distinguished from its restoration or remedy after violation. When right to personal liberty is guaranteed and the rest of the society, including the State, is compelled or obligated not to violate that right, and if someone has threatened to violate it or its violation is imminent, and the person whose right is so threatened or its violation so imminent resorts to Article 226 of the Constitution, could not the court protect observance of his right by restraining those who threatened to violate it until the court examines the legality of the action? Resort to Article 226 after the right to personal liberty is already violated is different from the pre-violation protection. Post-violation resort to Article 226 is for remedy against violation and for restoration of the right, while pre-violation protection is by compelling observance of the obligation or compulsion under law not to infringe the right by all those who are so obligated or compelled….. The question may arise what precisely may amount to threat or imminence of violation. Law surely cannot take action for internal thoughts but can act only after overt acts. If overt acts towards violation have already been done and the same has come to the knowledge of the person threatened with that violation and he approaches the court under Article 226 giving sufficient particulars of proximate actions as would imminently lead to violation of right, should not the court call upon those alleged to have taken those steps to appear and show cause why they should not be restrained from violating that right? Instead of doing so would it be the proper course to be adopted to tell the petitioner that the court cannot take any action towards preventive justice until his right is actually violated.... If a threatened invasion of a right is removed by restraining the potential violator from taking any steps towards violation, the rights remain protected and the compulsion against its violation is enforced. If the right has already been violated, what is left is the remedy against such violation and for restoration of the right".

58. When the aforementioned judgement is seen in the context of the facts and circumstances of the present case, it is undisputed that the notice has been issued to the Petitioners with regards to their structures. This coupled with the past actions of the Government of Uttar Pradesh in demolishing dwelling places without being sensitive to the human cost of the actions, the apprehension of the Petitioners in this case is reasonable that the Sword of Damocles hangs heavy over their heads and that their dwelling places may fall to the bulldozers after the State runs through the formality of procedural compliance. Also, the fact that previous actions of the State in targeting largely the houses of muslims accused of offence, there is reasonable apprehension that the Petitioners are next.

59. Selective outrage results in selective injustice. The Ld. Solicitor General who argued on behalf of the UOI in the bulldozer case submitted before the Supreme Court that the houses that were being demolished were found to be in violation of the municipal laws or the panchayat laws governing them and in some cases, it may have been sheer coincidence that properties which were in breach of municipal laws may have been owned by persons accused of an offence. This postulate put forth by the Ld. Solicitor General was disputed by the Petitioner side which disclosed that the proximity between the alleged offence being committed and the razing of the accused's house was so short that the inference of the house being razed to the ground on account of the allegation against the accused person, was not merely apparent but glaringly evident.

60. The Supreme Court, analysing the arguments of both the sides very rightly held "when a particular structure is chosen all of a sudden for demolition and the rest of the similarly situated structures in the same vicinity are not even being touched, mala fide may loom large. In such cases, where the authorities indulge into arbitrary pick and choose of the structures and it is established that soon before initiation of such an action an occupant of the structure was found to be involved in a criminal case, a presumption could be drawn that the real motive for such demolition proceedings was not the illegal structure but an action of penalising the accused without even trying him before the court of law". Thus, the devil is in the details. If the intention of the State is to remove illegal construction, it cannot be restricted only to a single house but to all those houses which are in the vicinity and are also violative of the municipal or panchayat laws. Selectively demolishing a house belonging to an accused immediately after the registration of the FIR, is downright malicious.

61. Selective action against dwelling premises is gaining currency in other parts of the country also with which, this Court is however not concerned as it lacks the jurisdiction. However, in order to illustrate similar selective action which led to selective discrimination and injustice, this Court refers to an interim order passed by the Ld. Single Bench of the High Court of Jammu and Kashmir and Ladakh at Jammu, in OWP No. 122/2002 - Adm. Jammu Municipality and Anr Vs. Surat Singh and Anr., took cognizance of the discrimination against the Respondent No. 1 (owner of a commercial property) who was being subjected to a "...discriminatory exercise of statutory powers|" by the municipal authorities while other similarly situated hotels, banquet halls, coaching centres and other commercial establishments, suffering the same identical defects as that of the Respondent No. 1's property or even more serious, continued to operate without any meaningful action against them. Wherever the law is applied selectively and discriminatively, without any intelligible differentia, it results in injustice. Denying the existence of selective outrage resulting in selective bulldozer action, is to applaud the emperor's new clothes.

DWELLING PLACES IN CONFLICT WITH MUNICIPAL LAWS

62. The bulldozer judgement was followed by the Supreme Court in Rajendra Kumar Barjatya and Another Vs. U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad and Others. In that case, the Respondent No. 5 was the original allottee of the land sold by the Respondent No.1. Respondent No. 1 carried out construction contrary to the norms, terms and conditions and sold it to the Petitioner before the Supreme Court. Respondent No.1's case is that it gave several notices to the Respondent No.5 to compound the defects or remove the same. As it got no response from the Respondent No.5, and as the police was not giving the Respondent No.1 any protection to carry out the demolition and so, the Respondent No.1 approached this Court in a Writ Petition and sought police protection to demolish the structure of the Respondent No.5. The Petitioner (before the Supreme Court) was not a party before this Court. This Court directed the police to assist the Respondent No.1 to carry out the demolition. The Supreme Court dismisses the appeal and gives further directions to supplement the directions given earlier in the bulldozer case.

63. In Rajendra Kumar Barjatya's case, the Supreme Court recognised the power of the State to remove illegal construction, the long occupancy by the affected party notwithstanding. Referring to precedents, the Supreme Court held that unauthorised construction cannot be perpetuated and if the construction made was contrary to the rules it would be illegal and amenable to be demolished. Inaction by the officers of the State is no protection for illegal construction (paragraph 19). There is no difficulty with the observation of the Supreme Court and indeed, illegal construction must not be condoned and where necessary, must be brought down.

64. The law has traditionally always held in favour of the larger public good as opposed to the rights of the individual, which must give way to the comfort of the majority. Thus, demolition of dwelling places for the purpose of widening the road or reclaiming State land for development purposes has been given impetus to by the courts which in such circumstances have held against the individual. This is more so in cases where the structure is unauthorised. Though there is no official data as to what percentage of dwelling places are unauthorised in India, but it would be reasonable to find that a sizable number of the houses in India may be falling foul of the municipal laws. By no stretch of imagination can protection be accorded to such construction and they must be removed if the need occurred and the Supreme Court is right when it holds that prolonged stay does not perfect a right. But the question is whether it would be just and proper to bear in mind the right to shelter of the person living in such a dwelling place, only for the limited purpose of giving him reasonable and sufficient time to resettle himself and his family elsewhere, rather than be forced on to the pavement in the dead of night or go to a night shelter.

65. The Constitution also stands by the rights of the "little man" of this country who may have no prominence in society on account of his minimal financial status and not being a person of means. In removing dwelling places found non-compliant with the municipal laws, the Benthamite utilitarian approach of summarily evicting the few for the larger good of the many, would be a square peg in a round hole in the Indian context. The Constitution is an inorganic being with its life infused by the aspirations of the people it serves. Such aspirations change with time which the constitution accommodates without doing violence to its basic structure. So the question is in what manner should this Gordian knot of balancing equities of the State on one hand and that of the individual be managed?

66. No dwelling place comes up overnight. The authorities who have the duty to ensure that such structures do not come up, close their eyes deliberately on account of political or bureaucratic support that the builder has or out of dishonesty.

67. Over decades, the average Indian has normalised corruption. It is no longer wrong as long as one does not get caught. Even in the rankings of Transparency Internation 2025 report, India ranks at 91 amongst 182 nations, but even that does not shame us. The recent controversy relating to the theft of donations at the Ram Temple is the proverbial last straw on the camel's back. Nothing can shame a people who remain unfazed by the theft at the Ram Temple which epitomises the nadir of the Indian's integrity. The collective absence of integrity affects every institution including the municipal authorities and other such authorities whose dishonesty enabled the individual to construct a house which was non-compliant, inter alia of the municipal laws. This was facilitated by those who take bribes from builders and close their eyes to the illegalities and violations being committed by the builders who sell it off to the buyer who then suffers the enforcement of the law a couple of decades later and finds himself on the streets within six months of the start of the eviction procedure and his house razed to the ground. Rampant corruption in the country would lead to the illicit concentration of wealth in the hand of a few widening the chasm between the haves and the have nots and lays down the script for a civil unrest in days to come. If the State is serious, actually serious, about curtailing corruption and retrieving India from the abject morass of dishonesty and complete lack of integrity, it should consider amending the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 to include the death penalty for those convicted of corruption.

68. This Court has already held hereinabove that it is not in favour of persons violating buildings regulations but it is also imperative that while undoing the mischief, which would require demolition of the unauthorized constructions, the delinquent officers are also to be punished in accordance with law; and this Court's view is also fortified by a decision of the Apex Court in the G.N. Khajuria Vs. D.D.A

69. In a meaningful democracy, the right of the individual must be protected, if the need arises, from the might of the State. A former President of the Supreme Court of Israel observed "Democracy is not satisfied merely by abiding by proper elections and legislative supremacy. Democracy has its own internal morality based on the dignity and equality of all human beings. Thus, in addition to formal requirements (elections and the rule of the majority), there are also substantive requirements. These are reflected in the supremacy of such underlying democratic values and principles as separation of powers, the rule of law, and independence of the judiciary. They are based on such fundamental values as tolerance, good faith, justice, reasonableness, and public order. Above all, democracy cannot exist without the protection of individual human rights-rights so essential that they must be insulated from the power of the majority" (emphasis added).

70. V. Sudhish Pai, wrote that "....The Constitution, apart from being a legal document is also, and even more, a political and social testament created to secure the goals set out in the Preamble-justice, liberty, equality, and fraternity. The individual lies at the core of the constitutional focus and the ideals envisioned in the Preamble animate the vision of securing a dignified existence to the individual" (emphasis added).

71. When the opinion of the two jurists are juxtaposed with the facts of the case, it is seen that the person, whose dwelling place is to be demolished, and who has been in occupation of the same for decades, but never had a clear right to the land on which the house stood, also must be given a reasonable time, with the assistance of the State to resettle him elsewhere, as the State was just as complicit through its corrupt agents (the bureaucracy) in the illegal occupation of the land by the proposed evictee. Though the occupation of State land by the evictee cannot be clothed with legality, at the same time, the dishonesty of the State must not be condoned either.

DIRECTIONS

72. This Court adopts the directions given in paragraphs 94, 94.1 to 94.15 and 95 to 97, by the Supreme Court In re, Directions in the Matter of Demolition of Structures - (2025) 5 SCC 1.

73. This Court also adopts the direction given in paragraph 21 by the Supreme Court in Rajendra Kumar Barjatya and Another Vs. U.P. Avas Evam Vikas Parishad and Others - 2024 SCC OnLine 3767.

74. As it has been held by this Court that rushing to demolish the dwelling place of a person accused of an offence under the garb of the same being violative of municipal laws, is impermissible the same being a retributive exercise of executive discretion and so, no action may be taken to demolish his house for a period of two years from the date of registration of the FIR and during the hiatus of two years, as the immediate action, rather than to reclaim State land, is to satiate the presumable public anger immediately following the offence which would dissipate with the passage of time, and the State may no longer feel the necessity to destroy the property. After two years, the State can examine, as the Supreme Court has mandated in the bulldozer case, that the final order must reflect the reasons whether compounding of the deviations is possible the property and if compounding is not possible, then it shall abide by the direction of the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case which has been adopted by this Court as part of this order at paragraph 73 supra.

75. If however, the removal is necessary for reclaiming the land for public purpose and such action it is not restricted to the house of accused alone, then it permissible, subject to compliance with direction given by the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case (paragraph 73 supra), to move for demolition in accordance with law, in which case the hiatus of two years before taking action, shall not be binding.

76. As regards removal of dwelling places which are illegal constructions, the State shall follow the direction of the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case in paragraph 67 supra with one additional condition - that where the violater has stayed in the illegal structure for three years or more, the authority shall intimate the violater one year before the initiation of procedure under the municipal law and the dispatch of intimation through notice shall be as directed by the Supreme Court in the bulldozer case. This is essential so as to give reasonable notice of intent on the part of the State so as to enable the violater a full one year to resettle himself elsewhere, however, the prior intimation of one year’s notice before initiating procedure under the municipal law may be waived where there is “compelling urgency” of larger public need to be justified by the State. This is necessary as the State is particeps criminis by assisting the violater through "connivance" (as has been held by the Supreme Court in the two judgments mentioned hereinabove which is a euphemism for blatant corruption) to build the offending structure, give electricity and water supply which even today is largely a sovereign function.

77. Additionally, In case notices are issued for the violation of the construction norms, the same shall only be valid if simultaneous proceedings are also initiated against the erring officers inter alia under the relevant provisions of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. The disciplinary action against the erring officer shall also be initiated and the same shall also be required to brought to its logical end, adhering to the procedures prescribed within a reasonable time and in any case not later than 6 months, from the date of initiation of the proceedings/issuance of notice for the violation of the construction norms; needless to say that for demolishing the construction, it shall abide by the directions of the Apex Court in the Bulldozer case, which this Court has also adopted, as part of this order at Paragraph No.73 (supra).

78. The action of the development authority, shall not reflect in any manner that it is only against an individual, while ignoring a similar violation in the vicinity, with respect to the other constructions; and if such will be the case, the aggrieved person, shall be at liberty to approach this Court, alleging 'retributive exercise of executive discretion' and violation of the fundamental rights

79. As regards the Petitioners in the present case, proceedings for demolishment of their Residence and Lodge stand quashed as the said proceedings are hit by retributive exercise of executive discretion, and no proceedings shall be initiated for two years from the date of registration of the FIR relevant in this case. In the event, there is need for removing these structures before two years for proved public purpose (not beyond reasonable doubt, but on the basis of documents and affidavits), then the same may be done by complying with the directions in paragraph 75 supra.

80. As regards the proceedings against the Petitioners under the Forest Act in relation to the sealing of their saw mill on account of recovering wood of protected trees, the same shall continue unaffected by this order.

81. This order shall be communicated to the Chief Secretary of the State for onward dispatch to all the relevant offices in the districts for strict compliance.

82. Any violation of the direction herein, would result in contempt proceedings against the officer concerned which may be filed before this Court.

83. Accordingly, the writ petition is disposed of.

THE HON'BLE J.J. MUNIR, J.
THE HON'BLE INDRAJEET SHUKLA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 20880 of 2026

Chandan Kumar ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether a writ of mandamus can be issued to compel an administrative or utility authority to entertain complaints regarding private monetary fraud or non-registration of criminal offenses?
(b) Whether a writ petition is maintainable when statutory criminal machinery has not been invoked?

Headnotes

A. Criminal/Misc. Law – Mandamus for Investigation - The petitioner alleged that three cheques belonging to his firm (M/S Ananta Enterprises) were lost. On 30.12.2025, he received a bank SMS stating that Cheque No. 115323 (amounting to ₹80,000) was debited in favour of the Executive Engineer, Electric Store Division, Purvanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam, Prayagraj. Upon inquiry, the Executive Engineer revealed that the cheque was submitted by Respondent No. 5 (Mrs. Urmila Gupta / Fusion Wellness Centre) to clear her electricity dues. The petitioner submitted complaints on the Chief Minister's Portal alleging theft, fraud, and collusion between electricity officials and Respondent No. 5 under the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 (B.N.S.). Due to non-action on his portal complaints, the petitioner approached the High Court seeking a writ of mandamus directing the Executive Engineer to decide his complaints.

B. Mandamus is not a writ of right and is not granted as a matter of course (ex debito justitiae). Its grant or refusal is at the discretion of the court. A court may refuse mandamus unless it is shown that there is a clear legal right of the applicant or statutory duty of the respondent and there is no alternative remedy available to the applicant. (Para 10)

Mandamus is an action or judicial proceeding of a civil nature extraordinary in the sense that it can be maintained only when there is no other adequate remedy, prerogative in its character to the extent that the issue is discretionary, to enforce only clear legal rights, and to compel courts to take jurisdiction or proceed in the exercise of their jurisdiction, or to compel corporations, public and private, and public boards, commissions, or officers, to exercise their jurisdiction or discretion and to perform ministerial duties, which duties result from an office, trust, or station, and are clearly and peremptorily enjoined by law as absolute and official. It is intended to supply deficiency in law. It can only be issued as a last resort, where the court is satisfied that without its aid there would be failure of justice. (Para 9)

C. The discretion of the court...is not arbitrary and it must be exercised fairly, reasonably and on sound and well established legal principles. The court, in the exercise of discretion, must take into account wide variety of circumstances. It must consider the facts of the case, the exigency which calls for the exercise of discretion, the consequences of granting or refusing the writ, the nature and extent of injury likely to ensue by the grant or refusal of the writ, etc. In short, courts discretion must be governed by considerations of public policy, public interest and public good. (Para 11, 12)

D. There must be a judicially enforceable right for the enforcement of which a mandamus will lie. The legal right to enforce the performance of a duty must be in the applicant himself. In general, therefore, the Court will only enforce the performance of statutory duties by public bodies on application of a person who can show that he has himself a legal right to insist on such performance. The existence of a right is the foundation of the jurisdiction of a Court to issue a writ of Mandamus. Mandamus is the most valuable and essential remedy in the Administrative Justice resorted to supply want of some appropriate ordinary remedy. There must be a legal right and corresponding legal duty. The duty sought to be enforced must be of a public character and must emanate from the Constitution, a statute, statutory rules, or the common law. (Para 14, 15, 19, 20)

E. Writ of mandamus must serve a practical and enforceable purpose, and the Court does not issue futile or ineffective writs. (Para 20)

The fabric of complaint submitted by petitioner on Chief Minister's portal clearly exhibits that he is aggrieved by non-registration of criminal case. The petitioner has got efficacious remedy of invoking statutory safeguards for redressal of his grievance for registration of criminal case particularly statutory scheme framed u/Chapter XIII of B.N.S.S., 2023 (Information to the police and their powers to investigate) which includes even default remedy of refusal on the part of an officer in-charge of a police station to record the information and investigate. (Para 21)

The petitioner utterly failed to respond that how the scheme contained in B.N.S.S. for registration of criminal case is not efficacious one, though the statutory remedy lies therein. Petitioner also failed to demonstrate any indefeasible right and corresponding obligation fastened by law upon the authorities concerned in the nature of public duty. (Para 22, 23)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Amit Kumar Pandey
For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Narendra Kumar Tiwari

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Girijesh Kumar Tripathi, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondent no. 1 to 3 and Sri Rakesh Kumar Mishra, Advocate holding brief of Sri Narendra Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for respondent no.4.

2. The instant writ petition has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India with the following prayer:

"a) TO ISSUE a writ order or direction to the respondents to decide the complaint letter via the Chief Minister's Portal Complaint No. 40017526002646 dated 12.01.2026 and Complaint No. 40017526008467 dated 07.02.2026 pending before the respondent no. 4 (Executive Engineer), Department of Electricity, Myohall, Prayagraj within stipulated time."

3. Facts in brief are being recapitulated as under:

(i) The Petitioner claims that cheques bearing numbers 115323, 115324 and 115325 belonging to his firm M/S Ananta Enterprises were lost. Apprehending their misuse, the petitioner allegedly submitted a complaint at Police Station Colonelganj, Prayagraj on 05.11.2025 but the same remained of no avail. Thereafter the petitioner received an SMS on 30.12.2025 from his Bank informing him that a cheque bearing number 115323 for an amount of Rs.80,000/- had been processed for encashment in favour of the Executive Engineer, Electric Store Division Purvanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam, Myohall, Prayagraj (4th respondent) towards payment of electricity dues.

(ii) Immediately on 31.12.2025, the petitioner approached the 4th respondent, and informed him that the cheque had been stolen and misused for clearing of someone else's electricity dues. In turn, the 4th respondent informed that the cheque in question had been deposited by a certain Fusion Wellness Centre having consumer I.D. number 2711948715 belonging to Mrs. Urmila Gupta (5th respondent).

4. The contention raised by petitioner is that he had never issued the said cheques in favour of 5th respondent who by misusing the cheques defrauded the petitioner. It has further been submitted that the theft and fraudulent use of cheque constitutes offences under Sections 316(2), 318(4), 336(3), 338, 340(2), 61(2) of B.N.S., 2023 corresponding to erstwhile Sections 406, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 120-B of IPC.

5. When the 4th respondent failed to take any action on the petitioner's complaint, he was constrained to file a criminal complaint for the redressal of his grievance on the Chief Minister portal.

6. The petitioner has further alleged that the officials of Electricity Department are acting in collusion with respondent no.5 and on account of such collusion no action has been taken on the petitioner's complaint.

7. On being confronted with respect to the law for the issue of a writ of mandamus, the learned counsel for the petitioner, utterly failed to point out the statutory or legal right of the petitioner which had been infringed and in what manner the respondents was obliged to redress the petitioner's complaint on administrative side.

8. It is settled law that before an applicant could ask for a writ of mandamus or an order in the nature of mandamus, he has to satisfy the Court that the following conditions are fulfilled.

(a) The applicant has a legal right;

(b) The opposite party has a legal duty;

(c) The application is made in good faith;

(d) The applicant has no other alternative remedy; and

(e) The opposite party has refused relief at least due to inaction i.e. demand and refusal.

9. In the case of Hardik Pravin Kumar Shah Vs. Union of India, 2021 Supreme(Online)(Guj) 3585, the Gujarat High Court, speaking through Hon□ble Mr. Justice J.B. Pardiwala (as His Lordship, then was), held that mandamus is an action or judicial proceeding of a civil nature extraordinary in the sense that it can be maintained only when there is no other adequate remedy, prerogative in its character to the extent that the issue is discretionary, to enforce only clear legal rights, and to compel courts to take jurisdiction or proceed in the exercise of their jurisdiction, or to compel corporations, public and private, and public boards, commissions, or officers, to exercise their jurisdiction or discretion and to perform ministerial duties, which duties result from an office, trust, or station, and are clearly and peremptorily enjoined by law as absolute and official. It is intended to supply deficiency in law. It can only be issued as a last resort, where the court is satisfied that without its aid there would be failure of justice.

10. Mandamus is not a writ of right and is not granted as a matter of course (ex debito justitiae). Its grant or refusal is at the discretion of the court. A court may refuse mandamus unless it is shown that there is a clear legal right of the applicant or statutory duty of the respondent and there is no alternative remedy available to the applicant. [See: Union of India v. S.B. Vohra, (2004) 2 SCC 150].

11. The discretion of the court, however, is not arbitrary and it must be exercised fairly, reasonably and on sound and well established legal principles.

12. The court, in the exercise of discretion, must take into account wide variety of circumstances. It must consider the facts of the case, the exigency which calls for the exercise of discretion, the consequences of granting or refusing the writ, the nature and extent of injury likely to ensue by the grant or refusal of the writ, etc. In short, courts discretion must be governed by considerations of public policy, public interest and public good.

13. In the decision reported in (2008) 2 SCC 280, Oriental Bank of Commerce v. Sunder Lal Jain, in paragraphs 11 and 12, the Supreme Court held thus:

"11. The principles on which a writ of mandamus can be issued have been stated as under in The Law of Extraordinary Legal Remedies by F.G. Ferris and F.G. Ferris, Jr.:

.Mandamus, at common law, is a highly prerogative writ, usually issuing out of the highest court of general jurisdiction, in the name of the sovereignty, directed to any natural person, corporation or inferior court within the jurisdiction, requiring them to do some particular thing therein specified, and which appertains to their office or duty. Generally speaking, it may be said that mandamus is a summary writ, issuing from the proper court, commanding the official or board to which it is addressed to perform some specific legal duty to which the party applying for the writ is entitled of legal right to have performed.

Mandamus is, subject to the exercise of a sound judicial discretion, the appropriate remedy to enforce a plain, positive, specific and ministerial duty presently existing and imposed by law upon officers and others who refuse or neglect to perform such duty, when there is no other adequate and specific legal remedy and without which there would be a failure of justice. The chief function of the writ is to compel the performance of public duties prescribed by statute, and to keep subordinate and inferior bodies and tribunals exercising public functions within their jurisdictions. It is not necessary, however, that the duty be imposed by statute; mandamus lies as well for the enforcement of a common law duty.

Mandamus is not a writ of right. Its issuance unquestionably lies in the sound judicial discretion of the court, subject always to the well settled principles which have been established by the courts. An action in mandamus is not governed by the principles of ordinary litigation where the matters alleged on one side and not denied on the other are taken as true, and judgment pronounced thereon as of course. While mandamus is classed as a legal remedy, its issuance is largely controlled by equitable principles. Before granting the writ the court may, and should, look to the larger public interest which may be concerned an interest which private litigants are apt to overlook when striving for private ends. The court C/SCA/13653/2020 JUDGMENT should act in view of all the existing facts, and with due regard to the consequences which will result. It is in every case a discretion dependent upon all the surrounding facts and circumstances.

The correct rule is that mandamus will not lie where the duty is clearly discretionary and the party upon whom the duty rests has exercised his discretion reasonably and within his jurisdiction, that is, upon facts sufficient to support his action.

12. These very principles have been adopted in our country. In Bihar Eastern Gangetic Fishermen Coop. Society Ltd. v. Sipahi Singh after referring to the earlier decisions in Lekhraj Sathramdas Lalvani v. N.M. Shah, Rai Shivendra Bahadur (Dr.) v. Nalanda College and Umakant Saran (Dr.) v. State of Bihar this Court observed as follows in para 15 of the Reports (SCC): (Sipahi Singh case, SCC pp. 152 53) "15. ... There is abundant authority in favour of the proposition that a writ of mandamus can be granted only in a case where there is a statutory duty imposed upon the officer concerned and there is a failure on the part of that officer to discharge the statutory obligation. The chief function of a writ is to compel performance of public duties prescribed by statute and to keep subordinate tribunals and officers exercising public functions within the limit of their jurisdiction. It follows, therefore, that in order that mandamus may issue to compel the authorities to do something, it must be shown that there is a statute which imposes a legal duty and the aggrieved party has a legal right under the statute to enforce its performance.... In the instant case, it has not been shown by Respondent 1 that there is any statute or rule having the force of law which casts a duty on Respondents 2 to 4 which they failed to perform. All that is sought to be enforced is an obligation flowing from a contract which, as already indicated, is also not binding and enforceable. Accordingly, we are clearly of the opinion that Respondent 1 was not entitled to apply for grant of a writ of mandamus under Article 226 the Constitution and the High Court was not competent to issue the same.

Therefore, in order that a writ of mandamus may be issued, there must be a legal right with the party asking for the writ to compel the performance of some statutory duty cast upon the authorities....."

14. Mandamus is the most valuable and essential remedy in the Administrative Justice resorted to supply want of some appropriate ordinary remedy. The functions of the writ court is to compel the performance of public duty, for which, the person approaching the writ court , has a clear, specific and unequivocal, constitutional or statutory or legal right to the relief sought and a failure on the part of those who are bound to perform certain duties and functions, as laid down by the legislature or directions issued for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of an enactment or of any delegated or subordinate legislation. There must be a legal right and corresponding legal duty.

15. In State of Kerala v. A.Lakshmi Kutty, reported in 1986 (4) SCC 632, the Supreme Court held that a Writ of Mandamus is not a writ of course or a writ of right but is, as a rule, discretionary. There must be a judicially enforceable right for the enforcement of which a mandamus will lie. The legal right to enforce the performance of a duty must be in the applicant himself. In general, therefore, the Court will only enforce the performance of statutory duties by public bodies on application of a person who can show that he has himself a legal right to insist on such performance. The existence of a right is the foundation of the jurisdiction of a Court to issue a writ of Mandamus.

16. When a Writ of Mandamus can be issued, has been summarised in Corpus Juris Secundum, as follows:

"Mandamus may issue to compel the person or official in whom a discretionary duty is lodged to proceed to exercise such discretion, but unless there is peremptory statutory direction that the duty shall be performed mandamus will not lie to control or review the exercise of the discretion of any board, tribunal or officer, when the act complained of is either judicial or quasi judicial unless it clearly appears that there has been an abuse of discretion on the part of such Court, board, tribunal or officer, and in accordance with this rule mandamus may not be invoked to compel the matter of discretion to be exercised in any particular way. This principle applies with full force and effect, however, clearly it may be made to appear what the decision ought to be, or even though its conclusion be disputable or, however, erroneous the conclusion reached may be, and although there may be no other method of review or correction provided by law. The discretion must be exercised according to the established rule where the action complained has been arbitrary or capricious, or based on personal, selfish or fraudulent motives, or on false information, or on total lack of authority to act, or where it amounts to an evasion of positive duty, or there has been a refusal to consider pertinent evidence, hear the parties where so required, or to entertain any proper question concerning the exercise of the discretion, or where the exercise of the discretion is in a manner entirely futile and known by the officer to be so and there are other methods which it adopted, would be effective." (emphasis supplied)"

17. The Supreme Court in case of Mr. R.S. Madireddy and another etc. Vs. Union of India and others etc., 2024 INSC 425, while delineating the scope for the issue of a writ of mandamus under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has reiterated that the existence of an enforceable legal right in the petitioner and the corresponding public or statutory duty cast upon the respondent are sine qua non for issuance of such a writ.

18. The Supreme Court Rikhab Chand Jain Vs. Union of India and others, 2025 INSC 1337 has reiterated the settled principles governing the exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution of India and has emphasized that such jurisdiction is discretionary in nature and ordinarily ought not to be exercised wherein efficacious statutory remedy is available, except in exceptional circumstances recognized in law.

19. A prerogative writ, like, a Mandamus cannot be demanded ex debito justiatiae, but it can be issued by the court in its discretion, for which, it must be shown that, there is a non discretionary legal duty upon the authority against whom, the relief is sought and that the person approaching the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, has to prove that he has a legal right to be enforced against the authority, for the failure of performance of a legal or statutory duty, by the authority against whom, the relief is sought.

20. The principles governing the issuance of a writ of mandamus may be summarised as follows:

(i) The petitioner must establish the existence of a clear and enforceable legal right to compel the respondent to do or to abstain from doing something.

(ii) There must be a corresponding legal obligation or public duty cast upon the respondent, the performance of which the petitioner is entitled to demand.

(iii) The duty sought to be enforced must be of a public character and must emanate from the Constitution, a statute, statutory rules, or the common law.

(iv) The remedy of mandamus is neither intended to supplant the ordinary remedies available before a competent civil court, nor does it deprive the respondent of any lawful defence available in such proceedings.

(v) The power to issue a writ of mandamus is discretionary. Ordinarily, where an equally efficacious alternative remedy is available, it is a sound exercise of judicial discretion to decline the writ and relegate the petitioner to the ordinary remedy prescribed by law.

(vi) A writ of mandamus is neither a writ of right nor one issued as a matter of course. Its grant depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case and is governed by the judicial discretion of the Court.

(vii) While exercising jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court does not function as a court of appeal. It does not reassess factual matters or substitute its own opinion for that of the statutory authority entrusted with the decision-making process. The writ is ordinarily issued only where the petitioner demonstrates a direct and substantial infringement, or an imminent threat of infringement, of a legal or fundamental right.

(viii) A writ of mandamus is not maintainable for the resolution of purely private disputes or for the enforcement of private rights unconnected with a public duty.

(ix) No writ of mandamus can be issued against His excellency the President of India or the Governor of a State in view of the constitutional immunity conferred upon them.

(x) Lastly, the Court will not issue a writ of mandamus where compliance with its directions is impossible or unlikely. A writ of mandamus must serve a practical and enforceable purpose, and the Court does not issue futile or ineffective writs.

21. The fabric of complaint submitted by petitioner on Chief Minister□s portal clearly exhibits that he is aggrieved by non-registration of criminal case. The petitioner has got efficacious remedy of invoking statutory safeguards for redressal of his grievance for registration of criminal case particularly statutory scheme framed under Chapter XIII of B.N.S.S., 2023 (Information to the police and their powers to investigate) which includes even default remedy of refusal on the part of an officer in-charge of a police station to record the information and investigate.

22. The petitioner utterly failed to respond that how the scheme contained in B.N.S.S. for registration of criminal case is not efficacious one, though the statutory remedy lies therein.

23. On close scrutiny and examination of factual matrix of this case, it comes out that petitioner utterly failed to demonstrate any indefeasible right and corresponding obligation fastened by law upon the authorities concerned in the nature of public duty. Thus, the present writ petition fails and is accordingly, dismissed.

24. No order as to costs.

25. However, the liberty would rest with the petitioner to avail his statutory remedies including one provided under Chapter XIII of B.N.S.S., 2023, if so advised.

Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether an Electrohomeopathy/Community Health Certificate holder can practice Allopathy?
(b) Whether sealing a non-compliant clinic violates fundamental rights under Article 19(1)(g)?

Headnotes

A. Constitutional Law - The petitioner claimed eligibility to practice modern scientific medicine based on a Vocational Certificate Code No. 802 (Community Health) obtained in 2005 from the National Institute of Open Schooling (NIOS), along with a diploma/certificate in Electrohomeopathy. On 01.05.2025, the CMO, Etah, issued a show cause notice and sealed the petitioner's clinic due to unauthorized practice and clinical non-compliance.

The petitioner previously filed Writ-C No. 41953 of 2024, which was disposed of on 08.01.2026 directing the CMO, Etah, to consider the petitioner's objections and decide the matter by a reasoned order. The CMO, Etah, rejected the petitioner's representation and refused to unseal the clinic on multiple grounds:

- Practicing allopathy without being registered with the CMO office as required by G.O. dated 16.09.2021.
- Electrohomeopathy certificate holders are strictly barred from practicing modern allopathic medicine.
- Failure to meet clinical establishment standards (non-compliance with the Clinical Establishments Act, 2010).
- Lack of mandatory Bio-Medical Waste Management systems, Fire NOC, and infection control measures.

B. A person, who does not have knowledge of a particular system of medicine but practices in that system is a quack and a mere pretender of medical knowledge or skill or to put it differently, can be maximum termed a charlatan. (Para 11)

The petitioner though in possession of a certificate in electrohomeopathy is not thereby entitled to practice modern medicine, particularly the allopathic system. The seal on the petitioner's clinic has been declined to be removed for the reason that it does not meet the standards to operate a hospital/clinic, and even unqualified doctors were found to be practicing modern medicine on the premises of the hospital in question. (Para 10)

C. A person can practice in allopathic system of medicine in State or in the country only if he possesses a recognized medical qualification. Permitting a person, who does not possess the recognized medical qualification in the allopathic medicine would be in direct conflict with the Statute governing the field. The petitioner's clinic is admittedly not registered with the office of CMO, which is a sine qua non for practicing modern medicine and treating patients. (Para 12, 13)

D. The right to practice a profession u/Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India is not an absolute right and remains subject to reasonable restrictions that the State may impose in the interest of the general public u/Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India. Regulatory measures ensure that only qualified and registered persons practice medicine and the clinical establishment meet prescribed standards. Such restrictions are legitimate and proportionate restriction in the interest of public health and cannot be said to offend Article 19(1) (g). (Para 14)

Petitioner is not entitled to practice modern medicine (allopathy) on the strength of his electrohomeopathy certificate. More so, his clinic/hospital also failed to meet the standards prescribed by various GOs as well as the NCISM Act, 2020. (Para 15)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Ashok Kumar Singh, Pratibha Singh
For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Ashok Kumar Singh, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Akhilesh Kumar Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos.1 to 5.

2. The writ petition assails the order dated 16.02.2026 passed by fourth respondent/Chief Medical Officer, Etah, District Etah, whereby the hospital of the petitioner has been sealed in compliance of letter no.1670/(1)/03.06.2024/ issued by the Principal Secretary, Government of U.P. Further, the petitioner has prayed for the issue of a writ in the nature of mandamus commanding State authorities to permit the petitioner to operate his Clinic and practice modern medicine.

3. Facts in brief are being delineated as under:

(i) The petitioner claims that he has obtained Vocational Certificate Code No.802 (Community Health) in the year 2005 from the National Institute of Open Schooling and based on said certificate is eligible to practice modern scientific medicine.

(ii) The petitioner was put under notice on 26.06.2019 by the Chief Medical Officer, Etah to submit his degrees and educational record entitling him to practice medicine to which the petitioner replied on 03.07.2019. Thereafter, he again submitted a detailed stand on 27.12.2024, annexing all his academic testimonials with a request to withdraw the notice.

(iii) The petitioner was lastly served with a show cause notice dated 01.05.2025 for the closure of his Clinic, which impelled the petitioner to knock the doors of this Court by virtue of Writ-C No.41953 of 2024 (Santosh Kumar Sharma Vs. State of U.P.). The said writ petition was disposed off on 08.01.2026 with following order:

"1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The petitioner has been issued show cause notice dated 01.05.2025 for certain deficiency found in the clinic of the petitioner and also sealed the clinic.

3. It appears from the show cause notice that three days' time has been granted to the petitioner to submit documents as sought for.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has contended that several replies to the show cause notice have been given by the petitioner, but the competent authority has not yet considered the same.

5. Learned Standing Counsel would submit that no useful purpose would be served in keeping the writ petition pending and appropriate direction may be issued to the competent authority to consider the grievance of the petitioner.

6. In view of the aforesaid facts, we dispose off the writ petition permitting the petitioner to file a detailed objection/representation against the show cause notice dated 01.05.2025 before the respondent no.4-Chief Medical Officer, Etah within a period of two weeks from today. On filing such objection enclosing earlier objections filed against the said show cause notice, the respondent No.4 is directed to decide the objection of the petitioner against the show cause notice within a period of one month from the date he receives the objection of the petitioner, after giving due notice and opportunity of hearing and supplying all materials to be relied upon by the authority concerned against the petitioner."

(iv) The petitioner submitted an exhaustive representation in compliance of order dated 08.01.2024 along with relevant documents which he relied upon, to show his authority to practice medicine, but his representation could not find favour with the respondents.

(v) The petitioner's representation has been rejected vide order dated 16.02.2026 passed by respondent no.4 observing inter-alia that petitioner is practicing and treating patient with allopathic medicines, but is not entitled to practice aforesaid stream of medicine without being registered in the office of the Chief Medical Officer as warranted by Government Order No.2374/5-2001 dated 16.09.2021. It was also remarked that no registration/operation of Clinic can be permitted for a practitioner holding a degree in 'Electrohomeopathy'.

(vi) It has further been mentioned that the holder of a certificate/diploma in Electrohomeopathy cannot be allowed to practice allopathic medicine being prohibited by Government Orders no. Anubhag-1, Sankhya-1297/71- Ayush-2016 Davlu-283/293/2014, Lucknow dated 03.08.2016 and Uttar Pradesh Chikisa Anubhag-6, Sankhya-726/Panch-6-2023 Lucknow dated 13.04.2023.

Further, the clinic set up by the petitioner does not meet the standards set up by Manak Dainik Sthapan (Registrikaran aur Viniyaman), Adhiniyam, 2010, Uttar Pradesh Shashan, Chikitsa Anubhag-6, Sankhya-2374/panch-5-2021 Lucknow dated 16.09.2021 and Uttar Pradesh Shashan Ayush Anubhag-1, Sankhya-1297/71-Ayush-1-2016-davlu-283/2014, Lucknow dated 03.08.2016.

(vii) Lastly, the so called clinic/hospital does not have a biomedical waste management system and even a fire NOC was not found. The hospital/clinic was not found observing infection prevention and control system, which is non-compliance with mandatory provisions to run a clinic/hospital.

(viii) Since the petitioner could not show any valid qualification to practice allopathic medicine or authority to operate a clinic, the registration of the petitioner to practice allopathic medicine was not found valid and, consequently, the seal on his hospital was not removed. The criminal law has also been set in motion and the representation of the petitioner rejected.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner strenuously urged that adequate opportunity of hearing was not afforded before passing order under challenge. It is further contended that the complaint moved by respondent no.6 was actuated by sheer vengeance, and the petitioner having long experience in the field of medicine, ought not have been deprived of by sealing his clinic/hospital.

5. It was further submitted that right to practice a profession, including medicine, is an integral part of Article 19(1) (g) of the Constitution of India and impugned order being exfacie bad warrants interference.

6. Refuting the submissions of the learned Counsel for the petitioner, the learned Standing Counsel submitted that the certificate of electrohomeopathy can by no stretch of imagination confer authority upon the petitioner to practice modern medicine, and order passed by 4th respondent is valid in the eyes of law.

7. The health of public at large is the primary responsibility of the State Government. As such, any quack cannot be permitted to play with the health of the general public. The practice of medicine is regulated by the Statutes and Government Orders, which occupy the field and prescribe standards. It is the State's duty to protect public health from unqualified practitioners.

8. It is well settled that a practitioner registered under one system of medicine cannot transgress and practice another system, particularly 'allopathy' without requisite qualification and registration, and that doing so amounts to negligence per se exposing both the practitioner and the public to grave risk (see Poonam Verma Vs. Ashwin Patel (1996) 40 SCC 332). Likewise, the Supreme Court has held that a practitioner of Indian system of medicine is not entitled to prescribe allopathic drugs unless expressly permitted by the governing statute or rules framed thereunder (see Dr. Mukhtar Chand Vs. State of Punjab (1998) 7 Scc 579).

9. The petitioner's certificate in electrohomeopathy by no stretch of imagination can be said to be a valid degree/diploma entitling him to practice modern medicine (allopath).

10. Having considered the rival submissions advanced by parties and perused the record, it comes out that the petitioner though in possession of a certificate in electrohomeopathy is not thereby entitled to practice modern medicine, particularly the allopathic system. The seal on the petitioner's clinic has been declined to be removed for the reason that it does not meet the standards to operate a hospital/clinic, and even unqualified doctors were found to be practicing modern medicine on the premises of the hospital in question.

11. A person, who does not have knowledge of a particular system of medicine but practices in that system is a quack and a mere pretender of medical knowledge or skill or to put it differently, can be maximum termed a charlatan.

12. A person can practice in allopathic system of medicine in State or in the country only if he possess a recognized medical qualification. Permitting a person, who does not possess the recognized medical qualification in the allopathic medicine would be in direct conflict with the Statute governing the field. In the case of Dr. Mukhtar Chand (supra) the Supreme Court has held:-

"47. A harmonious reading of Section 15 of 1956 Act and Section 17 of 1970 Act leads to the conclusion that there is no scope for a person enrolled on the State Register of Indian medicine or Central Register of Indian Medicine to practise modern scientific medicine in any of its branches unless that person is also enrolled on a State Medical Register within the meaning of 1956 Act.

48. The right to practise modern scientific medicine or Indian system of medicine cannot be based on the provisions of the Drugs Rules and declaration made thereunder by State Governments. Indeed, Ms. Indira Jaising has also submitted that the right to practise a system of medicine is derived from the Act under which a medical practitioner is registered. But she has strenuously argued that the right which the holders of degree in integrated courses of Indian medicine are claiming is to have their prescription of allopathic medicine, honored by a pharmacist or the chemist under the Pharmacy Act and the Drugs Act. This argument is too technical to be acceded to because prescribing a drug is a concomitant of the right to practise a system of medicine. Therefore, in a broader sense the right to prescribe drugs of a system of medicine would be synonymous with the right to practise that system of medicine. In that sense, the right to prescribe allopathic drug cannot be wholly divorced from the claim to practice allopathic medicine."

13. The petitioner's clinic is admittedly not registered with the office of Chief Medical Officer, which is a sine qua non for practicing modern medicine and treating patients.

14. The right to practice a profession under Article 19(1) (g) of the Constitution of India is not an absolute right and remains subject to reasonable restrictions that the State may impose in the interest of the general public under Article 19(1) (g) of the Constitution of India (see Chintaman Rao Vs. State of M.P., AIR 1951 SC 118). Regulatory measures ensure that only qualified and registered persons practice medicine and the clinical establishment meet prescribed standards. Such restrictions are legitimate and proportionate restriction in the interest of public health and cannot be said to offend Article 19(1) (g) of the Constitution of India (see State of Gujarat Vs. Mirzapur Moti Kureshi Kassab Jamat, (2005) 8 SCC 534).

15. In view of the aforesaid factual matrix and the law, the inescapable conclusion is that the petitioner is not entitled to practice modern medicine (allopathy) on the strength of his electrohomeopathy certificate. More so, his clinic/hospital also failed to meet the standards prescribed by various Government Orders as well as the National Commission for Indian System of Medicine (NCISM) Act, 2020. This Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India cannot substitute its own wisdom and findings for those of competent expert authorities. The petitioner is not entitled to practice modern medicine. Accordingly, the writ petition fails and is hereby dismissed.

16. No order as to cost.

Criminal Appeal No. 52748 of 2016

Smt. Prema Devi ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether a Sub-Registrar, Assistant Inspector General of Registration, or any administrative authority under the Registration Act, 1908 has the legal authority to cancel or annul a sale deed after it has been duly registered?
(b) Whether administrative authorities can conduct inquiries into allegations of fraud, impersonation, or forgery to cancel a registered instrument?
(c) Whether an administrative cancellation order passed under the U.P. GO dated 13.08.2013 remains valid if the order was passed prior to the High Court subsequently quashing the underlying G.O.?

Headnotes:

A. Property Law – On 14.07.2016, one Jang Bahadur filed a complaint alleging that his brother, Firangi Prasad, impersonated him to illegally sell his land (situated at villages Rakauli, Jharkata, Sodhaveer, and Kohna, Gopalpur, District Gorakhpur) to Firangi's wife, Smt. Prema Devi, via a registered sale deed dated 12.07.2016. Based on an inquiry under the U.P. GO dated 13.08.2013, the Assistant Inspector General of Registration, Gorakhpur, cancelled the sale deed on 24.09.2016 on grounds of fraud and impersonation. Prema Devi challenged the cancellation order before the High Court on the ground that registering authorities have no power/jurisdiction under the Registration Act, 1908 to cancel a registered document.

B. A duly registered sale deed under the Act cannot be set aside by registering authority or by any authority invoking administrative powers, if the registration is questioned even on the count of impersonation/fraud. (Para 9)

C. The GO dated 13.8.2013 confers unfettered and arbitrary powers upon the Registering Authority in violation of the express provisions of the Registration Act and such GO cannot be invoked to annul a document. The GO dated 13.8.2013 is not only arbitrary but is wholly without jurisdiction and cannot be sustained. GO dated 13.08.2013 has been quashed as being wholly without jurisdiction on the count that no enquiry could be initiated by the authority or the document could have been annulled by the authority. (Para 10)
Once the law is settled then there can be no other view possible in the matter regarding the competence of the authorities to annul the duly registered sale-deed. (Para 11)

D. Once the GO has been set aside then any action which may have been taken by any authority cannot survive. Respondents' submission that the order impugned has been passed prior to the quashing of the GO by this Court is wholly misconceived and cannot be appreciated. (Para 12)

The order dated 24.09.2016 passed by the Assistant Inspector General of Registration, Gorakhpur is quashed. (Para 13)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Ashwani Kumar Mishra
For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Hari Pratap Gupta, Ramesh Chandra Tiwari

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Saran, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashwani Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the respondent nos.1 and 2 and Sri Ramesh Chandra Tiwari, learned counsel for the respondent nos.3 to 5.

2. The instant petition has been preferred with the following relief:

"I. Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of certiorari for quashing the impugned order dated 24.09.2016 passed by the Assistant Insptector General of Registration, Gorakhpur."

3. The brief facts leading to the filing of the petitions are as follows:

The complaint was made by one Jang Bahadur @ Jangi @ Jangi Prasad @ Jagdish before respondent no.2 on 14.07.2016 alleging that the registered sale deed dated 12.07.2026 bearing Registration No.2452/2016 alleging that his real brother Firangi Prasad impersonated complainant/Jang Bahadur has sold his land situate at villages Rakauli, Jharkata, Sodhaveer and Kohna, Gopalpur, District Gorakhpur to how own wife Prema Devi and as the said sale deed has been executed by playing fraud, therefore, the same may be cancelled.

4. On the said complaint vide order dated 14.07.2016 the Deputy Registrar, Gola, Gorakhpur was directed to submit a report and also other executants and the marginal witness and the deed writer were also informed to submit proof of identity. Thereafter on the basis of an enquiry and exercising the provisions of the Government Order dated 13.08.2013 bearing no.क0नि0-07-684/11-2013-700(446)/13, the respondent no.2/Assistant Inspector General of Registration, Gorakhpur cancelled the sale deed dated 12.07.2016 being Registration No.2452 of 2016 registered at the office of Sub-Registrar, Gola Janpad, Gorakhpur.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the registering authority under the Registration Act, 1908 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') after registration of sale-deed becomes functus officio and ceases to have any jurisdiction or authority and neither the Sub-Registrar nor any superior officer has authority to cancel a duly registered sale-deed. He further submitted that the Full Bench of this Court inRe:Smt. Kusum Lata v. State of U.P.1 has held that a duly registered sale-deed under the Act cannot be cancelled by an envoking administrative power and it is only the civil court of competent jurisdiction which can hold a duly registered document as null and void. He has further submitted that even the Government Order dated 13.08.2013 has been quashed by this Court inRe: Krishna Kumar Saxena and another v. State of U.P. and 9 Others2.

6. Learned counsel for the respondents has submitted that the order dated 24.09.2016 passed by the respondent no.2 is wholly just and legal and call for no interference, as the same is on the basis of a fact finding enquiry. He has further submitted that at the relevant time of passing the order, the Government Order dated 13.08.2013 was in existence and any quashing of the Government Order at a subsequent stage would not nullify its effect. He has further made a statement at bar that the contesting respondent are pursuing appropriate civil remedies as well.

7. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

8. The sole issue for consideration before this Court is as to whether the respondent no.2 was justified in cancelling the duly registered sale-deed.

9. There is no dispute about the settled legal position with respect to the judgment rendered inRe: Smt. Kusum Lata (supra) that a duly registered saldeed under the Act cannot be set aside by registering authority or by any authority invoking administrative powers, if the registration is questioned even on the count of impersonation/fraud. The relevant paragraphs of the judgment are reproduced hereunder:

"(1) - This Larger Bench has been constituted under the orders of Hon'ble the Chief Justice on basis of the order dated 22.05.2017 passed in Writ-C No. 2973 of 2016. In the case aforesaid, a Division Bench of this Court arrived at the conclusion that the view taken in the case of Radhey Shyam Arora Versus State of U.P. and 6 others (Writ-C No. 63439 of 2013), decided on 20.11.2013 is in conflict with a view taken in Raj Kumari Versus State of U.P. and others (Misc. Bench No. 2562 of 2014), decided on 28.03.2014 and looking to the divergent views taken by two Division Benches matter requires consideration by a Larger Bench. The Division Bench under the order dated 22.05.2017 referred following questions for adjudication by Larger Bench:-

"(a). Whether after a sale deed has been registered, the Assistant Registrar has any authority of law to cancel the registered sale deed under the provisions of the Registration Act, 1908 even if allegation of impersonation/fraud are made?

(b). Whether the allegations of fraud are essentially, an allegation of fact which need examination of oral or documentary evidence and can be adjudicated on the basis of evidence to be led by the parties before competent civil court?

(c). Whether the judgment in the case of Raj Kumari (supra) or the judgment in the case of Radhey Shyam Arora (supra) lays down the correct law?....."

"(10)- The reference is answered in the terms that a sale deed registered under the Act, 1908 cannot be cancelled or set aside by registering authority or by any authority invoking administrative powers, if the registration is questioned even on the count of impersonation/ fraud."

10. Further it is also not in dispute that this Court inRe: Krishna Kumar Saxena and another (supra) has also quashed the Government Order dated 13.08.2013 as being wholly without jurisdiction on the count that no enquiry could be initiated by the authority or the document could have been anulled by the authority. The relevant paragraphs are extracted hereunder:

"(30)- The Government Order dated 13.8.2013 confers unfettered and arbitrary powers upon the Registering Authority in violation of the express provisions of the Registration Act and such Government Order cannot be invoked to annual a document. The Government Order dated 13.8.2013 is not only arbitrary but is wholly without jurisdiction and cannot be sustained.

(33)- In the light of the aforesaid, we find that the respondent nos. 4 to 10 had no locus standi to question the veracity of the sale deed. No enquiry could have been initiated nor the authority could have annulled the document. Consequently, the impugned orders dated 23.9.2016 and 18.10.2016 passed by Assistant Inspector General (Registration/Stamp), Rampur being without jurisdiction cannot be sustained and are hereby quashed. The Government Order dated 13.8.2013 is also quashed."

11. Further this Court finds that once the law is settled then there can be no other view possible in the matter regarding the competence of the authorities to annul the duly registered sale-deed.

12. Insofar as the submission of learned counsel for the respondents that the order impugned has been passed prior to the quashing of the Government order by this Court is wholly misconceived and cannot be appreciated. Once the Government order has been set aside then any action which may have been taken by any authority cannot survive.

13. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed, the order dated 24.09.2016 passed by the Assistant Inspector General of Registration, Gorakhpur is quashed.

14. No order as to cost.

15. It is however open for the respondents to seek appropriate civil remedies available to him under law and the same shall be decided on merits without being influenced by this judgment.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the Information Commission can impose a penalty u/s 20(1) without forming an objective opinion based on evidence and without giving the PIO an opportunity to show reasonable cause?
(b) Whether the imposition of a monetary penalty under the RTI Act constitutes an adverse civil consequence requiring strict adherence to natural justice?

Headnotes

A. Right to Information Law - Service Law – Right to Information Act, 2005: Section 20(1); Constitution of India: Article 14, 21 - Respondent No. 2 submitted an RTI application seeking certain information. The petitioner, serving as a Block Education Officer and designated Public Information Officer (PIO), failed to supply the information within the statutory 30-day timeline due to communication lapses by subordinate staff. On 06.09.2023, the State Information Commission, U.P. (Respondent No. 1) passed an ex-parte order in Complaint Case No. S-6/275/C/2023 imposing a penalty of ₹25,000/- on the petitioner u/s 20(1) of the RTI Act, 2005. The petitioner was neither served prior notice nor granted an opportunity to submit an explanation.

On 12.01.2024, the petitioner supplied the required information to the applicant and filed a review petition before the SIC explaining the reasonable cause for the delay. However, the SIC rejected the review petition on 22.02.2024. The petitioner approached the High Court seeking a writ of certiorari to quash both the penalty order and the review rejection order.

B. The respondent is an instrumentality of the State, and therefore, all its administrative decisions would be subject to the doctrine of equality and fair play, as incorporated in Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. If any of its actions or administrative decisions result in civil consequences, the actions or decisions could be judicially reviewed or tested on the anvil of principles of natural justice.

The old distinction between a judicial act and an administrative act has withered away. Even an administrative order which involves civil consequences must be consistent with the rules of natural justice.

Expression 'civil consequences' encompasses infraction of not merely property or personal rights but of civil liberties, material deprivations, and non- pecuniary damages. In its wide umbrella comes everything that affects a citizen in his civil life.

Besides the fact that any citizen has an inalienable fundamental right to be heard before he or she is condemned (the principle of audi alteram partem) as guaranteed u/Article 21 of our Constitution, the very imposition of penalty also gives rise to an adverse civil consequence. Thus, even on that count, the petitioner ought to have been provided with an adequate and reasonable opportunity of being heard before the imposition of penalty of Rs. 25,000/- by the impugned order. (Para 6, 13)

C. Before imposing a penalty u/s 20 of the Act, 2005, the competent authority must give the PIO a reasonable opportunity of being heard and must examine whether there was any reasonable cause for the delay or non-supply of information. (Para 14)

The whole mechanism for imposition of penalty to the petitioner has been given a complete go by in the present case. No opinion is found to have been formed by the SIC in arriving at a decision to impose a penalty of Rs. 25,000/- on the petitioner as neither any notice and/or show-cause was issued to the petitioner prior to the imposition of such a penalty nor any opportunity was provided to file a reply and/or explain or prove that he was reasonable and diligent. Apparently, there was no material on record to form any such opinion on the part of the concerned Authority, for imposition of penalty. To add insult to injury, even no opportunity of hearing was provided to the petitioner as mandated by the first proviso to Section 20(1) of the RTI Act, 2005. (Para 11, 12)

The impugned order dated 06.09.2023 is unsustainable in the eyes of law and as such the same is hereby quashed and set-aside on the grounds of being in violation of the principles of natural justice. Consequently, the impugned order dismissing the review Application is also accordingly, quashed and set aside. (Para 15)
Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.
&
Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, wherein the writ petitioner has sought for the following substantial reliefs:-

"I) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 06.09.2023 passed by Respondent No.1 in Complaint Case No. ??- 6/275/??/2023, whereby a penalty of ?25,000/- has been imposed upon the petitioner under Section 20 of the Right to Information Act, 2005; and the order dated 22.02.2024 passed by Respondent No.1 in Review Petition No. ??-6/152/???./2024 (arising out of the aforesaid complaint case), whereby the review preferred by the petitioner has been rejected ;

II. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the Respondent No.1 to reconsider and decide the complaint case afresh, strictly in accordance with law, after affording the petitioner a proper, effective and meaningful opportunity of hearing ;

III. Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction staying the operation, effect and recovery of the impugned penalty imposed vide order dated 06.09.2023, during the pendency of the present writ petition ."

2. It has been submitted that the petitioner is a Block Education Officer and also a “Public Information Officer”, who could not provide the information on time due to various reasons including certain lapses on the part of his subordinates to abreast him about the requisite information as sought by the Respondent No.2 (Information seeker/applicant). It has also been submitted that the requisite information as on date has already been provided on 12.01.2024 to the respondent no. 2.

3. It is the case of the learned counsel for the petitioner that despite the fact that the information has been provided and there existed a reasonable cause for delay, the impugned order dated 06.09.2023 imposing penalty on the petitioner has been passed ex- parte, as he was never put to notice nor provided any opportunity to explain, before the penalty of Rs. 25,000/- was imposed on him as provided for under Section 20(1) of the Right to Information Act, 2005 (hereinafter referred as to "the Act, 2005 "). He further submits that even the review application against the said order of imposing penalty, which has been filed seeking to bring on records the factum of information having been already provided and also a reasonable cause existed for delaying the providing of requisite information, the State Information Commission (hereinafter to be referred as ?SIC?) has been pleased to dismiss the said Application by its order dated 22.2.2024. Thus, a prayer has been made to quash the impugned order dated 06.09.2023 imposing penalty upon the petitioner as well as the order of dismissal of review order dated 22.02.2024.

4. On the other hand, Mr. Shikhar Anand, learned counsel appearing on behalf of State Information Commission has supported the impugned order and has submitted that the same does not require any interference.

5. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties and have perused the material available on record.

6. From a bare reading of the impugned order, it is not clear as to whether the petitioner, who was the Public Information Officer, was specifically afforded an opportunity of hearing before the imposition of a penalty of Rs. 25,000/- or not. Apparently, the said imposition of penalty as being in the nature of civil consequences cannot be imposed, without following the principles of natural justice and giving the affected person an opportunity to be heard as has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the well celebrated judgment of State of Orissa Vs. Dr. (Miss) Binapani Dei; AIR 1967 SC 1269.

7. However, at this stage, we go a little deeper and note that Section 20 (1) of the Act, 2005, which has been invoked by the SIC to impose penalty on the petitioner provides for the following: -

"Section 20. Penalties.- (1)Where the Central Information Commission or the State Information Commission, as the case may be, at the time of deciding any complaint or appeal is of the opinion that the Central Public Information Officer or the State Public Information Officer, as the case may be, has, without any reasonable cause, refused to receive an application for information or has not furnished information within the time specified under sub-section (1) of section 7 or malafidely denied the request for information or knowingly given incorrect, incomplete or misleading information or destroyed information which was the subject of the request or obstructed in any manner in furnishing the information, it shall impose a penalty of two hundred and fifty rupees each day till application is received or information is furnished, so however, the total amount of such penalty shall not exceed twenty-five thousand rupees:

Provided that the Central Public Information Officer or the State Public Information Officer, as the case may be, shall be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard before any penalty is imposed on him:

Provided further that the burden of proving that he acted reasonably and diligently shall be on the Central Public Information Officer or the State Public Information Officer, as the case may be."

8. A facial reading of the aforesaid provision would show that the penalty is to be imposed when an opinion is formed by the concerned authority that the erring officer, without any reasonable cause;

(a) refused to receive an application for information

or

(b) has not furnished information within the time specified under sub-section (1) of section 7

or

(c) malafidely denied the request for information or knowingly given incorrect, incomplete or misleading information

or

(d) destroyed information which was the subject of the request

(e) obstructed in any manner in furnishing the information.

9 . This Court finds that the imposition of penalty by the authority concerned (SIC or the CIC as the case may be) has to be based on an opinion formed by the said Authority in accordance with law. Meaning thereby, that the said opinion is not to be understood in the traditional meaning of being an expression of belief or idea or emotions based on a personal opinion or without any basis, but in contradiction ought to be based on some material available from the records of the said case. It is for this very reason and necessarily to be in the nature of collecting materials, so as to enable the concerned authority to form an opinion, that the Second Proviso to Section 20 (1) of the Act, 2005 provides for the erring Public Information Officer an opportunity to prove that he acted reasonably and diligently. According to this Court, the ?proof? as envisaged by the legislature ought to be in the nature of material and/or documents only, which would prove the diligence or otherwise, of the erring officer in providing of information under the Act. We find that the formation of opinion is the triggering point for imposition of penalty under the provisions of Section 20(1) of the RTI Act, 2005 and obviously, the said opinion has to be formed on the basis of proof provided (or not provided, if opportunity given) by the erring Public Information Officer and after the same is examined for its responsibility and diligence as envisaged under the RTI Act, 2005.

10. Further, we also find that the matter of forming an opinion on the basis of the material collected in terms of second proviso as explained herein above, does not ends with the said burden of proof by the erring officer but extends to providing of hearing on the said material collected. Apparently, the first proviso to Section 20 (1) of the Act, 2005 clearly states that the concerned authority before imposing any penalty has to also give a reasonable opportunity of hearing to the said erring Public Information Officer. Thus, a robust mechanism for imposing of penalty has been provided under the Act, 2005 itself, which needless to say is also in tandem with the observance of principles of natural justice.

11. Unfortunately we find the whole mechanism for imposition of penalty to the petitioner has been given a complete go by in the present case.

12. Admittedly, we do not find any opinion having been formed by the SIC in arriving at a decision to impose a penalty of Rs. 25,000/- on the petitioner as neither any notice and/or show-cause was issued to the petitioner prior to the imposition of such a penalty nor any opportunity was provided to file a reply and/or explain or prove that he was reasonable and diligence. Apparently, there was no material on record to form any such opinion on the part of the concerned Authority, for imposition of penalty. To add insult to injury, even no opportunity of hearing was provided to the petitioner as mandated by the first proviso to Section 20(1) of the RTI Act, 2005.

13. Going further, we find that besides the fact that any citizen has an inalienable fundamental right to be heard before he or she is condemned (the principle of audi alteram partem) as guaranteed under Article 21 of our Constitution, this Court also finds that the very imposition of penalty also gives rise to an adverse civil consequence. Thus, even on that count, the petitioner ought to have been provided with an adequate and reasonable opportunity of being heard before the imposition of penalty of Rs. 25,000/- by the impugned order. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Prakash Ratan Sinha Vs State of Bihar and others; reported in (2009) 14 SCC 690; on an issue dealing with the doctrine of 'Equality and Fair Play' and also the principles of natural justice has in paragraph Nos. 9 and 13 held as under:

"9. The respondent is an instrumentality of the State, and therefore, all its administrative decisions would be subject to the doctrine of equality and fair play, as incorporated in Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India. If any of its actions or administrative decisions result in civil consequences, the actions or decisions could be judicially reviewed or tested on the anvil of principles of natural justice. This principle of law has been laid down by this Court in catena of cases.

13. A similar view has also been taken by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case "Canara Bank and others Vs. Debasis Das and others " (2003) 4 SCC 557, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph No. 19 has held as under: "19. Concept of natural justice has undergone a great deal of change in recent years. Rules of natural justice are not rules embodied always expressly in a statute or in rules framed thereunder. They may be implied from the nature of the duty to be performed under a statute. What particular rule of natural justice should be implied and what its context should be in a given case must depend to a great extent on the fact and circumstances of that case, the frame-work of the statute under which the enquiry is held. The old distinction between a judicial act and an administrative act has withered away. Even an administrative order which involves civil consequences must be consistent with the rules of natural justice. Expression 'civil consequences' encompasses infraction of not merely property or personal rights but of civil liberties, material deprivations, and non-pecuniary damages. In its wide umbrella comes everything that affects a citizen in his civil life.."

14. Further, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Manohar Vs. State of Maharashtra & others; reported in (2012) 13 SCC 14; has held that before imposing a penalty under Section 20 of the Act, 2005, the competent authority must give the Public Information Officer a reasonable opportunity of being heard and must examine whether there was any reasonable cause for the delay or non-supply of information. Since it is the case of the petitioner that no notice was ever served nor any opportunity of filing any reply and/or explanation or any hearing was provided to him before imposing the penalty of Rs. 25,000/-, we find that the ratio of the Manohar Case (Supra) is squarely applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case.

15. For the foregoing discussion, the impugned order dated 06.09.2023 is unsustainable in the eyes of law and as such the same is hereby quashed and set-aside on the grounds of being in violation of the principles of natural justice. Consequently, the impugned order dismissing the review Application losses its significance. However, for the sake of clarity the same is also accordingly, quashed and set aside.

16. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed in the aforesaid terms.

17. There shall be no order as to cost(s).

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether sending unilateral, unacknowledged representation letters over several years keeps a monetary claim alive, or if the claim becomes time-barred (stale) after the statutory three-year limitation period expires?
(b) Whether a writ petition u/Article 226 is maintainable solely to recover unpaid dues arising out of a commercial contract with the State in the absence of a constitutional or statutory violation?
(c) Whether the High Court in its extraordinary writ jurisdiction can adjudicate contractual money claims when the State disputes both the claim amount and the underlying communications?

Headnotes

A. Contract Law – Release of outstanding contractual payments - The petitioner, Janardan Singh, was awarded contracts by the Flood Works Division, District Gonda, for protective works along the Charsari Embankment. The petitioner completed the assigned contractual work during the financial year 2016–17. Following completion of the work, the petitioner allegedly sent multiple letters and reminders over a period of roughly ten years—including representations dated 10.08.2022 and 25.02.2023—demanding the release of outstanding contractual payments from the Irrigation and Water Resources Department of Uttar Pradesh.

Throughout this period, the State authorities neither formally admitted nor acknowledged any liability or pending monetary dues owed to the petitioner. Furthermore, the State disputed both the claim amount and the receipt/validity of the correspondence submitted by the petitioner. In 2026—nearly a decade after completing the work—the petitioner filed the present writ petition u/Article 226 of the Constitution of India before the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad (Lucknow Bench), seeking a writ of mandamus to compel the State respondents to release the outstanding payments along with interest.

B. Once the clock of limitation starts ticking, it cannot be stopped and/or extended by sending of letters/communications in a one way traffic. Such an activity cannot stretch the limitation by any period. The claim has now become a stale claim, as a period of more than three years has elapsed from the date on which the cause of action arose, during which the petitioner could have asserted his claim. Since there is no admission of liability on the part of the State respondents, the period of limitation cannot be extended in any manner whatsoever. The petitioner ought to have been vigilant of its rights and the statutory period of limitation, in that regard. (Para 4)

Reminder letter also does not extend the period of limitation in any manner. The work had been completed in 2016-17 and merely belated representation dated 10.08.2022 and 25.02.2023 had been sent by the petitioner without any consequence. (Para 5)

C. Maintainability of a writ petition u/Article 226 in the case of a money claim - For invoking the writ jurisdiction, involvement of any constitutional or statutory right was essential and in the absence of a statutory right, the remedy u/Article 226 could not be availed to claim any money in respect of breach of contract, tort or otherwise. The petitioner's claim involves disputed questions of fact. In absence of any constitutional or statutory rights being involved, a writ proceeding would not lie to enforce a contractual obligation even if it is sought to be enforced against the State or its authorities. (Para 6)

Maintainability of writ petition in contractual dispute between an individual and the state - If facts are disputed and require assessment of evidence the correctness of which can only be tested satisfactorily by taking detailed evidence, involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the case could not be conveniently or satisfactorily decided in proceedings u/Article 226 of the Constitution. In such cases the Court can direct the aggrieved party to resort to alternate remedy of civil suit, etc. (Para 7)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Krishna Kumar Singh, Priya Gupta, Sandeep Kumar
For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.
&
Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel appearing on behalf of the parties.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, wherein the writ petitioner has sought for the following substantial relief(s):-

(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of MANDAMUS, directing the Respondents to release the outstanding payments due to the petitioner for work completed under contracts awarded by the Flood Works Division, District Gonda, for the protection of the Charsari Embankment, along with interest, in the interest of justice."

3. Upon perusal of the record, it is clear that the work was carried out by the petitioner during the year 2016-17, and the petitioner has allegedly been writing to the authorities seeking payment of his outstanding dues. However, there is not a single document on record whereby the State authorities have admitted and/or acknowledged their liability towards the petitioner. The petitioner has only placed on record copies of the letters written by him to the authorities over the past 10 years seeking payment of the said amount. Interestingly, the learned Additional Chief

Standing Counsel appearing for the State has disputed the amount and also the correspondence sent by the petitioner.

4. In our view, the claim has now become a stale claim, as a period of more than three years has elapsed from the date on which the cause of action arose, during which the petitioner could have asserted his claim. Since there is no admission of liability on the part of the State-respondents, the period of limitation cannot be extended in any manner whatsoever. It is settled law that once the clock of limitation starts ticking, it cannot be stopped and/or extended by sending of letters/communications in a one way traffic. Such an activity cannot stretch the limitation by any period. The petitioner ought to have been vigilant of its rights and the statutory period of limitation, in that regard. (M/S B and T AG vs. Ministry of Defence; reported in MANU/SC/0601/2023).

5. Further, we find that the work had been completed in 2016-17 and merely belated representation dated 10.08.2022 and 25.02.2023 had been sent by the petitioner without any consequence. We hold that the reminder letter also does not extend the period of limitation in any manner. (Secunderabad Cantonment Board vs M/S B. Ramachandraiah And Sons; reported in AIR 2021 SUPREME COURT 1391).

6. Further, the petitioner's claim involves disputed questions of fact. As regards the question of maintainability of a writ petition under Article 226 in the case of a money claim, the same came up for consideration in several judgments before the Hon'ble Supreme Court, including in the case of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited and others Vs. Dolly Das reported in (1999) 4 SCC 450, wherein it was held that for invoking the writ jurisdiction, involvement of any constitutional or statutory right was essential and in the absence of a statutory right, the remedy under Article 226 could not be availed to claim any money in respect of breach of contract, tort or otherwise. It was reiterated that in absence of any constitutional or statutory rights being involved, a writ proceeding would not lie to enforce a contractual obligation even if it is sought to be enforced against the State or its authorities.

7. The said principle was also reiterated in Joshi Technologies International Inc. vs. Union of India and others (2015) 7 SCC 728, wherein the Apex court after enumerating the various facets of litigation, in which writ petition would be maintainable in contractual dispute between an individual and the state, went on to also hold that if facts are disputed and require assessment of evidence the correctness of which can only be tested satisfactorily by taking detailed evidence, involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the case could not be conveniently or satisfactorily decided in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution. In such cases the Court can direct the aggrieved party to resort to alternate remedy of civil suit, etc.

8. In view of the foregoing discussions, and keeping in view the facts of the case at hand, we are not inclined to exercise our extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

9. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

Writ C No. 5596 of 2026

Smt. Pushpa Devi ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the expression "COVID duty" under welfare G.O.s extends to essential service employees (e.g., electricity supply) who keep medical infrastructure operational, or is it restricted strictly to hospital staff?
(b) Whether the High Court should remand the matter back to the administrative authority for fresh consideration after quashing an improper order, or grant direct monetary relief?

Headnotes

A. Social Security and Welfare Law - The petitioner's late husband, Sunder Lal, was an employee of Madhyanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. (MVVNL). He was assigned frontline duties to maintain and ensure uninterrupted electricity supply to hospitals, oxygen plants, and residential locations housing COVID-19 patients. While discharging these essential duties, he contracted COVID-19 and passed away on 23.04.2021. Official certificates from the CMO, Lucknow, and the Electricity Department confirmed the cause of death and his frontline duty deployment.

Despite favorable recommendations from MVVNL (13.09.2021) and the DM, Lucknow (16.09.2021), the designated State Committee rejected her claim on 06.10.2022. The Committee claimed he was not covered under G.O. dated 11.04.2020 because he was not directly involved in medical treatment (COVID roktham, upchar and bachao). Pushpa Devi approached the High Court seeking a writ of certiorari to quash the rejection order and a writ of mandamus for the release of the ₹50 Lakh ex-gratia payment.

B. A myopic interpretation cannot be given to COVID-Duty so as to confine only to those persons, who were specially assigned to discharge their duties in treatment of people physically in hospitals. People who worked in the electricity department, water supply department, telephone department, police department and such other essential services departments, during COVID-Period should be taken to be on COVID Duty as their discharge of duties helped the State Government in containing the spread of pandemic covid-19 virus and also provided an impetus in the treatment and protection of COVID-19 patients by keeping them in confinement. (Para 7)

A Government Employee engaged in supply of essential services particularly for smooth running of hospitals do face the challenge of COVID 19 pandemic and as such can be included as a Corona Warrior for grant of ex gratia compensation in event of his/her death due to infection of COVID-19, though not directly deployed in a hospital, upon a pragmatic reading and interpretation of relevant GOs dated 20.05.2020 and 22.06.2021 as being subordinate welfare legislation. (Para 8)

Since the deceased was regularly engaged in ensuring an uninterrupted supply of electricity to hospitals and oxygen plants where COVID-19 patients were admitted and treated, he is entitled to be treated as a COVID Warrior. Thus, the petitioner is fully covered by the GO which provides for payment of compensation to the family of a person who contracts COVID-19 while performing duties related to the prevention, control and management of the COVID-19 pandemic. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 06.10.2022 is hereby quashed and set-aside. (Para 6, 9)

C. The Constitutional or statutory remedies are not intended for academic discourse. If a case deserves relief, it must be granted then and there, unflinchingly if need be. Balancing of equities is not to be confused with avoiding or postponing the relief. 'Consider jurisprudence' of remanding the matter back has been deprecated by Hon'ble Supreme Court. The husband of the petitioner died due to COVID-19 on 23.04.2021 and the issue had been hanging fire for more than five years. The Hon'ble Court took cognizance of the time already lapsed in releasing the ex-gratia amount and instead of remanding the matter to the competent authority for considering the claim of the petitioner denovo in view of the aforesaid observation, granted the relief. (Para 10)

Writ petition is allowed with consequential reliefs. (E-4)

For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Aprajita Bansal

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.

Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel appearing on behalf of the parties.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, wherein the writ petitioner has sought for the following substantial reliefs:-

"A. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari to quash an order passed by the Committee constituted vide office order dated 06.10.2022 wherein on 10.10.2022 and 14.11.2022 the meeting was held and the claim of the petitioner to release ex gratia compensation of Rs. 50,00,000/- (Fifty Lakh Rupees) in pursuance of the Government Order dated 11.04.2020 has been rejected annexed as Annexure No. 1.

B. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding and directing the Respondent No. 1 to release the payment of ex-gratia compensation of Rs. 50 lakhs as financial aid provided in the Government order dated 11.04.2020 in favor of the petitioner. "

3. The present petition has been filed by the widow of Late Sunder Lal, who died due to COVID-19. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner is aggrieved by the impugned order dated 06.10.2022, whereby the claim of the petitioner was rejected on the ground that the petitioner was held not to be covered under the Government Order dated 11.04.2020. It is the submission of petitioner that her husband was an employee of the Madhyanchal Vidyut Vitran Nigam Ltd. (MVVNL) and he got infected with COVID-19 disease while discharging his duties with respect to the containment of COVID-19 disease and as such in view of the Government Order dated 11.04.2020 and subsequent notifications dated 22.06.2021 of the State Government the petitioner is entitled for ex-gratia payment of Rs. 50,00,000/- (Rs. 50 Lakhs).

4. In order to buttress his arguments, learned counsel for the petitioner relies upon Division Bench judgments of this Court dated April 17, 2026 passed in Writ-C No. 34909 of 2023 (Smt. Pushpa Devi Vs. State of U.P. and others) and dated April 29, 2026 passed in Writ-C No. 42989 of 2025 (Vipin Kashyap Vs. State of U.P. and others) in which the persons who were involved in similar activities have been declared COVID Warrior and have been awarded the claims as raised by the petitioner in the instant petition.

5. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondent has supported the impugned order and submitted that the husband of the petitioner (deceased) did not perform any duty so as to come within the expression of "COVID roktham, upchar and bachao" i.e. containment of COVID pandemic/COVID-19 treatment and protection from infection of COVID.

6. Having heard learned counsel for the parties. A perusal of the record would reveal that Chief Medical Officer Luknow vide a certificate dated 04.08.2021 has certified the death of the husband of the petitioner due to COVID-19 disease. It also appears that the husband of the petitioner (deceased) was assigned duty for the prevention and control of COVID-19 and to ensure uninterpreted power supply to hospitals, oxygen plants, people staying at homes and others. A certificate dated 11.08.2021 issued by the Electricity Department, which has been annexed as Annexure No. 2, indicates that the deceased was an employee in the electricity department and was assigned duty for maintenance and supply of electricity for the aforesaid purpose. The report/certificate further indicates that the deceased was on the front-line and was engaged in ensuring an uninterrupted electricity supply to the houses and hospitals wherein the COVID patients were staying and admitted. We also find that a recommendation Letter dated 13.09.2021 was also issued in favour of petitioner by the concerned Electricity Department (MVVNL), which was followed by a Letter dated 16.09.2021 relating to the release of the said ex-gratia amount in favour of the petitioner by the concerned District Magistrate, Lucknow.

7. Further, we find that a Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Pushpa Devi (Supra) involving similar issue of payment of ex-gratia to the dependent of an employee of Electricity Department, who died due to COVID-19 after considering another judgment of this Court in Smt. Premlata Pandey Versus State of U.P. and 3 others, (Writ-C No.17575 of 2023) decided on 29.05.2023, which was related to compensation to a Head Constable in the Police Department, who died due to COVID-19, noted that a myopic interpretation cannot be given to COVID-Duty so as to confine only to those persons, who were specially assigned to discharge their duties in treatment of people physically in hospitals.The Division Bench went on to hold in the said case of Smt. Pushpa Devi (Supra) that in the electricity department, water supply department, telephone department, police department and such other essential services departments who worked during COVID-Period should be taken to be on COVID-Duty as their discharge of duties helped the State Government in containing the spread of pandemic covid-19 virus and also provided an impetus in the treatment and protection of COVID-19 patients by keeping them in confinement.

8. Similarly, a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Vipin Kashyap (Supra) when was faced with a similar issue of an employee engaged in the Electricity Department i.e. Northern Electricity Distribution Corporation Limited, Mathura went on to acknowledge and hold that a Government Employee engaged in supply of essential services particularly for smooth running of hospitals do face the challenge of COVID 19 pandemic and as such can be included as a Corona Warrior for grant of ex gratia compensation in event of his/her death due to infection of COVID-19, though not directly deployed in a hospital, upon a pragmatic reading and interpretation of relevant Government Orders dated 20.05.2020 and 22.06.2021 as being subordinate welfare legislation.

9. Since the deceased was regularly engaged in ensuring an uninterrupted supply of electricity to hospitals and oxygen plants where COVID-19 patients were admitted and treated, he is entitled to be treated as a COVID Warrior. Thus, we are of the considered view that the petitioner is fully covered by the Government Order which provides for payment of compensation to the family of a person who contracts COVID-19 while performing duties related to the prevention, control and management of the COVID-19 pandemic. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 06.10.2022 is hereby quashed and set-aside.

10. Normally, we would have remanded the matter to the competent authority for considering the claim of the petitioner denovo in view of our aforesaid observation. However, we are cognizant of the time already lapsed in releasing the ex-gratia amount as notably the husband of the petitioner died due to COVID-19 on 23.04.2021 and the issue had been hanging fire for more than five years. Recently, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mahendra Prasad Agarwal Vs. Arvind Kumar Singh: 2026 INSC 175, held that if relief deserves then it should be granted then and there and it has further deprecated 'consider jurisprudence' of remanding the matter back. The relevant paragraphs of the aforementioned judgment are extracted as under :

"14. There is no doubt about the fact that the "consider jurisprudence", so routinely adopted these days and if we may use the expression - to throw the ball out of the Court, is counterproductive and harms the system.

15. When a claim of a right is legal and justified, relief must follow. The Constitutional or statutory remedies are not intended for academic discourse. If a case deserves relief, it must be granted then and there, unflinchingly if need be. Balancing of equities is not to be confused with avoiding or postponing the relief. These are not matters of law, but of its working and practice. Unlike law and its procedures, good practices that evolve over a period of time are far more precious than written laws, as it is in this practice that we see acceptance and internalization of the spirit of law. It is necessary to recognize, nurture and develop good practices which become habits. These habits come from the shared belief, values and attitudes that breathe vitality into rule of law. Legal culture integrates collective beliefs, fostering habits. It is necessary and in fact compelling to keep our remedies simple, effective and efficient."

11. Keeping the totality of the aforesaid facts and circumstances and for all the aforesaid reasons, the writ petition is allowed with consequential reliefs. Accordingly, the respondents/ authority concerned is directed to make payment of ex-gratia compensation as per the Government Order dated 11.04.2020 to the petitioner within a period of eight weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

12. There shall be no order as to cost (s).

Writ C No. 5923 of 2026

Hari Narayan Tiwari ...Petitioner

State Information Commission U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether a High Court, while exercising its extraordinary discretionary jurisdiction u/Article 226 of the Constitution, can dismiss a writ petition solely on the ground of inordinate, unexplained delay and laches?
(b) Whether absence of a prescribed statutory limitation period u/Article 226 entitles a litigant to challenge a stale administrative order (passed nearly three years prior) without offering any reasonable explanation for the delay?

Headnotes

A. Constitutional Law – Delay and laches - It is true that there cannot be any waiver of fundamental right but while exercising discretionary jurisdiction u/Article 226, this Court will have to necessarily take into consideration the delay and laches on the part of the applicant in approaching a writ court. (Para 5)

The High Court may refuse to exercise extraordinary jurisdiction if there is negligence or omissions on the part of the applicant to assert his right. (Para 6)

A constitutional court has a duty to protect the rights of the citizens but also has to be alive to the primary principle that when an aggrieved person, without adequate reason, approaches the court at his own leisure or pleasure, the court would be under legal obligation to scrutinize whether the lis at a belated stage should be entertained or not. (Para 8)

In present case, the Petitioner is seeking to challenge a stale order dated 07.08.2023 passed by the State Information Commission, Lucknow (Respondent No.2). There had been an inordinate delay of close to three years in approaching this court. The doctrine of delay and laches squarely apply to the facts of the present case and the same cannot be lightly brushed aside. A writ court is required to weigh the explanation offered and the acceptability of the same, bearing in mind that it is exercising an extraordinary and equitable jurisdiction. However, in the present case, no reason has been given nor any effort has been made by the petitioner to explain the delay. (Para 7, 9)

For Petitioner(s): Anil Kumar Tiwari, Ujjawal Tewari
For Respondent(s): Shikhar Anand

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.
&
Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel appearing on behalf of the parties.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner has sought the following substantial relief(s):-

"i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 7.8.2023 passed by learned State Information Commissioner, Lucknow i.e. opposite party No.2, contained in Annexure No.1 to this writ petition."

3. Bare perusal of the impugned order it is clear that the same had been passed on August 7, 2023. No explanation has been given with regard to delay in filing the present petition at this belated stage.

4. Although there is no doubt that no limitation has been prescribed in law for filing a Writ Petition under Article 226 of our constitution. However, when the extraordinary jurisdiction of a writ is invoked, this court is called upon to satisfy itself as to whether within a reasonable time the jurisdiction has been invoked or not.

5. Pertinently, if it is found that the writ petitioner is guilty of delay and latches, this Court can very well dismiss the petition on that sole ground itself, in as much as the writ courts are not to indulge in permitting such indolent litigant to take advantage of his own wrong. It is true that there cannot be any waiver of fundamental right but while exercising discretionary jurisdiction under Article 226, this Court will have to necessarily take into consideration the delay and latches on the part of the applicant in approaching a writ court. The Hon'ble Aex Court in the case of Tridip Kumar Dingal and others v. State of W.B and others, (2009) 1 SCC 768 has held to the following effect:

"56. We are unable to uphold the contention. It is no doubt true that there can be no waiver of fundamental right. But while exercising discretionary jurisdiction under Articles 32, 226, 227 or 136 of the Constitution, this Court takes into account certain factors and one of such considerations Is delay and laches on the part of the applicant in approaching a writ court. It is well settled that power to issue a Patna High Court CWJC No. 6284 of 2024 dt.08-05-2024 writ is discretionary. One of the grounds for refusing reliefs under Article 32 or 226 of the Constitution is that the petitioner is guilty of delay and laches.

57. If the petitioner wants to invoke jurisdiction of a writ court, he should come to the Court at the earliest reasonably possible opportunity. Inordinate delay in making the motion for a writ will indeed be a good ground for refusing to exercise such discretionary jurisdiction. The underlying object of this principle is not to encourage agitation of stale claims and exhume matters which have already been disposed of or settled or where the rights of third parties have accrued in the meantime (vide State of M.P. v. Bhailal Bhai [AIR 1964 SC 1006: (1964) 6 SCR 261], Moon Mills Ltd. v. Industrial Court (AIR 1967 SC 1450] and Bhoop Singh v. Union of India [(1992) 3 SCC 136: (1992) 21 ATC 675: (1992) 2 SCR 969]). This principle applies even in case of an infringement of fundamental right (vide Tilokchand Motichand v. H.B. Munshi [(1969) 1 SCC 110], Durga Prashad v. Chief Controller of Imports & Exports [(1969) 1 SCC 185] and Rabindranath Bose v. Union of India [(1970) 1 SCC 84]).

58. There is no upper limit and there is no lower limit as to when a person can approach a court. The question is one of discretion and has to be decided on the basis of facts before the court depending on and varying from case to case. It will depend upon what the breach of fundamental right and the remedy claimed are and when and how the delay arose."

6. To the same effect is the Judgment of the Supreme Court in Karnataka Power Corportion Ltd. and another v. K. Thangappan and another, *(2006) 4 SCC 322 whereunder it has been held that the High Court may refuse to exercise extraordinary jurisdiction if there is negligence or omissions on the part of the applicant to assert his right. It has been further held thereunder:

"6. Delay or laches is one of the factors which is to be borne in mind by the High Court when they exercise their discretionary powers under Article 226 of the Constitution. In an appropriate case the High Court may refuse to invoke its extraordinary powers if there is such negligence or omission on the part of the applicant to assert his right as taken in conjunction with the lapse of time and other circumstances, causes prejudice to the opposite party. Even where fundamental right is involved the matter is still within the discretion of the Court as pointed out in Durga Prashad v. Chief Controller of Imports and Exports [(1969) 1 SCC 185 AIR 1970 SC 769]. Of course, the discretion has to be exercised judicially and reasonably.

7. What was stated in this regard by Sir Barnes Peacock in Lindsay Petroleum Co. v. Prosper Armstrong Hurd [(1874) 5 PC 221: 22 WR 492] (PC at p. 239) was approved by this Court in Moon Mills Ltd. v. M.R. Meher [AIR 1967 SC 1450] and Maharashtra SRTC v. Shri Balwant Regular Motor Service [(1969) 1 SCR 808: AIR 1969 SC 329]. Sir Barnes had stated:

"Now, the doctrine of laches in courts of equity is not an arbitrary or a technical doctrine. Where it would be practically unjust to give a remedy either because the party has, by his conduct done that which might fairly be regarded as equivalent to a waiver of it, or where by his conduct and neglect he has though perhaps not waiving that remedy, yet put the other party in a situation in which it would not be reasonable to place him if the remedy were afterwards to be asserted, in either of these cases, lapse of time and delay are most material. But in every case, if an argument against relief, which otherwise would be just, is founded upon mere delay, that delay of course not amounting to a bar by any statute of limitation, the validity of that defence must be tried upon principles substantially equitable. Two circumstances always important in such cases are, the length of the delay and the nature of the acts done during the interval which might affect either party and cause a balance of justice or injustice in taking the one course or the other, so far as it relates to the remedy."

8. It would be appropriate to note certain decisions of this Court in which this aspect has been dealt with in relation to Article 32 of the Constitution. It is apparent that what has been stated as regards that article would apply, a fortiori, to Article 226. It was observed in Rabindranath Bose v. Union of India [(1970) 1 SCC 84: AIR 1970 SC 470] that no relief can be given to the petitioner who without any reasonable explanation approaches this Court under Article 32 after inordinate delay. It was stated that though Article 32 is itself a guaranteed right, it does not follow from this that it was the intention of the Constitution-makers that this Court should disregard all principles and grant relief in petitions filed after inordinate delay.

9. It was stated in State of M.P. v. Nandlal Jaiswal [(1986) 4 SCC 566: AIR 1987 SC 251] that the High Court in exercise of its discretion does not ordinarily assist the tardy and the indolent or the acquiescent and the lethargic. If there is inordinate delay on the part of the petitioner and such delay is not satisfactorily explained, the High Court may decline to intervene and grant relief in exercise of its writ jurisdiction. It was stated that this rule is premised on a number of factors. The High Court does not ordinarily permit a belated resort to the extraordinary remedy because it is likely to cause confusion and public inconvenience and bring, in its train new injustices, and if writ jurisdiction is exercised after unreasonable delay, it may have the effect of inflicting not only hardship and inconvenience but also injustice on third parties. It was pointed out that when writ jurisdiction is invoked, unexplained delay coupled with the creation of third-party rights Patna High Court CWJC No. 6284 of 2024 dt.08-05-2024 in the meantime is an important factor which also weighs with the High Court in deciding whether or not to exercise such jurisdiction."

7. Having regard to the afore-stated principles of law enunciated herein above, when we turn our attention to the facts on hand, it is apparent that the Petitioner is seeking to challenge a stale order dated August 7, 2023 passed by the State Information Commission, Lucknow. We are clear in our mind that there had been an inordinate delay of close to three years in approaching this court. The doctrine of delay and laches squarely apply to the facts of the present case and the same cannot be lightly brushed aside. We are conscious of the fact that a writ court is required to weigh the explanation offered and the acceptability of the same, bearing in mind that it is exercising an extraordinary and equitable jurisdiction. However, in the present case, we do not find any explanation to be forthcoming.

8. As a matter of fact there is not even an effort to explain the said laches. No doubt, we as a constitutional court have a duty to protect the rights of the citizens but we cannot be oblivious to the fact that we also have to alive to the primary principle that when an aggrieved person, without adequate reason, approaches the court at his own leisure or pleasure, the court would be under legal obligation to scrutinize whether the lis at a belated stage should be entertained or not.

9. For all the aforesaid reasons and primarily because no reasons nor any effort has been made by the petitioner to explain the delay in approaching this Court, the present Writ Petition is being dismissed as not maintainable on the ground of laches.

Writ C No. 7398 of 2026

M/S Anu Enterprises ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether rights and claims arising out of non-statutory contracts, Letters of Intent, or contractual breaches can be enforced via a writ petition u/Article 226?
(b) Whether a contractor can indirectly challenge an inter-departmental State order transferring project oversight between government entities?
(c) Whether the High Court should exercise discretionary writ jurisdiction when efficacious statutory/common law remedies exist?

Headnotes

A. Civil Law – Tenders and Contracts - Respondent No. 3 (U.P. State Construction and Infrastructure Development Corporation) awarded two construction tenders for Mini Indoor Stadiums in Ambedkarnagar to the petitioner. Letters of Intent (LOIs) were issued to the petitioner on 21.04.2026 and 22.04.2026. On 29.04.2026, the Special Secretary, Government of U.P., issued a communication directing that Respondent No. 7 (U.P. Projects Corporation Limited) would replace Respondent No. 3 as the nodal agency for the projects due to unsatisfactory execution by Respondent No. 3.

Consequently, the petitioner was restrained from executing the work, and Respondent No. 7 issued fresh short-term e-tender notices (Nos. 20 & 21/GM-3/UPPCL/2026-27). The petitioner approached the High Court seeking to quash the State's communication dated 29.04.2026 and the fresh e-tender notices, alongside a mandamus directing the State to allow it to complete the work under the original LOIs.

B. If a person is aggrieved in respect of non-statutory and purely contractual rights flowing from a contract, remedy u/Article 226 of the Constitution is not available. If a term of contract is violated, ordinarily remedy is not the writ petition u/Article 226. Disputes arising out of terms of such contract or alleged breaches have to be settled by ordinary principles of law of contract. (Para 10)

Entertainability of a Writ Petition in contractual matter - The contract between the parties is a contract in the realm of private law. It is not a statutory contract. It is governed by the provisions of the Contract Act or, may be, also by certain provisions of the Sale of Goods Act. Any dispute relating to interpretation of the terms and conditions of such a Contract cannot be agitated, and could not have been agitated, in a writ petition. That is a matter either for arbitration as provided by the contract or for Civil Court, as the case may be. (Para 11, 13)

Ordinarily the court will not entertain a petition for a writ u/article 226, where the petitioner has an alternative remedy, which, without being unduly onerous, provides an equally efficacious remedy. Again, the High Court does not generally enter upon a determination of questions which demand an elaborate examination of evidence to establish the right to enforce which the writ is claimed. (Para 14)

If the petitioner is of the opinion that respondent no. 3 has committed a breach of the contractual obligations arising out of the LOIs, it is open to the petitioner to initiate appropriate proceedings against respondent no. 3 for recovery of damages or any other relief available in law. The action of the Government vide letter dated 29.04.2026 is upon the respondent no.3 and the said action cannot be indirectly challenged by the petitioner by way of filing a writ petition. If at all, the grievance arising from the transfer of the projects is one which respondent no.3 may choose to agitate. It is upto the respondent no.3 to initiate appropriate proceedings against the State. The respondent no.3 cannot be permitted to indulge in proxy litigation through the petitioner. In any case, the petitioner shall remain at liberty to seek compensation for loss of profit or any other consequential relief by invoking the arbitration clause or by instituting appropriate civil proceedings, against the respondent no.3, in accordance with law. (Para 8)

C. The disputes relating to interpretation of terms and conditions of a contract could not be examined/challenged or agitated in a petition filed u/Article 226. It is a matter for adjudication by a civil court or in arbitration, if provided for in the contract or before the DRT or under the Securitization Act. It has to be understood that the present writ petition requires interpretation of several terms of the conditions of contract executed between the petitioner and the Respondent No.3, to arrive at any decision. (Para 12)

The grounds canvassed by the petitioner is in the nature of breach of contract and no writ or order can be issued u/Article 226 so as to compel the authorities to remedy a breach of contract, pure and simple. However, that does not mean that the petitioner is remediless, as the petitioner can very well approach the competent court for adjudication by a Civil Court or by the mechanism of arbitration, if provided for in the contract.

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

For Petitioner(s): Hemant Kumar Mishra, Abhishek Mishra, Arti Ganguly
For Respondent(s): C.S.C., I.M. Pandey Ist, Naresh Chandra Mehrotra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.
&
Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner as well as Shri Pankaj Khare and Ms. Isha Mittal, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondent(s) and perused the materials available on record.

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner for the following main relief(s):

"(a) To issue a writ order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 29.04.2026 issued by the Opposite Party No. 1, contained as Annexure no. 1 to this Writ Petition.

(b) To issue a writ order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the impugned Short Term e-tender notice no. 20/ GM-3/ UPPCL/ 2026-27 dated 30.06.2026 and tender no. 21/ GM-3/UPPCL/2026-27 dated 30.06.2026 issued by the Opposite Party No. 7, contained as Annexure No. 2 and 3 to this Writ Petition respectively.

(c) To issue a writ order or direction in the nature of MANDAMUS commanding the Opposite Party No. 1 to allow the Petitioner to complete its work in terms of the Letter of Intent dated 21.04.2026 in respect of Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyay Rajkiya Model Inter College, Khajuri, Ambedkarnagar and letter of Intent dated 22.04.2026 in respect of Rajkiya Inter College, Akbarpur, Ambedkarnagar."

3. The factual matrix indicates that respondent no.3, namely, the Uttar Pradesh State Construction and Infrastructure Development Corporation, had been entrusted by the State of Uttar Pradesh with the execution of certain projects. For carrying out the said projects, respondent no. 3 invited several tenders, and the petitioner was declared successful in respect of two projects, namely, (i) the construction of a Mini Indoor Stadium at Pandit Deen Dayal Upadhyay Rajkiya Model Inter College, Khajuri, Ambedkar Nagar, and (ii) the construction of a Mini Indoor Stadium at Rajkiya Inter College, Akbarpur, District Ambedkar Nagar.

4. Letters of Intent in respect of the aforesaid projects were issued to the petitioner on 21.04.2026 and 22.04.2026 by respondent no. 3. However, by order dated 29.04.2026, the Special Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, addressed a communication to the Director, Secondary Education, directing that the U.P. Projects Corporation Limited (respondent no. 7), instead of respondent no. 3, would act as the nodal agency for execution of the said two projects in respect of which the petitioner had already been awarded the tenders. Pursuant to the said communication, the petitioner was restrained from executing the works allotted to him by respondent no. 3. Furthermore, respondent no. 7 issued short-term tenders for both the projects and proceeded to open the technical bids in respect thereof.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that, once the petitioner had been declared successful in the tender process and Letters of Intent had been issued in his favour by respondent no. 3, the communication dated 29.04.2026 issued by the Special Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, indirectly takes away the valuable rights that had accrued to the petitioner under the tender process. It is contended that the petitioner could not have been deprived of the contract in the aforesaid manner after the issuance of the Letters of Intent.

Learned counsel has placed reliance upon a judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Subodh Kumar Singh Rathour vs. Chief Executive Officer and others reported in 2024(7) SCR 532 : 2024 AIR (SC) 3784.

6. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the State submits that the present writ petition is not maintainable, as the petitioner has no locus standi to invoke the writ jurisdiction in the facts of the present case. It is further submitted that any grievance arising out of the tender or the Letters of Intent issued by respondent no. 3 is contractual in nature and is liable to be resolved in terms of the arbitration clause contained therein. Learned counsel further submits that the State, in its wisdom, transferred the projects to another nodal agency, namely, respondent no. 7, as the works were not being executed satisfactorily by respondent no. 3.

7. The question that arises for consideration in the present writ petition is whether the rights that accrued to the petitioner pursuant to the issuance of the Letters of Intent and the award of the tenders can be enforced in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, or whether the petitioner is required to seek redress before the appropriate forum, such as the Arbitral Tribunal or the competent Civil Court, in accordance with law.

8. In our considered view, if the petitioner is of the opinion that respondent no. 3 has committed a breach of the contractual obligations arising out of the Letters of Intent, it is open to the petitioner to initiate appropriate proceedings against respondent no. 3 for recovery of damages or any other relief available in law. The action of the Government vide letter dated 29.04.2026 is upon the respondent no.3 and the said action cannot be indirectly challenged by the petitioner by way of filing a writ petition. If at all, the grievance arising from the transfer of the projects is one which respondent no.3 may choose to agitate. It is upto the respondent no.3 to initiate appropriate proceedings against the State. The respondent no.3 cannot be permitted to indulge in proxy litigation through the petitioner. In any case, the petitioner shall remain at liberty to seek compensation for loss of profit or any other consequential relief by invoking the arbitration clause or by instituting appropriate civil proceedings, against the respondent no.3, in accordance with law.

9. The judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner lay down general principles of law. However, the same are distinguishable on facts and do not advance the case of the petitioner in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case. Consequently, the said decisions are of no assistance to the petitioner.

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bareilly Development Authority vs. Ajai Pal Singh, AIR 1989 SC 1076; has held that, if a person is aggrieved in respect of non-statutory and purely contractual rights flowing from a contract, remedy under Article 226 of the Constitution is not available. Similarly, in Kerala State Electricity Board and another Vs. Kurian E. Kalathil and others, 2000(6) SCC 293, the Apex Court held that, if a term of contract is violated, ordinarily remedy is not the writ petition under Article 226. Disputes arising out of terms of such contract or alleged breaches have to be settled by ordinary principles of law of contract.

11. In State of U.P. and others vs. Bridge & Roof Co.; AIR 1996 SC 3515; the Apex Court, when called upon to examine the entertainability of a Writ Petition in contractual matter, held as follows:

"Firstly, the contract between the parties is a contract in the realm of private law. It is not a statutory contract. It is governed by the provisions of the Contract Act or, may be, also by certain provisions of the Sale of Goods Act. Any dispute relating to interpretation of the terms and conditions of such a Contract cannot be agitated, and could not have been agitated, in a writ petition. That is a matter either for arbitration as provided by the contract or for Civil Court, as the case may be."

12. It has to be understood that the present writ petition requires interpretation of several terms of the conditions of contract executed between the petitioner and the Respondent No.3, to arrive at any decision. In Zonal Manager, Central Bank of India vs. Devi Ispat Ltd. and Ors., 2010(11) SCC 186; the Apex Court said:

"It is settled law that the disputes relating to interpretation of terms and conditions of a contract could not be examined/challenged or agitated in a petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution. It is a matter for adjudication by a civil court or in arbitration, if provided for in the contract or before the DRT or under the Securitization Act."

Further, it has to be understood that the grounds canvassed by the learned Counsel for the petitioner is in the nature of breach of contract and this court is clear in its mind that no writ or order can be issued under Article 226 so as to compel the authorities to remedy a breach of contract, pure and simple. However, that does not mean that the petitioner is remediless, as the petitioner can very well approach the competent court for adjudication by a Civil Court or by the mechanism of arbitration, if provided for in the contract.

13. The Supreme Court referring the judgment of Bareilly Development Authority vs. Ajai Pal Singh (supra), and Bridge & Roof Co. (India) Ltd., (supra), in the case of Rajasthan State Industrial Development and Investment Corporation and Anr. vs. Diamond and Gem Development Corporation Ltd. and Anr.; 2013(5) SCC 470 has observed as under:

"There can be no dispute to the settled legal proposition that matters/disputes relating to contract cannot be agitated nor terms of the contract can be enforced through writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution. Thus, writ court cannot be a forum to seek any relief based on terms and conditions incorporated in the agreement by the parties."

14. Recently, the Supreme Court in Rikhab Chand Jain vs. Union of India reported in (2025 SCC OnLine SC 2510), while holding the concept of entertainability and maintainability of writ petition held, relevant to the context:

"9. While deciding whether to entertain a petition under Article 226 bearing in mind the precedents in the field, a writ court ought to additionally notice the forum designated by the statute for the litigant to approach. This is necessary because the alternative forum that is provided by the statute has to be one which can dispense speedy and efficacious relief. However, as in the present case, if the statutorily designated alternative forum happens to be the high court itself whose jurisdiction under Article 226 is invoked and not any ordinary statutory functionary/tribunal, refusal to entertain the petition should be the rule and entertaining it an exception."

10. We may profitably refer, in this context, to the Constitution Bench decision in Thansingh Nathmal v. A. Mazid, Superintendent of Taxes, AIR 1964 SC 1419. In Thansingh Nathmal (supra), this Court had the occasion to lay down a principle of law which is salutary and not to be found in any other previous decision rendered by it. The principle, plainly, is that, if a remedy is available to a party before the high court in another jurisdiction, the writ jurisdiction should not normally be exercised on a petition under Article 226, for, that would allow the machinery set up by the concerned statute to be bye-passed. The relevant passage from the decision reads as follows:

"The jurisdiction of the High Court under article 226 of the Constitution is couched in wide terms and the exercise thereof is not subject to any restrictions except the territorial restrictions which are expressly provided in the article. But the exercise of the jurisdiction is discretionary; it is not exercised merely because it is lawful to do so. The very amplitude of the jurisdiction demands that it will ordinarily be exercised subject to certain self-imposed limitations. Resort to that jurisdiction is not intended as an alternative remedy for relief which may be obtained in a suit or other mode prescribed by statute. Ordinarily the court will not entertain a petition for a writ under article 226, where the petitioner has an alternative remedy, which, without being unduly onerous, provides an equally efficacious remedy. Again, the High Court does not generally enter upon a determination of questions which demand an elaborate examination of evidence to establish the right to enforce which the writ is claimed*. The High Court does not therefore act as a court of appeal against the decision of a court or tribunal, to correct errors of fact, and does not by assuming jurisdiction under article 226 trench upon an alternative remedy provided by statute for obtaining relief. Where it is open to the aggrieved petitioner to move another tribunal, or even itself in another jurisdiction* for obtaining redress in the manner provided by a statute, the High Court normally will not permit, by entertaining a petition under article 226 of the Constitution, the machinery created under the statute to be by-passed, and will leave the party applying to it to seek resort to the machinery so set up."

(emphasis ours)

11. Since the appellant had a remedy by way of a reference before the High Court against the order dated 23rd June, 2000 of the CEGAT, we do not consider refusal to exercise discretion in favour of the appellant to be so fundamentally incorrect that interference is warranted."

15. In view of above exposition of law and for all the aforesaid reasons, petitioner as having remedy in common law regarding alleged breach of contract, we hold that the same cannot be enforced by way of writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. Accordingly, the present writ petition is dismissed.

Shivalik Small Finance Bank Ltd. ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the High Court should issue a writ directing time-bound execution/dispossession u/s 14 of the SARFAESI Act when proceedings are moving through normal administrative channels?
(b) Whether the principle in Dilip Kumar Singh Vs. State of U.P. (that an S.A. u/s 17 does not trigger an automatic stay) obligates the High Court to issue a mandamus for physical dispossession?

Headnotes

A. Finance and Revenue Law – Securitisation And Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002: Section 14, 17 - On 01.11.2025, the Additional District Magistrate (F&R), Gautam Budh Nagar, passed an order u/s 14 of the SARFAESI Act to assist the petitioner bank in taking physical possession of the secured asset. Physical possession was not immediately delivered. Meanwhile, the borrower filed Securitisation Application (S.A.) No. 516 of 2026 before the DRT, which was actively scheduled for hearing on 24.09.2026.

The bank contended that since there was no formal interim stay order granted by the DRT, the pending S.A. created no legal bar against dispossession. Relying on Dilip Kumar Singh v. State of U.P. (infra), the bank argued that filing an S.A. u/s 17 does not operate as an automatic stay and requested a direction for immediate physical possession. The State submitted that proceeding with forced dispossession while the borrower's statutory challenge is pending before the DRT with a fixed hearing date would render the borrower's legal remedies meaningless.

B. It would be most inappropriate to Court to entertain the writ petition u/Article 226 or u/Article 227 simply for the purpose of expediting hearing of cases as it would create a class of litigants who moved the Court in a separate and preferential category, whereas other cases which may be of similar or greater antiquity and urgency are left to be decided in the normal channel. (Para 9, 10)

Admittedly, before this Court the effort of the petitioner/financial institution is to seek dispossession by force of the borrower from the mortgaged property that too during the pendency of the legal recourse taken by the borrower. (Para 6)

Petitioner's argument that aforementioned judgment empowers this Court to direct dispossession of borrower of secured asset is misplaced. There is no doubt that the ADM (Finance and Revenue) has to proceed for dis-possession once an application u/s 14 of the Act is made and the said Act is a ministerial act but it is always upon to the concerned authority to fix priority as per the number of cases pending before it. (Para 7, 8)

Nothing has been brought on record to demonstrate the number of matters which are pending before the concerned SDM to which such a direction is sought to be issued by the petitioner. Thus, it would be fit to hold that as the S.A. No.516 of 2016 is pending before the DRT with a specific date fixed as 24.09.2026 then the respondent no.3/ADM (Finance & Revenue) be left to determine the manner in which he decides to proceed, although it is expected from the authority that it would be adhering to the statutory provision and law laid down in that regard. Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Nishant Verma, Sagar Mehrotra
For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Saran, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sagar Mehrotra, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The instant petition has been filed with following relief:

"I. Issue an appropriate writ, order or direction to Respondent Nos.4 and 5 to provide physical possession of the secured asset to the Petitioner in compliance with the order passed by the Respondent No.3/Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue), District Gautam Budh Nagar on 01.11.2025 under Section 14 of the SARFAESI Act, 2002, in time-bound manner."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that inspite of the order dated 11.01.2025 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, the physical possession of the secured assets had yet not been handed over. He submits that the respondent no.3 is duty bound to get his order complied with. He further submits that although the borrower has preferred S.A. No.516 of 2026 and in which although the next date fixed by the Court is 24.09.2026 but as on date there is no interim order and as such there is no embargo on the Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue) to proceed for dispossession. He further relied upon a judgment passed by the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court inre:Dilip Kumar Singh and Another v. State of U.P. and Others1 to buttress his submission.

4. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel submits that although it is abundant duty of the respondent no.3/Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue) to proceed for dispossession but in the instant case since the borrower has filed S.A. No.516 of 2026 and which is pending adjudication and 24.09.2026 is fixed, therefore proceeding with the matter would render the efforts of the borrower by taking legal recourse meaningless.

5. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

6. Admittedly, before this Court the effort of the petitioner/financial institution is to seek dispossession by force of the borrower from the mortgaged property that too during the pendency of the legal recourse taken by the borrower as admittedly S.A. No.516 of 2026 is pending adjudication before the Debt Recovery Tribunal and in which a date is fixed.

7. The judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner inre: Dilip Kumar Singh and Another (Supra) rendered by the coordinate Bench of this Court while determining issue no.3 it held that there would not be any automatic stay merely by filing the application under Section 17 of the Securitisation And Reconstruction of Financial Assets and Enforcement of Security Interest Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as 'SARFAESI Act') and also that the Tribunal can impose a condition relating to deposit. The relevant paragraph of the said judgment reads as under:

"17. We accordingly hold that there will be no automatic stay on filing of an application under Section 17 of the Securitisation Act, and the Tribunal while granting stay of auction can impose a condition relating to deposit. Re. Question (iii)"

8. Thus the reliance of the learned counsel that this judgment empowers this Court to direct dispossession of borrower of secured asset is misplaced. There is no doubt that the Additional District Magistrate (Finance and Revenue) has to proceed for dis-possession once an application under Section 14 of the Act is made and the said Act is a ministerial act but it is always upon to the concerned authority to fix priority as per the number of cases pending before it.

9. A coordinate Bench of this Court inre: Alishad Usmani and others vs. Ali Isteba and Ors.2 has held that it would be most inappropriate to Court to entertain the writ petition under Article 226 or under Article 227 of the Constitution of India simply for the purpose of expediting hearing of cases as it would create a class of litigants who moved the Court in a separate and preferential category, whereas other cases which may be of similar or greater antiquity and urgency are left to be decided in the normal channel. The relevant paragraph of the judgment reads as under:

1. "…...It would be most inappropriate to Court to entertain a writ petition under Article 226 and/or under Article 227 of the Constitution simply for the purpose of expediting the hearing of a suit. Such orders, if granted, place a class of litigants, who move the court in a separate and preferential category whereas other cases which may be of similar or greater antiquity and urgency are left to be decided in the normal channel…."

10. The same view has also been expressed by the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court inre: High Court Bar Association, Allahabad vs. State of U.P. and Others3. The relevant paragraph reads as under:

"42. Therefore, constitutional Courts should not normally fix a time-bound schedule for disposal of cases pending in any Court. The pattern of pendency of various categories of cases pending in every Court, including High Courts, is different. The situation at the grassroots level is better known to the judges of the concerned Courts. Therefore, the issue of giving out-of- turn priority to certain cases should be best left to the concerned Courts. The orders fixing the outer limit for the disposal of cases should be passed only in exceptional circumstances to meet extraordinary situations.

43. There is another important reason for adopting the said approach. Not every litigant can easily afford to file proceedings in the constitutional Courts. Those litigants who can afford to approach the constitutional Courts cannot be allowed to take undue advantage by getting an order directing out-of-turn disposal of their cases while all other litigants patiently wait in the queue for their turn to come. The Courts, superior in the judicial hierarchy, cannot interfere with the day-to-day functioning of the other Courts by directing that only certain cases should be decided out of turn within a time frame. In a sense, no Court of law is inferior to the other. This Court is not superior to the High Courts in the judicial hierarchy. Therefore, the Judges of the High Courts should be allowed to set their priorities on a rational basis. Thus, as far as setting the outer limit is concerned, it should be best left to the concerned Courts unless there are very extraordinary circumstances."

11. Nothing has been brought on record to demonstrate the number of matters which are pending before the concerned SDM to which such a direction is sought to be issued by the petitioner.

12. Thus it would be in the fitness of thing that as the S.A. No.516 of 2016 is pending before the Debt Recovery Tribunal with a specific date fixed as 24.09.2026 then the respondent no.3/Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue) be left to determine the manner in which he decides to proceed, although it is expected from the authority that it would be adhering to the statutory provision and law laid down in that regard.

13. In this view of the matter, we do not find it as a fit case to exercise our discretion. The writ petition is accordingly, dismissed.

14. No order as to costs.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether public authorities can routinely deny or refuse to issue/renew a Character Certificate merely because a minor criminal case involving non-heinous offenses is pending?
(b) How should authorities handle character verification when criminal cases are pending or disclosed?

Headnotes

A. Civil Law – Cancellation of candidature – character certificate - On 04.01.2021, the petitioner submitted an application to the District Magistrate, Jalaun at Orai (Respondent No. 2), seeking the renewal/issuance of a Character Certificate. On 01.11.2021, the District Magistrate rejected the application on the sole ground that Case Crime No. 913 of 2018 u/Ss 323 (voluntarily causing hurt), 504 (intentional insult), and 506 (criminal intimidation) of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) was pending against the petitioner. The petitioner approached the High Court via Article 226 seeking a writ of certiorari to quash the rejection order dated 01.11.2021 and a mandamus directing the authorities to issue/renew the Character Certificate.

B. In case when fact has been truthfully declared in character verification form regarding pendency of a criminal case of trivial nature, employer, in facts and circumstances of the case, in its discretion may appoint the candidate subject to decision of such case. (Para 6)

In the present case the prayer to grant character certificate in favour of the petitioner was rejected due to pendency of Case Crime No.913 of 2018 u/Ss 323, 504 and 506 IPC. Due to pendency of the aforesaid case, the application for grant of character certificate could not be rejected. (Para 9, 10)

Order dated 01.11.2021 passed by respondent no.2 is hereby quashed.

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties
For Petitioner(s): Ajay Sengar, Mritunjay Verma, Vishnu Kant Tiwari
For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Saran, J.)

1. Heard Sri Amit Kumar Singh holding brief of Sri Vishnu Kant Tiwari, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. The present writ petition has been filed by the petitioner with the prayer to call for the records and quash the impugned order dated 01.11.2021 passed by respondent no.3 rejecting the application for renewal of the Character Certificate as renewed earlier and further to direct the respondent no.2 to consider and pass a fresh order in accordance with law upon the application dated 4.1.2021 submitted by the petitioner for issuance of the Character Certificate as issued earlier.

3. It is informed by learned counsel for the petitioner that he does not wish to file rejoinder affidavit in response the counter affidavit filed by the learned Standing Counsel on behalf of respondent no.2.

4. In para no.23 of the counter affidavit it is stated that the petitioner is not entitled to have any relief from this Hon'ble Court, hence petition is liable to be dismissed.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that application for grant of Character Certificate to the petitioner was rejected by the District Magistrate, Jalaun at Orai/Respondent No.2 vide order dated 01.11.2021, hence present writ petition has been filed. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgement and order dated 28.05.2025 passed in Writ-C No.718 of 2025, Anil Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and others (Neutral Citation No.2025:AHC-LKO:32272-DB) along with connected matters. He has placed reliance upon para no.19 and 20 of the aforesaid judgement which reads as follows:-

"19. In this case also on account of pendency of a criminal case bearing Case Crime No.138 of 2018 under Section 323, 504 and 506 IPC issuance of character certificate to the petitioner has been declined.

20. In view of the reasons already given by us in our order dated 26.05.2025, the impugned order is quashed. The concerned authority whether it is Superintendent of Police or the District Magistrate should issue a certificate on the format mentioned in the above quoted order and in terms thereof, within a period of three weeks from the date a certified copy of this order is submitted."

6. It is thus argued that the application for grant of Character Certificate having been rejected before the order of acquittal was passed by the Criminal Law Court, the respondent is required to revisit the decision in the light of the law laid down in the case of Avatar Singh v. Union of India, 2016 (8) SCC 471 and the principle enunciated vide paragraph 38 runs as follows:

"38.1 Information given to the employer by a candidate as to conviction, acquittal or arrest, or pendency of a criminal case, whether before or after entering into service must be true and there should be no suppression or false mention of required information.

38.2. While passing order of termination of services or cancellation of candidature for giving false information, the employer may take notice of special circumstances of the case, if any, while giving such information.

38.3. The employer shall take into consideration the Government orders/instructions/rules, applicable to the employee, at the time of taking the decision.

38.4. In case there is suppression or false information of involvement in a criminal case where conviction or acquittal had already been recorded before filling of the application/verification form and such fact later comes to knowledge of employer, any of the following recourse appropriate to the case may be adopted :

38.4.1. In a case trivial in nature in which conviction had been recorded, such as shouting slogans at young age or for a petty offence which if disclosed would not have rendered an incumbent unfit for post in question, the employer may, in its discretion, ignore such suppression of fact or false information by condoning the lapse.

38.4.2 Where conviction has been recorded in case which is not trivial in nature, employer may cancel candidature or terminate services of the employee.

38.4.3 If acquittal had already been recorded in a case involving moral turpitude or offence of heinous/serious nature, on technical ground and it is not a case of clean acquittal, or benefit of reasonable doubt has been given, the employer may consider all relevant facts available as to antecedents, and may take appropriate decision as to the continuance of the employee.

38.5. In a case where the employee has made declaration truthfully of a concluded criminal case, the employer still has the right to consider antecedents, and cannot be compelled to appoint the candidate.

38.6. In case when fact has been truthfully declared in character verification form regarding pendency of a criminal case of trivial nature, employer, in facts and circumstances of the case, in its discretion may appoint the candidate subject to decision of such case.

38.7. In a case of deliberate suppression of fact with respect to multiple pending cases such false information by itself will assume significance and an employer may pass appropriate order cancelling candidature or terminating services as appointment of a person against whom multiple criminal cases were pending may not be proper.

38.8. If criminal case was pending but not known to the candidate at the time of filling the form, still it may have adverse impact and the appointing authority would take decision after considering the seriousness of the crime.

38.9. In case the employee is confirmed in service, holding Departmental enquiry would be necessary before passing order of termination/removal or dismissal on the ground of suppression or submitting false information in verification form.

38.10. For determining suppression or false information attestation/verification form has to be specific, not vague. Only such information which was required to be specifically mentioned has to be disclosed. If information not asked for but is relevant comes to knowledge of the employer the same can be considered in an objective manner while addressing the question of fitness. However, in such cases action cannot be taken on basis of suppression or submitting false information as to a fact which was not even asked for.

38.11. Before a person is held guilty of suppressio veri or suggestio falsi, knowledge of the fact must be attributable to him."

7. It is submitted further that in identical set of facts, writ petition was filed by one Naveen Rajhansh being writ A No. 6543 of 2023, (Naveen Rajhans, State of U.P and 5 Others), decided on 28.4.2023, who was selected in Civil Police, but was not being offered appointment only on account of pending criminal case. This Court considered this aspect of the matter in the light of judgment of Avtar Singh (supra) and allowed the writ petition by setting aside the order with a further direction to process appointment of that petitioner.

8. It was a criminal case instituted in the year 2020 which have been disclosed by the petitioner however, he does not dispute the legal proposition as discussed in the case of Naveen Rajhansh and also another judgment of the High Court in the case of Sonu Yadav v. State of U.P. and 5 Others, Writ A No. 4577 of 2019, decided on 8th January, 2021.

9. In the present case the prayer to grant character certificate in favour of the petitioner was rejected due to pendency of Case Crime No.913 of 2018 under Sections 323, 504 and 506 IPC.

10. From the perusal of the aforesaid judgement, relevant paragraphs of which have already been quoted above, we are of the opinion that due to pendency of the aforesaid case under Section 323, 504 and 506 IPC, the application for grant of character certificate could not be rejected.

11. In this view of the matter, the order dated 01.11.2021 passed by respondent no.2 brought on record as Annexure-10 to the writ petition is hereby quashed.

12. The concerned authority namely District Magistrate should issue a certificate on the format mentioned in the aforesaid judgement and in terms thereof within a period of three weeks from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

13. The writ petition thus stands allowed as above.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner is further directed to place the copy of the certified copy of the judgement as referred above along with copy of this order before the respondent no.2.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether an administrative authority can reject a welfare scheme claim for a train accident by presuming suicide without concrete evidence?
(b) Whether a train accident falls within the scope of covered risks under Clause 5 of the G.O. dated 28.02.2020?

Headnotes

A. Social Security and Welfare Law – On 13.11.2024, Late Kishor Kumar Yadav (husband of the petitioner) died on the spot near Handia Railway Track after being hit by a moving train. The revenue records (Khasra-Khatauni) established that the deceased was a recorded tenure holder and active cultivator (Krishak). Official documents, including the Police G.D. entry, Panchnama, and Post-Mortem Report, confirmed death due to multiple accidental injuries from a moving train, with no indication of foul play or suicide.

Sheela Devi submitted a claim under the Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana (governed by G.O. dated 28.02.2020). However, the DM, Prayagraj, rejected her application on 20.05.2025 via a brief order based on an SDM report, presuming that because the deceased was a driver and died on railway tracks, it was a case of suicide. The petitioner approached the High Court seeking a writ of certiorari to quash the rejection order and a writ of mandamus for the release of admissible compensation.

B. Where there was no material to conclusively establish the probability of suicide, denial of the benefit amounts to an arbitrary exercise of discretion, based on a purely mechanical presumption against the petitioner, in deciding entitlement under a state welfare scheme. The purpose of the welfare scheme is to advance the object of the policy. It appears that the impugned order relies solely on the report of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Handia, District Prayagraj. (Para 13)

The assumption that because the body was found on the tracks, the same cannot be a train accident and has to be attributed to a mens rea of suicide cannot be allowed to stand without any actual evidence of suicide. (Para 14)

In case of death or disability also, the benefits would not be given if the same has occurred due to suicide or it is the outcome of any crime. In the facts of the case, there is absolutely no evidence to show that the death of Late Kishor Kumar Yadav falls under any of the exceptions particularly when they could not find any evidence to prove that the death was a suicide, which cannot be the justified reason to deny benefits of the scheme to the petitioner. (Para 12)

Impugned order dated 20.05.2025 passed by respondent no. 2, District Magistrate, Prayagraj, is accordingly quashed. The matter is remanded to the District Magistrate, Prayagraj, for fresh consideration. (Para 16)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

For Petitioner(s): Arun Kumar Yadav, Sachin Kanaujiya
For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Garima Prashad, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. This writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed by the petitioner seeking issuance of an appropriate writ, or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 20.05.2025 passed by the respondent no. 2 District Magistrate, Prayagraj, whereby the claim of the petitioner under the 'Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana' has been rejected, and further praying for a direction in the nature of mandamus to the respondent no. 2 to forthwith process and grant the admissible financial assistance/compensation to the petitioner under the aforesaid scheme.

3. Brief facts of the case are that on 13.11.2024, the husband of the petitioner, namely Late Kishor Kumar Yadav met with a tragic train accident near Handia Railway Track and died on the spot after being hit by a moving train. The incident was duly reported to the local police and the concerned railway authorities.

4. It is a matter of fact that the State Government has brought a welfare scheme known as 'Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana' to provide financial assistance to the families of farmers who die in accidents. In this regard, the Additional Chief Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, issued a Government Order dated 28.02.2020 laying down the guidelines for extending benefits under the said scheme. Accordingly, after the death of her husband, the petitioner submitted a claim under the aforesaid scheme after completing all required formalities.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner contends that the petitioner submitted an application before the Tehsil Office, Handia under the Mukhya Mantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna, 2020, enclosing all necessary documents stating that her husband Kishor Kumar Yadav died accidentally after being hit by a train near Handia Railway Track. It is stated that the Death Certificate of the deceased Kishor Kumar Yadav, issued by the competent authority on 02.12.2024, confirms that the death occurred due to accidental injuries.

6. It was further submitted that the Family Register (Parivar Register) issued by the competent revenue authority on 18.12.2024 recorded the names of the deceased Kishor Kumar Yadav and his legal heirs, including the petitioner, thereby establishing the petitioner's status as the lawful heir entitled to claim benefits under the Mukhya Mantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna, 2020. As per the Police G.D. entry report, it has been clearly recorded that the deceased Kishor Kumar Yadav died due to grievous injuries sustained in a train accident and pursuant thereto, a Panchnama was prepared and Post-Mortem Examination conducted on 14.11.2024, which establishes that the cause of death was accidental in nature resulting from multiple injuries for being hit by a moving train. There is no finding of suicide or any other foul play by a third party, thereby substantiating that the death squarely falls within the ambit of an "accidental death" as defined under Clause 2 of the Mukhya Mantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna, 2020.

7. It was also contended on behalf of the petitioner that the Khasra-Khatauni of the agricultural holding standing in the name of the deceased Kishor Kumar Yadav clearly demonstrated that he was a recorded tenure holder and an active cultivator of agricultural land. The said revenue record established beyond doubt that the deceased was a "Krishak" (farmer) within the meaning of the Mukhya Mantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojna, 2020 and, therefore, fully eligible to claim the benefits under the said welfare scheme.

8. Learned counsel representing the State authorities attempted to defend the impugned order and submitted that the husband of the petitioner was a driver and that it was a case of suicide, which was outside the scope of the benefits provided under the Scheme. However, he could not demonstrate any documentary evidence leading to the conclusion that it was a case of suicide and not an accidental death.

9. As appeared from the records that the accidental death of the deceased Kishor Kumar Yadav was not under dispute and it was also not disputed that he was depending upon farming for his livelihood and that he was sole bread earner of his family. The death certificate annexed with the petition demonstrated the accidental injuries that could have been considered as conclusive evidence of the accidental death.

10. After perusal of records, it also appears that the order dated 20.05.2025 was passed in a cursory manner with a single line that relying on the report of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Handia, District Prayagraj, it was decided that the deceased was a driver and since he had died in a train accident it was a case of suicide.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the Additional Chief Secretary U.P. Government has issued Government Order dated 28.02.2020 for determination of the guidelines for providing benefits under the scheme of "Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana" and present case is fully covered under Clause 2 of the Government Order dated 28.02.2020. Relevant part of the guideline is reproduced below for ready reference:

"Subject: Guidelines for the implementation of the "Chief Minister's Farmer Accident Welfare Scheme" in case of accidental death/disability of farmers in Uttar Pradesh.

The State Government has decided to implement the "Chief Minister's Farmer Accident Welfare Scheme" with the objective of providing social security to the families of farmers in case of accidental death or disability. The following guidelines are being issued for this purpose:

1. This scheme will be effective from September 14, 2019.

2. Eligibility (Definition of Farmer):

This scheme is for farmers residing in Uttar Pradesh who suffer accidental death or disability. A farmer is defined as follows:

(1) Account holder/co-account holder recorded in the revenue records, i.e., the land register (Khatauni).

OR

(2) Earning members of the account holder/co-account holder's family whose primary source of livelihood is agricultural income from the land registered in the name of the account holder/co-account holder.

OR

(3) Landless individuals who cultivate land obtained on lease or on a sharecropping basis, and whose main source of livelihood is agriculture on such leased or sharecropped land. Lessees include tenant farmers, government lessees, and private lessees.

4. Age:

The farmer's age should be between 18 and 70 years on the date of death/disability.

5. Coverage of the Scheme:

(1) If a farmer suffers accidental death/disability due to fire, flood, lightning, electric shock, snakebite, attack/injury by animals/creatures, drowning in the sea, river, lake, pond, or well, storm, falling from or being crushed by a tree, house collapse, accident involving train/road/aircraft/other vehicles, landslide, earthquake, gas leak, explosion, falling into a sewer chamber, or any other cause, then financial assistance will be provided to the farmer/legal heir(s) under this scheme."

12. After reading relevant provisions in the policy and the clause explaining coverage of the scheme, it is clear that in case of death or disability also, the benefits would not be given if the same has occurred due to suicide or it is the outcome of any crime. In the facts of the case, there is absolutely no evidence to show that the death of Late Kishor Kumar Yadav falls under any of these exceptions particularly when they could not find any evidence to prove that the death was a suicide, which cannot be the justified reason to deny benefits of the scheme to the petitioner.

13. It appears that the impugned order relies solely on the report of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Handia, District Prayagraj. The purpose of the welfare scheme is to advance the object of the policy. Where there was no material to conclusively establish the probability of suicide, denial of the benefit amounts to an arbitrary exercise of discretion, based on a purely mechanical presumption against the petitioner, in deciding entitlement under a state welfare scheme.

14. This Court in case of Manoj Kumar vs. State of U.P., Neutral Citation No. 2025:AHC-LKO:75301-DB, has considered similar issue and held as under:- " The assumption that because the body was found on the tracks, the same cannot be a train accident and has to be attributed to a mens rea of suicide cannot be allowed to stand without any actual evidence of suicide."

15. In Gayatri Devi vs. State of U.P. and Others, 2025 SCC OnLine All 8086 has also relied upon judgement of the Supreme Court in Union of India Vs Prabhakaran Vijaya Kumar, (2008) 9 SCC 527, and thereafter held that:

22. In view of the above discussion, this Court is of the considered view that the rejection of the petitioner's claim is based on an unduly drawn narrow interpretation of the scheme and merely based on assumptions not supported by proper enquiry, and therefore, the writ petition deserves to be allowed and is hereby allowed. The impugned order dated 25.08.2021 passed by the respondent no. 2, District Magistrate, Kannauj, rejecting the petitioner's claim under the 'Mukhyamantri Krishak Durghatna Kalyan Yojana' and the information order dated 31.07.2021 issued by respondent no. 3 are hereby quashed. The matter is remanded to the District Magistrate, Kannauj, to reconsider the petitioner's claim afresh in accordance with law and in the light of the observations made hereinabove, after affording an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner and after conducting a proper enquiry, if required. The said exercise shall be completed expeditiously, preferably within a period of eight weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order. No order as to costs."

16. In view of the above legal proposition which is fully applicable to the facts of this case, in our considered view, the writ petition deserves to be allowed. Thus the writ petition is allowed and the impugned order dated 20.5.2025 passed by respondent no. 2, District Magistrate, Prayagraj, is accordingly quashed insofar as it relates to the petitioner's application regarding deceased Kishor Kumar Yadav. The matter is remanded to the District Magistrate, Prayagraj, for fresh consideration of the petitioner's claim on the basis of undisputed material discussed above and in the light of observations made above. The petitioner may file a fresh representation within four weeks from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order, which shall be decided by the competent authority by a reasoned and speaking order within a further period of eight weeks. No order as to costs.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether fishing rights accrue or be legally exercised without the express approval of the DM under the governing Government Order?
(b) Whether administrative practice or local "tradition" can legitimize unauthorized fishing or override explicit statutory provisions and Government Orders?

Headnotes

A. Civil/Revenue Law – Tenders and Contracts – Auction of Fishing Rights - In response to an auction notice dated 13.11.2024 for fishing rights in Sector 9 of the Yamuna River (Tehsil Sadar, District Hamirpur), the petitioner society participated in the auction held on 29.11.2024, emerged as the highest bidder, and deposited the requisite bid amount. The underlying auction notice was challenged in appeal before the Commissioner, Chitrakoot, who quashed the notice on 21.03.2025. Although the High Court subsequently stayed the Commissioner's order in Writ Petition No. 10497 of 2025, the District Magistrate, Hamirpur, never issued a formal approval or executed a lease deed as mandated by Paragraph 8 of the GO dated 10.01.2019.
On 15.12.2025, the SDO Hamirpur rejected the petitioner's representation seeking a refund of the bid amount. The rejection was based on a Fisheries Department inquiry report claiming that, per local "tradition," the petitioner had carried out fishing operations (and sublet the rights) on the strength of being the highest bidder without waiting for formal approval.

B. When a statutory authority is required to do a thing in a particular manner, the same must be done in that manner or not at all. The State and other authority while acting under the said Act are only creator of Statute. They must act within the four-corners thereof. (Para 14, 15)
The GO, admittedly holding the field governing fishing lease, not only creates a right, but simultaneously prescribes the authority competent to exercise such power and the manner in which it is to be exercised. The prescribed procedure, therefore, becomes an indispensable condition precedent to the validity of the proceedings. Any deviation therefrom strikes at the very root of jurisdiction and renders the consequential action legally unsustainable. (Para 13)

Once the GO requires execution of lease in a particular manner and mandates permission for fishing rights, the same is required to be done in that manner only. (Para 12)

The Approval contemplated under the GO dated 10.01.2019 is not an empty formality but constitutes a condition precedent for the accrual of any enforceable right in favour of the highest bidder. Unless such approval is granted and the lease is formally executed, no legal right can be said to have vested in favour of the petitioner. Despite being the highest bidder, the lease in favour of the petitioner for fishing rights was never approved. (Para 9, 11)

If fishing without lease rights were carried out (but same requires stricter proof) but admittedly no report of theft was ever lodged by the authorities, it is an indication of either connivance of authorities with the petitioner or their lackadaisical attitude; and, in both eventualities the responsibility of erring officials was required to be fixed. (Para 10)

C. No prevailing administrative practice or local tradition can override mandatory requirements prescribed under the GO dated 10.01.2019. (Para 16)

Fishing in the absence of a lease, by the petitioner, if at all, done, is nothing less than an offence and requires the State to take suitable recourse to law, may be penal action or recovery of loss and damages permissible under the law. No tradition can legitimize the same having no sanctity of law. The lease rights having not been crystallized as no approval by the District Magistrate was granted, the respondents do not have authority to withhold the bid amount. (Para 17, 18)

The impugned order dated 15.12.2025 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer is accordingly quashed. The respondent no. 3 is directed to refund the bid amount to the petitioner forthwith. (Para 19)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Sanjeev Kumar Saxena
For Respondent(s): C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Sanjeev Kumar Saxena, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Girjesh Kumar Tripathi, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. Feeling aggrieved by the order dated 15.12.2025 passed by Sub-Divisional Officer, Hamirpur, the petitioner has approached this Court challenging the denial of refund of bid amount. The petitioner has further prayed for issuance of writ of mandamus commanding the third respondent i.e. Sub-Divisional Officer Sadar, District Hamirpur, to refund the bid amount.

3. Undisputed facts giving rise to the present writ petition are that the petitioner's society participated in auction proceedings held on 29.11.2024 in pursuance of Auction notice dated 13.11.2024 for fishing rights qua Sector 9 of Yamuna River flowing in Tehsil Sadar, District Hamirpur. The petitioner emerged as the highest bidder and deposited the bid amount accordingly, but the lease rights could not fructify into a formal lease agreement by giving it the shape of a formal agreement as warranted by paragraph no. 8 of Government Order dated 10th January, 2019, which requires that, if the allotment of fishing rights is as per rule and procedure prescribed, the District Magistrate shall accord his approval. The advertisement dated 13.11.2024 published for fishing rights of Sector 9 of Yamuna River was the subject matter of challenge in appeal, bearing no. 168 of 2025 under Section 207 of U.P. Revenue Code, before Commissioner Chitrakoot, Banda Division. The said appeal was allowed, and the auction notice dated 13.11.2024 was quashed. Thereafter, the order dated 13.11.2024 passed by the Commissioner was put to challenge by means of Writ Petition No. 10497 of 2025, and this Court stayed the operation and implementation of the order dated 21.03.2025 passed by the Commissioner. The fishing rights/lease allotted to the petitioner could not be settled in favour of the petitioner in the absence of approval by the District Magistrate, Hamirpur, owing to litigation before the Commissioner and thereafter before this Court.

4. Petitioner filed Writ Petition No. 23860 of 2025 before this Hon'ble Court seeking refund of the bid amount on the ground that despite being declared the highest bidder, he was prevented from lawfully exercising fishing rights owing to the absence of statutory approval by the District Magistrate. The said writ petition was decided vide order dated 06.08.2025 requiring the third respondent to take a decision on the representation of petitioner.

5. In compliance of the order dated 06.08.2025 passed in Writ Petition No. 23860 of 2025, the third respondent passed the order impugned dated 15.12.2025 declining refund of the bid amount only on the ground that once the petitioner was declared the highest bidder, he started enjoying fishing rights without waiting for a formal approval by the District Magistrate.

6. While challenging the impugned order, the learned counsel for the petitioner contended that once the order passed by Commissioner quashing the auction notice/advertisement dated 13.11.2024 was stayed, it was incumbent upon the second respondent/District Magistrate to approve the lease rights in favour of petitioner but on one hand, the petitioner was not permitted to fish and on the other hand, his bid amount has wrongly been withheld by the State authorities which is nothing but an unjust enrichment of the State at the expense of the petitioner.

7. The further submission advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner is that there is no question of fishing in the absence of approval accorded by the District Magistrate as warranted in terms of Government Order dated 10th January, 2019. The petitioner, having not done fishing, is entitled to his bid amount.

8. On the other hand, learned counsel for the State submitted that an inquiry was conducted to find out whether the petitioner had enjoyed the fishing rights or not. It is evident from the report submitted by the Chief Executive Officer, Department of Fisheries, Hamirpur that on the strength of receipt of the highest bid, the petitioner continued fishing throughout the period, based on tradition. Even the lease was sublet by Secretary of the petitioner's society, and those sublessees were found fishing in the river in question on 11.04.2025; as such, the petitioner has enjoyed the fishing rights. The said letter as submitted by the Chief Executive Officer, Department of Fisheries, Hamirpur addressed to the District Magistrate, Hamirpur, is on record in the shape of Annexure 5 to the counter affidavit. Further submission of learned counsel for the State is that in District Hamirpur, fishing in pursuance of receipt of highest bid is a tradition. Thus, having enjoyed fishing rights, it does not lie in the mouth of the petitioner to ask for a refund of the bid amount.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, it comes out that despite being the highest bidder, the lease in favour of the petitioner for fishing rights was never approved, which is a condition precedent for enjoying fishing rights in terms of paragraph no. 8 of Government Order dated 10th January, 2019, which reads as under :

" यदि जिलाधिकारी का समाधान हो जाता है कि मत्स्य आखेट क्षेत्र को आवंटित करने का निर्णय नियमों के उपबन्धों के अनुसार किया गया है तो जिलाधिकारी पट्टा/नीलामी की की स्वीकृति बिन्दु संख्या 12 में निर्धारित शर्तों के अधीन प्रदान कर देगें।"

10. We fail to understand how in the absence of any approval as required by the Government Order dated 10th January, 2019, the authorities permitted the petitioner to enjoy fishing rights, particularly in the absence of the requisite approval and formal lease deed. The fishing done, if any, at the end of petitioner was nothing less than an offence of theft of state property. If fishing without lease rights were carried out (but same requires stricter proof) but admittedly no report of theft was ever lodged by the authorities, it is an indication of either connivance of authorities with the petitioner or their lackadaisical attitude; and, in both eventualities the responsibility of erring officials was required to be fixed.

11. The Approval contemplated under paragraph 8 of the Government Order dated 10 January 2019 is not an empty formality but constitutes a condition precedent for the accrual of any enforceable right in favour of the highest bidder. Unless such approval is granted and the lease is formally executed, no legal right can be said to have vested in favour of the petitioner.

12. Once the Government Order requires execution of lease in a particular manner and mandates permission for fishing rights, the same is required to be done in that manner only.

13. The Government order, admittedly holding the field governing fishing lease, not only creates a right, but simultaneously prescribes the authority competent to exercise such power and the manner in which it is to be exercised. The prescribed procedure, therefore, becomes an indispensable condition precedent to the validity of the proceedings. Any deviation therefrom strikes at the very root of jurisdiction and renders the consequential action legally unsustainable.

14. It is trite law that where the law prescribes a procedure for doing a thing, the thing has to be done in that manner alone and other ways are necessarily forbidden. This principle has been echoing the horizon of jurisprudence since a very long time, not only in this country but virtually the world over wherever there is an establishment managed under a Constitution with an independent judiciary. As far back as in the year 1936 in the case of Nazir Ahmad Vs. King Emperor; the Privy Council held that a thing required to be done in a particular way has to be done in that way or not at all. This principle consistently has been accepted and adopted by the Indian Courts including the Supreme Court in a catena of decisions, such as, State of U.P. Vs. Singara Singh, and Prabha Shanker Dubey Vs. State of M.P.

15. A larger Bench of the Supreme Court comprising of three Hon'ble Judges, in the case of Bhavnagar University Vs. Palitana Sugar Mill Pvt. Ltd. & others, has held that when a statutory authority is required to do a thing in a particular manner, the same must be done in that manner. In this case, the Supreme Court held:

"It is well settled that when a statutory authority is required to do a thing in a particular manner, the same must be done in that manner or not at all. The State and other authority while acting under the said Act are only creator of Statute. They must act within the four-corners thereof."

16. No prevailing administrative practice or local tradition can override mandatory requirements prescribed under the Government Order dated 10 January 2019.

17. Fishing in the absence of a lease by the petitioner, if at all, done, requires the State to take suitable recourse to law may be penal action or recovery of loss and damages permissible under the law.

18. Fishing in the absence of a lease, by the petitioner, if at all, done, is nothing less than an offence. No tradition can legitimize the same having no sanctity of law. The lease rights having not been crystallized as no approval by the District Magistrate was granted, the respondents do not have authority to withhold the bid amount.

19. In view of the foregoing reasons, the impugned order dated 15th December, 2025 passed by the Sub-Divisional Officer, Hamirpur, is unsustainable and is accordingly quashed. The writ petition is allowed. The respondent no. 3 is directed to refund the bid amount to the petitioner forthwith.

20. No order as to costs.

21. It is needless to mention that if fishing has been done by the petitioner without any authority of law and there is concrete evidence in this regard, the State is always at liberty to seek appropriate remedy prescribed by the law.

THE HON'BLE CHANDRA KUMAR RAI, J.

Writ B No. 9462 of 1979

Pardeshi ...Petitioner
Versus
D.D.C. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the Joint Director of Consolidation exceeded the narrower revisional jurisdiction u/s 48 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (prior to the 10.11.1980 amendment) by improperly setting aside the factual findings recorded by the Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation (ASOC)?
(b) Whether a presumption of a Joint Hindu Family automatically implies a presumption that property acquired by an individual member is Joint Family Property (Karta Khandan), or whether separate acquisition by a member of a joint family remains their exclusive property unless proved to be acquired from joint family funds or thrown into a common hotchpotch?
(c) Upon whom does the burden of proof lie when claiming co-tenancy rights over land after a family partition/separation, and whether the private respondents discharged this burden to prove joint acquisition or representative capacity (Karta)?
(d) Whether co-tenancy rights can be granted based on an ancestor's early revenue entry (Smt. Jhinka @ Chhotka in 1323 Fasli) when there is a complete lack of continuity and identity linking it to the subsequent individual entries (Chetai in 1348, 1353, and 1356 Fasli) after the land re-entered the landlord's possession?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law – U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950: Section 229-B; U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act 1953: Section 9-A(2), 48 - Khata No. 277 (Plot Nos. 34, 35, and 37/1; total area 3-8-3) in Village Baro, Pargana Maghar Basti, District Basti. Recorded exclusively in the name of the petitioners (legal heirs of Chetai) as Sirdar. Respondent Nos. 2 and 3 filed an objection u/s 9-A(2) (U.P.C.H. Act). They claimed that the land was originally acquired by Ghirau (their uncle/common ancestor), passed to his widow Smt. Jhinka @ Chhotka, and was later succeeded jointly by Chetai, Jaglal, and Faujdar. They alleged Chetai was recorded as the Karta (head) of the Joint Hindu Family and sought 1/3rd share each as co-tenants.

The holding was acquired exclusively by Chetai in his individual capacity after a family separation/partition. There was no continuity or identity linking Smt. Jhinka's earlier entry (1323 Fasli) with Chetai's later entries. There was no evidence that the land was acquired using joint family funds.
Consolidation Officer (Order dated 30.05.1978): Allowed the objection of Respondent Nos. 2 & 3, holding that Chetai was recorded as Karta Khandan, and granted co-tenancy rights declaring 1/3rd share each.
Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation (ASOC) (Order dated 29.12.1978): Allowed the appeal of the petitioners. Set aside the CO's order, holding that:

- Revenue records lacked continuity/identity between Smt. Jhinka's 1323 Fasli entry and Chetai's later entries (1348, 1353, and 1356 Fasli).

- The family had already separated, placing the burden of proof on the respondents to show the acquisition was joint, which they failed to do.
- Ordered Khata No. 277 to be recorded exclusively in the name of the petitioners.

Joint Director of Consolidation (Revisional Court) (Order dated 17.08.1979): Allowed the revision filed by Respondent Nos. 2 & 3, setting aside the appellate order and restoring the CO's order granting co-tenancy.

High Court Writ Petition (1979): Petitioners challenged the revisional order dated 17.08.1979 u/Article 226 of the Constitution. Stay on dispossession was granted on 22.11.1979. (Para 8)

B. Any member of joint family can acquire his separate property from his own fund. A member of the joint Hindu family, even if he is joint can possess separate property. Such property belongs exclusively to him and no member of the co-parcenery, not even his male heirs can acquire any interest in it. (Para 15)

There can be presumption of Joint family but there can no presumption of Joint family property. (Para 16)

In present case, appellate court has taken into consideration the revenue entry, duration mentioned in the khatauni as well as fact of non continuity and identity of revenue entry of the Khata in dispute in holding that co-tenancy cannot be allowed in favour of respondent nos.2 and 3. Appellate court also recorded that after separation of family, the settlement was made in favour of petitioners' father Chetai, as such it cannot be said that the name of Chetai was recorded as Karta Khandan. The Joint Director of Consolidation has allowed the revision filed by respondent nos.2 & 3 without reversing the finding of fact recorded by appellate court in proper manner. The perusal of revisional order demonstrate that revisional court has mentioned the duration of entry in 1348 Fasli as one year, but the Khatauni of 1348 Fasli which is annexed along with writ petition as annexure no.1 demonstrate that duration of entry was 9 years, as such the impugned revisional order cannot be sustained in the eye of law. (Para 13)

In the year 1979, the DDC had limited jurisdiction u/s 48 of U.P.C.H. Act, as section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act was amended giving wider power w.e.f. 10.11.1980, as such the revisional order dated 17.08.1979 cannot be sustained on the ground of limited revisional jurisdiction also. (Para 14)

Impugned revisional order dated 17.08.1979 passed by respondent no.1-Joint Director of Consolidation cannot be sustained in the eye of law and is hereby set aside. Order of appellate court dated 29.12.1978 passed by ASOC is hereby maintained. (Para 17)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Shashi Prakash Misra

For Respondent(s): Amit Kumar Singh, Rama Nand Pandey

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Ramesh Chandra as well Mr. Shashi Prakash Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners, Mr.Amit Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the private respondents and Mr. Sanjay Kumar Ray, learned Standing Counsel for the state respondents.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the dispute relates to plot no.34 (2-11-4), plot no.35 (0-8-19) and plot no. 37/1 (0-8-0) total area 3-8-3 of khata no.277, situated in village-Baro, Tappa-Menhdawal, Pargana-Maghar Basti, Tehsil-Khalilabad, District-Basti. In the basic year of consolidation operation, the aforementioned Khata no.277 was recorded in the name of petitioners in exclusive manner as Sirdar. One suit under section 229-B of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as the U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act) was filed by respondent nos.2 and 3 (Jaglal and Faujdar) which was dismissed by trial court vide judgement and decree dated 16.11.1970. Against the judgement and decree of trial court dated 16.11.1970, appeal was filed by respondent nos.2 and 3, which was allowed and matter was remanded back before trial court to decide the suit afresh. During pendency of the suit under section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act village in question came under the consolidation operation accordingly suit under section 229-B of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act was dismissed as abated. Against the basic year entry of Khata in question, an objection under section 9-A (2) of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act 1953 (hereinafter referred as the U.P.C.H. Act) was filed by respondent nos. 2 and 3 with the allegation that Khata in dispute was acquired by Ghirau son of Rupan and after death of Ghirau, Khata in question was recorded in the name of his widow Smt. Jhinka @ Chhotka and after the death of Smt. Jhinka @ Chhotka. Khata in dispute was succeeded by Chetai, Jaglal and Fauzdar, but the Khata in dispute was wrongly recorded in the name of Chetai in cxclusive manner as such respondent nos.2 and 3 be recorded over Khata in dispute along with legal heirs of Chetai. The legal heirs of Chetai. contested the claim of respondent nos.2 and 3 stating that Khata in dispute was acquired by Chetai after the separation taken place between Chetai and his brothers. The claim was also set up by petitioners that the Khata in dispute was not recorded in the name of Smt. Jhinka @ Chhotka as there was no identity and continuity of the holdings of Smt. Jhinka @ Chhotka. The claim was also set up on behalf of petitioners that the present holding is new holding acquired exclusively by Chetai. The claim was also set up by petitioners that there was no pleading of joint acquisition by Chetai and respondent nos.2 and 3 from any joint family fund. Issues were framed before the consolidation officer and parties have adduced evidence in support of their case. Consolidation officer vide order dated 30.5.1978, allowed the objection filed by respondent nos.2 and 3 directing to record the name of respondent nos.2 and as co-tenure holder of Khata nos.277as well as declared 1/3rd share of petitioner, respondent nos.2 and 3. Against the order of Consolidation Officer dated 30.5.1978, an appeal under section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act was filed by petitioners before Settlement Officer of Consolidation. Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation heard the matter and vide order dated 29.12.1978 allowed the appeal filed by petitioners setting aside the order of Consolidation Officer dated 30.5.1978 and directed that Khata no.277 shall be recorded in the name of petitioners in exclusive manner as well as name of respondent nod.2 and 3 was ordered to be expunged. Against the order dated 29.12.1978 revision under Section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act was filed by respondent nos.2 and 3. The aforementioned revision was heard by Joint Director of Consolidation Officer and same was allowed vide order dated 17.8.1979 accepting the claim of co-tenancy set up by respondent nos.2 and 3 setting aside the appellate order and maintaining the order of consolidation officer. Hence this petition on behalf of the petitioners for the following relief:-

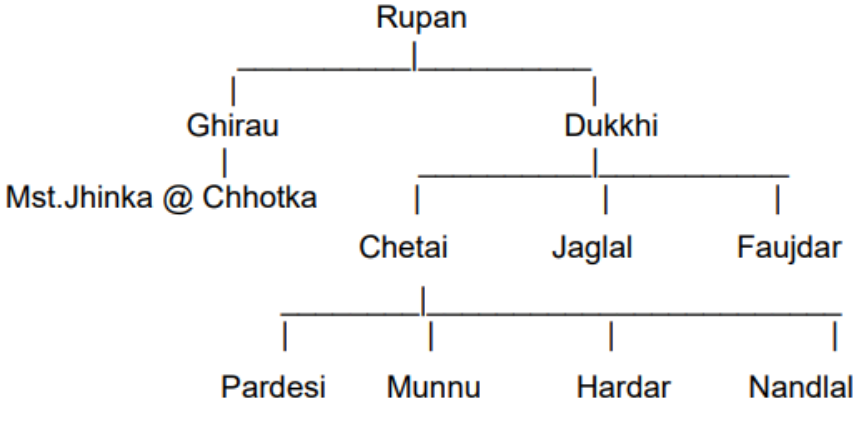
"(i). Issue a writ in the nature of certiorari quashing the order of the respondent no.1 dated 17.8.1979 (Annexue IV) and confirming the order of the Assistant Settlement Officer Consolidation dated 29.12.1978 (Annexure III)."

3. This court admitted the writ petition and dispossession of the petitioners from the land in dispute was stayed vide order dated 22.11.1979.

4. In pursuance of the order dated 22.11.1979, parties have exchanged their pleadings.

5. Learned Counsel for the petitioners submitted that petitioners were recorded in the basic year of consolidation operation over the khata in dispute as khata in dispute was acquired by petitioners' father namely Chetai as his exclusive holding. He submitted that suit under section 229-B of U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act filed by respondent nos.2 and 3 was dismissed as abated due to consolidation operation in the village in question. He submitted that objection under section 9-A (2) of U.P.C.H. Act filed by respondent nos.2 and 3 was allowed in illegal and arbitrary manner granting co-tenancy right to respondent nos.2 and 3 as such title appeal filed on behalf of petitioners was allowed and the order passed by Consolidation Officer was set aside recording finding of fact that Co-tenancy cannot be granted to respondent nos.2 and 3 in the facts and circumstances of the case. He submitted that Deputy Director of Consolidation has exceeded his revisional jurisdiction at the relevant point of time in setting aside the order of Settlement Officer of Consolidation and maintaining the order of Consolidation Officer. He further submitted that there is no continuity and identity of the holding in the name of Smt. Jhinka @ Chotka in 1323 fasli, as such co-tenancy cannot be granted to respondent nos.2 and 3. He submitted that Khata in dispute was acquired by Chetai as such unless cliam for granting co-tenancy is proved in accordance with law, the title objection cannot be allowed by consolidation officer. He further submitted that revisional court has misread and misconstrued the record of the case while passing the impugned revisional order allowing the claim of co-tenancy. He further submitted that statement of witness should be read as a whole to assess its value rather considering the evidence of witnesses in piecemeal. He further submitted that it is settled principle of law that member of joint Hindu family can acquire his property in exclusive manner, as such even being member of joint family, exclusive tenancy right can be acquired by one branch of the family although in the present case there was separation in the family when the settlement of the khata in dispute was made in favour of petitioner's father namely Chetai. He submitted that impugned revisional order passed by Director of Consolidation should be set aside and the order passed by Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation should be maintained.



6. On the other hand, learned counsel for the private respondents submitted that name of Chetai was recorded over the Khata in dispute being eldest member of family as karta khandan as such there is no illegality in granting co-tenancy to respondent nos.2 and 3, who are real brothers of Chetai. He submitted that Consolidation Officer after framing issues and considering the evidence on record has held that name of Chetai was recorded over Khata in dispute in the capacity of Karta Khandan as such respondent nos.2 and 3, who are real brothers of Chetai are entitled to co-tenancy right but the order of Consolidation Officer has been illegally set aside in appeal by Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation, accordingly Joint Director of Consolidation has rightly set aside the order of Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation and maintained order of Consolidation Officer granting co-tenancy right to respondent nos.2 and 3. He submitted that Joint Director of Consolidation has not exceeded his revisional jurisdiction rather exercise revisional power in maintaining the order of Consolidation Officer which was passed considering the evidence on record granting co-tenancy right to respondent nos.2 and 3. He submitted that no interference is required against the impugned order passed by Joint Director of Consolidation under section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act and writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

7. I have considered the arguments advanced by the counsel for the parties and perused record.

8. There is no dispute about the fact that in the basic year of consolidation operation, petitioners who are sons of Chetai were recorded. There is also no dispute about the fact that against the basic year entry of Khata in dispute, an objection under section 9-A(2) of U.P.C.H. Act filed by respondent nos.2 and 3 for granting co-tenancy right was allowed by consolidation officer vide order dated 30.5.1978. There is also no dispute about the fact that title appeal filed by petitioners was allowed by Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation vide order dated 29.12.1978 setting aside the order of Consolidation Officer dated 30.05.1978. There is also no dispute about the fact that revision filed by respondent nos.2 and 3 was allowed by Joint Director of Consolidation vide order dated 17.8.1979 setting aside the appellate order dated 29.12.1978 and maintaining the order of Consolidation Officer dated 30.5.1978.

9. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the matter, perusal of family pedigree as mentioned in paragraph no.2 of writ petition will be necessary, which is as under:-

10. The aforementioned family pedigree is not disputed between the parties.

11. The perusal of two issues framed before the consolidation officer will be also necessary, which is as under:-

1. क्या जगलाल व औतार विविदित खाता के सहखातेदार व कब्ज़ा है

2. यदि हां तो पक्षो का अंश क्या है?

12. The Consolidation officer, considering the evidence, has held that name of Chetai was recorded over Khata in dispute as Karta Khandan, as such respondent nos.2 and 3 will be entitled to co-tenancy right over Khata in dispute. The assistant settlement officer of consolidation, while deciding the appeal filed by petitioners, has considered the question of granting co-tenancy right in detail in the light of revenue entry of plot in question, as such perusal of relevant portion of the appellate order will be necessary, which is as under:-

"उपरोक्त वंशवृक्ष पक्षो को स्वीकार है। अपीलान्ट का कथन कि विवादित गाटा तनहा चेतई ने पैदा किया। उत्तरवादी के तरफ से नकल खतौनी १३१३ फ० दाखिल है जिसमे स्पष्ट है कि विवादित गाटा छोटका विधवा घिराऊ के नाम काश्तकार दखीलकार दर्ज है (उत्तरवादीगण) ने आपत्ति के पैरा ग्राफ २ में कहा कि विवादित गाटा घिराऊ ने पैदा करायी थी और उनके मरने के बाद श्रीमती झीनका उर्फ छोटका के नाम दर्ज हुई और उनके मरने के बाद फरीकन को मिली बयान में कहा गया है कि जमीन निजाई दुखी व घिराऊ की पैदा करायी है उनके मरने के वाद विवादित गाटा झीनका और उनकी औरत को मिली तथा झीनका के मरने के वाद उभय पक्ष को मिली। अपीलान्ट परदेशी ने अपने बयान में कहा है कि विवादित गाटा उनके वाप चेतई की पैदा की हुई है।

परदेशी का आराजी निजाई के अलावा मेरे वावा की पैदा की हुई कुछ भी नही है' का अर्थ विद्धान चक्वन्दी अधिकारी ने गलत लगाया है आराजी निजाई के वावत परदेशी ने पहले ही कह दिया है कि उसके पिता चेतई की पैदा किया हुआ है उसके उपरोक्त वयान से यह स्पष्ट होता है कि आराजी निजाई के अलावा भो उसके वाबा की पैदा की हुई कुछ नहीं है अर्थर्थात पूर्वजो की पैदा की हुई भूमि विवादित ग्राम कुछ नही है। भार आपत्तिक्ता पर था कि वर सावित करता कि परिवार सम्मिलित अविभक्त हिन्दू परिवार था और अविभक्त हिन्दू परिवार के उपार्जन से विवादित गाटा खरीदा गया अथवा उपार्जित किया गया। अपीलान्ट का कथन है कि विभाजन वहुत पहले हो गया था जवकि फौजदार ने अपने बयान ने कहा है कि आराजी निजाई घिराऊ व दुखी की पैदा की हुई है दोनो आदमी एक मे रहते थे बड़ा घिराऊ थे। बड़ा होने के नाते उनका नाम दर्ज हो गया। उत्तरवादी फौजदार तथा उनके गवाह जगलाल के बयान से स्पष् है कि पक्ष फाट कर विवादित गाटा को जोतते है अतः पक्षों की अलहदगी हो गयी है। जव एक बार हिंदू परिवार विभक्त हो गया तो भार उस व्यक्ति पर है जो कहता है कि विवादित गाटा के पैदा होने के समय परिवार संयुक्त था । उत्तरवादीगण के साक्ष्य के देखने से स्पष्ट है कि उत्तरवादीगण यह सावित करने में असमर्थ है कि जव विवादित गाटा पैदा किया गया उस समय परिबार संयुक्त था ।

विद्वान अधिवक्ता उत्तरवादी ने १९६४ आर०डी० पेज ७०, १९६८ आर०डी० पेज ३६६ ए० ३०आर० १९५६ सुप्रिम कोर्ट पेज ६०६ वाम्वे लिाया परन्तु उक्त कटिंग इस बाद पर नही लागू होगी। १९६४-२१० डी० पेज ७० इसलिये इच्वाद पर लागू नहीं होगा

क्योंकि इस वाद मे यह साबित नहीं है कि वादी गण (उत्तरवादी गण) का कब्जा विवादित गाटो पर उनके अँश के अनुसार सावित नही है और न यह सावित है कि विवादित गाटा ज्वाइन्ट फोमली प्रापटी है । १९६८ आर०डी० पेज ३६६, ३सलिये नही लागू होगा क्योंकि विवादित गाटा १२८२ फसली अथवा उसके पूर्व के की पैदा की हुई नहीं है और पत्रावली मे न ऐसा कोई साक्ष्य है। १९५६ २० आ.०आर० सुप्रिम कोर्ट पेज २०६ भी इस वाद पर नही लागू होगा क्यों कि विवादित गाटा कर्ता सानान हिन्दू परिवार द्वारा पैदा करना सावित नही है

उपरोक्त के विपरीत विवादित गाटा १३२३ फ० मे छोटका विधवा घिराऊ के नाम अंकित है काश्तकार दखोलकार । १३४८ फ० में विवादित गाटा अपीलान्ट के पिता चैतई, १ वर्षा मुद्दत कर दे दर्ज है १५६ फ० मे विवादित गाटा चैतई, के नाम म० १७ वर्षो करके दर्ज है। १३५३ फ०में विवादित गाटा जमन ८ मु० २० वर्ष करके अपीलान्ट के पिता चैतई, का नाम अंकित है इससे स्पष्ट है कि विवादित गाटा १३३६ फ० में चेतइ अपीलान्ट के पिता ने पैदा किया जो ९३२३ फ० से (कनेक्ट) नहीं होता। यदि अपीलान्ट श्रीमती छोटका से वरासतन पाते तो इन्द्राज मुताविक ९३२३ फ० के होता । १३२३ फ० के मुद्दत से १३४८ फ० १३५६ फ० १३५६ फ० के मुद्दत से लिंक नही करता है। उत्तरवादी गण का यह कथन नही है कि वे श्रीमती छोटका के वारिस थे और न यही साक्ष्य है कि श्रीमती छोटका कब मरी विवादित गाटा अपीलान्ट के पिता चैतई, के नाम १३८८ फ० मे मुद्दत १ वर्ष करके दर्ज है भार उत्तरवादी गण पर है कि वे साबित करें कि विवादित गाटा कामन एनसेस्टर द्वारा पैदा किया गया था रिप्रजेन्टेटिव कैपेसिटी में पैदा किया गया।

१९७८ आर० डी० पेज१ मे सीरदारी गाटा के वावत यह मत व्यक्त किया गया हैकि -

It is also settled that members of the joint Hindu family even if he is joint co-possession separate property such property belongs exclusively to him and no members of the co-possessary can claim any interest.

सर्व प्रथम उत्तरवादी गण यह सावित करने में असमर्थ रहे कि विवादित गाटा घिराऊ ने रिप्रजेन्टेटिव कैपेसिटी मे विवादित गाटो को पैदा किया । इसके अलावा घिराऊ की पत्नी श्रीमती छोटका के मृत्यु के पश्चात विवादित गाटा चेतई के नाम तनहा दर्ज हुआ और भिन्न मुद्दत के साथ इसने स्पष्ट हो कि कान्टीनियुटी समाप्त हो गयी। श्रीमती छोटका के मृत्यु के पश्चात जमींदारान ने विवादित गाटा पर कब्जा कर लिया होगा और नेतई के नाम तनहा इंतजाम किया होगा। उत्तरवादी गण का यह केस नहीं है कि चेतई के साथ इंतजाम रिप्रेजेन्टेटिव कैपेसिटी में हुआ। अतः मैं इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुंचा कि विवादित गाटा तनहा अपीलान्ट का है उत्तर वादी गण सहखातेदार नही है अपील मे बल है और स्वीकार होने योग्य है।

अपील स्वीकार की जाती है विद्वान चकबन्दी अधिकारी का निर्णय दिनांक ३०-५-७८ निरस्त किया जाता है। खाता संख्या २७७ अपीलान्ट परदेशी आदि के नाम तनहा दर्ज रहेगा और उत्तरवादी गण जगलाल आदि के सहखातेदार का विवाद खारिज होगा।

13. Perusal of finding of fact recorded by Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation as quoted above demonstrate that appellate court has taken into consideration the revenue entry, duration mentioned in the khatauni as well as fact of non continiuty and identity of revenue entry of the Khata in dispute in holding that co-tenancy cannot be allowed in favour of respondent nos.2 and

3. The finding of fact has also been recorded by appellate court that after separation of family, the settlement was made in favour of petitioners' father Chetai, as such it cannot be said that the name of Chetai was recorded as Karta Khandan. The Joint Director of Consolidation has allowed the revision filed by respondent nos.2 & 3 without reversing the finding of fact recorded by appellate court in proper manner. The perusal of revisional order demonstrate that revisional court has mentioned the duration of entry in 1348 Fasli as one year, but the Khatauni of 1348 Fasli which is annexed along with writ petition as annexure no.1 demonstrate that duration of entry was 9 years, as such the impugned revisional order cannot be sustained in the eye of law.

14. It is also material to mention that in the year 1979, the Deputy Director of Consolidation was having limited jurisdiction under section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act, as section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act was amended giving wider power with effect from 10.11.1980, as such the revisional order dated 17.8.1979 cannot be sustained on the ground of limited revisional jurisdiction also.

15. It is also well settled principle of law that any member of joint family can acquire his separate property from his own fund as held by this court in the case reported in 1978 RD 1 Ram Chandra Dubey and another vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Deoria and others. Paragraph nos. 20, 21, 22 and 23 of judgment will be relevant for perusal, which are as under:-

"20. Accordingly, I find that the view taken by the Consolidation Authorities that the land belongs to the joint family and that the respondent No. 4 had half share in Khata No. 50 is correct and does not call for interference. Hence the mere fact that the sale-deed was executed in favour of the petitioners alone, that would not mean that the respondent No. 4 would not be entitled to get the right of Bhumidhar along with them.

21. So far as Khata Nos. 95-A and 95-B are concerned, the same were also entered in the name of Sarju as his Sirdari. It is also settled that a member of the joint Hindu family, even if he is joint can possess separate property. Such property belongs exclusively to him and no member of the co-parcenery, not even his male heirs can acquire any interest in it. Accordingly even if it is correct that the petitioners were the members of the joint family of which the respondent No. 4 was also a co-parcener, the same would not entitle respondent No. 4 to get rights of a sirdar over the disputed land. The Settlement Officer and the Deputy Director of Consolidation held the respondent No. 4 to be the sirdar of this Khata simply on the basis that he was a member of the joint family. None of the two authorities found any evidence on record to show that the property was either acquired by respondent No. 4 along with the petitioner or that the petitioners threw it into the common hotch-potch. The claim of the respondent No. 4, therefore, over these plots simply on the basis that as both the parties were living jointly, therefore, the property must be held to be the joint property of all cannot be accepted. The sub-mission of the learned counsel for the respondent No. 4 that the name of Sarju was recorded in the representative capacity because he was the Karta of the family cannot also be accepted inasmuch as there is no evidence on record to prove that the land of these two Khatas was ever treated by the petitioners or the respondent No. 4 as that of the joint family. Accordingly, the claim of respondent No. 4 with regard to Khata Nos. 95-A and 95-B cannot be upheld.

22. In the result, the writ petition succeeds in part and is accordingly allowed. The judgments of the Settlement Officer, Consolidation and that of the Deputy Director of Consolidation with regard to Khata No. 50 is upheld but that of sirdari Khata Nos. 95-A and 95-B are quashed. Consequently, the judgment of the Consolidation Officer is restored. In the circumstances of the case the parties shall bear their own costs.

23. Petition partly allowed."

16. This Court in another case reported in 1978 RD 51 Bala Charan and others Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others has held that there can be presumption of Joint family but there can no presumption of Joint family property. paragraph nos.6, 7 and 8 of the judgment renderedin Bala Charan (Supra) will be relevant for persual, which are as under:-

"6. In the case in hand no evidence was adduced on behalf of the opposite parties that there was nucleus from which the plots in question were acquired. It was not proved that the Patta was acquired out of the joint family funds, nor was it established that the income raised out of the plots in question was utilised by the other members of the joint Hindu family, nor any effort was made to show that the plots in question were blended with the joint family property and the opposite parties had thus acquired co-tenancy rights therein. The fact that the plots standing in the name of Mitthoo were held to be joint family property would not go to prove that the plots in question which stood in the name of Thakur were also joint family property. The Deputy Director of Consolidation had thus erred in holding that the opposite parties had acquired co-tenancy rights in the said plots. The Consolidation Officer had also erred likewise. In my view the Settlement Officer (Consolidation) had applied the correct principles of law to the facts of the case. The orders passed by the Deputy Director as also the Consolidation Officer cannot, therefore, be maintained.

7. In the result, the petition is allowed with costs. The order dated 23-7-1968 passed by the Consolidation Officer and the order dated 5-8-1970 passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation are quashed. The order dated 8-11-1968 passed by the Settlement Officer (Consolidation) is restored.

8. Petition allowed."

17. Considering the findings of fact recorded by Assistant Settlement officer of Consolidation while deciding the appeal under section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act, revenue entry of plot in question demonstrate that there is no identity and continuity of in dispute jurisdiction of revisional court under section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act in the year 1979 as well as the ratio of law laid down by this court in Ram Chandra Dubey (supra) & Bala Charan (Supra), the impugned revisional order dated 17.8.1979 passed by respondent no.1-Joint Director of Consolidation cannot be sustained in the eye of law as such the same is hereby set aside.

18. The writ petition is allowed. The Order of appellate court dated 29.12.1978 passed by Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation is hereby maintained.

19. No order as to cost.

Writ C No. 4559 of 2025

Tata Projects Ltd. ...Petitioner
Versus
U.O.I. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether NHAI had effectively handed over the project site and Right of Way in accordance with Articles 8.1 and 8.2 of the EPC Agreement?
(b) Whether the existence of an arbitration clause required the petitioner to pursue arbitration instead of invoking the writ jurisdiction of the High Court, or whether the case involved an arbitrary exercise of public power that could be examined u/Article 226?
(c) Whether any second party rights have occurred during the pendency of this petition and if not, to save time, the second party if in possession of land under construction of Highway could be given further time in larger public interest?

Headnotes

A. Contract Law – The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) awarded Tata Projects a contract for widening and upgrading approximately 50.254 km of National Highway NH-709A, between Garhmukteshwar and Meerut, at an initial cost of about ₹940.68 crore. The Letter of Acceptance was issued on 12.03.2021, the EPC Agreement was executed on 26.08.2021, and the appointed date was 10.10.2021. The project was originally scheduled for completion by 10.10.2023.

The contract required NHAI to provide at least 90% of the Right of Way, free from encroachments and encumbrances, in contiguous stretches of at least five kilometres. Tata Projects asserted that the land was not actually made available in the condition and manner required by the agreement. It alleged that the project was obstructed by:

- Unresolved land-acquisition and compensation issues.
- Mosques, temples, Eidgahs, houses, boundary walls and other permanent structures.
- Trees, electricity poles, pipelines, borewells and other utilities.
- Protests by landowners and local residents.
- Delays in design approvals and changes in the scope of work.

NHAI, however, relied on a Handover Memorandum dated 21.09.2021, which recorded that 47.620 km, or 94.76% of the project length, had been handed over to the contractor. Although Tata Projects repeatedly sought extensions of time, NHAI initially granted only a limited extension of 42 days. The Authority's Engineer later recommended further extensions, including an interim extension of 196 days and, subsequently, an additional 247 days. The Engineer also recorded that significant portions of the project remained affected by continuing hindrances.

NHAI issued a cure-period notice and later a termination/show-cause notice, alleging slow progress, failure to complete the project and inadequate maintenance. Tata Projects submitted detailed replies, blaming the delay primarily on NHAI's failure to provide a clear and obstruction-free site. NHAI nevertheless terminated the contract in January 2025.

Tata Projects challenged the termination before the High Court u/Article 226 of the Constitution.

B. In matters of commercial disputes emanating from the contract/ agreement reached between the parties, the Court must discourage invoking its extraordinary jurisdiction u/Article 226 of the Constitution, merely for the reasons that state or its officer purport to operate within the contractual field. (Para 58)

If the decision suffers from the vice of arbitrariness or caprice and does not pass the test of reasonableness then such decision is judicially reviewable u/Article 226 of the Constitution. The judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect the private interest at the cost of public interest or to decide the contractual disputes. (Para 59)

(i) Disputed question of fact cannot be made a smokescreen to guillotine a genuine claim raised in the writ petition. In case of termination of contract where variety of situations may arise and the state authority repudiates the contracts mid-term in purported exercise of power under the contract, if the only aspect is the interpretation of true scope of documentary material in the light of pleadings raised, the Court may still grant relief to the party approaching the Court. (Para 61)

Mere existence of disputed question of fact by itself, does not take away the jurisdiction of this Court in granting appropriate relief to the petitioner. If the Court is satisfied that facts were being disputed by the state merely to create a ground for rejection of the writ petition raising the plea of disputed question of facts, the Court can go into and investigate the disputed facts vis-a-vis pleadings raised by the parties to record its own finding as to the facts of the case. Thus, unless and until there is such a complex factual issue involved in a case that needed proper adjudication for appreciation of facts and pleadings which may be in the realm of a common law remedy or otherwise referable to alternative dispute resolution fora, if the sufficient material is otherwise available on record, the Court would not shirk away from discharging its duty of judicial review u/Article 226 of the Constitution.

(ii) Wherever there is an arbitrariness in state action then the Court being the guardian of fundamental rights, is duty bound to interfere with arbitrariness, irrationality and mala fide and bias but of course, with a caution and self limitation this power to be exercised. There should be fair play and reasonableness approach on the part of the state where it is a mere party to the contract. If the right of way was not available and there was a delay in executing and completing the project, it was attributable to laxity and casual approach on the part of the state in not performing its own obligations. (Para 62, 63)

(iii) When the first party to the contract itself failed to discharge its duties and obligations, then it cannot be said to be in a driver's seat under an agreement to navigate through the provisions that empower to it to terminate the contract unilaterally. The impugned action has been taken purely on the basis of alleged poor maintenance and non-completion of project within time citing without giving any example and statistic details that land, as was promised under the agreement to be the part of the Memorandum of association was physically ever handed over to the petitioner, the second party to the contract to invoke the termination clause. (Para 64)

Proper reply was submitted by the petitioner to the show cause notice citing places, situations where the land was full of hindrances, the delays in removal of those hindrances, non-cooperation of the authority and delay in approving the design to execute the project as per the Narrative of Statement submitted initially by the petitioner. Not a single explanation offered by the petitioner was considered while taking decision in the matter of notice of termination of contract. Merely date of reply dated 3rd January, 2025 has been referred. (Para 66)

What is reasonableness in approach means looking to the facts of a case and in the given scenario what a prudent man would think about and what action would he take. In the present case a National Highway Project with 50.254 kms was underway. Standing private constructions with land issue where farmer's are agitating and temple and mosque structures are such which a private party could not have removed except with the help of State Authorities. Either the NHAI had given time schedule along with 'Handover Memorandum' that it would get the entire land procured with possession and that too with a 'Right of Way', or should have subsequently done the job writing such letters at subsequent stages meeting the objections if any. At least a prudent person would have behaved this way. However, in the present case NHAI Project Director and at his level only complained about maintenance and slow pace of work and even ignored Authority's Engineer's own letter dated 10.07.2024 demanding extension of time of 248 days while giving cure period notice and then termination notice. This is an absolute arbitrariness, apparent on the face of record. Again the arbitrariness was so much so that while terminating contract under the order impugned petitioner's reply was not referred to by discussing the same. This is indicative of unerringly pointing to arbitrariness. (Para 67, 68)

C. There has been no change in the stand of NHAI that a third party right was not created pursuant to the interim order passed by this Court and no contract was awarded to a third party nor, any such statement has come up in any of the affidavits filed on behalf of NHAI. (Para 71)

It is also not the case of NHAI that possession of the land was taken from the petitioner. The petitioner's construction company the second party to the contract continued to remain there with all its articles and construction machines and materials on the spot. The status quo as was there on the date of filing of the petition remained continued and the construction work though did not proceed but remained under the control of second party to the contract. (Para 72, 73)

Accordingly, the order dated 14.01.2025 terminating the contract by the respondent No.- 2 and a subsequent action of forfeiting the bank guarantees and issuance of fresh tender dated 03.02.2025 are hereby quashed. As a consequence to the above and since the construction of the highway and its maintenance project is to basically meant to serve public interest and since petitioner in affidavit has assured to complete the entire work under the contract within 14 months, it is found appropriate for the parties to conduct a joint site inspection afresh,…and taking recourse to the provisions as contained under the EPC agreement and to arrive at an agreement to conclude the project within the re-scheduled timeline taking into consideration the letter of Engineer's Authority in the light of the report dated 10.07.2024 vis-a-vis the interim report to be obtained after joint inspection as directed above and applying the principles contained u/Articles 13, 15, 16 and 17 of the EPC agreement. (Para 74, 75)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

1. FACTS

1. Briefly stated facts of the case are that respondent- National Highway Authority (hereinafter referred to as 'Authority) issued a Request For Proposals (hereinafter referred to as 'RFP') on 11th December, 2018 for widening and strengthening for improvement and up-gradation of NH-709A, Garhmukteshwar (Chainage-83+200 of NH-24) to Meerut (Chainage 9+860 of NH-235) including connector to NH-119 Package XII in the State of Uttar Pradesh. The contract of the Highway was for a stretch of 50.254 Km at the cost of Rs.940.68 Crores.

2. The petitioner upon being successfully selected as a bidder, was issued with a Letter of Acceptance (for short 'LOA') on 12th March, 2021 for the development of the above section of NH-709A.

3. With the issuance of letter of acceptance and signing of EPC agreement between the authority and the contractor with declaration of the appointed day as 10th October, 2021 prescribing the dead line for completion of project as 10th October, 2023, the petitioner submitted work programme by way of Narrative Statement on 2nd December, 2021 as per Article 10(iii)-b. This narrative statement of programme had project overview, objective of the document qua methodology and assumption made by which the works programme have been developed, eight points scope of work, scheduling of methodology with key dates of projects with reference to Milestone-1, Milestone-2 and Milestone-3 totaling 730 days from the appointed day. It also referred to the land handover as per Article 3 & 8, utility shifting, submissions of approval of drawing, execution of work.

4. The MSE International link, the Authority's Engineer forwarded the above narrative statement of programme to the authority namely the Project Director, National Highways vide letter dated 20th December, 2021.

5. Under the contract while the NHAI was to provide absolute possession of the entire stretch of the highway area free from encumbrances/ hindrances to facilitate the work, which according to the respondent No.- 2, was provided to the petitioner as per the acknowledgment by the petitioner himself under his letter dated 26th August, 2021. Petitioner repeatedly raised a plea of not providing hindrance free 5 kms contiguous stretch at a time to carry out the work which delayed the project work getting completed within the time schedule. Ultimately, a curative notice was issued to the petitioner on 11th October, 2024 to which petitioner submitted a detailed reply on 19th November, 2024 raising the issue of not providing free stretch of land as per the agreement within 150 days which resulted in delay in completion of project. Petitioner thereafter also repeatedly made applications vide different replies but according to him, all remained unaddressed and ultimately a show cause notice was issued to him to which he also submitted a reply. However, contract was terminated mid-term vide order dated 25th November, 2024 by the respondent No.- 2 citing various provisions contained under various clauses of the agreement for low maintenance and also not completing the project within time. It is this order terminating the contract which is impugned in this petition and so also the consequential actions by the concerned respondent.

2. Record of Proceedings

6. In order to put the record straight we reproduce the record of proceedings in following manner:

(i). This petition after adjournment being granted on 18th February, 2025 while came up for admission as a fresh, a preliminary objection was raised as to the maintainability of this petition, however, on 6th March, 2025 an adjournment was granted and then the petition was entertained on merits and interim relief was also granted. The order dated 18th March, 2025 is reproduced hereunder:

"Heard Sri Shashi Nandan and Sri Amit Saxena, learned Senior counsels assisted by Sri Varad Nath, for the petitioner and Sri Makrand Adkar and Ms. Pragya Pandey, learned counsel for the respondents.

The petitioner was awarded a contract on 26.8.2021 for construction of a patch of national highway. The work itself was to be completed by 10.10.2023. By the impugned action the contract has been cancelled on the ground that though the period for completion of work has expired yet, physical completion of work is to the extent of 51.05%, whereas financial progress is only to the extent of 48.37%. Various documents and reports have been relied upon to contend that in fact the land on which road was to be constructed was not made available to the petitioner on account of various protests and disputes raised by the tenure holders and there was thus no failure on part of the petitioner to comply with the contract. It is also submitted that the respondents themselves have acknowledged such facts and have extended the term of contract thrice.

Learned Senior counsel for the petitioner then argues that 91% of the land for road construction has been made available only by December, 2024 and, therefore, the respondents having failed to provide the land cannot allege any failure on part of the petitioner in complying with the contract. It is also submitted that a fresh tender is now floated, wherein 15 months time is allowed for completion of work and the cost of project is assessed at Rs.873.31 crores which would result in additional financial losses to the State of several hundred crores. The petitioner further contends that they undertake to complete the work by December, 2025 itself.

On behalf of the petitioner, it is submitted that the overwhelming public interest requires this Court to intervene in the matter as not only the project would be completed in a shorter time but there would be substantial saving for the NHAI if the petitioner is allowed to complete the contract.

The petition is opposed by Sri Makrand Adkar, learned counsel for the respondents primarily on the ground that there is an arbitration clause and, therefore the remedy of the petitioner would be to approach the arbitrator once the contract is cancelled. It is also submitted that the authorities themselves have adopted a generous approach towards the petitioner and various extensions have been granted as there has been substantial failure on part of the petitioner in concluding the contract, as such the authorities are left with no option but to terminate the contract and issue fresh bids.

Learned counsel for the respondents also submits that the allegation that there was a failure on part of NHAI in offering land for road construction is factually incorrect.

We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have perused the materials on record.

Ordinarily this Court would not entertain a writ where there exits an arbitration clause and the allegation in the writ pertains to violation of various clauses of contract. However, in the facts of the present case, we are proceeding to examine the cause primarily for two reasons. The issue as to whether land for the project was made available earlier or is made available only in December, 2024, as is alleged in the petition, can be examined if a reply is received from the respondents on this aspect. Firstly, we find that by issuing re-tender the road will now be completed within 15 months which would expire some time in June, 2026, whereas the petitioner undertakes to complete the work by December, 2025. Secondly, there is a substantial enhancement of cost. In such circumstances, we are of the prima facie view that the core issue of contest between the parties can be examined for the limited purposes, by this Court, so as to ascertain as to whether predominant public interest warrants exercise of writ jurisdiction by this Court in the facts of the present case, or not"

Learned counsel for the respondents fairly submits that the NHAI shall file an affidavit, within a week, specifying the dates when the possession of the land was given to the petitioner. A fair stand is also taken that till such affidavit is filed the respondents shall not award any fresh contract. In view of the fair stand taken by the respondents, we adjourn the matter to 25.3.2025. An advance copy of the affidavit proposed to be filed by NHAI will be served upon the counsel for the petitioner by 25.3.2025.

Post as fresh once again on 25.3.2025."

(emphasis added)

(ii). Thus, the Court granted interim relief to the effect that no fresh contract shall be awarded in favour of a third party until such affidavit as required was filed. Thereafter certain dates were fixed in the matter and interim order was made to continue and the Court was compelled to make strict observations on 26th November, 2025 that if the order dated 18th March, 2025 was not complied with by the next date, the Court shall be at liberty to exercise its extraordinary power under Article 215 of the Constitution. The order dated 26th November, 2025 is reproduced hereunder:

"1. Heard Sri Varad Nath, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Rakesh Pandey, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Pranjal Mehrotra, for respondents no. 2 and 3.

2. At the very outset, learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn the attention of this Court to the last paragraph of the order dated 18.03.2025, where there was a specific direction to the NHAI which is unequivocal, unambiguous and incapable of multiple interpretations. The said direction was to file an affidavit within a week of the said order specifying the dates when the possession of the land was given to the petitioner. The said order admittedly has not been complied with till date. The Court takes note of this conduct on the part of the respondents as contumacious. An order that is passed by the Court which is absolutely categorically clear, had to be complied with.

3. This was subsequently reiterated in the order by this Court on 16.09.2025 in paragraph '1' where it is stated that the affidavit which was required to be filed by the respondent specifying the dates when the possession of the land was handed over to the petitioner and the work was to be executed, has not been disclosed by the NHAI in any of the affidavit filed by it so far.

4. Learned counsel for the respondent NHAI submits that they have filed another affidavit, however, the disclosure required by this Court was not there in the said affidavit.

5. This Court takes serious note of the conduct of the respondent no. 2. However, by way of a last opportunity, ten days' time is granted to the respondents to comply with the order dated 18.03.2025 on or before the next date of hearing, failing which this Court shall be at liberty to exercise its jurisdiction under Article 215 of the Constitution and proceed to initiate contempt proceedings against the Chief General Manager of the National Highway Authority of India on the next date of hearing.

6. The advance copy be supplied to learned counsel for the petitioner and thereafter, three days' time is granted to petitioner to file any response, if any, to it.

7. Put up this matter on 09.12.2025 in daily cause list."

(emphasis added)

(iii). It is after the above order was passed that a supplementary affidavit came to be filed bringing on record the 'Handover Memorandum' on 30th November, 2025. Thereafter the matter was heard on certain dates and finally it was reserved on 9th February, 2026. Seeking certain clarification as to whether the document brought on record was really a 'Handover Memorandum' within the meaning of Article 8.2 of EPC Agreement, the matter was listed for further hearing on 24th April, 2026. Learned Senior Advocate for NHAI sought time to bring the entire document and with further averments clarifying its stand regarding Handover Memorandum and 11th May, 2026 was fixed. The document namely Handover Memorandum came to be filed stating clearly that it was document acknowledging handing over possession of more than 90% of land initially. On 15th May, 2026 the matter was finally heard and judgment was reserved.

3. Arguments Advanced on behalf of of Petitioner

7. Assailing the order terminating the contract following arguments have been advanced by learned Senior Advocate :

(I). First party to the contract was under an obligation to procure the site and provide the same as an unencumbered land with a 'Right of Way' to the contractor as per the schedule 'A' of the bid document in terms of its Article 8.1 and 8.2 and liability of the contractor for the termination of contract mid-term would only be in the event of default as per the Article 23 of the agreement.

(II). With the appointment of Authority's Engineer as an interface between the first party and the second party to agreement, duties were assigned under Article 18.2 to the Authority's Engineer regarding assessment of performance of work under the contract and to take an appropriate action with the approval of the authorities before determining time extension, additional cost, if any to be paid, termination payment, if any, issuance of completion certificate and any other allied matter that was not specified and which may have created financial liability on either party. It was argued that delegation of power under the agreement by the first party to its engineer was to not only to ensure that second party carried out the work under the contract as per terms and conditions laid therein but also to impress upon the authority to facilitate delivery of possession of hindrance free land. So there was to be a coordinated effort between the Authority's Engineer and the contractor to get the task accomplished as per the agreement. However, Authority Engineer's crucial reports submitted time to time for extension of time, were not paid any heed.

(III). Despite letter written to the Authority's Engineer on 7th July, 2022 citing reasons for delays due to obstructions/ impediments, the details of which were given in the letter and request being made for extension of 248 days and further, despite the fact that Authority's own Engineer had recommended for 130 days extension earlier, the respondent authorities provided only 42 days extension vide their letter dated 8th August, 2022 and that too without providing hindrance free stretch of land to carry out work. Inasmuch as, the highway authority always failed to discharge its duty to provide 5 kms long stretch free land at a time to facilitate the smooth and hurdle-free working.

(IV). The respondents' own admission in their letter dated 16th October, 2023 written to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate that plot No. 303 in village Sisoli, Plot No.- 220 in village Bhagwanpur Chattawan and plot No.- 281 in village Mau Khas were not provided, the project got delayed.

(V). The acquisition notice under the National Highways Act, 1956 published on 5th February, 2024 for a stretch of 12.13 km land on Gardmukteshwar to Meerut section published on 5th February, 2024 is an admission of the respondents highway authority, the first party to contract, to the effect that 12 kms land was still not available for which they were proceeding for acquisition. The documents sufficiently demonstrated that possession of the entire stretch or at least 90% of total land was still not available to the National Highway to be handed over to the petitioner so as to carry out the work and thus, petitioner could not have been saddled with the liability of delay in work in the absence of available land free from encumbrances and hindrances in terms of Article 9.2 of the agreement.

(VI). The manner and method in which impugned order has been passed showed lack of application of mind by the authority as none of the facts pleaded in reply nor, the relevant material available with the respondent, was taken into account.

(VII). Although the petitioner had submitted a detailed reply to the show cause notice and also letter of Authority's Engineer raising issues qua availability of land with the respondents and yet the respondents failed to consider any of such letters nor, even referred to reply submitted by the petitioner while arriving at a conclusion that the contractor, namely second party to the contract was chiefly responsible for the delay in completion project for having carried out the work at a very slow pace. Thus, this finding arrived at under the order impugned, according to the learned counsel for the petitioner, was perverse. Thus lack of application of mind by the authorities, has vitiated the order impugned and as such it was rendered unsustainable.

(VIII). The National Highway Authority was very much State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution and, therefore, any act even in the realm of contract, if was a result of arbitrary exercise of power, as the case in hand was, it stood hit by Article 14 of the Constitution and hence deserved to be interfered with by even a writ Court.

8. Relying upon the Authority's Engineer's letter dated 26th September, 2022 Mr. Saxena drew the attention of the Court towards the last remark column, according to which 15.926 kms of stretch out of total 50.25 kms. i.e. 32% was hindered and work front was not available due to standing trees, land acquisition issues, building, religious structures, government structures. Further, the contractor was unable to carry out the construction work upto 3.2 km at a stretch in length since 15th July, 2022 due to Dotai villagers' agitation and Jama Masjid Eidgah Samiti' stand, who were demanding 4 times compensation qua their land required for shifting the Dotai Mosque Eidgaah and demand for another pass 2.392 kms. He submitted that this document had been filed as Annexure-14 to the petition and referred to in paragraph 39 of the writ petition which had not been specifically denied vide paragraph 28 of the counter affidavit.

9. Sri Saxena emphasized further that despite twice order being passed by this Court on 18th March, 2025 and 9th December, 2025, no document had been filed giving date-wise chart of handing over the available vacant land to the petitioner with 5 km contiguous stretch in terms of the agreement, and it also reflected fair admission of the pleadings raised in the writ petition with supported documents brought on record and hence petitioner could not have been blamed for delays in completion of task under the project per agreement.

10. It was further argued that any fresh opportunity to a new contractor would not only enhance the project cost further but also further delay in completing the formality. Further, it was argued that considering the fact that 50% of the physical work was carried out under the project by the petitioner, overwhelming public interest would be to get the project completed by the present petitioner subject to the escalation of price for the project having remained stalled over a period of more than one year.

11. Mr. Saxena lastly argued that given an opportunity, petitioner would be completing the projects in terms of the agreement in the next 14 months' time and this fact had been pleaded in paragraph 19.9 of the rejoinder affidavit.

4. Supportive Documents placed on behalf of petitioner

12. In support of his above submissions, learned Senior Advocate has taken the Court to the various documents in the nature of letter written by the Authority's Engineer to the respondent No.2 dated 20th December, 2021 and letter of the petitioner to respondent No.- 2 dated 7th July, 2022 then again letter written by the petitioner to respondent No.- 2 dated 17th August, 2022 in reply to the letter of respondent No.- 2 dated 8th August, 2022, another letter written by the petitioner to the respondent No. 2 on 30th August, 2022. Then again petitioner's letter dated 29th September, 2022, which was accompanied by the Authority's Engineer report/letter dated 26th September, 2022. Again letter of the petitioner dated 21st December, 2022 to the respondent No. 2 in reply to the letter dated 9th November, 2022, then again letter dated 21st December, 2022 subsequently letters written on 3rd January, 2023 and 6th January, 2023 and the delay analysis report prepared by the petitioner and sent vide letter dated 17th March, 2023, letter dated 10th July, 2023 then letter of Authority's Engineer dated 1st August, 2023, letter dated 12th August, 2023 and 30th September, 2023 to the respondent No.- 2, Authority's Engineer report to the respondent No.- 2 dated 21st November, 2023, 10th July, 2024, letter of the petitioner dated 17th September, 2024 to the respondent No. 2 and then authority's engineer's letter dated 25th August, 2023 and 16th August, 2024. All these correspondences took places between the petitioner and the authority engineer, his report and respondent's authority prior to the issuance of cure period notice dated 11th October, 2024.

5. Arguments advanced on behalf of NHAI

13. Meeting the above submissions, Sri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Advocate appearing for NHAI has raised following points:

(I). In terms of the agreement reached between the parties more than 90% of the land was made available to carry out the project and this was acknowledged by the petitioner himself under the letter of their authorized signatory dated 21st September, 2021. Thus, as on 21st September, 2021 90% of the land was made available and only 10% of the land was made to available.

(II). The contract very specifically provided vide Article 9.2 that hindered land with building structures on land, trees and any other immovable property on or attached to the site shall be referred to in the 'Handover Memorandum' will be subject to Article 8.2(iii). According to him, vacant land and encumbered land are two different things. The unencumbered land means a land regarding which there is no claim of title or possession and it is free from encumbrances. The building structure and the trees attached to the site were to be ultimately removed by the contractor as per Article 9.2 read with 9.3, 9.4 and 9.5 of the agreement to ensure that the land remains vacant for execution of work. Thus, according to Mr. Pande, the existence of utilities, structures, poles and trees would not amount to such hindrances which may have delayed the project and it was for the second party of contract to have removed them with the assistance of the authority.

14. According to Mr. Pande, status of land in possession was 94.76% and, therefore, it would be wrong to suggest even that possession was not made available.

6. Supportive documents placed on behalf of NHAI

15. In support of his above submissions Mr. Pande, learned Senior Advocate has placed reliance upon the documents namely Handover Memorandum filed as Annexure - 2 to the supplementary counter affidavit. According to him as per documents brought on record and contract petitioner had been allotted hindrance free land and sufficient time to complete the work with further extension of time which he had prayed for and, therefore, the contract was rightly terminated mid-term upon failure of petitioner to carry out necessary maintenance and also failure in completing the project within time. Fresh tender bids have been entertained and tender has been finalized and it would have been awarded but for the interim protection granted to the petitioner by this Court. He also placed before the Court arbitration clause of the agreement vide Article 26, which the petitioner, according to him, ought to have invoked as he raised pleas regarding delays at the end of the respondent authority NHAI which the NHAI seriously disputed. He argued that material brought on record by way of annexure could be better appreciated and examined to arrive at conclusion by the arbitrator instead of this Court exercising power under Article 226 of the Constitution.

16. In support of his submission regarding arbitration Mr. Pandey, has placed reliance upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Union of India and others v. Puna Hinda (2021) 10 SCC 690.

7. Rejoinder argument advanced on behalf of the Petitioner

17. Meeting the above submissions in rejoinder, Mr. Saxena, learned Senior Advocate has again relied upon the documents filed along with counter affidavit which, according to him, demonstrate that the land was not made available as per 'Handover Memorandum' and the subsequent acquisition notification itself showed that entire land was not available till 2024. He has placed reliance upon the letter of NHAI dated 15th March, 2024 which was sufficiently indicative of a fact that amount of compensation was being processed for the purposes of payment to the land owners in the matter of acquisition of land and the letter dated 12th July, 2024 showed that in between Garhmukteshwar and Meerut of NHA-709A, it was for non payment of compensation that project could not be carried through and farmers/ land owners protested against possession. These documents have been brought on record as Annexure - 4 to the rejoinder affidavit filed in reply to the supplementary counter affidavit.

18. Mr. Saxena had also placed reliance upon the document of respondent that showed that possession of entire land was not handed over till as late as 2023-2024 as against the claim set up through the acknowledgment letter of petitioner.

19. Meeting the submission on the point of alternative remedy by way of arbitration, invoking the relevant clause of the agreement and scope of interference by High Court in matters of contract, Sri Saxena has placed reliance firstly upon the authority of Supreme Court in the case of ABL International Ltd and others v. Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Ltd and others (2024) 3 SCC 553 and MP Power Management Company Ltd v. M/s Sky Power Southeast Solar India Pvt Ltd. and others (2023) 2 SCC 703 and A.P. Electrical Equipment Corporation v. Tehsildar and others (2025) SCC Online SC 447.

8. Discussion & Analysis

20. Having heard learned counsel for the respective parties and having perused the records, We find there to be a serious dispute in this case as to the real and effective transfer of unencumbered and hindrance free land to the petitioner as per the agreement at the very beginning and thereafter as well, with free Right of Way and hindrances free land at a stretch of 5 kms in contiguous parts of the total length, which made it impossible for contractor to complete the project within the time line prescribed under the agreement; and further that the respondent authority of NHAI instead of giving objective construction to the replies filed by the petitioner and ignoring reports of the Authority's own Engineer, it proceeded to rescind the contract mid term. Thus following two points arise for consideration of this Court to test the correctness of the order impugned:-

(I). Whether the terms conditions given under the agreement in handing over the possession of land site after its due procurement in terms of Article 8.1 and 8.2 of the agreement and the documents brought on record by the authority do effective factum of delivery of possession of such land site without there being any dispute whatsoever.

(II). Whether disputed questions of facts arise in this case for which the petitioner should be relegated to the remedy of arbitration invoking Article 26 of the agreement or there is a fair admission of the respondents reflected from the documents brought on record as to issue and it is all question of law regarding exercise of power to terminate the contract mid-term for being arbitrary and unlawful and paramount public interest involved in the matter to hear and decide the petition on merits.

21. In order to find answer to the above points it is necessary for us to first go through the basic terms and conditions prescribed for under the agreement called Engineering, Procurement and Construction Agreement (for short 'EPC').

22. The basic features like making available the land, free 'Right of Way' to carry out the work, terms and conditions, notice etc., force majeure and termination of contract mid-term as provided under the EPC Agreement are summarised as under:

(i). The work was to be completed within two years of the appointed day.

(ii). The authority was under obligation vide Article 3 to provide at least not less than 90% of the procured land to carry out the project, free from encumbrance within 30 days of the agreement, approval of the railways for general arrangement drawings so as to construct road over-bridges/ under-bridges at level crossings on the project highway, within 60 days of the appointed date.

(iii). Delay in the right of way by the authority (NHAI) or approval of general arrangement drawing (for short 'GAD') by the railways would entitle the contract to damages, environment, clearance certificate, prior to the date of issuance of LOA. Article 3 deals with obligations of Authority. Relevant Article 3.1(i), (ii) & (iii) are reproduced hereunder:

"3.1 Obligations of the Authority

(i) The Authority shall, at its own cost and expense, undertake, comply with and perform all its obligations set out in this Agreement or arising hereunder.

(ii) The Authority shall be responsible for the correctness of the Scope of the Project, Project Facilities, Specifications and Standards and the criteria for testing of the completed Works.

(iii) The Authority shall, upon submission of the Performance Security as per the RFP by the Contractor, shall provide to the Contractor:

(a) No less than 90% (ninety per cent) of the required Right of Way of the Construction Zone of total length of the Project Highway within a period of 30 (thirty) days from the date of this Agreement, which shall be in contiguous stretches of length not less than 5 (five) kilometre.

(b) approval of the general arrangement drawings (the "GAD") from railway authorities to enable the Contractor to construct road over- bridges/under-bridges at level crossings on the Project Highway in accordance with the Specifications and Standards, and subject to the terms and conditions specified in such approval, within a period of 60 (sixty) days from the Appointed Date, and reimbursement of all the costs and expenses paid by the Contractor to the railway authorities for and in respect of the road over-bridges/under bridges; and

(c) all environmental clearances as required under Clause 3.3 for the project Highway are not required."

(iv). Vide Article 4 certain obligations were cast upon the contractor for carrying out the work under the contract as per the EPC Agreement carrying out survey etc. and management and then obligations relating to the shop contracts and other agreements regarding employment of foreign nationals and contract personnel, coordination of work with the authority and clearances of site.

(v). Article 5.2 provided vide its clause (g) & (h) that authority shall be giving guarantees as to good and valid right to the site and grant of 'Right of Way' in respect thereof, to the contractor and shall have to ensure that it has procured right of way and environment clearances qua 90% of the total length of highway project. This clause (g) & (h) are reproduced hereunder:

"(g). It has good and valid right to the Site and has the power and authority to grant the Right of Way in respect thereof to the Contractor; and (h). It has procured Right of Way and environment clearances such that the Contractor can commence construction forthwith on 90% (ninety per cent) of the total length of the Project Highway."

(vi). 'Site' has been defined vide Article 8.1 and 'Right of Way' has been defined vide clause 8.2 of Article 8 and relevant sub-clauses (i), (ii) & (iii) of the said article, relevant for the purposes of the case. Article 8.1 & clauses (i), (ii) & (iii) of Article 8.2 are reproduced hereunder:

"8.1 The Site

The site of the Project Highway (the "Site") shall comprise the site described in Schedule-A in respect of which the Right of Way shall be provided by the Authority to the Contractor. The Authority shall be responsible for:

(a) acquiring and providing Right of Way on the Site in accordance with the alignment finalized by the Authority, free from all encroachments and encumbrances, and free access thereto for the execution of this Agreement; and

(b) obtaining licences and permits for environment clearance for the Project Highway.

*"8.2 Procurement of the Site

(i). The Authority Representative, the Contractor and Authority's Engineer shall, within 10 (ten) days of the date of this Agreement, inspect the Site and prepare a detailed memorandum containing an inventory of the Site including the vacant and unencumbered land, buildings, structures, road works, trees and any other Immovable property on or attached to the Site (hereinafter referred to as the "Handover Memorandum"). Subject to the provisions of Clause 8.2 (ii), the Handover Memorandum shall have appended thereto an appendix (the "Appendix") specifying in reasonable detail those parts of the Site to which vacant access and Right of Way has not been given to the Contractor along with details of hindrances in the Construction Zone. For sake of clarity the Handover Memorandum shall clearly specify the parts of Site where work can be executed. Signing of the Handover Memorandum, in three counterparts (each of which shall constitute an original), by the authorized representatives of the Authority, Contractor and Authority's Engineer shall be deemed to constitute a valid evidence of giving the Right of Way to the Contractor for discharging its obligations under and in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement and for no other purpose whatsoever.

(ii). Whenever the Authority is ready to hand over any part or parts of the Site included in the Appendix, it shall inform the Contractor, by notice, of the proposed date and time such of hand over. The Authority Representative and the Contractor shall, on the date so notified, inspect the specified parts of the Site, and prepare a memorandum containing an inventory of the vacant and unencumbered land, buildings, structures, road works, trees and any other immovable property on or attached to the Site so handed over. The signing of the memorandum, in three (3) counterparts (each of which shall constitute an original), by the authorized representatives of the Parties shall be deemed to constitute a valid evidence of giving the relevant Right of Way to the Contractor.

If the contractor fails to join for site inspection or disputes the parts of the site available for work, the Authority's Engineer shall decide the parts of the site where work can be executed and notify to both the parties within 3 days of the proposed date of inspection. The parties agree that such notification of the Authority's Engineer as mentioned hereinabove shall be final and binding on the parties.

(iii). The Authority shall provide the Right of Way to the Contractor in respect of all land included in the Appendix by the date specified in Schedule-A for those parts of the Site referred to therein, and in the event of delay for any reason other than Force Majeure or breach of this Agreement by the Contractor, it shall pay to the Contractor, Damages in a sum calculated in accordance with Clause 8.3. The Contractor agrees that it shall not be entitled to claim any other damages on account of any such delay by the Authority."

(emphasis added)

(vii). Vide clauses 9.1 & 9.2 of Article 9 Utilities and Trees have come to be defined. Clause 9.1, 9.2, 9.3 & 9.4 of Article 9 being relevant are reproduced hereunder:

"9.1 Existing utilities and roads

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained herein, it shall be the responsibility of the Contractor to ensure that the respective entities owning the existing roads, right of way, level crossings, structures, or utilities on, under or above the Site are enabled by it to keep them in continuous satisfactory use, if necessary, by providing suitable temporary diversions with the authority of the controlling body of that road, right of way or utility.

9.2 Shifting of obstructing utilities

The Contractor shall, in accordance with Applicable Laws and with assistance of the Authority, undertake the work of shifting of any utility (including electric lines, water pipes, gas pipelines and telephone cables) to an appropriate location or alignment, if such utility or obstruction adversely affects the execution of Works or Maintenance of the Project Highway in accordance with this Agreement. The cost of such shifting, as per estimates prepared by the entity owning the utility and approved by the Authority, shall be reimbursed by the Authority to the Contractor. The scope of work of such shifting of Utilities shall be as indicated in Schedule-B-1. In the event of any delay of such shifting on the part of the contractor, no extension of time for completion of the project and no claims, in any manner, shall be admissible on this account against the Authority.

The work of shifting of Utilities can be taken up by the Contractor any time after signing of the Agreement.

9.3 New utilities

(i) The Contractor shall allow, subject to the permission from the Authority and such conditions as the Authority may specify, access to, and use of the Site for laying telephone lines, water pipes, electricity lines/ cables or other public utilities. Where such access or use causes any financial loss to the Contractor, it may require the user of the Site to pay compensation or damages as per Applicable Laws. For the avoidance of doubt, it is agreed that use of the Site under this Clause 9.3 shall not in any manner relieve the Contractor of its obligation to construct and maintain the Project Highway in accordance with this Agreement and any damage caused by such use shall be restored forthwith at the cost of the Authority.

(ii) The Authority may, by notice, require the Contractor to connect any adjoining road to the Project Highway, and the connecting portion thereof falling within the Site shall be constructed by the Contractor at the Authority□s cost in accordance with Article 10.

(iii). The Authority may by notice require the Contractor to connect, through a payed road any adjoining service station, hotel, motel or any other public facility or amenity to the Project Highway, whereupon the connecting portion thereof that falls within the Site shall be constructed by the Contractor on payment of the cost. The cost to be paid by the Authority to the Contractor shall be determined by the Authority's Engineer. For the avoidance of doubt, in the event such road is to be constructed for the benefit of any entity, the Authority may require such entity to make an advance deposit with the Contractor or the Authority, as the case may be, of an amount equal to the estimated cost as determined by the Authority's Engineer and such advance shall be adjusted against the cost of construction as determined by the Authority's Engineer hereunder.

(iv). In the event construction of any Works is affected by a new utility or works undertaken in accordance with this Clause 9.3, the Contractor shall be entitled to a reasonable Time Extension as determined by the Authority's Engineer.

9.4 Felling of trees

The Authority shall assist the Contractor in obtaining the Applicable Permits for felling of trees in non-forest area to be identified by the Authority for this purpose if, and only if, such trees cause a Material Adverse Effect on the construction or maintenance of the Project Highway. The Contractor shall fell these trees as per the Permits obtained. The cost of such felling shall be borne by the Authority and in the event of any delay in felling thereof for reasons beyond the control of the Contractor; it shall be excused for failure to perform any of its obligations hereunder if such failure is a direct consequence of delay in the felling of trees. The Parties hereto agree that the felled trees shall be deemed to be owned by the Authority and shall be disposed in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Authority may in its sole discretion deem appropriate. For the avoidance of doubt, the Parties agree that if any felling of trees hereunder is in a forest area, the Applicable Permit thereof shall be procured by the Authority within the time specified in the Agreement."

(emphasis added)

(viii). Article 10 provides for design and construction of the project highway. Sub-clause (iv) of clause 10.3 and clause 10.5 are reproduced hereunder:

"10.3 Construction of the Project Highway

(iv). In the event that the Contractor fails to achieve the Project Completion within a period of 90 (ninety) days from the Schedule Completion Date set forth in Schedule-J. unless such failure has occurred due to Force Majeure or for reasons solely attributable to the Authority, the contractor shall be deemed to be ineligible for bidding any future projects of the Authority, both as the sole party or as one of the parties of Joint Venture/ Consortium during the period from Scheduled Completion Date to issuance of Completion Certificate. This restriction is applicable if the contract value of the delayed project is not less than Rs. 300 Crore.

10.5 Extension of time for completion

(i) Without prejudice to any other provision of this Agreemeht for and in respect of extension of time, the Contractor shall be entitled to extension of time in the Project Completion Schedule (the "Time Extension") to the extent that completion of any Project Milestone is or will be delayed by any of the following, namely:

(a) delay in providing the Right of Way of Construction Zone, environmental clearances or approval of railway authorities, specified in Clause 3.1 (iv);

(b) Change of Scope (unless an adjustment to the Scheduled Completion Date has been agreed under Article 13);

(c) occurrence of a Force Majeure Event;

(d) any delay, impediment or prevention caused by or attributable to the Authority, the Authority's personnel or the Authority's other contractors on the Site; and

(e) any other cause or delay which entitles the Contractor to Time Extension in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement.

(ii) The Contractor shall, no later than 15 (fifteen) business days from the occurrence of an event or circumstance specified in Clause 10.5 (i), inform the Authority's Engineer by notice in writing, with a copy to the Authority, stating in reasonable detail with supporting particulars, the event or circumstances giving rise to the claim for Time Extension in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement. Provided that the period of 15 (fifteen) business days shall be calculated from the date on which the Contractor became aware, or should have become aware, of the occurrence of such an event or circumstance.

Provided further that notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Agreement, Time Extension shall be due and applicable only for the Works which are affected by the aforesaid events or circumstances and shall not in any manner affect the Project Completion Schedule for and in respect of the Works which are not affected hereunder.

(iii) On the failure of the Contractor to issue to the Authority's Engineer a notice in accordance with the provisions of Clause 10.5 (ii) within the time specified therein, the Contractor shall not be entitled to any time Extension and shall forfeit its right for any such claims in future. For the avoidable of doubt, in the event of failure of the Contractor to issue notice as specified in this clause 10.5 (iii), the Authority shall be discharged from all liability in connection with the claim.

(iv) The Authority's Engineer shall, on receipt of the claim in accordance with the provisions of Clause 10.5 (ii), examine the claim expeditiously within the time frame specified herein. In the event the Authority's Engineer requires any clarifications to examine the claim, the Authority's Engineer shall seek the same within 15 (fifteen) days from the date of receiving the claim. The Contractor shall, on receipt of the communication of the Authority's Engineer requesting for clarification, furnish the same to the Authority's Engineer within 10 (ten) days thereof. The Authority's Engineer shall, within a period of 30 (thirty) days from the date of receipt of such clarifications, forward in writing to the Contractor its determination of Time Extension.

Provided that when determining each extension of time under this Clause 10.5, the Authority's Engineer shall review previous determinations and may increase, but shall not decrease, the total Time Extension.

(v) If the event or circumstance giving rise to the notice has a continuing effect:

(a) a fully detailed claim shall be considered as interim;

(b) the Contractor shall, no later than 10 (ten) days after the close of each month, send further interim claims specifying the accumulated delay, the extension of time claimed, and such further particulars as the Authority's Engineer may reasonably require; and

(c) the Contractor shall send a final claim within 30 (thirty) days after the effect of the event or the circumstance ceases.

Upon receipt of the claim hereunder, the Authority's Engineer shall examine the same in accordance with the provisions of Clause 10.5 (iv) within a period of 30 (thirty) days of the receipt thereof."

(emphasis added)

(ix). Vide Article 11 quality assurance by the contractor, monitoring and supervision by the Authority's Engineer has been provided for. Article 11.8 and 11.14 are relevant and are reproduced hereunder:

"11.8 Inspection

(i) The Authority's Engineer and its authorised representative shall at all reasonable times:

(a) have full access to all parts of the Site and to all places from which natural Materials are being obtained for use in the Works; and

(b) during production, manufacture and construction at the Site and at the place of production, be entitled to examine, inspect, measure and test the Materials and workmanship, and to check the progress of manufacture of Materials.

(ii) The Contractor shall give the Authority's Engineer and its authorised agents access, facilities and safety equipment for carrying out their obligations under this Agreement.

(iii) The Authority's Engineer shall submit a monthly inspection report (the "Inspection Report") to the Authority and the Contractor bringing out the results of inspections and the remedial action taken by the Contractor in respect of Defects or deficiencies. For the avoidance of doubt, such inspection or submission of Inspection Report by the Authority's Engineer shall not relieve or absolve the Contractor of its obligations and liabilities under this Agreement in any manner whatsoever."

11.14 Delays during construction

Without prejudice to the provisions of Clause 10.3 (ii), in the event the Contractor does not achieve any of the Project Milestones or the Authority's Engineer shall have reasonably determined that the rate of progress of Works is such that Completion of the Project Highway is not likely to be achieved by the end of the Scheduled Completion Date, it shall notify the same to the Contractor, and the Contractor shall, within 15 (fifteen) days of such notice, by a communication inform the Authority's Engineer in reasonable detail about the steps it proposes to take to expedite progress and the period within which it shall achieve the Project Completion Date."

(emphasis added)

(x). Vide Article 18 of EPC Agreement provides for appointment and Authority's Engineer in accordance with the terms of reference set forth in Annexure 1 of Schedule ' N. For the purposes of exercise of authority by the Authority's Engineer force majeure and termination is provided in Article 21 of Part V of EPC. Article 18.2 relevant here in this case is reproduced hereunder:

"18.2 Duties and authority of the Authority's Engineer

(i) The Authority's Engineer shall perform the duties and exercise the authority in accordance with the provisions of this Agreement and substantially in accordance with the terms of reference ("Terms of Reference" or "TOR") set forth in Annexure-I of Schedule N, but subject to obtaining prior written approval of the Authority before determining:

(a) any Time Extension;

(b) any additional cost to be paid by the Authority to the Contractor;

(a) the Termination Payment;

d) issuance of Completion Certificate; or

(e) any other matter which is not specified in (a), (b), (c) or (d) above and which creates financial liability on either Party."

(xi). Vide Article 23, 60 days cure period notice was prescribed for. Vide clauses (ii) & (iii) of Article 23, 15 days notice of termination was prescribed for. Vide Article 23.3 termination for Authority's convenience is prescribed for. Clause (i), (ii) & (iii) of Article 23.1 and Article 23.2 and Article 23.3 are reproduced hereunder:

"23.1 Termination for Contractor Default

(i) Save as otherwise provided in this Agreement, in the event that any of the defaults specified below shall have occurred, and the Contractor fails to cure the default within the Cure Period set forth below, or where no Cure Period is specified, then within a Cure Period of 60 (sixty) days, the Contractor shall be deemed to be in default of this Agreement (the "Contractor Default"), unless the default has occurred solely as a result of any breach of this Agreement by the Authority or due to Force Majeure. The defaults referred to herein shall include:

(a) the Authority commits a material default in complying with any of the provisions of this Agreement and such default has a Material Adverse Effect on the Contractor;

(b) the Authority has failed to make payment of any amount due and payable to the Contractor within the period specified in this Agreement;

If on the consideration of the Authority's representation or otherwise, the contractor does not issue the Termination Notice on such 15th (fifteenth) day and prefers to continue with the project, it is deemed that the cause of action of the Termination Notice has been condoned by the Contractor and he would be deemed to have waived any claim and forfeited any right to any other remedy on that count or in relation to such action or omission.

23.3 Termination for Authority's convenience

Notwithstanding anything stated hereinabove, the Authority may terminate this Agreement for convenience. The termination shall take effect 30 (thirty) days from the date of notice provided to the Contractor."

(emphasis added)

(xii). Article 25 provided Liability and Indemnity and Article 26 provided for resolution of dispute between the parties including arbitration vide Article 26.3.

23. From a bare reading of the aforesaid Articles of EPC Agreement following undisputed conditions regarding availability of land under the agreement vis-a-vis the obligations and duties emerge out:

(i). The project highway site shall be procured by the authority.

(ii). The possession of the project highway site will be made available to the contractor free from all encroachments, encumbrances with further free access.

(iii). It will be authority's duty to design the site in terms of alignment of national highway road.

(iv). The authority shall provide 'Right of Way' on the site in accordance with the alignment. The right of way as defined, a site in accordance with alignment finalised by the authority free from all encroachments and encumbrances. Clause 3 provides for right of way to the contractor in respect of all land included the appendix by the dates specified in schedule A for those parts of site referred therein and in the event delay occurs then force majeure clause of the agreement can be enforced.

(v). It will be authority's duty to obtain environment clearance and licences for the project highway.

(vi). The authority's representative, the contractor and Authority's Engineer shall inspect the site within 10 days of the agreement.

(vii). Soon after the above inspection a memorandum would be prepared containing inventory of the site qua vacant land and encumbered land, buildings structure, road works, trees and any other immovable property on or attached to the site. This would be a Handover Memorandum.

(viii). The Handover Memorandum shall contain Appendix regarding details of those parts of the site which are vacant having access as the land where 'Right of Way' has not been given to the contractor with further details of hindrances in the construction zone.

(ix). The site of project will be prepared as per schedule - A of the agreement.

(x). The authority is to provide right of way to the contractor in respect of all the land included in the appendix by the date specified in Schedule- A and in the event of breach of this, contractor would be entitled to damages etc.

(xi). Upon a careful reading of aforesaid clauses, we find that soon after the agreement is reached within 10 days, the Authority Engineer shall inspect the site the and prepare a detailed memorandum containing an entry of site vacant and unencumbered land, buildings, structures, trees and other removal properties and the documents hand over memorandum would carry with the appendix specifying the vacant access, specifying the site with detail of access and where right of way and access has not been provided along with other details of hindrances in the construction zone. The hand over memorandum shall also provide clearly the part of site where work can be executed and the hand over memorandum shall have the counter parts and each shall construe as original by the authorised representatives of the authority, contractor and Authority Engineer.

(xii). The agreement defines □Right of Way□ as under:

'Right of Way' means and refers to the total land required and acquired for the project, both in its width and length, together with all way leaves, easements, unrestricted access and other rights of way, howsoever described, necessary for constructions and maintenance of the Project Highway in accordance with this Agreement."

(xiii). 90% of the total length of project shall be handed over to the contractor prior to the appointed day.

(xiv). Conditions specified in the clauses contained in Article 8.2 shall not be waived by either of the parties.

(xv). Existing rights of way, easements, privileges, liberties and appurtenances to the site shall not be deemed to be encumbrances.

(xvi). The contractor would have to shoulder the responsibility to shift obstructing utilities like electric lines, water pipes, gas pipelines, telephone cables to appropriate location if these utilities create obstructions in the work or maintenance of project highway in accordance with law and the cost incurred in such reallocation will be borne by the authority. Such work and shifting of utilities has been indicated in Schedule □ B-1 of the agreement.

(xvii). The contractor shall allow use of site for laying down new public telephone utilities like lines, electric lines, water pipelines, cables and other new public utilities subject to permission from the authority for which the damages may be claimed.

(xviii). The authority shall be assisting the contractor in obtaining applicable permits for cutting of trees in non forest area to be identified by the authority for the purposes if such trees cause a material adverse effect on construction and maintenance of the project. Dismantling of structures would be done by the contractor to get the land free from hindrances in respect of which the compensation has already been paid by the authority to the land owners and the land was handed over to the contractor.

24. Thus, from the above, we find that agreement very comprehensively prescribed terms and conditions to ensure good time bound execution of work with a right to reserve with contractor to enforce obligations of the Authority to ensure carrying out of the project as per the agreement. It also provides for the authority to adopt measures in the event of default by contractor in carrying out the work as per the agreement within the time schedule and upon failure of contractor to complete the project denying core period to terminate contract.

25. Now, it is in the above background of conditions laid under the agreement that we proceed to examine the documents brought on record to reach out to the conclusion as answer to the points framed above by us.

26. As the pleadings raised in the writ petition demonstrate so also the documents brought on record, the reasons for delays in completion of project, which according to the petitioner, was attributable to hindrances and land issues. Petitioner had applied for the first time on 7th July, 2022 for extension of time taking recourse to the Article 10.5. The total time demanded by petitioner 248 days so as to enable him to complete the project by 15th June, 2022. However, the Authority□s Engineer vide letter dated 27th July, 2022 recommended an extension of time only 39 days and resultantly the respondent No.- 2 namely the NHAI Project Director accorded extension of only 42 days for Milestone-1 and denied any other extension for Milestone 2 & 3. Relevant para (iv) of letter dated 8th February, 2022 is reproduced hereunder:

"iv. As per clause 9.2 Article 9.2 of CA the shifting of obstructing Utilities (including electric lines, water pipes, Gs pipeline etc) & dismantling of structures is the obligation of contractor. Further, in respect of tree cutting of protect & non-protected forest, permission was obtained within 150 days (i.e upto 09.03.2022) from the Appointed Date and tree cutting by respective DLM was in progress. Further, length of 20.340 Km was considered to be hindered after 150 days as stated in the contractor's letter/ respective MPR. Thus, length considered handed over to the contractor shall be 29.914 Km (50.254 Km □ 20.340 Km). It is pertinent to mention that contractor/ AE has submitted the proposal based on land available within 150 days & delays upto 15.06.2022. Since, the project milestone-1 (21.06.2022) date has been passed, hence, effected delay days is worked out for 104 days (10.03.2022 to 21.06.2022) as (50.254-29.914)/ 50.254 x 104 days = 42.09 days or say 42 days."

27. Petitioner raised objection to the criteria adopted by the Authority's Engineer in evaluating time extension request. The petitioner continued to reiterate but the maximum period remained granted 42 days vide letter of the Authority dated 9th November, 2022. While the correspondence went on between the petitioner the Authority's Engineer and the Authority, a development took place in the form of letter of Authority's Engineer dated 21st November, 2023 acknowledging the presence of hindrances/ encumbrances of the project land which, according to the petitioner caused the delay in project and hence it recommended for further extension of time for 196 days. Authority's Engineer's recommendation as contained in its letter dated 21st November, 2023 is reproduced hereunder:

"9. AE's Recommendations of Interim EOT:

Considering the aforesaid data points made available, the AE Representative is delighted to recommend the following to the Authority for grant of interim EOT to the EPC Contractor in terms of Clause 10.5 of the Contract Agreement:-

a) Since hindrances/ encumbrances are continuing on affected project stretch as per Annexure-I even on date, this recommendation of EOT is interim only.

b) Considering EPC Contractor's letter, No TPL/GM/NHAI/FY22-23/ 709A/843, dated 17.03.2023, there is an estimated delay of 196 days up to the scheduled date of completion of 09.10.2023 for which EPC Contractor is not liable. EPC Contractor is therefore recommended an interim EOT of 196 days (Interim EOT-2) to be granted by the Competent."

28. While the matter lingered on, the Authority's Engineer prepared a comprehensive report vide letter dated 10th July, 2024 addressed to the Project Director, NHAI, recording reasons for delay in carrying out the project and proposed 5th January, 2025 as revised schedule complete date. This letter of the Authority's Engineer acquires significance and relevance year because it was based upon the survey conducted on the spot and the reasons assigned for the delay in project. The relevant extract thereof is reproduced hereunder:

"10. AE's Recommendations of Interim EOT-3:

Considering the aforesaid data points made available, the AE Representative is delighted to recommend the following to the Authority for grant of interim EOT to the EPC Contractor in terms of Clause 10.5 of the Contract Agreement: -

a) Since hindrances/encumbrances are continuing on affected project stretch as per Annexure-I and Annexure-11 even on date, this recommendation of EOT is interim only.

b) Considering the EOT-1 of 42 days and EOT-2 of 196 days to the EPC Contractor, this interim recommendation is for an additional of 247 Days to be reckoned from Revised Scheduled Completion Date of 22/4/2024 as per EOT-2 recommendations. Considering EOT-3, the revised Scheduled Completion Date stands at 5th January 2025 for 100% completion of the Project Highways in all respects inclusive of the Change of Scope work items under consideration for approval by the Competent Authority.

c) The Revised Milestones/Scheduled Completion Date pursuant to Clause 6 of Schedule J of the Contract Agreement considering the current interim recommendation EOT-3 stand modified as follows: -

Sr. No.	Milestone	Revised Project Milestone as per Project Length handed over to the EPC Contractor on AD+90 days,	Revised Date	Status
1	MS-I	10% x68.615% x Rs 954.90 Cr = Rs. 65.54 Cr.	Completed on 02-Aug-22	Achieved
2	MS-II	35% x 68.615% x 954.9 = Rs.229.32 Cr.	23-Dec-22	Achieved
3	Revised MS-III	70% x 1043.07 Cr. = Rs. 730.149 Cr.	16-Sep-2024	Yet to be achieved.
4	Revised Scheduled	100% of effective Project Completion Cost subject to a	05-Jan-2025	Yet to be achieved.

	Completion Date	maximum of Rs. 1043.07 Cr including amounting to Rs.88.15 Cr. Change of Scope work items considering for approval by the Competent Authority.

The EPC Contractor has to submit his resource based Revised work program with enhanced resources to achieve above mentioned milestones. In this context it is highly recommended that EPC Contractor executes the works at site in 03 parallel sections concurrently with additional mobilization of necessary and augmented as mentioned below:

i. Grade Separated Interchanges at km 0+000, km 38+120, km 12+134;

ii. Change of Scope Work items including all additional underpasses, service roads etc under approval by the Authority

iii. Rest of the Highways/Structures/balance CD works etc including balance scope as per Schedule B of the Contract Agreement

d) While EPC Contractor has achieved a financial progress of 36% i.e. Rs.343.76 Cr upto IPC-22, and works amounting to Rs. 297.56 Cr are continued to be delayed due to ongoing hindrances/encumbrances for which EPC Contractor is not liable, the EPC Contractor may be allowed escalation as per the rate prevailing on the original date of completion of 09.10.2023 on balance works amounting upto Rs.297.56 Cr. value of works.

e) Since there is impending delay in completion of value of works amounting to Rs.313.58 till IPC 22 due to slow progress by the EPC Contractor until interim EOT-2, necessary damages may be charged to EPC Contractor pursuant to Clause 10.3 read with Clause 10.6 of the Contract Agreement.

f) The EPC Contractor has not made any financial claim so for pursuant to Clauses 3.1, 8.3, 9.5 and any other applicable claim condition in terms of Schedule O of the EPC Contract dated 26-08-2021 and the Authority also has not abrogated applicable delay damages to the EPC Contractor in terms of Clause 10.3 of the Contract Agreement with the understanding that either party shall consider and agree exclusively vide a settlement agreement for not making any claim or charging applicable damages in acceptance of this recommendation of EOT-3 unconditionally.

g) The aforesaid recommendations of the EOT are based on the assumption that since there has been persistent slow progress by EPC Contractor, the EPC Contractor shall be accepting these recommendations unconditionally and shall not make any financial claims in future for the EOT and the Authority also will not charge any LDs to the EPC Contractor for his slow progress/non-performance up to the revised scheduled completion date of 05.01.2025.

h) Any further extension of time/escalation will be recommended by the Authority Engineer/Authority as per performance of EPC Contractor measured against the Revised work program submitted vide his email dated 09.07.2024 to achieve the revised financial Milestones as outlined in point (c) above."

(emphasis added)

29. The annexure appended to the report/ letter also acquires significance because it refers to the length in meters which were not hindrance free even on 10th July, 2024 and the total land comes out to be as per main carriage way 7.998 km. out of total project length of 50.254 km. The letter also recorded that Handover Memorandum showed encumbrance/ hindrance free project site admeasuring 47.620 km. out of total project length 50.254 km. with necessary access and right of way handed over to the contractor but as per the joint site visit by Authority's Engineer team, the contractor and the authority dated March, 2023 a total of 15.66 km. of the project length was encumbered with various hindrances. Thus making effective available land only to the tune of 34.594 km.

30. From the perusal of the annexure to the report/ letter it is worth noticing that hindrances that accounted for 7.998 km. as recorded above, were basically for buildings, temples, mosque, boundary wall and land issues, besides the other land full of hindrances in terms of trees, electricity polls etc. so it had come in black and white in the report of Authority's Engineer dated 10th July, 2024 that till that date land issues were there, the permanent structures were there and hence the land, possession of which was required to be given as per the Article 8.1(a), 8.2(i), 8.2(ii) and 8.2 (iii) was not there.

31. It is worth noticing here that as per the EPC the work was to completed by July, 2022 whereas even 90% land site were not available as per the agreement as on 10th July, 2024. On 17th September, 2024 the petitioner submitted a revised schedule for completion of the project appending therewith the details but the NHAI proceeded to issue a cure period notice on 11th October, 2024 in terms of Article 23.1(i) of the agreement.

32. The petitioner submitted a detailed reply to the notice on 19th November, 2024 citing that the handover of land at site of project was still not complete and land issues were there but the authority brushed aside the reply and directed the petitioner to complete the project in terms of the extended period earlier granted and to achieve the finish line at the earliest. Further time extension request and rescheduling the time line was rejected vide letter dated 11th December, 2024.

33. The contractor in his reply dated 16th December, 2024 cited the status of the site of land and hindrances still to be existing and prayed for support in the matter for the practical problem that had arisen and in the light of the earlier response of the petitioner some sympathetic consideration should be accorded, however, still the contractor assured to complete the project on agreed if extended time lines, was allowed.

34. The Authority's Engineer wrote to the petitioner on 17th December, 2024 that financial performance be submitted and also additional steps, if any, taken for the completion of project.

While this letter was issued by the Authority's Engineer on 17th December, 2024, on 23rd December, 2024 the petitioner was issued with a show cause notice citing slow progress and failure to complete the project and not maintenance of project highway.

35. The petitioner again submitted reply citing the photographic evidence collected in the matter to demonstrate that maintenance activities were duly carried out and that petitioner has been prudently performing its obligation under the agreement to complete the project at the earliest. However, the project progress got impacted for the reasons not attributable to the contractor beyond his control. Petitioner again prayed for extension of time but his request went in vein as the authority finally terminated the contract on 22nd January, 2025 the order impugned in this petition.

36. From the above discussion, it clearly comes to be established that Authority's Engineer reported to the authority itself that Handover Memorandum though referred to handing over more than 90% of the land but as a matter of fact possession of this much of land was never handed over.

37. Here it is apt to refer to the Handover Memorandum which has been basically relied upon by the NHAI and we find this Handover Memorandum dated 21st September, 2021 to be referring to delivery of possession of total length of 47.620 km out of 50.254 km. amounting to 94.76% but the appendix to the same is not as per the Article 8.2. The appendix shows hindrances in the form of electric polls, a little water pipeline, a few hand pumps but does not refer to any land issues or building structure or temple etc. that have come to be referred to in the Authority's Engineer's report dated 10th July, 2024. This report dated 10th July, 2024 has come to be referred to in paragraph 49 of the writ petition but to our utter surprise, in reply thereto vide paragraph 28 of the counter affidavit the same has remained undenied.

38. The paragraph refers to some letter/ communication of the petitioner dated 7th June, 2024 to allege that the petitioner deliberately avoided to file the same but no such letter has been annexed in support of the averments so made by respondent NHAI. Thus, the Authority's Engineer's report has remained undenied.

39. We can understand that utilities like electricity polls, trees, hand pumps, pipelines etc. are removable easily and for that contractor had the liability but the land issues cannot be taken to be within the control of the contractor. Further, appendix-2 schedule ' A as per Article 8.3(i), was to also bear the date of providing 'Right of Way' in respect of hindrances after its removal but the Handover Memorandum was so sketchy and evasive that it did not contain any such details.

40. We further notice that in the order impugned exhaustive reply submitted by the petitioner to show cause notice was not accorded due consideration and it is one of those cases where the authority instead of carrying out its own obligations, it kept on tightening the screw upon the contractor to finish the work within the extended time line. The agreement itself provides that procurement of the land is the prime duty of the authority and so long as the land issues continue to remain there as a hindrance, then no contractor can even dare to demolish the constructions without settling the land issues. There is one document filed along with the writ petition at page 948 along with the annexure- 24 that shows that compensation to the members of the Committee of Jama Masjid and Eidgah was paid on 2nd December, 2024. This document has come to be referred to in paragraph 49 of the writ petition and we have already held above how evasive the reply was there in counter affidavit. Still further, the land state can take the plea that compensation payment issue may not cause difficulty in possession but in a democratic country like ours if payment remains withheld, the farmers and land owners keep agitating and no private person can forcefully take possession challenging to a land and order situation caused on the spot by such agitation.

41. Thus, respondents having not discharged their obligations and having failed to perform duties of their part under the agreement, they were certainly not justified in asking petitioner to complete the project within the extended short timeline inasmuch as, they having failed to honour the report of their own Engineer, were absolutely unjustified in issuing show cause notice even. The contract agreement itself provides for appointment of Authority's Engineer vide Article 18.1 & 18.2(i) lays down the duties as per the terms of reference. There is nothing in the counter affidavit to demonstrate that Authority's Engineer submitted any collusive report in favour of the petitioner to help him out.

9. Findings

42. From the discussions that we have held above referring to the various correspondences between petitioner-contractor, the Authority's Engineer and the response letters of the National Highway Authority of India, Project Director, Meerut, following undisputed fact positions emerge out:

(i). On 21st September, 2021 Handover Memorandum was signed by the contractor, National Highways Authority and Authority's Engineer, all jointly describing therein that 47.620 kms (94.76%) length of land out of total 50.254 kms. with right of way available to 45 meters and 54 meters as per schedule- B of the contract agreement. The appendix to the document showed that total land area required was 305.5 hectares with right of way 120 hectares, whereas area under 3D notification of National Highways Act, 1956 was 85.51 hectares and compensation awarded under Section 3G was 184.5 hectares. It also contained a detail regarding area under possession against 3G notification of National Highways Act, 1956 was 173.39 hectares. So, total possession were shown as 293.39 hectares and the pending length possession was shown as 2.364 kms only but the chain-wise pending possession was at different level like 13.200 kms. to 14.600 kms., 25.600 kms. to 26.500 kms., 5.200 kms. to 5.400 kms. and 12.000 kms. to 12.134 kms., in a total stretch of 50.254 kms.

(ii). The appendix-2 to Handover Memorandum dated 21st September, 2021 did show only few utilities but did not show the time line by which the utilities were expected to be removed by the contractor with the cooperation to be rendered by the authority.

(iii). The petitioner acknowledged Handover Memorandum as was given to him. This got further acknowledged with subsequent documents signed on 22nd September, 2021 by the contractor in a letter written to the Project Director.

(iv). Soon after the project work started, Tata wrote a letter on 7th July, 2022 to the Authority's Engineer complaining of non-fulfilment of reciprocal promises by the authority and citing six reasons demanded extension of time of 248 days, which are as follows:

(a). Delay in providing encumbrance free row pursuant to Article 8.2 & 3.1 (iii) of the agreement;

(b). Delay due to tree cuttings as per Article 9.2 contract agreement;

(c). Delay due to shifting of chartered and unchartered utilities;

(d). Inordinate delay in designs and drawing approvals;

(e). Delay due to extended monsoon/ adverse weather condition and Force Majeure; and (f). Delay due to spread of Covid -19/ omicrons/ Force Mejiure.

(v). The above letter carried annexure that referred to various constructions like mosque, houses, boundaries wall, buildings, mazars, commercial buildings, besides other utilities like electricity polls, bore-wells etc. covering 23.210 kms. Then land payment issues and private possessions covering 25.720 kms. The letter also details the area of land involved in handing over in different villages and also main carriage way affected by various constructions like mosque etc. and further the Garh area of 1.360 kms affected by Eidgah and temple and also referred to an area of total 12.3332 hectares of land in different villages that requires re-gazette notification in Meerut and Hapur districts.

(vi). The National Highways Authority in its letter addressed to the Regional Office, Gomti Nagar, Lucknow dated 8th August, 2022 admitted vide its (iv) as under:

"(iv). As per clause 9.2. Article -9 of CA, the shifting of obstructing Utilities (including electric lines, water pipes, Gas pipeline etc) & dismantling of structures is the obligation of contractor. Further, in respect of tree cutting of protect & non-protected forest, permission was obtained within 150 days (i.e. upto 09.03.2022) from the Appointed date and tree cutting by respective DLM was in progress. Further, length of 20.340 Km was considered to be hindered after 150 days as stated in the contractor's letter/ respective MPR. Thus, length considered handed over to the contractor shall be 29.914 Km (50.254 km - 20.340 km). It is pertinent to mention that contractor/ AE has submitted the proposal based on land available within 150 days & delays upto 15.06.2022*. Since, the project milestone-1 (21.06.2022) date has been passed, hence, effected delay days is worked out for 104 days (10.03.2022 to 21.06.2022) as (50.254-29.914)/50.254 x 104 days = 42.09 days or say 42 days."*

(emphasis added)

(vii). Thus NHAI fairly admitted that only 29.914 kms was in fact handed over to the contractor and yet it only allowed 42 days extension of time.

(viii). The petitioner on 17th August, 2022 wrote for further extension of time and NHAI reiterated 42 days of extension vide letter dated 30th August, 2022.

(ix). Despite repeated letters written by the petitioner to the authority including one letter dated 29th September, 2022 citing reasons and the Authority's Engineer also wrote to the authority on 26th September, 2022 submitting report regarding hindrances found on existing constructions and other hindrance of total length of 31.852 kms. in two laining and 15.925 kms. in four laining, the NHAI vide letter dated 9th November, 2022 only extended time for shifting Milestone-1 for 42 days upto 2nd August, 2022 keeping scheduled date of completion of other milestones unchanged.

(x). Petitioner wrote to the authority on 21st December, 2022 for necessary extension of time as per Article 10.5 of the contract. The Authority's Engineer vide letter dated 3rd January, 2023 intimated the authority that EOT request was under preparation and yet the authority wrote to the Authority□s Engineer that request for extension of time further was not found suited to reconsider at that stage.

(xi). Petitioner kept on writing to the Authority's Engineer on 17th March, 2023 citing the delay issues involving agitation by the farmers for almost 9-10 days and delay in approval of designs etc. by the authority and numbers of change of scope as per Article 13.5 pending consideration by the authority. Nothing progressed and the correspondence continued amongst the petitioner, Authority's Engineer and NHAI until 10th July, 2024.

(xii). On 10th July, 2024 the Authority's Engineer made recommendations for 248 days of extension of time citing reasons of land not being hindrance free that has been discussed above.

(xiii). On 17th September, 2024 petitioner submitted a revised schedule for completion of the project till 31st July, 2025 but instead of considering the above letter the authority issued a cure period notice under Article 23.1(i) on 11th October, 2024 asking the petitioner to complete the maintenance work within 60 days from the receipt of the notice. The Authority cited in its letter only non conformance in respect of certain areas in openings of national highway project.

(xiv). On 19th November, 2024 petitioner submitted a detailed reply citing such constructions and buildings with other areas involving land payment issues which could not be easily removed but the authority wrote a letter on 11th December, 2024 to expedite the prescribed work and complete the subject project at the earliest. Petitioner on 16th December, 2024 reiterated is stand.

(xv). On 17th December, 2024 the Authority□s Engineer submitted report regarding delays in project attributing low pace of work and wrote to the petitioner that he should get the work completed as per the re-scheduled date proposed by him under letter dated 17th September, 2024 and to expedite the work by submitting additional steps that are proposed.

(xvi). On 23rd December, 2024 the authority issued a termination notice to the petitioner on the ground of slow progress and failure to complete the project and non performance of project authority. On 3rd January, 2025 petitioner gave proper reply on both counts: firstly, the reply letter clearly stated that firstly the actual handing over of 90% land was made only on 31st December, 2024 whereas it was to be handed over on appointed date that was 10th October, 2021 and 150 days i.e. 9th March, 2022 but 100% possession of land was yet not handed over and complaint that delay was still continued on the site. He explained his slow progress and failure to complete the project for the reasons attributable to the authority and that the Authority□s Engineer was fully aware since the inception of the project that contractor had encountered various hindrances/ impediments which were well on record and were finally informed to the authority and Authority□s Engineer but no action was taken. Regarding maintenance as complained of in show cause notice petitioner replied that he did not commit any default under Article 23.1 (I) (d), (e), (f) and (q) of the agreement and since the authority/ Authority□s Engineer failed to fulfil its obligation under the contract in timely handing over land site with □Right of Way□ for construction, timely approvals of designed, timely removal of trees and hindrances and timely approval of change of scope that project work got delayed. This reply was supported by various documents and photographs and details of hindrances within the right of way. The authority on 14th January, 2025 terminated the contract of the petitioner.

43. The above fact positions clearly demonstrate that the only issue between the petitioner and the authority was that, though actual physical possession of land was claimed in the Handover Memorandum as per Article 8 but was not there available on the spot and not only the hindrances were in the form of utilities like electricity lines, bore-wells etc. but there were constructed buildings like mosque, mazar, temple and other boundary walls of the private constructions involving land issues, which led to the repeated correspondence between the petitioner and authorities with no headway except granting extension of time of 42 days and with certain change of scope of work. All these were very meagre efforts taken by the Authority in comparison to what was in fact communicated to the authority by the authority's own engineer vide letter dated 10th July, 2024. The letter dated 10th July, 2024 is undisputed document which clearly disclosed that a very large area of land was still affected by the hindrances and right of way as defined under the agreement was not available to the petitioner on the main highway land area at every stretch of 5 kms in continuation. Further the □Handover Memorandum□ though of course, referred to handing over possession of 47.62 kms. out of 50.254 kms. amounting to 94.76% with right of way available. A letter dated 8th August, 2022 vide its clause (iv) quoted above, the actual handing over possession of the land was 29.914 kms. This completely renders the handover memorandum only a paper work as no such handing over possession of 90% land ever took place until 31st October, 2024 as has come to be referred to by the petitioner to the authority in its reply to the termination notice. Thus, the argument advanced by learned counsel for the petitioner holds merit that petitioner was not handed over possession of the land as referred to in the Handover Memorandum holds merit and the authority is liable to be held guilty of non performance of contract by the authority itself as admitted fact position emerges, inasmuch as the authority was guilty in not helping out the petitioner in removing the hindrances paying the land dues in time, gaining actual physical possession of the certain part of land within time inasmush as the possession issues were at different interval of total stretch of 50.254 kms making it difficult for the petitioner to expedite the work and perform its obligations as per the Narrative of Statement given initially after the agreement.

44. Yet another argument advanced by Mr. Saxena, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioner that the respondents the first party to the contract unilaterally avoided to comply with the Article 8.2 not informing the contractor about the proposed date and time it shall hand over the hindrance free possession and the appendix attached to the Handover Memorandum did not disclose all this details inasmuch as it referred to only an electric poll and hand pump and not the constructed building area like mosque, temple and Eidgah etc. Thus it rendered the Handover Memorandum as a misleading document with misrepresentation of facts also holds merit. If appendix-2 of the Handover Memorandum filed as Annexure-1 to the supplementary counter affidavit dated 29th April, 2026 is compared with the document, the letter of the authority itself dated 8th August, 2022 particularly clause (iv) of it as reproduced above, and the Authority's Engineer's own letter dated 10th July, 2024 and the appendix contained therewith, it would fully demonstrate that the appendix annexed to the Handover Memorandum was an eye wash and misleading in itself inasmuch as the promises made under Article 8 stood not complied with by the first party to the contract.

45. All this could have been a disputed question of fact, had there been no letter of Authority's own as referred to herein above dated 9th August, 2022 and the authority's engineer's own letter dated 10th July, 2024. This is an admitted fact position which cannot be doubted by anyone. This appears to be the reason why despite initial order passed by this Court on 18th March, 2025 regarding fair submission and stand of the authority that -NHAI shall file an affidavit, within a week specifying the dates when possession of land was given to the petitioner and yet no such affidavit was filed until 30th November, 2025 and that too only after the Court took a serious note of the conduct of the National Highway Authority in its order dated 26th November, 2025 granting 10 days' and no more time. This document was again filed when the Court directed the matter to be listed for further hearing requiring the respondent to clear the stand as to whether this document was infact Handover Memorandum as per Article 8. The next supplementary was filed on 29th April, 2026 on behalf of NHAI declaring it to be Handover Memorandum.

46. Thus, it is clear that except the document that has been brought twice on record, there is nothing more to demonstrate any Handover Memorandum was executed as per Article 8 putting the authority under obligations vide its Article 8.2(i) & 8.2(ii).

47. This is the document upon which the entire counter affidavit of the State respondents rests. It was argued by Mr. Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Advocate that once the petitioner acknowledged handing over possession of 94% land on 21st September, 2021, it could not have turned around to say that as per Article 8 handing over possession of 90% of the land did not take place and because of the land issues etc. and utilities, that project got delayed and the impugned order was bad.

48. Interestingly, in the entire counter affidavit there is nothing even suggestive of that letter of the authority dated 8th August, 2022 much after 21st September, 2021 was a mistake or that what was stated was wrong. The Authority's Engineer's own letter dated 10th July, 2024 has also not been disputed.

49. In the circumstances, therefore, in our considered view, the above argument advanced by Mr. Pande, learned Senior Advocate, does not hold any merit and deserves to be rejected.

50. What further is very interesting and is quite apparent on face of it that there has been no application of mind by the authority while passing the order impugned as both the notice of proposed termination of contract dated 23rd December, 2024 and the order impugned dated 14th January, 2025 are verbatim same. Paragraph 2 of the order impugned is the same word by word as paragraph 2 of the notice except reference to the dates letter of the Authority□s Engineer dated 17th December, 2024 and 4th January, 2025 and reply letter of the petitioner dated 3rd January, 2025. We have already discussed above that the Authority□s Engineer letter dated 17th October, 2024 was absolutely contrary to what he had submitted on 10th July, 2024 requesting for extension of time of 248 days citing reasons for the same. However, what is very surprising is that detailed reply submitted by the petitioner referring to the various progress related reports, photographs, hindrances and the issues like land issues etc. that we have already discussed above in the fact position, nothing was considered as if authority was sitting with a pre-determined mind to terminate the contract of the petitioner mid-term, whatever be his reply. This shows that there is absolutely non-application of mind by the authority.

51. The National Highway Authority is state within the meaning of of Article 12 of the Constitution and enters contract with private body for construction of national highway, a project of public interest and importance and hence it was expected to behave reasonably in the matter of such contract. The parties to the contract are no doubt bound by the terms and conditions of the contract but burden upon the state authority lies heavily in performing its part of the contract, more especially, when the work to be executed, becomes a concern of larger public interest. Constructing the national highway involves expenditure out of the state exchequer where the public money lies. Tax-payer contribution is there which is spent on development activities by the State and the National Highway Authority is acting as a State to carry out such execution of work. Stand as defence qua impugned action has been taken by the National Highway Authority in throughout blaming the contractor-petitioner in not performing its part of the contract in maintaining the national highway and accomplishing the task assigned under the agreement within the prescribed period but did not introspect at least once to realise as to what it did in preparing document full of misrepresentation in the name of □Handover Memorandum□ which, of course, it did acknowledge and realise subsequently vide letter dated 8th August, 2022. This amounts to an unfair practice on part of the State. The act of a party which is State under Article 12 in this case is found to be arbitrary one against affect work of public importance and so this Court will not shirk away from its responsibility in arresting any miscarriage of justice in larger public interest. Delay in construction of national highway as a project, if caused due to reasons for the negligence and carelessness and arbitrariness on the part of the State as one of the parties of the contract, the Court is certainly justified lift the corporate veil to understand the exact reasons for such actions impugned in this petition.

10. Authorities cited on behalf of the petitioner

52. Mr. Amit Saxena, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the authority in the case of ABL International Ltd and others v. Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Ltd and others (2004) 3 SCC 553 and MP Power Management Company Ltd v. M/s Sky Power Southeast Solar India Pvt Ltd. and others (2023) 2 SCC 703 and A.P. Electrical Equipment Corporation v. Tehsildar and others (2025) SCC Online SC 447.

53. Citing the authority in the case of ABL International Ltd (supra), learned Senior Advocate has placed reliance upon paragraphs 23, 24 and 27 of the judgment that are quoted below:

"23. It is clear from the above observations of this Court, once the State or an instrumentality of the State is a party of the contract, it has an obligation in law to act fairly, justly and reasonably which is the requirement of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. Therefore, if by the impugned repudiation of the claim of the appellants the first respondent as an instrumentality of the State has acted in contravention of the abovesaid requirement of Article 14, then we have no hesitation in holding that a writ court can issue suitable directions to set right the arbitrary actions of the first respondent. In this context, we may note that though the first respondent is a company registered under the Companies Act, it is wholly owned by the Government of India. The total subscribed share capital of this Company is 2,50,000 shares out of which 2,49,998 shares are held by the President of India while one share each is held by the Joint Secretary, Ministry of Commerce and Industry and Officer on Special Duty, Ministry of Commerce and Industry respectively. The objects enumerated in the memorandum of association of the first respondent at para 10 read:

"To undertake such functions as may be entrusted to it by the Government from time to time, including grant of credits and guarantees in foreign currency for the purpose of facilitating the import of raw materials and semi-finished goods for manufacture or processing goods for export."

Para 11 of the said object reads thus:

"To act as agent of the Government, or with the sanction of the Government on its own account, to give the guarantees, undertake such responsibilities and discharge such functions as are considered by the Government as necessary in national interest."

24. It is clear from the above two objects of the Company that apart from the fact that the Company is wholly a Government-owned company, it discharges the functions of the Government and acts as an agent of the Government even when it gives guarantees and it has a responsibility to discharge such functions in the national interest. In this background it will be futile to contend that the actions of the first respondent impugned in the writ petition do not have a touch of public function or discharge of a public duty. Therefore, this argument of the first respondent must also fail.

27. From the above discussion of ours, the following legal principles emerge as to the maintainability of a writ petition:

(a) In an appropriate case, a writ petition as against a State or an instrumentality of a State arising out of a contractual obligation is maintainable.

(b) Merely because some disputed questions of fact arise for consideration, same cannot be a ground to refuse to entertain a writ petition in all cases as a matter of rule.

(c) A writ petition involving a consequential relief of monetary claim is also maintainable."

54. In the case of A. P. Electrical Equipment Corporation (supra) paragraphs 47, 48, 49, 51 & 52 of the judgment that are quoted below:

"47. One stock argument available with the State in this type of cases is that the question whether the actual physical possession of the disputed land had been taken over or not is a seriously disputed question of fact, which the High Court should not adjudicate or determine in exercise of its writ jurisdiction. As a principle of law, there need not be any debate on such a proposition, but by merely submitting that it is a seriously disputed question of fact, the same, by itself, will not become a question of fact. To put it in other words, having regard to the materials on record, which falsifies the case of the State Government, then such materials should not be overlooked or ignored by the Court on the principle that the issue with regard to taking over of the actual physical possession would be a disputed question of fact.

48. Normally, the disputed questions of fact are not investigated or adjudicated by a writ court while exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. But the mere existence of the disputed question of fact, by itself, does not take away the jurisdiction of this writ court in granting appropriate relief to the petitioner. In a case where the Court is satisfied, like the one on hand, that the facts are disputed by the State merely to create a ground for the rejection of the writ petition on the ground of disputed questions of fact, it is the duty of the writ court to reject such contention and to investigate the disputed facts and record its finding if the particular facts of the case, like the one at hand, was required in the interest of justice.

49. There is nothing in Article 226 of the Constitution to indicate that the High Court in the proceedings, like the one on hand, is debarred from holding such an inquiry. The proposition that a petition under Article 226 must be rejected simply on the ground that it cannot be decided without determining the disputed question of fact is not warranted by any provisions of law nor by any decision of this Court. A rigid application of such proposition or to treat such proposition as an inflexible rule of law or of discretion will necessarily make the provisions of Article 226 wholly illusory and ineffective more particularly Section 10(5) and 10(6) of the Act, 1976 respectively. Obviously, the High Court must avoid such consequences.

51. This Court in the case of Gunwant Kaur v. Bhatinda Municipality, (1969) 3 SCC 769 : AIR 1970 SC 802 observed as follows:"

"The High Court observed that they will not determine disputed question of fact in a writ petition. But what facts were in dispute and what were admitted could only be determined after an affidavit in reply was filed by the State. The High Court, however, proceeded to dismiss the petition in limine. The High Court is not deprived of its jurisdiction to entertain a petition under Art. 226 merely because in considering the petitioner's right to relief questions of fact may fall to be determined. In a petition under Art. 226 the High Court has jurisdiction to try issues both of fact and law. Exercise of jurisdiction is, it is true, discretionary, but the discretion must be exercised on sound judicial principles. When the petition raises questions of fact of a complex nature, which may for their determination require oral evidence to be taken, and on that account the High Court is of the view that the dispute may not appropriately be tried in a writ petition, the High Court may decline to try a petition. Rejection of a petition in limine will normally be justified, where the High Court is of the view that the petition is frivolous or because of the nature of the claim made, dispute sought to be agitated., or that the petition against the party against whom relief is claimed is not maintainable or that the dispute raised thereby is such that it would be inappropriate to try it in the writ jurisdiction, or for analogous reasons."

(emphasis supplied)

52. In one of the recent pronouncements of this Court in State of U.P. v. Ehsan, 2023 INSC 906, this Court observed that:-

"28. We are conscious of the law that existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar on exercise of writ jurisdiction. More so, when a writ petition has been entertained, parties have exchanged their pleadings/affidavits and the matter has remained pending for long. In such a situation there must be a sincere effort to decide the matter on merits and not relegate the writ petitioner to the alternative remedy, unless there are compelling reasons for doing so. One such compelling reason may arise where there is a serious dispute between the parties on a question of fact and materials/evidence(s) available on record are insufficient/inconclusive to enable the Court to come to a definite conclusion.

29. Bearing the aforesaid legal principles in mind, we would have to consider whether, in the facts of the case, the High Court ought to have dismissed the third writ petition of the first respondent and relegate him to a suit as there existed a serious dispute between the parties regarding taking of possession. More so, when the High Court, in the earlier round of litigation, refrained from taking up the said issue even though it had arisen between the parties.

30. No doubt, in a writ proceeding between the State and a landholder, the Court can, on the basis of materials/evidence(s) placed on record, determine whether possession has been taken or not and while doing so, it may draw adverse inference against the State where the statutory mode of taking possession has not been followed [See State of UP v. Hari Ram (supra)]. However, where possession is stated to have been taken long ago and there is undue delay on the part of landholder in approaching the writ court, infraction of the prescribed procedure for taking possession would not be a determining factor, inasmuch as, it could be taken that the person for whose benefit the procedure existed had waived his right thereunder [See State of Assam v. Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma, (supra)]. In such an event, the factum of actual possession would have to be determined on the basis of materials/evidence(s) available on record and not merely by finding fault in the procedure adopted for taking possession from the land holder. And if the writ court finds it difficult to determine such question, either for insufficient/inconclusive materials/ evidence(s) on record or because oral evidence would also be required to form a definite opinion, it may relegate the writ petitioner to a suit, if the suit is otherwise maintainable."

55. In the case of M.P. Power Management Corporation Ltd. (supra), learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon paragraphs 53, 54, 74, 75, 82.9, 82.10 & 82.11 that are quoted below:

"53. In Radhakrishna Agarwal v. State of Bihar [Radhakrishna Agarwal v. State of Bihar, (1977) 3 SCC 457] writ petitions were filed against orders of the State Government revising the rate of royalty under a lease. The contention was both against the revision of rate of royalty during the period of the lease and the cancellation of the lease on various grounds. Though an attempt was sought to draw support from the judgment of this Court in Erusian Equipment & Chemicals Ltd. v. State of W.B. [Erusian Equipment & Chemicals Ltd. v. State of W.B., (1975) 1 SCC 70] , the Court took the view that the said case involved discrimination at the threshold or at the time of deciding as to whether the Government should enter into the contract. The Court took the view that the only question which normally arises in such cases is as to whether the action complained of was in conformity with the agreement.

54. We may notice the earlier opinions of this Court which came to be dealt with in the following statement : (Radhakrishna Agarwal case [Radhakrishna Agarwal v. State of Bihar, (1977) 3 SCC 457] , SCC p. 465, para 19)

"19. We do not think that any of these cases could assist the appellants or are at all relevant. None of these cases lays down that, when the State or its officers purport to operate within the contractual field and the only grievance of the citizen could be that the contract between the parties is broken by the action complained of, the appropriate remedy is by way of a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution and not an ordinary suit. There is a formidable array of authority against any such proposition. In Lekhraj Sathramdas Lalvani v. Custodian [Lekhraj Sathramdas Lalvani v. Custodian, AIR 1966 SC 334] this Court said : (AIR p. 337, para 5)

"5. In our opinion any duty or obligation falling upon a public servant out of a contract entered into by him as such public servant cannot be enforced by the machinery of a writ under Article 226 of the Constitution."

In Banchhanidhi Rath v. State of Orissa [Banchhanidhi Rath v. State of Orissa, (1972) 4 SCC 781] , this Court declared : (SCC p. 783, para 8)

"8. If a right is claimed in terms of a contract such a right cannot be enforced in a writ petition."

In Har Shankar v. Excise & Taxation Commr. [Har Shankar v. Excise & Taxation Commr., (1975) 1 SCC 737] , a Constitution Bench of this Court observed : (SCC p. 747, para 21)

"21. The appellants have displayed ingenuity in their search for invalidating circumstances but a writ petition is not an appropriate remedy for impeaching contractual obligations. "

74. We may notice that as to what constitutes arbitrariness fell for consideration by this Court in a case which involved cancellation of the examination held as part of a recruitment process, in East Coast Railway v. Mahadev Appa Rao [East Coast Railway v. Mahadev Appa Rao, (2010) 7 SCC 678 : (2010) 2 SCC (L&S) 483] . We notice the following passages which are apposite for this case : (SCC pp. 685-87, paras 19-20 & 23)

"19. Black's Law Dictionary describes the term "arbitrary" in the following words:

"arbitrary. adj.1. Depending on individual discretion; specif., determined by a Judge rather than by fixed rules, procedures, or law. 2. (Of a judicial decision) founded on prejudice or preference rather than on reason or fact. This type of decision is often termed arbitrary and capricious."

20. To the same effect is the meaning given to the expression 'arbitrary' by Corpus Juris Secundum which explains the term in the following words:

'Arbitrary.-Based alone upon one's will, and not upon any course of reasoning and exercise of judgment; bound by no law; capricious; exercised according to one's own will or caprice and therefore conveying a notion of a tendency to abuse possession of power; fixed or done capriciously or at pleasure, without adequate determining principle, non-rational, or not done or acting according to reason or judgment; not based upon actuality but beyond a reasonable extent; not founded in the nature of things; not governed by any fixed rules or standard; also, in a somewhat different sense, absolute in power, despotic, or tyrannical; harsh and unforbearing. When applied to acts, 'arbitrary' has been held to connote a disregard of evidence or of the proper weight thereof; to express an idea opposed to administrative, executive, judicial, or legislative discretion; and to imply at least an element of bad faith, and has been compared with 'willful"

23. Arbitrariness in the making of an order by an authority can manifest itself in different forms. Non-application of mind by the authority making the order is only one of them. Every order passed by a public authority must disclose due and proper application of mind by the person making the order. This may be evident from the order itself or the record contemporaneously maintained. Application of mind is best demonstrated by disclosure of mind by the authority making the order. And disclosure is best done by recording the reasons that led the authority to pass the order in question. Absence of reasons either in the order passed by the authority or in the record contemporaneously maintained is clearly suggestive of the order being arbitrary hence legally unsustainable."

75. We would, therefore, sum up as to when an act is to be treated as arbitrary. The Court must carefully attend to the facts and the circumstances of the case. It should find out whether the impugned decision is based on any principle. If not, it may unerringly point to arbitrariness. If the act betrays caprice or the mere exhibition of the whim of the authority it would sufficiently bear the insignia of arbitrariness. In this regard supporting an order with a rationale which in the circumstances is found to be reasonable will go a long way to repel a challenge to State action. No doubt the reasons need not in every case be part of the order as such. If there is absence of good faith and the action is actuated with an oblique motive, it could be characterised as being arbitrary. A total non-application of mind without due regard to the rights of the parties and public interest may be a clear indicator of arbitrary action. A wholly unreasonable decision which is little different from a perverse decision under the Wednesbury doctrine would qualify as an arbitrary decision under Article 14. Ordinarily visiting a party with the consequences of its breach under a contract may not be an arbitrary decision.

82.9. The need to deal with disputed questions of fact, cannot be made a smokescreen to guillotine a genuine claim raised in a writ petition, when actually the resolution of a disputed question of fact is unnecessary to grant relief to a writ applicant.

82.10. The reach of Article 14 enables a writ court to deal with arbitrary State action even after a contract is entered into by the State. A wide variety of circumstances can generate causes of action for invoking Article 14. The Court's approach in dealing with the same, would be guided by, undoubtedly, the overwhelming need to obviate arbitrary State action, in cases where the writ remedy provides an effective and fair means of preventing miscarriage of justice arising from palpably unreasonable action by the State.

82.11. Termination of contract can again arise in a wide variety of situations. If for instance, a contract is terminated, by a person, who is demonstrated, without any need for any argument, to be the person, who is completely unauthorised to cancel the contract, there may not be any necessity to drive the party to the unnecessary ordeal of a prolix and avoidable round of litigation. The intervention by the High Court, in such a case, where there is no dispute to be resolved, would also be conducive in public interest, apart from ensuring the fundamental right of the petitioner under Article 14 of the Constitution of India. When it comes to a challenge to the termination of a contract by the State, which is a non-statutory body, which is acting in purported exercise of the powers/rights under such a contract, it would be over simplifying a complex issue to lay down any inflexible rule in favour of the Court turning away the petitioner to alternate fora. Ordinarily, the cases of termination of contract by the State, acting within its contractual domain, may not lend itself for appropriate redress by the writ court. This is, undoubtedly, so if the Court is duty-bound to arrive at findings, which involve untying knots, which are presented by disputed questions of facts. Undoubtedly, in view of ABL [ABL International Ltd. v. Export Credit Guarantee Corpn. of India Ltd., (2004) 3 SCC 553] , if resolving the dispute, in a case of repudiation of a contract, involves only appreciating the true scope of documentary material in the light of pleadings, the Court may still grant relief to an applicant. We must enter a caveat. The Courts are today reeling under the weight of a docket explosion, which is truly alarming. If a case involves a large body of documents and the Court is called upon to enter upon findings of facts and involves merely the construction of the document, it may not be an unsound discretion to relegate the party to the alternate remedy. This is not to deprive the Court of its constitutional power as laid down in ABL [ABL International Ltd. v. Export Credit Guarantee Corpn. of India Ltd., (2004) 3

SCC 553] . It all depends upon the facts of each case as to whether, having regard to the scope of the dispute to be resolved, whether the Court will still entertain the petition."

(emphasis added)

11. Authorities cited on behalf of NHAI

56. Mr. Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the respondents has placed reliance upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Union of India and others v. Puna Hinda (2021) 10 SCC 690, and had placed before us paragraph 24 of the judgment that runs as under:

"24. Therefore, the dispute could not be raised by way of a writ petition on the disputed questions of fact. Though, the jurisdiction of the High Court is wide but in respect of pure contractual matters in the field of private law, having no statutory flavour, are better adjudicated upon by the forum agreed to by the parties. The dispute as to whether the amount is payable or not and/or how much amount is payable are disputed questions of facts. There is no admission on the part of the appellants to infer that the amount stands crystallised. Therefore, in the absence of any acceptance of joint survey report by the competent authority, no right would accrue to the writ petitioner only because measurements cannot be undertaken after passage of time. Maybe, the resurvey cannot take place but the measurement books of the work executed from time to time would form a reasonable basis for assessing the amount due and payable to the writ petitioner, but such process could be undertaken only by the agreed forum i.e. arbitration and not by the writ court as it does not have the expertise in respect of measurements or construction of roads."

57. Considering the above authority cited from the point of view of the respondent, in the first instance, it deals with the preliminary objection as to the maintainability of this petition. The authority in case of Puna Hinda (supra) has been relied upon to persuade us that in matters of commercial transaction where disputed questions of fact may arise relating to an issue for determination, this Court in exercise of its power under Article 226 of the Constitution, may not interfere, obviously for two reasons: (i). Parties in pure commercial transactions emanating from an agreement reached between the parties are bound by the principles of privity of contract and, therefore, the duties and obligations are required to be addressed by the redressal forum that is prescribed for and agreed upon by the parties; and (ii) there being no public law elementen involved writ forum may not permitted to be approved merely because a party to the contract is a state or a government authority within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution.

12. Discussion and application of authorities to the present case

58. It is true that in matters of commercial disputes emanating from the contract/ agreement reached between the parties, the Court must discourage invoking its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution, merely for the reasons that state or its officer purport to operate within the contractual field (Radha Krishna Agrawal and others Vs. State of Bihar and others [(1977) 3 SCC 457].

59. The law as ordinarily stood earlier to Radha Krishna Agrawal's case was that a duty or obligations falling upon the public servant out of a contract, cannot be enforced by the machinery of a writ under Article 226 of the Constitution [Lekhraj Sathram Das Lalwani v. Custodian) AIR 1966 SC 334] and so also the view taken in the case of Bachhandri Rath Vs. State of Orissa (1972) 4 SCC 781, wherein it was held that a right if claimed in terms of contract, such a right cannot be enforced in writ petition, but this rigid legal principle came to be watered down for the first time by the Supreme Court in the matter of Ramanna Dayaram Shetty Vs. International Airport Authority of India (1979) 3 SCC 489, wherein relying upon a judgment of Supreme Court of United States of America in the case of Bitarally Vs. Seaton (1959) SCC Online US SC 87, the Court held that procedure prescribed for, must be religiously adhered to and the principles of Wednesbury law of reasonableness and rule of law stand attracted to any issue of arbitrariness. Keeping this principle in mind, Supreme Court in the case of Jagdish Mandal Vs. State of Orissa and others (2007) 14 SCC 517, enlarged the scope of judicial review even in matters of commercial transactions where state or its officer is a party. The Court held that if the decision suffers from the vice of arbitrariness or caprice and does not pass the test of reasonableness then such decision is judicially reviewable under Article 226 of the Constitution. The Court, however, hastened to add that the judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect the private interest at the cost of public interest or to decide the contractual disputes. Vide paragraph 22 the Court held thus:

"22. Judicial review of administrative action is intended to prevent arbitrariness, irrationality, unreasonableness, bias and mala fides. Its purpose is to check whether choice or decision is made 'lawfully' and not to check whether choice or decision is 'sound'. When the power of judicial review is invoked in matters relating to tenders or award of contracts, certain special features should be borne in mind. A contract is a commercial transaction. Evaluating tenders and awarding contracts are essentially commercial functions. Principles of equity and natural justice stay at a distance. If the decision relating to award of contract is bona fide and is in public interest, courts will not, in exercise of power of judicial review, interfere even if a procedural aberration or error in assessment or prejudice to a tenderer, is made out. The power of judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect private interest at the cost of public interest, or to decide contractual disputes. The tenderer or contractor with a grievance can always seek damages in a civil court. Attempts by unsuccessful tenderers with imaginary grievances, wounded pride and business rivalry, to make mountains out of molehills of some technical/procedural violation or some prejudice to self, and persuade courts to interfere by exercising power of judicial review, should be resisted. Such interferences, either interim or final, may hold up public works for years, or delay relief and succour to thousands and millions and may increase the project cost manifold. Therefore, a court before interfering in tender or contractual matters in exercise of power of judicial review, should pose to itself the following questions:

(i) Whether the process adopted or decision made by the authority is mala fide or intended to favour someone;

or

Whether the process adopted or decision made is so arbitrary and irrational that the court can say: "the decision is such that no responsible authority acting reasonably and in accordance with relevant law could have reached"

(ii) Whether public interest is affected.

If the answers are in the negative, there should be no interference under Article 226. Cases involving blacklisting or imposition of penal consequences on a tenderer/contractor or distribution of State largesse (allotment of sites/shops, grant of licences, dealerships and franchises) stand on a different footing as they may require a higher degree of fairness in action"

60. The Court in the case of A. P. Electrical Equipment (supra) has, therefore, asserted that mere existence of disputed question of fact by itself, does not take away the jurisdiction of this Court in granting appropriate relief to the petitioner. The Court observed that if the Court is satisfied that facts were being disputed by the state merely to create a ground for rejection of the writ petition raising the plea of disputed question of facts, the Court can go into and investigate the disputed facts vis-a-vis pleadings raised by the parties to record its own finding as to the facts of the case. Thus, unless and until there is such a complex factual issue involved in a case that needed proper adjudication for appreciation of facts and pleadings which may be in the realm of a common law remedy or otherwise referable to alternative dispute resolution fora, if the sufficient material is otherwise available on record, the Court would not shirk away from discharging its duty of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution.

61. The Court rightly observed that in case of termination of contract where variety of situations may arise and the state authority repudiates the contracts mid-term in purported exercise of power under the contract, if the only aspect is the interpretation of true scope of documentary material in the light of pleadings raised, the Court may still grant relief to the party approaching the Court (MP Power Management Company (supra). It has been rightly observed that disputed question of fact cannot be made a smokescreen to guillotine a gunuine claim raised in the writ petition.

62. In the matter of Silppi Constructions Contractors Vs. Union of India and another (2020) 16 SCC 489, the Court reiterated the principles laid down in the case of Jagdish Mandal (supra), as to when the power of judicial review should be invoked. The Court reiterated the principle that wherever there is an arbitrariness in state action then the Court being the guardian of fundamental rights, is the duty bound to interfere with arbitrariness, irrationality and mala fide and bias but of course, with a caution and self limitation this power to be exercised. The Court, however, emphasised upon fair play and reasonableness approach on the part of the state where it is a mere party to the contract. Vide paragraphs 19 & 20 of the judgment the Court held thus:

"19. This Court being the guardian of fundamental rights is duty-bound to interfere when there is arbitrariness, irrationality, mala fides and bias. However, this Court in all the aforesaid decisions has cautioned time and again that courts should exercise a lot of restraint while exercising their powers of judicial review in contractual or commercial matters. This Court is normally loathe to interfere in contractual matters unless a clear-cut case of arbitrariness or mala fides or bias or irrationality is made out. One must remember that today many public sector undertakings compete with the private industry. The contracts entered into between private parties are not subject to scrutiny under writ jurisdiction. No doubt, the bodies which are State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution are bound to act fairly and are amenable to the writ jurisdiction of superior courts but this discretionary power must be exercised with a great deal of restraint and caution. The courts must realise their limitations and the havoc which needless interference in commercial matters can cause. In contracts involving technical issues the courts should be even more reluctant because most of us in Judges' robes do not have the necessary expertise to adjudicate upon technical issues beyond our domain. As laid down in the judgments cited above the courts should not use a magnifying glass while scanning the tenders and make every small mistake appear like a big blunder. In fact, the courts must give 'fair play in the joints" to the government and public sector undertakings in matters of contract. Courts must also not interfere where such interference will cause unnecessary loss to the public exchequer.

20. The essence of the law laid down in the judgments referred to above is the exercise of restraint and caution; the need for overwhelming public interest to justify judicial intervention in matters of contract involving the State instrumentalities; the courts should give way to the opinion of the experts unless the decision is totally arbitrary or unreasonable; the court does not sit like a court of appeal over the appropriate authority; the court must realise that the authority floating the tender is the best judge of its requirements and, therefore, the court's interference should be minimal. The authority which floats the contract or tender, and has authored the tender documents is the best judge as to how the documents have to be interpreted. If two interpretations are possible then the interpretation of the author must be accepted. The courts will only interfere to prevent arbitrariness, irrationality, bias, mala fides or perversity. With this approach in mind we shall deal with the present case."

63. Now, applying the above judgments to the facts of the case as we have discussed above, we find there to be no quarrel about the fact that contract was to proceed and a task under the contract was to be executed provided the state, National Highway Authority, party to the contract, discharged its part of obligation in providing land as per Article 8 of the agreement by executing a 'Handover Memorandum'. This document of 'Handover Memorandum' shows apparent on the face of record that it was simply an eye wash being not in terms of Article 8, inasmuch as subsequent letter of NHAI dated 8th August, 2022 fully acknowledged that the possession of land as was referred to under the Handover Memorandum was not correct in a sense that only 29.914 kms out of 50.254 kms land was provided with 'Right of Way'. Still further, the letter of the Authority's Engineer company dated 10th July, 2024 admitted, fairly too, that there was a lot of hindrances and land issues involved for which right of way was not available within the meaning of agreement. If the right of way was not available and there was a delay in executing and completing the project, it was attributable to laxity and casual approach on the part of the state in not performing its own obligations.

64. The impugned action has been taken purely on the basis of alleged poor maintenance and non-completion of project within time citing without giving any example and statistic details that land, as was promised under the agreement to be the part of the Memorandum of association was physically ever handed over to the petitioner, the second party to the contract to invoke the termination clause. When the first party to the contract itself failed to discharge its duties and obligations, then it cannot be said to be in a driver's seat under an agreement to navigate through the provisions that empower to it to terminate the contract unilaterally.

65. Thus, upon legal principles emanating from judgments discussed above entire action and conduct of NHAI was really vitiated for arbitrariness.

66. We have also noticed and discussed above in the earlier finding part of this judgment that proper reply was submitted by the petitioner to the show cause notice citing places, situations where the land was full of hindrances, the delays in removal of those hindrances, non-cooperation of the authority and delay in approving the design to execute the project as per the Narrative of Statement submitted initially by the petitioner. Not a single explanation offered by the petitioner was considered while taking decision in the matter of notice of termination of contract. Merely date of reply dated 3rd January, 2025 has been referred to but no part of the reply has been discussed and the show cause termination notice as was issued to the petitioner on 23rd December, 2024 was reproduced in the order impugned dated 14th January, 2025. This act and conduct of the NHAI officials in terminating the contract cannot be approved of and such an order is certainly reviewable on the principle of law discussed above evolved in various authorities of Supreme Court of India.

67. It is also worth mentioning here that the Authority's Engineer though had earlier submitted a report demanding for a time of 247 days further to the petitioner in his recommendation letter dated 10th July, 2024 to the Project Director, National Highway Authority, PIE Meerut but surprisingly, it appears, under the pressure of the authority it blamed the petitioner for delay in project vide letter dated 17th December, 2024 directing him to accomplish the task within the extended time line earlier given.

68. What is reasonableness in approach means looking to the facts of a case and in the given scenario what a prudent man would think about and what action would he take. In the present case a National Highway Project with 50.254 kms was underway. Standing private constructions with land issue where farmer's are agitating and temple and mosque structures are such which a private party could not have removed except with the help of State Authorities. Either the NHAI had given time schedule along with Handover Memorandum' that it would get the entire land procured with possession and that too with a 'Right of Way', or should have subsequently done the job writing such letters at subsequent stages meeting the objections if any. At least a prudent person would have behaved this way. However, in the present case NHAI Project Director and at his level only complained about maintenance and slow pace of work and even ignored Authority's Engineer's own letter dated 10th July, 2024 demanding extension of time of 248 days while giving cure period notice and then termination notice. This is an absolute arbitrariness, apparent on the face of record. Again the arbitrariness was so much so that while terminating contract under the order impugned petitioner's reply was not referred to by discussing the same. This is indicative of unerringly pointing to arbitrariness.

69. Thus, the points framed above are decided in favour of the petitioner and the order impugned deserves to be quashed and writ petition deserves to be allowed.

70. Now we come to the aspect as to whether any second party rights have occurred during the pendency of this petition and if not, to save time, the second party if in possession of land under construction of Highway could be given further time in larger public interest.

71. We find that throughout the hearing of the case there has been no change in the stand of NHAI that a third party right was not created pursuant to the interim order passed by this Court and no contract was awarded to a third party nor, any such statement has come up in any of the affidavits filed on behalf of NHAI.

72. It is also not the case of NHAI that possession of the land was taken from the petitioner. The petitioner's construction company the second party to the contract continued to remain there with all its articles and construction machines and materials on the spot and it is in this background that an averment was made in paragraph 19.9 of the rejoinder affidavit that runs as under:

"19.9. That with due respect, it is now stated that even as on the date of filing the instant rejoinder affidavit, the value of the balance works is Rs. 633 Cr., out of which works amounting to Rs. 157 Cr. had already been executed by TPL but not billed. The remaining value, thus is Rs. 476 Cr. Hence, in case the balance works are awarded to TPL, the same will be done at the cost of RS. 633 Cr. inclusive of what remains to be billed and paid by NHAI within a period of 14 months [12 months + 2 months mobilisation). For the convenience of this Hon'ble Court, a copy of the chart depicting execution of balance works and the timelines is annexed herewith and marked as ANNEXURE-RA 3."

73. The status quo as was there on the date of filing of the petition remained continued and the construction work though did not proceed but remained under the control of second party to the contract.

13. Order

74. Accordingly, the order dated 14th January, 2025 terminating the contract by the respondent No.-2 and a subsequent action of forfeiting the bank guarantees and issuance of fresh tender dated 3rd February, 2025 are hereby quashed.

75. As a consequence to the above and since the construction of the highway and its maintenance project is to basically meant to serve public interest and since petitioner in affidavit has assured to complete the entire work under the contract within 14 months, we find it appropriate for the parties to conduct a joint site inspection afresh, within a month from today and taking recourse to the provisions as contained under the EPC agreement and to arrive at an agreement to conclude the project within the re-scheduled timeline taking into consideration the letter of Engineer□s Authority in the light of the report dated 10th July, 2024 vis-a-vis the interim report to be obtained after joint inspection as directed above and applying the principles contained under Articles 13, 15, 16 and 17 of the EPC agreement.

76. The endeavour of the parties to the agreement, must be to complete the project as expeditiously as possible as per undertaking advanced before us by the petitioner.

77. This writ petition thus stands allowed as above with no order as to cost.

THE HON'BLE IRSHAD ALI, J.

Writ C No. 3000053 of 2004

Babu Lal ...Petitioner
Versus
Prescribed Authority Ceiling Unnao & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether land can be classified as "irrigated" u/s 4-A without inspecting the foundational Khasra records of Fasli years 1378, 1379, and 1380?
(b) Whether the petitioner was entitled to additional retention area based on family size and major sons u/s 5(3)?
(c) Whether ceiling authorities are required to consider the statutory choice submitted by a tenure-holder?
(d) Whether a subsequent allottee of declared surplus land has a right to resist setting aside the surplus order?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law – Co-operative Societies - U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960: Section 4-A, 5(3)(b) - Babu Lal (petitioner) was a tenure-holder in Village Pyarepur, Unnao. In 1962, he and other farmers formed a registered co-operative society (Kisan Sanyukt Sahkari Kheti Samiti Ltd.). The society held ~166 Bighas in Khata No. 260, to which the petitioner had contributed only 26 Bighas, 18 Biswas, and 15 Biswansis. He also held independent/joint holdings in Khata Nos. 140, 158, and 49. In 1992, the Prescribed Authority issued C.L.H. Form-3 proposing 5.194 hectares as surplus. After objections were rejected in 1996, the Appellate Authority allowed the petitioner's appeal and remanded the case for fresh consideration.

On remand, despite excluding the general society land, the Prescribed Authority substantially increased the surplus area to 13.629 hectares on 30.03.1998, treating the petitioner's entire independent holding as irrigated land. The Appellate Authority affirmed this on 06.05.2000. The petitioner challenged both orders u/Article 226, arguing that:

- Land recorded as uncultivated/fallow (Parti Jadid) was wrongly classified as irrigated without inspecting Khasra entries of Fasli years 1378, 1379, and 1380.
- A tube-well located on Plot No. 140 (belonging to the co-operative) was wrongly conflated with his independent holding in Khata No. 140.
- His third major son and overall 7-member family size were ignored despite the Lekhpal's statement supporting his claim.
- His statutory choice/option for retaining land (submitted on 30.11.1995) was ignored.

B. The principal controversy in the present case relates to the determination of the nature of the petitioner's holdings as irrigated land u/s 4-A of the Act. The statutory scheme clearly requires the Prescribed Authority to record a finding on the basis of the Khasra entries of Fasli years 1378, 1379 and 1380 together with other relevant evidence regarding the existence of irrigation facilities and the capability of the land to produce at least two crops in the relevant agricultural years. Such determination cannot be founded upon presumptions or general observations. (Para 30)

Despite a specific query put by this Court, no documentary material has been produced to establish that the land consistently yielded two crops or that the requisite source of irrigation existed during the relevant period. The inability of the respondents to produce the foundational revenue records completely demolishes the basis of the findings recorded by the authorities below. (Para 31)

The Prescribed Authority, even after remand by the appellate authority, did not examine the relevant Khasra entries before recording a finding that the entire holding was irrigated. No inspection report prepared by the Prescribed Authority has been brought on record. The finding, therefore, unsupported by any legally admissible evidence and is liable to be characterised as a finding based on no evidence. (Para 32)

A statutory determination affecting valuable agricultural holdings cannot rest upon such erroneous assumptions. Merely because tube-wells existed over a plot belonging to the co-operative society, the authorities presumed that the petitioner's independent holdings situated in Khata No. 140 were also irrigated. Such inference is contrary to the revenue records and reflects complete non-application of mind. This Court also finds substance in the submission of the petitioner that the authorities have misread the revenue records by confusing Plot No. 140 with Khata No. 140. (Para 33)

Ignoring the primary revenue records while recording findings u/s 4-A vitiates the entire exercise undertaken by the Prescribed Authority. The Khasra entries relied upon by the petitioner further disclose that substantial portions of the land remained recorded as Parti Jadid during the relevant Fasli years and no reliable evidence exists regarding the availability of irrigation facilities or cultivation of two seasonal crops. The authorities have neither adverted to these entries nor recorded any reason for discarding them. (Para 34)

C. The statutory benefit conferred u/s 5 of the Act cannot be denied without recording cogent reasons based upon evidence. The impugned orders are conspicuously silent on this aspect and, therefore, suffer from manifest legal infirmity. The authorities have failed to record any finding regarding the petitioner's entitlement to additional ceiling area on account of the larger family consisting of seven members. (Para 36)

Both the authorities failed to consider the petitioner's claim regarding the composition of his family. The statement of the concerned Lekhpal, which forms part of the record, unequivocally records that the petitioner has three sons and two daughters. Nevertheless, both the Prescribed Authority and the appellate authority proceeded on the assumption that the petitioner had only two major sons and consequently denied him the statutory benefit available u/s 5(3) of the Act. Such omission amounts to complete disregard of material evidence available on record. (Para 35)

D. Failure to consider the petitioner's statutory choice renders the determination contrary to the provisions of the Act. The record further establishes that the petitioner had exercised his statutory option regarding the land liable to be declared surplus by submitting his choice on 30.11.1995. The Ceiling Act obligates the authorities to consider such option while selecting surplus land. Neither the Prescribed Authority nor the appellate authority has adverted to this mandatory requirement. (Para 37)

The authorities initially declared only 5.194 hectares of land as surplus by order dated 27.01.1996. However, after the appellate authority remanded the matter for fresh consideration, the Prescribed Authority, instead of confining itself to the defects pointed out in the remand order, declared as much as 13.629 hectares of land surplus. Such substantial enhancement of surplus area without any fresh evidence or additional material on record itself demonstrates that the matter was not reconsidered in accordance with law but on wholly arbitrary considerations. (Para 38)

E. An allottee derives no better title than that possessed by the State and cannot claim any independent right once the declaration of surplus land itself is found to be illegal. It is evident that any subsequent allotment made pursuant to an illegal declaration of surplus land cannot survive and the subsequent allottee has no enforceable right to resist restoration of the petitioner's lawful holding. (Para 40)

The finding that the land belonging to the co-operative society was liable to be treated as the individual holding of the petitioner is equally unsustainable. The material on record clearly establishes that the petitioner was only one of the members of the duly registered co-operative farming society and had contributed only his share of land. The authorities themselves excluded the land of the society after remand except to the extent of the petitioner's contribution. There was, therefore, no justification for proceeding on the premise that the entire land of the society constituted the petitioner's individual holding. (Para 39)

F. Statutory authorities exercising powers under the Ceiling Act are required to strictly adhere to the mandatory provisions of the Act and base their findings upon legally admissible revenue records. Since the respondents have have acted in complete disregard of the statutory provisions, ignored relevant documentary evidence, misread the revenue records, failed to consider mandatory provisions of Sections 4-A and 5 of the Act, and recorded findings unsupported by any reliable evidence, such findings are perverse, arbitrary and suffer from manifest non-application of mind, warranting interference by this Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. (Para 29, 41, 42)

The impugned order dated 30.03.1998 passed by the prescribed authority and the appellate order dated 06.05.2000 affirming the same are hereby quashed. The matter is remitted to the prescribed authority to reconsider the ceiling proceedings afresh. (Para 44, 45)
Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

1. Heard Sri M.A. Khan, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Mohd. Aslam Khan, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the respondent - State, Sri P.V. Chaudhary, learned counsel for respondent and Sri A.K. Jauhari, learned counsel for subsequent allottee.

2. The present writ petition has been filed for issuance of a writ in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 30.03.1998 and 06.05.2000 passed by respondent Nos.1 & 2 contained as Annexures-1&5 to the writ petition, whereby the appellate authority affirmed the order of the prescribed authority, whereby a substantial portion of the petitioner's agricultural land has been declared surplus under the provisions of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960.

3. Factual matrix of the case is that the petitioner is an agriculturist and tenure-holder of agricultural land situated in Village Pyarepur, Pargana Sikandarpur Sarosi, Tehsil and District Unnao. In the year 1962, the petitioner along with eleven other agriculturists formed a co-operative farming society known as Kisan Sanyukt Sahkari Kheti Samiti Ltd. with the object of promoting joint agricultural activities. The society was duly registered on 28.01.1963 under the U.P. Co-operative Societies Act bearing Registration No.2058. Over the years, the membership of the society increased to twenty-five members, each of whom contributed agricultural land for collective cultivation.

4. In the Khatauni pertaining to Fasli years 1397 to 1402 of Village Pyarepur, the total land of the society measuring approximately 166 Bighas, 0 Biswa and 3 Biswansi stood recorded in Khata No.260 in the name of the said co-operative society. Out of the said land, the petitioner had contributed only 26 Bighas, 18 Biswas and 15 Biswansis and had no exclusive right over the remaining land belonging to other members of the society.

5. Apart from the land contributed to the co-operative society, the petitioner held agricultural land in different Khatas, namely Khata Nos.140, 158 and 49, situated in Village Pyarepur. Certain holdings were joint holdings in which the petitioner possessed only fractional shares. The petitioner has throughout maintained that only his actual share and legally held land could be considered for the purposes of determining his ceiling area.

6. In the year 1992, the Prescribed Authority issued a notice in C.L.H. Form-3 alleging that the petitioner held 16.494 hectares of irrigated land and proposing to declare 5.194 hectares as surplus land under the Ceiling Act. The petitioner filed detailed objections controverting the allegations contained in the notice, wherein he specifically pleaded that he had three major sons, whereas only two had been treated as major by the authorities. It was further asserted that the entire land of Khata No.260 belonging to the co-operative society had been wrongly included in his personal holding and that substantial portions of his land had been erroneously treated as irrigated despite being unirrigated under the statutory criteria prescribed by law.

7. Vide order dated 27.01.1996, the Prescribed Authority rejected all the objections raised by the petitioner, treated the entire holding as irrigated and declared 5.194 hectares of land as surplus after permitting the petitioner to retain only 11.300 hectares. While passing the said order, the authority ignored the evidence relating to the age of the petitioner's third son and failed to examine the relevant revenue records regarding the nature of the land.

8. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order, the petitioner preferred an appeal before the appellate authority, which was allowed by order dated 22.02.1997. The matter was remanded to the Prescribed Authority with directions to reconsider the case afresh in accordance with law.

9. After remand, the Prescribed Authority excluded the land of the co-operative society except the portion contributed by the petitioner. However, the authority again treated the petitioner's entire holding as irrigated without properly applying Section 4-A of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act or examining the relevant Khasra entries of Fasli years 1378, 1379 and 1380. Vide order dated 30.03.1998, the Prescribed Authority declared as much as 13.629 hectares of land as surplus while again denying the benefit available on account of the petitioner's third major son.

10. The petitioner again preferred an appeal before the appellate authority challenging the order dated 30.03.1998. However, the appellate authority dismissed the appeal without examining the documentary evidence, without recording any finding regarding the age and status of the petitioner's third son and without considering the statutory entitlement of the petitioner to retain additional land on account of the number of family members.

11. Both the Prescribed Authority as well as the appellate authority mechanically accepted the entire holding as irrigated without properly appreciating the Khasra entries of Fasli years 1378, 1379 and 1380. The authorities ignored the actual entries regarding cultivation, fallow land (Parti Jadid), absence of irrigation sources and the actual cultivated area recorded in the revenue records.

12. According to the Khasra entries relating to old Plot Nos.273 and 275 corresponding to present Plot Nos.557 and 559 of Khata No.140, substantial portions of the land were recorded as Parti Jadid during the relevant Fasli years and no source of irrigation or double cropping was recorded. These entries clearly established that the land could not legally be treated as irrigated land under Section 4-A of the Ceiling Act.

13. Similarly, the Khasra entries relating to present Plot Nos.532-Ka, 532-Kha, 533 and 553-Kha of Khata No.158 disclosed that only limited portions of the land had seasonal crops during certain years while the remaining land continued to be recorded as Parti Jadid. In respect of some plots, the petitioner was recorded merely as an unauthorised occupant over Gaon Sabha land (Ziman-4), making such land liable to ejectment and, therefore, incapable of being treated as his permanent holding.

14. Khasra entries relating to Khata No.49 also revealed that crops were grown only intermittently and that large portions of the land remained uncultivated or recorded as Parti Jadid. No source of irrigation was recorded in the relevant years, thereby disproving the conclusion that the land was capable of yielding two crops annually.

15. The authorities completely misread the revenue records by confusing Plot No.140 with Khata No.140. On the basis of tube-wells existing over Plot No.140 belonging to the co-operative society, the authorities erroneously inferred that the petitioner's independent holdings in Khata No.140 were also irrigated. This resulted in a wholly incorrect classification of the petitioner's land.

16. The petitioner further pleaded that Plot No.557, though recorded in the revenue records with an area of 54 Bighas 18 Biswas, actually existed only to the extent of about 41 Bighas and 2 Biswas on the spot. The authorities failed to consider the actual physical extent and possession while computing the petitioner's holding.

17. The petitioner consistently asserted that there were seven members in his family and that under Section 5(3)(b) of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act he was entitled to additional ceiling area on account of the larger family as well as separate benefits available to his adult sons. However, both authorities failed to examine or decide this statutory claim.

18. The petitioner had also exercised his statutory option by submitting his choice of land on 30.11.1995 indicating the land which, if necessary, could be declared surplus. Nevertheless, neither authority considered the petitioner's choice while determining the surplus land, thereby violating the mandatory provisions of the Ceiling Act.

19. The authorities further erred in holding that the co-operative society was not functioning and in treating the petitioner's contribution in the society, measuring about 8.762 hectares, as his individual holding despite the fact that the society continued to function, the lands were cultivated jointly and the produce was distributed amongst the members after meeting necessary expenses.

20. The petitioner submits that the impugned orders have been passed in complete disregard of the statutory provisions, the relevant revenue records and the evidence available on record. The authorities failed to consider the petitioner's objections, ignored the mandatory requirements of Sections 4-A and 5 of the Ceiling Act, wrongly classified unirrigated land as irrigated, and illegally declared 13.629 hectares of the petitioner's land as surplus, thereby causing grave prejudice and manifest injustice to the petitioner.

21. A query was made to learned counsel for the respondents that what is the material evidence that Khasra Nos.1378, 1379 & 1380 to show that land bearing at Khata No.1398 grows wheat crop?, none of the counsel for respondents are able to place any material evidence to prove that, therefore, the finding recorded in the impugned order is wholly incorrect statement and without perusing the relevant record.

22. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner submitted that provisions of Section 4-A was not followed while passing the impugned order by the prescribed authority on remand. No khasra of 1378, 1379 & 1380 were perused while passing the impugned order. At earlier point of time, the prescribed authority declared 5.194 hectare of land as surplus and in remand by the appellate court the prescribed authority came to the conclusion that there are 13.629 hectare of land as surplus.

23. Submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner is that the finding recorded by the prescribed authority is based on no material and without perusing the Khasras of 1378, 1379 & 1380. He submitted that while passing the impugned order by the prescribed authority as well as by the appellate court, the statement recorded of the Lekhpal that the petitioner has three sons was not taken into consideration. Only two sons have been taken into consideration, therefore, the finding returned on the point is in utter disregard of the statement recorded by the Lekhpal, which is on record as Annexure-SA2.

24. On bare perusal of the statement of Lekhpal, it is clearly evident that he has admitted that Babu Lal (petitioner) has three sons and two daughters. The statement recorded by the Lekhpal has also not been taken into consideration while passing the impugned order and no exemption has been granted by the prescribed authority as well as appellate authority, therefore, it is in violation of Section 5(3)(a) of Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960.

25. He next submitted that it is responsibility of the State to prove the provisions of Section 4-A by filing Khasras 1378, 1379 & 1380 and other relevant documents along with inspection report made by the prescribed authority on the spot. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner establishes that there is no inspection report of the prescribed authority in the matter in regard to visit on spot and therefore, the finding returned by the prescribed authority as well as appellate authority is wholly misconceived and is not sustainable in the eyes of law. In support of his submissions, he placed reliance upon following judgments:

a) Ram Bhajan Vs. Chief Revenue Officer / Prescribed Authority, Mirzapur and others; 2001 (92) R.D. 538.

b) Sachin Kumar Verma and others Vs. State of U.P. through Dy. Commissioner Lucknow and others; Writ C No.3000093 of 2002 decided on 07.05.2026.

26. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the orders impugned passed by the prescribed authority on 30.03.1998 as well as appellate authority dated 06.05.2000 are just and valid and do not suffer from any infirmity or illegality.

27. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record as well as law reports cited by learned counsel for the petitioner:

28. To resolve the controversy involved in the matter, relevant portion of the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner are being quoted below:

a) Ram Bhajan Vs. Chief Revenue Officer (Supra):

"14. It is also settled that the allottee cannot acquire any better right than the right as exists with the State and thus the State itself having no right to the land as the same did not remain as surplus the claim of the allottee will fall short as the giver himself is not possessed to part anything to the petitioner.

16. 16. In fact the land having been given to the allottee by the Collector, the allottee cannot get any better title than the Collector was possessed, as the petitioner has stepped into the shoes of the Collector. In view of the judgment of the Prescribed Authority dated 22.5.86 the restoration of the correct entry in the revenue record and even restitution of the possession will be an automatic follow-up to which the petitioner can have no say in the matter as he has no locus standi to intervene in the matter of declaration of the land as surplus."

b) Sachin Kumar Verma and others (Supra):

"4. In view of the judgment rendered in the case of Ram Bhajan Vs. Chief Revenue Officer [2001 (92) RD 538], it has been held that land having been given to the allottee by the Collector, the allottee cannot get any better title than the Collector was possessed, as the petitioner has stepped into the shoes of the Collector. It was also held that in view of the judgment of the prescribed authority, the restoration of the correct entry in the revenue record and even restitution of the possession will be an automatic follow up to which the petitioner can have no say in the matter as he has no locus standi to intervene in the matter of declaration of land as surplus, therefore, in view of the above referred judgment, the allottee has no right to be impleaded. Accordingly, the submission of learned counsel for the applicant has no force in law, thus, the application is hereby rejected."

29. Having considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties, examined the pleadings and material brought on record, and perused the judgments relied upon by the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner, this Court finds that the impugned orders dated 30.03.1998 passed by the Prescribed Authority and 06.05.2000 passed by the appellate authority cannot be sustained in law. Both the authorities have failed to discharge the statutory obligation cast upon them under the provisions of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 while determining the surplus land of the petitioner.

30. The principal controversy in the present case relates to the determination of the nature of the petitioner's holdings as irrigated land under Section 4-A of the Act. The statutory scheme clearly requires the Prescribed Authority to record a finding on the basis of the Khasra entries of Fasli years 1378, 1379 and 1380 together with other relevant evidence regarding the existence of irrigation facilities and the capability of the land to produce at least two crops in the relevant agricultural years. Such determination cannot be founded upon presumptions or general observations.

31. In the present case, despite a specific query put by this Court, learned counsel appearing for the respondents failed to place any material from the Khasra records of Fasli years 1378, 1379 and 1380 demonstrating that the land in question satisfied the statutory requirements contained in Section 4-A of the Act. No documentary material has been produced to establish that the land consistently yielded two crops or that the requisite source of irrigation existed during the relevant period. The inability of the respondents to produce the foundational revenue records completely demolishes the basis of the findings recorded by the authorities below.

32. It further emerges from the record that the Prescribed Authority, even after remand by the appellate authority, did not examine the relevant Khasra entries before recording a finding that the entire holding was irrigated. No inspection report prepared by the Prescribed Authority has been brought on record. The finding that the entire holding was irrigated is, therefore, unsupported by any legally admissible evidence and is liable to be characterised as a finding based on no evidence.

33. This Court also finds substance in the submission of the petitioner that the authorities have misread the revenue records by confusing Plot No.140 with Khata No.140. Merely because tube-wells existed over a plot belonging to the co-operative society, the authorities presumed that the petitioner's independent holdings situated in Khata No.140 were also irrigated. Such inference is contrary to the revenue records and reflects complete non-application of mind. A statutory determination affecting valuable agricultural holdings cannot rest upon such erroneous assumptions.

34. The Khasra entries relied upon by the petitioner further disclose that substantial portions of the land remained recorded as Parti Jadid during the relevant Fasli years and no reliable evidence exists regarding the availability of irrigation facilities or cultivation of two seasonal crops. The authorities have neither adverted to these entries nor recorded any reason for discarding them. Ignoring the primary revenue records while recording findings under Section 4-A vitiates the entire exercise undertaken by the Prescribed Authority.

35. Equally serious is the failure of both the authorities to consider the petitioner's claim regarding the composition of his family. The statement of the concerned Lekhpal, which forms part of the record, unequivocally records that the petitioner has three sons and two daughters. The said statement has neither been disputed by the respondents nor discarded for any legally sustainable reason. Nevertheless, both the Prescribed Authority and the appellate authority proceeded on the assumption that the petitioner had only two major sons and consequently denied him the statutory benefit available under Section 5(3) of the Act. Such omission amounts to complete disregard of material evidence available on record.

36. The authorities have also failed to record any finding regarding the petitioner's entitlement to additional ceiling area on account of the larger family consisting of seven members. The statutory benefit conferred under Section 5 of the Act cannot be denied without recording cogent reasons based upon evidence. The impugned orders are conspicuously silent on this aspect and, therefore, suffer from manifest legal infirmity.

37. The record further establishes that the petitioner had exercised his statutory option regarding the land liable to be declared surplus by submitting his choice on 30.11.1995. The Ceiling Act obligates the authorities to consider such option while selecting surplus land. Neither the Prescribed Authority nor the appellate authority has adverted to this mandatory requirement. Failure to consider the petitioner's statutory choice renders the determination contrary to the provisions of the Act.

38. This Court also finds that the authorities initially declared only 5.194 hectares of land as surplus by order dated 27.01.1996. However, after the appellate authority remanded the matter for fresh consideration, the Prescribed Authority, instead of conflying itself to the defects pointed out in the remand order, declared as much as 13.629 hectares of land surplus. Such substantial enhancement of surplus area without any fresh evidence or additional material on record itself demonstrates that the matter was not reconsidered in accordance with law but on wholly arbitrary considerations.

39. The finding that the land belonging to the co-operative society was liable to be treated as the individual holding of the petitioner is equally unsustainable. The material on record clearly establishes that the petitioner was only one of the members of the duly registered co-operative farming society and had contributed only his share of land. The authorities themselves excluded the land of the society after remand except to the extent of the petitioner's contribution. There was, therefore, no justification for proceeding on the premise that the entire land of the society constituted the petitioner's individual holding. The finding recorded in this regard is based upon complete misappreciation of the evidence.

40. The contention advanced on behalf of the subsequent allottee seeking impleadment also deserves to be rejected. The law is well settled by the decision in the case of Ram Bhajan Vs. Chief Revenue Officer (Supra), wherein it has been held that an allottee derives no better title than that possessed by the State and cannot claim any independent right once the declaration of surplus land itself is found to be illegal. The said principle has been reiterated by this Court in the case of Sachin Kumar Verma and others (Supra). Applying the aforesaid ratio to the facts of the present case, it is evident that any subsequent allotment made pursuant to an illegal declaration of surplus land cannot survive and the subsequent allottee has no enforceable right to resist restoration of the petitioner's lawful holding.

41. The judgments relied upon by the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner fully support the proposition that statutory authorities exercising powers under the Ceiling Act are required to strictly adhere to the mandatory provisions of the Act and base their findings upon legally admissible revenue records. Since the respondents have failed to establish compliance with Section 4-A of the Act and have ignored material evidence regarding the petitioner's family composition, revenue entries and statutory entitlement, the impugned orders are rendered legally unsustainable.

42. The cumulative effect of the aforesaid discussion leaves no manner of doubt that both the prescribed authority and the appellate authority have acted in complete disregard of the statutory provisions, ignored relevant documentary evidence, misread the revenue records, failed to consider mandatory provisions of Sections 4-A and 5 of the Act, and recorded findings unsupported by any reliable evidence. Such findings are perverse, arbitrary and suffer from manifest non-application of mind, warranting interference by this Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

43. Accordingly, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

44. The impugned order dated 30.03.1998 passed by the prescribed authority and the appellate order dated 06.05.2000 affirming the same are hereby quashed.

45. The matter is remitted to the prescribed authority to reconsider the ceiling proceedings afresh strictly in accordance with law after examining the Khasra entries of Fasli years 1378, 1379 and 1380, the relevant revenue records, the statement of the Lekhpal regarding the petitioner's family, the petitioner's statutory claim under Section 5 of the Act, his option regarding retention of land, and all other evidence produced by the parties. A fresh reasoned and speaking order shall be passed after affording due opportunity of hearing to all concerned parties, preferably within a period of six months from the date a certified copy of this judgment is produced before the authority.

46. There shall be no order as to costs.

(e) Whether summary powers u/Ss 33 and 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act can be exercised to alter nature/title entries ex-parte and change an established Abadi/school setup into a public pond without examining actual possession and hearing necessary parties?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law – U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901: Section 33, 39; Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950: Section 132, 143, 229B; U.P.Z.A & L.R. Rules 1952: Rule 135 - On 31.01.1986, trial court declared Lalo Devi and Dhiraji Devi co-owners (half-share each). Dhiraji Devi appealed (Appeal No. 67 of 1986). On 23.04.1988, the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi, allowed her appeal, set aside the trial court decree, and declared Dhiraji Devi the absolute owner in possession. A Second Appeal filed before the Board of Revenue (Second Appeal No. 28 of 1987-88) was dismissed on 08.08.1996, making the 1988 decree final. Neither the State of U.P. nor the Nagar Mahapalika (who were defendants) challenged this decree. A Parwana Amaldaramad (mutation order) was issued on 13.04.1989 recording Dhiraji Devi's name.

On 05.01.2002, Nagar Nigam, Varanasi issued a No Objection Certificate (NOC) stating that the plots were not Nagar Nigam / Nazul property. On 10.07.2002, u/s 143 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, the land was declared as non-agricultural (Abadi) by the Assistant Collector, 1st Class. On 11.07.2002, Dhiraji Devi executed a registered lease deed in favor of Sunbeam School. On 16.08.2002, the Varanasi Development Authority (VDA) sanctioned the building map, and the school was constructed and made operational.

The petitioner alleged that the local district administration (including the Divisional Commissioner) harbored animosity toward the school's director due to his involvement in an active PIL (Alpna Roy Chaudhary v. State of U.P.) highlighting administrative scams in Varanasi. A third party (Respondent No. 4, Rakesh Nyayik) filed complaints at the instance of the administration. (Respondent No. 4 later submitted an affidavit in related criminal proceedings explicitly admitting he was set up by the district administration).

Order dated 15.12.2012 (Writ-C No. 857 of 2013): Passed within 5 days on an application by Respondent No. 4. The Additional City Magistrate-III, Varanasi, acting on the administrative side without notice/hearing to the petitioner, recalled the Parwana Amaldaramad dated 13.04.1989 and effectively nullified the judicial decree of 1988.

Order dated 21.11.2012 (Writ-C No. 858 of 2013): The SDM, Varanasi, suo motu recalled the 10-year-old Section 143 declaration order dated 10.07.2002 without notice/hearing.

Order dated 20.12.2012 (Writ-C No. 858 of 2013): Passed in proceedings u/Ss 33/39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, directing that the land be recorded as a "Pond" (Pokhari) in revenue records based on 1359 Fasli entries, without giving the petitioner an opportunity of hearing.

B. Writ-C No. 857 of 2013 (Challenge to Order Dated 15.12.2012):-

(i) Judicial Decrees Cannot Be Overridden Administratively - The Court held that the 1988 decree passed by the Additional Commissioner u/s 229-B had attained finality. An administrative officer (Additional City Magistrate) has no authority or jurisdiction to sit over or set aside a judicial/quasi-judicial decree passed by a competent court. In view of aforesaid facts, there does not exist any cloud over right, title and interest of Smt. Dhiraji Devi and now petitioner. (Para 49, 51, 52, 57, 58, 59)

(ii) Violation of Natural Justice & Lack of Locus - The order was passed within 5 days on an application by a third party (Respondent No. 4) who had no locus standi, without issuing any notice or providing an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner or affected parties. There is no material on record before respondent no.3 to come to the conclusion ex-parte, in administrative manner that Additional Commissioner (Administration) Varanasi passed judgement and decree on the basis of false affidavit. Aforesaid conclusion is perverse and in breach of Principles of Natural Justice. (Para 49, 53, 59)

Writ petition allowed. Impugned order dated 15.12.2012 passed by Respondent No. 2 was quashed. The proceedings of Case No. 45/12-13 in Suit No. 162 of 1985-86 were quashed.

C. Writ-C No. 858 of 2013 (Challenge to Orders Dated 21.11.2012 and 20.12.2012):-

(i) Unlawful Suo-Motu Recall of Section 143 Declaration - Judicial orders passed u/s 143 declaring land as Abadi cannot be wiped out in an administrative manner without hearing affected parties. The petitioner, as a registered lessee running a school on the site, was a necessary party. (Para 62, 63, 64)

(ii) Misapplication of Public Pond Rulings - Judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court and of this Hon'ble Court relate only to those public lands which were recorded as Ponds. It did not cover at any point of time private land and private ponds. In fact private ponds can never be converted into a public property and no direction can be given to compulsorily maintain such land as ponds.

Record shows that in Khatauni 1359 Fasli that forms the basis of passing the order dated 21.11.2012, the land in question has been shown to be Sir and in the Khasra it has been shown to be Sir Malikan which shows that the land remained in private cultivation and at no point of time it ever vested in the State Government. It was Sir Malikan and hence stood settled in terms of Section 18 of the U.P.ZA & LR. Act. (Para 64 to 67)

(iii) Misuse of Ss. 33/39 Summary Proceedings and violation of principles of natural justice - Long standing entries cannot be disturbed in summary proceedings, thus impugned action u/Ss 33 & 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act are also without jurisdiction as there exists no application for correction of the record filed by any person. In exercise of the powers u/s 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, it was necessary for the respondents to have decided upon the entry on the basis of the possession. For this purpose he was required to hear the parties and in the absence of hearing the parties the order passed by respondent no. 2 is without jurisdiction and is also in breach of the principles of natural justice. (Para 68, 69)

Powers u/Ss 33/39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act are summary in nature and cannot be used ex-parte to alter long-settled land character without examining actual possession and providing a complete hearing.

Writ petition allowed. Impugned orders dated 21.11.2012 and 20.12.2012 passed by Respondent No. 2 were quashed. The respondents were restrained from causing any interference in the peaceful operation of the school by the petitioner on the plots in question. (E-4)

Lalo Devi against Rai Satyabrat Saheb and others inter-alia, seeking declaration of Bhumidhari rights upon Plot No. 145, 146 and 148; in the aforesaid suit one Smt. Dhiraji Devi filed application for being impleaded as defendant which was allowed and she was impleaded as defendant no. 9 and Dhiraji Devi filed her written statement by which she stated to be in possession upon the land in question for the past 40 years and have also stated that she paid Rs. 20,000/- on 08.05.1972 to Rai Satyabrat Saheb and further that Lalo Devi has no right upon the land in question; aforesaid Suit was decreed vide judgment and decree dated 31.01.1986 passed by Additional Sub Divisional Officer, Varanasi, declaring Smt. Lalo Devi and Smt. Dhiraji Devi as owners to the extent of half share each, against which Mst. Dhiraji Devi filed Appeal No. 67 of 1986 Mst. Dhiraji Devi Vs. Sita Ram and others to challenge part of the judgment and decree dated 31.01.1986 passed by Additional Sub Divisional Officer, Varanasi; Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi Division, Varanasi allowed the appeal, set-aside the judgment and decree dated 31.01.1986 passed by Additional Sub Divisional Officer, Varanasi and held that Smt. Dhiraji Devi is absolute owner having title and possession over the properties in question; against the aforesaid judgment and decree passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi dated 23.04.1988, the heirs of Lalo Devi namely Sita Ram filed Second Appeal No. 28 of 1987-88 (Sita Ram Vs. Mst. Dhiraji Devi and others) before the Board of Revenue and Board of Revenue dismissed the aforesaid Second Appeal No. 28 of 1987-88 upon application filed by appellant to dismiss the appeal, vide order dated 08.08.1996.

6. Pursuant to the decree dated 23.04.1988 passed by Additional Commissioner (Administration) Varanasi Division, Varanasi, Dhiraj Devi had filed an application for mutation of her name and some other persons also filed applications; Upon such applications, orders were passed for recording the name of Dhiraji Devi by the Additional City Magistrate, by issuing Parwana Amaldaramad and accordingly the said order has been incorporated in the Khatauni.

7. Nagar Nigam, Varanasi gave its 'No Objection Certificate' dated 05.01.2002 in respect of the disputed property, wherein it was stated that Plot No. 145, 146 and 148 of Village Lahartara are not the property of Nagar Nigam. Thereafter Smt. Dhiraji Devi wife of Nandlal initiated proceedings under Section 143 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act, to declare properties in question as Abadi; Under Rule 135 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R. Rules 1952 Naksa along with report was submitted by the Tehsildar/Lekhpal, whereupon Assistant Collector, 1st Class, Sadar, Varanasi declared the disputed land as 'Abadi' Class VI(2) and directed for Amaldaramad in the revenue records, vide order dated 10.07.2002. Upon declaration of the land as 'Abadi' Smt Dhiraji Devi executed a registered lease deed in favour of the petitioner wherein the three plots of land were conveyed through lease in favour of the petitioner. Thereafter a notice was issued by Varanasi Development Authority for deposit of the amount for sanction of the plan. The aforesaid amount was deposited by the petitioner with the authority and Varanasi Development Authority sanctioned the map for construction of the school upon the land in question and also granted permission to raise construction, vide order dated 16.08.2002

8. Director of the Petitioner is actively contesting an ongoing Public Interest litigation no. 48104 of 2012 Alpna Roy Chaudhary Vs. State of U.P. and others. The said public interest litigation has been filed collectively by the respectable citizens of Varanasi coming from different walks of life including Professors, Practicing Lawyers, Doctors, Poets, Businessmen, Social Workers etc.; Hon'ble Court in the said public interest litigation monitored the civic conditions in the town of Varanasi and passed stringent orders particularly against the Commissioner Varanasi Division, Varanasi who was directed to remain present before the Hon'ble Court personally and in spite of the said order did not appear which was taken seriously by the Hon'ble Court. On information being given to the Hon'ble Court that he has gone abroad for training the Hon'ble Court passed orders directing him to appear on 17.10.2012 with a direction to the State Government to cancel the trip of the Divisional Commissioner abroad and inform him to come back and attend the Court; when the petitioner did not succumb and further exposed Commissioner by highlighting his involvement in multi-crore scam in the said public interest litigation, Commissioner started taking it personally and got it communicated to the petitioner that he will teach petitioner a lesson and petitioner may get ready to face the music; in order to give effect to the aforesaid nefarious design an application dated 10.12.2012 was filed by a third party namely the respondent no.4 who had nothing to do with the matter by the respondent no. 3 himself who was following the command of the Commissioner and prayer was made in the said application to the effect to recall the Parwana Amaldaramad and to expunge the entry standing in the revenue records. The application filed by the respondent no. 4 was not accompanied by any delay condonation application; not only this notices were not issued on the said application to Dhiraji Devi, Lalo Devi, Rai Satyabrat Saheb and others who were the original parties in the proceedings under Section 229-B of Act, 1950.

9. Attention of the court is also drawn to the paragraph no.1 of aforesaid application, wherein respondent no.4 stated that he lodged first information report dated 06.12.2012 being Case Crime No. 780 of 2012 against the Chairman of the petitioner's school. Pursuant to aforesaid, case has been registered as Criminal Case No. 2545 of 2020 Rakesh Nyayik Vs. Deepak Madhok, wherein respondent no. 4 himself filed an application supported with affidavit dated 12.11.2020, clearly stating that he has been set up by the district administration which itself speaks of illegal and malafide attitude of respondents-authorities for initiating impugned proceedings. In the aforesaid case, final report no. 258 of 2015 dated 23.12.2015 was submitted, same was accepted and record has been consigned to record room, vide order of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi dated 28.09.2021. Copy of the application and affidavit of respondent no. 4 dated 12.11.2020 filed in Criminal Case No. 2545 of 2020 is also part of the record as Annexure RA-1 filed in response to counter affidavit filed by respondent no.4.

10. Necessary pleadings with regard to malafide of district administration is pleaded in paragraph nos. 18 to 24 of the writ petition.

11. Before moving the application dated 10.12.2012 the respondent no. 4 had filed application on 26.11.2012 whereby he sought prayer for quashing the order dated 31.01.1986 passed in the said suit (though same was already set aside vide order of Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi Division, Varanasi, dated 23.04.1988) and it seems that later it was realized that the order of 31.01.1986 was passed against Dhiraji Devi and would not have served the purpose of the Administration and hence a fresh application dated 10.12.2012 was invited from respondent no. 4 by respondent no. 3 and upon the said application straightaway the impugned order dated 15.12.2012 has been passed (within five days of application).

12. Without any notice to the original contestants in the suit and after expiry of 24 years and that too on an application of third party, the respondent no. 3 in the capacity of respondent no. 2 has passed the impugned order dated 15.12.2012, himself quashing the order issuing Parwana Amaldaramad dated 13.04.1989 and sitting in judgment over the order of Additional Commissioner (Administration) dated 23.04.1988, stating that order of trial court dated 31.01.1986 is set-aside in compliance of order of Additional Commissioner dated 23.04.1988, vide order dated 15.12.2012.

CONTENTION OF COUNSEL FOR THE PETITIONER IN WRIT-C NO. 857 OF 2013

13. By the impugned order dated 15.12.2012 passed by 3rd Additional City Magistrate, Varanasi-Respondent No. 2/3, judgment and decree dated 23.04.1988 passed by Additional Commissioner (Administration) Varanasi Division, Varanasi has been set at naught by administrative order whereby Parwana Amaldaramad dated 13.04.1989 issued by Additional City Magistrate-3rd, Varanasi was recalled as if 3rd Additional City Magistrate, Varanasi is sitting over the judgment and decree dated 23.04.1988 passed by Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi Division, Varanasi that too without any notice and opportunity of hearing to petitioner or any affected person, within 5 days from the date of application of respondent no. 4 dated 10.12.2012 i.e. after expiry of 24 years of judgment and decree dated 23.04.1988 passed in Appeal by Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi Division, Varanasi.

14. Without any notice to the original contestants in the suit and after expiry of 24 years and that too on an application of third party, the respondent no.3 in the capacity of respondent no. 2 has passed the order dated 15.12.2012 himself quashing the order issuing Parwana Amaldarmad dated 13.04.1989 and sitting over judgment and decree of Additional Commissioner (Administration) Varanasi dated 23.04.1988.

15. The malafides of the respondent no. 3 is evident from the fact that he twisted the nature of the order passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration) who had recorded a definite conclusion to the effect that Dhiraji Devi is the owner and in possession upon the land in question. However, the respondent no. 3 twisted the said finding by holding that an interpretation cannot be given to the effect that suit was decreed in favour of Smt. Dhiraji Devi. The respondent no. 3 has given colour to the said order as if the matter is remitted for fresh consideration before the Court of Assistant Collector. From perusal of the judgment and order dated 23.04.1988 it is evident that the suit was not remitted for fresh consideration.

16. The respondent no. 3 abused the powers conferred upon him by ex-parte recording the conclusion that false affidavit was filed and orders were passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration) and the orders passed by the Additional City Magistrate-III, Varanasi are against the provisions of law and are erroneous. Such conclusion drawn by the respondent no. 3 is without any material and is in breach of principle of natural justice besides being perverse.

17. No proceedings were instituted and there is no reference of the earlier application filed by respondent no.4. It is not evident as to how the respondent no. 4 had any locus to file an application in already decided proceedings under Section 229-B of Act, 1950.

18. The respondent no. 4 is an absolute stranger and had no authority in law to file the application. The respondent no. 4 has been set up by respondent no. 3 to institute the proceedings and the respondent no. 2 seems to have acted on the dictates of the Commissioner and local administration for the reasons mentioned hereinbefore.

19. Once the judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 has attained finality it had to be executed and recording of the name of Dhiraji Devi pursuant to the judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 is in accordance with the provisions contained under Section 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act read with the Rules framed under Act, 1950.

20. Mere pendency of the second appeal before the Board of Revenue does not stop the authority to implement the order of 23.04.1988. It has nowhere been mentioned in the impugned order that the order dated 23.04.1988 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Administration), Varanasi was stayed in the said second appeal. It is a settled principle of law that mere pendency of appeal does not amount to stay. Hence there was no irregularity in recording the name of Dhiraji Devi and passing the order dated 12.04.1989 and in any view of the case, Second Appeal was already dismissed by Board of Revenue.

21. Moreover the second appeal having been dismissed judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 merged in the order dated 08.08.1996 dismissing the appeal and hence the order dated 23.04.1988 attained finality. No justification has been given in the impugned order as to why the order of 23.04.1988 could not have been implemented after 1996. Assuming though not admitting, that the order could not have been implemented in the year 1989, it was surely capable of implementation after dismissal of the second appeal. This clearly establishes mala fides of respondent no.3 in passing the order and the target is to financially damage the petitioner as his school is constructed upon the property in question.

22. Nagar Nigam, Varanasi gave its 'No Objection Certificate' dated 05.01.2002 in respect of the disputed property, wherein it was stated that Plot No. 145, 146 and 148 of Village Lahartara are not the property of Nagar Nigam Nazul. Aforesaid 'No Objection Certificate' dated 05.01.2002, is still intact and never questioned.

23. On 12.06.2002, Smt. Dhiraji Devi wife of Nandlal initiated proceedings under Section 143 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act, to declare properties in question as Abadi, Under Rule 135 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R. Rules 1952 Naksa along with report dated 19.06.2002 was submitted by the Tehsildar/Lekhpal whereupon Assistant Collector, 1st Class, Sadar, Varanasi declared the disputed land as 'Abadi' Class VI (2) and directed for Amaldaramad in the revenue records, vide order dated 10.07.2002. State was party to that case, besides application was duly enquired into by Tehsildar, Sadar, Varanasi who got it enquired into from Regional Revenue Inspector who submitted its report dated 22.06.2002 and on the basis of that 'Abadi' has been declared and said property is not covered by section 132 of the UPZA & LR Act, 1950.

24. Upon declaration of the land as 'Abadi' Smt. Dhiraji Devi executed a registered lease deed dated 11.07.2002 in favour of the petitioner wherein the three plots of land were conveyed through lease in favour of the petitioner. A notice dated 13.08.2002 was issued by Varanasi Development Authority for deposit of the amount for sanction of the plan. The aforesaid amount was deposited by the petitioner with the authority, on 16.08.2002. The Varanasi Development Authority sanctioned the map for construction of the school upon the land in question. Aforesaid sanctioning of Map for construction of School has also become final and also granted permission to raise construction, vide order dated 16.08.2002

25. In view of aforesaid facts, there does not exist any cloud over right, title and interest of Smt. Dhiraji Devi and now petitioner

26. It is not out of way to mention here that an area of 0.56 hectare of plot no. 146 and an area of 1.30 hectare of plot no.148 was acquired by the Railway Administration over which the Abadi of Railway Administration came into existence and is still continuing. In Khatauni of 1381 to 1383 Fasli such an area is recorded in Shreni 6(4) as Abadi Uttar Purab Railway in Khata No.657.

ADDITIONAL FACTS OF THE CASE AS PLEADED BY PETITIONER IN WRIT-C 858 OF 2013

27. It seems that after the school was constructed and was running, suo moto a notice dated 22.02.2010 came to be issued to Smt. Dhiraji Devi. Notice did not disclose the nature of the proceedings and it fixed 16.03.2010 as the date for hearing.

28. It was reported by the process server on 09.03.2010 that Smt. Dhiraji Devi has already expired and hence notice could not be served whereupon Sub Divisional Magistrate, Sadar, Varanasi-respondent no. 2 issued letter dated 31.03.2010 to Tehsildar, Sadar, Varanasi, respondent no. 3 to trace the legal heirs of the deceased Dhiraji Devi and submit his report.

29. However, without disclosure of the heirs of the deceased Dhiraji Devi straightaway impugned order dated 22.11.2012 was passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Varanasi, respondent no. 2 whereby he has recalled the order of 10.07.2002-granting declaration under section 143 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 by Assistant Collector, Ist Class, Sadar, Varanasi without hearing any of the affected parties.

30. Thereafter without notice to the petitioner, proceedings, as alleged, were initiated under Section 33/39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act. A report was called for by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Varanasi-respondent no.2 from Tehsildar, Sadar, Varanasi-respondent no.3 for the purpose of registering the land as 'Pond'. This report was also submitted without hearing the petitioner. On the basis of the said report, the impugned order dated 20.12.2012 has been passed whereby the land came to be recorded as "Pond' and directions were issued to make entries in the revenue records in this regard.

CONTENTION OF COUNSEL FOR THE PETITIONER IN WRIT-C NO. 858 OF 2013

31. The impugned orders dated 20.12.2012 and 21.11.2012 passed by respondent no. 2 suffer from grave error of law apparent on the face of the record besides being orders that are without jurisdiction.

32. The petitioner has not been given any opportunity of hearing nor lessor of the petitioner was given any opportunity of hearing. In the absence of hearing the petitioner, an order that was passed on 10.07.2002, more than 10 years ago has been recalled on 21.11.2012, suo-moto and that too without any proceedings under any provisions of the Act inasmuch as judicial orders cannot be set-aside in administrative manner. Hence, the entire action is without jurisdiction.

33. In the absence of the proceeding contemplated under the Act suo-moto the order could not have been recalled and the respondent no. 2 committed grave error of law in recalling the order suo-moto.

34. The petitioner was a necessary party to be heard as after the passing of the order dated 10.07.2002 u/s 143 of U.P.ZA & L.R. Act, the land in question was exempted from the application of Chapter-VIII U.P.ZA & L.R. Act. Valid rights were created in favour of the petitioner by due execution of a registered lease deed dated 11.07.2002. Under such circumstances orders to the prejudice of the petitioner could not have been passed without giving an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner.

35. On merits the respondent has passed the impugned order without application of mind and has failed to notice the fact that the land in question is a revenue paying land and throughout it has been recorded as Sir. Even in the Khatauni of the year 1359 Fasli that forms the basis of passing the order dated 21.11.2012 the land in question has been shown to be Sir and in the Khasra it has been shown to be Sir Malikan.

36. An entry in Khasra only discloses the crop being cultivated upon the land in question. It is not a record of rights and in the Khatauni where the name of the tenure holder is record, it establishes the nature of the holding. The petitioner in this regard places reliance upon paragraph A-60 of the U.P. Land Record Manual.

37. From Khasra of 1359 Fasli it is evident that the land remained in private cultivation and at no point of time it ever vested in the State Government. It was Sir Malikarn and hence stood settled in terms of Section 18 of the U.P.ZA & LR. Act.

38. Judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court and of this Hon'ble Court relate only to those public lands which were recorded as Ponds. It did not cover at any point of time private land and private ponds. In fact private ponds can never be converted into a public property and no direction can be given to compulsorily maintain such land as ponds.

39. There are judgments of this Hon'ble Court that exempt the land in the nature of pond settled under Section 18 of the U.P.ZA & LR. Act to be not falling within the category of public ponds and to maintain the same in such character.

40. A public purpose is being sub served by running the school and huge constructions exists upon the land in question. The same cannot be demolished by changing the entry from Abadi to Pond and that too without hearing the petitioner.

41. The proceedings under Section 33 & 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act are also without jurisdiction as there exists no application for correction of the record filed by any person.

42. In exercise of the powers under Section 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, it was necessary for the respondents to have decided upon the entry on the basis of the possession. For this purpose he was required to hear the parties and in the absence of hearing the parties the order passed by respondent no. 2 is without jurisdiction and is also in breach of the principles of natural justice.

43. It is not out of way to mention here that an area of 0.56 hectare of plot no. 146 and an area of 1.30 hectare of plot no.148 was acquired by the Railway Administration over which the Abadi of Railway Administration came into existence and is still continuing, In Khatauni of 1381 to 1383 Fasli such an area is recorded in Shreni 6(4) as Abadi Uttar Purab Railway in Khata No.657.

44. No part of the land is covered under the expression Pokhari as it is the revenue paying land since its inception and the portion of land which has been acquired much after the 1359 Fasli and is recorded as Abadi of the Uttar Purab Railway over which the railway colony exists at present.

45. In Writ-C No. 857 of 2013, respondent nos. 1 to 3 filed their counter affidavit stating that properties in question are in nature of Banjar/Sarpat, Pokhari and are falling undersection 117/132 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act over which no Bhumadhari rights can be accrued and respondent no. 4 also filed counter affidavit supported impugned orders stating that there is no illegality in impugned orders and there is no jurisdictional error. Petitioner filed rejoinder affidavits stating that nature of the land was never Pokhari rather agricultural activities was being done and property in question is vested/ settled under section 18 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act. Entries in Khasra 1359 Fasli shows that it was Seer Khudkasht land of Zamindar under his personal cultivation and vested/ settled in him under section 18 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act and thus he perfected his rights/title, became absolute owner/ Bhumidhar with transferrable rights thereof and State has no concern with it.

46. In Writ-C No. 858 of 2013, respondent nos. 1 to 3 filed their counter affidavit and supported impugned orders stating that there is no jurisdictional error. Petitioner filed rejoinder affidavit.

47. During pendency of present writ petitions, Nagar Nigam, Varanasi filed an application for impleadment alongwith affidavit, after about 12 years, on 15.05.2025 in both the writ petitions and Sri Ashok Pandey, counsel for Nagar Nigam as well as Sri Himanshu Nagpal, Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam, Varanasi have also been heard as intervenors, in the interest of justice, though they were not parties in proceedings initiated by respondents-authorities, giving rise to present writ petitions.

ANALYSIS-Writ-C No. 857 of 2013

48. While entertaining Writ-C No. 857 of 2013, following order was passed by this Court on 08.01.2013 :-

On an application filed by respondent no. 4 alleging that he is a public spirited person, the decree dated 23.4.1998 passed by the Additional Commissioner, Varanasi Division, Varanasi passed in suit under Section 229-B of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act has been set aside by the Additional City Magistrate-III, Varanasi on the ground that the land in dispute is a pond and the name of the petitioner and its lessor are wrongly recorded in the revenue record. It is contended that the Additional City Magistrate-III has no authority or jurisdiction to entertain the application as he does not exercise any power to hear and decide the public interest litigation nor a decree of a competent court can be set aside on administrative side. It is further contended that no notice or opportunity was provided and the order is ex-parte.

Prima-facie there appears to be force in the submission and the matter requires scrutiny.

Learned Standing Counsel representing the respondents no. 1 & 2 and Sri Ashis Kumar Gupta, respondent no. 4 on whose complaint the order has been passed, may file counter affidavit within four weeks.

Sri Anil Kumar, Additional City Magistrate-III who has been arrayed by name in the writ petition is directed to appear in person before this Court on 6th February, 2013 to explain his power and jurisdiction to set aside a decree of a competent court on the administrative side.

List on 6th February, 2013.

Considering the facts, until further orders of this Court, effect and operation of the impugned order dated 15.12.2012 passed by the Additional City Magistrate-III, Varanasi shall remain stayed. Respondents are further restrained from interferring in the peaceful possession of the petitioner over the land in dispute.

Learned Standing Counsel undertakes to give information of this order in writing to Sri Anil Kumar, Additional City Magistrate-III.

49. It is not disputed by the respondents-authorities that effect of impugned orders are that judicial and/or quasi-judicial orders have been set aside by in administrative manner by administrative orders and also that no prior notice or opportunity of hearing was afforded to recorded/affected persons.

50. A perusal of record further shows that impugned order dated 15.12.2012, giving rise to Writ-C No. 857 of 2013, was passed on an application dated 10.12.2012 of private respondent no.4, i.e. in five days, by setting aside Parwana Amaldaramad dated 13.04.1989 issued in pursuance of judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 (passed under section 229-B of U.P. Z.A. and L.R. Act, in favour of predecessor of petitioner). Aforesaid administrative order was passed ex-parte after lapse of about 24 years, on a complaint made by unconcerned person/ third person, even without issuing any notice to any affected person including petitioner.

51. Record further shows that judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 (passed under section 229-B of U.P. Z.A. and L.R. Act, in favour of predecessor of petitioner) is still intact/ has never been set aside by any competent court of law but only order issuing Parwana Amaldaramad dated 13.04.1989, giving effect to aforesaid judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988, has been set aside, vide impugned order dated 15.12.2012, which is impermissible and without jurisdiction.

52. A perusal of plaint of suit under section 229-8 of the Act, 1950 shows that Nagar Mahapalika, Varanasi as well as State of Uttar Pradesh were parties to the suit as defendant no. 1 and 2 respectively but they never challenged judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 passed by Additional Commissioner (Administration) Varanasi passed in Appeal No. 67 of 1986 Mst. Dhiraji vs. Sitaram and others, holding that Smt. Dhiraji Devi is absolute owner having title and possession over properties in question, arising out of judgement and decree passed in aforesaid suit.

53. Stand of petitioner that Rakesh (Nyayik) - respondent no. 4 is an absolute stranger and had no authority in law to file the application and he has been set up by respondent no. 3 to institute the proceedings and the respondent no. 2 seems to have acted on the dictates of the Commissioner and local administration, is also fortified from on the own admission of respondent no.4 in para 3 of affidavit dated 12.11.2020, contained in annexure no. RA-1 to the rejoinder affidavit dated 25.03.2026, filed on behalf of petitioner on 04.04.2026. Para 8 of rejoinder affidavit is as under :-

"8. That in reply to the contents of paragraph nos. 11 and 12 of the counter affidavit, it is submitted that first information report dated 06.12.2012 being Case Crime No. 780 of 2012 was wrongly and illegally registered against the Chairman of the petitioner's school. Pursuant to aforesaid, case has been registered as Criminal Case No. 2545 of 2020 Rakesh Nyayik Vs. Deepak Madhok, wherein respondent no. 4 himself filed an application supported with affidavit dated 12.11.2020, clearly stating that he has been set up by the district administration which itself speaks of illegal and malafide attitude of respondents-authorities for initiating impugned proceedings. In the aforesaid case, final report no. 258 of 2015 dated 23.12.2015 was submitted, same was accepted and record has been consigned to record room, vide order of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi dated 28.09.2021. The deponent brings on record copy of the application and affidavit of respondent no. 4 dated 12.11.2020 filed in Criminal Case No. 2545 of 2020 as Annexure RA-1 to this rejoinder affidavit."

54. It is admitted to the parties that the judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 passed by Additional Commissioner (Administration) Varanasi has attained finality, besides Nagar Nigam, Varanasi also could not dispute said factum aspect. Apart from that Sri Himanshu Nagpal, Municipal Commissioner, Nagar Nigam, Varanasi who himself addressed the court on 30.04.2026, also could not dispute that impugned orders have been passed in administrative manner ex-parte. Once that be so, judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988, passed under section 229-B of the Act, 1950, had to be executed and recording of the name of Dhiraji Devi pursuant to the judgement and decree dated 23.04.1988 is in accordance with the provisions contained under Section 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act read with the Rules framed under Act, 1950.

55. Nagar Nigam, Varanasi itself gave its 'No Objection Certificate dated 05.01.2002 in respect of the disputed property, wherein it was stated that Plot No. 145, 146 and 148 of Village Lahartara are not the property of Nagar Nigam Nazul. Aforesaid 'No Objection Certificate' dated 05.01.2002, is still intact and never questioned. Thus Nagar Nigam, Varanasi is estopped from taking different stand which is barred by Principles of Estoppel.

56. On 12.06.2002, Smt. Dhiraji Devi wife of Nandlal initiated proceedings under Section 143 of the U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act, to declare properties in question as Abadi. Under Rule 135 of the U.P.Z.A & LR. Rules 1952 Naksa along with report dated 19.06.2002 was submitted by the Tehsildar/Lekhpal whereupon Assistant Collector, 1st Class, Sadar, Varanasi declared the disputed land as 'Abadi' Class VI(2) and directed for Amaldaramad in the revenue records, vide order dated 10.07.2002. The present writ petition succeeds and is allowed,

61. While entertaining Writ-C No. 858 of 2013, order was passed on 08.01.2013 which reads as follows:-

"It is contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that after the decree dated 23.4.1988 passed by the appellate court in a suit under Section 229-B was set aside illegally by the Additional City Magistrate-III, Varanasi which is subject matter of challenge of writ petition no. 857 of 2013, the Sub Divisional Magistrate (Sadar), Varanasi by means of an ex-parte order dated 21.11.2012 recalled the declaration dated 10.7.2002 made under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act and simultaneously by order dated 20.12.2012 directed to expunge the name of the petitioner and to record the land in dispute in the name of the State on the allegation that it was a pond. It is further contended that the order setting aside the decree has been stayed by this Court vide order of date passed in writ petition no. 857 of 2013, orders dated 21.11.2012 and 20.12.2012 impugned in this petition are also liable to be stayed.

Prima-facie there appears to be force in the submission and the matter requires scrutiny.

Learned Standing Counsel representing the respondents no. 1 to 3 may file counter affidavit within four weeks.

List on 6th February, 2013 along with writ petition no. 857 of 2013.

Considering the facts, until further orders of this Court, effect and operation of the impugned order dated 21.11.2012 and 20.12.2012 passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate (Sadar), Varanasi shall remain stayed. Respondents are further restrained from causing any interference in running the school of the petitioner situated on the land in dispute."

62. It is contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that after the decree dated 23.4.1988 passed by the appellate court in a suit under Section 229-B was set aside illegally by the Additional City Magistrate-III, Varanasi which is subject matter of challenge of writ petition no. 857 of 2013, the Sub Divisional Magistrate (Sadar), Varanasi by means of an ex-parte order dated 21.11.2012 recalled the declaration dated 10.7.2002 made under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act and simultaneously by order dated 20.12.2012 directed to expunge the name of the petitioner and to record the land in dispute in the name of the State on the allegation that it was a pond. It is further contended that the order setting aside the decree has been stayed by this Court vide order of date passed in writ petition no. 857 of 2013, orders dated 21.11.2012 and 20.12.2012 impugned in this petition are also liable to be stayed.

63. Record shows that neither petitioner nor its lessor had been given any opportunity of hearing and in the absence of hearing the petitioner an order that was passed on 10.07.2002, more than 10 years ago has been recalled on 21.11.2012, suo-moto and that too without any proceedings under any provisions of the Act.

64. After the passing of the order dated 10.07.2002 the land in question was exempted from the application of Chapter-VIII U.P.ZA & L.R. Act, thus valid rights were created in favour of the petitioner by due execution of a registered lease deed. Land in question is a revenue paying land and throughout it has been recorded as Sir, further counsel for respondents could not dispute that petitioner was a necessary party to be heard.

65. Record further shows that in Khatauni 1359 Fasli that forms the basis of passing the order dated 21.11.2012, the land in question has been shown to be Sir and in the Khasra it has been shown to be Sir Malikan which shows that the land remained in private cultivation and at no point of time it ever vested in the State Government. It was Sir Malikan and hence stood settled in terms of Section 18 of the U.P.ZA & LR. Act.

66. Judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court and of this Hon'ble Court relate only to those public lands which were recorded as Ponds. It did not cover at any point of time private land and private ponds. In fact private ponds can never be converted into a public property and no direction can be given to compulsorily maintain such land as ponds.

67. Contention of counsel for the petitioner that a public purpose is being sub served by running the school and huge constructions exists upon the land in question, wherein large number of students are studying, the same cannot be demolished by changing the entry from Abadi to Pond and that too without hearing the petitioner, found substance.

68. Long standing entries cannot be disturbed in summary proceedings, thus impugned action under Section 33 & 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act are also without jurisdiction as there exists no application for correction of the record filed by any person.

69. In exercise of the powers under Section 39 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, it was necessary for the respondents to have decided upon the entry on the basis of the possession. For this purpose he was required to hear the parties and in the absence of hearing the parties the order passed by respondent no. 2 is without jurisdiction and is also in breach of the principles of natural justice.

ORDER ON WRIT-C NO. 858 OF 2023

70. In view of the facts as stated above, since order dated 15.12.2012 passed by IIIrd Additional City Magistrate, Varanasi in Writ C- No. 857 of 2013, has already been quashed, thus present impugned ex-parte order dated 20.12.2012 as well as ex-parte order dated 21.11.2012 passed by respondent No.2/Sub-Divisional Magistrate (Sadar) Varanasi, are also liable to be quashed and the same are hereby quashed. The respondents are restrained from causing any interference in running of the School by petitioner situated on Plot No. 145/1 (M) 146/1 (M) and 148/1 (M) in Village Lahartara, Post Dehat Amanat, Tehsil Sadar, District Varanasi. The present writ petition also succeeds and is allowed.

Writ C No. 15932 of 2026

Rama Shankar & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the petitioners are entitled of benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 which provides that in case the house exists over the land referred to u/s 63 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, having been built prior to 29.11.2012, the housing site can be settled with its owner on such terms and conditions as may be specified?
(b) Whether eviction proceedings initiated u/s 67(1) against unauthorized occupants of Gaon Sabha land must be stayed or dropped pending the disposal of an application filed u/s 67-A?
(c) Whether an applicant lower in the statutory order of preference u/s 64(1) (e.g., OBCs or non-SC/ST categories) can claim settlement u/s 67-A without explicitly pleading and proving that no persons higher in preference (e.g., SC/ST agricultural labourers/artisans) exist in the village?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law/ Revenue Law – U.P. Revenue Code, 2006: Section 67-A, 67(1); Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 - Section 122- B, 123 - Plot No. 466 (area 0.0450 hectare) situated at Village Karmaha Bujurg, Tehsil Sadar, District Gorakhpur, which is explicitly recorded as rasta (public path/road) in the revenue records. Petitioners (Nos. 1–3 belonging to Scheduled Castes and No. 4 to OBC) claimed their ancestors had constructed a kaccha house adjacent to the path (Gata No. 460) and they subsequently built a pakka residential house there prior to 29.11.2012. They claimed to be landless persons entitled to settlement u/s 67-A. On 26.02.2026, the Assistant Collector issued notice in Form R.C.-20 u/s 67(1) alleging illegal encroachment upon public path Arazi No. 466 (Case Nos. 14, 15, 16, and 17 of 2025).

The petitioners filed an application dated 28.03.2026 u/s 67-A before the SDM (Respondent No. 3) and approached the High Court seeking a writ of mandamus to:

- Direct Respondent No. 3 to decide their Section 67-A application expeditiously.
- Direct Respondent No. 4 to drop/stay the Section 67 eviction proceedings until the Section 67-A application is decided.

B. Both the agricultural land as well as housing sites which were in occupation of persons belonging to certain persons mentioned in section itself unauthorizedly were protected by U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950 but in the U.P. Revenue Code 2006, there is no such protection to the person unauthorizedly occupying agricultural land belonging to Gaon Sabha. From Section 122- B and 123 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950, and Section 67 and 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code 2006, it is apparent that earlier U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950 protected unauthorized occupation of land by the agricultural labourers belonging to SC and ST in any land vested in Gaon Sabha u/s 117 (not being land mentioned u/s 132), having occupied from a date as provided in the section itself and also conferred Bhumidhari rights to the aforesaid illegal occupants. Section 123 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950 provided protection by settling housing sites to the persons who have built a house on the land on or before the appointed date, to the persons referred in Section 122-C(3) of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950.

Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 provides settlement of housing sites to the person unauthorizedly occupying the same on the cutoff date on the conditions mentioned in Sections and the Rules framed thereunder. (Para 15)

C. An application filed by a person covered u/s 67- A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 cannot be rejected on the ground that such an application is not maintainable for want of provision. The same has to be considered and decided on merits by the Assistant Collector. (Para 28)

D. In case, in proceedings initiated u/s 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, the noticee invokes protection of Section 67-A of the Code to resist the proceedings u/s 67, the Assistant Collector should register immediately the proceedings u/s 67- A of the Code and shall also decide the same in accordance with law. (Para 23, 28)

Section 67 as well as Section 67(a) of the Code reflect the composite intent of legislature. The legislature by enacting the aforesaid provision has recognized the vulnerability of the State land to illegal encroachment and the need for urgent corrective measures. Simultaneously the legislature has also acknowledged the reality of a large number of persons who have erected dwelling units on lands which are not reserved for any public purposes. The legislature has protected their rights in the manner prescribed in the provision. (Para 23)

E. The proceedings u/s 67 and Section 67-A are to be consolidated and heard together by Assistant Collector after providing opportunity of hearing as well as opportunity of leading evidence to all the parties and the proceedings should be brought to the logical conclusion strictly in accordance with law. Such procedure would faithfully implement the legislative intent and also serve the interest of justice. (Para 23, 28)

The authority/ court having jurisdiction to decide the proceedings taken out u/s 67 of the Code or Section 67(a) of the Code is the same. When the defence of Section 67(a) of the Code is taken in proceedings of Section 67 of the Code, the same issues will be directly and substantially in issue in both the proceedings. Usually in such matters pleadings, defence, pleadings and evidence of the parties are same in both the proceedings. In case proceedings u/s 67 and 67(a) of the Code are conducted separately and in isolation to one another, it would lead to multiplicity of litigation and inconsistent judgments. There will also be an avoidable delay in decision of the controversy and may even result in miscarriage of justice. (Para 23)

F. For considering the eligibility of a person u/s 67- A, no objection can be taken by the Assistant Collector on the ground that other persons higher in category as provided u/s 64 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, than the petitioner, exists in the village, and if the petitioner comes within any of the categories mentioned u/s 64 of the Code and other conditions of Section 67-A are fulfilled by the petitioner, the benefit is to be given to such person. (Para 28)

Section 67(a) of the Code confers rights on certain people who have encroached upon public land. The prerequisite conditions for invoking the protection of Section 67 (a) of the Code are these. The person against whom proceedings are taken out has built his house on any land referred to in Section 63 of the Code, the person who seeks protection of Section 67 (a) of the Code should be in the category of persons referred to in Section 63 of the Code. The land should not be reserved for any public purpose. The date of the construction of the house should be prior to 29.11.2012. The house of such persons should be existing in the disputed parcels of land on or before 29.11.2012. (Para 23)

In the facts of the present case, the proceedings u/s 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has already been initiated against the petitioners to which petitioners have filed objections. The petitioners have also initiated proceedings u/s 67-A before the S.D.M. The proceedings which were initiated u/s 67-A before the S.D.M. be immediately transferred to the court of Assistant Collector seized with proceedings u/s 67 or the petitioners may file fresh proceedings u/s 67-A before the Assistant Collector itself. In either of the case, the Assistant Collector seized with the matter u/s 67 should consolidate both the proceedings and decide the same in accordance with law as laid down by this court in case of Asgar Vs. State of U.P. (infra). (Para 29)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Pramod Kumar Maurya
For Respondent(s): C.S.C., Sudhir Bharti

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. This petition has been filed for the following reliefs:-

"A. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of writ of mandamus directing and commanding the respondent no.3 to conclude the proceedings of Section 67 (A) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 upon the application dated 28.03.2026 filed by the petitioners, expeditiously within stipulated period as fixed by this Hon'ble Court.

B. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of writ of mandamus directing the respondent no. 4 to drop the proceedings of section 67 (1) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 as case no. 14 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Teerath), case no. 15 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Om Prakash), case no. 16 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Ram Pratap) and case no. 17 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Rama Shankar) till of the disposal application dated 28.03.2026 filed by the petitioners before respondent no.3 under section 67 (A) of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006."

2. Brief facts of the case are that petitioner Nos. 1, 2, and 3 claim themselves belonging to Scheduled Castes community and petitioner No. 4 belongs to Other Backward Class. Plot No. 466 area 0.0450 hectare situated at Village Karmaha Bujurg, Tola Reharwa, Post- Khas Khuthan, Tehsil- Sadar, District Gorakhpur is recorded as rasta in the revenue record. Case of the petitioners as set up in the writ petition is that their ancestors have constructed kaccha house adjacent to public path, which is recorded in the revenue record as Gata No. 460 and they are residing along with their family members in the house constructed by their ancestors and now, the petitioners have constructed a pakka house in place of kaccha house and there is no other house of the petitioners except the house in question. It has also been claimed that the rasta recorded in revenue record is situated in front of the house of the petitioners and they have not obstructed the rasta in any manner. A notice in the form of R.C.-20 was issued to the petitioners on 26.02.2026 mentioning therein that the petitioners have encroached upon Arazi No. 466 by constructing permanent house and they have been directed to submit reply to the notice. In response to the notice issued to the petitioners, petitioners filed their objections reiterating the pleas mentioned above and has also claimed benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. It has been further case of the petitioners that they have also filed an application under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 before respondent no.3 i.e. Sub Divisional Magistrate/Deputy Collector, Tehsil-Sadar, District-Gorakhpur on 28.03.2026. Despite application being filed by the petitioners, the case has not been registered by the respondent authorities nor any date has been fixed in the matter. It has also been stated in the writ petition that the respondents are adamant to remove the house of the petitioners, though the petitioners are entitled to get benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Petitioners have also claimed that they are landless persons. Prayer has been made in the writ petition for issuance of mandamus commanding respondent no. 3 to conclude the proceedings of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 pursuant to their application dated 28.03.2026 expeditiously in a time frame as may be fixed by this court. The other prayer in the writ petition is for issuance of mandamus directing respondent no. 4 to drop the proceedings under Section 67(1) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 registered as case no. 14 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Teerath), case no. 15 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Om Prakash), case no. 16 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Ram Pratap) and case no. 17 of 2025 (Gaon Sabha Vs. Rama Shankar).

3. It has been contended by learned counsel for the petitioners that unless the proceedings under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, which are beneficial in nature and protects the possession of the petitioners, are decided, the authorities should not proceed with the proceedings under Section 67(1) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and the proceeding under Section 67- A initiated by the the petitioners be decided first.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon judgments of this Court in cases of Suresh Chandra Vs. State of U.P. and 3 others; 2018 (2) All WC 1675, Govind Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others in Writ C No. 20493 of 2021; Neutral Citation 2021:AHC:101519, Baburam Vs. State of U.P. and 3 others; 2021 (153) RD 1 and Asgar Vs. State of U.P. and 3 others; 2021 (4) All WC 3831.

5. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel has made following submissions:-

(a) That application filed by the petitioners under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 itself is not maintainable and could not be entertained at all. It is further submitted that statutory fiction contemplated under Section 67- A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is a legal fiction of a very limited scope and could come to rescue of a particular category of unauthorized occupant of a land vested in Gaon Sabha but they can only successfully resist the proceedings for eviction of such an occupant initiated under Section 67 U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

(b) That the deeming clause contained in Section 67- A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 could not over ride the provisions of the Code other than Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and the operation of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 was to remain confine to the proceedings under Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Section 67 -A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and the machinery provided therein only secures the rights conferred in favour of a person to enter upon and continue to remain in possession over the land in respect of which allotment is to be made on the basis of priority; preference over and above any agricultural labourer envisaged under Section 63 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. In this regard, learned Standing Counsel has relied upon judgments of this Court in case of Ramdin and others Vs. Board of Revenue, U.P. Allahabad and others; 1994 RD 395 and Achhaibar Tiwari Vs. Additional Commissioner (J) II, Gorakhpur Division and others, 2003 (94) RD 400.

(c) That the issue in the present writ petition is whether the petitioners are entitled of benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 which provides that in case the house exists over the land referred to under Section 63 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, having been built prior to November 29, 2012, the housing site can be settled with its owner on such terms and conditions as may be specified. Section 63 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 speaks of land which may be allotted for abadi site and empowers the Sub-Divisional Officer on his own motion or on the resolution of the Land Management Committee to earmark the land for abadi site. The second requirement for a person to be entitled for benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is that he should be a person referred in sub-section (1) of Section 64 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Section 64 shows the order of preference to be followed up while making the allotment of an abadi site. Highest in this order of preference are agricultural labourers or village artisans belonging to Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribe, followed by Other Backward Classes and thereafter by persons living below the poverty line.

(d) That averments made in the writ petition as well as application under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, reveals that nowhere the petitioners have stated that no agricultural labourer or village artisans belonging to Schedule Caste or Schedule Tribe are residing in the village concerned. This was necessarily required to be pleaded by them. Merely because a person lower in order of preference has encroached upon Gaon Sabha land, he cannot and should not be granted the benefit of Section 67-A unless and until he is in a position to establish categorically that a person higher in preference is not available in the village. Any other interpretation of Section 67-A would result in great injustice as an unauthorized occupant would be liable to be granted its benefit only on account of him or her having illegally encroached upon Gaon Sabha property, despite other needier and persons higher in preference being available in the village. In this regard, the learned Standing Counsel has relied upon the judgment of this court in the case of Sri Raju Vs. State of U.P. and others; 2020(1) All WC 843 834, and judgment in the case of Baijnath Vs. Commissioner Varanasi and 4 others; 2020 (147) RD 360.

6. Before considering the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioners, it would be appropriate to look into the relevant provisions of the statute. Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is quoted as under:-

"67. Power to prevent damages, misappropriation and wrongful occupation of Gram Panchayat properties. (1) Where any property entrusted or deemed to be entrusted under the provisions of this Code to a Gram Panchayat or other local authority is damaged or misappropriated, or where any Gram Panchayat or other authority is entitled to take possession of any land under the provisions of this Code and such land is occupied otherwise than in accordance with the said provisions, the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti or other authority or the Lekhpal concerned, as the case may be, shall inform the Assistant Collector concerned in the manner prescribed.

(2) Where from the information received under sub-section (1) or otherwise, the Assistant Collector is satisfied that any property referred to in sub-section (1) has been damaged or misappropriated, or any person is in occupation of any land referred to in that sub-section in contravention of the provisions of this Code, he shall issue notice to the person concerned to show cause why compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation not exceeding the amount specified in the notice be not recovered from him and why he should not be evicted from such land.

(3) If the person to whom a notice has been issued under sub-section (2) fails to show cause within the time specified in the notice or within such extended time as the Assistant Collector may allow in this behalf, or if the cause shown is found to be insufficient, the Assistant Collector may direct that such person shall be evicted from the land, and may, for that purpose, use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary, and may direct that the amount of compensation for damage or misappropriation of the property or for wrongful occupation, as the case may be, be recovered from such person as arrears of land revenue.

(4) If the Assistant Collector is of opinion that the person showing cause is not guilty of causing the damage or misappropriation or wrongful occupation referred to in the notice under sub-section (2), he shall discharge the notice.

(5) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Assistant Collector under sub-section (3) or sub-section (4), may within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer an appeal to the Collector.

(6) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other provision of this Code, and subject to the provisions of this section every order of the Assistant Collector under this section shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (5) be final.

(7) The procedure to be followed in any action taken under this section shall be such as may be prescribed.

Explanation. - For the purposes of this section, the word 'land' shall include the trees and buildings standing thereon."

7. It would also be relevant to look into the rules framed regarding procedure to be followed by the authorities in proceeding under Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. The procedure has been prescribed under Rules 66 and 67 of U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016, and the same are quoted as under:-

"66. Information to Assistant Collector-The information to Assistant Collector required by section 67(1) shall be submitted by the Chairman or any member or the Secretary of the Land Management Committee, or any officer of the Local Authority concerned in R.C. Form-19.

67. Further inquiry by Assistant Collector- (1) On receipt of the information under rule 66, or on facts otherwise coming to his knowledge, the Assistant Collector may make such inquiry as he deems proper and may obtain further information regarding the following points:-

(a) full description of damage or misappropriation caused or the wrongful occupation made with details of village, plot number, area, boundary, property damaged or misappropriated and market value thereof,

(b) full address along with parentage of the person responsible for such damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation;

(c) period of wrongful occupation, damage or misappropriation and class of soil of the plots involved;

(d) value of the property damaged or misappropriated calculated at the circle rate fixed by the Collector and the amount sought to be recovered as damages

(2) The Assistant Collector shall thereafter proceed to take action under section 67(2) and for that purpose issue a notice to the person concerned in R.C. Form-20 to show cause as to why compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation not exceeding the amount specified in the notice be not recovered from him and why he should not be evicted from such land.

(3) If the notice referred to in section 67(2) remains uncomplied with or if the cause shown by the person concerned is found to be insufficient, the Assistant Collector may direct by order that-

(a) such person be evicted by using such force as may be necessary, or

(b) the amount of compensation for damage or wrongful occupation ordered by the Assistant Collector, if not paid in specified time, may be recovered as arrears of land revenue, including the amount of expenses referred to in sub-rule (3).

(4) The amount of damages sought to be recovered and the expenses of execution of the order shall be specified in such notice, which shall be determined in the following manner:-

(a) In the case of damage or misappropriation, the amount of damages shall be assessed at the prevailing market rate

(b) In the case of unauthorized occupation of any land, the amount of damages shall be the amount equal to the five percent of the market value of the land calculated at the circle rate fixed by the Collector for each year of unauthorized occupation.

(c) The expenses of execution of the order shall be assessed on the basis of one day's pay and allowances payable to the staff deputed.

(5) If the person wrongfully occupying the land has done cultivation therein, he may be allowed to retain possession thereof until he has harvested the crops subject to the payment by him of the amount equal to the five percent of the market value of the land calculated as per the circle rate which shall be credited to the Consolidated Gaon Fund or the Fund of the local authority other than the Gram Panchayat as the case may be. If the person concerned does not make the payment of the aforesaid amount within the period specified in the notice in R.C.Form-20, the possession of the land shall be delivered to the Land Management Committee or the local authority, as the case may be, together with the crop:

Provided that where such person again wrongfully occupies the same land or any other land within the jurisdiction of the Gram Panchayat or the local authority as the case may be, he shall be evicted therefrom forthwith and possession of the land vacant or together with the crop thereon shall be delivered to the Land Management Committee or the local authority as the case may be.

(6) The Assistant Collector shall make an endeavour to conclude the proceeding under section 67 of the Code within the period of ninety days from the date of issuance of the show cause notice and if the proceeding is not concluded within such period the reasons for the same shall be recorded.

(7) Nothing in sub-rule (5) shall debar the Land Management Committee or the local authority as the case may be from prosecuting the person who encroaches upon the same land second time in spite of having been evicted under the Code or the rules, under section 447 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860.

(8) There shall be maintained in the office of each Collector a register in R.C. Form-21 showing details of the amount ordered to be realized on account of damages and compensation awarded in proceedings under section 67.

(9) A similar register shall also be maintained by each tahsildar showing realization of damages and compensation awarded in such proceeding. The entries made in the register maintained at tahsil shall be compared with the register maintained by the Collector to ensure accuracy of the entries made therein.

(10) A progress report showing realization of damages and compensation awarded in proceedings under section 67 shall be sent to Board of Revenue, U.P., Lucknow by the fifteenth day of April and October every year. The Board after consolidating the report so received from the districts shall send it to the Government.

(11) Nothing in rules 66 and 67 shall debar any person from establishment of his right, title or interest in a court of competent jurisdiction in accordance with the law for the time being in force in respect of any matter for which any order has been made under section 67 of the Code."

8. Forerunner of Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is Section 122-B of U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act, 1950, which is reproduced as under:-

"122B. Powers of the Land Management Committee and the Collector.

[(1) Where any property vested under the provisions of this Act in a Gaon Sabha or a local authority is damaged or misappropriated or where any Gaon Sabha or local authority is entitled to take or retain possession of any land under the provisions of this Act and such land is occupied otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the Land Management Committee or local authority, as the case may be, shall inform the Assistant Collector concerned in the manner prescribed.

(2)Where from the information received under sub-section (1) or otherwise, the Assistant Collector is satisfied that any property referred to in sub-section (1) has been damaged or misappropriated or any person is in occupation of any land, referred to in that sub-section, in contravention of the provisions of this Act, he shall issue notice to the person concerned to show cause why compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation as mentioned in such notice be not recovered from him or, as the case may be, why he should not be evicted from such land.

Act No. 20 of 1982 (w.e.f. 03.06.1981).] from the date of service of such notice on such person, as the Assistant Collector may allow in this behalf, or if the cause shown is found to be insufficient, the Assistant Collector may direct that such person may be evicted from the land and may for that purpose, use, or cause to be used such force as may be necessary and may direct that the amount of compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation be recovered from such person as arrears of land revenue.

(4) If the Assistant Collector is of opinion that the person showing cause is not guilty of causing the damage or misappropriation or wrongful occupation referred to in the notice under sub-section (2) he shall discharge the notice.

(4-A) Any person aggrieved by the order of the Assistant Collector under sub-section (3) or sub-section (4) may, within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer a revision before the Collector on the grounds mentioned in clauses (a) to (e) of Section 333.

(ii)every order of the Collector under this section shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (4-D), be final.

(4-D) Any person aggrieved by the order of the Assistant Collector or Collector in respect of any property under this section may file a suit in a Court of competent jurisdiction to establish the right claimed by him in such property.

(4-E) No such suit as is referred to in sub-section (4-D) shall lie against an order of the Assistant Collector if a revision is preferred to the Collector under sub-section (4-A).

Explanation. - For the purposes of this section, the expression 'Collector' means the officer appointed as 'Collector' under the provisions of the U.P. Land Revenue Act, 1901 and includes an Additional Collector].

(4-F) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sub-sections, where any agricultural labourer belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe is in occupation of any land vested in a Gaon Sabha under Section 117 (not being land mentioned in Section 132) having occupied it from before [May 13, 2007] [Substituted by U.P. Act No. 24 of 1986.] and the land so occupied together with land, if any, held by him from before the said date as bhumidhar, sirdar or asami, does not exceed 1.26 hectares (3.125 acres), then no action under this section shall be taken by the Land Management Committee or the Collector against such labourer, and [he shall be admitted as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights of that land under Section 195 and it shall not be necessary for him to institute a suit for declaration of his rights as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights in that land.] [Substituted by U.P. Act No. 11 of 2002 (w.e.f. 21.6.2002).]]

Act No. 35 of 1976.]"

9. Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 provides for settlement of certain house sites with the existing owners. Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is quoted as under:-

"67-A Certain house sites to be settled with existing owners thereof.- (1) If any person referred to in sub-section (1) of section 64 has built a house on any land referred to in section 63 of this Code, not being land reserved for any public purpose, and such house exits on the November 29, 2012, the site of such house shall be held by the owner of the house on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

(2) Where any person referred to in sub-section (1) of section 64, has built a house on any land held by a tenure holder (not being a government lessee) and such house exits on November 29, 2000, the site of such house, notwithstanding anything contained in this Code, be deemed to be settled with the owner of such house by the tenure holder on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

Explanation. For the purpose of sub-section (2), a house existing on November 29, 2000, on any land held by a tenure holder, shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to have been built by the occupant thereof and where the occupants are members of one family by the head of that family."

10. The relevant rules as framed is Rule 68 of U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016, which is also quoted as under:-

"68. Settlement of house sites with existing owners thereof(Section 67-A) (1) Where any person referred to in sub-section (1) of section 64 has built a house on any land referred to in section 63 of the Code, not being land reserved for any public purpose and such house exists on twenty-ninth day of November 2012, the site of such house shall be held by the owner of the house on terms and conditions prescribed in rule 64.

Note:- For the removal of doubt it is hereby declared that the maximum area of the site settled under section 67-A (1) of the Code or the rules famed there under shall not exceed two hundred square meters.

(2) Where any person referred to in sub-section (1) of section 64 has built a house on any land held by a tenure holder (not being a government lessee) and such house exists on twenty-ninth day of November 2000, the site of such house shall be deemed to be held by the owner of the house on the following terms and conditions –

(a) the maximum area of the site settled under section 67-A (2) of the Code or the rules framed thereunder shall not exceed two hundred square meters.

(b) the owner of the house as well as his heirs shall have a heritable interest in the site and shall also have unrestricted right to use the trees and wells existing on the site subject to existing rights of easements.

(c) he shall have a right to use the site for construction of a residential house, subject to existing rights of easement.

(d) the owner of the house shall not be liable to pay to the tenure holder or the State Government any future rent in respect of the site.

(g) if the building is abandoned or if the owner thereof dies without any heir entitled to succeed, the land or site shall escheat to the State.

(h) the tenure holder shall be allowed remission of the proportionate land revenue for the portion of his holding settled under this rule with house owners. The land shall also be classified as abadi in the Khatauni maintained under the Code."

11. The forerunner of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is Section 123 of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950 which is reproduced below:-

"123. Certain house sites to be settled with existing owner thereof.

- [(1)] Without prejudice to the provisions of Section 9, where any person referred to in sub-section (3) of Section 122-C has built a house on any land referred to in subsection (2) of that section, not being land reserved for any public purpose, and such house exists on [May 13, 2007] the site of such house shall be held by the owner of the house on terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

(2)[Where any person referred to in sub-section (3) of Section 122-C has built a house on any land held by a tenure-holder (not being a Government lessee) and such house exists on [June 3, 1995] the site of such house shall, notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, be deemed to be settled with the owner of such house by the tenure-holder on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

Explanation. - For the purposes of sub-section (2), a house existing on [June 3, 1995] on any land held by a tenure-holder shall, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to have been built by the occupant thereof, and where the occupants are members of one family by the head of that family.]"

12. The legislature by enacting the Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has recognized the vulnerability of State land to illegal encroachment and the need for urgent corrective measures. The grabbing of Gaon Sabha and Gram Panchayat property was being done on a large scale and the provision of speedy action against unscrupulous persons was necessary. In this view of the matter, the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti, local authority and the Lekhpal has been enjoined with the duty to inform the Assistant Collector concerned about the damages, misappropriation or wrongful occupation of the property belonging to Gram Panchayat. On receiving such information or otherwise, if the Assistant Collector is satisfied that any property referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has been damaged or misappropriated or is in unauthorized occupation of any person, he shall direct that such person may be evicted from the land and the amount of compensation may be recovered from him as areas of land revenue after issuing notice to the person concerned and following the procedure prescribed under Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 read with Rules 66 and 67 of U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016.

13. Section 67- A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 (old Section 123 of U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950) seeks to introduce a scheme of social justice for hundreds of those rural indigents who, due to their meager means, are unable to have shed over their heads. The constitutional goal of shelter to all is a fundamental right guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, and this provision can be said to be a step in that direction. By means of legal fixation, sub-section (1) of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 provides that if a person belonging to various categories specified in Section 64(1) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has built a house on any land referred to under Section 63 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, (not being land reserved for public purpose), and such house exists on November 29, 2012 i.e. the date on which the President gave assent to U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, the site of such house shall be held by the owner of the said house on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed.

14. Benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 can be derived only when the house exists on certain lands specified in the said section. But the word □house□ has nowhere been defined. According to the dictionary meaning, a house means a building where a group of people live as a unit. But there is material difference between the term building and the house. Section 9 of U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1950, used the word building, which could be used for residential as well as non-residential purpose, but the house is used only for residential purposes.

15. From the perusal of provisions quoted above i.e. Section 122- B and 123 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950, and Section 67 and 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code 2006, it is apparent that earlier U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950 protected unauthorized occupation of land by the agricultural labourers belonging to Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe in any land vested in Gaon Sabha under Section 117 (not being land mentioned under Section 132), having occupied from a date as provided in the section itself and also conferred Bhumidhari rights to the aforesaid illegal occupants. Section 123 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950 provided protection by settling housing sites to the persons who have built a house on the land on or before the appointed date, to the persons referred in sub-Section 3 of Section 122-C of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950. Thus, both the agricultural land as well as housing sites which were in occupation of persons belonging to certain persons mentioned in section itself unauthorizedly were protected by U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950 but in the U.P. Revenue Code 2006, there is no such protection to the person unauthorizedly occupying agricultural land belonging to Gaon Sabha. Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 provides settlement of housing sites to the person unauthorizedly occupying the same on the cutoff date on the conditions mentioned in Sections and the Rules framed thereunder.

16. In case of Ramdin and others vs. Board of Revenue (supra), the court was considering the provision of section 122-B (4-F). Paragraph Nos. 26, 27, 38, 43, 44 of the judgment are quoted as under:-

"26. The non obstante clause of Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act specifically refers to the foregoing sub-section of Section 122-B, meaning thereby that this non obstante clause can have application to Section 122-B(1), (2), (3), (4), (4-A), (4-B), (4-C), (4-D) and (4-E) only. Further, Section 122-B (4-F) refers to any agricultural labourer belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe which person falls in the third category of the order of preference prescribed under Section 198 of the Act. If the non obstante clause is confined to the provision contained in Section 122-B only, it is obvious that it cannot supersede the first two categories in the order of preference prescribed under Section 198 of the Act and in no case any agricultural labourer stipulated under Section 122-B (4-F) even if he satisfied the requirements contemplated therein can be deemed to be admitted as a bhumidhar with non-transferable right's in the presence of an eligible person willing to take the land who falls within the first two categories stipulated in Section 198 of the Act, In this connection it may further be pointed out that a Statute must be read as a whole and one provision of the Act should be construed with reference to the other provision of the same Act so as to make a consistent enactment of the whole Statute. Such a construction has the merit of avoiding any inconsistency or repugnancy between a section and other parts of the Statute.....

27. Further, the admission as a bhumidhar with non-transferable rights under Section 195 of the, Act could only be in accordance with the provisions contained in Section 131 of the Act. Section 131(a) of the Act stipulated that for becoming a bhumidhar with non-transferable rights after the date mentioned in that sub-section, the admission has to be in accordance with Section 195 of the Act which necessarily implies the obtaining of the prior approval of the Assistant Collector and also that the procedure prescribed under Rules 175 and 176 of the Rules has to be complied with. However, it may be noticed that Section 131 also stipulates that a person who in any other manner acquires on or after the date mentioned in Section 131(a), the rights of such bhumidhar under or in accordance with the provisions of the Act may also become a bhumidhar with nontransferable rights.

38.Taking into consideration, the scheme and the policy underlying the various provisions of the Act referred to hereinbefore, I am of the confirmed opinion that the right conferred under the deeming clause contained under Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act has to be taken as to confer a right only made available to an unauthorised occupant of the land envisaged under Section 122-B, who satisfies the eligibility criteria prescribed therein to protect his possession and does not create a title in him. It merely operates as a bar to the claim of the Gaon Sabha or the local authority either for the ejectment of the person concerned or for recovery of the amount of compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation from such person as provided thereunder. This provision in spite of the conditions mentioned in Section 122-B having been fulfilled debars the Gaon Sabha or the □local authority on account of the statutory fiction from enforcing its rights secured in its favour under the aforesaid provision. The unauthorised occupant envisaged under Section 122-B (4-F) of the Act only gets a right to protect his possession which may be regularised on the grant of the lease under Section 198 of the Act but this fiction cannot be deemed to create such right or title on such an occupant which can only accrue on the grant of the lease in accordance with the procedure prescribed under Section 198 of the Act. It is thereafter that such person can get the revenue entries in the record of Right (Khatauni) corrected and not merely on the basis of the statutory fiction in question.

43. In the circumstances therefore, taking into consideration the provisions contained in S. 122-B, 122-B(4-F), 131, 142(2), 198, 198-A and 209 of the Act and Rules 175, 176, 176-A of the Rules framed thereunder it is obvious that in case, the requisite conditions contemplated in S. 122-B(4-F) are satisfied in any particular case, the Gaon Sabha or the Local Authority as the case may be is debarred from taking any action under S. 122-B against such labourer deeming him to have been admitted as bhumidhar with non-transferable rights of the land in his occupation under S. 195 of the Act. However, this could not come in the way of the regular allotment of the land as contemplated under S. 198 of the Act or in the way of the filing of the suit under S. 209 of the Act against such a person subject to the exception contemplated under S. 122-B(4-E) of the Act.

44. In the facts and circumstances of the case, I am clearly of the view that there could be no escape from the conclusion that the application filed by the petitioners was not at all maintainable and no orders for the correctness of the revenue record of Rights could be made on its basis. I am further of the view that in the facts and circumstances of the case, no justifiable ground has been made out for interference in the impugned order."

17. In case of Satya Veer and others vs. State of UP and others; 2015 (4) ADJ 676 this court was considering the provisions of Section 123 (1) of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act, 1950 and held as under in paragraph Nos. 25, 26, 27, 37, and 38 as under:-

" 25. Section 197 of the Act, however, gives power to the Land Management Committee to admit any person as 'Aasami' to any land falling in any of the clauses mentioned in Section 132. Thus, under the Scheme of "U.P. Zamindari, Abolition & Land Reforms Act" but for the aforesaid provisions of Sub-section (4F), the rights of any person as Bhumidhar with transferable or non-transferable rights, as the case may, unless his name is duly recorded in the revenue records has not been recognised except where such person seeks declaration by filing a suit under Section 229-B of the Act. It is only by virtue of sub-section (4F) of Section 122-B that the agricultural labourer who fulfils the conditions given therein is not required to seek a declaration by filing a suit and can be admitted as "Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights" under Section 195.

26. Thus, from a reading of the provisions of Section 122-B in its entirety, it is clear that sub-section (4F) is not a provision for seeking declaration of the rights of a person who is in occupation of the Gaon-Sabha land for declaring him as "Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights". In fact, it is a right to defend, if such a person is to be evicted or dispossessed from the land of Gaon-Sabha in an appropriate provision under the Act. Thus, the occupant as described in Sub-section (4F), who is sought to be evicted from the Gaon-Sabha land, would have a right to plead and establish that since his possession has continued since before the cut-off date, rights had precipitated in his favour and he is a Bhumidhar of the land with non-transferable rights, if such plea is raised the same would be considered by the authority concerned before evicting that person.

27. The right of defence given under the said provision to an Agricultural labourer belonging to Scheduled Caste/Scheduled Tribe cannot be taken as a right of seeking declaration under the aforesaid provisions. Meaning thereby, Section 122-B (4F) cannot be taken recourse for recording entry in the 'Khatauni'.

37. Now the question remains as to whether the Sub-Divisional Officer has jurisdiction to give benefit of Section 123 of the Act. To answer this question, it may be seen that Section 123 is a provision relating to certain qualifying persons in possession of the land on certain conditions in which the land can be settled in favour of those persons. Thus the section provides a definition of approval of legal rights on satisfaction of certain conditions. No proceeding under Section 123 of the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act is sustainable because this provision is not procedural. The rights can only be settled under a proceeding in substantive law.

38. Under the scheme of the Act, no declaration can be made in favour of a person other than a tenure holder. Section 143 of the Act only contemplates declaration in favour of a tenure holder. As the petitioners, admittedly are not tenure holders of the land, no declaration under the Act can be made in the facts of the present case. Hence, no declaration of rights as conceived under Section 123(1) of the Act is possible. Only course open before the petitioners was to file a regular suit for declaration of their rights, if any."

18. The judgment in case of Ramdin (supra) was considered by Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Manorey alias Manohar Vs. Board of Revenue and others, 2003 AIR SC 4102, and the same was overruled by the Supreme Court. Paragraph numbers 7, 8, 9, 10 of the judgment in case of Manorey (supra) are quoted as under:-

"7. It is true that the application of the nature filed by the appellant does not fall within the four corners of Section 122B. Sub-Sections (1), (2) & (3) of Section 122B only empower the Assistant Collector to initiate action on the basis of information received by him to put an end to misuse or unauthorized occupation of the property belonging to Gaon Sabha or a local authority. It does not specifically provide for the entertainment of an application by a person who seeks protection of his rights under sub-Section (4F). But, that is of no material consequence in view of what emerges from the discussion that follows.

8. First, the endeavour should be to analyze and identify the nature of the right or protection conferred by sub-Section (4F) of Section 122B. Sub-Sections (1) to (3) and the ancillary provisions upto sub-Section (4E) deal inter alia with the procedure for eviction of unauthorized occupants of land vested in Gaon Sabha. Sub- Section (4F) carves out an exception in favour of an agricultural labourer belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe having land below the ceiling of 3.125 acres. Irrespective of the circumstances in which such eligible person occupied the land vested in Gaon Sabha (other than the land mentioned in Section 132), no action to evict him shall be taken and moreover, he shall be deemed to have been admitted as a Bhumidhar with non transferable rights over the land, provided he satisfies the conditions specified in the sub-Section. According to the findings of the Sub- Divisional Officer as well as the appellate authority, the appellant does satisfy the conditions. If so, two legal consequences follow. Such occupant of the land shall not be evicted by taking recourse to sub-Section (1) to (3) of Section 122B. It means that the occupant of the land who satisfies the conditions under sub-Section (4F) is entitled to safeguard his possession as against the Gaon Sabha. The second and more important right which sub-Section (4F) confers on him is that he is endowed with the rights of a Bhumidhar with non transferable rights. The deeming provision has been specifically enacted as a measure of agrarian reform, with a thrust on socio-economic justice. The statutorily conferred right of Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights finds its echo in clause (b) of Section 131. Any person who acquires the rights of Bhumidhar under or in accordance with the provisions of the Act is recognized under Section 131 as falling within the class of Bhumidhar. The right acquired or accrued under sub-Section (4F) is one such right that falls within the purview of Section 131(b).

9. Thus, sub-Section (4F) of Section 122B not merely provides a shield to protect the possession as opined by the High Court, but it also confers a positive right of Bhumidhar on the occupant of the land satisfying the criteria laid down in that sub-Section. Notwithstanding the clear language in which the deeming provision is couched and the ameliorative purpose of the legislation, the learned single Judge of the High Court had taken the view in Ramdin Vs. Board of Revenue (supra) (followed by the same learned Judge in the instant case) that the Bhumidhari rights of the occupant contemplated by sub-Section (4F) can only blossom out when there is a specific allotment order by the Land Management Committee under Section 198. According to the High Court, the deeming provision contained in sub-Section (4F) cannot be overstretched to supersede the other provisions in the Act dealing specifically with the creation of the right of Bhumidhar. In other words, the view of the High Court was that a person covered by the beneficial provision contained in sub-Section (4F) will have to still go through the process of allotment under Section 198 even though he is not liable for eviction. As a corollary to this view, it was held that the occupant was not entitled to seek correction of revenue records, even if his case falls under sub-Section (4F) of Section 122B. We hold that the view of the High Court is clearly unsustainable. It amounts to ignoring the effect of a deeming provision enacted with a definite social purpose. When once the deeming provision unequivocally provides for the admission of the person satisfying the requisite criteria laid down in the provision as Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights under Section 195, full effect must be given to it. Section 195 lays down that the Land Management Committee, with the previous approval of the Assistant Collector in-charge of the Sub Division, shall have the right to admit any person as Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights to any vacant land (other than the land falling under Section 132) vested in the Gaon Sabha. Section 198 prescribes "the order of preference in admitting persons to land under Sections 195 and 197". The last part of sub-Section (4F) of Section 122B confers by a statutory fiction the status of Bhumidhar with non transferable rights on the eligible occupant of the land as if he has been admitted as such under Section 195. In substance and in effect, the deeming provision declares that the statutorily recognized Bhumidhar should be as good as a person admitted to Bhumidhari rights under Section 195 read with other provisions. In a way, sub-Section (4F) supplements Section 195 by specifically granting the same benefit to a person coming within the protective umbrella of that sub-Section. The need to approach the Gaon Sabha under Section 19ss5 read with Section 198 is obviated by the deeming provision contained in sub-Section (4F). We find no warrant to constrict the scope of deeming provision.

10. That being the legal position, there is no bar against an application being made by the eligible person coming within the four corners of sub-Section (4F) to effect necessary changes in the revenue record. When once the claim of the applicant is accepted, it is the bounden duty of the concerned revenue authorities to make necessary entries in revenue records to give effect to the statutory mandate. The obligation to do so arises by necessary implication by reason of the statutory right vested in the person coming within the ambit of sub-Section (4F). The lack of specific provision for making an application under the Act is no ground to dismiss the application as not maintainable. The revenue records should naturally fall in line with the rights statutorily recognized. The Sub-Divisional Officer was therefore within his rights to allow the application and direct the correction of the records. The Board of Revenue and the High Court should not have set aside that order. The fact that the Land Management Committee of Gaon Sabha had created lease hold rights in favour of the respondents herein is of no consequence. Such lease, in the face of the statutory right of the appellant, is nonest in the eye of law and is liable to be ignored."

19. The Division Bench of this Court in case of Ram Narain and others Vs. Sub Divisional Officer, Kairana and others; 2007 (103) RD 478 was considering the provisions of Section 123 of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act, 1950 and relied upon the judgment in case of Manorey (supra) and held in paragraph Nos. 26, 27, 28 of the judgment as under:-

"26. In this connection it is necessary to point out that the deeming provision under Section 123(2) of the Act has been enacted with non-obstante clause, therefore, the same has to be given effect by the Court despite any other provision contrary contained in the Act itself. In our opinion, in order to effectuate the deeming provision under the statute the Court would assume all those facts on which the legal fiction created by the statute can operate, even if those facts do not exist in reality and the right of the parties will have to be determined on such imaginary things to achieve the purpose for which such legal fiction has been created by the statute. Therefore, we have to examine that for which purpose the aforesaid legal fiction has been created by the statute and which facts we have to assume to put in the said legal fiction in operation/ In this connection it is to be pointed out that on satisfaction of the certain conditions laid down in Section 123(2) of the Act, the legal fiction has been created for the purpose of settlement of house site with owner of house by the tenure-holder. Those conditions are that the house must have been built by a person referred to in Section 122-C(3) on the land of tenure-holder not being Government lessee from before 30-6-1985, and such house exists on 30-6-1985. On satisfaction of the aforesaid conditions we have to assume the necessary facts on which the tenure-holder of the land could settle the house site with the owner of the house even if in reality all necessary facts pertaining to such settlement were not existing, therefore, in given facts and circumstances of the case, we do not find any difficulty to hold that since the respondents No. 3 to 45 have built their houses from before 1976-1977 and Revenue authorities have found their houses existing on 30-6-1985, therefore, land covered by their house sites shall be deemed to be settled with them by the tenure-holder of the land in question, irrespective of the circumstances in which such eligible persons have built their houses over the land in dispute. It is immaterial whether they have built their houses with the consent or permission of the tenure-holder of the land in question or otherwise by taking forceful possession of the land or their such possession is unauthorised or as of tresspasser. In case the legislature would have intended otherwise contrary to our views, the phrase "where any person referred to in sub-section (3) of the Section 122-C has built a house on any land held by a tenure-holder not being a Government lessee," would not have been used in the terms expressed therein, rather it would have been worded differently so as to exclude unauthorised occupants who have built such houses but neither such terms have been used expressly nor can it be inferred impliedly by necessary implication. Besides that, it is significant to notice that the aforesaid provisions have been enacted to ameliorate the conditions of members belonging to the Schedule Castes, Schedule Tribes and other agricultural labourers to ensure the socio-economic justice to them as a measure of agrarian reform, therefore, the interpretation, which advance the object of the statute has to be given by the Court. Thus, in our opinion, any other view contrary to the view taken by us in this regard, would completely distort and defeat the very purpose of deeming provisions which are coupled with non-obstante clause.

27. The view taken by us hereinbefore also finds support from the view taken by Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Manohar v. Board of Revenue U.P (2003 All LJ 1422) (supra) wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has accorded the benefit of Section 122-B(4-F) of the Act to the person found eligible whose initial possession was also not authorised. In para 8 of the said decision as reproduced hereinbefore, the Hon'ble Supreme Court went on saying that sub-section (4-F) carves out an exception in favour of an agricultural labourer belonging to a scheduled caste or scheduled tribe having land below the ceiling of 3.125 acres, irrespective of the circumstances in which such eligible person occupied the land vested in Gaon Sabha (other than the land mentioned in Section 132) no action to evict him shall be taken and moreover, he shall be deemed to have been admitted Bhumidhar with non-transferable rights over the land, provided he satisfies the conditions specified in sub-section. In view of aforesaid dictum of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, there can be no scope for doubt to hold that even if the initial entry of the respondents No. 3 to 45 into the land of the petitioners, is found to be forceful or unauthorised and rank of tresspasser, even then, since they have admittedly built their houses from before 30-6-1985 and such houses were admittedly found existing on 30-6-1985 over the land of the petitioners who were Bhumidhar with transferable rights on the said date, therefore, the house site of respondents No. 3 to 45 shall be deemed to be settled with them by the petitioners under Section 123(2) of the Act. And it was bounden duty of the revenue authorities to give effect to aforesaid right of respondents No. 3 to 45 which has been conferred by the statute by making necessary changes, in the revenue records, irrespective of any forum and procedure provided expressly either under the Act or Rules framed thereunder for effectuating aforesaid statutory right of socio-economically weaker sections of the society.

28. Before parting with the issue we would make it further clear that although the provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) of Section 123 have been enacted to ameliorate the conditions of persons enumerated under sub-section (3) of Section 122-C of the Act who are members of weaker sections of society as a measure of agrarian reform to effectuate socio-economic justice to them but in absence of express provision under the Act and/or Rules framed thereunder creating forum and providing procedure to effectuate the aforesaid mandate of the Legislature, we are of the considered opinion that the said mandate of Legislature cannot be effectuated in the words and spirit both. We are also conscious about the ambit of scope of the power and jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution and this Court cannot ask the Legislature or rule making body, directly or indirectly to legislate in a particular manner by issuing a writ of mandamus. In other words, no such writ can be issued which necessarily involves the legislation. But here we are confronted with a slightly different situation, where in fact, the Legislature has already recognised the rights of eligible persons by enacting aforesaid provisions of law, consequently, as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Manohar's case (2003 All LJ 1422) (supra), corresponding duties have been cast upon the revenue authorities impliedly by necessary implication to effectuate the aforesaid rights of individuals. Therefore, in absence of express provisions for providing forum and procedure to effectuate the aforesaid rights of individuals, we do not find any difficulty to issue any writ or direction of general nature in the shape of mandamus to effectuate the provisions of Section 123 of the Act. We are also alive of the situation that Assistant Collector, in charge of the Sub-Division is competent officer to perform the functions and discharge the duties assigned under Section 122-C of the Act, therefore, it would be expedient to direct that so long as the express provisions under the Act and Rules are not enacted by competent Legislature, the Officer not below the rank of Assistant Collector in charge of the Sub-Division concerned shall under take to effectuate the provisions of Section 123 of the Act in a summary manner after hearing the necessary parties and persons interested in such summary proceedings."

20. In judgment in case of Satya Veer (supra), it appears that the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Manorey (supra) and of the Division Bench in case of Ram Narain (supra) were not placed before this Court and for the reason they were not considered by this Court. I am unable to persuade myself to agree with the dictum of the judgment in case of Satya Veer (supra).

21. Though, there is a difference in Section 123 of U.P.Z.A. & L. R. Act, 1950 and Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. Section 123 starts with a non-obstante clause, but the same is not the position in case of Section 67-A. Both the sections aim to achieve same goal and are benevolent in nature and seek to introduce a scheme of social justice for hundreds of those rural indigents who, due to their meager means, are unable to have shed over their heads. There is no substantial difference between both the provisions i.e. Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 and Section 123 of U.P.Z.A.& L.R. Act, 1950.

22. Further, this Court in case of Suresh Chandra (supra) in paragraph No. 8 of the judgment, has held as under:-

"8. There is nothing in section 67-A of the Code which contemplates that such a right can only be claimed if the person concerned files a suit. The orders reflect that the petitioner was claiming protection of Section 67-A of the Code on the basis of certain materials. To expect such a person to get his rights adjudicated by way of a separate suit so as to claim the benefit of section 67-A would only promote multiplicity of proceedings which should be avoided. Learned Standing Counsel could not bring to notice of the Court any legal impediment in this regard."

23. In case of Asgar Vs. State of U.P (supra) relied upon by the petitioner, this court has held in paragraph Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 as under:-

"3. Adverting to the eligibility of the petitioner for protection under Section 67 (a) of the Code and the rights purportedly accruing to him thereunder, the appellate court held that it was open to the petitioner to take out proceedings under Section 67 (a) of the Code for grant of appropriate relief as claimed by him. After noticing the aforesaid facts, the appellate court agreed with the judgment of the trial court and dismissed the appeal. The trial court did not return any finding on this issue.

4. Section 67 as well as Section 67(a) of the Code reflect the composite intent of legislature. The legislature by enacting the aforesaid provision has recognized the vulnerability of the State land to illegal encroachment and the need for urgent corrective measures. Simultaneously the legislature has also acknowledged the reality of a large number of persons who have erected dwelling units on lands which are not reserved for any public purposes. The legislature has protected their rights in the manner prescribed in the provision. For ease of reference the provisions are extracted hereunder:…..

5. Section 67(a) of the Code confers rights on certain people who have encroached upon public land. The perequisite conditions for invoking the protection of Section 67 (a) of the Code are these. The person against whom proceedings are taken out has built his house on any land referred to in Section 63 of the Code, the person who seeks protection of Section 67 (a) of the Code should be in the category of persons referred to in Section 63 of the Code. The land should not be reserved for any public purpose. The date of the construction of the house should be prior to 29 November, 2012. The house of such persons should be existing in the disputed parcels of land on or before 29 November 2012.

6. In many instances, as indeed in the present case, the noticee under Section 67 of the Code may invoke the protection of Section 67 (a) of the Code to resist the proceedings under Section 67 of the Code.

7. The authority/ court having jurisdiction to decide the proceedings taken out under Section 67 of the Code or Section 67(a) of the Code is the same. When the defence of Section 67 (a) of the Code is taken in proceedings of Section 67 of the Code, the same issues will be directly and substantially in issue in both the proceedings. Usually in such matters pleadings, defence, pleadings and evidence of the parties are same in both the proceedings. In case proceedings under Section 67 and 67(a) of the Code are conducted separately and in isolation to one another, it would lead to multiplicity of litigation and inconsistent judgments. There will also be an avoidable delay in decision of the controversy and may even result in miscarriage of justice.

8. In fact proceedings under Section 67 (a) of the Code should be registered immediately after a defence in that regard is made in proceedings under Section 67 of the Code.

9. The proceedings under Sections 67 and 67(a) of the Code, should be consolidated and heard together by the same court. Such procedure would faithfully implement the legislative intent and also serve the interest of justice."

24. The same view was taken by this Court in case of Baburam (supra) and Govind Singh (supra). I do not find any reason to take different view in the matter.

25. So far as contention of learned Standing Counsel that benefit of Section 67-A could not be granted to an unauthorized occupant unless and until he is in position to establish categorically that a person higher in preference as given in Section 64 is not available, is concerned, the same is raised relying upon judgment of this Court in case of Sri Raju (supra) and Baijnath (supra), wherein this Court has held, Merely because a person lower in order of preference has encroached upon Gaon Sabha land, he cannot and should not be granted the benefit of Section 67A unless and until he is in a position to establish categorically that a person higher in preference is not available in the village. Any other interpretation of Section 67A would result in great injustice as an unauthorized occupant would be liable to be granted its benefit only on account of him or her having illegally encroached upon Gaon Sabha property, despite other needier and persons higher in preference being available in the village."

26. I am unable to persuade myself to agree with the view taken by this Court in case of Sri Raju (supra) and Baijnath (supra) for following reasons:

(a) The grant of benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 or (Section 123 of U.P.Z.A.&L.R. Act, 1950) is not an allotment under the provisions of statute but the benefit to protect the possession has been granted by legal fiction. The only condition in the aforesaid Sections is that the person must be belonging to one of the categories mentioned in Section 64 in case of Section 67-A or sub-clause (3) of Section 122-C in case of person covered under Section 123 of U.P.Z.A.&L.R., Act 1950. The section itself does not say that a person must be in the highest category of persons mentioned in sections referred above or that no other person higher in category must not be there in order to avail benefit of Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 or Section 123 of U.P.Z.A.&L.R., Act 1950. When no such condition has been given in the statute itself, the said condition cannot be read in while interpreting the provisions. The statutory provisions should be interpreted literally as it is, without adding or removing anything in the language of section, if the provision is unambiguous. Interpretation is only permissible where there is ambiguity in the statute itself, otherwise words mentioned in the statute have to be construed literally. View which I am taking is supported by law as laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in Manorey (supra) 'sub-section 4 carves out an exception in favour of an agricultural labourer belonging to a Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe having land below the ceiling of 3.125 acres. Irrespective of the circumstances in which such eligible person occupied the land vested in Gaon Sabha, no action to evict him shall be taken.' (paragraph No. 8). The Division Bench of this Court in case of Ram Narain (supra) has held as under:-

"It is immaterial whether they have built their houses with the consent or permission of the tenure-holder of the land in question or otherwise by taking forceful possession of the land or their such possession is unauthorised or as of tresspasser. In case the legislature would have intended otherwise contrary to our views, the phrase "where any person referred to in sub-section (3) of the Section 122-C has built a house on any land held by a tenure-holder not being a Government lessee," would not have been used in the terms expressed therein, rather it would have been worded differently so as to exclude unauthorised occupants who have built such houses but neither such terms have been used expressly nor can it be inferred impliedly by necessary implication. (paragraph No. 26).

This court in case of Achhaibar Tiwari (supra) has held that benefit of sub-section 2, Section 123 of U.P.Z.A. &L.R. Act, 1950 must be any one of the categories mentioned in sub-section 3 of Section 122-C. Paragraph No.8 of the aforesaid judgment is quoted as under:-

"8. From a reading of the aforesaid sections, it is evident that the person claiming the benefit of sub-section (2) of section 123, must be anyone of the categories mentioned in sub-section (3) of section 122C. It is also evident that there should exist a house held by a tenure-holder, unless the contrary is proved, be presumed to have been built by the occupant thereof, and where the occupants are members of one family, by the head of that family."

In case of Ram Preet Vs. Additional Commissioner, Gorakhpur Division, Gorakhpur and others; 2011 (7) ADJ 791, the order under challenge before this court was an order passed by Sub-Divisional Officer settling the land under Section 123(1) U.P.Z.A. &L.R. Act, 1950 in favour of the petitioner and the other order under challenge was the order passed by the District Magistrate in exercise of powers under Rule 115 (P). This Court has held 'the order passed by District Magistrate under Rule 115 (P) is not correct as firstly, Gaon Sabha had not challenged the order, it was only Pradhan who had challenged and secondly, it was not allotment hence the proceedings under Rule 115 (P) were not maintainable."

Settlement as contemplated under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is not an allotment of housing site but it can be considered as deemed allotment in view of the legal fiction created by Section 67-A and therefore, there is no question of examining the fact that whether there is no other person in a higher category as mentioned in Section 64 exists other than the petitioner while granting benefit under Section 67-A of the Code.

The aforementioned judgments were not placed before this Court and considered by this Court in case of Sri Raju (supra). The Court has proceeded on the assumption that settlement of land under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 is the same as allotment of land under Section 64 of the Code.

Though the observations were made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court with regard to sub-clause (2) of Section 123 but the principle laid down will also apply to Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006.

(b) Sub-section (2) of Section 67-A provides if any person referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 64 has built a house on any land referred to in Section 63 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, not being land reserved for any public purpose, and such house exists on November 29, 2012, the site of such house shall be held by the owner of the house on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed. Rule 68 of U.P. Revenue Code Rules, 2016 provides that such house shall be held by the owner of the house on terms and conditions prescribed in Rule 64.

(c) Section 67-A confers by a statutory fiction the status of allottee to the eligible occupant of the land as if he has been admitted as such under Section 64 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006. In substance and in effect, the deeming provision declares that the statutorily recognized person should be as good as a person allotted land under Section 64. In a way, Section 67-A supplements to Section 64 by specifically granting the same benefit to a person coming within the protective umbrella of that sub-section.

27. In paragraph No. 16 of the judgment in case of Ram Narain (supra) the Division Bench has held as under:-

"16. Thus, from a plain reading of sub-section (1) of Section 123 of the Act, it is clear that where any person referred in Section 122-C(3) has built a house on any land which is not subject-matter of Section 9 of the Act or on any land referred to in Section 122-C(2) not being the land reserved for any public purpose and such house exists on 30-6-1985, the site of the house shall be held by the owner of the house on such terms and conditions as prescribed by the Rules. The aforesaid provisions does not require any formal allotment order by Assistant Collector in charge of the sub-division concerned, rather statute itself recognises such settlement on satisfaction of the conditions stipulated under the aforesaid provisions of the Act."

28. In view of the discussions made above, this Court is of the view that:- (a) Firstly, an application filed by a person covered under Section 67-A of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 cannot be rejected on the ground that such an application is not maintainable for want of provision. The same has to be considered and decided on merits by the Assistant Collector.

(b) Secondly, in case, in proceedings initiated under Section 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, the noticee invokes protection of Section 67-A of the Code to resist the proceedings under Section 67, the Assistant Collector should register immediately the proceedings under Section 67-A of the Code and shall also decide the same in accordance with law.

(c) Thirdly, the proceedings under Section 67 and Section 67-A are to be consolidated and heard together by Assistant Collector after providing opportunity of hearing as well as opportunity of leading evidence to all the parties and the proceedings should be brought to the logical conclusion strictly in accordance with law.

(d) Lastly, for considering the eligibility of a person under Section 67-A, no objection can be taken by the Assistant Collector on the ground that other persons higher in category as provided under Section 64 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, than the petitioner, exists in the village, and if the petitioner comes within any of the categories mentioned under Section 64 of the Code and other conditions of Section 67- A are fulfilled by the petitioner, the benefit is to be given to such person.

29. In the facts of the present case, the proceedings under Section 67 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 has already been initiated against the petitioners to which petitioners have filed objections. The petitioners have also initiated proceedings under Section 67-A before the S.D.M. The proceedings which were initiated under Section 67-A before the S.D.M. be immediately transferred to the court of Assistant Collector seized with proceedings under Section 67 or the petitioners may file fresh proceedings under Section 67-A before the Assistant Collector itself. In either of the case, the Assistant Collector seized with the matter under Section 67 should consolidate both the proceedings and decide the same in accordance with law as laid down by this court in case of Asgar Vs. State of U.P. (supra). Till disposal of proceedings as directed above, the parties are directed to maintain status quo.

30. Accordingly, the writ petition is disposed of. No orders as to cost.

Writ C No. 24716 of 2025

M/S Moga Dhaba with Family Hall ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the petitioner is having any right to challege the E-Tender/Advertisement impugned in the petition?
(b) Whether the tender issued by the corporation is vitiated on account of arbitrariness, bias, malafides or against their own policy?
(c) Whether the opening new Yatri Plaza by virtue of impugned E-Tender/Advertisement is against public interest? (d) Whether any relief can be granted to the writ petitioner?

Headnotes

A. Civil/Revenue Law – Tenders and Contracts - The petitioner entered into a contract with the U.P. State Road Transport Corporation ("Corporation") on 19.10.2024 to operate a Yatri Plaza (for A.C. buses) on the Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula for a period of 3 years. On 16.07.2025, the Corporation issued an e-tender inviting bids for setting up another Yatri Plaza for A.C. buses on the same route/vicinity, alongside tenders for other routes. The petitioner filed a writ petition u/Article 226 seeking to quash the e-tender, arguing that it violated the Corporation's policy dated 26.11.2020 (which allegedly required more than 300 buses plied on a route before opening an additional Yatri Plaza) and adversely impacted its commercial interests.

B. The relief u/Article 226 of the constitution is based on the existence of a right in favour of the person invoking the jurisdiction. It is a matter of prudence, that the court confines the exercise of writ jurisdiction to cases where legal wrong or legal injuries caused to a particular person or his fundamental rights are violated, and not to entertain cases of individual wrong or injury at the instance of third party. (Para 12, 13)

The petitioner and the corporation have contractual obligations. The petitioner has been unable to demonstrate what legal wrong or legal injury has been caused by the issuance of the advertisement impugned (for opening of another Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) within the vicinity). Neither the petitioner is having any statutory right nor is the corporation under any statutory obligation to protect the interest more so the commercial interest of the petitioner by virtue of contract dated 19.10.2024. (Para 14, 15, 16)

C. The power of judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect private interest at the cost of public interest, or to decide contractual disputes. The tenderer or contractor with a grievance can always seek damages in a civil court. (Para 23)

Guidelines not having been issued under some statute have no binding force and any violation would not result in giving a right to dispute a decision so made. (Para 18)

It is found that the referred policy states only guidelines issued by the MD of the Corporation prescribing methodology while establishing Yatri Plaza. The submission of the petitioner regarding violation of guidelines dated 26.11.2020 is misconceived and cannot be accepted. Evidently the Corporation has not put any restriction of minimum 300 buses being plied on a route for opening an additional/new Yatri Plaza for A.C. buses. The guidelines and also the tender notice in its clause 6 specifically prescribe that there would be separate Yatri Plaza for A.C. buses service apart from those for regular service (Non-A.C. Buses). (Para 17, 19, 21)

There is no dispute that the tender dated 16.07.2025 published by the Corporation on Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula is for A.C. buses. Petitioner has not been able to point out any arbitrariness or bias been exercised by the corporation while issuing the impugned advertisement/e-tender. (Para 21, 24, 25)

D. Opening of a new Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) in the vicinity, where the petitioner is having his Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) cannot be against public interest, as it would be leading to a healthier competition amongst the operators which would be in public interest as it would eventually lead to provision of better services to the passengers who halt on their way for refreshment. (Para 26)

E. Since the petitioner is not able to point out any infirmity or illegality in the issuance of e-tender/advertisement dated 16.07.2025, no relief can be granted to the petitioner. (Para 27)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

State Road Transport Corporation (hereinafter referred to "Corporation") for which a contract had been executed between the petitioner and the Corporation governing the terms and conditions.

3. The Corporation after almost a year on 16.07.2025 issued e-tender/advertisement calling upon bidders for another Yatri Plaza (for A.C. buses) for Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula and also for Moradabad-Bareilly route for general buses and also for Moradabad-Aligarh route for general buses for which the technical bids were opened on 05.08.2025 and thereafter the financial bids were to be opened.

4. The petitioner approached this Court through the instant writ petition with the following relief:-

(i) to issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned E-Tender/Advertisement dated 16.07.2025 issued by respondent no.3.

(ii) to issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding and directing the respondent no.3 to pass appropriate order on the representation of petitioner dated 17.07.2025.

Submission on behalf of the petitioner:-

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that establishment of another Yatri Plaza (for A.C. buses) on the Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula by the Corporation is against their policy dated 26.11.2020, as under the said policy opening of an additional Yatri Plaza on the same route could be only done when there were more than 300 buses plied on the route. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also submitted that the action of the respondent/ Corporation is detrimental in the commercial interest of the petitioner as the petitioner had invested huge amount and opening of another/additional Yatri Plaza would definitely go to divide the customers and, therefore, on these counts the tender dated 16.07.2025 insofar as it relates to the Yatri Plaza for Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula (for A.C. buses) need to be quashed by this Court.

Submission of the respondents:-

6. Per contra, learned counsel representing respondents firstly submitted that the petitioner do not have any legal right to prevent opening of additional/another Yatri Plaza on the same route as it is for the wisdom of the Corporation to decide the number of such Yatri Plaza, he further submitted that the terms and conditions governing the operation of Yatri Plaza operated by the petitioner are as per the contract dated 19.10.2024 and none of the conditions prohibit the Corporation from opening another such Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) on the same route or even at the same place. He further submitted that even the said contract governing the relationship inter-se Corporation and the petitioner is purely a commercial contract and no such right is available to the petitioner to stop the process of tendering of another Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses). He further submitted that the submission of the petitioner that there are hardly 60 buses being plied on the said route is incorrect, the said route is witnessing heavy traffic and apart from the buses of Corporation, there are number of other buses which run on the said route and in fact opening of another Yatri Plaza on the same spot would be in benefit of the travellers/public at large as there would be a healthy competition resulting in better service been given at the Yatri Plaza and the guidelines dated 26.11.2020 is having no statutory force and are guidelines and even in the same there is no such prohibition in so far as it is relating to Yatri Plaza for A.C. buses.

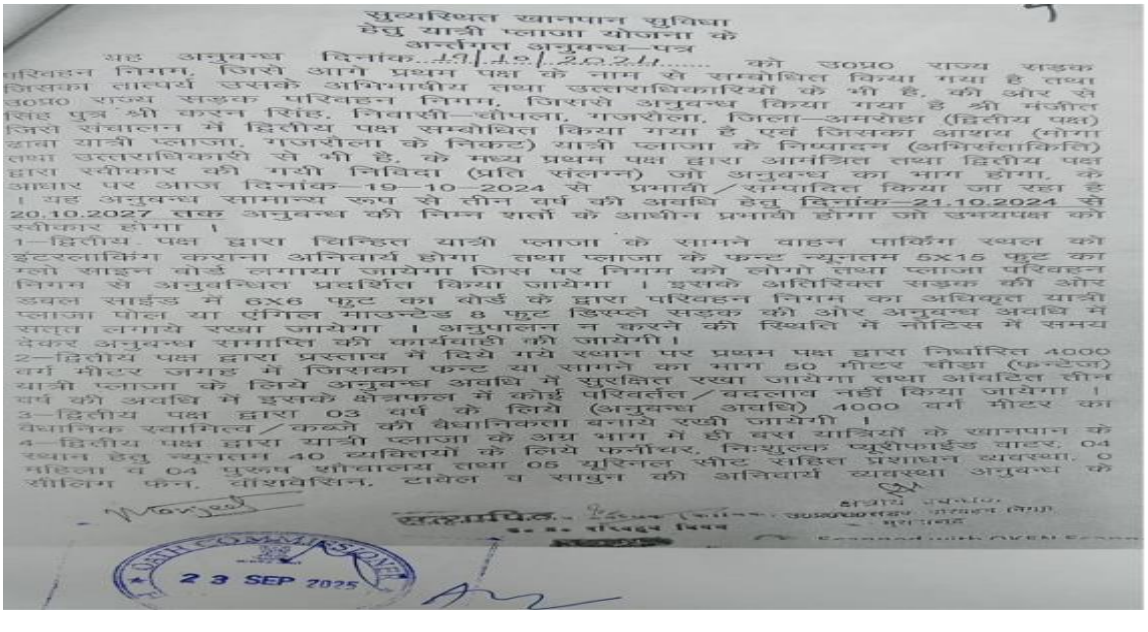
7. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

8. The issue which fall for consideration before this Court are:-

(i) Whether the petitioner is having any right to challege the E-Tender/Advertisement impugned in the petition?



(ii) Whether the tender issued by the corporation is vitiated on account of arbitrariness, bias, malafides or against their own policy?

(iii) Whether the opening new Yatri Plaza by virtue of impugned E-Tender/Advertisement is against public interest?

(iv) Whether any relief can be granted to the writ petitioner?

Issue No.(i):-

9. The petitioner has approached this Court challenging the e-tender/advertisement dated 16.7.2025 issued by the corporation for opening of a new Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) on the Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula. Admittedly the petitioner has not participated in the tendering process and has approached this Court stating that earlier the corporation had entered into a contract dated 19.10.2024 with the petitioner to operate a Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) at the same route i.e. Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula and, therefore, he is having a right to object for opening a new Yatri Plaza in the vicinity of his already existing Yatri Plaza. Thus the nature of right which the petitioner has is to be seen in the light of the contractual obligations amongst the parties. The contract dated 19.10.2024 entered inter-se the petitioner and the corporation is reproduced here below:-

OATH COMMISSIONER 23 SEP 2025

H.V. SINGH Advocate Regd. No. U.P. 01411/2018 OATH COMMISSIONER High Court Allahabad

10. This Court finds from the perusal of the terms and conditions of the contract inter-se the petitioner and the corporation is purely that of commercial nature. Learned counsel for the petitioner has not been able to point out that this contract between the parties fall within the ambit of □statutory contract□. Merely one of the parties i.e. the corporation being an instrumentality of State which may come within the ambit of Article 12 of the Constitution of India will not ipso-facto mean that any contract would be a statutory contract. Admittedly, whatever the rights which the petitioner have, would arise from the contractual obligation as stated above. None of the covenants contents in the contract dated 19.10.2024 prohibit or restrain the corporation from opening yet another Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) in the vicinity, where the petitioner is operating a Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses). The petitioner could not have a better right than what arises out of the contractual obligations.

11. While exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, this Court can entertain a petition for enforcement of any rights conferred by part III and for any other purpose. The relevant extract of Article 226 (1) of the Constitution of India is extracted below:-

"[226. Power of High Courts to issue certain writs.-(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 32[], every High Court shall have powers, throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction, to issue to any person or authority, including in appropriate cases, any Government, within those territories directions, orders or writs, including [writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari, or any of them, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III and for any other purpose)."

12. It is settled law that this Court while exercising the powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can entertain a writ petition for any other purpose in order to protect the rights of an individual.

13. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vinoy Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and others reported in (2001) 4 SCC 734 has held that it is a matter of prudence, that the court confines the exercise of writ jurisdiction to cases where legal wrong or legal injuries caused to a particular person or his fundamental rights are violated, and not to entertain cases of individual wrong or injury at the instance of third party. The relevant extract as contain in para 2 of the judgement rendered in Vinoy Kumar (Supra) is being extracted below:-

"2. Generally speaking, a person shall have no locus standi to file a writ petition if he is not personally affected by the impugned order or his fundamental rights have neither been directly or substantially invaded nor is there any imminent danger of such rights being invaded or his acquired interests have been violated ignoring the applicable rules. The relief under Article 226 of the constitution is based on the existence of a right in favour of the person invoking the jurisdiction. The exception to the general rule is only in cases where the writ applied for is a writ of habeas -corpus or quo warranto or filed in public interest. It is a matter of prudence, that the court confines the exercise of writ jurisdiction to cases where legal wrong or legal injuries caused to a particular person or his fundamental rights are violated, and not to entertain cases of individual wrong or injury at the instance of third party where there is an effective legal aid organisation which can take care of such cases. Even in cases filed in public interest, the court can exercise the writ jurisdiction at the instance of a third party only when it is shown that the legal wrong or legal injury or illegal burden is threatened and such person or determined class of persons is, by reason or poverty, helplessness or disability or socially or economically disadvantages position, unable to approach the court for relief."

14. The petitioner has been unable to demonstrate what legal wrong or legal injury has been caused by the issuance of the advertisement impugned.

15. As discussed above, neither the petitioner is having any statutory right nor the corporation is under any statutory obligation to protect the interest more so the commercial interest of the petitioner by virtue of contract dated 19.10.2024. Learned counsel for the petitioner has failed to demonstrate any legal right which he has to have been violated or any legal wrong or legal injury being caused by the advertisement impugned in the petition for opening of another Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) within the vicinity.

16. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court finds that no legal rights of the petitioner can said to have been violated by the corporation by issuance of impugned advertisement/tender. The petitioner and the corporation have contractual obligations. Accordingly the issue no.i is decided against the petitioner.

Issue No.2.

17. With regards to the submission of the petitioner regarding violation of the policy dated 26.11.2020 of the Corporation, this Court finds that the referred policy dated 26.11.2020 are only guidelines issued by the Managing Director of the Corporation prescribing methodology while establishing Yatri Plaza, this interference can safely be drawn from the opening paragraph of the circular which contain the following lines which reads as under:-

……... निम्नलिखित दिशा निर्देश जारी किये जाते हैं …….

18. This Court further finds that these guidelines have not been issued under any statute. It is settled law that guidelines not having been issued under some statute have no binding force and any violation would not result in giving a right to dispute a decision so made.

19. Further the clause A-2 of the guidelines dated 26.11.2020 on which the learned counsel for the petitioner has placed much reliance in itself do not prescribe any requisite number of buses on a route while opening of a Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses). The guidelines and also the tender notice in its clause 6 specifically prescribe that there would be separate Yatri Plaza for A.C. buses service apart from those for regular service (Non-A.C. Buses). For ready reference Clause A-2 of the circular dated 26.11.2020 reads as under:-

"A-2 - यात्री बाहुल्यता के कारण यात्रियों की आवश्यकता की पूर्ति एवं अनावश्यक ठहराव में विलम्ब के दृष्टिगत जिन मार्गों पर 300 बसों से अधिक का संचालन हो रहा है. उन मार्गों पर यात्री सुविधा प्रभावित न हो, जिसके कारण 02 यात्री प्लाजा का चिन्हीकरण/अनुबंधन किया जायेगा॥ इसके अतिरिक्त ए०सी० बसों के ठहराव हेतु पृथक से यात्री प्लाजा का चिन्हीकरण किया जायेगा॥"

20. And Clause 6 of the tender condition dated 04.07.2025 reads as under:-

"6-जिन मार्गो पर 300 बसों से अधिक का संचालन हो रहा है उन स्थानों पर 02-02 यात्री प्लाजा अप-डाउन के लिये तथा ए०सी० वसों के ठहराव के लिये पृथक से यात्री प्लाजा का चिन्हिकरण किया जायेगा॥

21. Evidently the Corporation has not put any restriction of minimum 300 buses being plied on a route for opening an additional/new Yatri Plaza for A.C. buses. There is no dispute that the tender dated 16.7.2025 published by the Corporation on Moradabad-Delhi route near Gajraula is for A.C. buses. The submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner regarding violation of guidelines dated 26.11.2020 are misconceived and cannot be accepted.

22. Further the submission raised by the petitioner regarding that only 60 buses are being run on the route has been disputed by the Corporation and also by the private respondent by stating that the list filed by the petitioner is from a website namely Meal On Road (www.mealonroad.com). Thus the facts are disputed and cannot be adjudicated in writ jurisdiction of this Court.

23. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in re: Jagdish Mandal1 Vs. State of Orissa and others while considering the scope of judicial review in contractual matters in para 22 has held as under:-

"22. ... When the power of judicial review is invoked in matters relating to tenders or award of contracts, certain special features should be borne in mind. A contract is a commercial transaction. Evaluating tenders and awarding contracts are essentially commercial functions. Principles of equity and natural justice stay at a distance. If the decision relating to award of contract is bona fide and is in public interest, courts will not, in exercise of power of judicial review, interfere even if a procedural aberration or error in assessment or prejudice to a tenderer, is made out. The power of judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect private interest at the cost of public interest, or to decide contractual disputes. The tenderer or contractor with a grievance can always seek damages in a civil court."

24. Learned counsel for the petitioner has not been able to point out any arbitrariness or bias been exercised by the corporation while issuing the impugned advertisement/e-tender.

25. In this view of the matter even on the limited scope of interference in contractual matters, the petitioner has failed to make out any case. Accordingly the issue no.(ii) is also decided against the petitioner.

Issue No.3.

26. This Court finds that opening of a new Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) in the vicinity, where the petitioner is having his Yatri Plaza (for A.C. Buses) cannot be against public interest, as number of Yatri Plaza which would be lead to a healthier competition amongst the operators and would be in public interest as it would be leading to a healthier competition which would eventually lead to provide better services to the passengers who halt on their way for refreshment. Thus issue no.(iii) is also decided against the petitioner.

Issue No.4.

27. Since the petitioner is not able to point out any infirmity or illegality in the issuance of e-tender/advertisement dated 16.07.2025, no relief can be granted to the petitioner. Thus issue no.(iv) is also decided against the petitioner.

28. In view of whatever has been discussed above, we are of the considered opinion that the writ petition sans merit and is accordingly dismissed.

29. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

30. No order as to cost.

(2026) 7 ILRA 2546
ORIGINAL JURISDICTION
CIVIL SIDE
DATED: ALLAHABAD 15.07.2026

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SAURABH SHYAM SHAMSHERY, J.

Writ C No. 26630 of 2026

M/s Shahi Export House (Now known as Shahi Export Pvt. Ltd.) ...Petitioner
Versus
Presiding Officer, Labour Court & Anr. ...Respondents

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the Labour Court is legally bound to decide the fairness and validity of a domestic inquiry as a preliminary issue before evaluating evidence on the overall merits of the dispute?
(b) Whether deciding the preliminary issue of inquiry validity simultaneously with the merits in a single final award constitutes a jurisdictional error that invalidates the Labour Court's decision?

Headnotes

A. Labour Law – Domestic inquiry proceedings were initiated by the Employer (M/s Shahi Export House) against the Workman (Respondent No. 2). Based on an inquiry report dated 28.09.2001, the Workman was terminated from service on 17.10.2001. The Workman challenged the dismissal, leading to an industrial dispute referred to the Labour Court, Noida. Instead of framing and deciding the validity of the domestic inquiry as a preliminary issue, the Labour Court framed it alongside general issues. It recorded evidence on the merits of the charges from both sides simultaneously. In its final award, the Labour Court rendered a combined decision holding that:

- The domestic inquiry was unfair due to a lack of proper opportunity (violating principles of natural justice).
- On merits (relying partly on evidence recorded during the defective inquiry), the charges against the Workman were not proved.
- The termination order dated 17.10.2001 was illegal.

The Employer filed present petition, challenging the Labour Court's procedural approach and final award.

B. Even a Workman is dismissed or any adverse action is taken against a Workman even without conducting an inquiry, in such case the Labour Court after making a declaration that no inquiry was conducted, an opportunity should be granted to Employer to prove, whether charge can be proved or not and that further proceeding will be initiated only after the Labour Court has taken a decision, whether domestic inquiry was fair or not.

When law on issue is very clear and reiterated by Supreme Court time and again, the procedure undertaken by Labour Court concerned, being contrary and in the teeth of judgments passed by Supreme Court, cannot be sustainable. (Para 13)

In the present case, Labour Court has undertaken both proceedings simultaneously instead of taking one after another and, therefore, an illegality was erupted. Accordingly, impugned award dated 07.01.2026 passed in Adjudication Case No. 279 of 2009, is set aside only to the extent whereby petitioner was not granted opportunity to prove that charge was make out or not. The Court is not interfering decision of Labour Court that domestic inquiry was unfair. The matter is remitted back with direction that Labour Court concerned will provide an opportunity to produce evidence including fresh evidence also from the side of Employer with further opportunity to Workman to cross-examine the same, if so advised. (Para 14)

Writ petition disposed of. (E-4)

Appearances for Parties

For Petitioner(s): Karshit Nigam, Sr. Advocate
For Respondent(s): Baqer Mehdi, C.S.C.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Shyam Shamshery, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shakti Swarup Nigam, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Karshit Nigam, learned counsel for petitioner and Ms. Bushra Mariyam, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Baqer Mehadi, Advocate for Respondent-2.

2. Since the issue involve in this case is purely legal, therefore, with the consent of parties, the Court proceed to decide it without exchange of pleadings.

3. Petitioner before this Court is M/s Shahi Export House (now known as Shahi Export Pvt. Ltd.). A domestic inquiry was initiated against Respondent-2, a Workman, under petitioner concerned and on basis of inquiry report said Workman was terminated. The date of inquiry report is 28.09.2001 and order of terminated is dated 17.10.2001. The Workman raised an industrial dispute before Labour Court, Noida.

4. An issue which was to be framed as a preliminary issue, i.e., whether domestic inquiry conducted by petitioner against Workman was fair or not, was framed as an additional issue.

5. Before making adjudication to said additional issue, the evidence from side of Employer was also taken on record and by impugned order not only additional issue was decided but on basis of evidence so recorded, a finding was returned that charges levelled against Workman were not found proved. It was held that domestic inquiry was unfair as sufficient opportunity was not granted to Workman and on consideration of oral as well as documentary evidence, so led, it was further held that no proper opportunity was granted to Workman, therefore, the order dated 17.10.2001, whereby Workman was terminated from services, was held to be illegal and directed that it's legal consequence shall be followed.

6. Learned Senior Advocate appearing for petitioner has placed reliance on a judgment passed by this Court in M/s Dwarikesh Sugar Industries Ltd. vs. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, Rampur and others, 2023:AHC:44828 wherein this Court has considered the judgments passed by Supreme Court in Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. Ltd. vs. Ludh Budh Singh, 1972(1) SCC 595; Cooper Engineering Ltd. vs. P.P. Mundhe, 1975(2) SCC 661; Workmen of M/s Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd. vs. Firestone Tyre & Rubber Company, 1976(1) SCC 819; Shambu Nath Goyal vs. Bank of Baroda, 1983(4) SCC 491; Rajendra Jha vs. Presiding Officer, Labour Court, 1984 (Supp.) SCC 520; Neeta Kaplish vs. Presiding Officer, Labour Court and another, 1999(1) SCC 517; Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation vs. Lakshmidevamma, 2001(5) SCC 433; Management of Madhurantakam Cooperative Sugar Mills Ltd. vs. S. State Road Transport Corporation vs. Gajadhar Nath, 2021(10) SCC 697. He further submits that there is no ambiguity in position of law that if an industrial dispute is raised against the order passed on basis of domestic inquiry, the Labour Court at first instance will decide an issue, whether domestic inquiry was fair or not. In case answer is in affirmative, the dispute will not further proceed for adjudication. However, in case answer remain in negative, the Employer shall be granted an opportunity to present evidence to prove the charge and Labour Court on basis of evidence so led before it, will decide matter on merit, whether charge was proved or not. For reference, relevant part of the judgment passed by this Court in M/s Dwarikesh Sugar Industries Ltd. (supra) is reproduced hereinafter:

१३. विधिक बिन्दु पर निर्णय देने के लिए वादी के विद्वान वरिष्ठ अधिवक्ता द्वारा उल्लेखित विधि दृष्टांगो पर ध्यान देना आवश्यक है। १४. नीता कपलिश (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) में उच्चतम न्यायालय ने पूर्व में निर्णीत देल्ही क्लोथ ऐंड जनरल मिल्स को. प्रति लुधबुध सिंह, (१९७२) १ एस.सी.सी. ५९५ के प्रकरण के निर्णय के कुछ अंश का उल्लेख किया, कि जब प्रबंधन उसके द्वारा की गई जाँच पर निर्भरता जताता है और साथ ही साथ अधिकरण के समक्ष अपने उक्त तर्क में पूर्वाग्रह के बिना की गई जाँच उचित थी, साक्ष्य भी प्रस्तुत करता है, तब भी अधिकरण का विधिक दायित्व है, कि वो प्राथमिक स्तर पर ही यह विचार करे कि क्या प्रबंधन द्वारा की गई जाँच की कार्यवाही उचित व मान्य है। अगर अधिकरण संतुष्ट है कि जाँच की कार्यवाही उचित रूप से की गई है एवं मान्य है, तब प्रस्तुत साक्ष्य पर गुण दोष पर विचार करने का कोई प्रश्न ही नहीं रह जाता है व अधिकरण केवल दंड की समीक्षा कर सकता है।

१५. जब अधिकरण यह निर्धारित करता है कि जाँच की कार्यवाही उचित रूप से नही की गई थी, तभी वो उस क्षेत्राधिकार को प्राप्त करता है जहां विवाद को गुण दोष के आधार पर निर्धारित कर सकता है और उस दशा में वो प्रबंधन द्वारा प्रस्तुत साक्ष्य पर विचार करता है और विवाद को साक्ष्य के आधार पर गुण दोष पर निस्तारित करता है।

१६. नीता कपलिश (पूर्व मे उल्लिखित) मे यह भी कहा गया है कि उपरोक्त सिद्धान्त उच्चतम न्यायलय द्वारा वर्कमैन प्रति फायर स्टोन टायर व रबड़ को. ऑफ इंडिया, (१९७३) १ एस.सी.सी. ८१३ में भी अनुसरित किया गया है।

१७. उच्चतम न्यायालय ने एम.एल. सिंगला (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) में यह प्रतिपादित किया, क्योंकि पदच्युक्ति का आदेश घरेलू जाँच पर आधारित था, अतः श्रम न्यायालय का यह दायित्व था कि वो सर्व प्रथम प्रारम्भिक बिन्दू के रूप मे इस प्रश्न पर विचार कर निर्णित करे कि क्या घरेलू जाँच वैधानिक व उचित थी और उसके उत्तर के आधार पर ही आगे की कार्यवाही सुनिश्चित करे। क्योकि उक्त निर्णय के तथ्य व परिस्थितियों में श्रम न्यायालय ने उपरोक्त प्रक्रिया नही अपनायी थी, तो उच्चतम न्यायालय ने यह निर्धारित किया कि श्रम न्यायालय ने क्षेत्राधिकार की त्रुटि करी थी।

१८. जहां तक विपक्षी द्वारा इस न्यायालय की पूर्ण पीठ के एक निर्णय मेसर्स स्वरूप वेजीटेबल प्रोडक्टस इंडस्ट्रीज लि. (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) पर बल देने का विषय है, जहां पूर्ण पीठ ने यह निर्धारित किया कि श्रम न्यायालय का यह दायित्व नही है कि क्या घरेलू जाँच वैधानिक व उचित है, को प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु बनाकर ही निर्णय दिया जाये व समस्त बिन्दुओं को एक साथ निर्धारित भी कर सकता है। परन्तु जैसा पूर्व मे उल्लेख किया है कि पूर्ण पीठ के निर्णय के उपरान्त एम.एल.सिंगला (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) मे यह स्पष्ट रूप से निर्धारित किया गया कि श्रम न्यायालय के प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु कि घरेलू जाँच को उचित व वैधानिक बनाना ही होगा व उसके निर्धारण के उपरान्त ही आगे की कार्यवाही कर सकता है, इस कारण से यह न्यायालय, पूर्ण पीठ के निर्णय का अनुपालन करने के लिए बाध्य नही है।

१९. प्रतिवादी के द्वारा अन्य निर्णयों के आधार पर यह कथन किया गया है कि अगर प्रारम्भिक बिन्दू न बनाकर कोई त्रुटि की भी हो, तब भी वादी/प्रबंन्धक को समस्त साक्ष्य श्रम न्यायालय के समक्ष रखने की पूर्ण स्वतंत्रता थी, जिसका उसने लाभ भी उठाया और प्रबंधन ने वर्तमान याचिका में ऐसा कोई भी कारण का कथन नहीं किया है, कि साक्ष्य न रख पाने के कारण उसके साथ कोई पक्षपात हुआ हो। इसके अतिरिक्त प्रतिवादी ने पुरजोर बल उच्चतम न्यायालय की संवैधानिक पीठ के निर्णय लक्ष्मी देवम्मा (श्रीमती) (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) पर दिया है कि श्रम न्यायालय, प्रारम्भ मे ही, घरेलू जांच उचित है या नहीं, के बिन्दु पर विचारण करने के लिए बाध्य नहीं है, और यह बिन्दु बाद मे भी निर्धारित किया जा सकता है, इसके लिए प्रतिवादी के वरिष्ठ अधिवक्ता ने समकक्ष पीठ द्वारारिजिनल मैनेजर यू.पी.एस.आर.टी.सी. (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) के मामले मे दिये गये निर्णय पर भी बल दिया।

२०. उपरोक्त तर्क पर निर्णय लेने से पूर्व मैने संविधान पीठ द्वारा दिये गये निर्णय का परिशीलन ध्यानपूर्वक किया। संविधान पीठ के समक्ष यह विवाद था कि उच्चतम न्यायालय की दो पीठों द्वारा दिये गये शम्भूनाथ गोयल प्रति बैक ऑफ बडौदा, (१९८३) ४ एस.सी.सी. ४९१ व राजेन्द्र झां प्रति पीठासीन अधिकारी, लेबर कोर्ट, १९८४ (सप्पली) एस.सी.सी. ५२०, के निर्णयों मे अगर कोई विरोधाभास है, तो कौन सा निर्णय उचित है, कि प्रबंधन द्वारा साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत करने की प्रार्थना किस स्तर पर कर सकता है। क्या उसको प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु, कि क्या घरेलू जांच अवैधानिक व मान्य है, के निस्तारण का इन्तजार करना चाहिये या प्रारम्भ मे ही प्रति उत्तर के साथ ही साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत करने की प्रार्थना कर देनी चाहिये। इस नाते संविधान पीठ ने बहुमत से यह निर्धारित किया कि उपरोक्त दोनो निर्णयों मे कोई विरोधाभास नहीं है कि नियोक्ता को जवाब के साथ ही यह प्रार्थना पत्र भी दाखिल करना चाहिये कि वो साक्ष्य भी प्रस्तुत करना चाहता है, जिससे वाद निस्तारण मे देरी न हो व यह प्रार्थना क्योकि वैकल्पिक है, तो नियोक्ता पर कोई भी प्रतिकूल प्रभाव नही होगा। संविधान पीठ ने कूपर इंजी. लि. प्रति पी.पी.मुंधे, (१९७५) २ SCC ६६१ को अनुमोदित करते हुए प्रस्तर १४ मे यह निर्णित किया कि घरेलू जाँच की निष्पक्षता पर यदि प्रश्न उठे तो उसे प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु के रूप में ही निर्णित किया जाये व उसके बाद ही साक्ष्य के आधार पर वाद निर्णित किया जाये। विवाद केवल साक्ष्य देने के प्रार्थना पत्र के समय पर था, जिस पर संविधान पीठ ने निर्धारित किया कि वो प्रथम स्तर पर ही विकल्प के साथ किया जाना चाहिये। परन्तु पीठ के दो सदस्यो ने सहमति दिखाते हुए (न्यायमूर्ति शिवराज वी. पाटिल के द्वारा लिखा गया निर्णय) यह स्पष्ट किया कि श्रम न्यायालय प्रकरण की परिस्थितियों मे साक्ष्य देने का आदेश वाद की कार्यवाही के दौरान व निर्णय लेने से पहले कभी भी निर्धारित कर सकता है, क्योकि इस अधिकार का आधार प्रक्रियात्मक है, न कि किसी विधि के प्रावधान के तहत।

२१. मैने रिजिनल मैनेजर (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) के निर्णय का परिशीलन भी सतर्कता के साथ किया परन्तु, समकक्ष एकल पीठ द्वारा यह निर्धारित करना कि लक्ष्मी देवम्मा (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) में यह भी निर्धारित किया कि घरेलू जाँच निष्पक्ष नही है, का बिन्दु प्रारम्भिक रूप से बनाना आवश्यक नही है, परन्तु न तो संविधान पीठ के समक्ष यह बिन्दु विचाराधीन ही था और न ही ऐसा संविधान पीठ ने निर्णय मे कही भी निर्धारित किया है। ऐसा प्रतीत होता है कि रिजिनल मैनेजर (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) के प्रस्तर २३ के आखिर मे संविधान पीठ के निर्णय मे उक्त कहा गया है, अभिलेख के विपरीत है।

२२. उपरोक्त विश्लेषण का परिणाम है कि श्रम न्यायालय का दायित्व है कि प्रारम्भिक रूप से "क्या घरेलू जाँच निष्पक्ष है" का बिन्दु निर्धारित करे और उसके निर्णय के उपरान्त ही आगे की कार्यवाही करे। नियोक्ता, श्रम न्यायालय में उत्तर दाखिल करते समय प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु पर भी अपना स्पष्टीकरण व साथ ही साथ साक्ष्य देने की प्रार्थना भी कर सकता है। वर्तमान प्रकरण मे नियोक्ता द्वारा प्रारम्भ में ही यह प्रार्थना की गई थी कि प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु कि "घरेलू जाँच निषपक्ष है" बनाया जाये, परन्तु श्रम न्यायालय ने प्रार्थना निरस्त करते हुए साक्ष्य आमंत्रित किया तथा जो साक्ष्य श्रम न्यायालय के समक्ष प्रस्तुत किये गये उसके अतिरिक्त घरेलू जाँच में प्रस्तुत साक्ष्य पर भी विचार करते हुए यह निर्धारित किया कि न केवल घरेलू जाँच दूषित थी वरन् पदच्युति भी अवैधानिक थी।

२३. श्रम न्यायालय अगर यह निर्धारित करता है कि घरेलू जाँच निष्पक्ष नही है, तो केवल उस साक्ष्य पर जो उसके समक्ष लेख बद्ध किये गये व पत्रजात को पत्रावली पर लाये गये है, के आधार पर ही यह निर्धारित करेगा कि क्या आरोप साबित होता है, या नही, परन्तु वर्तमान प्रकरण मे श्रम न्यायालय ने दोनो साक्ष्य (जो घरेलू जाँच मे कार्यवाही के दौरान व श्रम न्यायालय के समक्ष आये) पर विचार किया, जो पूर्ण रूप से अवैधानिक है। (देखें नीता कपलिश (पूर्व मे उल्लिखित) के प्रस्तर संख्या २७ व २८) कर्मकारों के वरिष्ठ अधिवक्ता द्वारा प्रस्तुत अन्य विधिक दृष्टांगों का कोई लाभ कर्मकारों को नहीं मिल सकता है। अतः इस स्तर पर आक्षेपित आदेश के निम्न अंश महत्वपूर्ण है कि श्रम न्यायालय ने उपरोक्त वैधानिक त्रुटि करीः-

"इस बैक डेटिंग के सम्बन्ध में सर्वोतम साक्ष्य केवल सम्बन्धित किसानों का ही हो सकता था, जिनके गन्ने की तौल दिनांक 24.11.2016 को होना दर्शायी गयी है, लेकिन किसी भी किसान से न तो पूछतांछ की गयी और न ही उनको घरेलू जांच मे और न ही न्यायालय में प्रस्तुत किया गया। अतः मात्र सेवायोजक के इस कथन में विश्वास नहीं किया जा सकता कि श्रमिक अर्जेन्द्र कुमार ने उपरोक्त 24पर्चियों में बैक डेटिंग करके दिनांक 24.11.2016 दर्शायी हो।"

"जहां तक दिनांक 24.11.2016 को श्रमिक द्वारा अन्य तौल लिपिकों के साथ हड़ताल पर जाने का प्रश्न है तो इसमें घरेलू जांच के दौरान गवाह राजकुमार द्वारा लिखित कथन (ई-13), विजेन्द्र सिंह का लिखित कथन (ई-14), औंकार सिंह का लिखित कथन (ई-15), नीरज कुमार का लिखित कथन (ई-16), योगेन्द्र कुमार का लिखित कथन (ई-17), रमेश परसुरामपुरिया का लिखित कथन (ई-18), अशोक कुमार शर्मा का लिखित कथन (ई-19), जितेन्द्र कुमार का लिखित कथन (ई-20) प्रस्तुत किये गये हैं। इन तथ्यो को स्वयं सेवायोजक साक्षी-2 जांच अधिकारी श्री सलिल स्वरूप आर्य ने भी स्वीकार किया है कि उसने श्रमिक के समक्ष घरेलू जांच के दौरान इन गवाहों के बयान अंकित नहीं किये थे। उपरोक्त सभी बयान गवाहान टाईप शुदा बाहर से लेकर आये, जिन्हें घरेलू जांच में प्रस्तुत कर दिया। मेरी राय में घरेलू जांच प्रक्रिया पूरी तरह से दूषित है। घरेलू जांच के दौरान गवाहान के कथन सम्बन्धित श्रमिक के समक्ष ही अंकित किये जाने चाहिए भले ही वह हाथ से लिखे हुए हों या टंकण द्वारा, लेकिन उपरोक्त सभी बयान गवाह अन्यत्र से टाईप शुदा लाये थे और उन्होने घरेलू जांच में दाखिल कर दिये। अतः मात्र इसके आधार पर यह निष्कर्ष नहीं निकाला जा सकता कि श्रमिक अर्जेन्द्र कुमार किसी हड़ताल में शामिल हुआ हो। वैसे भी इस बात की पुष्टि हो चुकी है कि दिनांक 24.11.2016 को श्रमिक द्वारा अपने क्रय केन्द्र पर 24 किसानों के गन्ने की तुलाई की थी और उन्हे भुगतान भी सेवायोजक द्वारा किया गया। अतः न तो इस बात की पुष्टी होती है कि दिनांक 24.11.2016 को श्रमिक किसी हड़ताल में शामिल रहा हो और न ही इस तथ्य की कि दिनांक 24.11.2016 को गन्ने की तुलाई न की गयी हो।"

(च) निष्कर्ष

२४. उपरोक्त विचार विमर्श के परिणामस्वरूप विचारार्थक विधिक बिन्दु का निस्तारण किया जाता है कि, श्रम न्यायालय को प्रारम्भिक रूप मे ही "क्या घरेलू जाँच निष्पक्ष व मान्य है" के विधिक बिन्दु बनाकर उसका निस्तारण करना चाहिये और परिणाम के फलस्वरूप ही आगे की कार्यवाही विधिक रूप से करनी चाहिये कि अगर घरेलू जाँच निष्पक्ष पाई जाती है, तो श्रम न्यायालय मात्र सजा के समानुपात की जाँच कर सकता है, परन्तु यदि श्रम

न्यायालय यह पाता है कि घरेलू जाँच दूषित है, तो नियोक्ता को श्रमिक के विरूद्ध आरोप साबित करने के लिए साक्ष्य देने की अनुमति प्रदान करनी चाहिये और यदि साक्ष्य पूर्व में ही नियोक्ता द्वारा दिया जा चुका है तो उक्त साक्ष्य के आधार पर यह निर्धारित करेगा कि आरोप साबित होता है या नहीं, इस स्तर पर श्रम न्यायालय घरेलू जाँच मे दिये गये साक्ष्य को अपने निर्णय का आधार नही बना सकता।

२५. उच्चतम न्यायालय ने एक नवीन निर्णय उत्तर प्रदेश स्टेट रोड ट्रांसपोर्ट कोर्प. प्रति गजाधर नाथ, (२०२२) ३ एस.सी.सी. १९० में वर्कमेन प्रति फायर स्टोन टायर (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) के निर्णय मे सिद्धान्तो का पुनः उल्लेख किया कि, यदि नियोक्ता द्वारा की गयी घरेलू जाँच दूषित पायी जाती है, तो अधिकरण को नियोक्ता को साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत करने का अवसर देना ही होगा, कि उसके द्वारा कर्मकार के विरूद्ध की गयी कार्यवाही उचित है। इसी प्रकरण में संविधान पीठ के लक्ष्मी देवम्मा (पूर्व मे उल्लेखित) के निर्णय का भी उल्लेख किया कि उपरोक्त स्थिति में नियोक्ता का साक्ष्य देने का अधिकार प्रक्रियात्मक है न कि वैधानिक, जो वाद के त्वरित निस्तारण के लिये है।

२६. वर्तमान प्रकरण मे श्रम न्यायालय ने दो वैधानिक त्रुटि करी है। पहली उसने घरेलू जाँच निष्पक्ष है को न तो प्राथमिक बिन्दु बनाया और न ही उसका निस्तारण प्रारम्भ मे किया तथा दूसरी उसने अन्तिम निर्णय में जहां एक ओर यह निर्धारित किया कि घरेलू जाँच दूषित है, वहीं दूसरी ओर वो साक्ष्य जो उसके सामने लेखबद्ध हुए के साथ-साथ घरेलू जाँच के दौरान दिये गये साक्ष्य पर भी विचार किया। इन दो वैधानिक त्रुटियों के कारण आक्षेपित आदेश अवैधानिक हो जाता है।

(छ) आदेश

२७. आक्षेपित चारों आदेश दिनांकित ०३.११.२०२० निरस्त किये जाते हैं तथा चारों वाद श्रम न्यायालय को प्रतिप्रेषित कर आदेशित किया जाता है कि श्रम न्यायालय सर्व प्रथम प्रारम्भिक बिन्दु 'क्या घरेलू जाँच दूषित है को निर्धारित करेगा व उसके निर्णय के आधार पर ही आगे की कार्यवाही वैधानिक रूप से करेगा। क्योकि नियोक्ता अपना साक्ष्य दे चुका है, तो अगर घरेलू जांच दूषित पाई जाती है, तो श्रम न्यायालय उक्त साक्ष्य के आधार पर ही अपना निर्णय देगा। उक्त कार्यवाही आज से छः महीने के अन्दर समाप्त करेगा।

२८. उपरोक्त निर्देश के साथ चारों याचिकाएं आंशिक रुप से स्वीकार व अंतिम रुप से निस्तारित की जाती हैं।

7. Learned Senior Advocate appearing for Respondent-Workman has placed reliance on a judgment passed by a Coordinate Bench of this Court in Shashi Export Private Limited vs. State of U.P. and others, 2018:AHC:22600, wherein a similar issue was involved between parties to this Court and Labour Court concerned has adopted similar procedure and Coordinate Bench has dismissed writ petition filed by petitioner.

8. During argument it is informed that aforesaid judgment in Shashi Export Private Limited (supra) was challenged at the behest of petitioner before Supreme Court, being Special Leave to Appeal (C) No. 11076 of 2018 (Shahi Exports Ptv. Ltd. vs. State of U.P. and another), which was dismissed on 07.05.2018. For reference paras 9, 10 and 11 of aforesaid judgment in Shashi Export Private Limited (supra) is reproduced hereinafter:

"9. I have considered the arguments of the counsel for the petitioner and examined the record. In view of plea raised by the petitioner in paragraph-19 of written statement, Labour Court framed an additional issue on 28.03.2007 "Whether domestic inquiry was fair and proper and has been done in consonance of principles of natural justice?". Labour Court also directed that this issue would be decided along with main issue referred to it. The petitioner has not only examined V.K. Solanki (Inquiry Officer) as EW-1, on 13.09.2007 but also filed entire papers relating to domestic inquiry from the stage of suspension on 16.08.2001 to dismissal on 27.10.2001, to prove that inquiry was fair and proper. The petitioner also examined Rajendra Ahuja (Manager Karmik & Administration) as EW-2, on 22.07.2010, Neeraj Harjani (Assistant General Manager) as EW-3, on 21.09.2016 and Promod Kumar Gupta (senior supervisor) as EW-4, on 23.03.2017, to prove the charges as leveled against respondent-3, in domestic inquiry. After close of the evidence, the petitioner filed written arguments on 03.05.2017 and never demanded any further opportunity for additional evidence. Arguments that the petitioner was not given opportunity to prove charges against respondent-3 is misconceived.

10. A copy of the charge sheet of domestic inquiry has been filed as Annexure-2 to the writ petition. In the charges, incidents dated 09.07.2001, 10.07.2001, 12.07.2001, 27.07.2001, 08.08.2001, 11.08.2001 and 14.08.2001 were mentioned. In none of these incident, name of Smt. Ranjana Jha (respondent-3) has been mentioned. Only allegation against respondent-3 was that on 14.08.2001 after 2.00 p.m., the workers (including respondent-3) had assembled at factory gate and began to shout that whoever would inquire about production, he would not be able to stand on his leg. It is admitted that the petitioner was not engaged in production work rather she was checker of finished material and posted in Finishing Department. Rajendra Ahuja (Manager Karmik & Administration) EW-2, in his cross examination has admitted that there is no evidence to prove that respondent-3 had participated in go slow move. Neeraj Harjani (Assistant General Manager) EW-3, in his cross examination has admitted that respondent-3 has not assaulted any person. Promod Kumar Gupta (senior supervisor) EW-4, in his cross examination admitted that Ranjana Jha was working in finishing department and had not assaulted any workman or the officer of management. Thus charges of domestic inquiry was not proved before Labour Court. Finding in this respect does not suffer from any illegality.

11. V.K. Solanki (Inquiry Officer) EW-1, in his cross examination admitted that envelope, in which notices were sent to respondent-3 did not contain her correct address. Smt. Ranjana Jha in her statement has stated that Inquiry Officer conducted inquiry inside factory premises and she or other employees were not permitted to enter factory premises. This statement has been believed by Labour Court. Finding that domestic inquiry was not fair and proper does not suffer from any illegality.

9. I have considered above submissions and perused the record.

10. So far as position of law is concerned, even a Coordinate Bench has passed a different order, this Bench can still follow the judgment passed in M/s Dwarikesh Sugar Industries Ltd. (supra) wherein several judgments passed by Supreme Court on the issue was considered, however, the same were not considered or placed on record for consideration before Coordinate Bench in Shashi Export Private Limited (supra).

11. Coordinate Bench in Shashi Export Private Limited (supra) has placed reliance on Lakshmidevamma (supra), however, the same was only with regard to legal consequence of an ex parte inquiry and the aspect of procedure to be undertaken was not considered. Whereas, this Bench in M/s Dwarikesh Sugar Industries Ltd. (supra) has taken note of judgments passed by

Supreme Court which has prescribed specifically the process to be adopted by Labour Court in such circumstances.

12. Learned Senior Advocate for petitioner has placed reliance on a judgment passed by Supreme Court in State of Uttarakhand and others vs. Sureshwati, 2021(3) SCC 108 that position of law as referred above was reiterated and for reference relevant part of said judgment is reproduced hereinafter:

"18. This Court has in a catena of decisions held that where an employer has failed to make an enquiry before dismissal or discharge of a workman, it is open for him to justify the action before the Labour Court by leading evidence before it. The entire matter would be open before the tribunal, which would have the jurisdiction to satisfy itself on the evidence adduced by the parties whether the dismissal or discharge was justified.

19. A four-Judge Bench of this Court in Workmen v. Motipur Sugar Factory (P) Ltd. AIR 1965 SC 1803 held that :

"11. It is now well settled by a number of decisions of this Court that where an employer has failed to make an enquiry before dismissing or discharging a workman it is open to him to justify the action before the tribunal by leading all relevant evidence before it. In such a case the employer would not have the benefit which he had in cases where domestic enquiries have been held. The entire matter would be open before the tribunal which will have jurisdiction not only to go into the limited questions open to a tribunal where domestic enquiry has been properly held (see Indian Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. Workmen [Indian Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. Workmen, AIR 1958 SC 130]) but also to satisfy itself on the facts adduced before it by the employer whether the dismissal or discharge was justified. We may in this connection refer to Sasa Musa Sugar Works (P) Ltd. v. Shobrati Khan [Sasa Musa Sugar Works (P) Ltd. v. Shobrati Khan, AIR 1959 SC 923] , Phulbari Tea Estate v. Workmen [Phulbari Tea Estate v. Workmen, AIR 1959 SC 1111] , and Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Workmen [Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Workmen, AIR 1960 SC 160] . These three cases were further considered by this Court in Bharat Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Jai Singh [Bharat Sugar Mills Ltd. v. Jai Singh, (1962) 3 SCR 684] , and reference was also made to the decision of the Labour Appellate Tribunal in Ram Swarath Sinha v. Belsund Sugar Co. [Ram Swarath Sinha v. Belsund Sugar Co., 1954 LAC 697] It was pointed out that □the important effect of omission to hold an enquiry was merely this : that the tribunal would not have to consider only whether there was a prima facie case but would decide for itself on the evidence adduced whether the charges have really been made out□. It is true that three of these cases, except Phulbari Tea Estate case [Phulbari Tea Estate v. Workmen, AIR 1959 SC 1111], were on applications under Section 33 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. But in principle we see no difference whether the matter comes before the tribunal for approval under Section 33 or on a reference under Section 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. In either case if the enquiry is defective or if no enquiry has been held as required by Standing Orders, the entire case would be open before the tribunal and the employer would have to justify on facts as well that its order of dismissal or discharge was proper. Phulbari Tea Estate case [Phulbari Tea Estate v. Workmen, AIR 1959 SC 1111] was on a reference under Section 10, and the same principle was applied there also, the only difference being that in that case there was an inquiry though it was defective. A defective enquiry in our opinion stands on the same footing as no enquiry and in either case the tribunal would have jurisdiction to go into the facts and the employer would have to satisfy the tribunal that on facts the order of dismissal or discharge was proper."

20. Subsequently in Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. v. Ludh Budh Singh [Delhi Cloth & General Mills Co. v. Ludh Budh Singh, (1972) 1 SCC 595] this Court held that : (SCC pp. 615-16, para 61)

"60. ... (1) If no domestic enquiry had been held by the management, or if the management makes it clear that it does not rely upon any domestic enquiry that may have been held by it, it is entitled to straightway adduce evidence before the Tribunal justifying its action. The Tribunal is bound to consider that evidence so adduced before it, on merits, and give a decision thereon. In such a case, it is not necessary for the Tribunal to consider the validity of the domestic enquiry as the employer himself does not rely on it.

(3) When the management relies on the enquiry conducted by it, and also simultaneously adduces evidence before the Tribunal, without prejudice to its plea that the enquiry proceedings are proper, it is the duty of the Tribunal, in the first instance, to consider whether the enquiry proceedings conducted by the management, are valid and proper. If the Tribunal is satisfied that the enquiry proceedings have been held properly and are valid, the question of considering the evidence adduced before it on merits, no longer survives. It is only when the Tribunal holds that the enquiry proceedings have not been properly held, that it derives jurisdiction to deal with the merits of the dispute and in such a case it has to consider the evidence adduced before it by the management and decide the matter on the basis of such evidence."

21. Reliance is also placed on the judgment of this Court in Workmen v. Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd. [Workmen v. Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd., (1973) 1 SCC 813 : 1973 SCC (L&S) 341] wherein the broad principle regarding holding of the enquiry were spelt out as : (SCC pp. 827-29 & 831-32, paras 32 & 40-41)

"32. From those decisions, the following principles broadly emerge:

"(1) The right to take disciplinary action and to decide upon the quantum of punishment are mainly managerial functions, but if a dispute is referred to a Tribunal, the latter has power to see if action of the employer is justified.

(2) Before imposing the punishment, an employer is expected to conduct a proper enquiry in accordance with the provisions of the Standing Orders, if applicable, and principles of natural justice. The enquiry should not be an empty formality.

(3) When a proper enquiry has been held by an employer, and the finding of misconduct is a plausible conclusion flowing from the evidence, adduced at the said enquiry, the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to sit in judgment over the decision of the employer as an appellate body. The interference with the decision of the employer will be justified only when the findings arrived at in the enquiry are perverse or the management is guilty of victimisation, unfair labour practice or mala fide.

(4) Even if no enquiry has been held by an employer or if the enquiry held by him is found to be defective, the Tribunal in order to satisfy itself about the legality and validity of the order, had to give an opportunity to the employer and employee to adduce evidence before it. It is open to the employer to adduce evidence for the first time justifying his action, and it is open to the employee to adduce evidence contra.

(5) The effect of an employer not holding an enquiry is that the Tribunal would not have to consider only whether there was a prima facie case. On the other hand, the issue about the merits of the impugned order of dismissal or discharge is at large before the Tribunal and the latter, on the evidence adduced before it, has to decide for itself whether the misconduct alleged is proved. In such cases, the point about the exercise of managerial functions does not arise at all. A case of defective enquiry stands on the same footing as no enquiry.

(6) The Tribunal gets jurisdiction to consider the evidence placed before it for the first time in justification of the action taken only, if no enquiry has been held or after the enquiry conducted by an employer is found to be defective.

(7) It has never been recognised that the Tribunal should straightaway, without anything more, direct reinstatement of a dismissed or discharged employee, once it is found that no domestic enquiry has been held or the said enquiry is found to be defective.

(8) An employer, who wants to avail himself of the opportunity of adducing evidence for the first time before the Tribunal to justify his action, should ask for it at the appropriate stage. If such an opportunity is asked for, the Tribunal has no power to refuse. The giving of an opportunity to an employer to adduce evidence for the first time before the Tribunal is in the interest of both the management and the employee and to enable the Tribunal itself to be satisfied about the alleged misconduct.

(9) Once the misconduct is proved either in the enquiry conducted by an employer or by the evidence placed before a Tribunal for the first time, punishment imposed cannot be interfered with by the Tribunal except in cases where the punishment is so harsh as to suggest victimisation.

(10) In a particular case, after setting aside the order of dismissal, whether a workman should be reinstated or paid compensation is, as held by this Court in Panitole Tea Estate v. Workmen [Panitole Tea Estate v. Workmen, (1971) 1 SCC 742] within the judicial decision of a Labour Court or Tribunal.

40. Therefore, it will be seen that both in respect of cases where a domestic enquiry has been held as also in cases where the Tribunal considers the matter on the evidence adduced before it for the first time, the satisfaction under Section 11-A, about the guilt or otherwise of the workman concerned, is that of the Tribunal. It has to consider the evidence and come to a conclusion one way or other. Even in cases where an enquiry has been held by an employer and a finding of misconduct arrived at, the Tribunal can now differ from that finding in a proper case and hold that no misconduct is proved.

41. We are not inclined to accept the contentions advanced on behalf of the employers that the stage for interference under Section 11-A by the Tribunal is reached only when it has to consider the punishment after having accepted the finding of guilt recorded by an employer. It has to be remembered that a Tribunal may hold that the punishment is not justified because the misconduct alleged and found proved is such that it does not warrant dismissal or discharge. The Tribunal may also hold that the order of discharge or dismissal is not justified because the alleged misconduct itself is not established by the evidence. To come to a conclusion either way, the Tribunal will have to reappraise the evidence for itself. Ultimately it may hold that the misconduct itself is not proved or that the misconduct proved does not warrant the punishment of dismissal or discharge. That is why, according to us, Section 11-A now gives full power to the Tribunal to go into the evidence and satisfy itself on both these points. Now the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to reappraise the evidence and come to its conclusion enures to it when it has to adjudicate upon the dispute referred to it in which an employer relies on the findings recorded by him in a domestic enquiry. Such a power to appreciate the evidence and come to its own conclusion about the guilt or otherwise was always recognised in a Tribunal when it was deciding a dispute on the basis of evidence adduced before it for the first time. Both categories are now put on a par by Section 11-A.

13. In aforesaid circumstances, when law on issue is very clear and reiterated by Supreme Court time and again, the procedure undertaken by Labour Court concerned, being contrary and in the teeth of judgments passed by Supreme Court, cannot be sustainable. For sake of repetition the principle enunciated by Supreme Court in Workmen of M/s Firestone Tyre & Rubber Co. of India (P) Ltd. (supra) is again taken into consideration that even a Workman is dismissed or any adverse action is taken against a Workman even without conducting an inquiry, in such case the Labour Court after making a declaration that no inquiry was conducted, an opportunity should be granted to Employer to prove, whether charge can be proved or not and that further proceeding will be initiated only after the Labour Court has taken a decision, whether domestic inquiry was fair or not.

14. In the present case, Labour Court has undertaken both proceedings simultaneously instead of taking one after another and, therefore, an illegality was erupted. Accordingly, impugned award dated 07.01.2026 passed in Adjudication Case No. 279 of 2009, is set aside only to the extent whereby petitioner was not granted opportunity to prove that charge was make out or not. The Court is not interfering decision of Labour Court that domestic inquiry was unfair. The matter is remitted back with direction that Labour Court concerned will provide an opportunity to produce evidence including fresh evidence also from the side of Employer with further opportunity to Workman to cross-examine the same, if so advised. The entire proceedings shall be concluded within a period of three months from today. It is also directed that no party will take any unnecessary adjournments.

15. With aforesaid directions/ observations, the writ petition is disposed of.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether the finding of a prior family partition recorded in a final judgment u/s 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act binds the consolidation courts?
(b) Whether a Chhitha Batwara prepared as a memorandum of a prior oral family settlement is required to be registered u/s 17 of the Registration Act?
(c) Whether the SOC and DDC were justified in overturning the Consolidation Officer's acceptance of the family partition?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law – Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953: Section 9-A(2); Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950: Section 176; Registration Act, 1908: Section 17 - The dispute concerned Khata No. 259 (171 bighas 9 biswas) and Khata No. 279 (8 bighas 15 biswas) in Village Pach Pahra, District Hamirpur, alongside other joint holdings in Village Mataudh, District Banda (totaling over 311 bighas). The common ancestor, Bihari Lal, had three sons: Hira Lal (father of Respondent No. 3, Vijay Shanker), Ram Sahai (father of Petitioner No. 1, Rama Kant), and Mohan Lal (father of Petitioners No. 2–5).

After Hira Lal's death, the joint Hindu family mutually partitioned their holdings across both villages on 21.06.1959, via a memorandum (Chhitha Batwara) signed by the heads/representatives of all three branches and witnesses, which included dedicating a portion of land to a local temple (Thakur Ji). Ram Sahai later filed a partition suit u/s 176. The suit was dismissed on 19.08.1966, on the explicit finding that a valid family partition had already taken place and been acted upon. This finding was upheld in appeal on 05.04.1974.

On 16.01.1975, the CO accepted the mutual family partition and directed division accordingly. The SOC (order dated 14.07.1975 allowed Respondent No. 3's appeal, holding the Chhitha Batwara unproved/ineffective, and ordered a fresh partition. The DDC (order dated 28.05.1981) upheld the SOC's decision.

B. Registration of family settlement - The family arrangement may be even oral in which case no registration is necessary; It is well settled that registration would be necessary only if the terms of the family arrangement are reduced into writing. The family settlement must be a bona fide one so as to resolve family disputes and rival claims by a fair and equitable division or allotment of properties between the various members of the family;

Even if bona fide disputes, present or possible, which may not involve legal claims are settled by a bona fide family arrangement which is fair and equitable the family arrangement is final and binding on the parties to the settlement. (Para 15)

The SOC has held that it is correct that there is no necessity for registration of the family settlement but the Chhitha Batwara was not taken into consideration on the ground that the same was not proved as well as the same has not been given effect without considering the finding recorded by the CO as well as the earlier decree passed in the suit u/s 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act. (Para 16)

The perusal of family settlement demonstrates that all the three branches of the family have given almost equal share in the entire holding situated in the two villages which was just & proper family settlement to divide the family property. It is further material to mention that about 3 bighas of land was already recorded in the name of Thakur Ji and the total land jointly dedicated to the temple came to 19 Bighas 15 Biswas. A separate Chhitha signed by all the persons (part of settlement) was also prepared which was filed and is part of the record. The CO has recorded categorical findings of fact that mutual family settlement has been given effect in record as well as on spot as such there was no occasion to interfere with finding of fact recorded by CO. (Para 18)

The impugned orders dated 14.07.1975 passed by respondent no.2/SOC, Hamirpur and 28.05.1981, passed by respondent no.1/Assistant Director of Consolidation are set aside.

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

For Respondent(s): Mr. Rajesh Kumar Tripathi, Sri Kamlesh Kumar Tripathi, Mr. Tarun Gaur, Standing Counsel

(Delivered by Hon'ble Chandra Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ram Kishore Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Rajesh Kumar Tripathi as well as Sri Kamlesh Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for respondent no.3 and Sri Tarun Gaur, learned standing counsel for the state-respondents.

2. Brief facts of the case are that the dispute relates to khata no.259, area 171 bigha 9 biswa; khata no.279, area 8 bigha 15 biswa, situated in village Pach Pahra, Pargana+Tehsil Maudaha, District Hamirpur. In the basic year of the consolidation operation, khata no.259 was recorded in the name of Ram Sahai (father of petitioner no.1), Mohan Lal (father of petitioner nos. 2 to 5) and Vijay Shanker (respondent no.3). Khata no.279 was recorded in the basic year of the consolidation in the name of Vijay Shanker (respondent no.3) in exclusive manner. The admitted family pedigree is mentioned in paragraph no.2 of the writ petition. The admitted family pedigree as mentioned in paragraph no.2 demonstrate that one Bihari Lal had three sons, namely, Hira Lal, Ram Sahai and Mohan Lal. Respondent no.3 is the son of Hira Lal. Petitioner no.1/Rama Kant is the son of Ram Sahai and petitioner nos. 2 to 5 are the sons of Mohan Lal. According to the petitioners, the aforementioned family was a joint Hindu Family before 1959 and Hira Lal was the karta of the family and the aforementioned joint Hindu Family had agricultural holding in two villages, i.e., village Mataudh, District Banda and village Pach Pahra, District Hamirpur. In village Mataudh, the total area held by the joint family was 131 bigha 18 biswa and in village Pach Pahra, the total area held by the joint family was 180 bigha 4 biswa, total in both the villages, was 311 bigha 2 biswa. After the death of Hira Lal, the family could not remain joint, accordingly, to avoid the dispute, the land of both the villages was mutually partitioned and Chhitha Batwara was prepared on 21.6.1959, showing the land given to each of the co-sharers. The aforementioned Chhitha Batwara was alleged to be signed by Ram Sahai, Mohan Lal and Vijay Shanker. The Chhitha Batwara was alleged to be signed by Sri Lal Bahadur Singh, Sheth Hazari Lal and Vishal Singh. In paragraph no.5 of the writ petition, the particular of the area given to all the three branches of the family as well as temple of Thakur Ji are mentioned. Ram Sahai (father of petitioner no.1) filed a suit under Section 176 of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as the "U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act"), claiming 1/3rd share in the land of village Mataudh. In the aforementioned suit, Mohan Lal (father of petitioner nos. 2 to 5) and respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker were impleaded as defendants. The aforementioned suit was heard and dismissed on 19.8.1966 on the ground that disputed holding had already been partitioned. Ram Sahai filed an appeal which was also dismissed vide judgment dated 5.4.1974. Village Pach Pahra, District Hamirpur came under consolidation operation and objection under Section 9-A(2) of the Uttar Pradesh Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (hereinafter referred to as the "U.P. C.H. Act") was filed on behalf of respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker, claiming 1/3rd share in plot no.259 and exclusive right in khata no.279 as well as denied family partition between the parties. Ram Sahai (father of petitioner no.1) filed his objection before the Consolidation Officer to the objection filed by respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker, stating that there was a family partition in which 83 bigha 4 biswa of village Pach Pahra and 14 bigha 18 biswa of village Mataudh was given to him in mutual family partition and the parties are in separate possession of their share of the khata in dispute. Issues were framed and parties had adduced oral and documentary evidence in support of their cases. The Consolidation Officer vide order dated 16.1.1975 decided the matter, accepting the matter on mutual family partition between the parties and directed the partition of the share according to earlier partition taken place between the parties. Against the order of the Consolidation Officer dated 16.1.1975, the appeal was filed by respondent no.3 before the Settlement Officer of Consolidation as well as petitioner nos. 2 to 5 have also filed appeal in respect to plot no.2000/4. The Settlement Officer of Consolidation vide order dated 14.7.1975 allowed the appeal of respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker and dismissed the appeal filed by petitioner nos. 2 to 5. Against the order of the Settlement Officer of Consolidation dated 14.7.1975, a revision under Section 48 of the U.P. C.H. Act was filed on behalf of the petitioner which was heard and dismissed vide order dated 28.5.1981. Hence, this writ petition on behalf of the petitioners for the following relief:-

"Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari, quashing the judgment and order dated 14.7.1975 (Annexure No.10), passed by respondent no.2 and order dated 28.5.1981 (Annexure No.11), passed by respondent no.1."

3. This Court admitted the writ petition on 10.7.1981 and directed that petitioners shall not be dispossessed from the land in dispute.

4. In pursuance of the order dated 10.7.1981, parties have exchanged their pleadings.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that in a suit under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, the finding was recorded that there was a family partition in the family, as such, the suit for partition cannot be entertained. He submitted that the decree passed in the proceeding under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, was maintained in appeal, as such, the finding recorded in the suit under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A & L.R. Act, filed by father of petitioner no.1, will operate as res judicata between the parties. He submitted that the consolidation court cannot hold otherwise in view of the finality of the issue between the parties. He further submitted that respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker was party in the partition suit under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act, as such, the finding recorded in the suit under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act will be binding upon respondent no.3. He also submitted that Chhitha Batwara was prepared by way of memorandum of the family partition, which has already been arrived at and given effect at the spot, as such, registration was not required under the law. He submitted that Chhitha Batwara in respect of the share of Mohan Lal and temple of Thakur Ji were signed by respondent no.3 and others as well as the witnesses, as such, the consolidation court cannot hold that there was partition in the family. He further submitted that respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker was major on 21.6.1959 when Chhitha Batwara was prepared and signed by him. He also submitted that the Deputy Director of Consolidation has failed to consider the finding of the Settlement Officer of Consolidation by which he rejected the School Leaving Certificate filed by respondent no.3/Vijay Shanker. He also submitted that oral and documentary evidence on the question of possession of the respective shares, on the basis of mutual partition, have also been ignored by the consolidation authorities, as such, the impugned order cannot be sustained in the eye of law. He further submitted that the evidence adduced in respect to plot no.2000/4 was also proved which fully demonstrate that claim set up by the petitioners should be allowed but the consolidation authorities have held otherwise in arbitrary manner. He placed paragraph no.11 of the writ petition in which particulars of the documentary evidence adduced before the Consolidation Officer has been mentioned. He also placed the averments made in paragraph nos. 20, 21 and 22 of the writ petition. He further placed the averments of the supplementary affidavit filed in the writ petition in order to demonstrate that the case of the petitioners has not been properly examined by the consolidation authorities. He further placed the averments made in the counter affidavit/supplementary counter affidavit filed on behalf of the respondents in order to demonstrate that there is no proper denial of the averments made in the writ petition as well as in the supplementary affidavit, as such, the averments made in the writ petition as well as well as supplementary affidavit are accepted. He submitted that the impugned orders passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation and the Settlement Officer of Consolidation should be set aside.

6. On the other hand, learned counsel for private respondent no.3 submitted that respondent no.3 was minor during the period the partition Chhitha was alleged to be prepared as well as the suit under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act was alleged to be filed and dismissed, holding that there was partition in the family. He submitted that the Settlement Officer of Consolidation and the Deputy Director of Consolidation have rightly decided the dispute which requires no interference in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. He also submitted that the alleged Chhitha Batwara is not a registered document, as such, no reliance can be placed upon the same. He submitted that there is no illegality in the exercise of appellate jurisdiction as well as revisional jurisdiction, as such, the instant writ petition should be dismissed.

7. I have considered the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

8. There is no dispute about the fact that khata no.259 was recorded in the name of petitioners and respondent no.3 jointly and khata no.279 was recorded in the name of respondent no.3 in exclusive manner. There is also no dispute about the fact that the Consolidation Officer has decided the objection under Section 9-A(2) of the U.P. C.H. Act, holding that partition had already taken place between the parties. There is also no dispute about the fact that appeal under Section 11(1) of the U.P. C.H. Act filed by respondent no.3 was allowed and the appeal filed by petitioner nos. 2 to 5 in respect to plot no.2000/4 was dismissed. There is also no dispute about the fact that revision filed by the petitioners under Section 48 of the U.P. C.H. Act has been dismissed.

9. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the matter, the perusal of the issues framed before the Consolidation Officer in the proceeding under Section 9-A(2) of the U.P. C.H. Act will be relevant which are as under:-

“"वादबिंदु।

1. क्या फरीकैन के मध्य मौजा पचपहरा तहसील मौदहा व मौजा मटौंध जिला बाँदा में स्थित भूमि का पारिवारिक समझौता द्वारा बटवारा हो चुका था?

6 क्या आराजी निजाई तनहा विजयशंकर के पिता को तनहा पैदा करता है और सहखातेदारान के नाम फरजी दर्ज है?"

10. The admitted family pedigree of the parties as mentioned in paragraph no. 2 of the writ petition will be also relevant for perusal which is as under:-

11. The Consolidation Officer while considering all the 6 issues, framed before him, has recorded finding of fact that khata in dispute is a joint family property and family partition has already taken place between the parties, accordingly, the Consolidation Officer has divided the share of the parties according to the family partition already taken place.

12. The Settlement Officer of Consolidation while deciding the title appeal, filed by respondent no.3, has held that the alleged Chhitha Batwara is not require to be registered but it is not proved that Chhitha Batwara has been given effect in the record and on spot as such it can be relied upon. The Deputy Director of Consolidation has also maintained the finding of the Settlement Officer of Consolidation while deciding the revision under Section 48 of the U.P. C.H. Act filed by the petitioners.

13. In order to adjudicate the controversy involved in the matter, the perusal of the finding recorded on issues no.1 in the proceeding under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act will be necessary which is as under:-

"In order to prove family partition held in between the plaintiff and defendants 1 and 2 the defendant no. 1 Mohan Lal has filed Batwara Chitthi of the plots which fell in his share.

Plaintiff Ram sahai P.W.1 in his cross examination has shown his ignorance of family partition and Batwara chitthi. The essence of his deposition clearly shows that neither he admitted the fact nor clearly denied it. Had he actually not agreed to the partition and not signed the Batwara Chitthi, he might have definitely asserted about non-occurrence of partition and Batwara Chitthi. The concealment of the fact and assertion to ignorance reveals that there had been family partition among plaintiff and defendant no. 1 and 2 and Batwara Chitthi was written with the consent of the plaintiff and that was signed by the plaintiff along with defendants and the witnesses.

From the statements of D.W.1 nam Sahai D.W. 3 Mohan Lal and DoW. 2 Lal Bahadur Singh (in whose presence the family partition took place) it is clearly evident that the parties were agreed upon in that partition and the Batwara Chrithies regarding their espective shares were prepared and signed by them. The statement of D.W.3 regarding subsequent improvement in the plots acquired as his share has been supported even by the deposition of the plaintiff in his cross-examination. This circumstances also supports the plea of the defendants regarding partition of land holding and the parties accordingly have been acting upon the alleged family partition.

Moreover, the defendant in his written statement has also taken plea that some plots which are joint tenancy of the plaintiff and defendants have not been included in the plaint. Khatauni extract for 1372 to 1374F of village Mataundh shows that the plaintiff and defendants are recorded as tenants but these plots as shown in extract have not been mentioned rather they have been concealed in the plaint. This also leads me to infer that the land shown in the plaint does not contain the entire holding of the parties.

In view of the above discussion I hold that there had been family partition among the parties and according to the terms therein they stated to act upon.

Issue decided in affirmative. The suit suffers defendants and is therefore liable to be dismissed.

Since suit deserves dismissal, it is needless to discuss other issues and the plaintiff is not entitled to any relief."

14. The judgment/decree passed in the proceeding under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act was maintained in appeal by the Additional Commissioner, as such, the Consolidation Officer has rightly held that the partition has already taken place but the Settlement Officer of Consolidation has illegally held that the fresh partition is to be made and the plea of the earlier partition is not proved.

15. So far as the registration of family settlement is concerned, the Apex Court in the case reported in 1976 (3) SCC 119, Kale and Others vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation and Others, has held in paragraph no.10 as under:-

"10. In other words to put the binding effect and the essentials of a family settlement in a concretised form, the matter may be reduced into the form of the following propositions:

"(1) The family settlement must be a bona fide one so as to resolve family disputes and rival claims by a fair and equitable division or allotment of properties between the various members of the family;

(2) The said settlement must be voluntary and should not be induced by fraud, coercion or undue influence;

(3) The family arrangement may be even oral in which case no registration is necessary;

(4) It is well settled that registration would be necessary only if the terms of the family arrangement are reduced into writing. Here also, a distinction should be made between a document containing the terms and recitals of a family arrangement made under the document and a mere memorandum prepared after the family arrangement had already been made either for the purpose of the record or for information of the court for making necessary mutation.

In such a case the memorandum itself does not create or extinguish any rights in immovable properties and therefore does not fall within the mischief of Section 17(2) of the Registration Act and is, therefore, not compulsorily registrable;

(5) The members who may be parties to the family arrangement must have some antecedent title, claim or interest even a possible claim in the property which is acknowledged by the parties to the settlement. Even if one of the parties to the settlement has no title but under the arrangement the other party relinquishes all its claims or titles in favour of such a person and acknowledges him to be the sole owner, then the antecedent title must be assumed and the family arrangement will be upheld and the courts will find no difficulty in giving assent to the same;

(6) Even if bona fide disputes, present or possible, which may not involve legal claims are settled by a bona fide family arrangement which is fair and equitable the family arrangement is final and binding on the parties to the settlement."

16. It is material to mention that the Settlement Officer of Consolidation has held that it is correct that there is no necessity for registration of the family settlement but the Chhitha Batwara was not taken into consideration on the ground that the same was not proved as well as the same has not been given effect without considering the finding recorded by the Consolidation Officer as well as the earlier decree passed in the suit under Section 176 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act.

17. It is material to mention that according to mutual family settlement the land given to the parties in both the villages were as under :-

Village	Vijai Shankar		Ram Sahai		Mohan Lal		Temple of Thakur Ji
	Bigha	Biswas	Bigha	Bis.	Bigha	Bis.	Bigha	Biswas
Mataundh	56	10	14	18	43	13	16	17.
Pachpahara	41	16	83	4	54	14	-
Total	98	6	98	2	98	7	16	17

18. The perusal of abovementioned family settlement demonstrate that all the three branches of the family have given almost equal share in the entire holding situated in the two villages which was just & proper family settlement to divide the family property. It is further material to mention that about 3 bighas of land was already recorded in the name of Thakur Ji and the total land jointly dedicated to the temple came to 19 Bighas 15 Biswas. A separate Chhitha signed by all the aforesaid persons was also prepared which was filed and is part of the record. The Consolidation Officer has recorded categorical findings of fact that mutual family settlement has been given effect in record as well as on spot as such there was no occasion to interfere with finding of fact recorded by Consolidation Officer.

19. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned order dated 14.7.1975 passed by respondent no.2/Settlement Officer of Consolidation, Hamirpur and 28.5.1981, passed by respondent no.1/Assistant Director of Consolidation are liable to be set aside and the same are hereby set aside.

20. The writ petition stands allowed. The order of the Consolidation Officer dated 16.1.1975 is maintained.

21. No order as to costs.

Issue(s) for consideration

(a) Whether a member of a joint Hindu family forfeits his/her right to ancestral/joint family property upon renouncing secular life and becoming a Sanyasi / Chela in a religious Math?
(b) Whether the family/heirs of a person, who became a sanyasi, later can reclaim ancestral joint family holdings?
(c) Whether the DDC erred in ignoring the prior gift deed (1941), will (1934), and family settlements on record?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law – U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953: Section 9-A, 11(1) - Khata No. 75 (Bhumidhari) and Khata No. 133 (Sirdari) located in Village Bahorpur, District Deoria. During the basic year of consolidation operations, these khatas were recorded in the names of Satya Narain Giri and Surya Bhan Giri.

Objections u/s 9-A(2) U.P.C.H. Act: Markandey Giri (Respondent No. 3): Claimed a 13/60th share as a co-parcener/co-tenure holder, asserting the land was ancestral joint family property (Sir / Khud-kasht / Grove) acquired by common ancestor Dalmardan Giri.
Udai Bhan & Raj Bhan (Respondents No. 4 & 5): Sons of Markandey Giri, filed a separate objection claiming a 7/30th share.

Defense by Recorded Tenure Holders: Satya Narain Giri and Surya Bhan Giri opposed the claims, contending that Markandey Giri had relinquished his family ties upon becoming a Chela of Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math. Consequently, neither Markandey nor his sons had any legal status or inheritance rights in the joint family property. They also relied on a 1941 registered gift deed and an earlier civil court decree from Suit No. 10 of 1910.

Procedural History:

- CO (12.11.1974): Granted co-tenancy rights to Markandey Giri.
- SOC (20.10.1975): Reversed the CO's order on appeal, rejecting Markandey's co-tenancy claim and declaring Satya Narain Giri and Surya Bhan Giri as equal (1/2 each) co-tenants.
- DDC (16.09.1982): Allowed the revision filed by Markandey, restoring his co-tenancy right to a 1/4th share. This led to cross-writ petitions. (Para 11)

B. A sanyasi can hold no property according to Hindu Law. He cannot get it even if he returns to the world again (Ghose Hibdoo has 2nd Edition P. 224. 781 Mayne Hindu Law. pp 677, 801, 816 - 7th Edition). (Para 14)

Respondent no.3/ Markandey became chela of Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math, as such, he cannot be granted co-tenancy right in the family of Raghunandan Giri as respondent no.3/ Markandey will get succession as chela of Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math. In Suit No.10 of 1910, a decree (dated 03.08.1910) has been passed that Raghubir Jati had ceased to be member of Giri family after he became Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math and the same principle was applicable in the case of respondent no.3. Perusal of the civil Court judgement/decree fully demonstrate that Raghubir (father of Markandey) had become Sanyasi as such, Raghubir was deprived to inherit joint family property and suit filed by Raghunandan (father of Satya Narain) was decreed. (Para 7, 15)

SOC considering the entire aspect of the matter has allowed the appeal (filed by petitioner u/s 11(1) of U.P.C.H. Act) and refused the co-tenancy granted to Markandey recording finding of fact that co-tenancy cannot be allowed in favour of respondent no.3/ Markandey as respondent no.3 become chela of Mahant of the Math. A gift deed dated 04.08.1941 and the will-deed dated 29.05.1934 were also taken into consideration by the SOC. The CO as well as DDC have failed to take into consideration the family settlement as well as gift-deed executed by Raghunandan Giri in the year 1941, which was acted upon in accordance with law. The evidence on record has been misread by the CO as well as DDC. (Para 7, 16)

Considering the categorical finding recorded by the SOC as well as the judgement and decree, which has attained finality, respondent no.3 as well as respondent nos.5 & 6 who are sons of respondent no.3 cannot be given co-tenancy as respondent no.3 become chela of Mahant of the Math. (Para 17)

Writ – B No. 11303 of 1982 (Satya Narain Giri): Allowed. The impugned revisional order of the DDC dated 16.09.1982 was set aside, and the order of the SOC dated 20.10.1975 (disallowing co-tenancy to Markandey Giri) was restored and maintained. (Para 18)
Writ – B No. 14250 of 1982 (Markandey Giri & Others): Dismissed.
Writ – B No. 1817 of 2024 (Anand Dev Giri & Another): Allowed. Respondents are permanently restrained from interfering with the petitioners' possession over the disputed khata. (E-4)

4. Common questions of law and facts are involved in all the three writ petitions, as such, all the three writ petitions are clubbed and heard together.

5. Brief facts of the case are that dispute relates to plots of khata nos.75 and 133 situated in village- Bahorpur, district- Deoria. Khata no.75 was bhumidhari khata and khata no.133 was sirdari khata. In the basic year of consolidation operation, the aforementioned khata in dispute were recorded in the name of petitioner- Satya Narain Giri along with the name of Surya Bhan Giri. Against the basic year entry of the khata in dispute, two sets of objections were filed under Section 9-A (2) of U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (hereinafter referred to as "U.P.C.H. Act"). First set of objection was filed by respondent no.3- Markandey alleging that khata in dispute was the self acquired property in nature of Sir / Khud-kasht / grove, which was acquired by Dalmardan Giri and the name of Sehdev Giri as well as Mahadev Giri was inherited by Kunj Behari, as such, respondent no.3 is a co-parcener and a member of undivided Hindu family, accordingly, entitled to be recorded as co-tenure holder along with recorded tenure holder, namely, Satya Narain Giri and Surya Bhan Giri having share in the khata in dispute as 13/60. Another set of objection was filed by respondent no.4-Udai Bhan as well as respondent no.5- Raj Bhan both are sons of Markandey alleging that khata in dispute was self acquired property of Dalmardan Giri, accordingly, respondent nos.4 & 5 are entitled to be recorded over khata in dispute having share 7/30. Claim of respondent nos.3, 4 & 5 was contested by the recorded tenure holder, namely, Satya Narain Giri and Surya Bhan Giri stating that respondent no.3 had become chela of Raghubir Jati who was head of the Chirraiyya Math, district- Deoria and he was no longer Giri, as such, legal status of respondent no.3 with the petitioner's family has come to an end. It was also contended by the petitioners before the Consolidation Officer that respondent no.3- Markandey was not Giri and so his sons who are respondent nos.4 & 5 to the instant petition were also not Giri and they are not successor or legal heirs of Raghunandan Giri. It was also contended by the petitioner before the Consolidation Officer that after death of Saha Dev Giri, the interest in the property did not devolve alone on Kunj Behari rather the same devolved on Kunj Behari, Raghunandan (petitioner's father) and Ram Lagan Giri. It was also contended on behalf of petitioners that after death of Kunj Behari, there was some dispute regarding the devolution of his share which has resulted in a mutation case between Raghunandan Giri and Ram Lagan Giri, accordingly, the said dispute was devolved under a family settlement under which 1/2 of the total share of Kunj Behari was given to Surya Bhan Giri and 1/2 share was given to Raghunandan Giri (father of petitioner). It has also been contended on behalf of petitioner that petitioners are in exclusive possession over the land in dispute and recorded over the disputed khata, as such, right of respondent no.3, if any, had ceased by adverse possession and ouster. Before the Consolidation Officer, the parties have adduced evidence in support of their cases. On behalf of petitioners a registered gift-deed dated 4.8.1941 executed by Raghunandan Giri in favour of petitioner no.1 was produced in which it has been mentioned that Markandey had become chela of Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math and since then he had no connection with the family of Raghunandan Giri. Consolidation Officer vide judgement dated 12.11.1974 decided the aforementioned title objection under Section 9-A (2) of U.P.C.H. Act and granted co-tennacy right in favour of respondent no.3 and decided the share of the parties. Objection of respondent nos.4 & 5 were rejected. Against the order of Consolidation Officer dated 12.11.1974, appeal under Section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act was filed by petitioners before Settlement Officer of Consolidation. Respondent no.3 also filed an appeal under Section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act as well as respondent nos.4 & 5 have also filed appeal under Section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act before Settlement Officer of Consolidation. All the aforementioned three appeals were clubbed and heard together by Settlement Officer of Consolidation. Settlement Officer of Consolidation vide order dated 20.10.1975 allowed the appeal filed by petitioner setting aside the order of Consolidation Officer and dismissed the appeal filed by respondent nos.3 to 5 as well as divided the share of Suryabhan Giri and Satya Narain Giri as 1/2 & 1/2 each in khata nos.75 & 133. Against the order of Settlement Officer of Consolidation dated 20.10.1975, three revisions, under Section 48 of U.P.C.H. Act were filed before Deputy Director of Consolidation. The Deputy Director of Consolidation vide order dated 16.9.1982 decided the revisions declaring the respondent no.3 as co-tenure holder of khata in dispute of 1/4 share. Hence, Writ-B No.11303 of 1982 has been filed on behalf of petitioner- Satya Narain Giri for the following reliefs:

"i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorary quashing the mudgments and orders dated 16.9.1982 passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation (Opposite Party no. 1) and the order dated 12.11. 1974 passed by the Consolidation Officer-II (Opposite Party no.2) and contained in annexures 3 and 5 respectively.

(ii) Issue writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties not to give effect to the aforesaid judgments."

Writ-B No.14250 of 1982 has been filed on behalf of petitioner- Markandey for the following reliefs:

"a) issue writ direction and orders in the natureof certiorari calling for the record of the case and quash the order of the respondent no.2 dated 20-10-1975 in its entirety and the orders of the respondent nos. 1 and 3 dated 12-11-1974 and 16-9-1982 respectively to the extent they are against the petitioners."

Writ-B No.1817 of 2024 has been filed on behalf of petitioners- Anand Dev Giri And Another for the following reliefs:

"I. To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the Respondents to not to interfere in the possession of the petitioner over the land in dispute which has became final between the parties.

II. To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the Respondent No. 2 to pass any appropriate order on the claim made by the petitioners with regard to interference of the Respondents in possession over the land in dispute in absence of any order passed in their favour within a fix period of time."

6. Parties have exchanged their pleadings in Writ- B Nos.11303 of 1982 & 14250 of 1982.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner in Writ- B Nos.11303 of 1982 & 1817 of 2024 submitted that respondent no.3/ Markandey became chela of Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math, as such, he cannot be granted co-tenancy right in the family of Raghunandan Giri as respondent no.3/ Markandey will get succession as chela of Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math. He further submitted that in Suit No.10 of 1910, a decree has been passed that Raghubir Jati had ceased to be member of Giri family after he became Mahant Raghubir of Chirraiyya Math and the same principle was applicable in the case of respondent no.3. He further submitted that Settlement Officer of Consolidation has rightly refused the co-tenancy right to respondent no.3 by allowing the appeal filed by petitioner under Section 11 (1) of U.P.C.H. Act. He further submitted that the Consolidation Officer as well as Deputy Director of Consolidation has failed to take into consideration the family settlement as well as gift-deed executed by Raghunandan Giri in the year 1941, which was acted upon in accordance with law. He further submitted that the evidence on record has been misread by the Consolidation Officer as well as Deputy Director of Consolidation, as such, the order passed by the Consolidation Officer and Deputy Director of Consolidation cannot be sustained in the eye of law. He placed the judgement & decree passed in Suit No.10 of 1910 which is annexed as Annexure No.2 in Writ- B No.1817 of 2024 in order to demonstrate that there is no illegality in exercise of jurisdiction by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation refusing co-tenancy right to respondent no.3. He placed reliance upon the following judgements in support of his argument:

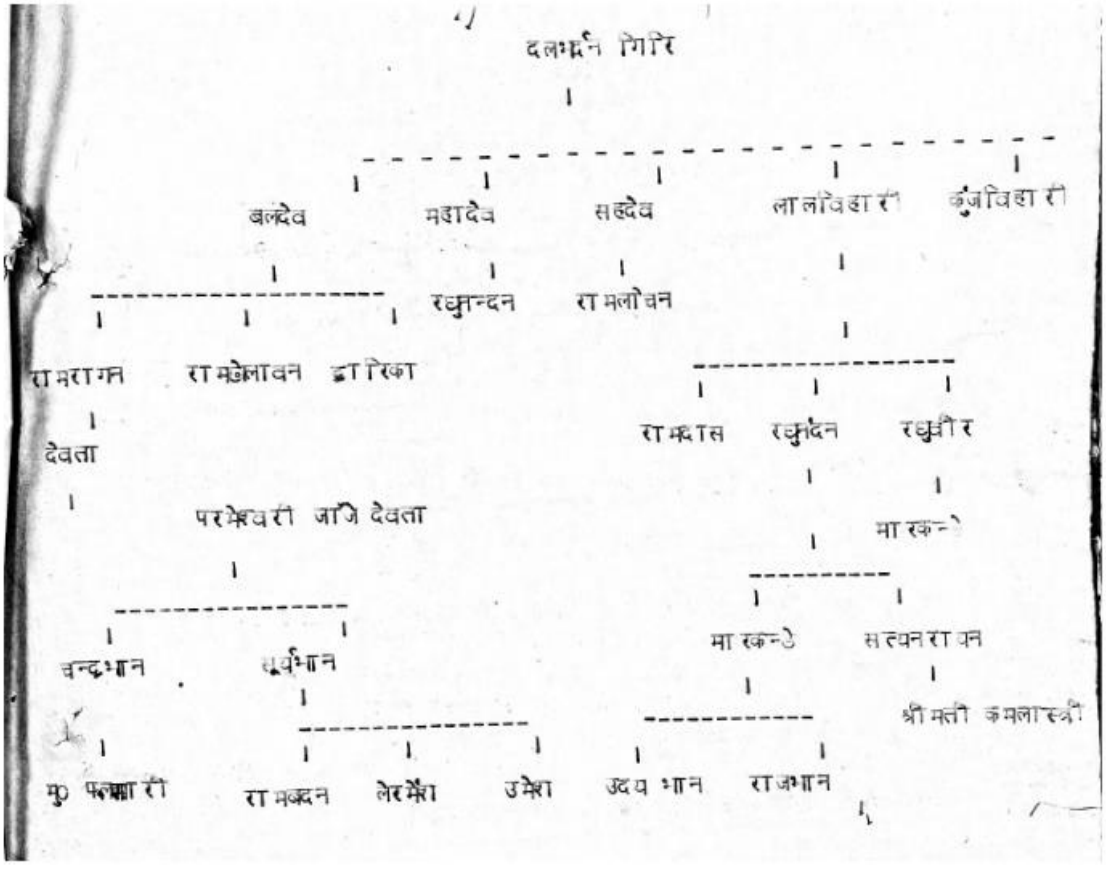
"i. 2024 Law Suit (Del) 1349, Bhaktivedanta Book Trust India vs. WWW Friendwithbooks Co.

ii. 1931 LawSuit (All) 5, Chaube Madho Rao vs. Chaube Gur Narain.

iii. (1981) 3 Supreme Court Cases 689, Shri Krishna Singh vs. Mathura Ahir and others."

8. On the other hand, Mr. R.C. Singh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Kedar Nath Mishra, learned counsel for the private respondent in Writ- B Nos.11303 of 1982 & 1817 of 2024 as well as learned counsel for the petitioner in Writ -B No.14250 of 1982 submitted that the decree alleged to be passed in Civil Suit 10 of 1910 was fraudulent, as such, no reliance can be placed upon the same. He further submitted that the title objections were rightly filed by private respondent claiming co-tenancy right being member of the family. He further submitted that the Consolidation Officer has rightly granted co-tenancy right to respondent no.3/ Markandey but Settlement Officer of Consolidation has illegally allowed the appeal filed by petitioner setting aside the order of Consolidation Officer and refusing the claim of co-tenancy to respondent no.3. He further submitted that Deputy Director of Consolidation has allowed the claim of co-tenancy but share was not rightly determined, accordingly, Writ- B No.14250 of 1982 has been filed on behalf of Markandey, Uday Bhan and Raj Bhan for granting relief to respondent nos.3, 4 & 5 in accordance with law. He further submitted that there is no provision in Hindu Shastra that once person renounced the world, cannot come back and lead domestic life. He further submitted that the share of the petitioners of Writ- B No.14250 of 1982 has not been rightly determined, as such, the matter should be sent back before Deputy Director of Consolidation to decide the share of the parties in proper manner. He further submitted that the averment made in Writ- B No.14250 of 1982 has not been denied by filing proper counter affidavit, as such, Writ- B No.14250 of 1982 should be allowed treating the averment made in the writ petition as admitted. He further submitted that the Writ-B No.1817 of 2024 filed for mandamus cannot be entertained and liable to be dismissed.



9. Mr. Neeraj Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos.6, 7, 8, 9 & 10 in Writ- B No.11303 of 1982 and on behalf of respondent nos.5, 9, 10, 11 & 12 in Writ- B No.14250 of 182 submitted that Writ- B No.11303 of 1982 should be dismissed. He further submitted that there is no illegality in exercise of jurisdiction by the consolidation authorities declaring 1/2 share of Surya Bhan Giri in disputed khata nos.75 & 133.

10. I have considered the argument advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

11. There is no dispute about the fact that the dispute under Section 9-A (2) of U.P.C.H. Act filed against the basic year entry was decided by the Consolidation Officer granting co-tenancy of respondent no.3 but in appeal the order of Consolidation Officer was set aside and claim of co-tenancy setup by respondent nos.3, 4 & 5 was refused. There is also no dispute about the fact that the revision filed by respondent nos.3, 4 & 5 was allowed maintaining the order of Consolidation Officer granting co-tenancy in favour of respondent no.3.

12. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the matter, family pedigree as mentioned in the order of Consolidation Officer will be necessary which is as under:

13. Perusal of the issues framed before the Consolidation Officer will be also necessary, which are as under:

14. Perusal of the judgement and decree passed in the suit no.10 of 1910 will be also necessary, which are as under:

"In the Court of Addl. Sub-Judge of Gorakhpur Present: B. Harbendhan Lal Saheb, Addl. Sub Judge Suit No. 10 of 1910
Goshain Raghunandan Giri. ---------- Plaintiff.
Versus
Mahanth Raghubir Jati. ---------- -- Defendant.

The suit is for a declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of and in possession of the property in dispute and that the defendant has nothing to do with it.

The parties to the suit are brothers. They lived jointly and were in possession of the property in dispute as members of the joint Hindu family. Three year ago when defendant left to his home, gave up his connection with his family, left the Grihast Ashram and became a Sanyasi. In Magh 13/14 (January, 1910), he became Chela and lives in Math. Plaintiff allegation is that all the rights which the defendant had in the property was extinguished and the plaintiff alone is in possession; that one Mahabir defendant's karinda interferes in plaintiff's possession hence this suit.

The defendant says that he cannot be deprived of the property although he left the Girhast Ashram and given up all connections:

Issues:

1. Has the defendant any right in the property in dispute and have all his rights been extinguished on account of his having become a Sanyasi?

2. Is the plaintiff entitled to the relief claimed?

FINDINGS

It is admitted that the defendant became a Sanyasi has retired from the world and interest into a religion's life. It is also admitted that he has left all connections with his family and lives in a Math and has given up Girhast Ashram and his connections with his family. The defendant also admits that the plaintiff is in possession of all the property. There is nothing to show the from the time he entered a religions life, he ever remained in possession of any portion of the property and managed it. Defendant's retirement appears to be an absolute one and amounts to a civil death. He has of his own accord abandoned all earthily interests. The facts of the case are admitted, they absolute abandonment by the defendant of all secular property of a complete and final withdrawal from earthly affairs. The defendant having renounced the world all the property rested in him passed to his heirs or to the other embers of the joint family 1e. the Craigtill. A sanyasi can hold no property according to Hindu Law. He cannot get it even if he returns to the world again (Ghose Hibdoo has 2nd Edition P. 224. 781 Mayne Hindu Law. pp 677, 801, 816 - 7th Edition). My finding on both issues is against the defendant and I hold that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief claimed.

The plaintiff's claim is therefore decreed with costs.

Sd / Illegible
03.08.1910"

15. Perusal of the civil Court judgement / decree dated 3.8.1910 as quoted above fully demonstrate that Raghubir (father of Markandey) had become Sanyasi as such, Raghubir was deprived to inherit joint family property and suit filed by Raghunandan (father of Satya Narain) was decreed.

16. Settlement Officer of Consolidation considering the entire aspect of the matter has allowed the appeal and refused the co-tenancy granted to Markandey recording finding of fact that co-tenancy cannot be allowed in favour of respondent no.3/ Markandey as respondent no.3 become chela of Raghunandan Giri of the Math. A gift deed dated 4.8.1941 and the will-deed dated 29.5.1934 were also taken into consideration by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation in holding that respondent no.3 cannot be given co-tenancy after becoming chela of the Mahant in the Math.

17. Considering the categorical finding recorded by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation as well as the judgement and decree passed by the Civil Court in Suit no.10 of 1910, which has attained finality, respondent no.3 as well as respondent nos.5 & 6 who are sons of respondent no.3 cannot be given co-tenancy as respondent no.3 become chela of Mahant of the Math.

18. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned revisional order dated 16.9.1982 passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation in Writ- B No.11303 of 1982 is liable to be set aside and same is hereby set aside.

19. The Writ- B No.11303 of 1982 is accordingly allowed and order passed by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation dated 20.10.1975 is hereby maintained.

20. In view of the above, the Writ- B No.14250 of 1982 filed by petitioner-Markandey is dismissed considering the fact that Writ- B No.11303 of 1982 filed by Satya Narain has been allowed on merit maintaining the order of Settlement Officer of Consolidation.

21. The Writ- B No.1817 of 2024 filed by petitioners- Anand Dev Giri and another is allowed and respondents are restrained from interfering with the possession of the petitioners with respect to the khata in dispute in any manner.

22. No order as to costs.

Issue(s) for consideration

When do land acquisition proceedings stand legally "initiated" under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894? Does the mere internal dating/proposal of a notification on 27.12.2013 constitute initiation, or does initiation occur upon actual publication in the Official Gazette / newspapers?

(b) Whether land acquisition proceedings where Section 4(1) publication occurred after 01.01.2014 (the date on which the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 came into force repealing the 1894 Act) are void ab initio and non-est in law?

(c) Whether saving provisions protect acquisition proceedings that were published after the 1894 Act had already been repealed?

Headnotes

A. Land Reform Law – Land Acquisition Act, 1894: Section 4(1); Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act: Section 4 - On 05.02.2007, the petitioner purchased land measuring 0.5020 hectares out of Khasra No. 431P situated at Village Aahmamau, Tehsil Sarojni Nagar, District Lucknow, via a registered sale deed from recorded tenure holders. A notification u/s 4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was internally signed/dated 27.12.2013 for a total area of 2.737 hectares (including 0.720 hectares of Khasra No. 431P). Newspaper Publication was in Hindi dailies Dainik Jagran on 02.01.2014 and Amar Ujala on 03.01.2014. Published in the U.P. Official Gazette on 04.01.2014. Public Announcement/Munadi was Carried out and published in the Official Gazette on 06.06.2014. Section 6 Declaration was issued u/s 6 r/w Section 17 of the 1894 Act on 23.01.2015. Award declared on 13.07.2016 and subsequently amended on 02.12.2022. Physical possession of the land was never taken from the petitioner, nor was any compensation paid or received.

B. Point of initiation of acquisition proceedings under the 1894 Act is the issuance and publication of the Section 4(1) notification in the Official Gazette. (Para 27, 28, 31)

Merely putting the date "27.12.2013" on an internal draft/notification does not amount to initiation. Because newspaper publications occurred on 02.01.2014/03.01.2014 and Gazette publication took place on 04.01.2014, the acquisition proceedings were legally initiated after 01.01.2014. (Para 40)

C. Effect of Repeal (Section 114 of 2013 Act) - The 1894 Act stood completely repealed with effect from 01.01.2014 pursuant to Section 114 of the 2013 Act. Section 24(1) of the 2013 Act saves/regulates only those acquisition proceedings that were legally initiated under the 1894 Act prior to 01.01.2014. Section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 protects accrued rights, liabilities, or proceedings already instituted under a repealed law prior to repeal. It does not authorize the fresh institution of proceedings under a dead/repealed statute after its repeal date. (Para 42 to 47)

Proceedings initiated under a repealed law after 01.01.2014 are without jurisdiction, null, and void ab initio. In the case at hand not only the date of notification u/s 4(1) but also the date of notification/declaration u/s 6 r/w Section 16 is subsequent to 01.01.2014 and all the proceedings under Act, 1894 have been held after 01.01.2014, therefore, the entire acquisition proceedings are a nullity in the eyes of law as they have neither been initiated nor undertaken under the Act, 2013 which was the law applicable on and after 01.01.2014. (Para 48, 49)

D. Delay & Laches - The LDA argued that the petition was barred by delay as the notification was issued in 2013/2014 and challenged in 2023. The Court rejected this objection, holding that an acquisition proceeding initiated under a repealed enactment is a fundamental jurisdictional nullity (coram non judice), which can be challenged whenever enforced, especially when the owner remains in continuous physical possession. (Para 53)

Acquisition proceedings are for construction of a 45 meter public road i.e. for a public purpose, though, they have remained pending since 2014. The total land which has been acquired is only about 2.737 hectares which is not a large tract of land and as regards the land of the petitioner which is part of acquired land, it is only 0.5020 hectares, therefore, instead of quashing the acquisition proceedings equities need to be balanced in a way so that on the one hand the public purpose behind the acquisition is not defeated and on the other hand the violation of valuable rights of the petitioner is suitably compensated. This can be done if the concerned opposite parties pay compensation under the Act, 2013 to the petitioner based on the rates etc. acceptable as on date of this judgment and not on the basis of date of the impugned notification of 2014 u/s 4(1) referred earlier. (Para 54)

Writ petition disposed of. (E-4)

1. Heard Shri Amrendra Nath Tripathi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Sanjeev Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for the Lucknow Development Authority and Ms. Isha Mittal, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The petitioner herein seeks the following reliefs:-

"i) Issue writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari for quashing the impugned notification issued under Section 4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 dated 27.12.2013 published on 04.01.2014 (Annexure No. 1) and impugned declaration under Section 6(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 dated 23.01.2015 (Annexure No. 2), with respect to the land of the Petitioner bearing Khasra No. 431P, admeasuring area 0.5020 hectare situated at Village ' Aahmamau, Tehsil ' Sarojni Nagar, District ' Lucknow;

Or

Issue appropriate writ, order or direction to declare the acquisition of part of Khasra No. 431P admeasuring are 0.5020 situated at Village ' Aahmamau, Tehsil ' Sarojni Nagar, District ' Lucknow, i.e. land of the Petitioner, stood as lapsed;

(ii) Issue writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the Respondents not to interfere with the possession of the Petitioner over the land in question bearing Khasra No. 431P, admeasuring are 0.5020 hectare situated at Village ' Aahmamau, Tehsil ' Sarojni Nagar, District ' Lucknow, during the pendency of this writ petition."

3. The petitioner purchased land measuring 0.5020 hectares forming part of Khasra No. 431P situated at Village' Aahmamau, Tehsil ' Sarojni Nagar, District ' Lucknow vide registered sale deed dated 05.02.2007 from the recorded tenure holders. A notification dated 27.12.2013 for acquisition of the said land was published in Hindi daily newspaper Dainik Jagran on 02.01.2014 and in Hindi Newspaper Amar Ujala on 03.01.2014 under Section 4(1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act, 1894'). The said notification dated 27.12.2013 was then published in the Official Gazette of the Government of Uttar Pradesh on 04.01.2014. A public notice/munadi/announcement in respect of the aforementioned notification was published in the Official Gazette of the Government of U.P. on 06.02.2014 and munadi/announcement was accordingly carried out on the said date. A declaration under Section 6 read with Section 1 of the Act, 1894 was issued on 23.01.2015. Award in respect of the land in question was declared on 13.07.2016 which was amended on 02.12.2022. These facts are admitted to the opposite parties in their counter affidavits.

4. The total area of the land which was the subject mater of the aforesaid notifications measured 2.737 hectares including 0.720 hectares of land comprising Khasra No. 431-P.

5. The question which falls for our consideration is as to whether the land acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894 had commenced prior to 01.01.2014 which is the date on which the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act, 2013') came into force thereby repealing the old Act, 1894 and also as to what it is the application of saving clause contained in Section 6 of the Act, 1897, if any, in this context; whether aforesaid notifications under the Act, 1894 were published after repeal of the said enactment by Section 114 of the Act, 2013 or not, if so, what are the consequences in law as to validity of acquisition proceedings held as a consequence thereof.

6. The submission of Shri Amrendra Nath Tripathi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Sanjeev Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner was that the entire exercise of acquisition has been undertaken under a repealed enactment, therefore, it is void ab initio. The award was initially rendered in 2016 which was amended in 2022 based on the acquisition proceedings under a repealed enactment, therefore, none of it is sustainable.

7. It was also his submission that even on the basis of the repealed enactment the acquisition proceedings are not sustainable, firstly, because the timeline prescribed in Section 6 of the Act, 1894 was violated. Secondly, the award was rendered more than two years after the relevant notification, therefore, it was also hit by Section 11-A of the Old Act, 1894 which in any case stood repealed.

8. He invited our attention to averments made in Para 21 and 24 of writ petition specifically stating the physical possession of the land has not yet been taken from the petitioner nor compensation has been received, which according to him, have not been denied in counter affidavit of opposite party no. 4- Special Land Acquisition Officer nor of the Lucknow Development Authority.

9. Per contra Ms. Isha Mittal, learned Additional Chief Standing for the State tried to justify the impugned acquisition on the basis of the notification being dated 27.12.2013 and also a Government Order dated 13.07.2016.

10. Shri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for Lucknow Development Authority submitted that the writ petition was delayed and as, the acquisition proceedings had been initiated way back in 2013/14 and we are now in 2026, therefore, this Court should decline to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction in the matter. On the merits of issue he submitted that merely because notifications were published whether it be in the newspapers or the Official Gazette or the public notice was after 01.01.2014 did not mean that the acquisition proceedings had not been initiated prior to it, as, the proposal/exercise for acquisition had started much prior to 01.01.2014 and that is how the notification is also dated 27.12.2013, but, he could not deny the fact that the publication of the notification referred in Section 4(1) took place after 01.01.2014.

11. The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act, 2013') was formulated by the Parliament and undisputedly came into force on 01.01.2014 by a Notification of the Central Government in the Official Gazette referable to Section 1(3) thereof. Section 114 of the Act, 2013 reads as under:-

"114. Repeal and saving.- (1) The Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894) is hereby repealed.*

(2) Save as otherwise provided in this Act the repeal under sub-section (1) shall not be held to prejudice or affect the general application of Section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (10 of 1897) with regard to the effect of repeals."

12. Apparently, the Act, 1894 stood repealed by the aforesaid Act subject to the saving clause contained in Section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897. Section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 reads as under:-

"6. Effect of repeal.- Where this Act, or any [Central Act]'or Regulation made after the commencement of this Act, repeals any enactment hitherto made or hereafter to be made, then, unless a different intention appears, the repeal shall not -*

(a) revive anything not in force or existing at the time at which the repeal takes effect; or

(b) affect the previous operation of any enactment so repealed or any thing duly done or suffered thereunder; or

(c) affect any right, privilege, obligation or liability acquired, accrued or incurred under any enactment so repealed; or

(d) affect any penalty, forfeiture or punishment incurred in respect of any offence committed against any enactment so repealed; or

(e) affect any investigation, legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such right, privilege, obligation, liability, penalty, forfeiture or punishment as aforesaid;

and any such investigation, legal proceeding or remedy may be instituted, continued or enforced, and any such penalty, forfeiture or punishment may be imposed as if the repealing Act or Regulation had not been passed.

6-A. Repeal of Act making textual amendment in Act or Regulation.- Where any [Central Act]'or Regulation made after the commencement of this Act repeals any enactment by which the text of any [Central Act]"or Regulation was amended by the express omission, insertion or substitution of any matter, then, unless a different intention appears, the repeal shall not affect the continuance of any such amendment made by the enactment so repealed and in operation at the time of such repeal."*

13. In this context, we may also refer to Section 24 of the Act, 2013 which deals with certain cases when land acquisition process under Act, 1894 shall be deemed to have lapsed. Section 24 of the Act, 2013 reads as under:-

"24. Land acquisition process under Act No. 1 of 1894'shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894),-

(a) where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or

(b) where an award under said section 11 has been made, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act, as if the said Act has not been repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where an award under the said section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of this Act but the physical possession of the land has not been taken or the compensation has not been paid the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

Provided that where an award has been made and compensation in respect of a majority of land holdings has not been deposited in the account of the beneficiaries, then, all beneficiaries specified in the notification for acquisition under section 4 of the said Land Acquisition Act, shall be entitled to compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Act."

14. It is only in Section 24(1) of the Act, 2013 that the word 'initiated' has been used by the Legislature in the context of initiation of land acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894 otherwise the said word has not been used nor defined in the Act, 1894 nor for that matter in the Act, 2013.

15. According to Sub-section (1) of Section 24 of the Act, 2013- notwithstanding anything contained in the said Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings 'initiated' under the Act, 1894, (a) where no award under Section 11 of the Act, 1894 has been made, then, all provisions of the Act, 2013 relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or (b) where an award has been rendered under Section 11 of the Act, 1894, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act i.e. Act, 1894, as if the said Act has not been repealed.

16. Sub-section (2) of Section 24 of the Act, 2013 came up for consideration before a Five Judges Bench of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Indore Development Authority Vs. Manoharlal and Ors. reported in (2020) 8 SCC 129, however, we are not much concerned with Sub-section 2 of Section 24 of the Act, 2013.

17. Sub-section (1) of Section 24 of the Act, 2013 would be of relevance only to ascertain as to whether land acquisition proceedings were initiated under the Act, 1894 in the case at hand or not so as to consider as to how far, if at all, Section 24 of the Act, 2013 would apply and if it does not apply, then, what would be the consequence upon validity of the acquisition proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894, if it was done after 01.01.2014; whether it would be ab initio void.

18. In this context we have considered the scheme of the Act, 1894 to ascertain as to what is the point of initiation of acquisition proceedings under the said enactment in the light of various decisions on the subject. In this context we may refer to Part II of the Act, 1894, the heading 'Acquisition' and the sub-heading 'Preliminary Investigation' . Section 4 occurring in the said part reads as under:-

"4. Publication of preliminary notification and powers of officers thereupon.- (1) Whenever it appears to the appropriate Government'that land in any locality is needed or'is likely to be needed for any public purpose or for a company,'a notification to that effect shall be published in the Official Gazette and in two daily newspapers circulating in that locality of which at least one shall be in the regional language and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality (the last of the dates of such publication and the giving of such public notice, being hereinafter referred to as the date of the publication of the notification).

(2) Thereupon it shall be lawful for any officer, either, generally or specially authorised by such Government in this behalf, and for his servants and workmen,- to enter upon and survey and take levels of any land in such locality;

to dig or bore in the sub-soil;

to do all other acts necessary to ascertain whether the land is adapted for such purpose;

to set out the boundaries of the land proposed to be taken and the intended line of the work (if any) proposed to be made thereon;

to mark such levels, boundaries and line by placing marks and cutting trenches; and,

where otherwise the survey cannot be completed and the levels taken and the boundaries and line marked, to cut down and clear away any part of any standing crops, fence or jungle:

Provided that no person shall enter into any building or upon any enclosed Court or garden attached to a dwelling-house (unless with the consent of the occupier thereof) without previously giving such occupier at least seven days notice in writing of his intention to do so."

19. On a bare reading of the aforesaid provision what comes out is that whenever it appears to the appropriate Government-that land in any locality is needed or-is likely to be needed for any public purpose or for a company,-a notification to that effect shall be published in the Official Gazette and in two daily newspapers circulating in that locality of which at least one shall be in the regional language and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality (the last of the dates of such publication and the giving of such public notice, being referred to thereafter as the date of publication of the notification), meaning thereby, the date of last of the three notices/ publications referred earlier would be the date of publication of the notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894.

20. It is only thereafter that it shall be lawful for any officer, either generally or specially authorized by such Government in this behalf, and for his servants or workmen - to enter upon and survey and take levels of any land in such locality; to dig or bore in the sub-soil; to do all other acts necessary to ascertain whether the land is adapted for such purpose; to set out the boundaries of the land proposed to be taken and the intended line of the work (if any) proposed to be made thereon; to mark such levels, boundaries and line by placing marks and cutting trenches; and where otherwise the survey cannot be completed and the levels taken and the boundaries and line marked, to cut down and clear away any part of any standing crops, fence or jungle: provided that no person shall enter into any building or upon any enclosed Court or garden attached to a dwelling-house

(unless with the consent of the occupier thereof) without previously giving such occupier at least seven days notice in writing of his intention to do so. The aforesaid is evident from a reading of Sub-section (2) of Section 4 of the Act, 1894, therefore, any preliminary investigation as to the investigation can be undertaken by any officer of the appropriate Government only after the date of publication of notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 which has to be last of the dates of such publication and the giving of public notice as referred therein. Prior to the aforesaid, it can not be said that the land acquisition proceedings have been initiated.

21. Thereafter, under Section 5 of the Act, 1894 the officer so authorized shall at the time of such entry pay or tender payment for all necessary damage to be done as aforesaid, and, in case of dispute as to the sufficiency of the amount so paid or tendered, he shall at once refer the dispute to the decision of the Collector or other Chief Revenue Officer of the district, and such decision shall be final.

22. Section 5-A of the Act, 1894 deals with objections to the acquisition of land or of any land in the locality and the procedure for hearing and disposal of such objections.

23. Section 6 of the Act, 1894 deals with declaration of intended acquisition. According to Sub-section (1) of Section 6 subject to the provisions of Part VII of the Act, 1894 when the appropriate Government'is satisfied, after considering the report, if any, made under section 5-A sub-section (2), that any particular land is needed for a public purpose, or for a Company, a declaration shall be made to that effect under the signature of a Secretary to such Government or of some other officer duly authorised to certify its orders, and different declarations may be made from time to time in respect of different parcels of any land covered by the same notification under Section 4 sub-section (1), irrespective of whether one report or different reports has or have been made (wherever required) under section 5-A sub-section (2). Other provisions are also contained in Section 6 which are not very relevant for our purposes.

24. The question as to when are land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894, including the question as to whether such initiation is by a notification under Section 4(1) or on a declaration under Section 6 of the Act, 1894, has been considered in various decisions.

25. In Indrapuri Griha Nirman Sahkari Samiti Ltd. Vs. State of Rajasthan reported in (1975) 4 SCC 296 a Constitution Bench of Hon'ble the Supreme Court held that land acquisition proceedings commence with the notification under'Section 4'of the Act. Though, the Constitution Bench in the said case was considering the Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act, however, another Bench of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Laxman Lal v. State of Rajasthan reported in (2013) 3 SCC 764 has held that Section 4 of the Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act is identical to Section 4 of the Act, 1894, just as Section 6 thereof is similar to Section 6 of the Act, 1894, therefore, the aforesaid declaration by the Constitution Bench in the context of Section 4 of the Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act would apply on all its fours to the scheme of the Act, 1894 as has been held by a three Judges Bench of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in a case (2023) 6 SCC 512; Haryana State Industrial and Infrastructure Development Corporation Ltd. and Ors. Vs. Deepak Aggarwal and Ors. Para 17 and 18 of the judgment in the case of Deepak Aggarwal (supra) are quoted hereinbelow:-

"17. In Indrapuri Griha Nirman Sahakari Samiti 'case a Constitution Bench held thus: (SCC p. 297, para 12)

'12. Land acquisition proceedings commence with the notification under'Section 4'of the Act.'

It is true that the Constitution Bench in Indrapur case was not considering the question whether it is issuance and publication of a notification under' Section 4(1)' of the LA Act or the declaration that the land is required for public purpose under'Section 6'of the LA Act, that tantamounts to initiation or commencement of the 'land acquisition proceedings under' the LA Act. In fact, the Constitution Bench was considering the challenge against the notifications under Sections 4'and'6'of the Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act, 1953. But then, a two-Judge Bench of this Court in Laxman Lal v. State of Rajasthan' held that LA Act and Section 6 of Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act is similar to'Section 6'of the L.A. Act.

18. Therefore, the declaration of the position of 'Section 4'of the LA Act by the Constitution of Bench in Indrapur case that land acquisition proceedings commence with the notification under 'Section 4'of the Act cannot be ignored neither on the ground that it was held so while considering the said provisions in the Rajasthan Land Acquisition Act nor on the ground that it was not made upon consideration of the question as to whether it is'Section 4'or'Section 6 of the LA Act that marks the point of initiation of land acquisition proceedings under the 'LA Act.'

26. In V.K.M. Kattha Industries (P) Ltd. Vs. State of Haryana reported in (2013) 9 SCC 338 after considering the provisions of Sections 4, 5-A and 6 of the Act, 1894, a three Judges Bench of Hon'ble the Supreme Court held that among the above provisions, Section 4 of the Act empowers the appropriate Government to initiate proceedings for the acquisition of land. It was so held while considering the contention of the appellant that publication of notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 was not in accordance with the mandate provided in the statute and while looking into the scheme of the Act, 1894 for answering the same.

27. The Supreme Court of India in an earlier decision reported in AIR 1967 SC 1704; Khub Chand and Ors. Vs. State of Rajasthan and Ors. held that the notification/ public notice referred in Section 4 of the Act, 1894 was mandatory and that the provisions of a statute conferring power on the Government to compulsorily acquire lands have to be strictly construed. Noticing the language used in Section 4 Sub-section (1) of the Act, 1894 it held that the object underlying the said provision is obvious. Under Sub-section (2) of Section 4 of the Act, after such a notice was given as is referred in Sub-section (1) of Section 4, the officer authorised by the Government in that behalf could enter the land and interfere with the possession of the owner in the manner prescribed thereunder. The legislature thought that it was absolutely necessary that before such officer can enter the land of another, the owner thereof should have to clear notice of the intended entry which is obviously a reference to the notice under Sub-section (1) of Section 4.

28. It was further observed in Khub Chand (supra)' the fact that the owner may have notice of the particulars of the intended acquisition under Section 5(2) does not serve the purpose of Section 4, for such a notice shall be given after the appropriate officer or officers enter the land and submit the particulars mentioned in Section 4. The objects of the two sections was held to be different. The object of one, section 4(1), was to give intimation to the person whose land is sought to be acquired, of the intention of the officer to enter his land before he does so and that of the other [Section 4(2)] was to enable him to know the particulars of the land which is sought to be acquired. The Supreme Court emphasized the use of the word 'thereupon and shall be lawful' under Section 4(2) to hold that the said expression indicated that unless such a public notice [as is referred in Section 4(1)] is given, the officer or his servants cannot enter the land. It is a necessary condition for the exercise of the power of entry.

29. In this context it considered an earlier Constitution Bench decision rendered in the case of Babu Barkya Thakur Vs. State of Bombay reported in AIR 1960 SC 1203 as also the issue involved in the said case as to whether an omission in the notification under Section 4 to mention the public purpose could be validated by a subsequent declaration in Section Section 6 under the Act, 1894 and held that observations made in the said case can not be an authority for the position that, if a public notice of the notification was not given as prescribed in Section 4, it can be ignored. From a reading of the judgment in Khub Chand (supra) it is evident that it is a notification under Section 4(1) which is starting point of acquisition proceeding under the Act, 1894.

30. In the case of Deepak Aggarwal (supra) also the Supreme Court considered the decision of Babu Barkya Thakur's case (supra) as referred in a subsequent decision in M/s Fomento Resorts And Hotels Ltd. Vs. Gustavo Ranato Da Cruz Pinto and Others reported in (1985) 2 SCC 152, and held that a careful scanning of all the decisions cited by both sides would thus reveal that all those decisions hold that land acquisition proceedings under the'L.A. Act begin with the publication of a notification under sub-section (1) of'Section 4. A declaration under'Section 6'of the L.A. Act is one of the steps under the'L.A. Act'which ultimately culminates into the conclusion of the proceedings by making an award and taking over possession of the acquired land. A declaration under'Section 6'cannot be made without holding an inquiry unless urgency clause under'Section 17'is applied. Publication of a notification under sub-section (1) of'Section 4'of the L.A. Act is condition precedent for taking further steps. Hence, such a notification is the starting point of acquisition proceedings under the 'L.A. Act. The initiation of the proceedings is by the publication of the notification under sub-section (1) of'Section 4'of the L.A. Act. Thus, it clearly opined that a notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 is the starting point of the acquisition proceeding under the said enactment and that initiation of proceedings is by publication of the notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894.

31. Thereafter, in the case of Deepak Aggarwal (supra) it proceeded to consider the meaning of the word 'initiated' used in Section 24(1) of the Act, 2013 keeping in mind the context in which it has been used and also keeping in mind the law that all interpretations must subserve and help implementation of the intention of the Act concerned. After referring to the object behind enactment of the Act, 2013, Article 300-A etc. and also taking into consideration the dictionary meaning of the word 'initiated' as defined in Webster's Third New International Dictionary and Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, it opined as under:-

'33. The words 'initiate' or 'initiated' are not defined under the'LA Act'and also under the 2013 Act. Hence, to ascribe its meaning the dictionary meaning of the word has to be looked into. In Webster's Third New International Dictionary, the word 'initiate' has inter alia been defined thus:

'to begin or set going: make a beginning of: perform or facilitate the first actions, steps, or stages of:'

In Shorter Oxford English Dictionary the word 'initiate' is defined as:

'to begin, commence, enter upon, to introduce, set going, originate.'

34. In the light of the above discussion and taking note of the legislative intention we have no hesitation to hold that the point of initiation of land acquisition proceedings under the'LA Act'for the purpose of'Section 24(1)'of the 2013 Act, is issuance and publication of'Section 4(1)'notification in the Official Gazette of the appropriate Government.

35. We think it only befitting to supplement further reasons for supporting our conclusion as above. A perusal of'Section 4'of the LA Act would reveal that a preliminary Notification under'Section 4(1)'is issued whenever it appears to the appropriate Government that land in any locality is needed or likely to be needed for any public purpose. The said formal expression of the decision takes concrete shape and forms only on its publication in the Official Gazette. It is only upon issuance and publication of a notification under'Section 4(1)'that any officer, either generally or specially authorised by the appropriate Government and his servants and workmen could lawfully enter upon and survey and take levels of any land in such locality in terms of sub-section (2) thereof.

36. In the'circumstances, it is only worthy to refer to'Section 4'of the LA Act as a whole. They read thus:

"4. Publication of preliminary notification and power of officers thereupon. - (1) Whenever it appears to the [appropriate Government] the land in any locality [is needed or] is likely to be needed for any public purpose [or for a company], a notification to that effect shall be published in the Official Gazette [and in two daily newspapers circulating in that locality of which at least one shall be in the regional language], and the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality [(the last of the dates of such publication and the giving of such public notice, being hereinafter referred to as the date of the publication of the notification)].

(2) Thereupon it shall be lawful for any officer, either generally or specially authorized by such Government in this behalf, and for his servants and workman, - to enter upon and survey and take levels of any land in such locality;

to dig or bore into the sub-soil;

to do all other acts necessary to ascertain whether the land is adapted for such purpose;

to set out the boundaries of the land proposed to be taken and the intended line of the work (if any) proposed to be made thereon;

to mark such levels, boundaries and line by placing marks and cutting trenches; and,

where otherwise the survey cannot be completed and the levels taken and the boundaries and line marked, to cut down and clear away any part of any standing crop, fence or jungle;'

37.'Section 4(2)'would reveal that besides entering upon and surveying and taking levels of any land in the locality concerned, the officer authorised by the Government through the Notification 'is also empowered to dig or bore into the sub-soil, to do all other acts necessary to ascertain whether the land is adapted for all purposes; to set out the boundaries of the land proposed to be taken and the intended line of work (if any) proposed to be made thereon; to mark such levels, boundaries and line by placing marks and cutting trenches and such other activities mentioned under sub-Section (2) thereof. In such circumstances, the fact is that it is the issuance and publication of'Section 4(1)'notification that will empower the authorised officer and workmen to enter into and do such permissible acts and activities. This fact was noted in Babu Barkya Thakur's case as well.

38. In Shiv Kumar Vs. Union of India a three-Judge Bench of this Court held that a purchaser of land in respect of which notification under 'Section 4(1)' of the LA Act issued and published (after the issuance of 'Section 4' notification under the 'LA Act) did not acquire any right in the land concerned and such sale is ab initio void and such a person would have no right to claim that land under the policy of law. 'Section 23'of the LA Act deals with matters to be considered in determining compensation. Going by 'the said provision, the market value of the land in question was to be decided taking the market value at the date of the publication of the notification under 'Section 4. Going by the settled position, a vital defect in the 'Section 4(1)'notification under the 'LA Act' cannot be cured by issuing and publishing a declaration under 'Section 6'of the LA Act and in such circumstances, it would entail annulment of both the notifications and also the acquisition proceedings. All the aforesaid aspects would reveal that issuance and publication of a valid'Section 4(1)'Notification, was the foundation for acquisition of land in any locality under the'LA Act. All the above reasons will fortify our conclusion and justify the rejection of the contention that'Section 4(1)'notification is nothing but a mere formality and got no real relevance or importance in the process of land acquisition under the'LA Act."

32. The aforesaid decision in Deepak Aggarwal (supra) is relevant to the question before us as it helps us understand the date/ point of initiation of acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894.

33. We may in this context also refer to a decision reported in (1985) 3 SCC 1; Collector (District Magistrate) Allahabad and Anr. Vs. Raja Ram Jaiswal, wherein, the decision in the case of Khub Chand (supra) was considered. Raj Ram Jaiswal's case (supra) noticed that Khub Chand's case (supra) distinguished the decision in Babu Barkya Thakur (supra) and it approved the statement contained in Somavanti Vs. State of Punjab reported in AIR 1963 SC 151 that a valid notification under Sub-section (1) of Section 4 is a condition precedent to the making of a declaration under sub-section (1) of Section 6. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Raj Ram Jaiswal's case (supra) observed that this view had been consistently followed and was approved in State of Mysore Vs. Abdul Razak Sahib reported in (1973) 3 SCC 196, wherein, it was observed that 'in the case of a notification under 'Section 4' of the Land Acquisition Act, the law has prescribed that in addition to the publication of the notification in the Official Gazette, the Collector must also give publicity of the substance of the notification in the concerned locality. Unless both these conditions are satisfied, Section 4 of the 'Land Acquisition Act' cannot be said to have been complied with. The publication of a notice in the locality is a mandatory requirement'.'

34. Para 16 of Raja Ram Jaiswal 's case (supra) is relevant in the context of the issues involved before us and it reads as under:-

"16. Assuming that a notification in the Official Gazette is a formal expression of the decision of the Government, the decision of the Government is hardly relevant, unless it takes the concrete shape and form by publication in the Official Gazette. Where a decision of the Government to be effective and valid has to be notified in the Government Gazette, the decision itself does not become effective unless a notification in the Official Gazette follows. In 'Mahendra Lal Jaini v. The State of Uttar Pradesh & Ors.(2) it was held that a notification under 'Sec. 4A' of the Indian Forest Act, 1927 is required to be published in the Gazette and unless it is so published, it is of no effect. Logically, the same view must be adopted for a notification under 'Sec. 4. Therefore assuming that a notification is a formal expression of a decision of the Government to acquire land, unless the decision is notified in the Government Gazette by an appropriate notification, the proceedings for acquisition cannot be said to have been initiated and the decision would remain a paper decision .'Sec. 4 (1)'further requires that 'the Collector shall cause public notice of the substance of such notification to be given at convenient places in the said locality.' The expression 'such notification.' in the latter part of 'Sec. 4 (1)'and sequence of events therein enumerated would clearly spell out that first the Government should reach a decision to acquire land, then publish a notification under'Sec.4 (1)'and simultaneously or within a reasonable time from the date of the publication of the notification cause a notice to be published containing substance of such notification meaning thereby that notification which is published. Obviously, therefore, there cannot be a publication in the locality prior to the issuance of the notification. 'The submission of Mr. Kacker does not commend to us."

35. Clearly, Hon'ble the Supreme Court held that even assuming that a notification under Section 4(1) is a formal expression of a decision of the Government to acquire land, unless the decision is notified in the Government Gazette by an appropriate notification, the proceedings for acquisition cannot be said to have been initiated and the decision would remain a paper decision. It considered the language used in Sub-section (1) of Section 4 and the sequence of events enumerated therein to hold that same clearly spelt out that first the Government should reach a decision to acquire land, then publish a notification under'Section 4 (1)'and simultaneously or within a reasonable time from the date of the publication of the notification cause a notice to be published containing substance of such notification meaning thereby that notification which is published. Obviously, therefore, there cannot be a publication in the locality prior to the issuance of the notification. This is relevant in the context of the assertion of the opposite parties that the notification under Section 4(1) is dated 27.12.2013 and is prior to coming into force of the Act, 2013 i.e. prior to 01.01.2014, because preparing a notification and keeping it on file by itself is of no legal significance with regard to initiation of acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894 and it would at best be remain a paper decision as held by in the case of Raja Ram Jaiswal (supra).

36. In the case of Narendrajit Singh and Anr. Vs. State of U.P. and Anr. reported in (1970) 1 SCC 125 also the Supreme Court in a matter arising out of a decision of the Allahabad High Court, held, after considering the provisions of the Act, 1894, that the process of acquisition must start with a notification under Section 4. Issuance of notification under Section (1) of Section 4 is a condition precedent to the exercise of any further powers under the Act.

37. In a decision reported in (2002) 7 SCC 712; Urban Improvement Trust, Udaipur Vs. Bheru Lal & Ors. the Supreme Court also held that from the different phraseology used in'Sections 4(1)'and'6(1), it is apparent that under'Section 4(1)'publication in the Official Gazette is a condition precedent for acquiring the land. It further observed in Paragraph 18 that if the decision taken by the Government to acquire the land is not notified in the Official Gazette,'the said decision'will be of no effect. Section 4'of the Act, 1894 mandates that whenever it appears to the appropriate Government that land in any locality is needed or is likely to be needed for any public purpose or for a company, a notification to that effect shall be published in the Official Gazette and acquisition process starts after publication of the notification in the Official Gazette under'Section 4(1), therefore, publication of the notification under Section 4(1) being a condition precedent for acquisition of land, the said date is required to be taken into consideration for counting the period of limitation of one year and the previous publication of notices in the newspapers were rightly ignored by the High Court. This decision also holds that publication of notification under Section 4(1) in the Official Gazette is starting point of acquisition under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

38. A Full Bench of Bombay High in the case of Sandeep S. Metange and Ors. Vs. State of Maharasthra and Ors. reported in 2022 (1) Mh.L.J. 146 also had the occasion to consider the point of initiation of acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894 and after considering a catena of decisions of the Supreme Court, it ultimately opined that publication of preliminary notification under Section 4 of the Act, 1894 amounts to initiation of land acquisition proceedings for the purposes of Section 24(1) of the Act, 2013.

39. We may in this very context refer to a Division Bench Judgment of Delhi High Court reported in 1991 SCC OnLine Del 784; Universal Cans & Containers Ltd. Vs. Union of India, wherein, the question which fell for consideration was, what would be the date of notification of the Official Gazette which take effect; whether it is the date on which the Official Gazette is printed or the date when it is issued to the public? This question arose in the context of the exemption notification under Section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962. Considering the language of the said provision the Division Bench opined that the Central Government is to inform the general public, or the trading community in particular, as to the exemption notification or its withdrawal. That can only be done if the Official Gazette is made available to the general public. The word "notification" in ordinary parlance means the act of notifying or giving notice; notice given in words, or anything which communicates information. It opined that the notification had to be in writing and had to be published in the Official Gazette. The word "publish", according to the New Webster's Dictionary of English Language, means "to cause to be printed and offer for sale to the public, as a newspaper, book, magazine, or the like; to make public; to make known to public in general; to promulgate." According to the Concise Oxford Dictionary, the word "publish" means "make generally known; announce formally; promulgate; issue copies of (book, engraving, etc.) for sale to the public; and the word "notification" is the act of notifying which means "make known, announce, reiterate, inform, give notice to."

40. The Division Bench then opined, what is the use of the Official Gazette which is lying in the printing press of the Government of India or any Government Department and is not made known to the public who are to be affected by such a Gazette. It opined that principle 'ignorance of law is no excuse' can not be invoked unless the law is made public. It opined that the date on which the Official Gazette is made available to the public that matters, and not the date on which it is shown to have been printed. These observations apply to the case at hand also, as, merely printing the date 27.12.2013 on the notification by itself meant nothing unless it was published in the Official Gazette.

41. The above discussion clarifies the law on the issue of date/ point of initiation of acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894.

42. Now, in the case at hand not only the publication in the newspapers but also in the Official Gazette as well as public notice in the locality was done after 01.01.2014 i.e. after the Act, 2013 had come into force and by virtue of Section 114 thereof the Act, 1894 had already been repealed, meaning thereby, the aforesaid notifications/ publications/ public notice was done under Section 4(1) of a repealed Act i.e. the Act, 1894.

43. Legal position is settled that 'Repeal' cannotes abrogation or obliteration of one statute by another, from the statute book as completely as if it had never been passed. When the Act is repealed, it must be considered, subject to saving clause, if any, as if it had never existed. Legal position in this regard has been elucidated in a judgment reported in (1975) 3 SCC 512; India Tobacco Co. Ltd. Vs. Commercial Tax Officer, Bhavanipur and Ors., (2000) 2 SCC 536; Kolhapur Canesugar Works Ltd. Vs. Union of India and (1997) 1 SCC 650; Gajraj Singh Etc. Vs. The State Transport Appellate Tribunal and Ors.

44. The effect of Section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act, 1897') came up for consideration before Hon'ble Supreme Court in a case reported in (2008) 12 SCC 112; State of Punjab and Ors. Vs. Bhajan Kaur and Ors., wherein, after noticing the said provision it was observed that section 6'of the General Clauses Act, inter alia, saves a right accrued and/ or a liability incurred. It does not create a right. When Section 6'applies only an existing right is saved thereby. The existing right of a party has to be determined on the basis of the statute which was applicable and not under the new one. If a new Act confers a right, it does so with prospective effect when it comes into force, unless expressly stated otherwise.

45. In the facts and circumstances noticed earlier Section 6 of the Act, 1897 does not save the impugned proceedings because no proceedings were validly initiated under the Act, 1894 prior to 01.01.2014, therefore, there was nothing which could be saved under Section 6.

46. Section 24 of the Act, 2013 also does not apply nor does it save the acquisition proceedings impugned herein because there was no initiation of such proceedings under the Act, 1894 on or before 01.01.2014.

47. As, there was no initiation of land acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894 while it was in operation i.e. prior to its repeal on 01.01.2014, therefore, there is no question of its saving whether under Section 24 of the Act, 2013 or under Section 114(2) of the said Act read with Section 6 of the Act, 1897.

48. In fact, as stated earlier it is a case of initiation of acquisition proceedings after 01.01.2014 under a repealed enactment i.e. the Act, 1894, therefore, the impugned notifications etc. are apparently and fundamentally erroneous in the eyes of law and ab initio void.

49. In view of the above discussion, it can not be said that the land acquisition proceedings under the Act, 1894 were initiated prior to 01.01.2014 merely because the notifications bore the date 27.12.2013, as would be evident from the law clarified and declared judgment of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Raja Ram Jaiswal (supra) and Bheru Lal (supra). The decision to initiate acquisition proceedings and the notification in this regard unless they are notified and published in the gazette etc. have no meaning in the eyes of law and at best can only be treated as a decision on paper, nothing more. The date on the notification is irrelevant. What is relevant is the date of publication in the newspapers, notification in the Official Gazette and the public notice referred in Section 4(1) and most importantly, the last of these dates which alone is to be treated as the date of publication of the notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894. As, all these dates are subsequent to 01.01.2014, therefore, apparently, the notifications are a nullity in the eyes of law, as, the provisions under which they have been published/ notified etc. was non existent on the relevant dates of such publication etc., having been repealed prior to it. The purport of repeal has already been discussed earlier which need not be reiterated. In fact, in the case at hand not only the date of notification under Section 4(1) but also the date of notification/ declaration under Section 6 read with Section 16 is subsequent to 01.01.2014 and all the proceedings under Act, 1894 have been held after 01.01.2014, therefore, the entire acquisition proceedings are a nullity in the eyes of law as they have neither been initiated nor undertaken under the Act, 2013 which was the law applicable on and after 01.01.2014. The contentions of Shri Chandra to the contrary are rejected.

50. In Para 21 and 24 of the writ petition it has been specifically averred by petitioner that physical possession of the land in question has not been taken from the petitioner by opposite parties and this averment has not been denied specifically in counter affidavit of opposite party no. 4- Special Land Acquisition Officer and the Development Authority. It is also accepted to opposite party no. 4 that til date compensation has not been paid to the petitioner as there are several co-sharers etc., though, the amount as per the Development Authority has been deposited.

51. On account of impugned action, the compensation, though, determined in terms of the Act, 2013, has been determined on the basis of date of notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 issued in January/February, 2024, which, as held by us, is illegal. Moreover, we are now in 2026 and petitioner is still in actual possession of the land.

52. We have also gone through the Statement of object and reason of the Act, 2013 and its scheme and we find that the Act, 2013 is a much more beneficial legislation from the point of view of the land owner and affected family etc. and one of the objects which it seeks to achieve is just and fair compensation to such land owners but in the case at hand for the reasons already given hereinabove, the acquisition proceedings have not taken place in terms of the Act, 2013 but have taken place under a repealed enactment i.e. the Act, 1894 thereby causing grave prejudice to the petitioner and violating his right under Article 14, 300A of the Constitution of India apart from those available under the Act, 2013.

53. So far as delay in filing of the writ petition is concerned, no doubt the notifications impugned were issued in 2013 and the award was initially rendered in 2016, but same was amended in 2022. In any case considering the fundamental flaw as noticed, when the proceedings themselves are a nullity in the eyes of law and also considering the fact that possession is still with the petitioner, further, the public purpose for which the acquisition was made having not been achieved in the sense that the construction of 45 meter wide road has not taken place till date even after lapse of 12 years and the illegality being so fundamental it can not be cured nor get validated by mere lapse of time, therefore, this is not a factor which could persuade us to dismiss the writ petition in the facts of this case on the point of delay. The fact that acquisition proceedings have not been completed even after 12 years is itself a factor which goes against the opposite parties. The objection of Shri Chandra in this regard is not acceptable in the facts of this case.

54. The logical consequence of the above discussion and our findings on the issues involved would be to quash the entire acquisition proceedings but we can not be unmindful of the fact that acquisition proceedings are for construction of a 45 meter public road i.e. for a public purpose, though, they have remained pending since 2014. The total land which has been acquired is only about 2.737 hectares which is not a large tract of land and as regards the land of the petitioner which is part of acquired land, it is only 0.5020 hectares, therefore, we are of the opinion that instead of quashing the acquisition proceedings equities need to be balanced in a way so that on the one hand the public purpose behind the acquisition is not defeated and on the other hand the violation of valuable rights of the petitioner is suitably compensated. This can be done if the concerned opposite parties pay compensation under the Act, 2013 to the petitioner based on the rates etc. acceptable as on date of this judgment and not on the basis of date of the impugned notification of 2014 under Section 4(1) referred earlier. It is ordered accordingly. The compensation determined under the relevant award shall be redetermined and paid to the petitioner under the Act, 2013 in the light of the judgment, within a period of three months. The opposite parties shall not take possession of the land unless compensation is recalculated and paid as above. The entire acquisition proceedings shall be completed within 6 months.

55. With the aforesaid observations, the writ petition is disposed of.
